QUINCY'S PERCENTAGE AMONG THE HIGHEST

Only Six of Cities and Towns in Metropolitan District Growing Faster

Actual Gain of Some Not as Large as in 1900

There are 40 cities and towns in the Metropolitan district and 21 these did not report as large an actual increase in population for the ten years ending in 1910, as for the ten years ending in 1900.

Quincy, however, was one of the 19 which made a larger increase, this list including Revere, Winthrop, Saugus, Brookline, Quincy, Swampscott, Braintree, Watertown, Malden, Lynn, Lexington, Dedham, Needham, Dover, Weston, Stoneham, Weymouth, Westwood, Woburn, and Canton.

It may be noted that Quincy made a larger increase in the last five years than in the first five years between 1900 and 1905.

In the summary below the cities and towns of the Metropolitan district are arranged according to the percentage of increase. Only six are higher than Quincy, and only one of these six made a larger actual increase.

The average percentage for the district was 21.8, but for Quncy the percentage was 36.6. It will be observed that Boston is well down in the list with a percentage of only 19.6, which is below the average. Three towns report a loss in population, where in 1900 they reported gains.

The summary gives the percentage of increase from 1900 to 1910, also the actual increases by the census of 1910 and the census of 1900

CHINESE NAVAL OFFICIALS

Entertained at Fore River Shipyard

The Chinese naval officers who are on a visit to the United States made a visit of inspection to the Fore River shipyard this morning. In the party were vice-Admiral Sir Sah Chen Ping, the real head of the new navy which China is creating; Capt. Tseng Ya Cheug, Capt. Chu Chen Pang, Capt. Tseng Chu Yi and Capt. Lin Pao Lun.

The party was also accompanied by a representative of the United States navy. They came from Boston in automobiles, each car being accompanied by a Boston police officer. The party passed through Quincy shortly after 10 o'clock.

Arriving at the Fore River they were received by the officials of the company who escorted them through the yards on a tour of inspection, and saw the new Argentine battleship and other naval vessels that are under construction.

Admiral Sah, who speaks English with ease, expressed himself as greatly pleased with what he saw. After the visit of inspection the party were escorted to the new office building, where a light lunch was served on the second floor of the building, which was gayly decorated for the occasion with the American and Chinese flags.

The visit to the Fore River is the only one that the visiting officials will make as they return to New York on the afternoon train.

After the return to Boston from the Fore River they were entertained at dinner at the Algonquin club by Admiral Bowles. Here they were also met by Gov. Draper and Mayor Fitzgerald.

It is understood that China will soon place contracts for a whole fleet of warships, possibly with the Fore River company.

Admiral Sah in an interview with the newspaper men said:

"Our visit to Boston is because this time our prince has not been very well, and is not able to undergo the fatigues of visiting all the shipyards and leaves some others for me to visit.

Asked if he could see any marked superiority in either European or American shipyards over those on the opposite side of the Atlantic, the admiral remarked quietly: "I find them much the same." He said that, generally speaking, America has better harbors, and in this respect has advantages over Europe as to shipbuilding."

LUTHERAN FAIR.

The second day of the Swedish Lutheran fair was very successful. Friday was children's day and about 200 came out for a good time. Brooks' orchestra rendered some very pleasing music and a number of girls furnished an entertainment. There were duets by Esther Thorn and Anna Carlson, and several selections by the Girls' chorus. Anna Bjorkman played a piano solo very creditably. The candy and fruit counter and the grab bag and fish pond appealed most strongly to the young people. The roulette wheel also had a share of their attention.

DEMOCRATIC CONFERENCE.

A meeting of the Democratic City Committee will be held in Plummers hall next Tuesday evening at which time a number of party leaders will address the committee. Among the speakers will be James M. Curley Democratic candidate for Congressman from the Tenth district; Councilman John J. McDevitt, candidate for Representative Sixth district; Michael T. Sullivan, candidate for Representative from the Fifth district; Representative Thomas P. Riley, chairman of the Democratic Legislative committee, John F. McDonnell, chairman of the executive committee of the Democratic State committee.

A BARRE OPINION

All Not So Naturally Endowed As Quincy

The Barre Daily Times says editorially:

"Were Quincy, Mass., dependent on its granite industry to maintain or increase, its population figures, then Quincy would not have had the splendid gain of 36.6 per cent. in population during the past ten years, for Quincy's granite operations have long since been distanced by the Fore River shipbuilding works and other industries. But diversity of industries has kept the industrial life of the city strong, in spite of whatever slackness there may now be in the once leading business, so that the place has not suffered in population now having 32,642 people, in contrast to 23,899 ten years ago.

The value of having more than one big industry was never more clearly shown than in this instance. Once Quincy was the leading granite center of the eastern country and it was receiving the impetus from the condition; but the rise of other granite centers, notably Barre, was so sure and so powerful that Quincy was overshadowed as a granite center. Had it, then, been dependent merely on this product of the quarries, it would have suffered thereby, in spite of its close connection with Boston; but, having other industries growing from other natural advantages, it has continued to progress in recent years, until at the present it shows more than the average proportionate increase in population of the Massachusetts cities

"Single-industry towns are more or less at the mercy of chance, no matter how splendid may be the prospects of that single industry; and it is well for the citizens to be awake to the possibilities of development along other lines They may not be all so naturally endowed as Quincy is, with its river mouth and sea front, but there undoubtedly are openings to be taken advantage of."

Rugs
With a Reputation

You can't tell much about rugs by their appearance,—you have to depend on the trade mark and the man who sells them to you.

The rug business is full of trade names. There are "body brussels" and "near body brussels" and "velvets" and "wilton velvets" and scores of other variations.

At first appearance it is hard for the average buyer to tell at first glance which is the $15.00 and which is the $25.00 rug—Thats where our reputation for fair and honest dealings is worth something to you and us. Our big stock of rugs is on our second floor. If we were paying high Boston rents we couldn't sell them to you at these prices.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

It is not the western States that are making the largest percentage of gain in population by the new census. The gain of Missouri was only six per cent.

Although it was a fake story that the Boston paper published relative to Restelli, the paper is almost entitled to thanks, because it awoke the people to the fact that the Quincy murderer has not been apprehended. We hope it is a fact that police departments generally are searching for Restelli, and that the rewards of $1.500 for his apprehension will bear fruit. We have confidence that he will yet be located.

If Massachusetts continues the next ten years with fourteen Congress men as at present, Boston will have a sufficient population without Quincy to make up three districts, which will be good news to Quincy. This is on a basis of 223,500 for each Congressman in the United States. In 1870 the basis was 131,425; in 1880 it was 151,911; in 1890 it increased to 173,901, and in 1900 to 193,167. All depends on the action of Congress in fixing the number of members of the next Congress.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

An editorial from the Boston Transcript calls attention to the folly of the proposed Greater Boston scheme. The Transcript says:

"Merely to make this city bulk large in the census tables of the ready-reference manuals would be a very childish reason for such a whole sale overturn in affairs as the proposed Greater Boston would constitute. It is now something of a distinction for Boston that its census figures do not so nearly represent its real strength as do those of most other American cities. Were these all to enter into a race to see how large they could make themselves appear on the records startling areas would in time result. New York and Philadelphia might become contiguous cities, while Chicago would be bounded by Wisconsin, Indiana, Lake Michigan and the rest of Illinois. Boston, to recover relative position anew in such a race, might have to annex everything as far west as theConnecticut river, and south to the Cape Cod Canal. All this craze for bigness is essentially unintelligent. What makes an American city desirable is its quality, its government, its institutions, it's education facilities, its average of human comfort. To these aims the attention of public spirited men should be directed and not to figures in a census bulletin.

"Huge cities are not as a rule well run. The Greater New York experiment in government has been an indifferent success. The experience of Chicago will hardly be quoted as an argument for a Greater Boston. Popular government works out to the best advantage where the power is kept close to those over whom it is exercised. Expenditures, which the taxpayers can see coming out of them, are usually well directed. When the contributing area becomes so great that any particular item of waste bears imperceptibly on those who observe it their interest for its correction subsides."

ECONOMICAL AND SPEEDY

The Perkins Fulfills All Requirements at Finish

The torpedo boat destroyer Perkins is back at her dock at the Fore River shipyard with colors flying. The Globe says:

After exceeding all the government requirements and proving herself the speediest craft that was ever constructed at a Massachusetts shipyard the torpedo-boat destroyer Perkins, christened some months ago by Mrs. Larz Anderson at Quincy, came in through Broad sound yesterday afternoon and steamed right up to the Northern-ave. bridge, where the trial board and naval experts were landed and took carriages for the South station, where they boarded the Federal Express for Washington.

The boat's fastest time was 30.012 knots an hour, which is equivalent to 34.3 land miles, and this was developed by her 13,000-horse power oil-burning turbine engines during her standardization trial.

The tests were held on the government course off the Maine coast. In her four hours' run she exceeded the contract requirements of 29.50 knots by half a knot, and in the test for feed water and fuel consumption she was well inside the limit.

The Perkins, which was named for Commodore Hamilton Perkins, Mrs. Anderson's grandfather, left Rockland at 8.25 A. M. yesterday with the trial board, of which Rear Admiral Chauncy Thomas was the head, for the final tests. The final trials of the four days' tests proved just as satisfactory as the previous ones. At 12.55 P. M. the Perkins was abreast of Eastern point, cape Ann, and during the trip in bursts of speed she developed 29,78 knots, or over 33 miles.

The Perkins left the builder's yard last Monday and since then she has been given every test which the naval officers on board could think of.

Commander C. F. Hughes, a member of the trial board, said that in addition to the wonderful working of the engines the Perkins had proved herself the most economical consumer of fuel and water of any of the destroyers thus far commissioned.

Capt. Joseph Kemp, commander of the tug Orion of the Boston towboat company, was in command of the vessel during the trials, and he brought her up the harbor and placed her alongside the bridge pier as easily as if she had been a tug.

The Perkins is 293 feet long. During the trials she carried a crew of 92 men. The three funnels were thickly encrusted with brine, showing where the salt spray had dashed over her on the run up from the eastward.

The Perkins left for Quincy after landing the naval men. The finishing touches will now be put on and she will be ready to be turned over to the government in about three weeks.

Besides Rear Admiral Thomas and Commander Hughes the trial board members were Commander Thomas Snowden, Commander M. S. Smith and Commander Robert Stocker.

BRAINTREE'S POPULATION.

The new census shows Braintree to have made its largest increase in population for any period of ten years. The population today is 8,066 an increase of 1,196.

Braintree is now 24 among the 44 cities and towns of the Metropolitan district, being larger than Milton, Saugus, Stoneham, Swampscott, Belmont, Wellesley, Needham, and other towns, and close to Dedham and Winchester.

Milton, which led Braintree in 1895, 1900 and 1905, has been left behind. Here are the figures for the two towns:

SIXTY YEARS AN EDITOR.

The publishers of the Patriot and Daily Ledger unite in extending congratulations to Editor R. William Waterman of Athol who completes today 60 years as a printer, editor and publisher. For years we have known Bro. Waterman, enjoyed his fellowship and his hospitality, and noted the progress of his paper, the Athol Chronicle, which was established in 1866. He has given the people of western Massachusetts a newsy, clean, reliable home newspaper, which has undoubtedly been one of the great factors in building up the town from a population of 2,800 to 8,000. Bro. Waterman served an apprenticeship at the University Press and Riverside Press in Cambridge and was well equipped for newspaper work. May he enjoy many years of health and happiness.

Lanier of the Cavalry

Or, A Week's Arrest

By GENERAL CHARLES KING,

Author of "The Colonel's Daughter," "Foes In Ambush," Etc.

Copyright, 1909, by J. B. Lippincott Company

Synopsis.

Trooper Rawdon and Sergeant Fitzroy, lovers of Dora Mayhew, quarrel in Dr. Mayhew's home. Mayhew and Lieutenant Lanier interfere. Lanier, lover of Miriam Arnold, is ordered in arrest for disobeying Colonel Button's orders.

Trooper Rawdon is ordered arrested for assaulting Sergeant Fitzroy. He disappears. Miriam gets a fright at Sumter's home. Colonel Button and Captain Sumter quarrel over Lanier's case.

Fort Cushing has a blizzard. Major Scott, paymaster, is lost. Fitzroy accuses Rawdon of attacking Scott. Miriam's fright was caused by a thief in her room. Lanier gives whisky to two freezing soldiers, Quinlan and Cassidy. Quinlan finds Rawdon's cap at Lanier's house. Detectives investigate the thief's invasion of Miriam's room. Scott is found. Kate Sumter and Miriam refuse to talk about the thief. Colonel Button sends for Lanier.

Lanier denies writing unfriendly articles about Button. Button accuses him of lending his civilian clothing to Rawdon. Fitzroy produces the clothing found in Rawdon's room in town. Button also accuses Lanier of leaving his quarters while in arrest. Lanier narrowly escapes death by fire.

Fitzroy tries to arrest Rawdon, but Ennis lets him and his bride, Dora, go. Colonel Riggs arrives to try Lanier on Button's charges. Captain Snaffle accuses Lanier of being Miriam's thief.

(Started Sept. 14.)

"What's he mean by coming here in 'cits?'" said Snaffle.

"Yes, Colonel Riggs; if this man's a soldier why isn't he in uniform?"

With perfect respect, at a nod from Riggs, the newcomer replied, "My uniforms and other belongings of mine were taken from my trunk in town during my absence."

"You could have borrowed one," said Snaffle truculently.

"I told him he need not," retorted Riggs. "Mr. Rawdon, you were a duly enlisted trooper, I believe. Take that chair."

"And am still, sir."

"But your discharge is ordered."

"It was applied for and recommended, and General Whipple told me in Chicago a few days ago it was settled, but that would have made no difference, sir. I should have been proud to wear the uniform until officially discharged."

Riggs wheeled in his chair. "Colonel Button, it has been fully explained to this man and to the next that what they tell us here is to be just what they would swear to before a court. You can decide for yourself on hearing it whether you wish them to swear to it or not. Now, Rawdon, tell us how you came to enlist."

"As the representative of three newspapers in Chicago and the east. They were anxious to have an Indian campaign and the life of an enlisted man described as it really was. I joined a squad of recruits for this regiment right after the news of the Crazy Horse battle on Powder river."

"Do you still hold that job?"

"No, sir." And there was a twitch of the muscles about the corners of the mouth suggestive of amusement.

"Why?"

"I failed to—give satisfaction. Only scraps of my letters were published."

"What did they want?"

"Criticism principally and confirmation of the stories of abuse and ill treatment of soldiers by their officers."

"Were your letters never published?"

"Three of them eventually, after the campaign, in the New York Morning Mail."

Whereupon Riggs spun in his chair and rejoicefully surveyed Button, who sat like a man in a daze, staring open eyed at the witness.

"Then, as I understand it, you were favorably impressed with the life and conditions?"

"In spite of hardship and privation, yes, sir, and because I found complete refutation of the stories about the officers, both as regarded their dealing with the Indians and with their own men."

"Were there any persons with the command who knew you and your mission?"

"Two, sir, as it turned out. Trooper Cary, who enlisted at the same time I did, and a civilian, Mr. Lowndes, who recognized us at Fort Frayne. We were at college together. He and Cary became very intimate toward the last, and yet I think they kept my secret in spite of our falling out."

"Do you care to tell us why you fell out?"

"I prefer that Mr. Lowndes should do that. He and Cary had been chums in college days, and, though we were in the same society, I did not know them then as I do now."

"You had trouble with Sergeant Fitzroy at first. We have heard his version. What is yours?"

Rawdon's eyes never flinched.

"It was partly on account of the lady who is now my wife and partly on account of—money. Fitzroy is an out and out usurer and has a dozen sergeants in the regiment in his debt and under his thumb, Captain Snaffle's first sergeant among them."

"It's a lie!" said Snaffle.

"It's the truth," said Riggs, "and I have other proofs. You will curb your tongue and your temper, Captain Snaffle, if you please. Go on, Rawdon."

"I had reason to believe he was squeezing Dr. Mayhew. I had learned to love Mayhew's daughter. I made Dr. Mayhew take enough to free himself and won Fitzroy's hate on both accounts."

"You are accused of assaulting him the night of the 16th. What of that?"

"I did not even see him or speak to him. I had been in town in the afternoon arranging for our marriage. Dr. Mayhew would not hear of it until I had got my discharge, but we had decided to be married Saturday morning and to go east that afternoon, as important business called me. Mr. Lowndes will tell you that he owed me much money. I had lost my position as correspondent, needed the cash and pressed him for it. He had promised faithfully to have it ready, but ready it was not. I knew of his relatives in Massachusetts and urged him to telegraph, but he said he could get some of it at least at the fort. So I drove him and Cary out in a sleigh, left them at the store and, circling the fort, spent two hours with Miss Mayhew, then, getting uneasy, as they did not come, drove round back to the store just in time to see Lieutenant Foster's sleigh going like the wind to town and found Rafferty in frantic excitement. He said there was hell to pay. The lieutenant was in arrest. Lowndes and Cary had run away with some of his clothes. There'd been a shindy up the row, and just then a soldier friend came running. 'Skip for your life, Rawdon,' said he. 'There's been robbery at Captain Sumter's, and Sergeant Fitzroy swears it was you and that you've struck him and assaulted him. The colonel orders you arrested wherever found. The patrols are out now!' There was no time to explain. I lashed my team to town, caught Lowndes in cavalry overcoat and cap, the fool, and with not a cent to his name. I gave Cary a note to Miss Mayhew, which he never delivered, and took Lowndes with me on No. 6 at 11:40."

"Then you were not at Captain Sumter's that night?"

"Nowhere near it, sir."

"Now, another matter," continued Riggs—"that night at Laramie of which you told me. These gentlemen will be interested."

"There was nothing remarkable in that. I had heard of the same thing being done at West Point. I heard in the nick of time of the order to the officer of the day to inspect for Lieutenant Lanier. I imagined that something very serious would happen to him. I knew he'd gone to the post with Lowndes and why. So, with my apologies now to the lieutenant, I slipped round to his tent and into his blankets."

"Did the lieutenant know of it or of the reason?"

"Never, so far as I know. I doubt if he knows it now. Lowndes told me the lieutenant before he entered West Point was a member of our fraternity. That was enough."

"And so far as I am concerned," said Riggs, "that is enough. Have you gentlemen any questions to ask?"

"Not—now," answered Button slowly. "But I desire personally to see—the witness—later."

DIX YIELDS TO LEADERS' CALL

THE "NEW NATIONALISM" IDEA

Scored In Special Plank of Platform Which Condemns Attacks Upon United States Supreme Court and Holds Payne-Aldrich Tariff Law Responsible For High Cost of Living—Favors Regulation by State of Public Service Corporations

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 1.—John A. Dix of Washington county, chairman of the Democratic state committee, was nominated for governor on the Democratic ticket last night following a conference of leaders, while 400 delegates of the state convention waited two hours in their seats for the formation of the slate.

The chief cause of delay lay in the difficulty of filling second place. Dix had been chosen for the nomination for governor an hour before and the other places on the ticket had been settled to the apparent satisfaction of those who gathered in the rooms of Charles F. Murphy, the Tammany leader, early in the evening.

The question of Dix's running mate and some lingering doubt as to whether Martin H. Glynn of Albany would accept a renomination for comptroller still kept the conferees away from the hall and delayed its opening.

John A. Dix yielded to the earnest solicitation of the leaders and agreed to run at 7:45. The rest of the slate was speedily arranged and announced to the group waiting outside the conference room at the Seneca hotel.

The full ticket is as follows: Governor, John A. Dix of Washington county; lieutenant governor, Thomas F. Conway; secretary of state, Edward Lazansky; comptroller, William Sohmer; state treasurer, John J. Kennedy; attorney general, Thomas J. Carmody; state engineer and surveyor, John A. Benzia; associate judge of the court of appeals, Frederick Collin.

Edwin M. Shepard was the first of the candidates for the nomination for governor to abandon his own claims in favor of Dix. Earlier in the day Dix had made it a condition of his acceptance that all the other candidates should promise him their support. From how many he received this pledge could not be ascertained.

The Platform

The platform presented to the convention pledges the party to the preservation of the "old nationalism." It condemns all attacks upon the supreme court of the United States. It declares for sovereign state rights, "for the largest possible measure of home rule for all cities of the state."

It declares that the Payne-Aldrich tariff law is a "breach of faith" by the Republican party and responsible for the high cost of living. Only by a downward revision of the tariff, it holds, can the cost of living be reduced.

It charges the Republican party with extravagance, and pledges the Democratic party to retrenchment.

It pledges the party to a thorough investigation of all official wrongdoing that the guilty may be punished and business relieved of blackmail.

It declares in favor of state-wide primaries to insure to the people the right to elect candidates and make nominations for public offices.

It favors the enactment of such measures as will compel the personal registration of voters throughout the entire state.

The platform declares for popular election of United States senators, for an income tax, and for a parcels post, for the preservation of water power for all the people, for forest reserve, for "reasonable regulation by the state of public service corporations."

"Lastly, we solemnly declare our inflexible opposition to the so-called 'new nationalism.' Its inventor put this forward as if it were progress, while in reality it is sheer reaction to tyrannical methods long ago shaken off by the free peoples of the world, ofttimes at cruel cost in treasure and blood. The settlers of our country fled from Europe to escape it. Whatever advance its adoption would bring is advance toward socialism."

Dix a Cornell Man

John A. Dix is 50 years old and was born in Glens Falls, N. Y. He received his early education in home schools and was graduated from Cornell university in 1882. His business career he began as a member of the firm of Reynolds & Dix, marble dealers, and later he was associated with a lumber firm. In 1889 he married Miss Gertrude Thomson, the daughter of a lumber merchant.

In politics Dix first became prominent as chairman of the Democratic county committee of Washington county, a position which indirectly led to his forming a county chairmen's organization, in which he strove for more power for the chairman as against the state committeemen.

was the Democratic nominee for the lieutenant governorship, but the ticket was defeated.

Mr. Dix is interested in the lumber operations at Herkimer, president of Iroquois Pulp and Paper company at Thompson, associated with the Moose River Lumber company at McKeever, vice president of the Blandy Paper company at Greenwich, director in the Albany Trust company, Glens Falls Trust company, National bank of Schuylerville, Standard Wall Paper company, Hudson Falls and Adirondack Trust company at Saratoga Springs, and treasurer of the American Wood Board company at Thomson.

WATCH ON "RICE'S" WIFE AND FRIEND

Women May Know Something About the Scheftels Money

New York, Oct. 1.—The United States district attorney has ordered a close watch placed on Mrs. George G. Rice, wife of the man arrested here as the real head and brains of the raided brokerage firm of B. H. Scheftels & Co., and also on Mrs. Elizabeth Lafell, who is known to have been on terms of intimacy with Rice.

The district attorney believes that both women know considerable about the large sums of money taken in by the brokerage firm.

About the same time that Rice was taken in custody the creditors of the Scheftels firm filed a petition in involuntary bankruptcy, naming the assets of the firm as but $30,000.

Rice, whose real name is Herzig, is said by the authorities to have been the genius behind the mining stock manipulations of the firm upon which the federal authorities have swooped after more than $5,000,000 had been taken from a gullible public.

NAVAL ESTIMATES CUT

Appropriation of $128,300,000 For the Coming Year Is Asked For Washington, Oct. 1.—The total estimates for the appropriations necessary for the naval service during the next fiscal year are announced to be $128,300,000. This stands against appropriations of $137,913,000 for the fiscal year ended last July and $132,384,000 for the present fiscal year.

Besides the two battleships and two colliers already announced as the naval building program for next year, there will be several other vessels of minor class asked for, including two sea-going tugs of a type better than the present Patuxent and Patapsco. There may be some supplemental estimates submitted later on.

DENIES BROKEN TROTH

Peabody Says He Will Wed Miss Deacon Some Time In January

Boston, Oct. 1.—George L. Peabody is quoted as making denial of the statement that his engagement with Miss Edith Deacon, one of the three Deacon sisters, has been broken. The rumor that the relations between the two had been severed started in Newport. In denying the report Peabody is alleged to have said:

"The rumor of a broken engagement between Miss Deacon and myself is absolutely incorrect. The wedding is postponed, as stated in the newspapers some time since, but it will take place next January."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Shining Down from the Aeroplane is Most Perilous Part, a Bostonese Maiden Finds—The Problem of Who's Zoo in the Hub Seems to be Definitely Settled—Floral Displays at Suburban Railroad Stations are Awarded Prizes—Savings Bank Life Insurance is Still Talked Of.

People in eastern Massachusetts have not come down to earth yet. That stepson of Daedalus, Claude Grahame-White, is apparently good to keep their attention fixed on the empyrean for some time to come. Just now it's at the Brockton Fair that he spreads his wings to the admiration of folk of all ages and both sexes. In view of the interest in aeronautics that has been aroused it will be strange if New England is not well represented in the crowds at the big New York meet a few weeks hence.

And the special envy of all Bostoness maidens at this time in the sister who has been aloft with Mr. Grahame-White. This experience, which a few decades from now may be as commonplace as riding behind a horse is today, certainly has at present an element of adventure that just appeals to the up to date young woman. There are embarrassments, of course. An amusing incident, to the spectators, occurred at the recent special exposition on Aviation Field just after Miss Dorothy Jordan had finished her flight with the English birdman. In order to descend from the machine she had to climb down one of the uprights, having pegs as her only foothold. At first she was clearly distressed. It looked quite impossible to descend in a dignified fashion. The women in the stands giggled as they realized Miss Jordan's predicament. Finally the young lady threw dignity to the four winds and almost literally shinned down from her perch.

The admirable custom which the Boston and Maine railroad inaugurated some years ago of awarding prizes to the station masters who develop the prettiest floral displays has never been attended with more exquisite results than in the present season. The examining committee has just given the awards of 1910 to the Brattle station in Arlington and the Hill Crossing station in Belmont. Those two, however, are only a little more attractive than scores of other suburban "depots" which have been made so charming that the suburbanite leaves with a regretful feeling in the morning and returns with a sense of enjoyment after the jading day in town.

The question of "Who's Zoo" in Boston is likely very shortly to be answered. It will be the city of Boston's Zoo, founded out of funds left by George F. Parkman for adornment of the urban parks. The City Council last season appropriated ten thousand dollars for a set of plans for a zoological garden in Franklin Park and an aquarium at Marine Park, South Boston. Architectural experts have been in consultation with zoological authorities, such as Director Hornaday of the Bronx Zoo and Director Townsend of the New York Aquarium, and the very delightful plans which they have drawn will in a few days be submitted to the Mayor and his council. Thereafter it will be necessary merely to appropriate money which can be legally used for such a purpose and begin straightway to construct institutions which are proper to every well ordered metropolitan city. Great things are coming from the agitation which Alexander Pope, the distinguished animal painter of Boston, started in 1903.

Not even during a quiet summer has the campaign to inspire thrift among Bay state wage earners been relaxed. It has, on the contrary, in some directions been pursued more vigorously than before. The scheme of savings bank life insurance and old age pensions, about which much has been written, continues to make progress. The amount of insurance in force in the insurance departments of the banks on Spt. 10, 1910, was as follows: At the People's Savings Bank of Brockton, 1,508 policies, with insurance amounting to $654,435 and annuities to the amount of $15,488. In the Whitman Savings Bank, 1,794 policies, with insurance amounting to $595,146 and annuities to the amount of $9,488. With the advent of cooler weather the speaking conducted by the Massachusetts Savings Insurance League is beginning again. Field Secretary H. W. Kimball reports engagements to lecture before organizations in Cambridge, Dorchester, Huntington, Chicopee Falls, and Pittsfield.

Young Bride Is Already Dissatisfied With Aged Husband

Providence, Oct. 1.—After only a few weeks of married life Lillian G. Keach, aged 17 years, has filed papers for separate maintenance in the superior court, alleging extreme cruelty on the part of her husband, Vernon A. Keach, aged 59.

Friends of Keach thought so much of him that while he was away on his honeymoon they decorated the doorway of his store with all kinds of things, including printed signs, old bottles, horseshoes and sunflower plants.

"I am willing to give my young wife a good home," said Keach, "but she must live with me in my house. She isn't going to live with her folks. I didn't marry her family, and the only member of it I intend to support is herself."

STRIKES ON SHOAL, GOING TO PIECES

Schooner William B. Palmer Wrecked Off Massachusetts

Hyannis, Mass., Oct. 1.—The arrival of the crew of eleven of the schooner William B. Palmer in a tender from the Great Round Shoal lightship brought the first word that that vessel lies a total wreck an a shoal spot on Davis bank, fifteen miles east of the Sankaty Head light on Nantucket Island.

Captain Jenssen of the schooner stated that the vessel ran aground on the shoal during a fog, and that when he left her she was breaking up and would be totally destroyed.

For three days the schooner, bound from Newport News for Bangor, loaded with 2700 tons of coal, had been beating her way up the coast in a heavy fog. She got in too close and struck on the shoal on Davis bank. The men rowed twelve hours before reaching the lighthouse.

MEN'S CLUB CHRIST CHURCH

To Open Season with Illustrated Talk on Messina

The Men's Club of Christ Church begins on Monday evening next at the parish house, probably the most successful season of its career. This club has forged ahead rapidly and has gained a most commendable reputation not only in Quincy but in some of the neighboring cities.

The air of good fellowship characteristic of its meetings is as evident as ever, but there has been evinced more and more of late, a strong interest in city and government affairs. The monthly debates are upon real live issues and are handled in a thorough manner. Organizations of this nature are virile factors in the life of a community and merit its strong approval and support.

On Monday night at the parish house, Edmund Billings, Esq., gives an illustrated talk on the Messina Earthquake. When the news of that terrible catastrophe reached the world, Massachusetts was one of the first to give aid, and Mr. Billings was delegated to make a personal dispensation of the funds. Mr. Billings is also secretary of the Boston 1915 movement, and a man very much in the public eye. Preparations are being made in anticipation of a large audience.

President—Merton A. Turner.
Vice President—Walter E. Burke.
Secretary—Edward J. Townsend.
Treasurer—George M. Hanson.

OIL REFINERY FAILS

Sunflower Concern, Organized by Women, Owes Quarter of a Million

Kansas City, Oct. 1.—Judge Pollock, in the federal court in Kansas City, Kan., has ordered the Sunflower Oil Refinery at Niotaze, Kan., to be sold at receiver's sale Oct. 20.

This plant was organized by women of Rochester, N. Y., and is one of the largest in the mid-continent oil field. It was managed by Miss Hermana Kaessman and was known as the "women's oil refinery."

The company made money at first and the business grew until an enlargement was necessary. Debts incurred then threw the plant into bankruptcy. The company owes about $250,000.

MOTORMAN BLAMELESS.

A hearing was held before Judge Avery in the district court this morning in the case of John S. Pitts for manslaughter. Pitts was the motorman of the street car which killed James F. Moran at the corner of Washington and Union streets several weeks ago.

The evidence showed that Moran stood on the corner apparently waiting to take the car. The motorman saw him and slowed down his car to stop. Just as the car reached him Moran fell over onto the tracks and was rolled under the car fender. He lived but a few minutes after being taken from beneath the car.

After hearing the evidence the court found Motorman Pitts was blameless and ordered his discharge.

QUINCY HIGH BY BIG SCORE

Defeat Weymouth at Football 43 to 0

The second game of the season for Quincy High school resulted in avictory, score 43 to 0. Weymouth was entirely outclassed by their heavier and more experienced opponents and their captain had to pay the penalty.

Arthur kicked off to Trainor who carried the ball through most of the home team to the 40 yard line. On the next rush Weymouth was penalized and Proctor punted. Hill brought the ball to the 40 yard line. Good gains by Rice and Manning followed by an excellent forward pass to Chapman gave Quincy her first touchdown. Arthur kicked the goal. 6-0.

On the kick off, Robbins caught the ball but was downed on the 20-yard line by Arthur. Harmon threw Proctor back for a loss and Weymouth punted. Manning received the ball and on the first rush fumbled but recovered the ball immediately. Rice scored the second touchdown on a long end run. Arthur failed to kick the goal. 11-0.

Manning received the kick off and ran the ball back to the 45-yard line, but fumbled it. Edwards recovered it on the 55-yard line. A forward pass was attempted but was fumbled. Hill gained distance on the third down. Rapid gains by Harmon and Hill brought the ball well up the field. Time was called with the ball on the 30-yard line.

SECOND QUARTER.

At the opening of the second quarter, Church and Pfaffmann went in as ends. The ball went into play on the 30-yard line. Good gains by Hill and Rice brought it to the 3-yard line. Harmon went through the line for a touchdown Arthur failed to kick the goal. 16-0.

On the kick off Rice received the ball and passed it to Hill who ran it back 30 yards, Pfaffmann made a short gain on an end run. Manning failed to gain on a quarter back run. Arthur got off a long punt. Church was down with it but the Weymouth interference prevented his getting the ball.

Weymouth punted and Hill made a 40 yard run. Manning made a good gain on the next play but was hurt and Larkin went in at quarter. On the next play Rice went through for a touchdown. Arthur failed to kick the goal. 21-0.

Church ran the ball back to the 40-yard line. Hill brought the ball to Weymouth's 20-yard line on a long end run. Holmes went in for Hill. Gains by Rice and Arthur followed by a loss on an end run necessitated punting. Time was called just as the ball was snapped back.

THIRD QUARTER.

Hill, Blackmur and Chapman went back into the lineup at the opening of the third quarter.

Chapman received the kick off and brought the ball back 15 yards. Weymouth braced in this quarter and after a loss by Harmon and a small gain by Rice, Arthur punted. Weymouth brought the ball a short distance down the field but a fumble by Robbins lost it for them. Johnson got the ball on the fumble. Substantial gains by all the Quincy backs brought the ball to Weymouth's 30-yard line. Fine tackling by Wall lost the ball for Quincy on downs. Weymouth was unable to gain and Proctor punted to Hill who brought the ball to Weymouth's 40-yard line. Larkin and Hill worked a clever forward pass. Harmon brought the ball to the 1-yard line on a centre plunge. Hill scored a touchdown. Arthur kicked goal. 27-0. Time.

FOURTH QUARTER.

Anderson went in for Edwards, Manning returned as quarter back and Holmes took Rice's place at half at the opening of the fourth quarter. Arthur kicked off to Trainor who ran the ball back to the centre of the field. Hill tackled hard and Trainor was taken out of the game. A. Humphrey took Trainor's place and Fitzgerald went in as end. On the next play Hill made a long end run for a touchdown Arthur failed to kick the goal. 32-0. 32-0.

Smith took Dwyer's place at centre. Quincy brought the ball well up the field after the kick off Chapman made a long gain on a forward pass Holmes scored a touchdown. No goal .37-0.

Chapman received the kick off but fumbled. Weymouth got the ball but Robbins fumbled on the first rush. Hill made 30 yards on a forward pass. Rice brought the ball to the 3-yard line on a long gain. Hill made touchdown. Arthur kicked the goal. 43-0.

Robbins received the kick off but fumbled. Bumpus recovered the ball. Proctor made a good gain on a forward pass. White threw Wall back for a loss. Hill received the punt and carried the ball behind the goal but time was up before the ball was caught and it did not count as a touchdown. Final score, 43-0.

After the first touchdown the result of the game was an assured fact as far as the deciding on the winner was concerned, and the size of the score depended on the time the team was given Weymouth did as well as could be expected considering the odds against which they were playing. Trainor played a plucky game and it is very unfortunate that the captain who was the main stay of the team should have been completely used up.

When Trainor was tackled he fell back on his head wrenching his neck severely. The shock of the fall affected his brain and he was out of his head until 11 o'clock that night. This noon he was reported much better and the doctor says nothing serious will come of it, but has ordered him to stay at home and keep quiet for a few days. Trainor declares that he will be in the game again within a week or two and we can readily believe that he will, judging from his exhibition of pluck yesterday.

For Quincy, Hill shone so brightly that it was difficult to see many excellent plays made by the other men. The ends, Blackmur and Chapman, did good work as usual, and Manning ran the team well when he was in the game. Larkin is a find for subquarter back. He used good head work, made good interference for his backs and gained ground himself on a quarter back trick. Plaffmann and Church, who went in as ends during the second quarter, carried themselves well, and will make good dependable men another year.

The line as a whole did not get a fair test against the light Weymouth team but everyone of them did well. White got into the game much better and Tirrell and Arthur did good defensive work. The guards Johnson and Edwards had their eyes open and recovered the ball on fumbles at critical moments. Rice did some fine work in making long gains and Harmon in line bucking. Holmes proved himself versatile by conducting himself creditably at tackle and half back.

Hill played an exceptionally brilliant game and if his ground gaining ability stays with him we can expect to see his name on the all scholastic. He reeled off 40-yard runs at will, and made a number of good gains by forward passes. Of his ability as a tackler little needs to be said.

In a way a sweeping victory of this sort is a misfortune for any team because the memories of it linger with the players, and in the next game the tendency will be to take less pains and to trust more to their acknowledged superiority.

But on the other hand such a game can be of great value. The greatest weaknesses of a team can be best judged when that team is playing against a weak opponent. Where a weak team can get through the line or work a forward pass, the heavier opponents that will be met later in the season, can do much more.

On Tuesday's game there were no fumbles, in yesterday's there were at least half a dozen. Our team distinguished itself yesterday without a doubt but it must guard against carelessness and that other vice which is the bane of good football, namely "fat head." It is rather hard on a team to pat it on the back with one hand and punch it in the stomach with the other, metaphorically speaking, but it all counts for symmetrical growth in the long run.

The line up of the two teams was:

STREET RAILWAY AGREEMENT

Employees Make Good Terms For Four Years

An agreement was reached Saturday between the Old Colony street railway and its employees to cover a period of four years. In brief, the conductors and motormen receive an increase of 15 cents a day and the shop, pit and repair men an increase of five per cent in wages. Various additional working rules were also agreed to. Men on snow plows get five cents an hour more than under the old schedule. Every man is entitled to one day off a week if he so desires. The transportation is given to employes and the working hours are to be in accordance with the present and future State laws. Employes are also to be paid from the time they are marked until relieved from duty. If at the finish of a run men are asked to do extra work he is to be paid continuous time, and men on snow plow work are to be furnished with meals.

The men asked for a flat wage and practically 27 1-2 per cent increase. The sliding scale, however now in force was agreed upon with slight increases. Under the new scale, the wage is to be 22 1-2 cents per hour for the first year, 23 1-2 cents the second year, 24 1-2 cents for the third, fourth and fifth years, 25 1-2 cents for the sixth and seventh years, and 26 1-2 cents per hour thereafter.

There will also be an increase of 1 1-2 cents per hour each year for pit men and other employes.

The new agreement was reached after several conferences between the employes and officials and throughout all the best of feeling prevailed.

The agreement as reached was submitted to the men for approval and was voted on by every employe, the Australian ballot being used. Balloting was commenced last Friday night and continued until late Saturday. The vote on the several questions resulted in an approval of the agreement as reached by the committees.

HEAVY FINES FOR AUTOISTS

Their Cases Will Also Go to Highway Commission

Two heavy fines were imposed in automobile cases in the district court this morning. One in the case of Frederick G. Linn of Everett. The evidence showed that Linn went through the Blue Hills reservation Sunday in an automobile in which were two men, two women and five children. Linn was under the influence of liquor and drove his car at a speed of over 30 miles an hour. Officer Davis, who arrested him, followed the speeding automobile on a motor cycle, and had considerable difficulty in apprehending the driver owing to the narrow streets. It was some time before the officer was able to pass the car. The driver, Linn, was locked up until he sobered off. The court imposed a fine of $50.

The other case was that of William C. Cutler of Brookline. Cutler was at Cohasset last week, and ran into a team of Charles E Nott and smashed him up. Cutler did not stop to see what damage he had done but kept on. His number was secured, however, and he was hailed into court on two complaints. One for injury to property, and the other for running away after the accident. The court imposed a fine of $50 for the complaint for injury to property. The second case was placed on file on payment of costs amounting to $16.50. The cases of Linn and Cutler will also be reported to the Highway Commission.

GALVIN TO HIRE HALL

Makes an Unique Proposition In the Tenth

J. Mitchell Galvin, republican candidate for congress in the 10th district, has made a unique proposition to the voters of the district, says the Boston Advertiser.

In a statement issued he declared that if elected he would hire the biggest hall in the district at intervals of three months during his term of office and, in a public meeting, hear the requests of the people of the district. At these meetings he proposes to have the improvement associations, the business men and all voters in the district who have ideas to better the interests of the district advance them.

In a statement issued he said: "One of the great troubles with public officials today is that they are only close to the people at election time. If elected, I promise to keep in close touch with my constituency in the 10th district."

Mr. Galvin also announced that during the campaign he would not make any political speeches on Sunday, recognizing the fact that ministers of all denominations were opposed to conducting political campaigns on the Lord's day.

Tonight Mr. Galvin will make a personal canvass of the voters of Quincy.

From now on Mr. Galvin intends to conduct the liveliest kind of a campaign in every part of the district. He will open his campaign with a noon rally at Walworth's in South Boston on Tuesday.

LIQUOR RAID.

Two liquor raids were made by the police Saturday night, but liquor was only found in one place. Chief Burrell and Officer Whalan raided the fruit store of Alexander Samrah at the corner of Arnold and Washington street but found nothing. At the same time Officers Goodhue, Olson, Thorne and Ford raided the home of Samrah at 158 Sumner street and seized 50 pint bottles of whiskey and a case of beer. Samrah and his wife Annie were later arrested for keeping and exposing liquor for sale. They were arraigned in court.

DELIGHTFUL TIME ENJOYED

Large Number Out to Kings Daughters Reception

The reception to the older friends of Kings Daughters was held Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard on Greenleaf street. As in years gone by it was a very delightful gathering, and in every way a success. A pleasant social hour was spent with music and readings interspersed with remarks by Dr. Edwin N. Hardy, Edward Southworth and Mrs. Charles A. Spear.

Before the close of the reception all were seated in the dining room where refreshments were served. The room was very tastefully decorated with autumn foliage and the picture was indeed a pretty one with the eighteen elderly people seated there together.

These gatherings mean a great deal not only to the older friends but to the Kings Daughters, who find it a great pleasure to give their friends such a pleasant afternoon. Many of the Kings Daughters were present to assist in entertaining. The guests enjoyed themselves thoroughly, it is needless to say, and the whole atmosphere was one of cheerfulness and benevolence.

At the conclusion of the afternoon a vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. E. W. Sheppard, the hostess, for opening her home, and to Mrs. W. H. Doble and the Kings Daughters for their kindness in preparing the reception. Mrs. Theophilus King and Mrs. J. F. Welch took the guests home at the close of the reception.

LUTHERAN FAIR.

The closing day of the Swedish Lutheran fair was the most successful of all. Over 300 people were present during the evening. Brook's orchestra furnished music throughout the evening and some very pleasing songs and recitations were given by girls of the Dorcas society.

Nearly everything was sold, and the remainder consisting of useful articles and fruit and vegetables will be distributed among the needy. The announcement of the prize winners in the contest was made the last thing in the evening.

The rug was awarded to Mrs. Martin Nilsen, a dinner set to Mrs. Andrew Anderson and a rocking chair to Mrs. W. R. Lofgren. Numerous small prizes were also given to successful contestants.

The fair as a whole is the most successful that has ever been held by the Ladies Aid society. The funds will go toward the running expenses of the church.

The report of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad for the year ended June 30 has just been issued. It shows operating revenue, of $60,693,667.56, and operating expenses of $38,689, 215.76, leaving the net operating revenue $22,004,451.79. The revenue from freight was $30,-110,588.30; from passengers, $24,885,-864.74; from all other transportation, $4,392,643.04; from operations other than transportation, $1,304,571.-47. Stockholders received $9,759,-081.00 in dividends.

The total operating revenue for the year was the largest in the history of the company; it exceeded that of 1909 by $6,346,036.58, or 11 2-3 percent; the operating expenses increased $2,608,909.22, or 7 1-4 percento and taxes increased $537,251.63, or 15.3 percent, or which the federal corporation tax contributed $132,370.-25.

President Mellen estimates that the recent advances in wages of employes will amount to almost $1,800,000, of which, according to his figures, about one-half will be met by the increased passenger rates.

During the year $2,969,697 was spent for new equipment, and large sums have been used in stations, the elimination of grade crossings and construction work of various kinds.

THE BOYS' CONFERENCE

Interesting Papers Both Afternoon and Evening

The conference for Sunday school boys and teachers was held Saturday under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. The afternoon session met in Bethany church at 3 o'clock. Ernest G. Gay, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. presided. Dr. Edwin N. Hardy conducted the devotional exercises. H. W. Gibson, boys secretary of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, spoke on the subject, "Boys in the Sunday School." He believes that the Sunday school must be changed to meet the needs of the boy. The boy cannot be changed to meet the Sunday school as it is today. The keynote of his address as well as that of the papers by the older boys which followed, was that the mental and physical side of the boys must be appealed to as well as the spiritual. The teachers seem to be unable to do this. It is difficult to get enough men of the right sort to teach boys, and it should be men and not women. The teacher should not merely see the boys once a week, but should keep in touch with them between times.

Howard Cantley, Howard Pratt and Alexander Robertson read papers on the subjects. "The Boy and the Church," "Why boys don't go to Sunday School," and "How to get boys interested." The idea in all of these was that the physical activity of the boy is not given proper attention in connection with Sunday school work.

E. W. Hearne gave an unusually interesting address on "Bible Study." Mr. Hearne has done association work in the Army and Navy. He was in China at thetime of the Boxer uprising, and was in the Philippines. Mr. Hearne was also secretary in the District of Columbia and in the State of New Jersey. His address was founded on his experience and was reminiscent to a great extent. His illustration of Admiral John Philip and his love for the Bible will not be forgotten by those who heard it. During one of the battles in which the United States ships were victorious the crew of the flagship started to cheer. The admiral silenced them with the remark. "This is no time to cheer. Men are dying." And then he offered prayer for friend and enemy alike. People wondered where this wonderful spirit and power came from. Mr. Hearne knew, for he knew the admiral and had seen the Bible which was his constant companion in calm and strife. Mr. Hearne pointed out other striking examples of great men whose wisdom and greatness found their source in the Bible. He used these to show that the scriptures were not meant for girls and women only, but for strong men who did things and made history.

At 5.30 the deelgates adjourned to the Y. M. C. A. building where the gymnasium and swimming pool were thrown open for their use.

At 6.30 a banquet was served by the Ladies' Auxiliary. All the delegates stayed and a number of officers and teachers who were unable to be present in the afternoon came for the evening service.

The evening was given over to the group conferences. H. W. Gibson and Rev, Lucius H. Bugbee led in various discussions. Those for boys only were: "The obligation of a boy to the boys of the community." conduct-

Arraigned Today and Cases Were Continued

Three men were arrested in Boston Saturday night by Inspectors Shields and Mitchell for Inspector McKay of Quincy, on the charge of breaking and entering and larceny from the store of Payson, Mitchell & Co. in City Square last Thursday night. The men gave their names as William F. Conway of Providence, Frank Finn of Winthrop and William J. Mullen of Roxbury. The men were arrested at 40 Warrington street Boston, and some of the artiCiss alleged to have been stolen were found in their possession.

Goods valued at $100 were taken from the store. They included three suit cases, overcoats and suits of clothing, gentlemen's gloves and socks, scarf pins and cuff buttons. By request the burglary was not reported. The three men were arraigned in the Quincy court.

QUINCY PLANS PRESENTED

China Now Has Plans for a Battleship

One of the pleasing features incident to the visit of the Chinese naval officers to the Fore River ship yard, Saturday, took place in the new office building where a Chinese tea was served. At the conclusion of the luncheon Admiral Bowles presented Vice Admiral Ping with a set of plans for a battleship, prepared by the Fore River company. The plans were encased in a sealskin cover on which was inscribed "Designs of War vessels prepared by Fore River Shipbuilding Company, Quincy, Mass., U. S. A., presented to H. I. H. Suun and the Chinese naval commission, October, 1910."

The party which was in charge of Admiral Bowles left the Fore River about noon time in four automobiles and returned to Boston where a dinner was served at the Algonquin club. On each automobile was a Boston police officer so that they would not be held up if they exceeded the speed laws. Lieut. Comndi and L. V. Gilis, who represented the United States Navy department, accompanied the party. Others in the party besides the Chinese officials were Maj. Ira Vaughn and Maj. Guy Murchie of Gov. Draper's staff and B. Edward Atwood.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Generally the man with a house full of luxury is hardest on other peoples extravagances.

It will take a smart boy to stick in his thumb and pull out a plum from that New York political situation.

No nature faker has attempted to show by the size of the wishbone of a goose that 1910 will be a Democratic year.

The pastor who offered to sell two of his children at public auction as a joke should give his sense of humor a fatal dose of something.

It has been intimated the last few days by Boston and Brookline papers that the census population of "Greater Boston" was to be used as the basis of the Metropolitan taxes, probably the Metropolitan park assessments which are now being considered by a special commission. Now "population" is not the fundamental basis of taxes in this State and never should be. Taxes should be based on "valuation," and Brookline which has three times the wealth of Quincy should pay at least three times as much toward Metropolitan Parks and Boulevard. Quincys population of 3.2642 is a little over two per cent of the population of the Metropolitan district; if carried out to five figures it is .02293. Its percentage of valuation is less, possibly under two per cent. Where the total annual assessment is so large a fraction of one per cent is a large item. It is not towns like Brookline which should be favored.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

What the United Shoe Machinery Company has done or what Mr. Plant has done there is no law to prevent. It is the purpose of the patent laws to establish temporary monopolies, and patent rights or privileges are negotiable. If a company in possession of rights to the exclusive use of valuable labor-saving devices wants to buy up other inventions which would come into competition with those in possession, there is nothing to prevent as the laws now stand, nor apparently is there anything to prevent the purchaser from holding the new devices out of use or making them the means of salvation from loss on the superseded machinery. Even if the United Shoe Machinery Company sell its machines on an interstate scale, it is not clear that it would come into conflict with the Federal Anti-trust law under any policy of making its monopoly inclusive of all valuable patents coming into that field, and its pactice of leasing and not selling its machinery would make it all the more difficult to reach

It may fairly be demanded meantime, however, that the trust should be compelled to abandon all devices for making its monopoly stronger than the patent laws allow. It has been prohibited by Massachusetts laws (Acts of 1907), from pursuing the old practice of leasing certain indispensable machines in the shoe manufacture under conditions compelling the lessee to use or buy any other machines or material the company may have for sale or lease That law seems to hve been effective so far as it goes. It has apparently ended the possibility of making use of one patented contrivance shoe or other manufacturers must have for an advantageous prosecution of their work to force them into an exclusive patronage of the possessor of the contrivance inother directions. But shoe machinery leases drawn under this act are said to get around its intended consequence to a large extent by other devices such as making the terms of the lease tolerable to the lessee only as he works the trust machinery to the exclusion of any other in the same line of operation. Such a concern as this should at least be compelled to be satisfied with such monopoly as its patents permit, and not a bit more. The fact that the United company preferred to buy the Plant machinery rather than prosecute its suits against him gives rise to the belief among shoe manufacturers that the company has no great confidence in the legalty of its present leases.—Springfield Republican

Editing a newspaper in some respects is a good deal like preaching the gospel—truth must be presented in the form of generalities or some fellow will get hit and howl, says the Conneaut News Herald. Few persons like truth, even in homeopathic doses, if it hits them. But, while preachers and editors are criticised for what they do say, no one thinks of giving them credit for what they do not say. Yet what they keep to themselves constitutes the major portion of what they know about people. Newspapers put up with more bluffing than any other agency would endure. It is not because they lack courage; it is because they are unwilling to use their power to dstroy and ruin unless the interests of society imperatively demand it. It might be well for some people to reflect upon these truths and in silent gratitude accept mild admonition lest worse befall them.—Dedham Transcript.

PLUMMER—MOODY.

Among the attractive home weddings of the season is noted that of Verna Louise Moody of Hall avenue, South Braintree, and George Cooledge Plummer of Mt. Pleasant street, Somerville. The ceremony was performed at the bride's home by the Rev. Howard Charles Gale, pastor of the Virginia street Universalist church of Dorchester. The groom, son of William J. Plummer of Somerville was assisted by his friend and best man, George Ladd of Somerville. The bride was charmingly gowned in a dress of white messaline with lace and pearl trimmings. She wore a bridal evil which was caught with lilies of the valley, and carried a shower bouquet of brides roses and lilies of the valley. She was given in marriage by her mother and was attended by her bridesmaid, Miss Ina M. Farnham of Roxbury who wore a beautiful gown of white net lace over pale blue silk and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The ushers were Harry O. Quinlin and William Quinlin of Dorchester. Miss Joyce Pollard presided at the piano and furnished appropriate musical numbers.

She played Mendelssohn's wedding march previous to the ceremony. The house was tastefully and attractively decorated for the occasion and the display of beautiful gifts testified to the host of friends and well wishers of the young couple.

After the ceremony the bridal couple were assisted in receiving by the bride's mother, Mrs. Lizzie M. Moody, the groom's father, Mr. William, J. Plummer, the bridesmaid Miss Ina Farnham, the best man, Mr. George Ladd and by Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Farnham of Roxbury.

After the reception and the serving of dainty refreshments the happy couple left for a honeymoon of two weeks' duration. Upon their return they will be at home for a time at 5 Hall avenue, South Braintree. Their many friends wish them countless years of health and prosperity.

SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATION.

A very interesting program for eight sessions has been provided. The exercises will begin Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock. Among the speakers will be Rev. A. M. Hyde, D. D. of Brockton who will speak on "The Needs of the Times." He is pastor of the Porter church and largest Congregational Sunday School in Massachusetts. Rev. B. S. Winchester Ph. D. of Boston, Educational Secretary Congregational Sunday School and Publishing Society, will speak on "The Bible Our Text Book." Other addresses will be given by William A. Brown of Chicago, Miss Margaret Slattery, President Garfield of Williams College, and George J. Fisher, M. D., of New York and Secretary Physical Department International Committee of Y. M. C. A. Dr. Fisher brings a new idea in Sunday School work. He will speak on "The Teaching of Personal Hygiene in the Sunday School." When religious as well as secular organizations take up the matter of the prevention of disease (sexual and otherwise) much is being done for the conservation of health and the improvement of morals. Delegates and visitors are especially advised under no circumstances to miss this address.

FALLING LEAVES.

Amidst the Indian-summer haze
The forest's regal hues unfold
With richest crimson, cloth of gold,
Russet and scarlet ,all ablaze.

How quickly have the days flown by Since Spring her first faint colors threw
In pure relief against the blue
Of charming April's sunny sky!

The budding white oak's rosy tint
The summer changed to vivid green;
The slender birch's silvery sheen
Was heightened by the sunbeam's glint.

Now soon each leaf all sear and browned,
With cutting wind and biting frost,
By ruthless autumn torn and tossed,
Will fall and wither on the ground.

But tiny rosebuds are hidden there
To show forth beauty by and by;
Sheltered from winter's winds they lie.
Although each limb and branch be bare.

And so our lives must bud and grow,
Warmed by the sunshine of God's love,
Showered by mercies from above,
Till we in health and beauty glow.

Thus 'mid the frosts of sorrow, still
We shelter those lives yet to come,
And when we fall ,our voices dumb,
They live to do the Father's will.

DYNAMITE FOR A NEWSPAPER

Plant of the Los Angeles Times Reduced to Ruins

MANY LIVES LOST IN WRECK

Infernal Machine Later Found at Home of General Otis, Who Has For Twenty Years Been Waging War With Union Labor—Another For Secretary of Merchants' Association, Also Opponent of Unionism

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 3.—An attempt to destroy the residence of General Harrison G. Otis, publisher of the Los Angeles Times, by means of an infernal machine, was made after an explosion which, an hour after midnight, caused great loss of life and destroyed the buildings and plant of The Times and a suspected effort to blow up the auxilitary plant of that paper. A powerful infernal machine was also found in the residence of Secretary Zechaldelaar of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' association.

General Otis, who is on the way home from Mexico, and the other responsible heads of The Times, unequivocally charge The Times building disaster and the narrowly averted attempts at further destruction of life and property to labor union sources.

With equal emphasis the leaders of union labor repudiate the accusation and offer all aid in their power to detect the culprits.

Three arrests have been made since the explosion. One of the suspects is an alleged anarchist, Martin Eagan. In the hope of obtaining information as to the perpetrators of the outrage, Mayor Alexander increased the city's offer of reward to $10,000.

This, together with the efforts of local newspapers and labor organizations, whose leaders have announced a determination to assist in the search for the criminals, raises the total amount of rewards to $18,500. There are no conditions.

For twenty years since a quarrel with the Typographical union and The Times becoming a non-union paper, Otis has fought unionism with every resource in his command. He has been ably seconded in this fight by the Merchants and Manufacturers' association, whose secretary was the object of frustrated dynamiting.

The succession of tragic events and the rumors of other attempted outrages set the populace of Los Angeles in a state of mind bordering on panic. Hundreds of policemen and detectives are busy in every direction running down clues and endeavoring to find the perpetrators of the crimes.

Mayor Alexander and the city council, meeting with other city officers and labor union leaders, agreed to call off the union labor parade planned for tonight as a demonstration against local conditions alleged to be hostile to the interests of union labor.

The death list of The Times disaster will probably total nineteen. There are five known dead and fourteen missing, whose bodies probably lie in the smoking ruins of The Times building.

The original suspicion of the police that The Times building disaster was due to a heavy charge of a high explosive was circumstantially confirmed by the finding of the other bombs, and the statements of those persons in the building or nearby at the time of the explosion. It is also almost certain that the explosion occurred in a narrow alley which separated the two buildings occupied by The Times.

The building in which The Times was housed was of stone and brick. The American Engraving company and American Electrical company, both subsidiary companies of The Times-Mirror Printing company, were housed in the building. The financial loss is estimated at $450,000, with insurance of $225,000.

The dead and missing come principally from the composing room, which was directly above the spot where the explosion occurred.

Clemency For Four Who Helped Government With Testimony

Washington, Oct. 3.—President Taft has pardoned Edward A. Boyle, John R. Coyle, Patrick J. Hennessey and Thomas Kehoe, four sugar weighers, who are serving sentences for connection with the customs frauds at New York.

The president less than a month ago refused to pardon the men. Harry L. Stimson, special attorney for the government in charge of the customs prosecutions, later made representations to the president that the four convicted men had given him valuable information which he used in the trials of Gerbracht and Helke.

SUNDAY IN THE CHURCHES

St. Marys at West Quincy Now Free from Debt

ST. MARYS CHURCH.

Rev. Henry T. Grady, pastor of St. Mary's church, made an announcement Sunday that was very pleasing to the parishoners of the church. The announcement was that the debt on the basement of the church had been paid, and that the parish was now free from debt. The basement of the new church was built while Rev. A. F. Roche was pastor of the church. At that time, owing to the expense of the completed building, it was deemed wise only to finish the basement. This was done in a substantial manner and the basement left in such a manner that the church may be built at any time without interfering with the holding of services in the basement. It is not probable that work completing the edifice will be taken up at present.

HALL PLACE M. E.

"Rally Day" was observed at the Hall Place M. E. church Sunday with a special program for each service. Special appeals were sent out for these services and the peopl responded by increasing the attendance over that of previous Sundays.

In the morning the pastor preached on the subject of "Protestantism and its mission in our community," his text being taken from 1st Peter 2-16—"As free, and not using your liberty for a cloak of maliciousness, but as the servants of God." The pastor spoke from a non-contoversial standpoint concerning Protestantism. He gave a brief outline of its origin and the life of Martin Luther, its founder, its principles and some of the larger results of its work and the call which comes to us to further the cause of Christ in our community. In the absence of the regular choir, most of whom are away on a vacation, the music was lead by volunteers from the Epworth League.

The regular order of services was omitted at the session of the Sunday school and in place of the study period devoted to the lesson, brief talks were given by members of the school. Master Clyde Hammant told of the pleasant time enjoyed by the boys at the boys conference at the Y. M. C. A. on Saturday, as well as the helpful and instructive lessons they learned. The other speakers of the morning were John Pearce, Mr. Jose, and Rev. Carl H. Raupach who gave interesting and helpful talks.

A program of interest to the boys andg irls was given at the Junior League at 3 P. M. Miss May Williams lead the Epworth League on "Christian stewardship" at 6.15. A duet was sung by Miss Ada and May Williams.

The subject of the evening service at 7 was "Be definite." The text was the words of Christ, "He that is not with me is against me."—Matt. 12-30. The pastor spoke of the necessity of being as definite in the matter of accepting or rejecting Christ as we are definite in the other things of life.

The prayer meetings of the past two weeks have been better than for several months, and a still larger attendance is asked for the service of next Friday at 7.30 P. M.

Beginning with next Sunday a series of evangelistic services, simultaneous throughout the Boston district of Methodist churches will be held and continue the rest of the month.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Epworth League will be held at the home of Miss Lillian Johnston, Adams street, East Milton, this evening at 7.45

WOLLASTON M. E.

An able sermon on "Peters great confession" was preached Sunday morning at the Wollaston M. E. church by the pastor. The Epworth League had a special program at its 6 P. M. service.

A blind trio from the Perkins Institute will give a stereopticon lecture at the church this evening.

Epworth League business meeting and social Thursday evening with Mrs. Estey, 100 Brook street.

The motor fete of Sept. 29 was a great success, the attendance far exceeding anticipation.

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

The Rev. Joseph Walther, pastor of the Wollaston Baptist church selected for his text Sunday morning, John 15; 12. Subject—"Loving one another, What it means and what it does not mean." God gives us this great commandment to love one another. To have such love for one another that we would lay down our life for our friends. Do not hate your enemies, but love them. Pray for them; do good to them that persecute you. I think God gave this commandment for two reasons. One was because he was so soon to be taken away and to die upon the cross. Jesus told his disciples on the last night before he was laid away in the tomb this great commandment. Love one another; cling to one another.

Wednesday evening at 6.30, the banquet of the Ladies' Social and Benevolent Society will be held in the chapel. Prof. Walter Sargent of the University of Chicago will give an address on "The relation of beauty to life." Soloists, Miss Annabelle Gibson Phinney and Mr. George E. MacGowan. Accompanist, Mr. William Weston. Toastmaster, Rev. E. A. Chase. Tickets should be engaged before Monday night. Those ordering tickets will be responsible for the same whether used or not.

Thursday evening at 7.15 the Wollaston Boys' club will meet in the chapel.

Friday evening at 7.45 the regular meeting for prayer and testimony will be held in the chapel; subject, "Finding Christ and what we find in Him." John 1: 41-45. Canticles 3: 4; 2: 1-3. John 14: 6.

HOUGHS NECK BUDGET

Only Voters Can Vote on Thursday Evening

(Special Correspondence.)

There's an old saying that's oft times true, and here it is,—"Never blow your own horn but if some one else is doing it for you, don't stop him." The Ledger is circulating at Houghs Neck. It was so well spoken of at the Association meeting last Thursday, by a representative of another paper, that many sales were reported at agencies of Tessier, and Flaherty. Master Joseph Files, 1062 Sea street has been engaged to deliver the Ledger at Houghs Neck and all will find him a polite and obliging little fellow.

The Men's club of Union chapel will hold their meeting tonight in conjunction with the church parish. Important church business which pertains to the future moral welfare will be discussed. It is well to keep in mind the necessity of a permanent church. Church government was the first corner stone of the upbuilding of our great nation. Houghs Neck needs moral training "all" the year round. Do your part, neighbor, in upholding the institution. You owe it to your creator, your family, your neighbor, and yourself. Attend Union Chapel tonight.

The political rally for Council candidates scheduled for Thursday, Oct. 6, in Associates hall has come restrictions which must be complied with if one wishes to attend. Only registered voters of Precinct 2, Ward One, and that particular part which includes Adams Shore, Post Island Germantown and Houghs Neck will be admitted. As each voter presents himself at the hall his name will be checked and unless registered he will not be admitted. It is the desire of the people to present a candidate who will meet with undisputed favor and the preliminaries will be put through in proper form.

The City Council Committee on Streets will give a public hearing to the residents of Houghs Neck on Saturday evening on the Question of widening Sea street. At the hearing held before the Council two weeks ago considerable opposition developed against the proposed widening. It is claimed by many residents of this section that the opposition was due to a misunderstanding, and that now all are unanimous for the widening of the street to sixty feet.

In order that the committee may have a clear understanding of the situation, the proposed hearing will be given. It will be held at the hall of the Associates at Houghs Neck, and all citizens will be given an opportunity to be heard particularly those who own lots from which land will be taken should the proposed widening be made.

Charles E. Decker.

NEW PASTORATE.

Rev. Arthur L. Bumpus, who has been at Belvideri, Ill., of late, is coming back to Massachusetts. He preached at St. Andrews church at Groton in July, and the parish extended him a call which he was pleased to accept. The parish includes Groton, Ayer, Shirley and Littleton. He is the son of Hon. Everett C. Bumpus of this city and has preached at Christ church in this city. He begins his new pastorate Sunday, Nov. 6.

Legally Better Off.

The crediters of the ancient king had become so unpleasantly insistent that he resolved to put them where they could trouble him no more. So he invited them to a great banquet, and when they had feasted and drunk of his prepared wine he instructed his servants to convey them to his deepest dungeons. And the next morning when he went down to learn whether his servants had done his bidding his creditors raised their voices and entreated to be set free. But he remonstrated with them, saying:

"My friends, you have no just cause for complaint. Are you not better off in the eye of the law than ever before? Any lawyer will tell you that a secured creditor has an exceptional cinch." Then he left them and went on his gladsome way, happy in the knowledge that he could at last go through his dominions without being dunned.—Chicago News.

She Had Tried It.

"No," she declared; "I positively will not go out with you in that thing."

"Oh, come on!" he pleaded. "There isn't a bit of danger. The water is as smooth as glass."

"That's all right, but I never have known a man who could manage a canoe with one hand."—Chicago Record-Herald.

LETTERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST

WATER WANTED.

Mr. Editor:,

I was reading your edition of the 28 and came across this item: "It appears that the drinking fountains that were invented by Commissioner Bainbridge and installed in the school buildings do not work and the School Committee want the City Council to provide new ones."

Venture to suggest that the Commissioner give a little attention to the public drinking fountains about our city, and have them in use during the summer, instead of not having any water in them year in and year out, as is th case with pipe on Ward Three play ground Good fountains should be maintained at Dobles corner and Christ church corner and I do not know how many more in other parts of the city. Practical experience is a good thing, and these fountains, a practical lesson in a No-license city are a most useful addition.

Yours truly,

Little Things.

—The Boston Globe says: "Isn't it rather singular that the past generations lived to a great age when the bacteria talk was unknown? They drank from the same pail and the same tin dipper in their school days, and many of them lived to see 90 or 100 years and absorbed germs and bacteria all their lives and never knew it."

BRIEFS

Oct. 17 the sun will set at 5 o'clock.

The maximum tempe rature of Sunday was 63, and the average 58.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Fitts passed away on Sunday.

Sessions of the evening schools open tonight in the Adams, Willard and High school buildings.

Miss Mary Jackson and her niece, Miss Evelyn Schulze of Upland road, have returned from Ohio, after a visit of three months.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil K. Blanchard returned from their wedding trip the last of the week and are now occupying their new home in Wellesley.

East Norfolk C. E. Union meeting at the Park and Downs Congregational church this evening at 7.45. Rev. Judson V. Clancy will give the address.

Most of the Quincy members of the Ancients left with the command Sunday night on the annual fall trip of the organization. The command left by the steamer Camden which had been chartered for the trip. The first stop will be at Bangor. From there they go to Portland, Me.

Moving, at best, is not a very desirable job, but did you ever see families in a double house move from one side to the other both at once. Is it any wonder that some passers by and neighbors are mystified when they see a man go out of one side into the other with a bed spring and a few minutes later another man "bringback" a bed spring. Tis is what was going on Saturday at a house near Faxon hall. It is not an easy task.

CITY COUNCIL TONIGHT.

An important meeting of the City Council will be held this evening. Since the last meeting several committees have met and many of the important matters now pending will be reported tonight. A public hearing on better police protection for Houghs Neck is scheduled, but it is understood that this will not be held. Although the petition from the residents of that section asked for a hearing before the City Council on the matter of police protection, it is understood that what was wanted was a hearing before the committee on police, and not the whole Council. It is understood that what the Houghs Neck people now desire is that the hearing shall be withdrawn from the Council and referred to the Committee on Police. Just how the Council will look upon this question is something that can not be foretold.

CHURCH PARADES IN SPAIN

Participated In by Thousands In Various Cities and Towns

Madrid, Oct. 3.—The Catholic manifestattions, authorized by the government in the principal towns and cities of Spain, passed off Sunday practically without disorder. The organizers had been careful to declare that the movement had no political significance beyond a protest by the Catholics against what they term the government's anti-religious policy.

The parade at San Sebastian was the most imposing, not less than 30,000 marchers taking part.

CREDIT TO "ALL FACTIONS"

Insurgents' Part In Party Record Is Recognized by Taft

New York, Oct. 3.—President Taft delivered what will probably be his only public address of the present campaign at the banquet of the National Republican league, which was held at the Hotel Astor.

The president's speech was marked by an unusually conciliatory tone toward the insurgent wing of the party. He gave "all factions of the party" due credit for their share in helping to put through congress the legislative program. Upon the whole Republican party the president bestowed the title of "progressive."

Twice President Taft mentioned and praised Mr. Roosevelt in connection with the campaign against corporate abuses, and a third time by inference, when he referred to the New York situation.

The president declared for a sweeping extension of the civil service, taking a stand in favor of putting all postmasters, collectors of customs and internal revenues, surveyors of customs and appraisers on the permanent rolls of the government, thus leaving but little of the patronage of old.

WHIPPING OF SERVANTS

Philadelphia Woman Believes That It Should Be Made Legal

Philadelphia, Oct. 3.—When Mrs. Mary L. Wood, wife of Millionaire Richard A. Wood, who recently was held in $200 for an attack upon a servant, defends the case in court, she will have the unique defense of "justifiable assault."

Mrs. Wood believes that the domestic servants in the homes of the wealthy should be chastised at times. She declares she has talked with many of her wealthy friends regarding the servant problem and they all agreed with her regarding the whipping proposition.

"I believe a law should be enacted which would give an employer the right to chastise a servant when the chastisement is necessary," she says.

CAVALIERI LOSES ST. PAUL CONTRACT

Alda Engaged to Sing In Place of Italian Songbird

St. Paul, Oct. 3.—Manager Wagner of the St. Paul Symphony orchestra has made two announcements. The first was that Mme. Frances Alda of the Metropolitan Opera company had been engaged to appear with the orchestra in place of Lina Cavalieri. The second was that in wiring his acceptance of the Alda contract he had telegraphed:

"Send contract, photographs, obituary and copy of marriage contract. We may need it. We take her in place of Cavalieri."

The manager's bit of sarcasm at the expense of St. Paul was resented by a large number of men and women patrons of the orchestra, who had made objection to the appearance here of the Italian singer.

ATTACK ON REPORTERS

Will Be Aired at Hearing Before Berlin Police President

Berlin, Oct. 3.—The president of the police board sent a letter to the four English and American newspaper correspondents requesting them to appear at police headquarters for a hearing of their side of the case in the attack made upon them by the police during the rioting a few nights ago.

The letter explained that this request for their appearance was the outcome of representations made by the American and British embassies at the foreign office.

The Foreign Press association has unanimously adopted a resolution protesting against the maltreatment of the four correspondents, and expressing emphatic condemnation of the letter addressed by the police president to the association, in which he took the position that the mere presence of the correspondents at the riot made them law-breakers.

SCALE DOWN SAVINGS

Proposal to Make Wrecked York County Savings Bank Solvent

Alfred, Me., Oct. 3.—A scaling down of the deposits of the York County Savings bank, which was closed because of alleged embezzlements by former Treasurer Ingersoll, to the extent of 30 percent to cover the losses and 5 percent for surplus to enable the bank to resume business if the court decides, was asked by the committee of appraisal at the hearing in the supreme court.

The committee reported that the actual assets amounted to $1,234,256.41, which is a loss of over $301,000. Judge King announced that he would give his decision next Thursday.

Lanier of the Cavalry

Or, A Week's Arrest

By GENERAL CHARLES KING,

Author of "The Colonel's Daughter," "Foes In Ambush," Etc.

Copyright, 1909, by J. B. Lippincott Company

Synopsis.

Trooper Rawdon and Sergeant Fitzroy, lovers of Dora Mayhew, quarrel in Dr. Mayhew's home. Mayhew and Lieutenant Lanier interfere. Lanier, lover of Miriam Arnold, is ordered in arrest for disobeying Colonel Button's orders.

Trooper Rawdon is ordered arrested for assaulting Sergeant Fitzroy. He disappears. Miriam gets a fright at Sumter's home. Colonel Button and Captain Sumter quarrel over Lanier's case.

Fort Cushing has a blizzard. Major Scott, paymaster, is lost. Fitzroy accuses Rawdon of attacking Scott. Miriam's fright was caused by a thief in her room. Lanier gives whisky to two freezing soldiers, Quinlan and Cassidy. Quinlan finds Rawdon's cap at Lanier's house.

Detectives investigate the thief's invasion of Miriam's room. Scott is found. Kate Sumter and Miriam refuse to talk about the thief. Colonel Button sends for Lanier.

Lanier denies writing unfriendly articles about Button. Button accuses him of lending his civilian clothing to Rawdon. Fitzroy produces the clothing found in Rawdon's room in town. Button also accuses Lanier of leaving his quarters while in arrest. Lanier narrowly escapes death by fire.

Fitzroy tries to arrest Rawdon, but Ennis lets him and his bride, Dora, go. Colonel Riggs arrives to try Lanier on Button's charges. Captain Snaffle accuses Lanier of being Miriam's thief.

CHAPTER IX.

ONE more witness appeared before this court that day and with him the tall, elderly civilian who had arrived from the east. Mr. Arnold came in with a very puzzled look in his face.

"Thank you for coming, Mr. Arnold," said Riggs, with bluff civility. "Pray take this chair, sir. As I have explained to you, Mr. Lowndes, your nephew could not be compelled to testify before a military court and need not make public admission here of what he told us at Rawdon's demand during our journey hither. I hope this is fully understood."

Mr. Arnold cleared his throat, and he began:

"My unhappy nephew realizes with, I trust, genuine contrition that he has been the cause of grave trouble, not only to us, his kindred in the east, but —er—to you military gentlemen in the west. He has, prompted, as we must admit, by Mr.—Mr. Rawdon, made a clean breast of his lamentable conduct and has promised Mr. Rawdon to repeat every word of it—er—to Colonel Button, but as his"—

"Then we'll waste no time," said Riggs impatiently. "We'll have him in, and I can catch the afternoon train. Ah, come in, Mr. Lowndes. Sit down, sir."

It was but a dejected specimen of a college bred man that sank into the chair in front of Riggs.

"Mr. Lowndes," said Riggs abruptly, "there is no need of going over the entire story. I'll ask you to answer certain questions. Who was your earliest friend in this regiment?"

The dreary eyes turned once more toward Bob, and the nervous hands started the slouch hat in swifter revolution.

"Mr. Lanier, sir."

"How came that?"

"I knew he was of my college fraternity before I entered college, and I showed him my pin and certificate."

"That insured a welcome, I suppose?"

"Yes, sir. He—he made me at home in his quarters—and tent."

"Shared the best he had with you—home, food, drink, even clothes and money—I'm told."

"It is all true, sir."

"Yet you quarreled with him during the campaign."

"I lost money gambling, and he wouldn't lend me any more."

"Did you ever pay what he had lent you?"

"Not—yet, sir."

"Even after your quarrel did he not lend you?"

"Yes, at Laramie. I didn't seem to have any friend left by that time and had to go to him for help when they wired me to come home."

"In point of fact, he enabled you to get $100 at Laramie?"

"Yes; I gave my note and he gave his word."

"What did you do with the money?"

"Tried to win back some that I had lost at poker and lost most of what I had raised. I suppose I'd have lost all of it if Rawdon hadn't caught me playing and pulled me out."

"You owed him still more?"

"Nearly $200, sir."

"Did you go home?"

"I couldn't. I had only enough to bring me to Cushing, and they wouldn't send me any more. I had to go to the ranch and stay."

"Did you try to earn any money?"

"Yes, sir, writing about the campaign. Rawdon lost his position because he didn't send what they wanted, so I thought I might. The editor didn't know me and asked for references, so I sent my stories to—to Mr. Arnold and my aunt. She often wrote for the papers."

"Is that the way the Boston and other papers came to publish those scandals?"

"She made it worse than I described."

"Er—let me explain, gentlemen," interposed Mr. Arnold. "My sister is of a very sympathetic nature, and her heart has long been wrung by the injustice to the Indian. When this unhappy boy wrote those letters she had no reason to doubt their entire truth."

"I will ask you what was his final explanation of his need for money?"

"He begged me to send him $200, saying he would be disgraced if he could not pay Lieutenant Lanier, who had won it from him at cards."

"Mr. Lowndes," said Riggs, "did Lieutenant Lanier ever win a dollar from you?"

"Never, sir!"

Riggs let him rest a minute, then went on, "Now, then, in your own way tell us what happened that night of the 16th."

For a few seconds there was silence. Then, suddenly uplifting his head and looking at no one, Lowndes desperately plunged into his narrative. "I—I—was mad, I suppose, with debt and misery, and I began to drink. Rawdon told me he must have the money. My uncle had flatly refused to send me more. There was left me only one way, and that was through my Cousin Miriam. We'd almost been brought up together. But I knew if I could see her she would help me.

"Rawdon had changed into citizen's clothes in town, and I had pawned my overcoat, so he lent me his cavalry overcoat and a fur cap, drove me and Cary out to the fort and left us at the store. We were chilled from the ride and drank more. Rafferty told me Mr. Lanier was officer of the guard. We filled Rafferty up, for Cary had made up his mind he was going to Rawdon's wedding in 'cits' instead of soldier clothes, and he was bent on borrowing a suit of Lieutenant Lanier's. He swore he'd return them the next day, and Rafferty let him have them. Then he and I went up the rear fence and caught sight of No. 5—Trooper Kelly. Cary went ahead to 'fix things,' as he said. Kelly was suspicious. Cary to quiet him told him he was Lieutenant Lanier; that we were helping Rawdon get ready for his wedding.

"He made Kelly drink to Rawdon's happiness, and drink three or four times, and finally left him with a half full flask up the row toward Major Stannard's. Then we went to Captain Sumter's. Kelly told Cary the servants were in at Captain Snaffle's. The door was open. Cary watched below while I hunted for my cousin's room. I found it easily. I knew they had sent her money and orders to come home. Uncle had written me as much. I found her desk. I knew it well of old, and then, to my horror, I heard her voice, and in a second she was in the room. She gave one awful scream, though I tore off my cap and begged her to know me, but she fell in a faint. Others were coming. I broke out of the back window and slid and scrambled down the roof to the shed and so to the ground. I heard men come running, so I dived into the coal shed, where the sergeant grabbed me in the dark, and I had to make him let go and—said I was Lieutenant Lanier. Later I crawled through a hole in the fence and started for the store, scared out of my wits. Right at the next gate I crashed into two men. I picked myself and cap up and ran again, caught Cary at the store just jumping into a sleigh, and we lashed those horses every inch of the way, left them at a ranch gate and ran to the station. Rawdon presently came, and he took me to Omaha. He, too, had to get away or be thrown into the guardhouse."

"You have that overcoat with you yet, I believe—that cavalry coat."

"It's all I have had to wear, sir," was the answer as, rising, he took the garment from the arm of his chair and laid it upon the table, exposing a rent or gash, whereupon Captain Sumter took from an envelope a sliver of yellow cloth and fitted it into the gap. "This," said he, "I found on the hook of the storm sash, and this," laying beside it a rusty sheath knife, "was later found under the snow close under the dormer window." Then, turning the overcoat inside out, he displayed on the back lining in stencil the name "Rawdon."

"And now," said Riggs, "we will hear the accused."

"It isn't necessary," began Button.

"It is necessary, Colonel Button. Of course Mr. Lanier is not obliged to speak, but a few matters remain to be cleared up. There is yet the time honored problem of 'who struck Billy Patterson?'"

"The matter is quite simple," said Lanier. "I went direct from the dancing room to my quarters. The fire was low, and I went back to call Rafferty. He didn't answer, so I had to lug in some fuel. His overcoat hung in the kitchen, and I put that on, and as I opened the back door there came the scream from up the row. I saw others running toward Captain Sumter's as I started from the back gate. Then a man rushed past me, and then somebody sprang from Captain Snaffle's yard, and I went headlong. I was on my feet in a second, but he had me round the neck, ordering me to surrender. I let him have two hard ones right and left. Somebody else collided with us. We all went down. The last man was up first and ran away with the first cap he could reach, and I followed, knowing now it wasn't fire, but robbery. Then when I realized no life was in danger I remembered I was in arrest, dropped the chase and went straight to my quarters. Both hands were bruised and left badly cut, I am sorry, of course, to have struck Sergeant Fitzroy, but the language he used was vile, and it seemed to me the only way to convince him I was not Trooper Rawdon."

"Colonel Button, have you any questions?" demanded Riggs.

"Why didn't you tell me this?" demanded Button.

"I should have been glad to, colonel. Indeed, I tried to the last time I was in the office."

"Well, gentlemen," said the colonel, "we seem to have stirred up a pretty kettle of fish." Yet even Snaffle disowned complicity. He always had said Lanier was a perfect gentleman.

TO BE CONCLUDED.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES.

Snippodoodies. One cup of sugar, one tablespoonful butter, one-half cup of milk, one egg, one cup of flour, one teaspoonful of cinnamon. Cream the butter, add the sugar, then the eggs, well beaten, then the flour, baking powder and cinnamon, sifted together and the milk. Spread very thin on a thin sheet and bake. When nearly done sprinkle with sugar. When brown remove from the oven, cut into squares, and remove quickly with a knife. They should be thin and crispy.

Apple Meringue. Pare and remove the core from seven large apples and place in a pudding dish. Put in each apple one teaspoonful of sugar and a little grated lemon rind. Bake until soft but not broken. Remove from the oven, pour over them one pint of hot milk, in which have been stirred the beaten yolks of three eggs, one small cup of sugar and a little salt place back in the oven and when the custard is set let cool. Cover the top with the whites of the eggs well beaten.

Children's Fruit Pie. Use a pudding dish of crockery or enamel ware and place in the center a teacup upside down. If you use peaches, peel and cut them in small pieces, filling up the dish all around the cup. Sweeten with sugar according to the tartness of the fruit. Add a few spoonfuls of water and a dredging of flour. When you use apples, cut them up fine and heap up the dish until a little above the cup. Sweeten and add some spice, either nutmeg or cinnamon, and put little pieces of butter all about the top and a little water. Cover the entire top of the dish with crust and cut slits at intervals or prick holes in the crust. Do not remove the cup until the pie is served at the table, when you can insert the blade of a knife under the edge of the cup, which will allow the air to go in and release th juice, of which you will find you have a cupful and the fruit will be deliciously steamed. This kind of a pie will not harm the digestion of anyone. This pie should be eaten cold.

PASSENGERS SHAKEN UP

Engine Crashes Into Gravel Train, Demolishing Two Cars

Winchester, Mass., Oct. 3.—Scores of passengers on an inward bound Lowell-Boston train were thrown into a panic when their train crashed into a gravel train bound in the same direction while it was endeavoring to make a siding where excavation work is being done here.

Two of the four platform cars containing gravel were demolished, scattering the wreckage in such a way as to block traffic over the Lowell division for nearly two hours.

The damage was about $5000. The passengers were transferred to another train and sent to Boston.

WANDERINGS OF DR. COOK

Ended Last May, When He Settled Down In London

IS COMING BACK TO AMERICA

Says He Will Refute Those Who Pilloried Him as Monumental Fakir—Fled Because of Conditions Created to Ruin, Goad and Harass Him—Assails Story of Peary and Refers to "Striking Point" In It

New York, Oct. 3.—A copyrighted cable to The World from London says:

The great international mystery of the century—the whereabouts of Dr. Frederick A. Cook—has been cleared. The World has found Dr. Cook.

In brief, he left New York Nov. 25, 1909, for Toronto, thence to Halifax, thence to Liverpool, thence to Gibraltar, then to Tangier, Morocco, then to Portugal, from Lisbon to Buenos Ayres, then round the Horn to Valparaiso, Chile, then across the South American continent by horseback and stage over the lordly Andes and back to Buenos Ayres, and from there to Liverpool and London.

He has made his headquarters in the English capital since last May, taking occasional jaunts to the continent. Most of the time he had his wife for a companion. His children are in European schools. One of Cook's surprising assertions is that for the most part he traveled openly under his own name.

The story of his flight told, Cook spoke in defiance of the scientists, writers and the public that had pilloried him as the monumental fakir of the age. He says he will come back to America and refute them all, voluntarily. Then Cook swung into a discussion of his future plans, flinging the gauntlet down to Peary and the scientists who joined to make Cook's confusion before he fled the country.

"In due time," he said, "I shall have an important message for the American people, and all all who are interested in the truth of my polar work. But I cannot now indicate its import.

"I did not run away from my task, but from the intolerable conditions that were created to ruin it and goad and harass me. What I so dearly earned may have been filched away from me, but only temporarily. It will come to me just as I shall come back.

"Those who believe that my journey over the ice from Cape Spargo to Anavatook during the Arctic night while I was starving bereft me of tenacity or patience don't appreciate the fact, admitted by all competent to speak, that to travel from Spargo to Anavatook in the Arctic night, with no dogs and no food, dragging my own sledge, is a more difficult performance than going to the Pole. Having endured the hardships of that journey and survived I have learned to endure all that my enemies have invented, and I will survive.

"My friends, however," he said in a somewhat milder tone, "must trust me a few weeks longer. I will not betray their confidence. The North Pole was discovered exactly when I said it was—April 23, 1908.

"I see that in Peary's story, among other things that I will deal with at the proper time, he says he returned to his ship only four days after Bartlett's return from the point fifteen miles south of the 88th deg. latitude, that is about 135 miles from the Pole.

"Can it be believed that Peary, with his negro associate, Henson, could have traveled north 135 miles over an unbroken trail and south 135 miles, making 270 miles in four days, less the time spent in observations? Why, he could not have done it without an aeroplane.

"That is a very striking point, for Peary, you know, has only one toe on each foot—the little toe. He hobbles on the march. Bartlett, on the other hand, is much younger and has ten toes. He was, moreover, the fastest of Peary's crew. He made the trails in advance of Peary. On Bartlett's return journey he must have traveled much faster than Peary could have traveled. If Bartlett was sent back fifteen miles from the 88th degree and Peary reached his ship only four days behind him, what conclusion can you arrive at?"

NAPOLEON BROWARD

Death Claimes United States Senator-Elect

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 3.—Former Governor Napoleon B. Broward died after an operation for gall stones. He was born in Deval county, Fla., in 1857, in extreme poverty.

He was one of the most eminent figures in present day southern political life. In his early years he was a Florida logging hand, steamboat roustabout and cook and cod fisherman on the Grand Banks. As a filibuster during Cuba's troubles he commanded the famous Three Friends.

In 1911 the term of Senator J. P. Talliferro expires, and Broward defeated Talliferro by a large majority in the Democratic primaries. His nomination was equivalent to election.

BUSINESS METHODS IN STATE AFFAIRS

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 3.—John A. Dix, who was nominated by the Democratic state convention as candidate for governor, gave out the following statement:

"The nomination came to me unsought. I consented to become a candidate only upon the request of the other candidates and the delegates from all over the state. If I am elected governor, every citizen of this commonwealth may justly expect, and will have, such an administration of business methods applied to conduct of the state's affairs that every dollar taken from the taxpayers shall be returned to them in sound, progressive and honest work."

Regarding his campaign plans, Mr. Dix remarked: "There will be no spectacular prance about the state."

CHANGE IN SENTIMENT

Bay State Democrats Inclined to Favor Hamlin For Governor

Boston, Oct. 3.—Charles S. Hamlin's boom for governor has assumed such proportions in the last few days that many shrewd politicians who thought a week ago that he did not have a chance are now predicting his nomination.

All over the state as well as in Boston, there is a growing sentiment that "Hamlin is the man," and at the same time and in corresponding degree there is a feeling that the Foss tide has run itself out.

The situation is as unsettled as it was before the caucuses. No one appears to know definitely what is going to happen next. But one thing is certain. There has been a change in Democratic sentiment throughout the state with reference to the three gubernatorial candidates. The alignment is entirely different from what it was a week ago.

Then the consensus of opinion among unprejudiced observers was that the fight was really between Foss and Hamlin, with Foss far in the lead. Today these same observers will say it looks as if the fight would simmer down to a convention contest between Hamlin and Vahey.

OVERTURNING OF WHALEBOAT

Results In Drowning of at Least Twenty-Nine Men

SEVERAL OTHERS ARE MISSING

Were Returning to Battleship New Hampshire From Shore Leave In New York When Boat Plunges Into Trough Created by Passing Steamboat—Midshipman Saves Fifteen Lives and Is Overcome by Efforts

New York, Oct. 3.—There was issued from the battleship New Hampshire last night a list of twenty-nine men who are supposed to have perished by the swamping of a barge, or whaleboat, which was being towed to the vessel at anchor in the Hudson river Saturday night. Seven of the men on the list are New Englanders. Appended to the list are the names of eighteen men who are still absent, but who are not remembered as having been in the swamped boat.

Midshipman Chevalier, who entered the naval academy from Medford, Mass., who was in charge of the boat which capsized, is declared to have personally saved the lives of fifteen of the sailors.

Midshipman Chevalier was one of the first pitched into the water, but he grabbed the edge of the upturned boat and yelled to the sailors swimming around him to do likewise. Finding that some of the men were unable to swim and others not strong enough to reach the craft, the midshipman loosed his hold and dropped back into the water, swimming about and aiding struggling seamen to the overturned barge.

The midshipman was thoroughly exhausted by his efforts in saving the men. He became delirious in the New Hampshire's hospital and could give no connected account of what had happened.

Friends of the twenty-nine men believed drowned recognized nearly all of them as they went aboard the launch to return to their ship from a pier, but when the party was checked in aboard the New Hampshire they were gone.

At this time of the year, dead bodies rarely float to the surface for five or six days, and the police do not expect to recover any before the end of the week.

Captain Rodgers, commanding the New Hampshire, was beseiged for information Sunday until, worn out by the strain and uncertainty, and the pleas of weeping mothers, sisters and sweethearts, he retired to his quarters.

Various versions of how the accident occurred are in circulation. The generally accepted one, however, is that the barge, heavily loaded with sailors and marines, returning from shore leave, was towed into the heavy swells of a passing steamboat. Rising for a moment, the barge plunged into the trough and was swamped.

FOUR KILLED BY AUTOS

Grant Wins In Sixth Running of Vanderbilt Cup Race

New York, Oct. 3.—The Vanderbilt cup race of 1910, won by Harry F. Grant in an Alco automobile over the Long Island course, in the record time of 4h, 15m. 58s., will go down in the history of sports as one of the most thrilling contests ever held in this country.

With four dead and twenty persons injured when it was over, there was no lack of excitement to repay the throngs, conservatively estimated at 275,000 which flocked to the course to witness the sixth running.

The killed: Matthew B. Bacon, mechanician for Harold Stone; Charles Miller, mechanician for Louis Chevrolet; Ferdinand D'Zubia, killed in smashup on way to race; Edward Lynch, spectator, run down after race.

Falls After Covering Twelve Miles In Distance Competition

Metz, Germany, Oct. 3.—Aviator Haas fell and was instantly killed while taking part in a distance competition from Treves to Metz.

Haas had covered about twelve miles when from some cause yet unexplained his machine dropped suddenly to earth in the village of Wollen, on the Moselle river. The aeroplane was demolished.

OLD MARBLEHEAD HAS FIRE SCARE

Visitors Spend Half as Much Money as Went Up In Smoke

Marblehead, Mass., Oct. 3.—Good luck and the heroic work of an army of out-of-town firemen, who early Sunday morning raced their apparatus in the darkness and raging gale, saved Marblehead from the fate of Chelsea.

Just when the flames were roaring fiercest and it seemed the town would be destroyed, foaming horses tore through the streets, dragging after them the powerful fire engines of Lynn, Salem, Beverly, Danvers and Peabody.

A sudden shift of the wind, the sudden loosening of scores of streams upon the burning buildings and the conflagration was over—Marblehead was saved, but by a faint margin.

As it is, through the centre of Marblehead, from the Unitarian church to the waterfront, a black scar marks the path of the flames that came perilously near to sweeping into oblivion the quaint town and its historic landmarks.

The total damage caused by the fire is estimated conservatively at $50,000, and the army of visitors spent half as much. Several business men say that the advertisement of such an invasion is worth nearly the amount that went up in smoke.

IT WAS A BATTLE royal

Fore Rivers Defeat McGregors Three to Two

Fore River defeated the McGreegors at Quincy Point on Saturday by a score of 3 to .2 Needless to say it was a battle royal throughout, with the odds a little in favor of Fore River. The high wind which was blowing up the field was a great advantage to the team defending the lower goal. Fore River had it in the second half when all the players were more or less fatigued and in consequence the McGregors went down in defeat.

The game started off with a rush. The McGregors had better team work, and with the wind at their backs it was not long before the first goal was scored by Rennie. Fore River fouled considerably, and the second goal for the McGregors came as the result of a penalty kick.

Fore River scored one goal in the first half, Eliot and Hughes worked the ball up the field and the goal was kicked by the latter.

In the second half everything went Fore River way. The wind was with them and that was sufficient when both teams were tired. The ball approached the Fore River goal but once and then for just a few moments. Ritchie kicked the second goal for Fore River in the first of the second half. The McGregors played for time and it looked as if the game would end in a draw. With about five minutes to play the McGregors began to liven things up a bit, and Roe in his efforts to get the ball up the field kicked one of his opponents. But for the timely interference of the referee a free for all fight might have ensued. Roe was sent off the field and play was resumed after the men had calmed down a trifle. They raised a lot of dust directly in front of McGregors' goal, and finally with but half a minute to play little Carruthers emerged and shot the ball through for a goal. They had not lined up again before time was called.

It was very unfortunate that there was such a high wind blowing for in a sense it spoiled the game for the spectators. On a calm day the outcome might not be any different but the game would be more satisfactory. Eliot for Fore River and Robertson for the McGregors were the shining lights as usual. It was interesting when the two were after the ball to see first one and then the other get it, only to lose it a moment after It is probable that if an All America team were chosen these two men would be in the line up.

The Fore River line as a whole is superior to that of their opponents, but there is little choice beween the two teams, and everyone is beginning to hope that weather conditions will be more favorable at the time of their next contest.

The line-up:

FORE RIVER	McGREGORS
Ridge, G	G., Malcolm

DROPPED DEAD.

C. L. Plummer, aged 61 years, residing at Braintree, and employed in Brockton, dropped dead from heart disease in front of 25 Faneuil Hall square Boston, Saturday evening. Dr. Brady, who responded with the relief ambulance, found the man dead when he arrived. He was identified by papers found in his pockets.

—Merchants who pay heavy rents, taxes and are genuinely interested in the welfare of the city, ought to be protected from itinerant venders. Also it makes for security on the part of the purchaser, for if there's anything unsatisfactory he always knows where to find the permanent merchant, and never has any difficulty when there is dissatisfaction over a purchase.—Brockton Enterprise.

BOYS' CONFERENCE

Walter F. Blake presided at this service. The boys entered into the discussions and they proved very profitable.

The discussions for teachers only were on the following topics: "The Sunday school: its opportunity," and "The need of modern methods in Sunday school work for boys." These were led by Mr. Bugbee and Mr. Gibson. The general opinion was that the teachers were at fault in that they did not not know how to go to work.

A committee was appointed to look into the matter of starting normal classes for teachers in all the churches. Ernest G. Gay was chosen chairman and E. W. Branch and C. H. Randall, members to work with him.

Sixteen Sunday schools were represented at the conference by boys, teachers and officers. About 100 were present at each session, great results should come from the conference and the efficiency of the Sunday school should be greatly increased.

SUTTON—GRAY.

At a single ring service performed by Rev. Joseph Walther at the parsonage of the Wollaston Baptist church on Saturday afternoon, Miss Lillian Estelle Gray, became the bride of Charles Lyman Sutton. The couple were unattended. Both reside in Keene, N. H., where they are well known, Mr. Sutton being the superintendent of the Baptist Sunday school there. Mrs. Sutton was formerly in the employ of the Keene Sentinel. Following a short honeymoon in the vicinity of Boston the couple will reside at the home of the groom, 12 Woodburn street, Keene, N. H.

Burton's Luck

He Rode on the Back of an Angry Bull.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Anne Bliss unfurled a harmless looking white parasol that developed a bright red lining.

"How much farther to the river, Neal?" she asked hastily.

"As if you didn't know," he retorted. "You must have been there times enough with Fuller. You needn't be afraid I'm going to propose to you again."

"I don't wish you to!"

"You've made that very plain on three different occasions. I may look at you sometimes, may I not, without intending to throw myself at your feet and plead for a crumb of affection?"

His bitter sarcasm stung Anne to foolish retort.

"It would make me most uncomfortable if you did, as I haven't even a crumb to spare!"

Neal winced. "I don't wish a crumb, Anne. It's all or nothing as far as I'm concerned."

"I'm sorry it must be nothing, then."

In the adjoining pasture a sleek dark form leisurely approached a break in the rail fence.

The young man, eager for keener torture to allay the dull ache of his heart, spoke again jealously.

"Of course I'm no horny handed son of the soil; I don't mangle the king's English nor talk with a twang and eat sixteen buckwheat cakes for breakfast, winter and summer! I can't milk a cow, and I don't know the best soil in which to produce giant turnips. I do know the real estate business from the ground up, I can provide a home, and I can run a motor car. These are my limitations. Speaking of Nathan Fuller"—

"We were not speaking of him," interrupted Anne coldly.

Again silence. The dark form paused in the opening of the broken fence with uplifted head.

"Are you going to that barn dance tonight ?" asked Neal after awhile.

"Yes."

"You told me when I asked you to go that you didn't care for that sort of thing."

"I changed my mind. I thought it would be rather fun to go and meet the country people. Their ways are so fresh to me; they enjoy everything so heartily. It is such a pleasant, simple life!"

"The natives won't enjoy themselves much with a lot of giggling city boarders looking on. I suppose the other people at the farmhouse are going!"

"I—I hardly think so. Mr. Fuller invited me to go. I'm going to drive over in the buggy with him." Anne blushed deep with embarassment under Neal's sharp gaze. "Don't look at me like that, Neal Burton," she added sharply. "Nathan Fuller is a fine fellow, and he saved my life! I might have drowned if he had not happened along the river when my boat upset. You may laugh at him for a countryman, but I would like to see you do a deed like that!"

"It is not my luck to have the opportunity," returned Neal, his face curiously white. "I understand what you mean, Anne. I'm just a plain, matter of fact sort of chap, the sort you've always known, and you're tired of my type. If I may be permitted to express the opinion—I trust Fuller will not misunderstand your 'gratitude' for something warmer."

Anne made no reply. Her blue eyes were fixed on the shining river which they were approaching.

Suddenly Burton tore the red lined parasol from her light grasp and clutched her arm.

"Run, Anne! Run for the willow trees and climb! It's a bull! I'll keep him off! Run, I tell you!" He pushed her toward the river, but she turned and clung to him with a little cry of alarm.

With a despairing gesture he tossed the red lined parasol toward the approaching beast and saw it whirl along, its crimson silk full in the face of the animal. Then he grasped Anne's arm and raced with her across the intervening space toward the willows.

Behind them the bull was trampling the tantalizing sunshade into twisted fragments. His angry bellow announced that their flight had been discovered, and, with amazing celerity in so clumsy a beast, he had turned and was after them.

Neal fairly tossed Anne's slight form up into the low hanging branches, where she clung desperately. That he was able to reach her side and throw his arm about her was due to his trained muscles, backed by a cool head. As he braced himself against the inclined trunk, his feet secure in a convenient crotch below, the bellowing animal struck the willow tree like a whirlwind.

As they rocked dizzily with the swaying tree Anne clung closely to Burton's shoulder, into which her face was pressed. Neal smiled tenderly down at her bright hair, while the bull repeatedly charged the tree trunk with most unsatisfactory results. Presently he desisted from the attack, and his angry bellow diminished to a low mutter, like distant thunder. It was quite evident that he intended to wait for their descent from the tree. He took up his position beneath the cool shade and waited.

Anne lifted a shamed face. "Has he gone, Neal?" she asked meekly.

"No; he's down there waiting. Perhaps he'll get tired after awhile and go back to his pasture."

"Can't you find a branch for me to sit on?" inquired Anne from her position, supported by Neal's willing arm.

"I'm afraid not, but you can take this place—there, stand so—leaning against the trunk and brace your feet here. Hold tight to this little branch on either side."

"Where are you going to stay?" asked Anne uneasily. "I've driven you from the only safe position, only—you see—I couldn't"— She paused helplessly.

"Of course you couldn't," returned Neal easily. "I shall take a lower stand—no danger—he can't touch me. Somebody'll be after him presently. It's growing late. Too bad we missed our row on the river."

A half hour passed in silence. Anne leaned wearily against the tree trunk, her eyes fixed on the river below. Neal, most uncomfortably astride of a slender branch that bent dangerously under his weight, sincerely wished that it would not be Nathan Fuller who came to their rescue. That bucolic youth's contempt for "city fellers" rankled in the bosom of one who had been at the front in college athletics, who had spent a vacation on a Wyoming ranch and learned to ride a bucking broncho.

"I suppose we couldn't make any one hear even if we called ever so loud," suggested Anne dubiously. "If—if Mr. Fuller were only around he might know what to do." She voiced the thought half consciously and flushed at Neal's snort of contempt.

"Mr. Fuller, even though he has generations of stock raising ancestors behind him, cannot change a maddened bull into a lamb and lead him away by a blue ribbon. Unless the animal's attention is attracted elsewhere or he is captured by strategy I don't see how either of us can get away." Neal paused and seemed to debate some question within himself. He looked down at the bull.

"What were you going to say?" questioned Anne.

"Merely that I might drop down on the beast's back and thus get him away from your vicinity—that might give you an opportunity to seek assistance from Mr. Fuller—and at the same time relieve you of my companionship." Neal's voice was bitter as he voiced this sentiment.

"You couldn't do that—you might be killed," protested Anne, ignoring his sarcasm.

At that instant something happened. The bull lifted an ugly black head, rolled a malicious red eye and hungrily nipped at the drooping willow branch where Neal sat. The flexible limb dipped down, down, and suddenly Neal lost his grip of small twigs and slid quickly down the slippery branch, landing squarely astride of the animal's broad back.

Instinctively his hands grasped the smooth little horns before the frightened beast dropped his head and swung around. As the willow branch whipped upward Neal heard Anne's desperately frightened cry:

"Neal! Neal! Neal!" Then he was away on his mad ride. They mounted a rise of ground, and she closed her eyes and prayed.

When she opened them again she did not look at the field. She turned her gaze down to the river, where a boat floated close under the willows. In the boat were Nathan Fuller and a very pretty girl. The girl was speaking, half sobbing, then Nathan's voice in reply: "I can't help it, Lucy. She as good as asked me to take her tonight. It's just city folks' ways. You know I don't care about any one but you!"

"If you take that girl tonight I shan't speak to you again!" flashed Lucy tearfully. "She wants to marry you. I know she does!"

Anne's face was scarlet with mortification. Her silly gratitude toward Nathan Fuller because he had saved her life had nearly turned Lucy's romance into a tragedy. Anne leaned forward and spoke:

"Mr. Fuller!" When they had turned startled faces upward she told her story, and as Nathan hastened ashore in quest of Neal she added to the girl who stared at her resentfully: "You see, I am engaged to Mr. Burton I am doubly anxious for his welfare."

Lucy smiled understandingly and helped Anne down from her perch in the tree just as Nathan returned with Neal, who limped slightly.

Declining Nathan's offer to row them home, they stood by the river's brink until the two in the boat had disappeared around the bend. Then Neal turned to Anne, standing with downcast eyes and nervously plucking hands.

"Anne," he said quietly, "I shall never again ask you to marry me."

"I don't blame you—I'm such an arrant coward, and there's really nothing likable about me," admitted Anne shakily. "You must let me tell you—I think you were very brave to do what you did. It was splendid."

"It was an accident. It was pure good luck," returned Neal calmly, then insistently, "I shall never again ask you to marry me, Anne, because Nathan has just told me he heard you announce our engagement to Miss Lucy."

Anne was crying now softly.

"Do you love me, darling?" asked Neal, his arms around her.

Anne's rosy face pressed close to his own was sufficient answer.

BAD FINANCIERING IN CITY MANAGEMENT

Special Investigating Committee Find Large Deficits in Four Departments

Say It Is Not the Result of Dishonesty

One of the most important meetings of the year of the City Council was held Monday evening. It was a meeting full of interest and there were numerous sharp tilts between Councilmen Bryant, Branch, McDevitt and President Hobbs who took the floor on two occasions to enter into a debate. Orders accepting ten new streets were presented as were also several orders calling for the rebuilding of certain streets. Another important matter was the partial report made by the special committee on financial investigation which showed that here were deficits in several departments, the total amounting to $92,000.

Councilman Moir, Nowland, Sandberg, Snow and Woodward were absent.

HANCOCK STREET.

The Mayor in a communication recommended that Hancock street be widened on the west side between Saville and Dimmock streets. Referred to Committee on Streets.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The Mayor forwarded a communcation from the Assessors asking for an additional appropriation of $100 for clerk hire. Referred to Finance Committee.

A communication was received from the Mayor appointing Alphonse Williams as a constable on the Fanny C. Adams estate. Confirmed.

A communication was received from the School Committee asking for a transfer of $1,000 from the school appropriation for salaries to the appriation for fuel. Referred to Finance Committee.

A communication was received from the School Committee i nregard to the necessity of instaliing automatic drinking fountains in the public school buildings. Laid on the table.

SCHOOL PLANS.

A communication was received from the School Committee approving plans of James E. McLaughlin for an eight-room school building at Montclair, and of McLean & Wright for a twelve-room school building at Wollaston. Referred to Finance Committee

CITY FINANCES.

The special committee of the City Council appointed to investigate the financial condition of the city made a partial report ,as follows:—

"Quincy, Mass., Oct. 3, 1910.

"To the City Council, City of Quincy:

"Gentlemen:—Your committee on special investigation of the finances of the city, wish to make the following as a partial report.

After consultation with the heads of various departments, we have found the following deficiencies:

Assessors department,	$33,853.00
Tax Collectors' department,	8,435.00
Sewer department,	31,763.00
Money appropriated from year to year by the City Council and charged to unexpended balances and unappropriated receipts,	18,000.00
Total	$92,051.00

"And we recommend that these deficiencies be taken care of so that they will not continue to be a permanent burden.

"We find that there are several parcels of real estate being taxed to the city, having been bid in by the city for unpaid taxes, and we recommend that the titles be registered in the name of the city and the property sold as we are now deprived of the income which might be derived from them in the way of taxes.

"We would recommend that the books of the Collector of Taxes be balanced and closed up to Jan. 1, 1907, and that each year the books of collector be so balanced and closed to the first day of January, three years previous.

"These deficiencies are not the result of dishonesty but of the usual methods of city financing in vogue not only in this city but many others and under the auditing system we created in 1907 these deficiencies can not in the future occur."

Report referred to Finance Committee.

PETITIONS.

Petitions were received from the Telephone Company for attachments on Safford, Maple and Arnold streets. Referred to Street Committee.

The Electric Light Co. petitioned for a location for poles on Highland avenue and Summer street. Referred to Street Committee.

TRANSFER.

The Special Committee on Financial Investigation reported an order transferring the balances of the overlays remaining to the credit of the Assessors' department amounting to $10,721.02 namely, 1890, $2,102.28; 1891, $3,187.37; 1892, $1,963.24; 1897, $1,563.50; and 1904, $1,904.02 to a special appropriation for the abatement of taxes uncollectable for the years 1894 to 1905 inclusive.

Councilman Bryant asked the City Solicitor if these transfers could be legally made.

City Solicitor McAnarney replied, after the Council had apprpriated money for a specfic purpose it was doubtful if it could recall it. If there was a balance of any appropriation it is a question if it should not go into the "Excess and Deficiency Fund."

Councilman Bryant did not understand that overlays of one year could be transferred to another year. He moved the order be referred to the City Solicitor.

Councilman Richards was called to the chair.

Councilman Hobbs did not see how the order could be referred to the City Solicitor. He had no objection to its being laid on the table, if the gentleman feels that it will hurt him to refer the order to the Finance Committee.

Councilman Bryant said it was the first time he knew anyone to be unwilling to refer order to the City Solicitor. It should go to him by vote of the Council for an opinion.

Councilman Hobbs moved to lay on the table. Voted.

MERRYMOUNT ROAD.

The Finance Committee reported an amedenment to the order for $1,700 for rebuilding Merrymount road, making it a one year plan. On a rising vote of 12 ye and 2 no, the amendment was ac ted and the order took its second r ing.

Councilman Bryant moved, and it was voted, to suspend the rules.

Councilman Whiton was called to the chair.

Councilman Hobbs moved to amend by making the rate 4 per cent instead of 4 1-2 per cent.

Councilman Bryant said a short loan could not be borrowed for less than 4 1-2 per cent. Ifthe Treasurer can borrow for less he will.

EAST NORFOLK UNION

Christian Endeavorers Meet at Norfolk Downs

The opening rally of the season for the East Norfik Union of Christian Endeavorers was held in the Park and Downs Congregational church on Monday evening and brought forth a large number of delegates that more than filled the seating capacity of the auditorium. A praise service of inspiring hymns led by Rev. Irad B. Hardy of East Milton opened the meeting.

Rev. William B. Ayrs, pastor of the church, extended a hearty word of welcome, and expressed the hope that before long he would receive his audience in a building more commodious than the present. "I welcome you" said Mr. Ayres, "not only as guests, but as co-workers in the enterprise of the kingdom of Jesus Christ upon earth.

After a prayer by Rev. James A. Matheson of the Water Street Presbyterian ,the reports of the secretary, Miss Jessie Shirley and the treasurer, James Lewis, were read and accepted President Alden Blanchard presiding.

Rev. Judson B. Clancy of Beverly, the speaker of the evening took for his subject, "The discovery of ego,—or know thyself." "It is a wise thing to try to undertand our makeup," said the speaker, after he had demonstrated by concrete examples our ignorance of self," as it is only in this way that we may know other people. 'Judge not that ye be not judged,' says the Bible. In judging another person we must always judge ourselves. If we see ulterior motives in a man's actions it is generally a sign that we would do the same in his place. God gives us wonderful opportunities, and then leaves us to work out our own salvation. As the poet says, the marble and the chisel are placed in our hands. The wise man carves a successful life. The coward lays the blame on someone else for his failure."

At the roll call that was read during the business meeting the attendance banner was awarded the society of the Wollaston Baptist church which had 76 pre cnt of its members present.

During the evening Miss Eva Steeves sang several sweet solos, among them "Trusting I cling," and "There's a rose." A duet by Miss Minnie Miller and Miss Steeves entitled "Lord, Smile on my evenink hour" was also enjoyed. All were accompanied by Madame Morey and were loudly applauded.

A pleasing rendition of "Onward Christian Soldiers" was given during the offering by the chorus choir of the local church.

EVENING SCHOOLS POPULAR.

The evening schools opened Monday night at the Adams, Willard and High school building. The first evening was given over almost entirely to registration and there was a large attendance at all three buildings. Mr. Townsend is at the head of the Adams, and Mr. Goodspeed, principal of the Massachusetts Fields school, will have charge of the Willard.

At High school, Miss Sarah C. Ames will have charge of the cooking, Arthur A. Ray of the drawing, and Warren E. Robinson of the civil service. The teachers in sewing and dressmaking and in the commercial course have not been selected by the Superintendent of Schools as yet.

Non-English speaking people of all the nationalities represented in Quincy registered at the Adams and Willard schools, Finns and Italians being in the majority.

It was announced that the High school courses would be conducted provided that a sufficient number registered on the opening night. In all probability all the courses offered wil lbe run judging from the registration.

Starting with but a small number, the membership of the club has been consistently increasing and prospects are bright for many enthusiastic meetings the coming season. The next meeting of the club will occur on October 17, when an interesting speaker is promised.

THE BLIND TRIO.

A most interesting entertainment was given in the vestry of the Wollaston Methodist church Monday evening by the "Blind Trio" composed of Messrs. Richard Barnard, Alfred N. Herox and Edward R. Ray. The program consisted of vocal and instrumental music and a steroptican lecture on the work of the blind by Richard Barnard.

In his talk Mr. Barnard showed many pictures of the work of the blind from the nursery to the time they are old. Comparisons were made between the Perkins Institute in Boston and similar institutions in Philadelphia ad other places. The different vocations of the blind, such as basket and mattress making, carpentry and the like were explained in detail.

The musical program included an overture; violin solo, clarinet solo, songs, piano solo, duet and march.

WHITE WAS UNABLE TO FLY

Accident Put Aeroplane Ont of Commission

C. Grahame-White the aviator, who is billed to fly at the Brockton Fair this week had hard luck on Monday, for he landed in a swamp smashing one of the wings of the aeroplane. Mr. White intended to use his biplane at the Brockton Fair as he could do more stunts with that than the monoplane.

He does not intend to disappoint the expecting crowd, however, for the will take his monoplane to the grounds. This machine was still in the hangars at the Squantum aviation field, but this morning Mr. White came to Quincy in an automobile to take the monoplane to Brockton. He passed through Quincy going toward Squantum about 11 o'clock and it was believed that he would fly back in the machine.

The distance between Squantum and Brockton is less than 15 miles and from the demonstraflon Mr. White gave in flying to Boston Light he could easily make the fly inside of half an hour.

The wind was rather strong this noon for flying so that it may be late this afternoon before Mr. White will attemp to fly to Brockton. It would be well o keep the eyes skyward in the vicinity of 5 o'clock as the wind may be down enough by that time for the trip.

LATER—White's monoplane is in New York so that there will be no flight from Quincy to Brockton. At 2 P. M. White had been unable to make flights at the fair grounds.

POLICE AUTO PATROL HERE

Newly Painted and Now Attractive

The new police automobile patrol wagon arrived in town ready for service this morning, and it will immediately be put into service The car was run up from Springfield, on Monday, Chief Burrell and Officer Cahill coming with it Arriving in Boston that night it was left at the garage that one or two minor things might be fixed These were done the first thing this morning and the car was then run to Quincy.

On the way up from Springfield the car had quite an experience They arrived at Worceter just previous to the meeting of the Board of Aldermen. The car hauled up in front of City all while the Chief and Officer Cahill started to get a lunch. It appears that there was an order pending before the Board of Adermen for an automobile patrol wagon and that the subject was to come up for action at the meeting Monday.

Learning that such a car was standing in front of th hall the Mayor and aldermen rushed into the street to see it. A the Chief returned from his lunch h saw the crowd, and for a minute there was a riot on. Learning the caue of the crowd he was only too glad to show up his new car. He also took the Mayor and committee on police for a short ride just to show them how well the car ran. So well pleased was everybody with the car that the chances are that the order was passed when the board went into session.

The car is painted a police blue and in addition to the red cross on the side of the seat has the words "City of Quincy, Police Department."

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

At present national statesmanship is likely to have a little time for either golf or tennis.

Talk about the perils of aviation. One of those ballons that started from Indianapolis landed in Jacksonville, Fla.

The man who pays a week's salary to provide his family with tickets to hear a Grand Opera singer gets of much easier than the one who makes love to her.

A Democratic victory will not upset the recent Indiana tradition in one respect. The two Hoosier Senators will despise each other.

That physician that says that mince pie and baked beans are deadly food was probably trying to account for Boston's slow growth in population.

Many taxpayers will be at a loss to understand how the condition of affairs in city finances, as reported by the special investigating committee, can have existed so long. And they say it is only a partial report. Here is a deficit of nearly $100,000 which is charged up against "methods of city financing." Where is the City Auditor? What has be been doing all this time?

"Whenever an appropriation for any account is expended, the Auditor shall immediately give notice thereof to the Mayor, the City Council and the Committee on Finance, which committee shall not pass or allow any claim or account chargeable against such appropriation, until the City Council shall provide the means of paying the same."

It seems that appropriations to the amount of $18,000.00, at least, have been charged up to "unexpended balances and unappropriated receipts," and there are no funds. Why were not these appropriations held up? Why were they not reported in the annual reports of the City Auditor?

It would seem that the time had come for Quincy to act under Chap. 598 of the last Legislature, which reads:

Section 1. Any town at a town meeting lawfully called for the purpose, and any city by vote of its city council, may petition the director of the bureau of statistics for an audit of its accounts; and the director shall, as soon as possible after the receipt of such petition, cause the audit to be made.

Section 2. At the time of making the audit of the accounts of any town as provided for in section one of this act, the director of the bureau of statistics shall prescribe for that town such a system of accounts as in his judgment will be most effective in securing uniformity of classification in the accounts of the towns of the commonwealth, and shall oversee the installation thereof.

Section 3. Any city in the commonwealth, by vote of its city council, may petition the director of the bureau of statistics to oversee the installation of a system of accounts approved by him and the director, as soon as possible after the receipt of such petition, shall oversee the installation of such system of accounts.

Section 4. The director of the bureau of statistics, for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act, may, subject to confirmation by the governor and council, from time to time appoint additional assistants who shall receive such compensation as the governor and council may approve.

Section 5. The said director, upon the completion of an audit made under the provisions of this act, shall render a report to the city government or the board of selectmen, as the case may be, embodying the results of his findings, with such suggestions as he may deem advisable for the proper administration of the city or town finances.

Section 6. The expenses incurred under this act shall be paid in the first instance by the commonwealth; and the treasurer and receiver general shall thereupon issue his warrant, as provided in section thirty-four of Part I of chapter four hundred and ninety of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and nine, requiring the assessors of the cities and towns concerned to assess a tax to the amount of the said expenses, and the said amounts shall be collected and paid over to the treasurer and receiver general in the same manner as other state taxes. (Approved June 9, 1910.

GAYNOR ON DUTY AGAIN

Bootblack Starts Applause as Mayor Reaches City Hall

New York, Oct. 4.—Mayor Gaynor came to the city hall Monday and took hold of the executive reins there for the first time since Aug. 9 last, when his intended vacation trip to Europe was cut short by a bullet from the pistol of James J. Gallagher, a discharged city employe, who shot the mayor down on the deck of the steamer on which he was about to sail abroad.

The mayor arrived at the city hall in his automobile. As he stepped from the car a newsboy clapped his hands and a crowd of about a hundred people took up the applause and kept it up untill Gaynor was well inside the building. The mayor lifted his hat and smiled to those who thus greeted him.

ANTI-VACCINATION ACTIVITY HARMFUL

Bradford Must Quit It or Resign From University

Washington, Oct. 4.—Because of his activity in the anti-vaccination investigation, Harry Bradford, an instructor in mechanical drawing in Howard university here, has been notified by Dr. Thirkeld, president of the university, that he either must abandon the vaccination crusade or resign his instructorship.

Howard university, through its medical faculty, a statement of the institution's administration says, stands for vaccination as a scientifically demonstrated preventative of a dread disease and as Bradford's connection with the anti-vaccination society might have a dangerous influence over multitudes of colored people, especially throughout the south, the executive committee of the trustees of the university sustained Dr. Thirkeld in his action.

Bradford is one of the originators and head of the anti-vaccination society here.

The superintendent said that as yet he knew nothing of the case other than what he had read in the newspapers; that there would be punishments for those whom the board of inquiry reported implicated, but that that would come later after due consideration of the findings.

BEEF TRUST FINES

Remitted by Court Half an Hour After Being Assessed

Kansas City, Oct. 4.—Half an hour after Judge Porterfield had dissolved the Kansas City Produce Exchange and fined three of its members an aggregate of $8500 the court set aside both the order and the fines.

For years the custom has been for the Exchange to meet daily at a local hotel and fix the prices of foodstuffs, it is said.

A few months ago nine members of the organization were indicted, charged with operating a trust.

HUB'S CITY PAY ROLL

Boston, Oct. 4.—According to the monthly statements of City Treasurer Slattery, the pay rolls for the first ten months of 1910 have been a total of $411,000.11 higher than for the first ten months of 1909.

For September, 1910, the total payments by the city treasurer have been $37,128.11 in excess of September, 1909. The city has to date paid out $9,618,180.70 in salaries this year.

CITY COUNCIL

Councilman McDevitt moved a suspension of business fo rten minutes. Ruled out of order.

Councilman Hobbs—The Council has passed loans for 4 1-2 per cent that could have been floated for 4 per cent. It is a reflection on the credit of the city to jack up the interest.

Mayor Shea called attention to the fact of an order that had been passed which called for 4 percent which was sold for 3 1-2 per cent. Money is always borrowed as cheap as possible.

On motion of Councilman Bryant for a recess of five minutes prevailed.

Councilman Bryant, referring to Councilman Hobbs, said he had done more to discredit the credit of the city than anyone else.

Councilman Hobbs replying, said that he had followed a number of Quincy loans, and while Quincy was paying 4 1-2 per cent other municipal loans were being floated for 4 per cent

Councilman Flynn raised the point of order that the speaker had spoken twice on the same subject

Councilman Hobbs said the point was well taken and sat down.

The motion to reduce the per cent was lost.

The question was now on passing. Councilman Whiton opposed the order. It was ridiculous to expend $1,700 on a side street. It is an example of frenzied finance in the worst extreme.

Councilman McDevitt hoped the order would go through.

Councilman Branch said he did not object to appropriating money for streets if made on one year loans.

Councilman Ericson, referring to Councilman Whiton said he had pull eonugh to get his own street fixed. Merrymount road was the only street in Ward One to be fixed. He did not see why Ward One should be discriminated against.

Councilman Whiton—There is no comparison between the two streets in regard to valuation of property.

The order then faild to pass, 14 voting yes and 3 no. The vote was reconsideerd and the order laid on the table.

WATER EXTENSIONS.

The Committee on Water Supply reported an order appropriating $10,000 for the extension of the water system. To Finance Committee.

The Committee on Water Supply reported an order appropriating $10,000 for the purchase and installation of water meters. To Finance Committee.

NEW STREETS.

The Finance Committee reported ought to pass on the orders accepting the following streets under the betterment act:—Royal street, Birch street, Belmont street, Fayette street, Hill street, Ballou street, Richie road, Plymouth street. Germaine avenue and Bedford street Reports accepted. All the orders were passed under suspension of the rules.

STREET LOANS.

The Finance Committee reported an amendment to the order appropriating $19,000 fo rthe acceptance of new treets. The amendment changes the date of the bonds from Aug. 1, to Oct. 1. Report accepted. Amendment accepted, order read and placed in the calendar. An attempt to make the rate 4 1-2 per cent was defeated.

PLEASANT STREET.

The Finance Committee reported ought to pass on the order appropriating $900 to rebuild Pleasant street. Rules suspended and order passed.

MARSH STREET.

The Finance Committee reported ought to pass on the order appropriating $400 to rebuild Marsh street. Rules suspended and order passed.

WEST STREET.

The Finance Committee reported ought to pass on the order appropriating $3,500 to rebuild West street.

During the discussion on this street, Councilman Bryant referred to what he claimed was the deplorable condition the streets were left in after the sewer had been put in under the direction of the gentleman from Ward One, meaning Councilman Branch.

Councilman Branch said that he had in mind a street where the sewer commissions had allowed the Commissioner $50 to resurface. This was ten years ago, and the job had not been done yet. He could name streets where the whole street was resurfaced and the whoel amount charged to the sewer commission. It was a fact that streets where sewers were laid were better than other streets. What the gentleman had said about the Sewer department was a libel.

Councilman McDevitt agreed in favor of the street being rebuilt. He claimed the oldest inhabitant could not remember when a lump sum was expended on this street.

Councilman Bryant said that $3,000 was expended on the street in 1890.

The order was passed.

MONTCLAIR SCHOOL.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported an order appropriating $45,000 for an eight-room school building at Montclair in accordance with plans of James E. McLaughlin. To Finance Committee.

WOLLASTON SCHOOL.

The Committee on Public Buildings repotred an order appropriating $75,000 for a twelve-room building with assembly hall at Wollaston in accordance with plans of McLean & Wright. To Finance Committee.

NEW STREETS.

DISASTER AT MESSINA

Is Told by Edmund Billings Who Led Relief

The Men's Club of Christ church was very fortunate in securing Edmund Billings of Boston for their meeting Monday evening.

At the time of the Messina earthquake, Massachusetts was the first state in the Union to come to the rescue. Governor Draper appointed Mr. Billings as representative of the state and inasmuch as Massachusetts took the initiative in the matter her representative was the first from this country to reach the scene of the disaster. Everything was in ruins and the scene was one of gloom and desolation.

To handle such a situation properly, a man of rare ability was required. The money sent for the relief of sufferers must be expended where it would do the most possible good. Edmund Billings was the man of the hour. When he first arrived he saw doctors performing operations without using anaesthetics or antiseptics. His first expenditure was made in procuring these. The wife of one of the first dukes of the realm was taking charge of the hospital work. Mr. Billings believed that the greatest good could be accomplished with the money by turning it over to the duchess. In order to do this he would have to work through the duke, who had a great reputation as a gambler. The duke was very formal and reserved at first, but when he found that Mr. Billings had $15,000 to dispose of, he was all affability at once. He told Mr. Billings that if he would give it to him he would see that the duchess got it for her hospital work. This the American refused to do. "You refuse to give it to me," said the Duke. Mr. Billings smilingly shook his head, but in his mind's eye he saw pictures of dungeons and extortion. "Then give it to the duchess" said the peer as he drew back the curtain for his guest to enter the adjoining room. The manliness and resolute courage of the American had completely won his admiration. Mr. Billings told this story to give a humorous touch to his narrative, but it goes to show the type of man our state representative is. In all probability there were hundreds of things in connection with his work that might have been told with great interest but Mr. Billings was very modest and said very little about his part in it.

After the story of the earthquake had been told, a series of stereopticon pictures were shown and Mr. Billings commented on them briefly.

Arthur L. Thomas, who has charge of the debate for the next meeting, told of his plans. The subject of the debate will deal with the election of the senator. Five men will be chosen for each side and a wordy war will surely ensue. The men have not been decided upon yet. This debate will take place on Oct. 19.

Masculine Music.

The musical doctor stepped into the shop.

His hair stuck out like stiff straws, and his joy of life was under his arm; also two buttons on his waistcoat were undone. So there was no doubt about his being a genius.

The man behind the counter looked flustered. He went to the shelf, took off a small packet, examined it carefully, examined it again and then hesitatingly returned to the customer.

"I beg your pardon, sir," he began diffidently, "but this 'appens to be my first day in the shop, and yer might give me a little 'elp. The fact is these 'ere strings look all alike to me, an' I can't tell the 'es from the shes!"—London Globe.

The Case Altered.

Brown—Is it correct to speak of a man as "of the male persuasion?"

Jones—Yes, if the subject is not married.

"What has that to do with the matter?"

"Why, when he is married his wife persuades him."

The Wise Author.

He used to dance with Annie—
She waltzed with fairy grace;
He used to drive with Fannie—
She had such a pretty face;
He used to call on Clara—
She always praised his book,
But he finally married Mary,
For she knew how to cook.

CALVARY BAPTIST

Rev. R. J. Davis took for his morning subject: "The Heroic." Text: "Pilate marveled." Mr. Davis pointed out that there are heroes in all walks of life. Christ was a hero although a poor man. He was the greatest hero of all. Christ was a great leader because he was always victorious. Heroes always have followers. Their success depends on the faithfulness of these followers. To follow Christ, the hero, means being a hero and receiving the crown of life.

The evening service was also well attended. The pastor spoke on the subject: "Christ is all in all."

The ladies of the church will meet with Mrs. Davis this afternoon for the purpose of organizing a society.

The regular meeting of the Bible Study class wil lbe held this evening.

A THREE-ACRE FIRE

Lumber Yards, Factories and Stables Destroyed In New York

New York, Oct. 4.—Fire in the vicinity of Twenty-fourth street and Eleventh avenue last night caused damage estimated at $1,500,000. The space swept comprises almost three acres of lumber yards, factories and stables.

For nearly three hours the fire was beyond the control of the fire department and it was stopped at length by concentrating apparatus which combined threw water on the flames at the rate of 25,000 gallons a minute.

Five hundred horses were rescued from the stables and in spite of the size of the fire and the difficulties of fighting it, it was remarkably free from serious accidents. One fireman was badly hurt by a bucking hose and several others were less seriously hurt. The fire started in the lumber yard of Moore Bros.

WOMAN CALLED POLICE

Angry Husband Shoots Her and Then Blows Off His Own Head

Portland, Me., Oct. 4.—Angered because his wife sent for a police officer when he came home under the influence of liquor and put her out of the house, Albert Folwartschney last night fired upon her with a shotgun, the charge entering her side and seriously injuring her, and then blew off his own head with the same weapon.

The woman may recover. The couple had been married about eight years, and each was about 50 years of age.

SHIPPING SUFFERS BADLY

Many Lives May Have Been Lost In Storm Along the Coast

Boston, Oct. 4.—Stories of derelicts in the path of navigation and wrecked vessels ashore poured into Boston's water front yesterday, as the result of Saturday night's big storm. The storm's toll of lives lost among seafaring men cannot be calculated from the meagre reports received so far.

Arriving steamers and fishing vessels showed signs of the terrific weather undergone, each with its tale of damage or disaster.

White Star to Quit Holyhead

London, Oct. 4.—It is reported that the White Star Steamship company has decided to abandod Holyhead altogether.

WHITHER.

Caroline Elizabeth MacGill.

Ye who have sought for the mansions,
The place of your Lord's abode,
Ye who have toiled in the noon-day,
And bent o'er the weary road;

Ye who have asked with great longing
Whither the highway doth bend,
Ye who have sighed for the even,
And sight of the sunset end;

Know ye that God is a Gladness,
That he is a Thirst, a Need,
That he is a Living and Doing,
That he is a Daily Meed.

Know ye that God is a Hunger,
And know ye that he is a Road,
Know ye that Giving and Learning
And Loving—that this is God.

Gagadig Gigadab.

There was a quaint old man in Manchester, England, who for many years went by the unique name of Gagadig Gigadab. His original name was John Smith, and for many years he brooded over the possibilities of mistaken identity involved in it. The name figured frequently in criminal records, and he became abnormally apprehensive lest he might be confused with some of the bad John Smiths. At last what he feared so much actually happened. One morning the papers reported the arrest of an accountant in a bank for embezzlement, and through some blunder of the reporter the identity of the embezzler was confused with the subject of this article, who was also a bank accountant. Then and there he determined to assume a name like unto no other ever borne by mortal man. And in Gagadig Gigadab most people will agree that he succeeded in so doing.—New York Tribune.

Still Knocking.

Mrs. Stubb—John, this health magazine states that more bachelors take Turkish baths than married men.

Mr. Stubb (smiling)—Well, that's nothing extraordinary, Maria. You know there are lots of married men whose wives keep them in "hot water" all of the time—Chicago News.

The Unexpected

An Army Officer Meets With a Surprise.

By THEODORE BARTON.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"Hawkins," said a captain in the United States army in San Francisco to a brother officer, "you and I are of the same height and weight. Let me have a suit of your undress uniform."

"Certainly. May I ask what you propose doing with it?"

"Yes, wear it. Listen, old man, and I'll tell you a secret."

"Proceed. If the secret is worth the uniform it's a go."

"Nearly ten years ago, when I was a beardless boy at West Point, I had a flirtation with a girl."

"You mean you had several dozen flirtations with several dozen girls."

"Yes, but one of them has turned out to be the real thing. We've never met since, but we corresponded. I have never forgotten her, and she writes that she's never forgotten me. To make a long story short, she has agreed to marry me."

"What's that to do with my uniform?"

"I'm coming to that. Marian—Marian Singleton is her name—is to come to me at the Philippines to be married. I've written her that I have been ordered out there and must report at my station at once. No time to be be married here. She is to go out to join me on the ship I sail in today, but doesn't know that I will be aboard. What I am aiming at is to win her over again. She will never recognize in the bearded man of thirty the smooth faced cadet of twenty. She knows that I'm in the infantry, and what I want your suit with its artillery facings for is to complete the deception."

"I see—what you are after is to win your fiancee from yourself."

"Or anew."

"Well, Morris, all I have to say is that, judging from my experience with women, I expect you'll succeed."

"But don't you see that in either case I win?"

"Oh, I don't care whether Captain or Cadet Morris is to be the lucky man!"

"You've no romance in you, Hawkins. For my part I don't consider marriage without the spice of romance in it anything more than a business contract."

"Take care that you don't have so much romance that you'll lose the girl."

"Nonsense! A woman is a woman, to be won, held or taken away until she is a wife. Then she becomes amenable to what we call honor and not before. Marian Singleton was the most desperate flirt who ever tackled the corps of cadets. She mowed us down as with a Gatling gun. But I believe she is a good woman. I'll draw her into her old habit. She'll flirt with me, but she'll tell me that her hand is promised and she will not marry me, or at least without her fiance's release. Don't you see what a delicious situation it will be for me to release her so that she can marry me?"

"Oh, don't bother me with your love games. What do they all end in for us army men anyway? Lugging half a dozen children from post to post, to have a ranking bachelor officer turn us out of our quarters when he takes a fancy to do so. Here's your uniform. I think it will fit you exactly. All I ask in return for it is that you shall write me as to whether Cadet or Captain Morris wins the girl."

"I'll do it. What's more, I'll keep a diary noting down how the affair progresses and send it to you when the matter is decided."

In the time required for a trip to the Philippines and return Captain Hawkins received a fat envelope, the main points of which are contained in the following synopsis:

Sept. 5.

Sailed this afternoon. Didn't recognize Marian till I got the purser to point her out to me. She is changed from a giddy girl of eighteen to a dignified woman of twenty-seven. Still, I can see in her traces of those faculties so attractive to men with which she bowled us all down at West Point. She seems to be under the care of a gentleman about forty years old, who is starting on a tour of the world.

Sept. 7.

Have concluded to consider myself a corps of observation for awhile. Marian spends a lot of time on deck with Merton, the gentleman who appears to have her under his care. He is a very smooth cut man, and a lady who knows him tells me that he is very intelligent. He seems also to have plenty of money. Marian, I am quite sure, is at least flirting with him, and there may be something deeper in her intentions. It doesn't seem to matter whether I am in the infantry or the artillery so far as she is concerned. I don't appear to cut any figure in the matter at all.

Sept. 9.

Have been introduced to Marian as Captain Withers. She received me as she receives every one—cordially—but there was not the slightest sign of recognition. I would have been more likely to recognize her than she to recognize me, since I have a bushy beard and am pretending to be in a different corps from what she expects. I passed half an hour with her on deck this afternoon, she telling about the delightful visits she made at West Point when a girl. I listened, hoping she would mention my name, but she made no reference to me whatever.

Sept. 12.

I am all broken up at the way things are going. Marian is evidently setting her cap for Merton. It's singular that a woman attractive enough to catch most any one will go for years without marrying, then take a sea voyage and become engaged. Marian doesn't scruple to throw those bewitching glances at the old fool before any one. She certainly doesn't refrain from doing so when I am about. This affair has turned out very differently from what I expected. I supposed there would be two Richmonds in the field—Cadet and Captain Morris. There is but one—a "cit," and his name is Merton.

Sept. 13.

Marian has today encouraged me to be friendly. Her inclinations are decidedly with the army, and we chatted all the morning about army people. She said that she would like to make me her confidant in order that she might ask my advice as to a point of honor as it would be considered among army people. I urged her to do so, promising that I would advise her to the best of my ability, but she said the matter was a very delicate one and she couldn't bring herself to speak of it except to a very intimate friend.

Sept. 14.

The ax has fallen, and my head has rolled into the basket. This afternoon Marian made me her confidant and asked my advice. She told me of her affair with me when I was a cadet; said that she had met no one since that she liked so well till she met Merton. She confessed that she was going out to marry me, but she had changed her mind and would like to accept Merton and go around the world with him on a wedding trip. The point of honor referred to was whether this change of front would be considered dishonorable in the army. If it would she preferred to stand by her old love. I told her that it would be incumbent upon her to state the case to her fiance frankly and that no officer of the army could fail to release her without being condemned by his fellows. When she asked me whether she would be blamed for such a course by her army friends and acquaintances I told her that if she proceeded as I had indicated her fiance would exonerate her and that would render her blameless.

Sept. 15.

I wish I had taken Hawkins' advice and let this matter alone. Marian and I could have been married in San Francisco, and then Marian would not have met this baldheaded old coot that she has fallen in love with. He's fully ten years her senior and nothing but a "cit." I've intended to win her from a boy, and this old duffer has won her from me, a man just entering on his prime. If the fool killer is aboard he'll surely take me. Besides losing my girl, I'll be the laughing-stock of the whole army. (Hawkins, nota bene. If you give me away I'll murder you. No one but you knows my part in this affair, and unless you tell I'll be considered by some an injured man. If you do tell I'll be regarded a fool by all.)

Sept. 17.

Had a talk with Marian today as to what course she had better pursue on arrival. She gave up her fiance's name at last—my name. I told her that it was quite possible that on arrival Captain Morris might not be able to meet her. I also advised her to go to Colonel B.'s, as she has arranged, and meet Morris there, telling him the whole story at once without keeping him waiting.

In Port.

Colonel and Mrs. B. came aboard to meet Marian. I was obliged to confine myself to my stateroom to prevent giving the whole thing away. I saw them through the porthole coming and going. Marian went ashore with them. She looked as happy as if she hadn't changed lovers between shores. I should think she would dread the meeting that's to come off with me, at which she is to tell me that I must make way for another, and that after her making a long voyage to marry me. Merton didn't go ashore with the party. I suppose she feared she might meet me unawares and preferred to have him out of the way till the scene with me is all over with.

I wonder how she'll look when she learns that the man she has traveled with, whom she has made her confidant and who has advised her as to the standard of army honor is the man she has gone back on. By Jove, what a climax for a play! Only I'd rather take the part of the other fellow. I shall be as magnanimous as possible—not blame her in the least, but, of course, I may let it be known how deeply I am wounded.

In Quarters.

Nothing has happened as intended or expected. I have been nerving myself for one climax, and there has been another. I waited till all the army people had gone ashore, then sneaked ashore myself, feeling ashamed of the part I had been playing and dreading the meeting at which I was to get the grand bounce. During the afternoon a note came from Marian saying that she was at Colonel B.'s and would be ready to receive me at 6. Mrs. B. invited me to dine at 7.

I deferred my visit till 6.30 and wished I could omit it entirely. Marian received me standing and as soon as she saw me rushed forward and threw herself into my arms.

"Stupid," she exclaimed, "to attempt to impose on a woman by so thin an artifice! I knew you the moment I saw you."

Why We Sell Glenwood Ranges

A dealer from out of town said to us the other day—"Why do you sell the Glenwood Ranges when you can make more profit on any other range in the market?" We replied that while we knew what he said was true—our experience in business has taught us that we could sell at least five Glenwoods to one of any other make—That our profits would be larger on the volume of business done and our customers would be better pleased, and being pleased would not only recommend the Glenwood Range to their friends—but recommend their friends to come to the store that sells goods of quality. It is this policy that has made our business a success.

Lanier of the Cavalry

Or, A Week's Arrest

By GENERAL CHARLES KING,

Author of "The Colonel's Daughter," "Foes In Ambush," Etc.

Copyright, 1909, by J. B. Lippincott Company

Synopsis.

Trooper Rawdon and Sergeant Fitzroy, lovers of Dora Mayhew, quarrel in Dr. Mayhew's home. Mayhew and Lieutenant Lanier interfere. Lanier, lover of Miriam Arnold, is ordered in arrest for disobeying Colonel Button's orders.

Trooper Rawdon is ordered arrested for assaulting Sergeant Fitzroy. He disappears. Miriam gets a fright at Sumter's home. Colonel Button and Captain Sumter quarrel over Lanier's case.

Fort Cushing has a blizzard. Major Scott, paymaster, is lost. Fitzroy accuses Rawdon of attacking Scott. Miriam's fright was caused by a thief in her room. Lanier gives whisky to two freezing soldiers, Quinlan and Cassidy. Quinlan finds Rawdon's cap at Lanier's house. Detectives investigate the thief's invasion of Miriam's room. Scott is found. Kate Sumter and Miriam refuse to talk about the thief. Colonel Button sends for Lanier.

Lanier denies writing unfriendly articles about Button. Button accuses him of lending his civilian clothing to Rawdon. Fitzroy produces the clothing found in Rawdon's room in town. Button also accuses Lanier of leaving his quarters while in arrest. Lanier narrowly escapes death by fire.

Fitzroy tries to arrest Rawdon, but Ennis lets him and his bride, Dora, go. Colonel Riggs arrives to try Lanier on Button's charges. Captain Snaffle accuses Lanier of being Miriam's thief.

(Started Sept. 14.)

And so ended Bob's arrest. Rawdon lingered for a word with Cassidy, Quinlan and poor remorseful Rafferty;

"HOW DOES PAPA SEEM TO TAKE IT NOW?"

then followed, unhampered even by his arch enemy, Fitzroy, who slipped away to the stables three minutes after the close of the conference. But he was not even there when, along in the spring, Mr. and Mrs. Rawdon came out for a visit to Dr. Mayhew. Like Rawdon, he had received his discharge. Unlike Rawdon, there was serious objection to his re-enlistment. Even Snaffle dare not "take him on" again.

It was not until mid-May that the bodies of the missing were found save that of Cary. Cary, who, having been given up for lost, turned up most unexpectedly the very day that Fitzroy, applicant for re-enlistment, was summarily turned down. But Cary came not of his own volition. He marched with a file of the guard. Cary's story was simple enough. Rawdon and Lowndes had hardly got away on the train when Sergeant Stowell and his party came searching. Cary hid. He was still half drunk. Some one told him of Kelly's arrest and charged him with that and with running off the Fosters' sleigh. He dared not face the music. He forgot his precious missive to Dora Mayhew until next day. Then the storm held him. Not until the fire night did he summon up courage to sneak home. He had no money left and could buy no more liquer. He stole into Lanier's back door to return the civilian suit and recover the cavalry blouse and trousers left hanging in Rafferty's room. He could hear the lieutenant moving about overhead. He had to strike a light. He struck several matches, found the clothes, slipped out of the "cits" and into his own. He was cold and numb. He knew there was liquor on the sideboard in the middle room. The craze was on him, and he risked it. He struck more matches and threw the burning stumps to the floor, drank his fill, then stumbled away, intending to give himself up to his first sergeant for absence without leave. Back round by way of the store and the east front he went, but before he could reach the barracks came the appalling cry of fire—Lanier's quarters—his doing beyond doubt, and now, in dismay and terror, he fled from the post. Poor Cary had Lanier to plead for him before his trial, but three months' hard labor was the least the law would allow.

By this time, too, another wedding was announced as near at hand. Only two days did Mr. Arnold and Aunt Agnes allow Miriam in which to prepare for the homeward journey, but it is safe to say that in that brief time their views of frontier life and people had undergone marked amendment, for they had found an old expounder of their faith in the post chaplain for one thing and many surprising facts as to officers, men and Indians for another. There came a bright wintry afternoon at the fag end of the year when the station platform held a lively little assembly waiting for the eastbound express. The colonel and his wife were there, the former by no means the bloodthirsty warrior of the elder's imagination. The Stannards had come in, and the Sumters, Kate and Dad Ennis the chaplain, and both doctors, and all these surrounded the brother and sister and held them in cheery converse, while Bob and Miriam sauntered, self centered, away.

Lanier's eyes were glowing as he drew her to his heart and gazed down into the depths of those uplifted to his.

"That brute of a train has been late for a week," said he, "but today it comes on time. It is going to be a long, long wait for May. How does papa seem to take it now?"

"Papa is quick to make amends when he has wronged any one, and now he knows."

"Well, so does Aunt Agnes, Miriam, yet she doesn't approve."

"Well, Aunt Agnes, don't you know—she's different. She's a good deal like other women I know. When she's placed somebody else in a false position she thinks that person ought to be very sorry for her and sympathize with her for having been deceived and misled. She thinks you ought to say how sorry you are."

"How can I say I'm sorry when I'm so glad—all glad?"

"Well, then, there's Cousin Watson, don't you know. He was always her pet. He was brought up by a weak mother and a doting aunt, and she knows you don't approve of him."

"Does she expect a man to approve of one who maligned him as Lowndes maligned me?"

"You should see his earlier letters about you. Why, if I'd known anything of them I would never have dared to meet such a paragon."

"And yet, after all, he turned to and painted me black as an imp of Satan. What had I done but good to him? I never took or won a penny of his."

A moment of silence, then the fond eyes looked up.

"You won something he wanted and thought was his. He never had any sense. Won't you try to forgive him for my sake, Bob?"

His arms went round and folded her closely, his face bowed down to hers. There was a wordless moment, then the sound of a distant whistle, of nearer shouts of "T-r-a-i-n!" The dark mustache, the unsinged side, was sweeping very, very near the soft curve of those parted lips.

"What ransom will you pay?" he murmured. "I've not yet felt these arms about my neck. I've kissed you, heaven be praised, but, Miriam, have you ever kissed me?"

"T-r-a-i-n! Train, train! You'll be left!" again came the shrill feminine appeals and, with them, approaching, unwelcome, unheeded footfalls. With sudden, impulsive movement she threw her arms about his neck and upraised her lips to his. One moment of silence, two seconds of bliss, then Dad Ennis' voice, barely a dozen yards away, "Come forth into the light, you wanderers!" There was barely time for Bob's fervent words:

"If I couldn't forgive him after that I'd deserve a dozen weeks' arrest."

THE END.

Telltale Label Furnishes Clew In Los Angeles Case

THE DYNAMITE IS IDENTIFIED

That Which Was Used In Infernal Machine Was Purchased From Firm at Giant, Cal., In Special Order, Three Men Carrying on the Transaction—Much Difficulty In Recovering Bodies From Times Building

San Francisco, Oct. 4.—The theory advanced by the Los Angeles police that the explosive used to blow up The Times building was purchased in the Giant powder works at Giant, Cal., has been strengthened by investigation.

The strongest circumstances offered in corroboration is in regard to the dynamite found at the residence of F. J. Zeehandlaar in Los Angeles and which bore the label: "Eighty percent giant gelatin. Giant Powder company, Giant, Cal., Sept. 20."

Frank Roller, superintendent of the Giant works, has identified the dynamite by the telegraphic description. He said:

"The only 80 percent gelatin dynamite we have manufactured in several months was made about Sept. 20 on an order from our San Francisco office to be delivered to the launch Peerless.

"It was a special order for 500 pounds and was stamped with our label in the same manner as the dynamite found by the Los Angeles police was labeled. Three men carried on the transaction at our office in San Francisco."

The situation was found to be such yesterday that it was impossible to make any progress in recovering the bodies, and a steel crane will have to be placed in order to lift the heavy material away.

It is believed that further investigation will bear out the theory of S. W. Crabill, foreman of the composing room, who, in making his escape, fell down the elevator shaft and got out only after having been seriously burned. Crabill said there were undoubtedly a number of bodies at the bottom of the shaft, as others, besides himself, had stumbled that way.

The police are guarding the home of General Otis, proprietor of The Times, and that of General Manager Chandler. Guards are also watching over the plants of several concerns recently involved in strikes.

Under the stimulus of proffered rewards aggregating $100,000, hundreds of policemen, detectives and private citizens in all Pacific coast cities are searching for clues which may lead to the arrest of the conspirators who blew up The Times building.

Police and civil officers believe that at least three men were concerned in the outrages, and the city has placed a price of $10,000 on the head of each.

GOODWIN AS A STOCK BOOMER

Rice Wanted Him to "Wine and Dine" Europeans

HOPED TO "ROLL IN MONEY"

Disappointed Because Actor Could Not Place Stock Across the Pond—Would Be More Than Surprised If $500,000 Could Not Be Made Out of Ely Central—Mrs. Rice to Testify For Government

New York, Oct. 4.—How George G. Rice, behind the Scheftels mining brokers company, expected to make $500,000 out of the public in Ely Central Copper, and wanted Nat Goodwin, the actor, to wine and dine European people into becoming liberal patrons, is disclosed in a mass of correspondence found in the main office of the concern in New York, to which place a great bundle of similar correspondence was taken from the Boston office following the raid by the federal government last Thursday.

Another development of the big tangle is the announcement of Mrs. George G. Rice that she has been trying to get a divorce from her husband and that she makes accusations against Miss Bessie Lafell, formerly an actress, who lives in New York and has been a friend of Rice.

"Immediately after testifying before the federal grand jury," said Mrs. Rice, "I am going to Reno to get my divorce, so that I can testify at the forthcoming trial of Scheftels & Co. as a government witness."

Rice was the brains of the firm, which is charged by the government with using the mails with fraudulent intent in the sale of mining stocks. Goodwin was formerly associated with Rice. Goodwin has said that he did not know until last fall that Rice's real name was Simon J. Hertzig, an ex-convict.

One letter from Rice was evidently in reply to one written by Goodwin from St. Louis, where the actor was then playing. Goodwin was to go abroad the following month, and apparently he had talked about selling some stock in England.

"I am utterly at sea as to how I can fill the bill regarding your wants in Europe," Rice wrote on July 9, 1909; "we have only got an eight-foot hole down on the Bovard mine, and you could not get any engineering report on the property except that it is a promising prospect. I do not need anybody in Europe or America to sell real mines for me, nor does anybody else.

"Any time we have the ore blocked out we can put up our own mill and make all the profits ourselves, and if the property you take along with you has got to stand such an examination as school-trained engineers are apt to give it, it is folly to monkey with it. I had expected that you would be able to place some stock across the pond, and since you are convinced you will be unable to do so I will have nothing to give you along, so just forget all about the mining end in Europe.

"My idea was that you would be able to pull off something like —— did over there. He did not take a mine there, but a stock prospect, and fed it to them. He gave dinners and banquets and cut a wide swath, and then had them underwrite the whole capitalization of one of his companies."

Rice liked the Bovard property, as witness this: "If the Bovard property continues to show up during the next ninety days as well as during the past sixty days, you and I won't have to do very much hustling hereafter, and will be able to roll in money.

"Just think of it, Nat! We are spending about $4000 a week for advertising just to get new names to send our literature to. We have simply been building up the business with a view to establishing ourselves and making a fortune this fall.

"I have the proposition for the public in the Ely Central Copper company, and if we do not make $500,000 out of it we shall be more than surprised." Rice then discusses the mine and repeats that a "killing" will be made with it. He insists that it is very easy. Then he returns to Goodwin. The actor is told that he would be most welcome in New York because he might help to establish a credit with a trust company and for a further reason.

Rice modestly concludes: "You know I find it essential to keep fairly in the background, and Scheftels alone is compelled to see everybody who wants to do any business with us. He has not half enough time to meet the people, and, moreover, he is not half as good a mixer as you are."

MURDER NOTE IN BOTTLE

Gruesome Notee Floating on Delaware River Puzzles Police

Philadelphia, Oct. 4.—"I was murdered by Joseph Crane. He crushed my head and I am dying. F. B. Docks."

This is the message found in a bottle which was found floating in the Delaware river, off Pearl street, Camden. The note is dated at Cambridge, Mass., and on the reverse side of the paper is written: "F. N. Shiles was my boat."

The message was written on brown wrapping paper, which is stained with blood. It has been turned over to the city chemist for the purpose of determining whether or not the blood is that of a human being.

Whether a crime was committed near here or was committed in Massachusetts waters also is the puzzle to the police. It hardly seems possible that a bottle thrown into the ocean near Boston would get up the Delaware river as far as Camden, which is opposite Philadelphia.

A FULL-PAGE ATTACK

Hearst Comes Out Strongly Against the "Murphy Ticket"

New York, Oct. 4.—William R. Hearst devoted the entired front page of his American Monday to an attack on Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany hall, who is depicted as representing every state officer nominated by the Democratic state convention at Rochester. This is the first indication of Hearst's attitude in the coming campaign.

"The election of the Murphy ticket," says The American, "will be a defeat for every American principle; for free and just government. There is no party involved. It is necessary to drive the bosses and criminal trusts out of American politics and any party should be defeated that harbors them."

MISSING FROM HOME FOR EIGHT YEARS

Lowell Girl Has Been In a Convent Near Montreal

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 4.—Dora Martin, daughter of Alfred Martin, a box maker, returned to her father's house in this city after having been missing for eight years.

As a little girl of 10 the disappeared one day and from then until Monday absolutely no trace of her could be obtained. She gives no word of explanation save that she has been in a convent near Montreal.

She was accompanied to her home in this city by one of the sisters. How or why she went away eight years ago is still a mystery, for she refuses to divulge that secret.

Martin was called across the street to the residence of Mrs. Marie Denomme, a relative, and as he opened the door a handsome girl rushed toward him with outstretched arms, crying "I am Dora." Martin was overcome.

When finally he asked where she had been since October, 1902, when she disappeared from an entertainment at St. Josept's convent, Dora refused to tell.

Miss Martin says she is going back with the nun to complete her education, expecting to receive her diploma in a short time.

BALLOON DROPS 7000 FEET

Descent So Rapid That Four Passengers Overtake Ballast

London, Oct. 4.—Owing to a valve jamming, a balloon in which there were three men and a French actress of the name of Denarder dropped 7000 feet, landing near Royden, Essex. All four passengers were severely injured.

The balloon dropped so rapidly that it overtook the ballast which was thrown out to counteract the effect of the escaping gas, and the sand struck the faces of the balloonists, giving the impression of an upward sandstorm.

CONVENTION HEADS NAMED

Bay State Democrats Tangled Over Head of Ticket

FOSS MEN APPEAR NERVOUS

Congressman Has Failed to Announce Himself as Candidate For Governor—Gaston Looms Up as "Dark Horse"—Vahey Supporters Object to Chairman of Two Important Committees—Leaders Confer at Boston

Boston, Oct. 4.—There have been important developments in the political situation on the Democratic end, including a conference between representatives of the three candidates, at the Democratic state committee rooms, when the chairmen of the convention committees were chosen.

There was a feeling of nervousness among the Foss supporters last night because of the failure of the latter to announce himself as a candidate for the nomination, although the convention is close at hand.

At the same time men who are known to be in the Foss campaign were sounding sentiment throughout the state on the question of nominating William A. Gaston.

Congressman Foss has told his supporters that he does not know how he can reconcile his candidacy with the attitude he took some months ago, when he said that he would not be a candidate in the convention against Vahey. After his conference on Saturday with James H. Vahey, Foss was satisfied that the latter would not withdraw.

Even some of the men who have been supporting Foss consistently for months are nervous. Joseph P. Lomasney, chairman of the Ward 8 committee, said last night that he was trying to find out what truth there was in the rumor that at the eleventh hour an attempt would be made to deliver the Foss strength to Gaston. Men were sounding the sentiment for Gaston in Lowell yesterday.

Sensational developments are predicted within twenty-four hours on the situation unless Foss relieves all doubt of his position by stating that he is a candidate.

He has told those who have gone to see him on the matter of a statement that, when he made it known that he was a receptive candidate for governor some months ago, he had reason to believe that Vahey would withdraw from the contest.

At the state committee meeting, James W. Synan, former chairman of the state committee, was selected as chairman of the committee on credentials; E. G. Brown of Brockton, chairman of the committee on permanent organization; John F. MacDonald of Boston, chairman on the balance of the state ticket, and Frederic L. Stimson of Dedham, chairman of the committee on resolutions.

The conference lasted nearly four hours. Charles S. Hamlin was represented by Charles H. Cole, James H. Vahey by Whitfield Tuck and Eugene N. Foss by George Harlow.

The Vahey representative protested against naming Synan and Brown as chairmen of the two big committees, claiming that they were Foss supporters. It was agreed that if either would consent to withdraw, the name of Thomas Boynton of Everett would be substituted.

Mr. Cole held out for the adoption of the Australian ballot at the convention, but Macleod said that this ballot would be impossible, because some of the delegates were pledged, and that their constituencies had a right to know how they voted.

The question of whether or not the Australian ballot should be used was referred to the executive committee.

The remaining members of the big committee will be chosen at the "night before" meeting in the Quincy house. There will be nine members-at-large and one member from each congressional district on the committees.

The intimation that Foss might not be a candidate for the nomination was given in a statement sent out last night from the Hamlin headquarters.

Want Permission to Appeal From Decisions of British Censor

London, Oct. 4.—Eighteen of the leading dramatists of Great Britain have signed a letter urging that steps be taken to make it possible to appeal from the decision of the dramatic censor.

The ban placed on Laurence Housman's play dealing with George IV and Queen Caroline is said by the signatories "to show the imperative advisability that the judgment of the lord chamberlain, in his capacity as censor of plays, be made subject to appeal."

SAYS AMERICANS ARE NOT FIGHTERS

Japanese Editor Expresses Plain Opinion of Our Navy

Washington, Oct. 4.—Continuing his criticism of the United States as a naval power, the editor of the Chuo Koron, or Central Review, in his most recent article, makes light of the vast wealth of the American republic, which, he says, would be useless in the event of a great war, as there would not be a sufficient number of men animated by patriotism to fight the battles.

"It would be easy for America with her tremendous wealth to turn out 1000 battleships," he says, "but she cannot find the officers and men with the necessary knowledge to operate and utilize them to their best advantage.

"This fact but serves to illustrate that the American people are not a race of fighters. Probably as many as 50 percent are either foreigners or descendants of foreigners, and are lacking in public spirit and patriotism. They have not the faintest intention of serving in the army or navy for the sake of their country.

"Moreover, Americans have an inordinate love of gold. If there is money in a thing they will go for it and are quite indifferent to the role of protector of their country. Thus it is difficult to obtain good officers and even if some are forthecoming the nation can never hope to get many of them.

"Such being the situation, we do not see how America can build up her navy to the superlative standard, and it is therefore needless to say that Japan can easily compete with her in this respect."

Bad BLOOD

"Before I began using Cascarets I had a bad complexion, pimples on my face, and my food was not digested as it should have been. Now I am entirely well, and the pimples have all disappeared from my face. I can truthfully say that Cascarets are just as advertised; I have taken only two boxes of them."

His Weak Point.

A man who takes a business view of things when recently asked his opinion of a person of quite a poetic temperament replied:

"Oh, he's one of those men who have soarings after the infinite and divings after the unfathomable, but who never pay cash."

A Toast.

Here's to smile and gladness,
Roses wet with dew,
Joy for all our sadness—
Here's to you!

Smiles for all my sorrows,
Gray skies turned to blue,
Hope for all tomorrows,
Just because of you!

NORMAL WINTER

William Henry Sears, the Plymouth weather prophet, thinks we shall have a normal winter, with some heavy storms in November. He says:

"Combined with autumn weather, I have no doubt we are to have an open winter, I shall expect snow and sleet early in the autumn. I shall expect it about the middle of October in New England. Winter will come along nearly on time. It will be regular in its character, and the weather will be more equalized than last year. When the season opens on schedule time there is less likelihood of a backward spring. I prophesied a late spring the past two years, and my prediction was verified. There is every indication now that we shall have an early spring next year.

"I do not guess what conditions will be from day to day, like the weather bureau, but state six months in advance what the general character of the season will be. I have kept a daily record of the weather for more than half a century, and, by reference to my files, am enabled to give the general character of the weather when the planets are in the same juxtaposition.

"I do not wish to be considered an alarmist, but would like to go on record as predicting something unusual in the line of weather next November. By reference to my chart, I find that the planets will then be in the same juxtaposition as on April 16, 1851, when Minot's light was washed away, and again in 1898, when the steamer Portland was lost in a blizard, I predicted the latter storm a week in advance."

ANOTHER WEATHER PROPHET.

After deliberating carefully for several days over various signs and weather portents, Joseph W. Wilder, Leominster's veteran weather prophet, has made his semi-annual weather prediction, which covers the weather for fall and winter. Mr. Wilder declares the weather from now until spring will be of a mixed variety with numerous storms, the weather clearing warm after each storm. He says there are numerous rainstorms due this fall and many snow storms this winter, but none of them promise to be severe. Despite the numerous storms in store, Mr. Wilder says he does not predict a rigorous winter and fall season.

There Was No Other Course.

The New England boiled dinner and other dishes like pork and beans, boiled codfish and pumpkin pie best appealed to the appetite of Chief Justice Melville W. Fuller. It was said in Washington that the Fuller Saturday night dinner was baked beans and nothing else, and this story is told: "One evening the chief justice, possibly forgetting that it was Saturday, asked a distinguished English jurist home to dinner with him. When the beans came on the Englishman promptly declined them. Mrs. Fuller showed some embarrassment, whereupon the Englishman amiably said: 'Never mind. I'll make it up in the next course.' 'But, good Lord,' exclaimed the chief justice, 'there isn't any other course!' And there wasn't.

In addition to being a very small eater the chief justice was a moderate smoker of modestly priced cigars. He was said to smoke the same kind of cigars, as far as they were obtainable, that he smoked when he was struggling hard to establish a living law business in Chicago in the old days. He said he was attached to these cheap cigars by ties of sentiment and tender recollection and that nothing else would taste so good to him.—Springfield Republican.

Sure Sign.

"What is the sign when a man parts his hair in the middle?" said the old fellow in the front row of the orchestra to a friend loud enough to be heard by the young man behind them.

"It's a sign that he's not baldheaded," replied the young man, leaning forward.—Yonkers Statesman.

Hard Luck.

"Poor man, your life must be full of hardships!"

"'Ow true yer words are, lidy! Only t'other day I picked up a ticket for a ball an' couldn't use it cos I hadn't got a evenin' suit."—London Ideas.

A Tragic Crisis.

Cholly had put on his necktie and was looking over his supply of hosiery. "I wonder, now," he said, turning pale, "whether the socks have to match the tie or whether the tie has to match the socks."—Chicago Tribune.

Her Great Grief.

Cholly—May I have the next waltz? Widow—Yes, but dance slowly, as I only recently have gone into mourning.—Club Fellow.

Getting Fame.

The fish that'll bite
And get away
May live to try't
Another day.

At any rate,
Without a doubt
He'll be the skate
Most talked about.

"Pins and Needles."

After being for a long time in a constrained attitude a peculiar numbness and pricking are often felt in the arm, leg or foot. This is caused by some interruption to the circulation and can usually be removed by rubbing or exercise. The reason of the sensation, which is decidedly uncomfortable while it lasts, is that pressure for a certain length of time deadens the sensibility of a nerve. When this pressure is suddenly removed, as straightening out the leg after sitting with it doubled underneath the body, sensibility gradually returns to the nerve, and as each nerve fiber composing the trunk regains its normal condition of sensibility a pricking sensation is felt, and these successive prickings from the successive awakenings of the numerous fibers have not inaptly been called "pins and needles."

The Prayer That Hurt.

A member of a certain Massachusetts parish prominent for his thrift and personal consequence was also notorious for his overbearing assumptions and pompous airs. Under the distress and fright of a dangerous illness he "put up notes" on several successive Sundays, and after his recovery, according to usage, he offered a note to be read by the minister expressive of his thanks. The minister was somewhat "large" in this part of his prayer, recalling the danger and the previous petitions of the "squire" and returning his grateful acknowledgments with the prayer that the experience might be blessed to the spiritual welfare of the restored man. He closed with these words:

"And we pray, O Lord, that thy servant may be cured of that ungodly strut, so offensive in the sanctuary."

Law and Geography.

From the half timers' papers written at a recent term examination: "Some of the chief inventions of the last 150 years are having an act so that no person under fourteen years must go into the public house. Another act was so that no person under the age of sixteen years must smoke cigars, pipes and cigarettes, and no person under that age can be served with any. My brother Bill is now all right for this invention. He was sixteen last week." Here is a geography answer: "The river system of Canada is what you might call very good, but sometimes they shoot the rapids, and unless you are a red Indian this is very troublesome at times, especially when you get sucked under like Captain Webb."—Manchester Guardian.

The Earliest Cigars.

The earliest mention of cigars in English occurs in a book dated 1735. A traveler in Spanish America named Cockburn, whose narrative was published in that year, describes how he met three friars at Nicaragua, who, he says, "gave us some seegars to smoke; these are Leaves of Tobacco rolled up in such Manner that they serve both for a Pipe and Tobacco itself; they know no other way here, for there is no such Thing as a Tobacco Pipe throughout New Spain."

CITY HALL ON JOY RIDE

Department Officials Pleased With Police Auto

The Police department of Quincy has a valuable auxiliary in the new Knox auto patrol which went into commission on Tuesday. All have heard of its good work during Aviation week, but then it was crude in appearance, without trimmings or finish. Since then it has been to the shops of the manufacturers at Springfield for finishing touches, and is now a thing of beauty, as well as service. It is painted police blue and has enough brass fittings and other furnishings to make it attractive.

So much so that Mayor Shea, Chief of Police Burrell, City Treasurer Curtis, Tax Collector O'Hara, Assessor Adams, City Editor Prescott of the Daily Ledger and others were not ashamed to ride in it as pasesngers on Tuesday afternoon. They were out just an hour and here is the route they took from City Hall: To the Shipyard via. South street and back via. Quincy avenue, to the City Hospital via. of Granite and Whitwell streets and back by Aadms street, and after a stop of ten minutes at City Hall they made a speed run to Houghs Neck, and back.

The wagon is certainly powerful and speedy and runs very smoothly and easy. All hills including those on South street, Quincy avenue and Whitwell street were easily taken at good speed. C. A. Young of the company was the chauffeur and it was remarkable the control he had over the machine. The speed run from City Hall to the fire station at Houghs Neck was made in less than six minutes, and the Q. Y. C. clubhouse was reached inside of seven minutes. At times the car travelled over 40 miles an hour but averaged between 35 and 40.

The new car is known as the Knox model R, series B, 1911 model. It is of 40-horse power, an dits motor has four cylinders 5 inches by 4 7-8 inches there are three speeds forward and one reverse; wheel base 134 1-2 inches; speed guaranteed, 40 miles per hour; capacity, 12 persons; tires 36 by 5 1-2.

The equipment includes a glass front shield, two search lights, two electric side light, one tail lamp, one speedometer, one clock, one hand horn, one calx horn, one rotary gong, cluster of three dome lights in body. All gas lamps are lighted electrically. The body is of aluminum panels, there is a wire mesh on sides, the seats are upholstered, lockers under seats, one stretcher for ambulance purposes, curtains on front sides and back to roll up.

The manufactuerrs say it is a $6,000 car. The city of Quincy paid $3,400 but the price has jumped up since the contract was signed.

Officer George A. Cahill will be the regular chauffeur with Officer George F. Phillips as a substitute. The Quincy Police department is to be congratulated on its acquisition which was needed for long and frequent runs.

BROCKTON FAIR.

A more ideal day for the Brockton Fair than today could not be desired, and one made to order could not improve it. It might well be called Quincy day at the fair, for hundreds from this city are taking in the trotting and side shows today. While the closing of the stores is not general, there are many stores in City Square which display the signs, "Closed at 10 o'clock for the Brockton fair."

Many automobiles and carriages passed through Quincy bound for Brockton today, but not as many as years ago when automobiles were not as plentiful as today. The route through Milton and Blue Hill avenue is much nearer for automobiles and teams coming from Boston that are bound toward Brockton, so that Quincy does not get them. All horses are excluded from the fair-grounds this year.

RECORD OF ACHIEVEMENT

Reasons Why Representative Thomas should be Reelected

In its recent biographical edition, Practical Politics writes up Representative Thomas of this city as follows:

"Representative William R. Thomas of Quincy has demonstrated an ability to accomplish things equalled by few if any members of the legislature and excelled by none. The quill with which Gov. Draper signed the bill for an $80,000 courthouse at Quincy for the East Norfolk district court and the probate court is one positive proof in the possession of Representative Thomas of his ability to do things. It will be the only courthouse in Norfolk county outside the shire town.

He showed that he could fight when he overturned the adverse report of the committee on ways and means on the bill for a new bridge across the Neponset river between Quincy and Boston, the bill providing that Quincy should pay 15 percent of the estimated cost of $250,000, Norfolk county 10 percent, the metropolitan district 15 percent, the Old Colony Street Railway Company 10 percent and the city of Boston 50 percent. Then the committee on counties reported adversely on the bill in the last day of the session and it was killed because the members were in no mood to seriously consider anything. With Representative Langelier he administered another defeat to the committee on ways and means in tacking an appropriation of $5,000 for a sanitary at the Quincy shore reservation onto the appropriation bill for metropolitan reservations

"He secured the passage of a resolve instructing the metropolitan park commission to investigate the cost of completing the Furnace Brook parkway in Quincy, consider the advisability of immediate construction and report the result of their investigation to the next general court. With this report and with Representative Thomas again on the committee on metropolitan affairs, Quincy is very likely next year to see this beautiful piece of parkway completed.

WILLIAM R. THOMAS.

"Representative Thomas did a good thing for the people of Quincy in killing Representative Carr's bill for the preservation of the Blue Hills reservation in its natural state. This would have meant no paths through the woods, no camping grounds and the practical exclusion of the working people from a favorite recreation ground. Both Representatives Carr and Thomas were on the committee on metropolitan affairs but Representative Thomas won out in the committee and on the floor of the house.

"Representative Thomas, as last year, was a strong supporter of the eight-hour bill and, voted to pass it over the Governor's veto. He likewise supported all the other measures asked for by organized labor, and was an ardent advocate of the income tax and the bill to shorten the hours of employees on the cars of street railway companies.

"Representative Thomas was born in Quincy, Sept. 24, 1871, and was educated in the public schools and at Boston University law school. He is a member of the Odd Fellows, the Elks, the Ancients and the Norfolk, Quincy Yacht and Granite City clubs and the Quincy Board of Trade."

ALLEGED BURGLARS HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Goods Identified at Quincy Court This Morning

The district court room resembled a clothing store this morning for piled up near the witness stand was a large quantity of clothing, hats and caps, gloves, hosiery and jewelry of various kinds. The goods were those stolen from the store of Payson Mitchell Co. that were recovered in Boston by Inspector McKay. The goods were found in a room at 40 Warrington street, which was visited by Inspector McKay of Quincy and Inspector Mitchell and Shields of Boston last Saturday morning. When the officers went to the room they found four young men in bed. Two of these wore pajamas that were stolen from this store. Another had on some underwear stolen, and still another a pair of stockings, while in the pockets of one of the men's clothing were some trading stamps that bore this firm's number.

While the officers were searching the room, one of the four whose name is said to be Muldoon, dove headfirst through the window and escaped. The other three men, who gave their names as Frank Finn of Winthrop, William J. Mullen and William Conway of Roxbury were arrested.

A member of the Payson Mitchell Co. identified the goods found in the possession of the young men as some of those taken from his store. The officers also told of their visit to the rooms on Warrington street. One of the officers said that he had three Suffolk county indictments against Conway, and that there was still another at Portland, Maine.

The men all denied any connection with the break, and laid it all onto the man Muldoon who had escaped. Finn and Mullen claimed that the night before their arrest they had been at a dance in Charlestown, and that they had accepted an invitation of Muldoon to spend the remainder of the night with him. On the way to the rooms they had met Conway, who had also been taken along with them. Their story was a flimsy one, and there was not much surprise when the court found probable cause and held them in $3000 each for the grand jury.

Weymouth Man Nominated For Senator

Ex-Representative George L. Barnes of Weymouth was unanimously nominated as the Republican candidate for senator in the first Norfolk district, Tuesday evening, at the convention at Wesleyan hall, Boston, when Quincy delegates took a prominent part.

H. C. Gallagher of Milton was reelected a member of the Republican State Committee. A district committee was elected and provisions made o fill vacancies.

Candidates Barnes then invited the delegates to Youngs Hotel, and served a grand lunch. There was some speechmaking too. HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

To use an eloquent baseball term, Mr. Ballinger does not, evidently approve of the sacrifice hit.

It is too bad that George Ade was not here to welcome him, but-welcome, Sultan of Sulu, to our country.

If Mr. Schuab is going to build a new navy for China, he ought to be made to guarantee that Japan will not swipe.

Illinois evidently intends to see that Uncle Joe Cannon is at least an eye witness of all that happens in the next Congress.

Some doubt seems to apper whether the Sultan of Sulu came to this country as a regal guest or a jewelry salesman.

Dr. Woodrow Wilson was playing golf when he heard the news of his nomination. Golf be it remembered is the pastime of the Presidents.

Some gentlemen who once regarded the ultimate consumer as a myth, now bring him a little closer to modern consciousness and look on him as a night mare.

The new orders reported in City Council Monday night aggregated $150,000. In addition to this, orders involving an expenditure of more than $20,000 were passed which is going some for less than a two hours' session.

When all the improvements on the Faxon lot on Hancock street, opposite the residence of Dr Gordon are completed, it will make an attractive place. A large gang of men has been at work for the past two weeks cleaning up the lot and now their work is beginning to show results. The row of trees on the front of the lot has been thinned out and some of the trees on the estate have been cut down. These have been sawed into four foot lengths and piled up ready to be moved. All the surplus branches have been burned, as has also the rubbish, and there has been a continuous bonfire burning on the lot for more than a week.

It is along this point where the land seems to bulge toward the street, and it is here that the Mayor recommended that the street be widened. Just at this point the street is narrow, and if widened now the expense will be much less than if delayed for a few years. Eventually Hancock street must be widened at this point.

It is the neck of the main arteries leading to City Square, both Hancock and Adams streets, and should therefore be a wide thoroughfare. What the Mayor recommends is to straighten the line on the westerly side between Saville and Dimmock streets. As the westerly side of the street is to be paved it would be well to put this off until the street is widened.

Henry M. Faxon is entitled to much credit for the many evidences of what he is doing to beautify the city at his different estates.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

Progress in methods of education is a never-ending marvel, and one of its latest and most admirable developments is the evening school In recent years the classes of modest size and attainments that inaugurated this auxiliary movement have given place to larger and more pretentious organizations whose worth finds expression ultimately in diplomas accepted by prominent schools of learning. Thus the youth whose activities in daylight are confined to toil finds when darkness falls the means of his advancement. By contact with such influences even boys in discouraging environment feel their hopes stirred by new incentives, their desires molded along lines that will be surely helpful. Boys, youths and men of nearly all great countries are experiencing the pleasant effects of this idea conceivedand applied to meet a demand that had grown powerfully insistent.

In America the night school has been a permanent intsitution for years, and its results are seen and noted in practically every walk of business or social life. Many a vaulable man would have failed to reach his present high office without the assistance given him through instruction in the night school. Others there found inspiration for higher callings than what environment had promised. The boy whose earnings must go toward a family's support is offered a splendid opportunity to acquire in the evening that which work at other times precludes. The Y. M. C. A., private societies, public schools in some cities, individual teachers and even colleges are engaged in this grand work of training minds after sunset. Courses in law ,mathematics, engineering and practically every other elading study are available at comparatively small expense, which in many instances is nominal. Government employees at Washington, for instance ,attend the night schools in large numbers, seeking information that will enable them to secure better positions.

Never before has it been so easy for a person to gain an education. Facilities for learning are discovered everywheer. The town library, the public school, the preparatory institutions and the university all are links in one purpose. Now the night school is acquiring the same vast importance The educational achievement, remarkable half a century ago, is surpassed constantly at present. Improved facilities for conveyance, even from isolated communities, and higher standards combined with more numerous opportunities for learning are convincing evidences that there is hardly any legitimate excuse for the failure to secure a good education. With the progress of the night school there is more reason than ever why ignorance should be effaced by uncovering the knowledge that means so much to the individual, the state and the nation.—Christian Science Monitor.

Though the last session of congress adjourned without making any provision for putting into effect a parcel post, the subject will not be allowed to drop until the service is in operation on every rural route throughout the United States. Up to this time the railroad influence has been effective in blocking the passage of this legislation, fearing it would reduce their revenues and that of their auxiliary companies, the express lines. The opposition is natural. In its last analysis, it is pure business from the railroad standpoint. These common carriers insist that their pay from the government for carrying the mail is less remunerative than their revenue from their freight business. From the standpoint of the express company the case is even stronger. No business in the world today is more remunerative from the standpoint of capital invested than the express business. The hundreds of millions of dollars paid out in annual dividends, stock dividends, and new stock issues by them prove this conclusively. A law which required the railroads to haul at regular government rates the business that now goes by freight or express would greatly reduce the revenues of these private carriers, they fear. But the adoption of the parcels post is as inevitable as the extension of the rural free delivery service, once set in operation, was inevitable.—Beverly Times.

GREATER BOSTON.

President of Boston City Council to speak at East Braintree, Thursday Evening, Oct. 13th.

The Jonas Perkins School Association begins its series of monthly meetings for the fall and winter, with a talk on the working of the new City charter, by Walter Ballantyne president of the city council

In view of the present agitation to extend the city limits of Boston to include the suburban towns, which means that Braintree and Weymouth would, if the plan were carried out be annexed to Boston, Mr. Ballantyne's remarks cannot fail to be of deep interest to citizens of this and surrounding towns. Certainly no one can have a better understanding of the good and bad features of the new charter, as demonstrated by its practical working than this speaker.

The association cordially invites all interested to be present. Speaking begins at 8 o'clock. No admission is charged for these lectures, which are held at Jonas Perkins school hall.

THE HATCHET BURIED

Councilmen McDevitt and Smith Now United

The Democratic City Committee held the first meeting of the fall campaign Tuesday evening in Plumer's hall, when the members were addressed by several of the leaders of the party and the plans for the State campaign were outlined. The meeting was called to order by Chairman Smith who described the work to be done in this city previous to the State election paying special attention to the large amount of registration which should be brought about.

After covering the various particulars of the local fights he introduced Representative Thomas P. Riley of Malden, chairman of the Democratic Campaign Committee, who described at length the workings of the last Legislature and explained the various bills which came up for consideration. He described his analysis of the roll-calls and showed where these could be used to the advantage of the local representative condidates. Mr. Riley was very well received, and it was the unanimous expression of the delegates to the State Convention present that the Quincy delegation should vote for him for the Lieut. Governorship nomination.

The next speakers, ex-Rep. J. J. Goode and William H. O'Brien of Roxbury, expressed the gratification of Congressional candidate Curley for the support received in Quincy, and outlined the nominee's desire as to campaign methods for the next month. Messrs. Sullivan and McDevitt then addressed the meeting expressing their confidence of winning their fights and promising a firm adherence to Democratic principles if elected to the Legislature. Both gentlemen expressed their appreciation for their nominations and stated that they would make active and aggressive fights until the polls were closed on election day.

One sample of the harmonious feeling prevailing at the meeting appeared during Councilman McDevitt's speech, when, in describing his work for the party during the past two years and expressing his views on the coming fight, he stated that he was anxious to bury all feeling, that might exist at the present time, in the interest of all the ticket and walking over towards Councilman Smith, who was presiding, extended his hand and expressed the hope that the past would be forgotten and that both would be together for the good of the party.

As both men clasped hands and exchanged greetings, the members of the committee assembled gave expression to their feelings by five minutes of loud cheering and applause. After this peace party had been concluded Chairman Smith closed the meeting with a short speech on the issues of the campaign and some instructions as to the work to be done.

TAFT IS HOUSE HUNTING

Must Give Up Present Summer White House at Beverly

Beverly, Mass., Oct. 5.—Recent rumors to the effect that President Taft would have to move from the handsome cottage he has occupied the past two summers, overlooking the waters of Salem bay, are verified.

House hunting, as a consequence, has taken a prominent place in the daily program for the last two weeks of vacation. His lease expires with the close of the present season and Mrs. Robert D. Evans, who owns the cottage, does not care to renew it.

Mrs. Evans occupies the cottage adjoining the president's. She is one of the twelve richest women in the United States and the rental of the cottage means nothing to her. The cottage obscures the full sweep of ocean view that she desires and it will be torn down.

GALLSTONES REMOVED

Prospect For La Follette's Recovery From Operation Considered Good

Rochester, Minn., Oct. 5.—Senator La Follette was operated upon here for gallstones. Eight stones were removed from the gall bladder. Prospects for recovery are good. All the gallstones were small.

"I cannot set a time when the senator may be pronounced out of danger," said Dr. Fox, "but I believe he will be able to get up in three weeks." La Follette began to rally from the ether in the operation room.

RESULT OF A RECOUNT

Quinn Will Become Member of Next Governor's Council

Boston, Oct. 5.—John Quinn, Jr., defeated at the primaries for the Democratic nomination for the governor's council in the Third councillor district, was declared nominated after a recount of the ballots.

By the original count Edward D. Collins led Quinn by fifty-three. The recount gives the nomination to Quinn by eighteen. Quinn's nomination is equivalent to an election.

ROOSEVELT CHOICE BACKED BY BARNES

Prentice Chairman of New York Republican Committee

New York, Oct. 5.—Ezra P. Prentice was elected chairman of the New York state Republican committee to succeed Timothy Woodruff. The selection of Prentice was unanimous—in the first place, because the Roosevelt faction wanted him, and in the second place, because the Old Guard believes himto be unalterably opposed to direct primaries. William Barnes, Jr., made a speech to this effect in seconding the nomination of Prentice.

Mr. Prentice is a New Yorker, who has long been active and prominent in Republican politiecs. He is a deputy attorney general, has served several terms in the state assembly and was a member of the Armstrong insurance investigating committee. He has been a member of the Republican state committee from the Thirteenth congressional district.

EXPLOSION IN NAVY YARD

One Man Killed While Handling High Explosive Fuses

Two explosions took place in the fuse shop in which the men were working at the time of the accident. The accident happened while high explosive fuses were being assembled. One of the fuses exploded and ignited others nearby. The roof of the building was peppered with a hundred holes.

Captain Beatty, the comandant of the navy yard, has ordered a board of investigation to determine the cause of the accident.

Forestry and conservation seem to make a special appeal to the women, and their clubs are laying increased emphasis upon this work. This is a fine thing for the movement, says American Forestry. It means that this question will get into the homes of America and be brought to the children by the strongest influence they know. It is we believe, especially necessary in these fields that clear thinking should be secured through sufficient knowledge. Therefore, we say to the clubwomen of America, your support is the most welcome that could come to our work, but in order that you may accomplish what you yourselves desire, be earnest, sincere and thorough in every undertaking, and study these forest and conservation questions so that you can give sound reasons for the faith that is in you. The great biennial meeting at Cincinnati showed clearly not only that the clubwomen are taking up forestry and conservation with the greatest enthusiasm, but that under wise leadership they are more and more developing thorough methods of action.

An article on "The General Federation of Women's clubs" in the October Century says:

The one woman invited to attend the meetings of the first conference of Governors held at the White House in 1908 was Mrs. Sarah S. Platt Decker of Denver, then president of the General Federation of Women's clubs ,and during her speech to the conference she told this story:

One evening Farmer Johns came back from his weekly trip to town, half a dozen miles away ,and after unhitching his mare, walked over to the pump for his customary scrub, and then joined his son and daughter at supper in the kitchen

"Sort o' 'pears to 'me's though I'd 'a' forgot something or other," he remarked toward the end of the meal.

"Why, pa, did you get the reel of thread and the pink gingham for my dress?"

"Yep."

"And the crock for butter, and the bag of flour and the vaniller flav'ring?"

"Yep."

"Did ye git the harrer mended and shoe old Jimmy?"

"Yep, Sam."

"Well, pa, I don't rec'elect that ye had anything else ye ought to have brought back."

But still pa did not seem quite satisfied. He sat for a while, his gaze fixed ruminatingly on space. Suddenly, he smote his thigh with a prolonged exclamation: "By gosh! It's ma I've forgot!"

"And that," observed Mrs. Decker, "has been the trouble all along. Ma's been left behind. But now she has given up waiting. She has arrived by a path of her own, and she's not going to be forgotten again."

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

The fall season of the Quincy Women's club may be said to have begun this week as the executive board meets Thursday morning at the club house to discuss the business of the club.

Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 11, at half past two will usher in the social season and the program as made up for the series of meetings is most entertaining as will be seen by the year books which members will receive before Tuesday's meeting. Not only are the regular meetings replete with lectures, music, and readings but there is quite a list of special entertainments planned by various committees and it looks like a very busy year.

Plans are already under way for the Assembly to be given by the Civic committee at Music hall during the Thanksgiving holidays.

Tuesday's meeting is in the hands of the Program and Hospitality committee and besides club business there will be a reception to new members, music and a social tea.

The Quincy Women's Exchange will continue to hold sales of home cooked food at W. G. Shaw's store on Saturday afternoons and at the club house, Goffe street on club days.

ADAMS CHAPTER.

Adams Chapter Daughters of the Revolution after a few months' vacation through the summer has resumed meetings the first one of the season being held on Monday afternoon at the birthplace of President John Adams. It was entirely informal given up after the short business session to a discussion of the winter's work.

It was decided to have as a part of each afternoon's program, a reading from Mrs. Flora Adams Darling's book of letters telling of her personal experience during the civil war. These letters were personal letters written to her son and afterwards printed in book form. They are full of matter that cannot be found in history and are therefore most interesting.

It was decided to open the old Adams house on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 22 for a whist party for members and friends of the chapter. Those wishing to attend may subscribe to Miss Hattie B. Pierce, chairman; Mrs. Walter E. Piper or Mrs. Frank F. Prescott who have charge of the admission or to members of the chapter. These ladies are also to have charge of the social tea which will follow the whist.

The next regular meeting of the chapter will be on the first Monday in November.

The Massachusetts society has resumed activities holding a meeting today at hotel Vendome, Boston, and will observe Yorktown day on Oct. 19.

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY Y. M. C. A.

Friday afternoon, the Women's Auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A. resumes its season's work. It is gratifying at this time to note that the membership is being maintained. The Auxiliary extends thanks and appreciation to all who, with the many new and equally worthy objects demanding their time and attention have helped to keep the Auxiliary alive, and cordially invites all women of the city, who believe in the object for which the Auxiliary exists, to be present at the opening meeting, Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock in association hall.

Rev. W. M. R. Lord, of Dover, Mass. who will speak on "Boys" is not only eminently qualified for this subject but is a preacher and lecturer of established reputation.

He is not a stranger to Quincy having been formerly pastor of a Wollaston church.

Every mother who has boys should take advantage of this opportunity, and let members and their friends show by their presence, our pleasure in welcoming Mr. Lord back to our city.

MUST REMAIN UNION CHURCH

Houghs Neck People Against Sectarianism

(Special Correspondence.)

The committee appointed to make arrangements for dedication of the new Atherton Hough School have decided to wake Houghs Neck to the importance of the affair as she never has been before They are looking for a suitable hall in which to hold a mass meeting to which Germantown, Adams Shore Post Island and Houghs Neck will be invited, at which various forms of entertainment will be discussed to make the dedication a fitting occasion.

Exercises will probably be held in the afternoon, and a banquet and addresses from prominent men in the evening. The place and date and program will be mapped out at the mass meeting above referred to. The committee will advertise the affair, and endeavor to attract everyone to the occasion which undoubtedly begins a new era for us.

The Men's Club of Union Chapel met in conjunction with the church parish Monday evening. After the roll call, president French turned the meeting over to Parish President Hutchings. Mr. Hutchings briefly outlined the work which Union chapel had done, and stated that it seemed the apparent wish of the people to form a permanent church organization. He believed that such an organized body was essential to the future of Houghs Neck. He did not care under what denominational head, but could not see success unless one was selected. Mr. Hutchings called on the pastor, Rev. C. R. McMeeken, to state his position as to organization. The pastor said that he had supposed until a few days ago that he was at liberty to organize a union church, but later learned that he could not excersise such power. After investigating he found that a union church could organize but must be done as a sectarian union. His purpose in getting the parish together was not to create war, but only under most friendly conditions to sound the people as to their desire of forming a Methodist union church. He invited free open question, and disposition of thought from all present.

He was first questioned by Mr. Southwick as to Methodist formation, and if he believed the time was ripe for such organization. That is for you people to decide, he said.

Mr. Decker asked, do we understand that if organized with your services, it must be Methodist? Yes, I am under Methodist regime, and could not consider any other form.

Mr. Chalmers, stated that he had been interested in Union chapel for several years, and thought the people of Houghs Neck very fortunate in having such an able pastor as Mr McMeeken. Whether or not, Houghs Neck was ready to form a church was a serious question which required much thought and deliberation. If all agree to support the pastor, all right, but you have many sects among you and as soon as one predominates the others bid adieu. We cannot afford to spoil the good work already done by any split at this time, but whatever your opinion, express it here—not on the streets. It is not a question of what is best for me, but what is best for my community.

Mr. Decker again questioned Mr. McMeeken. "Has this sectarian organization anything to do with advice from your Methodist conference, and if so, could you not waive ideas of organization until better established?" Answer—This act is done of my own free will without advice. I could not say what result would be if postponed indefinitely. I must be

FAVORED BY GENERAL WOOD

Plan to Make National Guardsmen a Part of Our Army

St. Louis, Oct. 5.—The plan to ask congress to place the national guard on the army salary list, at rates of from 5 to 25 percent of the regular wages, was adopted at a conference of national guard officers.

General Leonard Wood, who attended the conference, said the war department would support the bill to appropriate from $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 as pay for officers and enlisted men of the guards.

Every boy in the United States more than 13 years should be trained as a soldier, according to Wood. "I would out-German the Germans," said the general, "by instituting compulsory military education in all the schools."

GALAHAD BROTHERHOOD

Make Plans for a S'udy of China

The Galahad Brotherhood of Christ church held its regular meeting Tuesday evening. The meeting being called to order promptly at 7.30 by the president. The evening proved to be strenuous in the fore part, and later a social success.

The plans for the winter's work were definitely settled The study will be given to mission work in China from a historical, commercial geographical, political, as well as religious standpoint. This work will be rendered by various members bringing in written reports, to be read before its meetings each Sunday and discussed in the form of a debate. When we consider China's high antiquity, its peculiar civilization, its elaborate administrative machinery, its wonderous language, its philosophy and classic literature, its manufacturing industry and natural productions, China is perhaps the most remarkable country in the world.

M. A. Gardner of the "World in Boston Movement" is to deliver an address on this work to people of Quincy and neighboring towns in the parish house of Christ church Tuesday evening, October 18 under the auspices of the Brotherhood.

Mr. and Mrs. McLeod extended an invitation to the members of the Brotherhood to spend a social evening at their home 17 Edison street. The invitation was unanimously excepted.

Edward Keast was initiated to membership. After the business had been completed, the members were served with refreshments, while Frank Wrigley rendered several selections on the piano, culminating the evening which was a social success.

CRYSTAL WEDDING.

The beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Hollingsworth, 1161 Washington street, South Braintree, was brilliantly illuminated Monday evening and thronged with guests who had come from far and near in response to invitations from Mr. and Mrs. Hollingsworth to attend the fifteenth anniversary of their marriage. The magnificent house, spacious grounds and conservatory were thrown open entirely for the enjoyment of the people and nothing was overlooked which could contribute to the pleasure of the evening.

The guests were received by Mr. and Mrs. Hollingsworth from 8 to 10 o'clock and among those present were noted many of the prominent people of Braintree as well as others from Boston, New York, Brookline, Vineyard Haven, Randolph, Quincy and Somerville. There were about one hundred and seventy-five present and among them the members of Mr. Hollingsworth's firm, the Hollingsworth & Whitney Company of Boston. Throughout the evening, sweet music was discoursed by Daggett's band of Boston and delicious refreshments were furnished by T. D. Cook & Co.

The above inscription refers to the marriage in 1895 of Ellis Hollingsworth to Miss Elsie M. Littlefield.

The company dispersed to their homes, leaving behind them many beautiful gifts of cut glass and crystal and best wishes for many years of happiness.

SKILFUL DAM BUILDERS

Remarkable Logging Operations by Beavers In Dead River Valley

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 5.—Making a trip up the Dead river valley for the purpose of determining just what was causing an annoying and sudden scarcity of water at the municipal electric plant, Superintendent Retallic has discovered that beavers are conducting extensive logging operattions. One dam the full width of the river has been completed and a second is in process of construction.

To facilitate getting logs and sticks down to the stream, a path has been smoothed out on the river bank, which serves as a chute. Trees as much as eight and ten inches in diameter have been felled and cut into three-foot lengths and are waiting to be used by the dam builders. The cuts are as smooth as though made with an axe and it seems almost incredible that little animals can do such skilful work.

LINERS ARE HELD UP

Case of Cholera on Steamer Arriving at New York From Italy

New York, Oct. 5.—Steamer Sant' Anna, from French and Italian ports, now detained at quarantine, had a case of cholera aboard. The victim, a man in the steerage, died on Sept. 25 and was buried at sea. Two other cases of intestinal trouble are under observation.

COLUMBIA OUSTS PROFESSOR PECK

Result of Cambridge Woman's Breach of Promise Suit

New York, Oct. 5.—Dr. Harry T. Peck, one of the foremost Latin scholars of the world, named as defendant in a $100,000 breach of promise suit brought by Esther Quinn of Cambridge, Mass., was dismissed as Anthon professor of Latin language and literature by the trustees of Columbia university.

The dismissal grew directly out of Miss Quinn's suit and subsequent developments which involved Peck in a controversy with President Butler of the university.

Although the resolutions of the trustees terminate Peck's connection with the university "forthwith," he announced last night that he would not relinquish his position without a legal fight.

In consideration of his long service, the board voted him a lump sum equivalent to his salary ($5000) for the current academic year.

A considerable portion of the appropriation will be devoted to the strengthening of bridges, especially at him to be unalterably opposed to division and at the northern end of the White Mountain division.

THIRTY-SEVEN DEAD IN ILLINOIS WRECK

Traction Cars Going at High Speed Collide on Curve

Gillespie, Ills., Oct. 5.—Thirty-seven persons were killed and probably twenty-five seriously injured in a wreck on the Illinois Traction system near Staunton last night. An excursion train bound south for St. Louis collided with a north-bound train on a curve. Three of the injured, and possibly more, are not expected to live.

Both cars were going at high speed. The curve is at the bottom of two hills. The motormen barely escaped by jumping.

The north-bound car had orders to meet both sections of the south-south-bound train at Staunton. The orders were carried out so far as the first section was concerned, but it is officially reported that the orders to wait for the second section were overlooked.

The crews of both cars escaped death. Among those killed were three officers of the traction system, J. R. Perry, land commissioner of the Illinois Traction system; W. N. Street, assistant traction master, and D. V. Black, assistant superintendent of motive power.

IN FASHION'S REALM

Eccentric Garments and a Freak Season Anticipated

Headgear smaller and higher but Covers the Hair

The query that one hears on all sides now is whether or not the coming season will be as fantastic in clothes as the two which have preceded it; whether the designers will redeem themseles in the eyes of the public, or whether the public will still allow the designers to be their mentors.

It is about time for the people to be heard, and some action to be taken if we are to dress in any kind of a dignified fashion.

I am not among those who condemn all the fashions of the last two years, but I disapprove of the use that many people have made of them. After all, it is the designers' fault, because they encouraged every crazy kind of garment that could be conceived. They gave approval for so much that was ugly and undignified that the public would not be blamed altogether for rushing into fashions that were fearful. They did not have the trained experience to know when to stop and wear what was most fitting for each person.

The masses have never learned moderation, and when eccentric fashions were thrown them by the bushel measure by the great designers they gathered up everything, regardless of its worth.

Possibly it is for this reason that fashions looked uglier than were intended by their creators. To this argument the designers make answer that they did not create these designs, did not make them for the masses; that their clientele was purely exclusive and individual, and that they should not be held to account for the degradation of these styles by the public.

They say if they wish to invent a directoire skirt for a slim actress who desires it and send it out on parade at the races on the manikin, they are not thereby advocating this particular skirt for Jennie Jones and Mary Smith in the villages of the United States. They shrug their shoulders and put the blame on Mary Smith and Jennie Jones.

There is a large measure of reason in this. It is quite true that the American public, especially that part of it that is not well trained in clothes, will take up the fashion that are exploited by the most sensational women in Paris, which were never intended for decent women in any other city.

Somebody is at fault, however, for making Jennie Jones and Mary Smith believe that these styles are the ones for them to wear. The majority of the fashion writers, those who have any conscience, continually warn the inexperienced against certain freakish things that have been brought out for a well-known freakish woman. May be the shops are to blame. They are the great middlmen, but their argument is that they give the public what it wants. So we argue in a circle.

Not only the women who buy clothes, but those who design them and those who write of them must take a breathing spell and go backward, mentally, to see just what has been done, right and wrong.

On casual obseration it looks as though more wrong than right had been perpetrated. Surely, the last two seasons have many sartorial sins to answer for. The worst part of it is there is no evidence of repentance. We have gone from the hobble skirt to the Turkish pantaloon, which name has been given to the last atrocity shown on the fair figure of woman.

Some have called it the clothespin skirt, but the other name given in jest is much nearer the appearance. The skirt is voluminous and its fullness hangs against the figures as Turkish trousers do, and is caught in at the shoe tops to a very narrow hem.

This hem is either trimmed in some way up the centre back and front, or it is deliberately tacked just below the knees, so that it gives the appearance of trousers.

The skirt is usually made f satin and chiffon for afternoon affairs, and evening ones are made of white net and tulle elaborately garnished with seed pearls and crystals. It is easy to imagine how Turkish these look.

Whether or not they will be taken up by any women worth while is still a question, but it is not the point right here. The emphasis is upon the fact that this skirt has appeared, and has been worn. Whether it is the dying gasp of a hysterical season or whether it is the beginning of a fresh outburst is a problem that cannot fail to be interesting.

The hobble skirt was bad enough, but it was not nearly so atrocious as the early sheath skirt because it was more modest.

Just why all the spectacular part of clothes should be brought out in skirts and hats is a question that must be left to the designers, and they don't know. If you will look back over the season you will be interested in seeing just how forcibly this is true.

Queer things were not brought out in bodices, or sleeves, or coats, or wraps. The energy was expended on the head and the knees. Sometimes skirts were rather normal until they reached the knee line; then they began to cavort and generally lose their sanity in a way that was appalling. It was not midsummer madness, for it occurred in midwinter and the gentle springtime.

The reason the so-called sheath skirt, which is really the original directoire, was worse than its successors was its tightness from waist to ankles. It was an immodest skirt, designed in a sensational moment, copied after an indecent epoch.

Unfortunately for us, we got used to it. True, the slash up the side was never as long or as wide as it was during the Directory, and it was omitted as often as it was used; but it was the tightness of the skirt itself, the way it outlined the figure with its avowed purpose of revealment, that made it a most unladylike garment. And yet it was worn by ladies.

It is still worn, and it no longer causes comment. The slash has gone entirely, but we see all around us women wearing skirts over tights instead of petticoats, which are so narrow from hem to waist that they could serve as trousers with a little alteration.

After this first artistic blunder came the Moyen Age skirt, that silly thing with the sash above the knees and the little pleats standing out in juvenile fashion. This was followed by the hobble, which is tied in so tightly around the ankles that a woman has to hop instead of walk in it. The last, and we hope that it is the last of the freaks, is the Turkish pantaloon.

If you are inclined to exclaim, "Horrors! We will never wear that!" just kindly remember what we have worn how familiar it has become, and how we accepted it without question.

When one begins to touch on freakishness in the millinery line the task becomes too exhausting to think about. It would be tedious and space wasting to enumerate the long list of headgear that has served for the cartoonist as well as the milliners and has been the jest of two continents.

Everything that could be thought of hat was ridiculous, eccentric, and hideous was put into actuality. Worse than that, all of these become common sights. Women reveled in them. Not only were they sold for $100, but for $1. The uglier the hat the better the sale; the more remarkable the size the more orders it got.

And now we have become pretty accustomed to certain types of queer headgear. All of the basket hats are in common use and no longer cause criticism; but the good thing, the ray of hope in a stormy sky, is the fact that the small hat is more fashionable than the large one. We can forgive much if it does not blot out the landscape.

It is quite true that the ray of hope is not as bright as it might be when one hears additional rumors that it is to be the Eiffel Tower instead of the aeroplane. This is not comforting. But there is one thing that can be said about millinery, present and to come, which is that there are enough varieties in shapes and colors to give every woman a chance to choose for the best.

One can even go further than this and say that the tolerance regarding millinery is so wide that a woman can really choose a hat that she likes, whether it is in style or not, and wear it, provided she does not have a bandeau.

The presence of this small band that lifts the hat up from the hair is still tabooed. A coronet is worn which is a flat form of bandeau, but it does not lift the hat in such a manner that the hair shows. The main thing seems to be to cover the hair, no matter what the shape of hat. If it suits your face to wear a flat cartwheel you can do it; and if you prefer a high crowned walking hat with a narrow brim you can wear that, and it does not make any difference how you do your hair under your hat, which is the one comfort about this season's millinery.—Anne Rittenhouse in New York Times.

HOW TO SPOIL A BROOM.

Here You Find Set Forth Also How to Use It to the Best Advantage.

"It makes me sad,' said a broom maker, "to see the way people use brooms. The life of a broom could be twice prolonged by proper usage, and used properly it would be vastly easier to use.

"You've seen people sweeping ahead of them, pushing stuff with a broom? Why, the best broom that ever was made, of thebest and most perfectly seasoned broomcorn stock that ever was put into a broom wouldn't stand such treatment as that.

"With such handling, splints will break off. The splints remaining, jagged and uneven, bear unevenly on the surface. You never can sweep clean with it after that.

"Then you know the majority of sweepers always sweep with the same side of the broom to the front, and in this way they soon get the broom lopsided so that they can't use it any other way. There couldn't be a worse way.

"Used in this manner the points of the splints get bent all one way and then they meet together at their ends. They don't bite, they don't take hold of dust, as they are meant to do, they don't sweep clean; and when a broom has come to this condition the sweeper is less careful of it, for then it is not so good a broom. Such a broom the sweeper feels that he may push ahead of him; and when he does this with it the broom is finally and irretrievably ruined.

"Of course the correct way to use a broom is with the handle, in its initial postioin, held vertically, so that all the splints in the face of the broom will take hold at the same time and evenly In sweeping, the broom should be swung back and forth from a point back of the sweeper to a point at an equal distance in front. That is the proper way to use a broom, and then every day the sweeper should turn the broom around, so as to sweep with a different side daily. Used in this manner and turned daily the broom wears down evenly.

"I have seen—a delight to the professional eye and a comfort to everybody who likes to see an implement used to thebest advantage, thoughtfully and considerately—I have seen brooms that had been so used that had worn down almost to the binding threads but that still bit beautifully. I am perfectly well aware that brooms carelessly used, as commonly they are, wear out faster, with a corresponding benefit to broom manufacturers; but still I do really hate to see anybody misuse a broom."—New York Sun.

LAVENDER BAGS.

A girl who has access to an old-fashioned herb garden where lavender is grown in profusion is turning it to account in making Christmas gifts and engagement presents and bridge prizes.

The fragrance of her garndmother's bed linen suggested the idea. When questioned, the old lady displayed with pride her sets of lavender bags scattered through her carved mahogany chest, tucked into bureau drawers and laid on the shelves of closets.

Some of those sets had been made years ago, occasionally refilled, and the embroidery of them was so fascinating that the girl is copying them for the modern chest of her engaged friend.

There are squares of fine white canvas filled in with a cross-stitch background of pale blue, on it worked a medallion of tiny pink rosebuds and green leaves with an initial of the bride in the centre.

Designs for similar squares can be found from old books on cross stitching. If one does not wish to put in back-ground use a closely woven light canvas and cross-stitch wreaths and borders.

The bag proper is made of stout muslin and the lavender sewed firmly in it. Do not stuff any of the bags too tight, as they are more fragrant when flat.

As bags which are to be used in the linen chest must be kept clean as well as sweet, it is sensible to make covers that button on and can go frequently into the washtub.

Odds and ends of fine or sheer linen, sprigged lawns, pink and blue madras can be used for the bags, which should be about 8 inches square or 8 by 6. For the baby's wardrobe four-inch bags are daintier.

Handkerchiefs with colored borders make fascinating covers for lavender bags. Fold like an envelope, bringing the three points together and overhanding edges neatly. Provide the point of flap with a buttonhole or loop and put a small lace button on clasp.

When intended for a gift the monogram or initials can be worked across point of flap. A square of linen or lawn can be hemmed all around and made into an enveolpe in thesame way. Briar stitching or chain stitching these hems in colored mercerized cotton and working initials in thesame give a dainty finish.

Another treatmentof the handkerchief is to turn it over from diagonal points to make a triangle. These can be blind-stitched together in easily ripped stitches or eyelets worked opposite each other on the four sides and lace with baby ribbon tied at the point

The filled bag for one of these triangles may have to be lightly quilted to keep the lavender in place

A dainty effect can be had by making a square with the inner part of sheer white material joined by narrow lace beading to a colored hem; or the centre can be in color and the hem white or figured. Lace through the beading with narrow ribbon to match the centre.

Round or oval doilies of sheer linen can have eyelets worked in them about a half inch from scallop. Lace two together for covering of a lavender bag. A dozen will make a set of six, a good number to give.

When intended as a gift it is nice to give the individual touch by embroidering initials. Do not make the mistake of putting too much embroidery on these covers. They should be kept delicate looking.

To give variety to a set of doily or handkerchief bags tie every two of them with a different color and work the intitials to match.

A bag that is intended to hang in a closet should have loops or ribbon tacked to each end to fasten to hooks. Where the bag is large and likely to get out of shape the under part should be quilted or can have feather boning stitched to one edge.

Tiny lavender bags made from sheer handkerchief linen, cut heart-shaped, and worked with a wreath of forget-me-nots pale blue are lovely for the baby trousseau. Cup two heart-shaped pieces of any desired size. Buttonhole the edge with pale blue and work the wreath on one heart only. Small eyelets in pale blue should be placed in both hearts so they come opposite. Lace with blue ribbon.

Where the giver does not care about the later cleanliness of the bags they can be made up in squares or oblongs from pieces of brocade, colored silks, or gauze tissues. Most patch bags contain remnants of new ribbons that answer nicely. There is no obligatory size for the bags. A pretty set would be two bags of blue, two of pale yellow, and two of violet.

If you are not lucky enough to be able to get lavender fresh from the garden buy it at a reliable drug store where you are sure to get the loose flowers. Do not buy compressed cakes of dried flowers so often offered for sale by street vendors. It is cheaper to buy by the pound than in thesmall bags of lavender sold in many department stores.—New York Times.

PLAN FOR CHRISTMAS.

October is a good month to buy Christmas presents, if a wise selection is made. Silk stockings are a favorite gift to girls and can be had for less now than in December. If, however, you find lovely ones in lace effects for almost nothing, remember that lace stockings are almost unrecognized now by fashionable women, and the favorite is a sheer, thin silk, with clocks or solid embroidery in self tones.

You may be tempted again to get that feather boa which is so much cheaper than any you ever saw. Perhaps you think it will be just the gift for the friend to whom you are under such obligations. A strict answer to the "Why?" would reveal that feather boas are conspicuous by their absence just now; it is the purchase for some girl who does not keep to the top notch of style, but an embarrassment to the friend who does.

In purchasing bargains for gifts go in less for personal things than for dainty pieces of china, glass, silver or antiques that are much reduced. It is an excellent time to buy wedding presents, if there is an appalling array of brides for the Autumn.

Bits of jewelry, novel hat pins, belt buckles that are in good style now will be equally good at Christmas. The same cannot be said of neckwear and blouses. A corset cover or combination and a fine nightdress will invariably make an acceptable gift.—New York Times.

GROOMED FOR NOMINATION

Gossip Names Gaston For Governorship of Bay State

CLAIMS OF HAMLIN AND FOSS

Both Assured of Victory After One or Two Ballots, While Vahey Workers Are Also Confident—Hamlin Says Democratic Machine Is the Great Question—Republicans May Have Squabble Over the Tariff

Boston, Oct. 5.—In case of a hopeless deadlock in the Democratic state convention tomorrow as between Hamlin, Foss and Vahey for the nomination for governor, the name of William H. Gaston is uppermost in the thoughts of the politicians who are not allied, even indirectly, with either of three prominent candidates now in the race. And with the name of Gaston is that of John T. Coughlin of Fall River for the second place. This is the latest political suggestion which appears on the street.

The mere mention of a possible deadlock to the Hamlin, Foss and Vahey workers raises a smile. They say there is nothing to it, particularly the Hamlin and Foss lieutenants, who claim that practically enough delegates are in sight on their respective sides to assure the victory after one or two ballots.

Mr. Gaston is still saying nothing and politicians believe that only one consideration would induce him to give up his business for the nomination—that of the feeling that he has always had to sit in the governor's chair which his father once occupied. His nomination would be like that of Plaisted of Maine and Dix of New York.

Joseph J. Pelletier of Boston, James B. Carroll of Springfield and John R. Thayer of Worcester are much talked about as possible "dark horses" for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, in addition to Gaston. Pelletier is to be renominated probably for district attorney of Suffolk county, and is to be temporary chairman of the state convention. Thayer is to be permanent chairman. Carroll is to nominate Hamlin. All three will, therefore, be in the convention's eye.

Whether the Democratic state machine is the servant of the party or its master is, in the mind of Hamlin, the great question of the moment. In a statement issued yesterday afternoon he accepts the challenge of Chairman MacLeod and calls upon the people to decide whether the bosses or the rank and file shall rule in the nomination for governor.

Mr. Hamlin calls MacLeod's activity for Foss "most audacious" and says that it is unfortunate that it should be thrust upon the Democratic party at the time when "the Republicans throughout the country are prepared to shatter their machines and machine rule generally."

Republicans who have been expecting that their state convention would be a tame affair, owing to the absence of any contest for places on the state ticket, and who have been lamenting such a state of affairs, may find that a highly interesting situation may develop over the platform, especially as regards the tariff.

The attention of the public has been focused upon the Democratic camp, owing to the warfare there being waged over the gubernatorial nomination. There is, however, a possibility of a lively debate on the floor in the Republican convention.

Speaker Walker, who is a member-at-large of the committee on resolutions, has a tariff plank with which the majority probably of his fellow-members-at-large and by congressional districts do not now agree. The speaker advocates the formation of a permanent, independent tariff commission, with all the powers of the present board. He wants the facts reported to congress so that congress can revise the tariff intelligently and schedule by schedule, in order that revision may not be simply a log-rolling affair. He claims that this does not conflict with President Taft's views, but, on the contrary, that it is perfectly in harmony with them.

Whether the stand-patters in the convention will agree to Walker's plank is very doubtful. The attitude of Congressman Washburn of Worcester, chairman of the committee on resolutions, is awaited with interest. It is believed that he is opposed to Walker's plank. The speaker's idea is simply to crystallize into law that which President Taft is willing to do as an executive, but which at present he must do without a scintilla of law to support him.

Speaker Walker is a strong protectionist. He believes, however, that in order that the tariff may be put upon a scientific basis, a change in our method of revising it is necessary.

KING MANUEL.

Portuguese Monarch Is Having Trouble With Revolutionists

REBELS TAKE KING'S PALACE

Revolution In Portugal Has Started in Full Swing

MANUEL IS TAKEN PRISONER

Meagre News by Wireless, as Telegraphic Communication With Lisbon Is Cut Off—Fighting In Streets and Bombarding of Palace by Warships—Republicans Have Support of Army and Navy—Startling News by Way of London and Paris Appears to Be Confirmed

London, Oct. 5.—The Santander correspondent of the Reuter Telegram company confirms the report of a revolution in Portugal, and adds that the rebels have captured the palace.

The Daily Mail declares a revolution broke out in Lisbon yesterday. The dispatch says that King Manuel is a prisoner, that street fighting has occurred, that warships are bombarding the palace, and that all communication with the capital is cut off.

The first meagre news is thought to have been received by wireless. As during the wild rioting and excitement after the assassination of King Carlos, Feb. 1, 1908, it has been impossible to get into any communication. Since Monday all telegraphic communication has been cut off at the eastern telegraph station at Carcavallos, eleven miles from Lisbon.

From the reports that have sifted through it is believed that the government is in the hands of the revolutionists. The army and navy, massed about the capital, leagued with the revolutionists, have besieged the city. The latest reports said that the city of Lisbon was being bombarded by the heavy guns of the fleet in the harbor.

News of a wholesale plot, arising from the disaffection that resulted in the assassination of King Carlos, had reached Portuguese merchants in London Monday. The news was very indefinite, but the rumor was given foundation by the sudden slump on the exchange in London of the price of Portuguese bonds.

The Daily Mail is the only London newspaper printing any Lisbon dispatches. Besides the rumors of an impending trouble, no report except the dispatch in The Mail mentions a revolution in Lisbon.

By Way of Paris

Paris, Oct. 5.—The Echo de Paris prints a wireless dispatch from its correspondent, dated St. Marie de Lamer, Cape Blanco, saying:

"A revolution has broken out in Portugal. A great part of the army and all the navy have gone on the side of the Republicans. At 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon a bombardment of the royal palace commenced. All ingress to the city has been forbidden. It is impossible to procure and forward details."

No confirmation of this has been received by the foreign office. Telegraphic communication with Portugal has been interrupted since 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The Portuguese legation has no knowledge of a revolution.

Republican Flag Over Palace

Santander, Spain, Oct. 5.—A German steamer here has received a wireless from the steamer Cape Blanco of the same line, lying off Lisbon, stating that warships began bombarding the palace just as soon at the rising within the city began. Shortly the revolutionists hauled down the royal standard over the palace and replaced it with the Republican green and blue flag.

EIGHTY PERSONS DROWNED

Explosion of Boilers Sends the Chiriqui to Bottom of Pacific Ocean Before Wireless Operator Has Time to Send Out Distress Call—Many of Frenzied Mob Swept Overboard In Struggle as Vessel Begins to Sink

Colon, Panama, Oct. 5.—Eighty persons perished when the Pacific Steam Navigation company steamship Chiriqui plunged to the bottom of the Pacific ocean, following the explosion of her boilers ninety miles from Panama, according to advices received here from Point Jarachine.

The Chiriqui was being driven under high pressure in the endeavor to make up lost time, this report states, when her boilers exploded. The vessel was making top speed through a calm sea when, without warning, a terrific explosion occurred.

The passengers and members of the crew, about 100 in all, were thrown into a panic and a terrific fight took place around one of the life boats, which a few of the cooler members of the crew immediately started to launch.

Before this boat could be lifted over the side the stern of the vessel lifted and the bow began to sink, the water rapidly creeping up the deck. At least half of the frenzied mob was swept overboard in the struggle.

The report from Point Jarachine, which is said to come from survivors, says that not more than a dozen succeeded in fighting their way into the lifeboat. Some of the survivors claimed that a second boat was launched and manned, but the majority of the dozen who landed at Jarachine declare that but the one boat got away. If this is so the loss of life will be somewhere between 80 and 90.

The Chiriqui, which was bound for Callao, Peru, was equipped with wireless, but the terrific force of the explosion and the swift sinking of the vessel made it impossible for the operator to even send out an "S. O. S." distress call.

LIGHTER KEELS OVER

Tugs Go Fishing For Bales of Cotton In Boston Harbor

Boston, Oct. 5.—Keeled over by a high wind and the swash from a passing ferry, the lighter Hickory, yesterday afternoon, spilled about 400 bales of cotton, valued at $35,000, into the harbor. There was a rush of tugs from various parts of the harbor to prevent the valuable cargo floating out to sea.

The fleet of tugs finally succeeded in rounding up all the bales, and they were pushed into the basin at Lewis wharf, where as quickly as possible they were lifted out of the water. This was no easy matter, as every bale weighed over 550 pounds. Every bale was accounted for, and the damage by water, it is said, will be very slight.

PROFIT FROM AVIATION

Harvard Able to Pay Off $8,-230.33 on Improvements

Aide from permanent improvements there was a profit at the Quincy Aviation meet recenty held at Squantum as will be seen by the figures presented at the meeting Tuesday evening.

INCOME.

Receipts from the sale of tickets	$121,703.00
Receipts from other sources	6,564.17
Total income	$128,267.17

DISBURSEMENTS.

Bonuses paid to aviators	$ 40.466.53
Prizes for competitors	24,400.00
Operating expenses of meet	55,170.30
Total operating disbursements	$120,036.84
Surplus over operating expenses	$8,230.33

ASSETS.

Permanent improvements and fixtures	$30,124.71
Deficit after paying for permanent improvements	$21,894.38

It will be a surprise to many to learn that such large bonuses were paid to aviators in addition to prizes. As long as the Quincy field is to become a permanent field, it should not be expected that all the first cost would be paid at the first meet. The sum of $30,124.71 seems large for the improvements made, but the Harvard Society did well to pay off $8,-230.33 on this cost.

REMEMBER THE ANIMALS.

Editors of Daily Ledger:

A great deal of regret is expressed that the State feels obliged to empty our fine fountain in City Square, because of the epidemic of glanders among horses. Quincy is such a thoroughfare for all kinds of traffic, the horses employed evidently fell the loss of their favorite halting place very keenly. But it would seem as though the dogs and birds need not usffer also and they do. These cannot utilize the pools and puddles of the street as formerly for the oil and water combination now used is not fit. Would it not be possible to have the upper basin of the fountain kept partly full for the doves and other birds, who look longingly into it, and the little trough for the dogs to be kept quite full and thus minister to a part of the beneficiaries of our beautiful fountain. And could not some way be provided so a humane teamster could draw water to fill the pails carried for teh special use of the horses in his care.

HOLBROOK SHUT OUT

Quincy High Wins Another Football Game

The Quincy High second team defeated Holbrook High Tuesday afternoon by a score of 32 to 0

The game was loosely played throughout but the spectators were kept in good humor none the less.

Most of the Holbrook team were very young and evidently members of the knickerbocker brigade. The largest man on the team was not much larger than the smallest in the Quincy lineup. Bahr, the capain of the visitors, was a good player and was obliged to do the bulk of the tackling and ground gaining.

Quincy scored her touchdowns by means of thesuperior weight and experience of her players. There was very little good playing, fumbles were frequent and there was an atmosphere of listlessness about the whole proceeding.

Pfaffmann showed ability as a punter and W. Cranshaw as a ground gainer. The team did not have a fair chance to show itself to advantage owing to the weakness of its opponents, so any harsh criticism would be unjust.

During the intermission, while the visiting team was resting, squads of regulars, scrubs and alumni were going through signal drills and down the field.

Mr. Currier of Holbrook was kept busy outside of his official capacity as umpire, shaking hands with former pupils and fellow instructors. Manning did not appear very lame as he hiked about performing the duties of referee.

In the last quarter Edwards was put in as centre and Claflin took Harmon's place at fullback, thus making the team wholly scrubs with the exception of Edwards who was playing out of his regular position.

A number of the students of both sexes took Mr. Howlett's advice and stirred upas much enthusiasm as was possible. The girls sang two or three songs, and the boys growled out a cheer or two but there was on the whole very little inspiration.

The lineup:

Pfaffmann, R. E.	L. E., Pierce
Jackson, R. T.	L. T., Williams
Anderson, R. G.	L. G., French
Claflin, C.
Edwards, C.	C., Hurlburt

Score: Quincy, 32; Holbrook, 0. Touchdowns—Cranshaw 3, Harmon Holmes, Claflin. Goals—Pfaffmann 2. Referee—Manning. Umpire—Currier. Field Judge—Fenner. Head Linesman—Rice.

POLITICAL NOTES.

The District Attorney convention of the Republicans is being held in Boston this afternoon.

It is rumored that Rednor P. Coombs, who was defeated in the caucuses for the nomination for representative in the sixth district by Councilman McDevitt is to run on nomination papers.

The next opportunity to get names on the voting lists will be Friday evening, when the Registrars meet at Quincy Point.

As a result of a conference Tuesday between James Duncan, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, and John Golden secretary of the United textile workers, with Mayor Fitzgerald, the latter is reported to have withdrawn his support of Eugene N. Foss as Democratic candidate for Governor. The conference was held Tuesday evening and the labor representatives are reported to have put it up to Mayor Fitzgerald that Foss would be an unsatisfactory candidate to labor.

CAT BOAT CHAMPIONSHIP

Providence Syndicate to Build a Challenger

The yachtsmen of Narragansett bay who were caught napping by the Dolly III and Iris during the usmmer season just closed proposed to be up and coming next year. Massachusetts yachtsmen learned this week that their Providence brethern have a plan on foot fo rthe forcing of asyndicate to build a racing catboat to come to Massachusetts bay next season and try to take the championship of the Atlantic seacoast away from the Quincy boats which won it easily in the races sailed in Narragansett bay last season.

Harvey J. Flint and Vice-Commodore Markham of the Edgewood Yacht club, both well known in Boston, are behind the scheme, which consists of selling 20 shares at $75 a share to local yachtsmen, with which the boat will be bought. It is proposed to have it built by Hanley at Quincy, who ahs had a great deal of success building racing cats, and built and designed the Wanderer IV. It is further proposed that each shareholder have a vote, and that a committee of three shall have charge of selling the boat after the races, the money thus realized to be divided evenly among the stockholders It is proposed that the entire management of the boat be turned over to William Rooks, the cleverest catboat skipper the bay has ever known, to do with as he pleases, even to selecting his own crew

The scheme has not yet been fully set on foot,y yet eight of the twenty shares required have already been subscribed for, and no difficulty is expected.

COURT CASES FOR THE YEAR

Total 32 Less Than Last Year and Not a Record

The report of Probation Officer Francis A. Spear for the year ending Sept. 30, 1910, shows that during the year there were 2,077 criminal cases before the District court at Quincy as against 2,045 cases for the year 1908-1909. With two exceptions this was the largest number of cases in ten years. The two years which exceeded this record were 1904-1905, when there were 2,134 cases; and 1905-1906, when there were 2,168 cases. The ditsrict includes Quincy, Weymouth, Braintree, Milton, Holbrook, Randolph and Cohasset.

The total number of cases for the month of September was 220. Of these 89 were for drunkenenss, 20 for larceny, 17 for violation of auto laws, 19 for violation of park laws; 17 liquor cases; 8 disturbance on public conveyance and 1 for manslaughter. There were also a number of other minor cases.

Of the caess 15 were not served, 10 were continued for further hearing, 8 appealed, 2 put under bonds to keep the peace, 22 were placed on probation and in 21 cases the sentence was suspended.

guided as to my future plans by the expression of your thoughts.

Mrs. Goody said that as soon as the parish became an organized body it could no longer occupy the chapel building. It was, is, and always shall be a Union chapel, as designated by the trustees.

Henry W. French said that Quincy had always been a centre of religious storm. We are all Catholics. Christians in the universal belief of a God. I am absolutely against sectarian organization. Now that this church is about to get somewhere, it does not seem necessary to spoil success, as success is almost upon us. If we try to organize now, it will be the rock upon which we split. I do not believe in foreign missions. Home mission comes first. Mr. McMeeken has done more than any man on the beach for moral improvement. His influence has reached outside to people he has not dreamed of. He is the right man in the right place, but should not attempt organization in our present crisis. We should declare ourselves independent.

J. E. Johnson thought that organization should be suspended until all could unite on one plan. As long as conditions were furthered on present plans, other results could be attained later.

Mr. Ryder and Mr. Webster were both strong for Methodist organization, as was also Mrs. Dill.

Mr. Chalmers moved to put the question to an informal ballot to learn the general sentiment, which results in the church remaining as it is.

The pastor was much pleased to learn the sentiment of the people, although sorry it was not as he wished it might have been. Organization he believed was an absolute necessity for the children. His future movements must be governed by the opinions of the parish.

Houghs Neck has learned to hold great respect for Mr. McMeeken, and it is hoped that his attitude towards general opinion will be well taken, and that he will remain among us for a long time and forget denominational heads for the present demands, and needs of this rising little colony. There is yet work of great importance for him here.

BOARD OF TRADE APPOINT COMMITTEES

To Work for Better Train Service and to Protest Against Telephone Rates

Several Congressmen Reply on Waterway Appropriation

A well attended meeting of the Board of Trade was held Wednesday evening when a variety of sujects were considered. President Stone was in the chair.

In response to letters from the Board of Trade, asking members of Congress their attitude on an appropriation for a free government canal from Boston to Narragansett bay, replies were received from Senators Lodge and Crane, Representatives O'Connell, Greene, Weeks, Gardner, Ames and Peters. All were more or less favorable to the project under certain conditions, but few were ready to pledge themselves.

Two applications for membership were received, and upon ballot they were admitted.

The new telephone rates were discussed by W. H. Teasdale, John R. Richards, A. W. Stetson and others. The following committee was appointed to act in conjunction with the committee from other towns of the Metropolitan district; W. H. Teasdale, John R. Richards and John O. Hall.

John R. Richards called the attention of the Board of Trade to the action of the City Council, in favoring Quincy granite for the new County Court House in Quincy. The Board also endorsed the movement and will so notify the County Commissioners.

NEW TIMETABLE.

The fall timetable of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. provoked the most discussion, and it was the opinion of several members that the officials of the railroad had not lived up to their agreement, which promised new trains by the fall schedule.

Those who served on the committee when the summer schedule went into effect claimed the Board of Trade had been ignored in the new schedule, none of the promised changes being made. Quincy Adams people were aggrieved. At all stations, however the theatre trains are not accommodating either to Boston about 7 or out of Boston a 11 or 12.

A committee of six was appointed to secure, if possible, better service, including John O. Hall, J. A. Sedgwick, T. L. Williams, John R. Richards, E. J. Sandberg and Frank Burgess.

Oscar S. Sandberg favored the appointment of a 1915 committee which might work for improvement of parks, boulevards, street widening, double tracking, removal of office of Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company, a show room for Quincy granite in City Square, etc.

The secretary was requested to call the attention of railroad officials to the fact that some months ago they promised a report relative to better freight facilities fo rgranite at outh Quincy on the Granite Branch.

Adjourned at 9.45.

BARKER NOMINATED

Candidate of Republicans for District Attorney

The Republican convention for the Southern District Attorney district was unanimous on Wednesday in renominating Albert F. Barker of Brockton as its candidate.

Ex-Mayor John S. Kent of Brockton was chairman and H. C. Haskell of Brookline secretary. The committee reported 109 delegates present.

Mr. Barker was placed in nomination by Elmer E. Fletcher of Brockton, seconded by others and was made by acclamation.

Candidate Barker said that he would do his best to see that justice was administered. Incidentally he said a good word for his old law partner, Judge Robert O. Harris, who was yesterday nominated for congress, and made the remark that the place for Republicans ot reform the party was within its ranks rather than outside of it.

ANNUAL BANQUET WOLLASTON BAPTIST

The Rev. E. A. Chase, Congregationalist, Acts As the Toastmaster

Pleasing Musical Numbers By Soloists

It was indeed an auspicious occasion at the Wollaston Baptist church on Wednesday evening when the annual banquet of the Social Benevolence society took place.

With wants of the inner man well taken care of the program which followed catered to the highest intellectual, artistic and musical tastes of the audience and left little to be desired.

Rev. E. A. Chase of the Wollaston Congregational church, whose ability as toast master and after dinner speaker has given him an enviable reputation, did not disappoint on Wednesday evening when his sallies were most witty and his introductions and felicitations most apt and timely.

At 6.30 a gathering of over one hundred sat down to the following well-served menu:

Turkey Cranberries
Escalloped Oysters
Salad
Chicken Potato
Cake
Sherbets Ice Cream
Rolls Coffee

At the head table were Rev. and Mrs. E. A. Chase, Professor and Mrs. Walter Sargent, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Young, Rev. and Mrs. Joseph Walther, Deacon and Mrs. A. D. Albee.

The floral decorations were in good taste the bright hues of clusters of dahlias making a pleasing contrast with the soft green of the asparagus and trailing vines.

The program opened with a few brief words of welcome by Mrs. C. D. Young, president of the society who introduced Rev. E. A. Chase as toastmaster.

Professor Walter Sargent of the University of Chicago delivered the address of the evening upon "The contribution of beauty to life." Although taken from a sociological and perhaps technical standpoint the address was one of unusual interest owing to the clearness of diction and the facility of illustration used by Professor Sargent. Wishing to bring home a certain phase of the subject he would turn to the blackboard and produce with a few deft strokes of the chalk the exact effect desired.

Beginning with the Puritan attitude the professor continued by defining beauty. "We often," he said, "confuse prettiness and beauty. Prettiness is but a passing sensation which leaves nothing in its wake while as Emerson has it, "A thing of beauty is a joy forever."

"Beauty is said to be indefinable but there are 3 elements which are nearly always present in a beautiful thing. The first of these is utility, for beauty must satisfy certain needs.

"Next in order for the artistic sense demands this further satisfaction after utility. On the ability of the human being to find relation depends all sense of appreciation. Order is everything and the basis of all fine architecture is this element."

"For the third element I can think of no better name than style. After a skilled craftsman has satisfied the first two elements he attains still higher and embodies his own individuality in a certain creation. This is style."

In closing Professor Sargent depicted by means of blackboard illustration the wonderful consistency of nature in the creation of the vegetable and animal species, working up to the swan as a creation of consistent beauty and the frog as consistent ugliness.

No description of the evening would be complete without a mention of the excellent musical program afforded. Miss Annabelle Gibson Phinney of Hyde Park who impressed one as having a sweet voice of exceptional strength and clearness pleased all with several soprano solos among them "Roses, roses everywhere," "I love you," and "The gates of Honeytown."

George E. McGowan of the Temple quartet was also the recipient of continued applause. Among his contributions were: "The storm king," "Armorer's Song," "The wandering knight," "Go to sea my lads and "King of the banjo team."

No small measure of the success attained in the musical portion of the evening was due to the accompaniment of William E. Weston whose ap-

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Well at any rate the Sultan of Sulu has had a clever press agent preparing us for his visit.

A Chicago dressmaker says that dresses should be made to fit, not alone the body but the dispostion. Yes and the pocket book too.

The government is going to put 4,000,000,000 fish into the Great lakes. That ought to furnish good material for next years fish stories.

That New York porter who found a pocket-book containing $2,500 and got a $5 bill as a reward, probably now seriously doubts that honesty is the best policy.

DRIFT OF OPINION

Columns have been printed by the American press recently rgarding the late Florence Nightingale, "Angel of the Crimea," and every line of it was deserved. Immediately there has been a revival of stories of heroic deeds by other women. And that too, is quite the proper thing. It is well not to overlook the fact that heroism is not confined to army nurses, to lighthouse keepers or to fever angels. Not all women can engage in these occupations. Most of them must be homekeepers. Are we to ignore the heroism with which they perform their every day tasks? What about women who bravely send their husbands. brothers and sons into battle to be shot? All praise to the noble nurses who go to the fever spots and heroically stay to the end. But what of the millions of wives, mothers, sweethearts and sisters, who would die rather than be dragged from the bedside of their dying dear ones? Who has ever counted the hours that he mothers of the world have spent in lonely vigil, when despair pressed upon them and closed around them like the midnight gloom. These are so common that we take no note of them. We are so used to heroism in women that we think nothing about it until it presents itself spectacularly. —Haverhill Gazette.

The open season for hunting has begun in Maine. It might also be called the open season for the hunters, and for other people who are out in the woods. The killings may not be as numerous as in some seasons, but that some are doomed to die in the cause of sport is almost certain. What surprises some of us is that there are not more killings. In a small space of woodland there are likely to be in the hunting season a number of hunters. These men are sending around in all directions bullets which from a modern high-priced rifle carry for distances as great as that from one township well into another. Roaming the woods are thousands of men, not one of whom knows from what direction a bullet may come at any moment and terminate his life. There is no protection—no way of signaling or of getting signals to warn or be warned. Something moves a distance away, a bullet speeds after it, and some unlucky human walking unwittingly into the path of the bullet a mile away drops with lead in him. It is a wonder the people in Maine who live in or near woodland don't dig cyclone pits and stay in them during the hunting season.—Brockton Enterprise.

The comptroller of the currency decides that the practice of insuring the lives of national bank presidents and paying the premiums out of the funds of the banks is illegal, and must be stopped. We believe that the inhibiton applies even where the insurance is taken out for the bank's benefit. This suggests whether the practice of some banks in paying the premiums on the bonds of their officials is or is not legal. Of course, the banks could evade the decision of illegality in either case by raising the salaries by the amount of the premiums.—New Bedford Standard.

A Kansas Republican wants to know how he should vote when his party platform is "full of Populism" and the candidates "are demagogues." There are men on the Republican ticket in Kansas who are not demagogues and who do not believe in the Pop planks of the platform. Vote for them, and do whatever else your conscience dictates.—Kansas City Journal.

TOO PRIMITIVE.

August Belmont praised the seaside towns of New England.

"But some of them," he added, are a little too primitive. I remember a story about the primitive town of Rockford.

Rockford had a rough bathing establishment with a shower bath. You stood in your bathhouse and pulled a rope and a deluge of cool water descends from the ceiling.

"Well, a lady visitor stood one day in her bathhouse, ready for the shower. She pulled the rope and braced herself, but no shower followed. She gave the rope another tug, when the gruff voice of the sailor proprietor of the establishment sounded from aloft.

" 'Stand a p'int more to the nor-east, mum.' it said, "If ye want to get the full force.'

"And the horrified lady, looking up, saw the old sailor frowning impatiently through a hole in the ceiling and tilting a barrel of sea water for the shower."—Record.

GOOD AND BAD BY TURNS.

Rev. Dr. C. R. Hudson told the following story, which made a big hit:

He said two men, who had not met for many years, but who had been warm friends, were talking about how things had been with them. Each said he had had the usual ups and downs, some good and some bad.

"Well I was married," said one.

"That's good," said the other.

"Well, it wasn't so good. The woman was awfully mean."

"That's bad," commented his friend.

"Well, it wasn't so bad, either. She had a lot of money."

"That was good," again remarked his friend.

"Well, it wasn't so good, either. I invested the money in sheep and they all laid down and died."

"That was bad."

" Well, it wasn't so bad, either. I pulled off the wool and sold it for more than the sheep were worth."

"That was good."

"Well, it wasn't so good either. I put the money in a house and one night the house burned down."

"That's bad."

"Well, it wasn't so bad, either. The woman burned to death in it."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

HATED PARSIMONY.

A leading official in the Young Mens Christian Association of New York said the other day of the late Morris K. Jesup:

"Mr. Jesup's charity was even broader than his wealth. Naturally, then, he hated parsimony. I never saw him indignant, save when some instance of parsimony would crop up.

"Once he told us here of a particuly mean trick that had been played upon him by a multimillionaire. He said the man had inherited his meanness. His uncle, a Wesport farmer, had been famed as a miser all over Connecticut.

"The farmer's cousin died in the sixties and the old man attended the readig of the will, for he had hopes.

"And, sure enough, in one of the later codicils a certain eight ecre field was left him.

"As the bequest was read out the farmer sat up in his chair, rubbed his hands and smiled delightfully about the room.

"But the lawyer, reading on, made known that the very good gray mare then grazing in said field was bequeathed to a nephew.

"At this news the farmer clacked his lips in rage and piped excitedly: "Then she's eatin' my grass.' "

WALKER PLANK IN PLATFORM

Conservative Republicans In Bay State Capitulate

CANNONISM GOES OVERBOARD

Ames May Have Something to Say Because Platform Specifically Endorses Work of United States Senators—Plank Praising State Civil Service Commission Cut Out—No Contest Over the State Ticket

Boston, Oct. 6.—Chairman Hatfield opened the Republican convention in Tremont Temple today. He introduced Robert Luce as the permanent chairman of the convention. Luce was chairman of the state commission, which reported upon the reasons for the high cost of living.

Governor Draper is to be nominated by ex-Governor Guild, who has just returned from Mexico. Lieutenant Governor Frothingham is to be nominated by Representative Washburn of Worcester. Secretary Olin is to be nominated by Congressman McCall, State Auditor Turner is to be nominated by General Champlin of Cambridge.

There is one new place to be filled on the state ticket this year. Attorney General Maloney retires and his place is to be filled by District Attorney Swift of Fall River. There is no contest.

Overboard went Cannonism and the lieutenants of reactionary politics at the Republican "night before" at the American house, after a hard day's struggle which was settled only after Speaker Walker had declared that if the tariff plank went Cannon's way he proposed to offer a real tariff plank on the floor of the convention.

The conservatives in the committee on resolutions were led by Congressman Washburn of Worcester, chairman of the committee, and he capitulated when the committee had been in session for the greater part of ten hours.

There is promise of a lively convention, however, for Congressman Ames, the rival of Senator Lodge, intimates that he may have something to say before the delegates today. The platform indorses Senators Lodge and Crane.

All was a blaze of glory at the American house, with Senators Lodge and Crane and Butler Ames in the same receiving line and a band in the corner screaming martial music. But the leaders frankly confessed that there were signs of trouble from some conservatives, who might offer objections to the progressive platform, and possibly from Norman White, who does not like the Draper administration from the point of view of New Haven legislation. White told Hatfield that Draper ought not to be a candidate for re-election.

White did not appear at the "night before" and there were little dark hints thrown out that he might be in evidence at the convention. The "night before," however, was seven-eighths harmony.

It is the first time that a platform has ever specifically gone into the work of the United States senators and the remark was passed that it was a bit unusual. Before Ames left the hotel he admitted to one of his friends that he would have something to say in the convention, but he kept his secret well guarded.

One of the surprises in the committee on resolutions was the presence in the first draft of the platform of a section which praised the work of the state civil service commission, patted the members of it on the back and said that everything they had done to the city hall appointments was exactly right. This part of the plattform fell under the displeasure of former Attorney General Parker and Charles H. Innes, who told the committee that it did not look good to them. After a long discussion the civil service plank was cut out of the platform.

FEARED END OF WORLD

Inhabitants of Cape Cod Village Badly Scared by Meteorite

Pleasant Lake, Mass., Oct. 6.—Inhabitants of this village who happened to be out of doors at about 8:15 last night thought the end of the world was at hand when a great "falling star," or meteorite, rushed out of space from the southwest with a roar and, after being in sight for nearly half a minute, disapeared near the horizon in the northwest.

So bright was the meteorite that one's shadow could be seen very plainly and for a moment it was like daylight. It was the most brilliant ever seen on Cape Cod.

Resembling in a degree a monster sky rocket, it shot off pieces of all colors of the rainbow, and particularly red and blue. It hissed through space with a deafening roar similar to thunder.

DEDICATION OF CATHEDRAL

Great Structure In New York Can Accommodate 18,696 Persons

New York, Oct. 6.—St. Patrick's cathedral was consecrated amid scenes that have never been equalled at any religious event held in this city. The services lasted six hours. When the consecration rite was completed a solemn pontifical mass was sung. The cathedral can accommodate 18,696 people.

Included in the procession were three cardinals, James Gibbons of Baltimore, Vincent Vannutelli of Rome and Michael Logue of Armagh, Ireland.

Although St. Patrick's was opened in 1879 by Cardinal McCloskey and divine service has been held there uninterruptedly since, the structure could never be finally consecrated until it was entirely out of debt.

KEEP PLAGUE OUT OF UNITED STATES

Elaborate Plans Already Made With Utmost Secrecy

Washington, Oct. 6.—Every possible precaution is being taken by the treasury department to prevent the transmission of cholera from infected countries in Europe to the United States.

Officials of the public health and marine hospital service have for some time realized the danger of the dread disease coming into this country, and plans were made both here and abroad to reduce the possibility of its introduction here to a minimum. These plans were made with the utmost secrecy because of the fear that the public might become unduly alarmed.

That the efforts of the government officials to head off the disease were made in the nick of time was learned at the treasury department. Last Monday a sick man was taken from the steerage of the steamship Germania and put under observation at the New York quarantine station. Health Officer Doty sent several cultures to the government laboratory here and an examination of these, completed last night, showed that the man was a victim of cholera.

GIVES UP HER SUIT

Evelyn Thaw Without Funds to Prosecute New York Hotel Man

New York, Oct. 6.—James B. Regan of the Hotel Knickerbocker got an order from Supreme Court Justice Guy directing Evelyn N. Thaw to show cause why a suit she brought against Regan for $50,000 damages in 1908 should not be discontinued for lack of prosecution.

Mrs. Thaw sued because Regan had her ejected from the Knickerbocker grill room when she went there with E. R. Thomas.

Mr. O'Reilly, counsel for Mrs. Thaw, said that the motion would not be opposed because the plaintiff is unable to get any witnesses now and is without funds to carry on the case.

MURDERS HIS BRIDE

Providence Man Also Shoots Supposed Rival and Kills Himself

Providence, Oct. 6.—After firing two shots at John H. Schnellbacher, whom he had accused of paying attention to his wife, and badly injuring him, Robert H. Robinson, aged 22, murdered his bride of a few months and then took his own life. Schnellbacher is 22 years of age.

All three of the young people concerned are well and favorably known in the Elmwood section of the city and moved in the best circles. The Robinsons were apparently a most happy couple and their friends had no suspicion of the husband's feeling in the matter.

A Tip on Oats.

According to the Saturday Evening Post, a man who had a country place on Long Island came to New York one morning to do a little speculating. He was a great believer in tips.

On the ferryboat it came to him that he had had somehow a tip on oats. He couldn't remember just what it was, but somebody had told him to buy oats. So when he reached his broker's office he looked into oats a bit and bought some. Oats were active. He pyramided skillfully and by the close of the market was $7,000 ahead.

Of course such luck as that had to be celebrated, and it was. As the celebration went on the oats buyer told the story several times and each time took on importance in the recital as an oats buyer until he finally became the oats king. He reached his railroad station somewhat late and found the stableman waiting for him with a trap.

"By the way," said the stableman, "did you remember to order that five bushels of oats I asked you to buy this morning?"

A woman should not have a bad back,
And she wouldn't if the kidneys were well.

Here is a Quincy woman who endorses this claim:

Mrs. Deborah Prouty, 39 Quincy avenue, Quincy, Mass., says: "I am in a position to speak in the highest terms of Doan's Kidney Pills. My back ached nearly all the time and caused me considerable trouble. Any sudden movement or an attempt to stoop, sent sharp pains through my loins. My health was much run down and I had but little strength or energy. I was very much alarmed about my condition. Finally Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me and I had known so many people who had used them with benefit, that I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. The use of three boxes convinced me that they were the best kidney remedy to be had. I am now in good health."

THE EDUCATIONAL FIELD

High School
Woodward Institute
Public Schools
Parochial School

The School Department of the Daily Ledger is published every Thursday. It is not now confined to High school notes but includes the High, the Woodward, the public schools, the Parochial school, and other schools. The Daily Ledger invites the cooperation of teachers and pupils and also graduates and others to make this department interesting.

HIGH SCHOOL.

One thing of great importance to the school is spirit. At the meeting Monday morning Mr. Howlett spoke of this at length. There has been a noticeable lack of this at the games this fall when a man made an exceptional play an involuntary cheer would burst forth but there has been no organized cheering. Oftentimes we hear people say, "What's the use?" Ask a college man that, or ask anyone who has attended a school where they make a practice of cheering their teams in defeat as well as in victory, and what will the answer be. "Why, man," he'll say, "its half the game." Take a concrete example of this. Two well known colleges were engaged in their annual baseball game. Both colleges were noted for their spirit and their cheering and singing at all kinds of contests. The home team was getting discouraged, for at the end of the sixth inning the score was 5 to 0 against them. The student body on the bleachers had been cheering without very great enthusiasm but the cheer leader called for everybody to stand up. Five hundred men answered that call, and there followed such a series of cheers and songs as had not been heard on the old field for years. The home team came to bat with fresh courage, and in that seventh inning made seven runs and won the game. The cheering did it, there can be no doubt. Hundreds of similar instances might be given.

The game on Friday will probably be one of the hardest in the season and it is the last home game for some time. Why not practice up the songs, get boys and girls both to singing. Choose a cheer leader and keep a volley of cheers going out to the players. Cheer them when they play well cheer them when they are losing or when they are hurt. To be sure, there will be husky voices the next morning, and perhaps a sore throat or two, but it will be worth the price. Fight it out with the team and have a more substantial share in the victory, if it is to be a victory, or if the men are defeated show them that you still believe in them and will stand by them to the end. School spirit wins. Try it Friday afternoon.

As a general thing the Freshman class is not organized at all because the pupils do not know each other very well, and it is not often the case that there is anyone with sufficient executive ability to conduct the meetings and run the class properly. Probably the class of 1914 will be organized with one of the teachers as temporary chairman. This will give the class a chance to conduct whatever business there should be in an official manner.

Mr. Howlett has suggested that the class of '14 continue the work of beautifying the school grounds. At the corner of Butler road and Hancock street there is a large stone post and a bed of shrubbery. On the opposite side a similar post and bed would add greatly to the appearance of the grounds. We could wish also for something to take away the gaunt appearance of the front of the school. Ivy, woodbine or some other hardy climber might be made to grow up the front of the building and in a few years that rigid and barren look would be relieved. The sense of sight is perhaps the most inclusive and far reaching that we have. The education of the eye is much talked about nowadays, and people are beginning to realize that the things we see every day make a much greater impression on our minds than can tell. The ancient Greeks knew this and endeavored to make everything that met their eye as near their ideal of beauty as possible. We cannot do this of course but small beginnings can be made now and the future will take care of itself.

"On the other hand," as Mr. Howlett said, "the training in giving cannot be started too early." The Freshmen have larger numbers than other classes and most of them will have four years to enjoy the improvements which could be made. By contributing toward these things which will benefit the school, the scholars will think more of the school for they will own a part of it, and a very substantial part too.

H. Prout will probably be in the lineup against Abington. He is a valuable man both on the line and in the backfield and will be a asset to the team.

A large delegation of High school graduates are now pupils at Bridgewater Normal school as will be seen by the list below:—Anna Larkin, '10; Clara Pierce '10; Marion Hicks, '10; Mildred Rheinnatter, '10; Ruth Danielson, '10; Helena McCormick, '09, Doris B. Smith, '09; Ada Williams '09; Ellen Shvne, '09; Catherine Driscoll, '09; Elizabeth Powers, '08

There will be a meeting of the Sophomore class Friday for the purpose of electing officers.

Holbrook put up a good game Tuesday for so light and inexperienced, a team. One cannot help respecting them for wanting to play at all with so little chance of victory.

The High school pupils in Boston will be required to take a course in athletics hereafter. Everyone who passes the course will have two points toward his or her diploma. Beside the 10-minute setting-up drill each morning there will be two 40-minute periods each week. The boys will have to pass certain requirements in track and field work in addition to the military test. The girls will have to learn a certain number of games and dances and pass examinations in them. As well as in the gymnasium drill. All this will be supervised by physicians, and nothing will be done that will weaken the nervous system or debilitate the physical strength of the pupil. Each scholar will have to pass a physical examination before he is allowed to take any part of this athletic course. It is believed that the health of the students will be much better as a result of this new course.

Members of the classes of '12 and '13 at Hyde Park have equipped the school with a wireless station. The boys made all the apparatus and set it up with outside help. Every day at noon they received a message from the Charlestown Navy yard giving the correct time.

Houghs Neck people are making plans for a celebration in connection with the dedication of the new Atherton Hough school building.

The Coddington school lot will be greatly improved by the removal of the house now occupied by Prof. Wrigley, and the erection of the new County Court House nearer the centre of the Faxon lot.

Orders were introduced in the City Council this week for new school houses at Wollaston and Montclair, the first a $75,000 appropriation for a 12-room building with assembly hall, and the other for an eight-room building, both to be constructed of brick.

The Quincy Schoolmasters club will have an all-day outing on Saturday, at Germantown. Mr. Edward's cottage will be used as a headquarters.

The Gridley Bryant scholars had a very successful ice cream sale last Friday afternoon. The proceeds will go toward the athletic fund of the school.

A school pin of special design has been selected for the Gridley Bryant scholars and graduates. In the centre of the pin there is a medallion stamped with the profile of Gridley Bryant.

An effort is being made to recognize improvement and industry on the part of the pupils. In the main corridor of the John Hancock and Lincoln schools a large board is fastened to the wall covered with specimens of writing and drawing papers done by scholars of all grades. If an exercise is performed especially well by a pupil, or if shows a marked improvement, it is displayed on this board. It acts as a stimulus to the pupil and is a good means of giving him honorable mention.

The loose leaf ledger system has been introduced in the banking department of the Willard school. The work is greatly simplified in this way. Each teacher is given a loose leaf Monday mornings. When all the scholars have deposited, and the accounts straightened out, the leaves are returned to the principal who puts them in the binding book. In this way the transfers of accounts is eliminated and the work for the principal is made much easier.

* * *

Mr. Upton, principal of the Willard school, is taking charge of the commercial department at the evening high school until a regular instructor is appointed.

There will be special exercises in all the graded schools Tuesday afternoon in honor of Columbus day. The teachers in all the rooms will tell the scholars why the day is set aside as a holiday, probably some of the scholars will read compositions on Columbus. Where there are assembly halls the principals will talk to the scholars as a whole.

* * *

There are signs of progress in the construction of the Atherton Hough school. The windows are now in and the blackboards are all ready to be put in place.

* * *

Mr. Gilson has measured assembly hall at the Coddington with reference to arrangements for the new stereopticon. A twelve foot opaque has been ordered.

A number of new pupils from Houghs Neck have entered the Coddington school. They were placed mostly in the four upper grades.

Soccer football is going to be introduced into all the grammar schools of the city. The boys in the seventh and eighth grades will have interclass matches during the fall. Probably next year a school league will be formed. The open play and the good healthy exercise to be obtained from the game have recommended it as the best kind of a sport for boys of grammar school age.

A new heating apparatus has been installed in the John Hancock school this fall.

The physical side of the pupils is given better attention in all the schools than ever before. Dr. Smith has mapped out a course of training be means of games and setting up exercises. At the Willard school in addition to this work games suggested in a volume written by Miss Jessie L. Barbour is used. This is designed especially for use in connection with school and playground work and the Harvard summer playground association used it for their manual.

Bank accounts were opened in all the schools on Monday. The parents are urged to give their children an opportunity to make use of this school system because of the valuable training it wil give them a thrift.

ACCIDENT TO CHIEF WILLIAMS

His Wagon in Collision in Responding to Alarm

Chief Williams had a narrow escape from a serious accident this morning in responding to an alarm from Box 117. The alarm which sounded at 11:23 was for a grass fire on Great Hill, Houghs Neck.

Chief Williams in responding to the fire, came into City Square driving at a rapid rate. Just ahead of him was the relief hose wagon and there was also a large truck in City Square. The relief hose turned into Temple street and Chief Williams turned to the left to pass it. There was not room enough, however, and the horse went through the stone posts of the walk leading to the First church. The horse cleared himself and went through, but the chief's wagon went up against the stone posts with a bump.

Fortunately the Chief was not thrown. Jumping from his own wagon, and without stopping to see what damage had been done, he jumped into the automobile of Dr. Hardwick and was quickly speeding toward Houghs Neck. The recall sounded in a few minutes.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

POLITICAL NOTES.

This is certainly a convention week, and today there is a double header in Boston.

The Republicans of the 14th Congressional district have nominated Judge Robert O. Harris of East Bridgewater as their candidate. Eugene N. Foss is now the congressman in that district.

Frederick L. Fisher of Norwood and Henry A. Whitney of Bellingham are the candidates of Norfolk county Republicans for associate county commissioners.

J. H. Cunningham represents Quincy on the newly elected county committee of the Republicans.

Quincy was well represented last evening at the "night-before" convention of both Republicans and Democrats at the American House and the Quincy House, Boston.

At the Republican State convention today Senator Eugene C. Hultman was one of the vice presidents and William M. Chase represented the Tenth district on the committee on permanent organization. Quincy was not represented or the committee on ballots or committee on credentials.

Mayor William T. Shea of this city was a member of the committee on resolutions at the Democratic State convention today, being the only Quincy man to serve on permanent committees.

KING DRIVEN FROM THRONE

Theophile Braga Heads the New Republic of Portugal

MANUEL ON BRITISH WARSHIP

Eight Thousand Armed Peasants Sweep Into Lisbon and Join Rebels In Battles In Streets, Pushing Loyal Troops Before Them In Several Skirmishes—Crews of Portuguese Warships Cheer Insurgents as Republican Flags Are Run Up—Result of Conditions Which Have Grown From Bad to Worse

Lisbon, Oct. 6.—Portugal has been proclaimed a republic. Theophile Braga, a noted Republican leader, is the new president. The Portuguese "Marseilles" is the new national anthem, and the emblem of monarchy on the palace has been replaced by the flag of red and green, the colors of the Republican party, which is in complete control of the capital.

There was fierce fighting in the streets of Lisbon and hundreds were killed before the rebels captured the city. Disorders at Oporto have been repressed by the troops, many regiments of which are said to be still loyal to the king.

A report was circulated here late last night that the loyal troops were moving on Lisbon and that the revolutionists had been checked and were retiring in the direction of Monsanto.

It is impossible to estimate the number of killed and wounded in the fighting, but it will reach far into the hundreds. The city has been considerably damaged by the bombardment of the insurgent warships. The buildings occupied by the ministers around the Praca do Commercio and the Necessidades palace were made the particular targets of the shells from the warships, and show the effects by broken walls and turrets. The tower of the church attached to the palace was demolished.

By Way of Spain

Madrid, Oct. 6.—The Portuguese monarchy has fallen. Lisbon, the capital, fell into the hands of the revolutionary mob at 3 p. m. Tuesday. King Manuel fled from the palace while a raging mob was storming it, and shells from rebel Portuguese warcraft in the harbor were raining upon it.

An official dispatch from Portugal to Premier Canalejas says that King Manuel has safely embarked on a British warship, which immediately raised anchor and started for London.

A wireless dispatch to The Correspondencia says: "The Portuguese revolution has completely triumphed. King Manuel and Dowager Queen Amelie have both embarked."

Immediately preceding this report came one saying that King Manuel had announced his determination to abdicate the throne.

The Portuguese provinces are sending armed hordes into Lisbon. A dispatch from the Portuguese frontier says that 8000 armed peasants swept into the capital yesterday afternoon and joined the rebels in the battles in the streets.

The Portuguese revolutionists are consistently gaining ground. They have gained skirmish after skirmish, pushing the few remaining loyal troops before them and storming the barricades erected by the monarchial forces.

This information arrived in this city last evening from an authentic source across the Portuguese frontier. It stated that fighting went on continuously all day Tuesday and that many were killed and wounded. The lack of medical attention due to the furious fighting and the general tumult in the streets would add to the death toll, stated this report. Continuing, it gave the following information about the progress of the rebellion:

The actual fighting began shortly after two regiments, one infantry and one artillery, had mutinied. Mobs were rioting through the streets and the commandant of the barracks had been directed to proceed against the rioters with soldiers.

The disloyal troops left the barracks and another regiment of artillery which was disaffected by the revolution proceeded against the mobs. A sanguinary struggle ensued.

In the meantime revolutionists had taken possession of many of the ships on the harbor front. Among these ships were several vessels of the Portuguese navy. The crews of the warships eagerly welcomed the insurgents and huzzaed as the Republican flags were run up.

REVOLT LONG THREATENED

Causes No Surprise Among Experts on European Politics

It was on Feb. 1, 1908, that King Manuel's father and his brother, the crown prince, were assassinated in the streets of Lisbon and the second son, Manuel II, became the king. It was just about this time that the controversy between the liberals, radicals and conservatives became so bitter that all efforts of the parliament to work out the solution of the kingdom and its troubles were prevented and all legislation was checked. The monarchy was in danger.

The kingdom was so heavily in debt that the taxes were all disproportionate to the resources of the state and the people became more and more dissatisfied with the reigning government. The population is more than 5,000,000, including the colonies. These latter have proved to be of but little value to the country in the way of revenue.

Manuel II was born on Nov. 15, 1889, the son of King Carlos and Queen Amelie of Orleans. He is unmarried. The reigning family belong to the house of Braganza, whose founder, it is alleged, was an illegitimate son of King John I of the old line of Portuguese kings.

Since Manuel became sovereign half a dozen cabinets have been formed and have resigned. In addition to serious dissensions over political matters, Portugal has been on the verge of a rupture with the Vatican, a fact that has led to serious conflicts between the clericals and the anticlericals. The Vatican has taken occasion to deny the seriousness of the trouble between it and the Portuguese government, and also asserts that no clerical plot existed for the overthrow of the monarchy.

King Manuel has been face to face with a revolution that has threatened his throne for more than a year, and, in fact, at no time since his succession has he had more than a small majority of his country with him.

There was a revival of the plot against him when he was in England at the funeral of King Edward, and experts on European politics are not surprised at the latest outbreak.

The revolt against the clerical party had its inception when the papal secretary of state ordered the suppression of a Catholic review published under the name of St. Anthony's Voice and conducted by the Franciscan order.

After the accession of King Manuel the constitutional government was restored, and this was followed by the outbreak over the action of the papal secretary of state.

The assassination of King Carlos and his first-born, the crown prince, was the result of a crisis which the king deliberately precipitated.

King Carlos' family went back to 1093 when Henry, brother of Hugh of Burgundy, ascended the throne of Portugal. The Braganza, or junior, line did not appear till four centuries later and did not succeed till 1640, when John IV (whose daughter married Charles II of England), became king in place of Philip III (1621-40), who represented the main line.

Franco formed his cabinet on May 28, 1906, and just a year later assumed dictatorial powers with which he thought he could make a new heaven and a new earth of his country. The result was the tragedy of 1908.

SPAIN IS ALARMED

Government Taking Strict Measures to Prevent an Uprising

Madrid, Oct. 6.—The situation in Portugal has alarmed the Spanish government, which will adopt the strictest precautionary measures to preserve order in Spain. These plans were formulated at the time of the assassination of King Carlos.

The government has dispatched automobiles to Portugal and has also sent warships in an effort to learn the exact situation in that country.

The greatest uneasiness prevails in Madrid, and the fear is expressed in political circles that disorders may occur here.

The government has taken the most elaborate precautions to insure order, and it is understood that the garrison at Seville is ready to depart for the Portuguese frontier. Cruiser Carlos V sailed for Lisbon last night.

Anxiety at the Vatican

Rome, Oct. 6.—The events in Portugal are being followed here with the keenest interest, specially at the Vatican, where the news of the revolution has distressed more than it has surprised. The pope particularly has been moved by the tragic events.

Interest here is intense, epecially as the queen dowager, Maria Pia of Portugal, is an aunt of the Italian king.

FACING A LONG SESSION

Vermont Legislature Has a Large Amount of Business to Consider

Montpelier, Vt., Oct. 6.—The twenty-first biennial session of the Vermont general assembly, at which a United States senator will be chosen, was opened here.

Senator Page of Hyde Park is without opposition in the Republican party for re-election, which probably will be accorded him at the specified time, Oct. 18.

It is probable that the legislators of 1910 will de detained by the large amount of business beyond the usual date of adjournment, about Thanksgiving. The session may continue through January.

CONTEST OVER FIRST PLACE

Mayor of Boston Re-enters Fight and Declares For Foss For Governor—If Vahey Fails of Nomination on First Ballot Hamlin Expects Vote Will Be Swung Over to Him—Fight Centres In Boston

Boston, Oct. 6.—All of the candidates for the nomination for governor are confident of victory in the Democratic convention in Faneuil hall today. It is the biggest gathering of delegates in the history of the party.

Early this morning this is what the candidates had to say:

"I have absolute confidence that I will be nominated today."—Charles S. Hamlin.

"I am more confident of election than at any time since the opening of the campaign."—James H. Vahey.

"After the reception accorded to me last night I have no doubt whatsoever of the result in the convention today."—Eugene N. Foss.

The re-entrance of Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston into the fight is a lively topic of discussion among the delegates.

The big feature of the platform to be adopted today will be a milk plank in favor of the producers, and an anti-New Haven plank. There will also be a resolution favoring the eight-hour bill.

The big fight centres over first place. The second place on the ticket will not be settled until at the convention.

There is talk of a combination between the Foss forces with Daniel Doherty of Westfield, candidate for lieutenant governor from the western part of the state. David I. Walsh of Fitchburg has the solid backing of the Worcester delegation. This delegation is willing to trade votes with either of the candidates in promise of support for Walsh.

An attempt was made by the candidates for second place from th western part of the state to get together and agree upon a candidate. It failed, however.

There is no discussion on the candidates for attorney general, state treasurer and state auditor.

Chairman MacLeod of the state committee is so confident of Foss being nominated that he offered to bet money on the result.

The story was put in circulation that the eleventh hour change of front of Mayor Fitzgerald toward Congressman Foss was the result of a promise of a definite legislative program on the part of the latter if he was elected governor. It was also stated that Fitzgerald would have the naming of the police commissioner, the chairman of the civil service commission and the chairman of the railroad commission.

There was also some talk that Foss had promised to favor legislation which would take away from the civil service commission the power of confirmation of the appointments of the mayor.

The Hamlin supporters feel that if it becomes evident on the first ballot that James H. Vahey cannot be elected that he will deliver his strength to their candidate. The fight is centering around the delegates in Boston and Chairman Maynard figures that he will be able to deliver 200 out of the 236 delegates to Foss. The Hamlin managers claim at least 125 delegates in Boston.

The headquarters of the candidates were packed during last evening, and it was impossible to tell which of the three was getting the best reception. No man was more active in the corralling of delegates than Mac Leod. No pretence was made of impartiality as far as the candidates for governor were concerned on the part of the officers of the state organization.

GERMANY APOLOGIZES

Chancellor Says Assault on Journalists Is Being Investigated

Berlin, Oct. 6.—Imperial Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg has sent a letter to the Foreign Office Correspondents' association expressing regrets at the Moabit incident, in which several correspondents were assaulted by the police while watching the riots in the district, and informing the associatian that the matter is under investigation by the minister of the interior. The chancellor invites suggestions for special measures to prevent a recurrence of such incidents.

Police President Von Jagow has also written to the association reasserting his position that the laws made no provision to protect reporters in mobs. He intimates that badges for newspaper workers may be introduced in order to save reporters from mistakes by the police.

$46,000 WILL ON WRAPPING PAPER

Strange Document Allowed by Judge of Probate Court

Dedham, Mass., Oct. 6.—Scrawled on a piece of common brown wrapping paper such as a grocery store uses in putting up a pound of butter, the will of Joseph Dwyer of Weymouth, disposing of property valued at $46,430 in real and personal estate, was allowed by Judge Flint in the Norfolk probate court. Dwyer, who died Sept. 10, willed the $46,430 to his wife, Florence E. Dwyer. The wrapping paper will was dated Feb. 24, 1900. The wording of the strange document follows:

"Knowing the uncertainties of this life, and being desirous of settling my worldly affairs and directing how the estate with which it has pleased God to bless me shall be disposed of after my demise while I have the strength and capacity to do so.

"To my beloved wife, Florence E. Dwyer, all of my estate, real and personal or mixed, of which I shall be seized, possessed, or to which I shall be entitled to at the time of my death, to have and to hold, to her and her heirs forever."

Katherine Elkins Returns Home "to Be An American"

New York, Oct. 6.—"I am coming home to be an American." This statement, made by Miss Katherine Elkins after her arrival from Europe on the Wilhelm der Grosse, indicates that the daughter of the West Virginia senator has definitely decided to turn her back upon the persistent Duke of the Abruzzi and his royal rank.

Had Miss Elkins decided to accept her royal suitor she would have been forced to accept Italian citizenship. "I am coming home to be an American," can be taken therefore for more than its face value.

LUCE SOUNDS THE KEYNOTE

His Address as Chairman of the Republican Convention

PROBLEMS OF THE PRESENT

Claim That They Can Best Be Solved by Republican Party—Democratic Success Will Not Lower Cost of Living—Business Men Want Tariff Taken Out of Politics—Complete Publicity a Remedy For Evils of Corporations and Combinations—What the Party Has Done

Robert Luce of Somerville, permanent chairman of the Republican state convention, made the following address:

ROBERT LUCE

The peculiarity of this campaign is that there are no vital issues. The parties are squarely aligned on nothing in the way of principle. The old order changeth. We dispute today about methods, not purpose. The only question appears to be—Which party will better solve the problems of the time?

The Cost of Living.

First of these is the cost of living. We are told that men will vote against Republican nominees because prices are high. Among the freaks of human nature are men who always hold the party chancing to be in power, responsible for all the calamities of life. They vote for a change because of the visitations of fire and pestilence, because of earthquakes or measles. Such men ignore the fact that prices have risen more in Canada than in the United States, that they have risen in England and France, China and Japan, that the chief cause is universal and its results are worldwide. They have not heard that in the last thirty years as much gold has been produced as in the preceding four centuries, that the total stock of it has increased by one-half since Mr. Bryan would have doubled our trouble by returning silver to its old place.

On top of this, in the United States the pressure of population has at last begun to assert itself. There are no more frontiers, no lands to be had for the asking. The great ranges of the Southwest are becoming enclosed farms. The startling decrease in the exportation of food stuffs indicates we are nearing the point where we shall not feed ourselves without help from abroad.

In 1870 nearly half our population was engaged in agricultural pursuits; in 1900, little more than one-third; and every year sees the population of the city grow faster than that of the country. In Massachusetts only one man in twenty is a farmer. The lure of the city has thrown society out of balance, and we are paying the bill.

Add to this the enormous wastes of modern civilization, its extravagances, its inordinate luxury, as well as the demands made by the legitimate rise in the standard of living, and you have the situation adequately explained without looking to political parties for the blame.

Should the people put the Democratic party in power because the cost of living is high, they will jump out of the frying pan into the fire. Democratic success will not lower prices by a single cent save as they fall because of resulting financial panic. Idle mills and ruined merchants. We get bargains at bankrupt sales.

We are face to face with the inexorable laws of Nature herself. The ballot cannot refertilize the soil nor check the birthrate. So far as the weakness of humanity is responsible, we may meet the crisis only by returning to those habits of thrift and economy that were the birthright we have thrown away, and by developing new powers of industry, sobriety, temperance. The salvation of society lies in society itself, in its morals, its manners, its customs, and not in makers of statutes.

The Tariff.

In the matter of the tariff, how can we have a satisfactory verdict at the polls on a question that splits each party, and yet on which a majority of the two parties agree? Both parties now accept the protective principle. They quarrel only over its application.

The practice of wholesale tariff revision at intervals of several years is an injury to business and fails to produce the best results. For the evils of this practice the parties have been equally at fault. It has been the practice of all parties for fourscore years—a practice crude, unscientific, fraught with mischief. Now we Republicans want to replace it with a system of determining duties on the basis of the facts as to differences in costs of production. We want these facts ascertained by a permanent, independent commission of experts. We want to handle one schedule at a time that we may put an end to logrolling, the system under which men vote for a thing they know to be wrong in order to get votes for a thing they know to be right, the system that is the greatest curse of all legislative bodies.

On the other hand, the Democrats want to continue the helter-skelter plan, to make possible a repetition of the shameless bargaining of their Wilson-Gorman bill. Their solid vote in the present Congress against the appropriation for the work of the Tariff Board attests their attitude. Mr. Hamlin of our own State in detailing his creed at Greenfield last month said: "I favor an immediate reopening of the tariff question." It is hard to imagine what would be a greater obstacle to the resumption of business prosperity than the reopening of the tariff question for a wholesale revision of the Gorman bill variety or any other variety.

Business men want the tariff taken out of politics. At last a majority of the voters of one great party has accepted this view. The other party fights to save the issue that keeps it from having to face a score of other issues of far more consequence to the welfare of the nation and the good of mankind.

Corporations and Monopolies.

For instance, one business problem of far more consequence than the tariff is that of the control of corporations and the combinations of capital commonly called trusts. Here the Democrats make no attempt whatever at positive constructive action. Indeed it would contradict their cardinal doctrine of personal liberty and non-interference. They denounce and they do nothing and they try to do nothing. Such real progress as we have made has been wholly Republican.

We are not opposed to mere magnitude of enterprise, as the Democrats appear to be. We seek only the square deal for capitalist and consumer. We shall keep up our work until we have brought justice to each. Perchance it may be that we shall not stop until we have established the proposition that every corporation furnishing to the public the necessities of life, whether in the way of production, transportation, communication food, clothing or anything else, shall be deemed a trustee for the public, and shall be required to give to the public that complete accounting of its transactions which is the chief safeguard for all beneficiaries. Complete publicity is the most nearly adequate remedy in sight for the evils of corporations and combinations. Public audit of their accounts is the next step. Given exact and full knowledge of all the facts, public opinion will do the rest.

Honest trustees have nothing to fear. We want to punish the guilty without at the same time bringing disaster to the innocent. Our railroads, our other public service corporations, to a degree not appreciated are owned directly or indirectly by the banks and insurance companies that have brought together the savings and inheritances of thousands on thousands of our men and women of moderate means. In railroad stocks and bonds alone they have nearly two billion dollars invested. Let no man who has a dollar in the savings bank or a policy on his life, encourage by his vote that hostility to capital and thrift which is breathed by the vague program of the radical Democrat, often a foe to success because his own life has been a failure, or that hostility to control which is so natural to those other Democrats, as wealthy as their associates are poor, who resent all interference with their use of the savings of the people to enrich themselves still further.

Conservation.

"Conservation" is a cry that has come but faintly to many ears in Massachusetts. It is a far cry to Boston from the Rocky Mountain forests and the coal fields of Alaska. Many of us have not yet realized how large has been our own part in it, that by wise appropriations we have saved our woodlands from destruction by insect pests, with prudent foresight have kept our natural reservoirs for the use of the people, and now by systematic expenditure of a hundred thousand dollars a year are protecting our shores against the ravages of the sea.

There are other problems of conservation of the most vital concern to Massachusetts. Not alone are shores and ores, trees and waterfalls to be conserved. Of far more consequence is it that we conserve health and limb and life itself. How many States lead Republican Massachusetts in the inspection of factories and schools, the regulation of labor of women and children, the prevention of accidents, the treatment of inebriety and tuberculosis? In these and kindred directions we have by the test so flouted and flayed the Democratic "let-alone" doctrine that no sane man longer urges it where bodily welfare it at stake.

Let the record of our work be the guarantee of what shall follow. As we were among the first to meet new conditions with the Employers' Liability acts, so we shall not be among the last with Workmen's Compensation acts. Already the problem is in hand, thanks to the last Legislature and the Governor. In spite of penny-wise-and-pound-foolish protests from men of Democratic instincts, we shall spend more and more money for asylums and hospitals and the prevention of disease. That a stitch in time saves nine is the maxim of the day in the world of medicine. We are bound to take that stitch. We are bound to use every weapon of government we can forge, in the war with disease, for the lessening of accident and the prolongation of life; and no Democratic complaint about the tax-rate shall persuade us that it is better the people should die than that they should be taxed in order to live.

Public Morals.

In the matter of public morals the great parties align themselves more definitely than on almost any other problem. The Democratic party, with its "Personal Liberty" motto, everywhere inclines to side against interference with the individual, no matter how much he injures his neighbors. It is natural, therefore, to find that cities under Democratic control are most likely to be "wide open," with little attempt at suppressing immorality in any of its forms. From a Democratic administration in this State we could not hope for a single measure looking to the further restraint of the liquor traffic or an orderly observance of the Sabbath.

The Republican party makes no pretence of having secured ideal conditions. When Solon was asked if the laws he had given to the Athenians were the best, he replied: "I have given them the best they were able to bear." We are hoping that the spread of education has raised the average of intelligence so that the community is now equal to demanding and getting more protection against the leeches that suck its life blood. The noteworthy step against the abuse of liquor taken by the last Legislature in what is known as the bar-and-bottle bill, attests Republican desire and willingness to lessen the traffic as fast as the mass of the people will approve and support. The party will further strengthen itself in the confidence of those who view the abuse of liquor as the greatest source of economic waste and individual misery if from time to time it takes further steps in suppression of the saloon. A vote for Republican candidates is a vote for more protection to women and children. We cannot by law compel weak humanity to do right. We can and will make it harder to do wrong.

Whatever the law, we believe in its enforcement. We deny the right of any man in office to waive the law at pleasure. We deplore the spectacle of a newly elected Democratic Governor in the State of Maine who on the very night of his election announced that one of his first steps would be to suspend the activities of a Commission charged with the enforcement of law. No matter whether we think such a law right or wrong, wise or foolish, it is the law, and the safety of the Republic demands that as long as law is law, it shall prevail. Otherwise we invite all the dangers feared by our fathers when they concluded the Bill of Rights in our Constitution with that glorious phrase—"to the end it may be a government of laws and not of men."

Election Reforms.

It must be recognized by every observer that there is widespread among the people of the United States a desire for a greater share of direct participation in their government. There are all shades of opinion as to the direction it should take and the distance it should go. We may differ among ourselves in these matters of detail. The important thing here to avow is that the great majority of the Republicans of the country believe the times are ripe for giving the voters more of opportunity to shape their political destinies first-hand.

The primary election was an idea born in a Republican State and copied by other Republican States—essentially a Republican idea. Its most active champions today are among the foremost Republicans in the land. Its application by a Republican Legislature made the nominating process in Boston convenient, decent, fair, and safe. After test for six years the voters of Boston in making their charter choice last winter, approved the system. That part of the reform which concerns itself with direct nomination has already to important degree been applied in Massachusetts by Republican measures. They have worked to such general satisfaction that there is no serious demand for any backward step. On the contrary the last Legislature wisely met demand for further progress by putting direct nomination within reach of every Senatorial and Representative district not already rid of conventions. It is a reform that has come to stay and to grow.

The Spoils System.

It is a platitude to say that the people desire an honest government economically administered. Of course they do. They have motive for no other. Evidently when failure comes, it is because public servants are unfit. Get good public servants and the problem is solved. It might never have been a serious problem in this country if one Democratic idol, Thomas Jefferson, had not fathered the spoils system, and another, Andrew Jackson, aided by a third, Martin Van Buren, had not brought it to maturity. For a generation we of Massachusetts have done our share to wipe it out. Very recently we have dealt it a staggering blow. When time gives the right perspective, there will be recognition of the far-reaching, epoch-making importance of the Boston charter provision that heads of departments and members of municipal boards shall be recognized experts or persons specially fitted by education, training, or experience. Seldom has there been a more cunning attempt to evade a law than that of the Democrat now Mayor of Boston, in his course under this proviso. The Finance Commission said in August: "Of the 22 new appointments to paid positions as heads of important departments, 13 appear to have been made as rewards for political support given to the Mayor." Of these 15 only three were approved by the Civil Service Commission, bravely equal to its task, and the Finance Commission further said it believed "the city has not suffered a loss in any instance of rejection." "Home Rule" is a fetching cry, but fallacious folly when it means turning a city over to loot.

I am not of those who think fulfilment of the duties of a citizen should be a disqualification for public office. The citizen who has shunned politics has not given fundamental proofs of patriotism. Beware the man who boasts he never went to a caucus. He is a selfish ingrate and a potential traitor. On the other hand, sacrifice of time and money and effort for the common welfare gives prima facie evidence of public spirit and an interest in public affairs that may well be taken as one qualification for the public service. But it is only one and should never alone suffice. With it should go the merits of education, training or experience. On this belief the Republican Governors of Massachusetts have acted in making their appointments. Is it possible that our people want a Democratic Governor to use the policy of the Mayor of Boston in naming our judges and the administrators of our humane institutions?

Judging by the Past.

In respect to these and other problems of the day, know the future from the past.

The Democratic party was in its origin radical. With the rise of the slavery issue it became more and more conservative, and for fifty years after the creation of the present Republican party, Democracy stood for laissez-faire, let-alone, non-interference, free trade, States' rights, and everything reactionary. With the advent of Mr. Bryan the ultra-radical wing gained control of it and since then it has been oil and water, revolving, first one on top and then the other. It is a strange combination of the extremes of society, of patrician and plebeian. Inevitably their views and their hopes are wholly irreconcileable. So their platforms are a contradiction, designed only for catch-ballot purposes. For example, in the same breath they will call for the government ownership of railroads and denounce the centralizing of power. In another they will promise organized labor all it asks and defend the right of the individual to do as he pleases. Again, they will demand a national income tax and decry invasion of the rights reserved to the States. By tradition and in theory, however, they are for the most part individualists, and their war-cry is, "Every man for himself and the Devil take the hindmost."

The Republican party was created to meet new issues. The Whig party had become fossilized, inert. The holy crusade against slavery at last enlisted the great mass of the middle classes of the people of the North. The victory won, the new party proved itself able to face other problems. From 1884 to 1896, however, it seemed as if it would follow in the fatal footsteps of the Whigs, for it repelled a multitude of young men, eager in their turn to help the cause of progress. Most of them found there was no hope in the other party, and so in time Republicanism recalled the wanderers who rightly belonged in her fold.

It has always been the party of nationalism,—not a new nationalism, but the same nationalism that inspired Washington, Adams, Webster, Lincoln, the nationalism that says in the words of the motto of the State of Missouri—"Salus populi suprema est lex"—"The welfare of the people is the supreme law."

From the first it has believed that "no man liveth to himself." It demanded the preservation of the Union because it believed the Nation more important than the State. It compelled the destruction of slavery not alone because it believed no man has a right to enslave another, but also because it believed the institution of slavery hostile to the common welfare By use of the tariff it developed the industries of the land because it believed in the propriety and benefit of using the taxing power to the common advantage. It demonetized silver because it believed the national prosperity of more consequence than the prosperity of a few mine owners. It regulates the railroads, digs a Panama canal, irrigates the arid West, creates vast forest reserves, aids the farmer, spreads rural free delivery of the mails, passes pure food laws, fights disease, and does a hundred other things called paternal, because it believes the purpose of government is the common good.

Candidates and Leaders.

Our candidates will be found men who would rather build up than tear down, rather create than destroy. Others will tell you of this quality in the men we shall nominate today, and I may not anticipate them, but I cannot forbear one word in recognition of it in the man who is to head our ticket, a man of surpassing power in the achievement of constructive results, a typical Republican, a typical American, Eben S. Draper.

More may it be my part to say of our leaders in the affairs of the nation. You know full well that our Senators are among the most hard-working and effective nation-builders of the day, that they are men of action, men of progress, one a great persuader, the other a great convincer, statesmen both. Through them Massachusetts has a dominant voice in the counsels of the nation. Long may she be favored, long may she be honored, by the service of Henry Cabot Lodge and Winthrop Murray Crane.

Of two other great Republicans would I speak. These two men stand out as leaders of Republican thought and action today. Each of them has been entrusted with the highest office in the gift of the people of the United States.

One is the most virile personality of his time—a man of intense, immense energy, a fiery champion of all he deems right, a relentless foe of all he deems wrong. Providence sent him to scourge the land in a crisis when it needed the lash. Drunk with prosperity, we were forgetting the old codes of commercial honor, we were forgetting the cardinal principles of the old morality, we were setting up different standards for rich and poor, high and low. Both in business and in politics we were denying fair play. We were creating an aristocracy of privilege, an oligarchy of wealth. With a flaming sword came this man of war to smite the demon of self-interest. Human to the marrow, no farther above mistakes than you or I, we love him the more for his foibles. We know he is sincere in his motives, we know he is the greatest champion of common honesty that his generation has produced, we know his marvellous activities have made the world better. So whether or not we accept all his economic views, whether or not his methods always ring in time with the cautious, prudent instincts of old Massachusetts, we acclaim him as a great Republican, the pride of a great party, the valiant hero of the cause of humanity. That is why we name as one of the two typical exponents of Republican faith and works the ex-President of the United States Theodore Roosevelt.

The other is a man of different mould, yet not thereby less a credit to his party and an honor to his country. There are narrow-visioned mortals who can see but one flower in the field, one star in the sky. There are narrow-minded mortals who cannot at the same time admire two men of different type, there are narrow-souled mortals who cannot love Peter without hating Paul. To them it is useless to say that we boast both the advocate and the judge, the soldier and the diplomat. In spite of slurs and sneers, the great mass of the people trust each of these men, for they know each has in sight the same goal—the welfare of the country. Lucky it is for the ship that it has both rudder and sail. Who shall say which brings the vessel to port? We are glad there stands by the rudder of the ship of state in these tempestuous days a helmsman serene, cautious, and brave. We rejoice at the skill with which he has threaded the reefs besetting his course thus far, and we are confident that so long as he may be the pilot, wind and wave will buffet in vain. So to those who would know a party by its leaders, we hold up also this other great Republican, calm, patient, prudent, a type of the American efficiency that achieves without tumult, the President of the United States, William H. Taft.

No Insurgency in Massachusetts.

Because there are different aspects of Republicanism, crafty schemers are trying to split us into hostile camps. "Insurgent" is set off against "stand-patter," and they cry to us—"Under which king, Bezonian? Speak or die." From Massachusetts let us retort, "We have no kings, no insurgents, no stand-patters, but only Republicans!"

There is no insurgency in Massachusetts worth the name because there is no reason for insurgency. Most of the measures that divide our brothers in other States are already part of Massachusetts law. For more than a score of years it has been "the Massachusetts ballot" for which the reformers in other States have fought. Without blare of trumpets we have accomplished the greater part of the primary election reform. Long ago we required the publication of campaign expenses. We have forbidden public service corporations to make campaign contributions. We have a law regulating the lobby. We prevent stock-watering. We provide by general law for the granting of franchises and the rights of the people are preserved. We have an income tax—not adequate, to be sure, but still an income tax. We tax our corporations. For forty years our Railroad Commission has set an example to the land. We strictly supervise lighting and telephone companies. We conserve our resources. And best of all our Legislature is the most independent, uncontrolled legislative body in America.

We have leaders. Every party must have leaders or perish. We are loyal to them in this hour of trial because they are strong men, public-spirited and unselfish, our servants and not our masters. We respect their counsel because we have found it wise. We follow them because they advise without dictation. We trust them because we have found them honest.

For the Future.

The Republican party has given the Commonwealth an administration so efficient that only five years ago an accidental Democratic Governor could find no chance to lop off expenditure or save money. We have the best governed State in all the land.

In spite of this record of performance, in spite of the acknowledged virtue and capacity of our candidates, there is apprehension in some quarters that the social hardships of the hour may prove our undoing. The increase in the cost of living and the troubles that mark one end of the swing of the pendulum of business through the arc from prosperity to stagnation, may combine to throw the people off their balance. Restless and agitated, in one of the dyspeptic attacks from which all communities suffer at intervals, reason clouded and memory gone, the people may run amuck. Perchance we cannot escape the commercial crisis that will follow—factories closed, cars idle, the soup kitchen and the bread line. Perchance the reins of government will be put in untried hands, irresolute and feeble. But certain it is that after a brief period of inaction or reaction, common sense will again prevail and progress resume her march.

Meanwhile our duty as a party is plain. Most men as they grow older become less inclined to activity, exertion, change. As with men, so with parties. And as the end is death for a man, so will it be for a party that has not the power of renewing its youth. There are Republicans who will not, cannot adapt themselves to new conditions. They insist that ours is the conservative party. They declare we are the guardians of vested interests of all sorts and that it is our duty to maintain things as they are.

nothing in life, is ever well enough. If as a party we do not disown them, we shall reject the enthusiasm of youth, the enterprise of middle age, we shall invite the grave. We must not be the do-nothing, stand-still party. Stagnant waters are subject to corruption. It will never do for us to take for our motto—"Let well enough alone." Nothing in politics, nothing in life, is ever well enough. If it were, life would not be worth the living. Our motto must be "Action, not reaction." We must ever bear in mind that

The world advances, and in time outgrows
The laws that in our fathers' day were best;
And doubtless after us some better scheme
Will be shaped out by wiser men than we,
Made wiser by the steady growth of truth.

Paul wrote to the Thessalonians: "Hold fast that which is good." But he said first: "Prove all things." His wisdom should be our guide. And we should hold fast to that which is good today, though it may not be that which was good yesterday.

Doing this, we shall achieve the safe and sane progress that has ever been our record. Doing this we shall steer between Democratic Scylla and Democratic Charybdis, shall wreck ourselves neither on the rocks of conservatism at the East, nor on the reefs of radicalism at the West.

It is said, however, that the business world wants a rest and that agitation must cease. Just fifty years ago a Republican convention nominated for the Governor of this Commonwealth a man regarded by the more conservative element of his time as a radical of somewhat dangerous tendencies. The business men of Boston had for a quarter of a century been hostile to the ideas for which he stood. In 1855 prominent citizens of Boston to the number of 1500 signed a call for a public meeting in Faneuil Hall to denounce the agitation of slavery. Thenceforward mob after mob, always described as well dressed, threatened the lives of those who dared speak for the rights of man. At last Conscience conquered Commerce. There came a new party and a new era. Garrison the prophet led to Andrews the patriot.

After fifty years Commerce again complains. But as the Republicans of 1856 dared defy her, dared to speak for human freedom, so let the Republicans of 1910 place duty above dollars. So shall we see a renaissance, a new birth, of Republican principles, a new era of Republican progress. If, however, we prove false to our traditions, we shall drive from our ranks those who have the welfare of humanity at heart, and who cannot believe that the greatest safeguard of the nation is the prosperity of the few.

Pledging anew our faith, if we do not for the moment convince the doubters, if lured by vain hopes or driven by idle fears the people turn for a while to other banners, yet let us keep our own standard aloft and raise it higher still, with serene confidence that in the end the party of hope will prevail over the party of despair.

What may be our own fortune is of little consequence. Fame and honor and place may come or they may go. It is no matter if only the cause of humanity advance. As for us, we shall say with the mariner of old as in a great tempest he cried out to the god of the sea: "O Neptune, thou mayest save me if thou will; thou mayest destroy me; but, however, I will steer my rudder true."

Put Courage at the helm. Throw overboard Alarm, another Jonah. So shall we weather the gale. Already the clouds break, the skies brighten. Courage, courage, and we win the port.

BRIEFS

The annual concert and ball of the Quincy Firemen's Relief association will be held Friday evening, Nov. 11.

Many outing parties passed through City Square this morning bound for the Brockton Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lawrence of Maine are visiting Mrs. Mary D. Mahoney of Barry street.

Several young ladies from West Quincy who went on an excursion to New York last week returned Monday. All reported a very pleasant time.

The steamer was unable to respond to the fire alarms this morning, owing to one of the rubber tires being off.

There will soon be a new street between Common street and the Metropolitan boulevard. The surveyors were at work this morning finding the best place to put it through.

Mrs. J. R. McCormick of Hall place and Miss Olive Grant of Copeland street were guests of Mrs. A. J. Shackley and Mrs. O. M. Hoxie of Brooklyn, N. Y., last week.

The Houghs Neck fire department made quick work Wednesday afternoon in extinguishing a grass fire. The fire was getting too near some of the cottages and it was thought best to sound an alarm.

The new police auto made a run to the corner of Greenleaf and Putnam streets this morning and gathered in two drunks who were sleeping off the effects of their drinking in a pile of dead leaves.

A very pleasant evening was enjoyed by the members of the Hall Place M. E. Epworth League at the home of Miss Lillian Johnston of Adams street on Monday night at their regular business meeting.

THREE FLAT HOUSE ON FIRE

Lively Blaze on Sumner street This Noon

The alarm from Box 75 at 12.03 this noon was or a lively blaze in the upper tenement of a three-flat house at 118 Sumner street owned by Joseph Levowich and occupied on the upper floor by the owner and on the two lower floors by Isaac Stern and Julius Sandolvitz.

The fire caught from an overheated stove. It seems that Mrs. Levowich built a fire in the kitchen stove to get dinner. The high wind caused the fire to burn too freely and before she was aware of it the woodwork was on fire. When the department arrived a brisk fire was in progress but prompt work on the part of the firemen prevented the fire from breaking through the roof. Two of the rooms were badly gutted and the contents of the other rooms on the upper floor were more or less damaged by the heavy black smoke.

The fire did not get below the upper floor although some of the water went down through the floor and did some damage.

Chief Williams estimates the loss on the building and contents at $500. It was very fortunate that the fire did not do more damage for the fire department had a hard time reaching the scene. The end of Sumner street toward Main street is torn up, owing to the laying of the sewer, so that it is impassable. The fire department in responding to the alarm went to the corner of Main and Sumner street only to find their way blocked, and it was necessary for them to make a round about trip through Cyril street to get at the scene. Two line of hose were laid and these streams together with the chemical stream did the business. It was 2 o'clock before the recall sounded.

BROCKTON FAIR.

The attendance Wednesday at the Brockton fair broke all Wednesday records. The total was 52,659, or 12,000 ahead of the best previous record for the second day. This great crowd came on special trains, electric cars, automobiles and scores of other vehicles. The weather was very summer like so that hundreds lounged on the grass and in the enclosures while they watched the several attractions. The only sad occurrence was the sudden death of William Hunt of Middleboro who was stricken with heart failure while inspecting the poultry exhibit.

One of the features of the afternoon was the releasing of 500 homing pigeons. This sight was a thrilling one.

The one great attraction at the fair is Grahame-White and his aeroplane. The wind was rather too strong Wednesday for successful flying and the crowd were somewhat disappointed. several times during the afternoon he attempted to fly but his engines worked wrong and he was unable to rise. Late in the afternoon however he made several thrilling flights.

DEVELOPING THE CHILD BODY

Valuable Talk by Dr. D. A. Sargent to Mothers

The Quincy Mothers' Association held its regular meeting at Bethany Congregational church Wednesday afternoon. A good sized audience gathered there to listen to Dr. D. A. Sargent give his lecture on "The importance of developing the child's body."

Dr. Sargent spoke with ease and deliberation and the simplicity of manner which is the usual accompaniment of men truly great in any line of work. His subject was a big one, and it was a difficult task to select the facts which were within the comprehension of a mixed audience and yet give enough of the technique of his scientific knowledge to make his hearer reach up to his intellectual plane.

He said in part: "The relation between the training of the body and intellectual, spiritual and moral training is indeed close; it is correlated. If the bodily house is well built, the re-construction process which often comes later in life is eliminated. Sunlight, fresh air, good food and proper exercise are the building materials which God has given us with which to work. The old idea that Divine Providence is responsible for our defects and that many diseases are nature's manner of getting rid of certain imperfections, has ceased to exist. Individual responsibility is now apparent to the physician and layman. Increased functional activity of the body is the best way to resist disease. Through increased muscular activity, heart, lungs and other organs in the body gain strength. Muscles should become servants; they afford us the power of training the will.

"The young child is in constant motion; this is natural, the command, 'sit still' is a request for the unnatural thing. The bending, turning, twisting, hopping, jumping of childhood could be continued on into later life and be beneficial. The distance covered by a child in an ordinary day's play has been estimated at ten miles. Hence the necessity for regular and long hours of sleep. Sitting still in school is exceedingly hard for children. If they could be allowed to run for a while about every twenty minutes they could return and give better attention. It is important that children should take part in sports; running and swimming, in proper proportion, improve the heart action and assist the other organs in throwing off impurities. Exercise will build up weak parts of the body. It is not wise to open the windows and breathe deeply without accompanying exercises. Much of the spite and uncharitableness in the world is due to indigestion; it is possible to cure indigestion with regular exercise. Through exercise the will becomes the calm agent of strength rather then the shifting accomplice of weakness. Every woman should be graceful; it is possible to exercise and acquire grace. We speak of grace as the power to please. Flexibility of muscles does away with stiffness and awkwardness. First, we must perfect the human structure, then test its power and endurance, and then consecrate the body to service. Team work in schools where co-operation, loyalty to others, unselfishness and courage are combined and develops the noblest traits of character.

A short time for question and answers followed the address. The importance of sleep for young children was discussed. The child who has regular hours of sleep and plenty of these hours is storing up energy and overcoming nervous tendencies; at the age of twenty he will be strong and ready to sustain mental strain.

The raising of the age of admission into the public schools to six years was spoken of as a movement of great wisdom.

Open windows in the sleeping rooms at night and whether or not it was safe for children to sleep thus in the New England climate where the sudden changes are so frequent was another topic discussed. Properly clothed there should be no exposure of the body and only good effects could result from the night's sleep in the fresh air.

The question of the cold bath in the morning and how best to take that followed. The room in which the cold bath is taken must be warm. Vigorous rubbing should follow. If there is no re-action and the child is chilled, it is unwise to persist in the bath. A warm bath might be given, followed by a cold one. The cold bath should be worked up to by degrees.

To the question, How shall fat women become slender? the reply was, "eat less!" After middle age has passed the quantity of food required to give energy is much less than before. With plenty of house-work, running up and down stairs, sweeping, bending and reaching and discretion about food the gaining of weight should be under control.

Tea was served in the ladies parlor and an informal reception given to Dr. Sargent.

DES MOINES AT GIBRALTAR

May Take a Hand in Affairs of Portugal

The cruiser Des Moines built at the Fore River is reported this morning as being at Gibraltar and may be sent to Lisbon should it be deemed wise to have an American ship in that vicinity. No vessel however will be dispatched to Portugal unless the American Minister calls for it. Among the jackies on the Des Moines, is Guy Marden, a son of Court Officer W. M. Marden.

BENNETT—STONE.

A pretty wedding took place on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Mary Stone of Arlington street, when her daughter, Miss Ada Stone, became the bride of Frank G. Bennett of Fayette street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Joel M. Leonard of Melrose a former pastor and intimate friend of the bride's family. The double ring service was used only the immediate families being present.

Miss Stone was popularly known as organist at the Wollaston Methodist church, and at the reception which followed lagre numbers were present from that society. Guests also attended from Lynn and Melrose. The floral decorations were attractive and and consisted of palms and cut flowers.

Amid a shower of confetti and congratulations the happy couple left for a honeymoon to be spent in the state of New York. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Bennett will reside on Beale street near the corner of Winthrop avenue. Mr. Bennett is well known in this city being in the employ of W. G. Shaw of City Square.

Her Revenge.

A little girl had been so very naughty that her mother found it necessary to shut her up in a dark closet—in that family the direst punishment for the worst offense. For fifteen minutes the door had been locked without a sound coming from behind it—not a whimper, not a sniffle. At last the stern but anxious parent unlocked the closet door and peered into the darkness. She could see nothing.

"What are you doing in there?" she cried.

And then a little voice piped from the blackness:

"I thpit on your new dress, and I thpit on your new hat, and I'm waiting for more thpit to come to thpit on your new parasol!"—Philadelphia Times.

Not Safe.

The negro on occasions displays a fine discrimination in the choice of words.

"Who's the best whitewasher in town?" inquired the new resident.

"Ale Hall am a bo'nd a'tist with a whitewash brush, sah," answered the colored patriarch eloquently.

"Well, tell him to come and whitewash my chicken house tomorrow."

Uncle Jacob shook his head dubiously.

"Why, didn't you say he was a good whitewasher?"

"Yas, sah, a powe'ful good whitewasher, sah, but mighty queer about a chicken house, sah, mighty queer!"—Human Life.

THAYER'S ADDRESS

As Permanent Chairman of Democratic Convention

Following is a synopsis of the address of John R. Thayer of Worcester, permanent chairman of the Democratic state convention:

"Gentlemen of the Convention and Fellow Democrats: We meet this day under most favorable auspices, more favorable by far than have attended our conventions for many years now passed. Our party is united more perfectly than it has been for years.

"This united condition of our party is to us in happy contrast to the divided, disrupted and demoralized condition our opponents find themselves in. They have been getting into an unenviable condition for some time. They have not so frequently been pointing with pride to about everything which has taken place in our state, except the rising and setting of the sun.

"They staked their last hope for the recovery of their former prestige on their reforming of the tariff satisfactorily, and they lost, demoralization followed.

"Ours is a commission-ridden state. Every succeeding legislature provides for a new commission, and it seems to make but little difference whether it is a necessity, a luxury, or a nonentity. They spring up like mushrooms in the night, and seldom, if ever, is a commission reduced in size, consolidated with another, or the salary of its members investigated. These commissions will continue to increase in numbers and expense to the state so long as the Republican party continues in power.

"We should keep steadily and continually before the minds of people of Massachusetts one of our many practical and progressive principles and reform, which is the product solely of our handiwork, namely, the election of United States senators by the people. Let the people give us a Democratic senate and house and a Democratic governor and we will provide for election of United States senators by the people this coming year.

"Food products were never so high in this country as they are today, except for a limited period in the civil war. It has come to pass that it makes little difference how much is secured for wages or what the week's envelope contains. It surely will not contain more than the bills for the week amount to.

"My friends, without spending more time on the subject, let me say that the American people are determined to hold the Republican Party responsible for the high cost of living.

"I feel confident, if we act wisely in the selection of our candidates and in the announcement of our principles and policies, we can sweep the state. We must follow close upon the trail of our opponents, acquaint the people with the conditions which prevail, show them just what was predicted relative to the railroad merger which has taken place, that what could not be obtained by direct action has now been secured by indirect action; the competition in railroad charges has been destroyed, and all roads of New England have come under one management and control and we are at the mercy of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., and must accept in substance what they pass out to us; that a Republican legislature and a Republican government are accountable and responsible for the condition Massachusetts finds itself in. The people have been deceived and the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. has carried the day and got just what it wanted. Mr. Tuttle has been kicked down and out and Mr. Mellen is on the box."

The Salon.

The French academy was originally a junction of the drawing rooms of the Marquise de Rambouillet and her daughter, Julie d'Angennes, Duchesse de Montausier. The salon as a meeting place for conversation and the production of beaux esprits and writers hardly existed before these ladies opened that of the Hotel de Rambouillet. Prior to this social event women of tiptop quality and rich bourgeoises received their company in their bedrooms. There was nothing answering to the English parlor or the Italian hall of conversation. The bed, as in the sleeping room of Louis XIV., was surrounded by a balustrade, outside of which gentlemen who had dropped in to visit remained standing. It would have been shockingly unmannerly of them to step over the barrier. The lady of the house, dressed in her best dishabille, sat on the edge of the bed. Ladies calling went within the balustrade and sat on folding stools, or hassocks, according to rank and age. Mme. de Lafayette painted from life in describing in "La Princesse de Cleves" a conversation on love, in which the dauphiness took the lead, reclining on her bed.—London Truth.

Guilty Anyway.

The most striking instance of a vanished man coming again to light to take part in legal proceedings is that which occurred in a case where Daniel O'Connell was defending a man indicted for murder. The case for the prosecution seemed as clear as possible, and O'Connell contented himself with fewer questions than were to have been expected of so eminent a cross examiner. When the case for the crown had closed he announced that he had but one witness to call, but that witness was important to the case. He was the murdered man, very much alive. There was no doubting the man's identity—everybody knew it. The judge therefore turned to the jury and directed them to acquit the prisoner. To his amazement, however, they returned a verdict of guilty. Asked for an explanation, the foreman observed that they had no doubt that the prisoner was innocent of the murder. "But," he added, "we find him guilty of sthealing my ould gray mare three weeks ago."

Who He Was.

The "cub" reporter is the greenest reporter on the staff of a newspaper. When anything particularly stupid happens on the paper he is the one first to be accused, and he is usually rightly accused. The only salvation for him is to improve, which he does in nine cases out of a dozen. The Boston Journal told recently of an amusing "break" of a wholly innocent nature which a certain cub made.

The reporter had been sent to a suburb to report a sermon. He arrived late, near the close of the service and took a seat near the door. When the last hymn was over he asked his neighbor, an elderly gentleman:

"What was the text of the sermon?"

"'Who art thou?'" answered the parishioner.

"Boston reporter," replied the other.

The man smiled. Subsequently he told the preacher, who next Sunday told the congregation—at the cub's expense.

NO QUORUM FOR MERCHANT

Life or Death of Association In the Balance

The first regular meeting of the Quincy Merchants' Association since the adjournment for the summer was scheduled to have been held Thursday evening, but lack of a quorum prevented any business being transacted. The half a dozen members present, however, engaged in an informal discussion of matters of interest to the merchants.

Charles E. Beane, who represents the New England Magazine was present and gave an informal talk on the articles on Quincy which is to appear in the October issue of the magazine. Mr. Beane said he regretted that the two young men who came to Quincy in the interest of the magazine were over zealous it had created a false impression, and his mission was to try and set the merchants right on the matter. The expense of preparing such an article was considerable and the object was to get the business associations interested to help along financially. It would be published whether financial aid was proffered or not. He stated that the Granite Manufacturers' Association had contributed $75, and he hoped that the Merchants' Association and Board of Trade would also help out. The article was a good advertisement for Quincy, as it set forth its advantages as a manufacturing and residential centre, and also dwelt at length upon its superb water front. Lack of quorum prevented any definite action being taken by the Association.

President Sheppard stated that the treasurer reported a balance of $256 from the Merchants' Week of 1910 which with other funds of the asso-

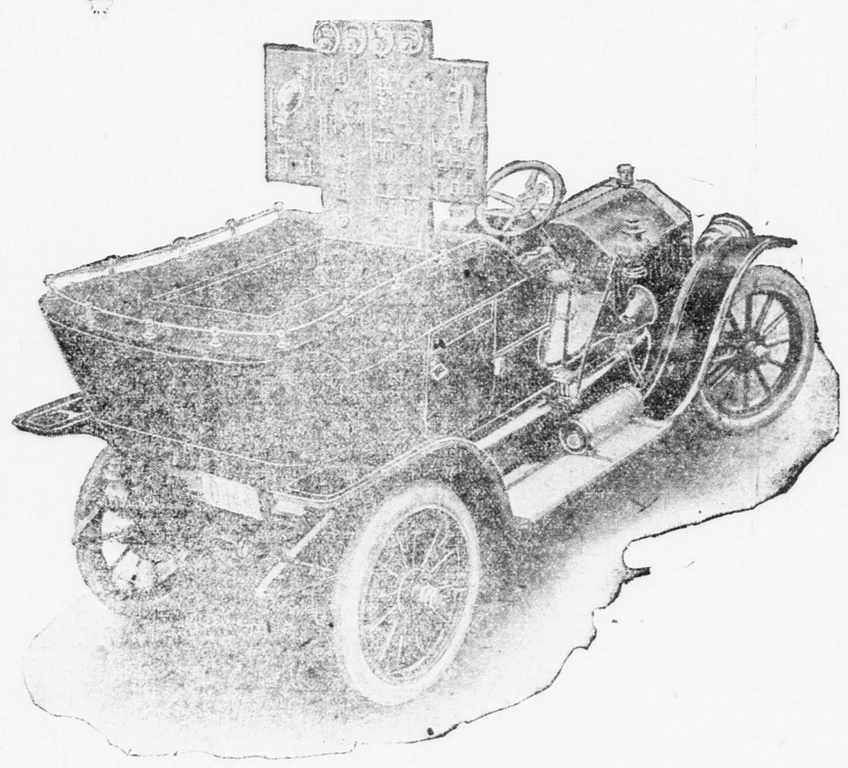
GRAND OPPORTUNITY FOR QUINCY YOUNG MEN

Young Men's Christian Association to Offer Night School for Electrical Workers



It is doubtful if there is any more interesting study at the present time than electricity. The uses to which it is put are a multitude, and many in Quincy will be glad to learn that the Quincy Y. M. C. A. has arranged for a night school for the study of this interesting subject.

The course prepared is a practical one and aims to give men a comprehensive and practical idea of the electrical field. The instructors of the school are W. B. Clayton and A. DeForest Davis. Classes will be held every Monday evening beginning Oct. 24 with special lectures fortnightly.

A novel feature of the school is a 40 horse power automobile equipped to demonstrate and transport the laboratory to cities where classes are held. These autos are complete power plants in themselves. One of these autos will be on exhibition at the Y. M. C. A. next Monday evening.

In addition to the regular classes and lectures, trips will be arranged to some of the prominent power

ROSS NOMINATED AT HOUGHS NECK

Unanimous Choice of the Thirty One Voters

(Special Correspondence.)

President Daniel J. Maloney of the Houghs Neck Associates called to order an assembly of Houghs Neck, and district citizens, Thursday night, for the purpose of learning the sentiment of the people towards a selection of a candidate for the City Council. The meeting was a large and spirited one and was held in Associates hall.

The meeting was immediately turned over to council committee chairman, Henry W. French. The meeting organized and elected Chas. E. Decker as temporary secretary.

Chairman French requested, that any man present who was not a registered voter to refrain from taking active part in the business of the evening. The chair then awaited nominations for council candidates.

Capt. Oliver G. Fosdick made a motion, which was carried to hold a regular old-fashioned caucus and nominate from the floor.

Capt. Fosdick then presented in excellent style the name of Daniel J. Maloney, who, he said, had brought order out of chaos ,who had safely piloted the ship in, and out, and the one man who would poll every vote of Houghs Neck. Before the nomination was put to vote Mr. Maloney with propriety declined.

Chairman French then stated that Mr. Buchan's name through previous neglect of an assistant assessor, was not on the list, and as Mr. Buchan was a most capable man he hoped a motion would prevail which would set aside committee rules and allow his name placed. Mr. French further stated that to his knowledge 34 names were omitted from the list, and that the assistant who came to Houghs Neck to assess must have taken the return express to Quincy. That Houghs Neck should protest to such negligence of duty. Mr. Buchan, he said, is morally qualified to the highest degree for nomination. The rules of the assembly were suspended to permit Mr. Buchan's name as a possible candidate and it was added to the list.

The nominations stood: John R. S. Ross, Leo P. Noonan, Ross Y. Woodbury, James P. A. Purcell, Wm. J. Hudson, and Walter Buchan.

Mr. Woodbury withdrew in favor of Ross, who he believed was well liked in Quincy, as well as Houghs Neck. Mr. La Brecque pointed to two organiations in Quincy which he said Mr. Ross belonged to, and who would support him, pointing out the fact that Houghs Neck couldn't do the whole job.

Mr. Maloney substantiated these remarks, recalling the fact that Quincy was the birth-place of Ross.

Mr. Wall was asked to say something for his nominee, Mr. Buchan. Mr. Wall said in part. I support him because, he is a clean young man, morally beyond question, a friend of one of my old friends with whom he was employed (Mr. Cushing of the Norwood Press) and because he is my neighbor. He comes well recommended and would I believe give Houghs Neck just and due consideration if nominated.

The chairman who referred previously to Mr. Ross as being the only likely man who would poll returns, was somewhat sarcastically referred to as having it cut and dried, said "That there may be no question of my position regarding Mr. Ross. I will state that I have known him for 20 years. He is no fire artist, no hot air man! Yes, I 'am' for him—first, last and always. He is the only man from Houghs Neck who can poll a unanimous vote. At this time nominations ceased.

The chair awaited forms of ballot, and after considerable wrangling decided to pass blanks, each voter to write the name of his preference on

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Who's Mansfield?

Did any one say the Democrats of Massachusetts were united?

What doe the cow get out of this proposed increase in milk?

Mr. Taft must at least be credited with favoring conservation of the pork barrel.

In spite of Mr. Hughes' anti-gambling law there was a big game pulled off at Saratoga last week.

Let the kickers and croakers say all they have to say and get over with it.

The readiness with which the erstwhile baseball fan turns to football news shows how fickle the sporting public is.

Pennsylvania is improving. It has been decided not to let the statues in front of the Harrisburg capitol be nude.

A pure food society wants all bills of fare in hotels and restaurants written in English instead of French. That's not the trouble. What the public really yearns for is that the price column be written in a minor key.

After a careful examination of the system now in vogue in the office of the City Auditor we are satisfied that the so-called "deficit" in the city accounts cannot be laid at the door of Mr. Fairbanks. In fact,, it is City Auditor Fairbanks who has brought to light the situation as reported. All the "deficits" in the Assessors department, the Tax Collector's department, the Sewer department, and appropriations charged to "unexpended balances and unappropriated receipts" occurred prior to 1908 when the administrations of Mr. Fairbanks and Mayor Shea commenced.

The system now in vogue in the City Auditor's office is almost identical with that recommended by the Bureau of Statistics of Massachusetts, and has been commended. Mr. Fairbanks welcomes inquiry, and is pleased to exhibit the system to interested citizens.

Many summaries of the accounts of several departments year by year, were prepared as a result of the recent examination by expert accountants which go back to the first year of the city government. It appears in the Assessors department, that abatements amounting to $33,853.00 in excess of overlaying which are alone applicable, have been made. That in the Tax Collectors' accounts for all these years there is a discrepancy of $8,435.00. That the receipts from sewer assessments and amounts raised by taxation for sewers is $31,763.00 short of the actual expenditures. That the "unexpended balances and unappropriated receipts," of all these years were not large enough by $18,000.00 to take care of the appropriations charged to them by the City Council.

These four items aggregate $92,051.00, and because of them the "temporary loans" of the city in anticipation of taxes are $92,051.00 larger than they should be. This sum has really become a permanent debt upon which interest is being paid. It may not be necessary to make an appropriation to wipe out this debt, but the City Council, Mayor and Assessors must go light on "estimated receipts" applicable for annual appropriations and to reduce the tax rate. The amounts appropriated in the annual budget should be less, and the Assessors should not estimate the receipts as large as they do.

DRIFT OF OPINION

The Boston Journal takes the ground that there is just as much need of a finance commission in state matters as in the case of the city of Boston. The News does not hesitate to assert that a commission of this sort which went about business in the right kind of a way would be able, in overhauling conditions on Beacon Hill, to institute reforms of the higest moment to tax-payers. The Republican legislature has got into a rut in Massachusetts. It ends itself too easily to extravagant projects; again, it does not insist upon that return for the money expended in clerical service alone, not to mention other matters, which distinguishes private business from slip-shod public policies Less sinecures and a closer equivalent for the money paid out for service in this state are two reforms that ought to be vouchsafed. A state finance commission composed of the right kind of men would be able to point the way to these desirable ends. It is too much to expect that the great and general court will voluntarily perform the job.—Salem News.

An experienced juryman was giving advice to the man who was about to engage in a lawsuit. "Whatever other mistakes you may fall into," he said, "don't make the fatal mistake of employing too high-priced a lawyer. My study of juries has convinced me that the poor man who sues for modearte damages queers himself with nine juries out of ten by hiring a lawyer whose fees are known to run into the thousands. "There are several ways of looking at this anomalous proceeding. The lawyer's retention may indicate that he recognizes the justice of the poor man's claim and is willing to push it for right's sake regardless of fee, but the explanation that is most likely to appeal to the average jury is that the plaintiff is not so hard up after all if he can afford to hire such an expensive lawyer, and it cuts the damages in two. In a case of this kind pin your faith to a fairly able lawyer who cannot command fabulous fees, and you will be far more likely to secure the amount you are suing for."—New York Times.

No man has a right to live among his fellows as though he were entirely his own master, and could do with his own exactly as he pleases. All men are subject to law, and the "New Nationalism" teaches that the public good is paramount over the private interest. He who looks out always for Number One may find before long that, if he has a following, it is made up of detectives and creditors. On the whole and in the long run that which pays is something more than strict justice—it is a certain excess of benevolence upon honesty.—Zion's Herald.

MILTON.

Wesley Grant died of consumption Tuesday afternoon. For the past few months he has been living in a tent on a lot off Squantum street. Two years ago he was shot through the nose by a man who was trying to rob him at his store and the shock to his nerves was too much for him. Ever since he has been failing in health. Mr. Grant owned property on Granite place which will revert to his brother since no will was made. The funeral was held this afternoon.

The big elm tree in the triangle in front of the fire station at East Milton has been cut down, and is now being distributed for chopping blocks. Many residents are up in arms about the affair, believing that the end does not justify the means. For years the old tree has served as a shelter to those waiting for cars and for the fire station. Now that it is removed the view of the station from up the street is far from beautiful. The fountain which is to be erected is a gift to the town. E. H. Kidder the tree warden is giving it in memory of his parents. He was very much opposed to having the tree cut down for it was not a necessity. No one seems to know where the blame belongs, but there are many who would like to know.

STEAM TRAWLERS PROFITABLE.

The Boson Journal says the trawlers Spray and Foam are to have a sister ship, which will be named the Ripple. The owners of the two, the Bay State Fishing Com pany, has practically decided to award the contract for a third steam vessel. The Foam has only been in commission a few weeks. The Ripple will be of the same size as the Foam the two trawlers having shown that they are good money makers The new trawler will be built by the Fore River Company at Quincy.

DRAPER NAMED FOR GOVERNOR

PROCEEDINGS HARMONIOUS

Program Goes Through Without a Hitch, Ames and White Failing to Enter Objections—Administration of Taft Warmly Comended—Walker Tariff Plank Embodied In Platform, Which Approves Payne-Aldrich Act as Revenue Producer—Draper Stands on His Record

Boston, Oct. 7.—By a voice in which there was no dissent, Governor Draper is again Republican nominee for governor of Massachusetts. The party's state convention in Tremont Temple, with close to 1300 delegates in attendance, carried the program to the expected conclusion. The ticket:

For governor, Eben S. Draper of Hopedale; lieutenant governor, Louis A. Frothingham of Boston; secretary of the commonwealth, William M. Olin of Boston; treasurer and receiver general, Elmer A. Stevens of Somerville; attorney general, James M. Swift of Fall River.

It is the old Republican state ticket, with the exception of Attorney General Malone. District Attorney Swift of Fall River was given Malone's place, and the Republican convention had adjourned before the Democrats in Faneuil hall had fairly begun their convention.

LOUIS A. FROTHINGHAM

The platform was accepted without a dissenting vote as presented by the committee on resolutions. The Walker tariff plank was included. Congressman Ames, who had threatened earlier in the day to raise a rumpus in case the platform intimated that Senator Lodge ought to be renominated, was satisfied with the platform after he had heard it read. Norman H. White, who was expected to say something about the platform's indorsement of the governor's railroad policies, was not in evidence.

The convention applauded Roosevelt's name, stood up and shouted for Taft and Draper, and did the same for Lodge and Crane. Lodge acknowledged the ovation to himself by rising and bowing. Crane sat like a sphinx until Lodge pushed him to his feet.

In accepting the nomination Draper said:

"I must be and am willing to stand on my record, and believe that past performance is better than present promise. I cannot truthfully promise any better performance for the future than I have rendered in the past, because I have done my best and shall be satisfied with the judgment of the people on the service rendered.

"We have a hard fight before us, and it is the duty of those of us who believe that Republican success means good government to do all we honorably can to achieve success. I shall do my best to bring this about, and I ask for your hearty co-operation to that end. If we all take hold and work we shall be successful."

The platform adopted praises the administration of Draper. The Republican party is praised for a change in the educational system of Massachusetts, which offers children a chance to obtain an industrial education in public schools.

It says Republican legislation aimed to protect the honest farmer who tried to produce milk up to the legal standard and to take shipments out of the control of milk contractors so producers could get just and equal rates on small shipments.

The conservation of natural resources is claimed as a Republican policy, and the Massachusetts congressional delegation is urged to support the bill for national forest reserves in the Appalachian mountains.

The party is given credit for legislation in regard to medical inspection, good factory conditions, "proper hours of labor," pure food and other health regulations.

One plank reads: "We commend the action of the legislature in passing the resolve declaring that the public good requires a change in the present system of determining the compensation of employes for injuries sustained in industrial accidents, and that the commonwealth ought to provide different and more suitable relief."

Local option on the direct nominations question is approved of, and so is the law making the governor directly responsible for all estimates for state appropriations.

The tariff plank reads: "We recommend the establishment of a permanent, independent, expert tariff commission, the function of which shall be to discover and report to congress from time to time such facts and statistics as will enable congress to amend the tariff law intelligently and scientifically according to the principle of protection.

"We believe that such changes should be made in the rules of the house of representatives and of the senate of the United States as may be necessary to make practicable the amendment of the tariff, one schedule at a time."

The Payne-Aldrich tariff is approved as a revenue producer. The work of Senators Lodge and Crane is praised, and Lodge is endorsed for re-election. The direct nomination system is declared to be all right and ought to be extended.

HEAVY SHORTAGE IN HIS ACCOUNTS

Late Head of Atlas Bank Betrays His Trust

New Bedford, Mass., Oct. 7.—A shortage of between $130,000 and $150,000 was announced in the books of the late George W. Weymouth, president and general manager of the Atlas Tack company, controlled by the estate of the late Henry H. Rogers.

Weymouth, who resigned from congress, where he represented the Fourth Massachusetts district from 1897 to 1901, to accept the position, was killed in an automobile accident in Bingham, Me., a month ago.

Announcement of the shortage came as a great surprise. Weymouth had not lived extravagantly, and it is understood that on his death he left a small estate, consisting chiefly of an accident policy.

It is thought that the shortage in Weymouth's accounts was due to attempts to make up losses in the stock market.

WANTED TO KILL PRINCE

San Francisco Chinaman Is Frustrated Barely In Time

San Francisco, Oct. 7.—George Fong, a member of the San Francisco organization of the Young Chinese association, an alleged revolutionary body, was arrested by secret service operatives just as he was about to shoot Prince Tsai Hsun, uncle of the Emperor of China. The prince was boarding the steamer Shiyo to sail for home.

Fong confessed that he intended to kill the prince. A loaded revolver was found in the pocket toward which Fong's hand was moving when the detectives seized him.

The prince's life was declared forfeited to the revolutionary cause, according to Fong, at a meeting of the Young Chinese association held in San Francisco two weeks ago.

WEST QUINCY IMPROVEMENTS

Discussed at Meeting of Association Last Night

A largely attended meeting of the West Quincy Improvement association was held Thursday evening. The first part of the evening was taken up with reports of several committees including the committees having in charge the June 17, and July 4 , celebrations. These reports all showed that the affairs undertaken had been a success.

Following this there was a discussion on the plan now before the City Council to extend Nelson street from Arthur street to Copeland street. It was pointed out that this would open up a new access to Arthur street, and would be much used by teams which now have to climb the hill on Buckley street in order to get into Arthur street. It is probable that a committee from the association will favor the laying out of the street at the public hearing.

There was also a discussion on the deplorable condition of Willard street between the depot and the Braintree line. While no definite action was taken the trend of the discussion was that the street should be taken by the county and made a county road. It was said the Braintree and Randolph would also be glad to have the county take the street.

Attention was called to the fact of the existance of a law which prohibited girls under 17 years from attending public dances without a permit from parents. It was pointed out that this law was not lived up to, and that every week young girls were attending dances at the beaches which in many cases were not conducive to improving their morals. It seemed to be the general impression that the police department should take a hand in the matter and enforce the law.

It was voted to request Representative Langeller to furnish the association with such state publications as was possible, as the same would often be handy for reference. The Blue Book and Mannual were particularly mentioned as books desired.

The association then thrashed out the much discussed new telephone rates. There seems to be considerable misunderstanding in regards to these rates. While the majority of Quincy subscribers will be benefited by the change there were quite a few firms that would be hard hit. This was true in the case of many granite manufacturers who had frequent calls to cemeteries located in towns and cities outside the Quincy zone. Under the old rates free connection was had with these places, but under the new rates a toll would be made for connection with them. It was voted that a committee be appointed to act with the Board of Trade in the matter. The committee appointed were: President Little, Joseph Walker, W. H. Teasdale, Peter T. Fallon, Edward J. Sandberg and John Casey

It was 11 o'clock before an adjournment was reached.

BROCKTON FAIR.

The attendance figures at the Brockton fair Thursday were 90,995, the greatest crowd ever seen in the history of the city It seemed that all New England came to help celebrate "Boston day." The attendance surpassed the old record by 10,745. There was hardly a foot of space that did not contain its human burden. It was a sight never to be forgotten. There was a wild scramble at the close of the day. Nearly everybody waited until the last minute in the hopes of seeing Graham-White fly. The wind, however, was too strong and the crowd had to be disappointed. During the middle of the afternoon Mr. White was introduced to the crowd from the grand stand, and he read his speech through a megaphone. He said that the wind which was bowing 30 and 40 miles an hour made it impossible for him to go up. He would, however, try Friday and make up for his lack of flying. The greatest danger, he said, was being blown into the crowd which would inflict injury. He assured the multitude, however, if there was any possible show to fly without injury to the spectators he should do so. Late in the afternoon Mr. White did make seven short flights rising to a height of 30 or 40 feet.

SUCCESS OF QUINCY BOY.

An honor which comes to a citizen is an honor to the city. Thus we can all feel justly proud of one of our young men who has just completed his course in the American college in Rome. Andrew Joseph O'Brien started his school life at the Gridley Bryant school. He was graduated in 1898 and then went to Adams Academy. During his course there under Dr. Everett he led his class in scholarship for all four years. In addition to this he was one of the best athletes in the school. In Boston College his industry and ability soon placed him in the front rank of scholars. As was the case in the academy, he carried off all the prizes that could be won by one man. Among these was the Fulton gold medal for excellence in debating. From there he went to the ecclesiastical college, Rome, where he completed the five-year course in four years. He was ordained on the 24th of September in the Saint John Basilica.. The class of which he is a member will not complete the course till June. Mr. O'Brien will stay in Rome and do special work returning with the class next summer. All the instructors and students in this college are Americans. Upon his return to this country Father O'Brien will belong to the Boston diocese.

DUST! DUST! DUST!

The people of West Quincy are complaining that the streets are not receiving any attention in their section of the city. In this dry weather with a high wind blowing the general effect is that of an Arabian monsoon to one walking up Copeland street. No oil or water sprinkler has appeared in the vicinity for some little time until the rain today, and the people are beginning to wonder where the trouble lies. Perhaps the Street department is placing too much faith in the weather bureau.

AVIATION EXPENSES.

The report of Treasurer George M Cox of the Harvard-Boston Aero Meet committee shows a total of $30,124 was spent in permanent improvements at Quincy, divided as follows: Prepared grounds, $15,510; buildings and fixtures, $3910; fences, $2056; sanitary arrangements, $3571; signaling system, $1114; preliminary expenses of Harvard Aeronautical Society, $3963.

It is said, according to the Journal, that many important changes in the arrangement of the grounds, the methods of approach, and the prices of admission anl seats, will be made before next year's meet, which is already prophesied as bigger and better than the events of 1910. Permanent caretakers are now employed by the organization, and the field all the year will doubtless be a Mecca for New England's amateur and professional aviators.

MEETING OF ALTAR GUILD.

The Altar Guild of St. Chrysostom's church met at the rectory Thursday evening for its first regular meeting of the season and the annual election of officers, as far as possible work was outlined for the coming year and the months which members are to serve assigned.

The rector Frederick H. Steenstra spoke briefly on the privilege, deep responsibility, and the sacredness of this consecrated service to God, and this direct serving of the Lord can not fail to be acceptable.

Faithfulness counts particularly in service to Christ and he hoped the members through prayer, meditation and constant watchfulness would be able to guard against the danger of lightly treating things sacred.

These officers were elected, President, Mrs. Herbert L. Packard; Vice President, Miss Eleanor Roberts; Secretary and Treasurer, Miss Louisa Allison Ross. The other members of the Guild are Miss Ruth W. Bean, Miss A. Maud Briggs, Mrs. Anna K. Lee, Miss Addie Nichols, Miss Nettie Parlee, Miss Grace Parker, Mrs. William D. Purdom, Miss Amy Rhodes, Miss Gertrude Thorne.

—That the United States Army is wholly unprepared for field service is the startling conclusion to be drawn from the annual report of Inspector Gen. Bell. It holds that the new regulations are largely theoretical or dependent upon the experience of European armies. He says, however, that the weaknesses could be soon removed if the annual manoeuvres could be supplemented or replaced at least once by the march of a complete army corps. He finds that the marching capacity of the infantry is below the mediocre. To remedy these conditions Maj. Gen. Wood has issued orders changing the army discipline. All inspectors will have to submit the troops to an annual field inspection.

The famous New York Mathusheck Pianos are now for sale at Kincaides—Cash or easy payments. tf

HARD DAY FOR HORSES

Two Drop Dead in the Quincy Streets

Thursday was a hard day for horses especially those whose owners sent them on trips to the Brockton fair. Some livery keepers were apparently not particular to whom they let teams, if anything could be judged by some of those that passed through Quincy.

There were many heavily loaded pleasure vehicles that went through Thursday morning bound for Brockton, the horses of which seemed to be all played out. One team in particular was noticed where an old horse whose ribs plainly showed was attached to a carryall in which were four young men who apparently had no feeling for the animal which drew them.

With the hot sultry day and long drive it is not surprising that some of the horses dropped dead in their tracks before reaching home. In Quincy there were at least two fatalities. One attached to a carryall dropped in his tracks near the corner of Franklin and School street, and was soon dead. He was hauled to one side of the street and covered with a blanket until Ward's team came out for him.

The second animal to drop was one that belonged to Hollis of Braintree. He was one of a team of four that had drawn a South Quincy club to the fair. Returning to Quincy he left his party and started for City Square to deliver some empty coffee tanks. When near Alpha hall, however, one of the horses dropped dead He was later taken away by one of Ward's teams.

NO QUORUM FOR MERCHANTS

ciation gave them a fund of $321, which had been deposited in the bank.

Subjects of interest to merchants were discussed informally. One of these was the program advertising nuisance. It was pointed out that the merchants were constantly being approached for advertisements for dance programs and church fairs, none of which were of any benefit to the advertisers. That in many cases coercion was used to force the merchants to advertise. Several merchants said that they had taken a stand and absolutely refused to patronize these schemes. It was suggested it would be a good scheme to have an advertising committee and have all applications for advertisements for church fairs and ball programs turned over to this committee.

Then the question of the life of the association was touched upon. The life of the association depended upon having the members attend the meetings. If the merchants did not take interest enough in the Association to attend its meetings it was useless to try and continue. The gentlemen present believed the merchants should be interested enough in the association to attend meetings without appealing to them by a free feed.

There were a number of important matters pending before association upon which action should be taken.

It was decided to call a special meeting for next Thursday evening, and it is probable that the life or death of the association will depend upon what action the members will take at this meeting ,

The Story of the Short Ballot Cities

A Series of Articles on the New Commission Form of Municipal Government

By RICHARD S. CHILDS

A peaceful revolution!

City after city sweeping away boards of aldermen, mayors and a host of minor officials and setting up new municipal governments on a brand new plan!

A hundred cities have voted for the scheme: sixty-eight have obtained it. The whole nation looks on with amazed enthusiasm at towns that not only get good government, but keep it, election after election! There is probably not a single city which has not its group of men who are enthusiastically organizing some endeavor to secure the commission form of government for their town.

I.

What the "Commission Form" Is

THE spread of this movement is all the more striking because it was begun entirely by accident. Galveston, Tex., after the great flood of 1900 was practically wiped out. So much progressive and constructive work was demanded of the city government that the old system of a board of aldermen and the usual string of independent elective officers broke down. A group of business men petitioned the state government to suspend the local government and replace it temporarily with a commission of five men. This was done, and the whole city was put under the control of five men, three of whom were appointees of the governor. This was where the term "commission" originated, and the name for want of a better description has stuck to it ever since, although the board is no longer a "commission" in the true sense of the word at all.

This commission in Galveston was able to make decisions and get things accomplished in half the time that it took the old board of aldermen to get a resolution referred to a committee. The commission planned and built a sea wall to protect the city against further floods, raised the ground level of a large part of the town, got the city government running again at one-third less annual cost, made a number of important improvements and at the same time reduced the debt and the tax rate.

After two years, during which the politicians were finding precious little to do, the commission was made entirely elective by popular vote, much to the dismay of many good persons in the town, who had been much pleased with the practical success of the governor's commission. Their fears, however, proved groundless, for the people proceeded to elect the same commission and have continued to do it at every election since. Except by death there has been only one change in the personnel of the commission since the beginning.

Galveston's claim that it was the best governed city in the United States made Houston jealous, and after a few years this city petitioned for a similar government and was granted it. Dallas, El Paso, Denison, Waco and Austin have since then followed suit, leaving San Antonio, now the only important city in the state which has not adopted the plan.

A few years after Galveston first began to attract attention some civic workers in Des Moines began to study the subject of popular government in fundamental fashion. They devised what has since become known as the "Des Moines plan," which is simply the commission form of government, with certain interesting additions, known as the initiative, referendum, recall and nonpartisan primary. By the terms of the initiative provision a certain number of people are permitted to present a petition to the commission demanding the passage of a certain ordinance, and if the commission sees fit to refuse the request the matter must be settled by popular vote. By the referendum provision certain matters, particularly the granting of franchises to public utility corporations, must be approved by popular vote before they become law. By the terms of the recall provision, the presentation of a petition containing a certain number of signatures may force any member of the commission to submit the question of his continuance in office to a new election immediately. The nonpartisan primary is simply an eliminating election. All candidates are nominated by petition (no party labels), and the leading ten remain on the ballot for the final election.

The elimination of the party name, symbol and column from the ballot, is a highly significant and characteristic feature of the commission form of government. It excludes the political machines from a great strategic advantage and leaves independent candidates on an exact equality with those proposed by the organizations. The ballot is simply a list of names with a square opposite each, and the voter is instructed to "vote for five." Instead of having a ticket ready made for him, each voter makes up his own ticket. The fact that only five men are to be selected makes this task simple, and there has been found to be no difficulty about it in practice. This Short Ballot, which the voter can vote without the guidance of political experts, is the central and vital feature of the commission plan.

The publicity attendant on the installation of the new government in Des Moines gave the movement new stimulus throughout the country, and it began to be known as the latest and most up to date thing in city government. Many towns adopted it from a mere desire to be abreast of the times and to show the world that they were progressive and enterprising. In some cases the plan met with vigorous opposition, sometimes with a complete lack of interest, while in some cities it carried by an overwhelming vote. Colorado Springs and other cities made a few alterations in the Des Moines plan, such as having the members of the commission elected for terms arranged to expire in rotation, and forbidding party nominations. Grand Junction, Colorado, added the preferential ballot, whereby the voter indicates on the ballot his first, second and third choice. There are various ways of counting the votes, and while the one adopted in Grand Junction is not the most scientific way, it results in a more accurate analysis of public opinion than the plan of straight plurality elections. The preferential ballot makes a primary election needless and thus saves expense.

The minor variations of the commission plan are endless. Except where a state has adopted a general law covering all cities of a certain class, it may be said that no two cities have charters that are alike. Each charter revision commission has reviewed the work done in other cities and has sagely made a few pet alterations in it. In Galveston, for instance, the mayor was the chairman of the commission; otherwise he had no special duties. None of the members of the Galveston commission has specific control over any one department, although there has grown up the custom of allowing each member to specialize in a certain department, and before election it is generally understood which departments the candidates expect to interest themselves in. All matters are decided by majority vote. The members of the commission are paid nominal salaries and are not expected to give all their time to the city and, in fact, simply devote an hour or two a day to it.

Houston gave the mayor veto power over the vote of his four associates on the commission (he has never used it) and allowed the mayor to make certain appointments, paid the members good salaries and demanded that the commissioners devote all their time to the city. Each member of the Houston commission becomes the active superintendent of one of the five departments. This feature has been rather generally followed in other commission governed cities.

An exact definition of the commission plan of government is thus seen to be impossible. The only feature wherein all these "commission" government coincide is the concentration of all the powers of the city, both legislative and executive, in a single small board.

Never in our political history has any phenomenon of this nature been examined with such minuteness or by so many investigators.

Ex-President Charles W. Eliot of Harvard made a tour of the commission governed cities, or "short ballot cities," as he prefers to call them, and returned to Boston so enthusiastic that he was able to win over the town to an acceptance of some of the fundamental features of the plan. Another elaborate inquiry was made by a committee of the state legislature of Illinois, from which everybody expected a hostile report. The committee, however, reported strongly in favor of the plan, stating that everywhere they found that it had won the approval of the people who lived under it.

There have been many explanations offered for the undoubted relative successes of the commission plan. The abolition of the wards, for example, is frequently quoted as an ample reason for the relative success of the new plan. But there are many cities in the United States in which there are no wards. Galveston itself had none before the flood, her city council being elected at large. Commission government is a very common way of governing counties throughout the United States, and the plan there has not been a conspicuous success. There have been many other elected commissions, such as the trustees of the sanitary district of Illinois, and they likewise have never attracted attention by their superior efficiency.

Another loosely reasoned argument frequently used to promote the adoption of the commission plan has been the statement that it is "like a business corporation with its board of directors." Like most catch phrases, however, this statement is only partly true. To be like a business corporation the commission would have to choose a business manager for the city, who in turn would appoint all subordinates and run the business of the city subject to periodical review by the commission. The commission plan, however (except in Galveston), actually provides for the election of department superintendents by the stockholders—a form of organization which has no parallel in business practice.

Most of the explanations are only half true, because they involve a study only of the internal mechanism of the government, whereas the real difference between the old and the new comes at the point of contact between the government and the people, as will be explained in detail in later articles.

Jewelry Store Romances.

A wedding ring whose scratched and dulled surface bespoke years of hard service at washtub and dishpan lay on the jeweler's work table.

"Why has it been laid up for repairs?" a visitor asked. "Has marriage proved a failure?"

"On the contrary, it has turned out a great success, and the ring has been brought back to bear witness," said the jeweler. "See this new inscription, 'Ten years of fidelity and love.' That sounds pretty good, doesn't it? No failure there. Five or ten years from now, if they are both alive, somebody will probably add another postscript, and so on at regular intervals to the end of the chapter. Jewelers meet more of these little romances than the unsentimental person would dream of."—New York Sun.

Politeness.

Politeness is a sort of guard which covers the rough edges of our character and prevents them from wounding others. We should never throw it off even in our conflicts with coarse people.

Wall Papers

A Lady came into our store a few days ago—said she was on her way into Boston to buy the wall paper for her new house but stopped just a minute to get our prices. Her "woman's curiosity" about our prices pleased us and later pleased her. We suggested to her that she visit the largest wall paper store in Boston—make her selection, get the best price possible and then order the goods shipped to us—that when we rendered the bill there would be a substantial discount large enough to buy a new fall hat. She had nothing to lose and something to gain. She followed instructions and made a generous saving on her bill. When she buys her new furniture, she says she will follow our suggestions—which means more money saved for her. You also, can merit by our cut price money saving methods of selling goods.

BRIEFS

Rain and colder was the morning prediction.

Two or three continuous rainy days would be welcome.

Market gardeners and fruit growers have suffered a heavy loss by the recent drought, and the wind has blown lots of apples from the trees.

Mrs. Kate A. Blaisdale picked a large bunch of beautiful lilacs at her former residence on Hancock street, Atlantic on Thursday. Very unusual for October.

DAVID REID TO SPEAK.

Near the Roxbury line on Washington street is a modest building from the top of which floats a banner inscribed "Hope." Inside all is homelike and attractive. David Reid and his good wife are always ready with a welcome. David when a member of the Salvation Army was on the firing line. He never knew the meaning of dress parade. And when he started in to do a special work he gave it the name of "Hope Mission." He will occasionally respond to a request to tell some interesting stories of what has been accomplished by and through him. David's musical talents are varied. When he comes to the Wollaston Congregational church Sunday evening at 7 o'clock, the writer cannot tell whether he will bring all of his instruments including the cornet and violin, but he will not feel at home without some of them, so that when you see David Reid you will not only hear him speak out of a wide experience with men, but you will learn some of the means by which they are lead into a new life. Make a note of this meeting and attend.

DEER IN RESERVATION.

Members of the Metropolitan park lice at the Blue Hills reservation, Milton, saw a young deer near the main entrance to the big park at the junction of Blue Hills and Canton avenues, Wednesday. Apparently unmindful of traffic—the electrics, automobiles and wagons—the animal came within a stone's distance of the thoroughfare and was grazing in a grassy dell when seen by the policemen. This is the first time that deer have been seen in this reservation in a long time, although two years ago it was reported that deer had done damage to the crops near Ponkapoag, a village of Canton and about a mile from the State reservation.—Journal.

"DUMMY" NAMED FOR GOVERNOR

Will Withdraw If Satisfactory Candidate Is Found

DEMOCRATS IN WILD RIOTS

Vahey Brings Delegates to Their Senses by Pointing Out That Nomination Is Lost to Himself and Foss—Chairman Calls on Police to Stop Fights Which Are Carried Right Up to Rostrum—Seventy-Two Hours Allowed by Law For Substitution of Candidates

Boston, Oct. 7.—After wild and disorderly scenes the Democratic state convention adjourned at 1:45 o'clock this morning. James H. Vahey came into the convention hall at 1:30 a. m., haggard and careworn, and begged the delegates to support him in his withdrawal and the compromise ticket which he presented to the convention.

The ticket was made up after a conference of representatives of both leading candidates. The ticket as named is Frederick W. Mansfield, for governor; A. Z. E. Charest of Holyoke, secretary of state; John B. Ratigan of Worcester, attorney general; Charles L. Paine of Hyannis, state auditor; A. C. Peach of Lynn, state treasurer.

It was generally agreed that Mansfield was only a "dummy" candidate, and that today an effort would be made to substitute either William A. Gaston or Joseph C. Pelletier.

All nominations must be filed with the office of the secretary of state before 5 o'clock tonight. The law then says that seventy-two hours may be taken for substitution.

The situation had an element of the pathetic in it when James H. Vahey came to the platform and begged the delegates "for God's sake" to stand by the ticket for which he had withdrawn.

"For God's sake, have some sense. Neither myself nor Mr. Foss can win at this convention," he said. "This is perfectly evident and I withdraw. This fierce struggle here cannot do the party any good. I will sacrifice everything in order that the cause may succeed. We must now get together at this time in the morning and forget that we are not here to gratify either personal or political ambitions."

The convention at Faneuil hall became so wild and disorderly at 12:30 o'clock this morning that Chairman Thayer was compelled to force an adjournment for thirty minutes to give the police an opportunity to quell the riot and stop the fighting that was taking place in all parts of the hall.

The convention had taken two ballots. On the second the Foss supporters came within six votes of nominating their candidate. A third ballot was ordered.

The excitement and contention arising over the method of voting had brought Congressman Keliher and Martin M. Lomasney to the platform. The old ninth district feud brought the supporters of both men about their respective leaders.

Keliher wanted two ballot boxes to facilitate voting. Lomasney wanted the voting to go on as it had been going. Chairman Thayer favored the Keliher plan; the convention supported the Lomasney suggestion.

The supporters of the two men glared and shouted and finally exchanged blows. Thayer ordered the police to clear the platform.

The moment the police moved to action Daniel J. Kiley of Boston attempted to take the chair from Chairman Thayer. He was hurled to one side.

The police hustled into the battling and excited men and pushed them from the platform. Both Keliher and Lomasney were among those pushed from the platform. Lomasney tried to regain his platform position and again went to the ground.

There was fighting and rioting all over the hall. Nearly every other delegate had his fist either in or up to his neighbor's face.

Candidate Vahey, who had witnessed the disorders from the rear of the hall, hastened to join his supporters. He mounted the platform only to meet the police and go floundering back to the floor.

Chairman Thayer kept his head. He saved the convention from breaking up in the wildest kind of riot and adjourning without naming its ticket by not only directing the action of the police so that a temporary cessation of hostilities was secured but also by forcing a short adjournment to secure a conference. The convention had been in almost continuous session from noon.

Although the convention was called at 11 o'clock, it was after midday when Chairman MacLeod of the state committee read the call. The chairman was given a very cordial reception when he swung the big mallet calling the convention together.

The convention got quickly to business. District Attorney Pelletier was made temporary presiding officer. He sounded tariff revision as the campaign slogan and charged the Republicans with being responsible for the high cost of living.

JOSEPH C. PELLETIER
Prospective Candidate
For the Governorship

John R. Thayer, the permanent presiding officer, was given a splendid reception. The Worcester statesman referred to the spirit of unanimity evident in the Democratic party this year in contrast to the "disruption and demoralized condition of the Republican party."

The Vahey and Hamlin supporters united in securing the adoption of the Australian ballot as the method by which the convention should nominate its candidate for governor.

The question of adopting the Australian ballot was then put to the convention and passed unanimously.

Nominating speeches being now in order, James B. Carroll of Springfield, with sleeves rolled up to the elbows, took the platform and advocated the nomination of Hamlin. He referred to the latter's service to the party.

Frank Richardson, who nominated Congressman Foss, emphasized Foss' willingness to go into the breach and make the fight in the Fourteenth district last fall when Hamlin refused to run. The Foss men cheered and cheered again.

The convention was evidently leaning Fosswards when Thomas F. Cassidy took the platform and made the speech of the day in support of Vahey. He caught the sentimental and sympathetic side of the delegates and they went wild over the mention of Vahey's name. The convention broke loose when Cassidy completed his speech.

The Platform

Following is a summary of the platform adopted by the convention:

Tariff revision downward.
Federal income tax, and a decrease of federal extravagance.
Popular election of United States senators.
A universal national parcels post.
More speedy and cheaper justice.
Initiative and referendum, direct nominations, ultimately the public payment of campaign expenses and extermination of the lobby.
Consolidation of existing commissions.
All reasonable labor legislation, including the workingmen's compensation act; reform of injunction abuses; shorter hours for women and children, and the eight-hour bill twice vetoed by Governor Draper.
Local self government.
Restoration of the commercial supremacy of Boston.
Freer trade relations with Canada.
Defeat of Senator Lodge for re-election.
The election of a governor who will force commissions to act in the interests of the commonwealth, instead of suppressing railroad competition and allowing discrimination in milk rates and inspection.
The establishment of agricultural schools.
More tuberculosis legislation and the marking of food packages.
A state finance commission.

Carlisle, Ky., Oct. 7.—Vigilance committee tactics were virtually recommended to the citizens of Nicholas county by Circuit Judge Fryer, when he instructed a special grand jury charged with the duty of investigating recent night-rider troubles in this vicinity.

The court told the citizens to break up night-riding by banding themselves together to capture the marauders, or, if need be, to kill the nocturnal visitors during raids.

AMUSEMENTS

DOINGS ON THE STAGE OF

LOCAL AND BOSTON THEATRES

PARK THEATRE.

Marie Doro, in William Gillettte's new play "Electricity," has made a hit at the Park Theatre, and the charming little actress is in for her usual Boston run. Her great succes in Mr. Gillette's "Clarice," four years ago, prompted the author to write for her this new play. "Clarice" it will be recalled, scored a phenomenal success, remaining in Boston for months. "Electricity" promises to duplicate the popularity of its predecessor, particularly as Marie Doro has a delightful role, which perfectly fits her methods and personality. The latter, piquant and dainty, is well known to playgoers, and in her new role the actress has abundant opportunity for its display. The motive of "Electricity" is a simple one. Miss Twimbly, the restless daughter of the head of a corrupt corporation, has picked up socialistic ideas. She will not marry a man who does not work honestly, according to her definition of honesty; the workman with the paper cap, his brow wet with honest sweat, is her ideal husband. Rich Mr. Hollenden overhears her resolve and at once persuades young Broeway, who is repairing the electric lighting in the plutocrat's house, to let him play the part of electrician. The play is worked out in Mr. Gillette's best comedy methods, the dialogue generously punctuated with wit, humor and homely American philosophy. There will be the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees at the Park during Miss Doro's stay.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

Burr, McIntosh, who for several seasons has been making the success of his career as a star in "A Gentleman from Mississippi," will present at B. F. Keith's theatre next week a new sketch written by himself, called "Out Yonder." Mr. McIntosh will appear in the principal role and be supported by an excellent company. The sketch deals with life in Arizona, is full of humor and breathes the atmosphere of the prairies. Another feature of the same bill will be the famous Jack Wilson, the extemporaneous comedian, who is always springing surprises on his audiences. He will have with him his clever assistants, Ida Lane and Frank Batty. Still another strong combination will be Elphye Snowden and Earl Benham, who won such popularity with "The Follies of 1910., and "Little Nemo." Irene Dillon, another musical comedy favorite, recently with "Dick Whittington," is also on the bill, and other features will be the Pedersen Brothers, in their wonderful acrobatic work; Valerie Bergere's Players presenting "The Sultan's Favorite;" and Hal Merritt, the college boy from Ipswich in a new specialty.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.

No greater treat will be given Boston theatregoers during the coming season than that which will be afforded Hollis Street theatre patrons for three weeks of "The Lily," the most powerful drama which has been shown to theatregoers for more than a score of years. Coming direct from David Belasco's own theatre in New York City with cast and production complete in every detail, it will surely be a treat to see these remarkable performances. The performances will be under the personal supervision of Mr. Belasco. The surest way in which to convince of the remarkable merits of this production and company, next to the fact that Mr. Belasco wrote the play and produced it, is the following list of players who have been appearing in it at Mr. Belasco's own theatre. First among these, of course, is Miss Nance O'Neil, next Charles Cartwright and following them comes Julia Dean. Others include Alfred Hickman, Antoinette Walker, Oscar Eagle, Ethel Grey Terry, Wm. C. Holden, Elliott Dexter, Douglas Patterson and more than a dozen others. The cusomary Wednesday and Saturday matinees will be played, and the engagement begins Monday evening, Oct. 10.

Boston theatregoers will be more than glad to extend cordial greetings to Nance O'Neil. It was in Boston that this sterling actress first got the praise which had been denied her in some other cities. Boston saw the artist and recognized the talent in this brilliant woman of the Golden Gate. New York's blase critics were the worst scoffers. Last season their humiliation was complete. After they saw her in "The Lilly" they wrote over their own signatures that they had been entirely wrong in their impressions of Miss O'Neil, and cheerfully acknowledged that Boston had really shown them the way to a real appreciation of art in the dramatic sence of expression.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

"Girls," which the John Craig Stock Company will play at the Castle Square next week is a comedy about three bachelor maids. Its plot centres around the trials of three young women who go to New York to win fame and fortune without the help of mere man. They keep house together in a flat, cook by means of a chafing dish, and indulge in all these freaks of living that are amusing while they last. They vow never to marry, and to have nothing to do with love, but before long a man invades their sanctuary, and they are soon on the fair road towards the breaking of their oaths. Pam, Vi and Kate are the names of the three bachelor maids and at the Castle Square they will arouse no end of laughter. The play is one of the very last written by Clyde Fitch prior to his untimely death, and it is filled with the humerous dialogue and comic situations at which he was a master-hand. Its scenes are laid in New York, and the atmostphere of the metropolis gives a pungency and liveliness to the entire play. The leader of the three little bachelor maids at the Castle Square will be acted by Mary Young, with John Craig as the first of invading mankind, and Mr. Meek, Mr. Hassell, Miss Colcord, Miss Shirley, Mr. Walker, Mr. Roberts and all the other Craig players will have congenial roles. The scenery will be apropriate The run of "Girls" will be for only one week.

GLOBE THEARTE

Annie Laurie of Maxwelton, the sweetest heroine of history, becomes the center of a stirring drama, surrounded by some of the popular heroes of the end of the seventeenth century,—John Graham of Clavershouse (Bonnie Dundee) General Dalziel, Robert Reid, Douglas of Finland, etc. The scenes are laid toward the end of James Stuart's reign in 1688, when the malcontents were plotting for the landing of William of Orange. According to tradition, Annie Laurie, daughter of the Laird of Maxwelton, was the toast of both Court and Camp, and the beautiful song which comes down to us unimpaired was composed by one of her many admirers; although the music, as we know it, was composed at a much later period. Mr. Douglas Flattery's play is a composite picture of the period, and he takes the usual poet's license in creating a good play first, historical accuracy being a secondary consideration. The characters however, as well as the costuming and scenery, are pronounced by competent critics to be lifelike and convincing. And no prettier love story, no more thrilling romance, has been presented for many a year. Miss Lillian Myers Bacon, of Australia, will make her first appearance in this country in the part of Annie, which will give her ample opportunity to show her versatility, particularly as an emotional actress, in which capacity she has won the leading place in her country, where within the past three years she has been the favorite star.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

Barney Gilmore, the eminent Irish comedian, returns to Boston next week, coming to the Boston Grand Opera House for an engagement of a week in his new play "Kelly from the Emerald Isle," written for him by Mina Shirley. The play is appropriate, coming as it does in Columbus week.

DISMISSAL RECOMMENDED

Punishment For Three First Class Cadets For Silencing Longan

Washington, Oct. 7.—The board of inquiry appointed to investigate the silencing of Captain Longan, by the corps of cadets at West Point, has completed its work, and if its findings are approved by the secretary of war and the president, three cadets will be dismissed. All of them are members of the first class, who would have been graduated and commissioned second lieutenants next June. These men have conduct records that stand against them.

It is expected here that Captain Longan will voluntarily ask to be assigned to his regiment or some other duty. Officers at the academy say that his usefulness as a discipline officer has ceased since the cadets have shown in the most forceful way at their command that they have no respect for him.

Thirty-two ballots were passed which resulted as follows:

Ross	27
Blanks	1

Mr. Buchan, thanked the four men who voted for him, and said that he would heartily endorse Mr. Ross, and support him in every way possible and that with respect to the men who voted for him he moved that the assembly go on record as unanimously nominating Mr. Ross, as a possible candidate.

Mr. LaBrecque made a motion that the secretary send cards to all voters who did not attend the meeting which would enable them to call a special meeting in case they were not satisfied with the choice.

The secretary asked power to have notification cards printed. Mr. LaBrecque objected saying that he could handle the writing of them in an hour. Mr. LaBrecque will write the cards.

The next meeting of the Houghs Neck Associates will be held Thursday, Oct. 13, as Wednesday the 12th is a holiday.

Don't forget the mass meeting at Associates hall, Saturday, Oct. 8, at 8 P. M. Object—to get the opinion of the abutters along Sea street and all parties interested in widening Sea street from "the Willows" so called, to Bird street.

Stage whispers say that it will be a red hot meeting. That there may be no "mis understanding,"—that "we" may not unjustly be accused of any cut and dried schemes, that "we" did not, have not, and cannot be taken as authority for removal of tracks to Sea street. Let the writer state that he thinks as the Associates voted, to widen Sea street, that one main attractive artery to Houghs Neck should be the means of improvement. Babcock street should have the cars, Sea street, the automobiles and the causeway fixed at the earliest moment. But widen Sea street. This makes our position clear. But you never can tell what next will be imagined about your good thoughts.

Clancy the Democratic plasterer and contractor general, is proud to be one of the 23 democratic voters of Ward 1. There's no "skidoo" in it for him. He says he is going to start an Irish colony down here. Already five relatives have landed, here, and Clancy put them all at work and he isn't through checking the list yet.

Charles Snow of Charles street is busy building. He is soon to marry a sweet maiden from Jamaica Plain. Clancy put in the chimney and cellar. It could not be ascertained for whom the house was built, but the contractor says the maiden will adorn its enclosure.

The Ledger will be pleased to have their Houghs Neck boy deliver a paper to you, upon notification. Houghs Neck seems glad to get a clean reliable paper as can be seen by the increasing orders of Master Joseph Files 1062 Sea street.

Charles E. Decker.

GREATEST MECHANICS FAIR.

The great Mechanics Fair in Mechanics building, Boston, was opened most auspiciously Monday morning, and now is running smoothly and swiftly along delighting thousands every day. Possibly never before in the history of entertainments of any kind in Boston has so much been given for so small a financial consideration. After one passes the turnstiles all of the attractions, and they are of the best, are absolutely free to patrons and there are no charges for seats. One can most profitably pass an entire day at this exposition—one day is altogether too short a time to see and enjoy its wonderful sights and sounds—and the time can be passed in the greatest comfort too, for on every hand there are opportunities, not only for sightseeing and study, but for supplying bodily needs, such as rest, food and entertainment of the lighter sort. It has been well said that this Mechanics Exposition of 1910 is a veritable city within a city; about all things to be found in a well-ordered community are here in abundance, splendidly selected and most attractively displayed. The week of the 10th instant will be the last of the engagement of the famous United States Marine Band, for on Monday the 17th instant the celebrated band of the 75th regiment of Canada, from Lunenberg, Nova Scotia, comes to play for the final two weeks of the exposition.

RECOGNIZED AS REPUBLIC

Principal Cities In Portugal Accept New Regime

FORMER PREMIER STEPS OUT

Turns Over His Office to Provisional President Braga—Public Order Restored Throughout the Country—Poclamation Issued by Provisional Government to Portuguese People—Royal Family Safe at Gibraltar

London, Oct. 7.—King Manuel of Portugal is an exile from his capital, which remains for the moment at least in the undisputed control of the revolutionists. Public order has been restored at Lisbon and throughout the country generally, and the populace are peacefully celebrating the advent of the republic proclaimed Wednesday.

This much is known from the few cable dispatches that the censor has permitted to go out of the capital and from wireless messages sent from vessels in the harbor. Of other events throughout Portugal little definite has been learned, but it is stated that all of the principal cities have proclaimed the republic.

There are rumors of royalist forces moving on the capital and threatening civil war. These cannot be confirmed, but the loyalists are said to cherish the hope that an uprising in the country districts will restore the monarchy.

Theophile Braga, the provisional president, is a poet and economist. He has been an avowed Republican for forty years, but only recently made his entry into politics. He is essentially a man of the people.

Bernadino Machado, who is the most profound politician of the Republican party, is a candidate for the presidency of the new republic.

The other members of the government are lawyers or professors of ability.

"The people, army and navy have succeeded in proclaiming a republic. The Braganza dynasty, mischievous and disturbing to social peace, has been forever exiled from Portugal. This rare event, representing the pride of an untamable race and the salvation of a country, whose bravery is proverbial, fills with enthusiastic joy the hearts of patriots and finally ends our country's bondage. Our aspiration for a regime of liberty stands revealed brightly in its virgin essence.

"Citizens! The present moment redeems and recompenses for all struggles and the sorrowful apprehensions we endured. This moment must be the commencement of a period of austere morality and immaculate justice, in order that the glorious communion of principles shall make of our sacrifices for our country the base of our political program and our generosity towards the vanquished the base of our moral program.

"Citizens! Let interest for our beloved country animate you, and a single desire—that to be great—unite you. The republic has confidence in the people for the maintenance of social order, respect for justice and devotion to the common cause of liberty. Consolidate with your love and sacrifice the work which springs from the Portuguese republic."

The revolution was decided upon only at 8 o'clock Monday night, upon the urgent insistence of Admiral Reis. The government had ordered the cruiser Don Carlos to leave port the following day. This tardy decision prevented profiting by all the elements favorable to the revolutionists.

Some of the positions held by the revolutionists in Lisbon have been reinforced as a precaution against possible attacks by troops which have not yet adhered to the republic.

Manuel Safe at Gibraltar

Gibraltar, Oct. 7.—King Manuel of Portugal is now under British protection. The Portuguese royal yacht Amelie, having on board the king, the queen mother, the dowager queen and the Duke of Oporto, entered this harbor at 11 o'clock last evening. Shortly afterward the king and the queen mother came ashore and drove to the summer residence of Governor Forestier-Walker, at Europa Point.

Judging from the appearance of the crew which manned the Amelie, they were gotten together hurriedly.

LOVE FOR A DANCER

It Is Declared to Have Helped Manuel Lose His Throne

Vienna, Oct. 7.—"I know no disgrace in being the 'sweetheart' of a king, but I would consider it everasting disgrace to advertise our reationship, glorified as it was by a ove which even court and convention-

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral Tickling

ality could not throttle," said Portugal's "uncrowned queen," Mlle. Gaby Deslys, whose twinkling toes brought Manuel to his knees, a subject instead of a king, cost the boy ruler his fortune and his throne and caused him to be sent out into the night like a hunted beast, plunged into civil war that snuffed out hundreds of lives, and sent a dynasty rolling into the dust, as she glorified her relations with the youthful ex-monarch in an interview with a representative of the press.

Mlle. Deslys is appearing at the Apollo theatre here, dancing lightheartedly before vast audiences, while each hour brings tidings of the ruin that followed her reign as friend of Portugal's king.

The story is not a new one in the long history of the downfall of kings and monarchs. The dancing girl and Manuel were together constantly in Paris and when the youthful king returned to Lisbon he took her with him.

The king and Mlle. Deslys were again constant companions. They drove together daily and were apparently devoted to each other. The populace might have overlooked the boy king's attachment as a caprice if he had not commenced heaping fortunes in jewels and costly gowns upon her.

Her slightest wish was gratified, no matter what the cost. All this time the people were hungry and wanted work and industrial and financial conditions were such that the commoners were being ground in the dust.

AWAITS EUROPEAN ACTION

United States Is In No Hurry to Recognize Portuguese Republic

Washington, Oct. 7.—The state department will act slowly in announcing that the United States recognizes the republic established in Portugal. The interests of the United States in Portugal are insignificant as compared with those of European countries. England, France and Germany will be the best judges, it is believed, of the ability of the enemies of the monarchy to establish a new form of government. Should any of the powers signify its intention to recognize the Republican form of government, Secretary Knox will lose little time in welcoming a new republic into the world.

It is considered here that the English warships will afford ample protection for all American interests in Portugal. Should later developments endanger American citizens or property, however, this government will be in a position to rush assistance. The cruiser Des Moines is at Gibraltar and the gunboats Petrel and Wheeling are at Genoa. These three vessels could be rushed to Lisbon with little delay, but thus far the state department has given no intimation to the navy department that it would require the services of the warships.

—The side-wheeled steamer Mayflower, used between Boston and Nantasket is to be lenghthened 20 feet, increasing her capacity from 2,000 to 2,500 passengers.

☞Dates for the winter season of Alpha and Union Halls are being rapidly booked at the present time.

PLENTY OF WATER.

W. N. Davenport, secretary of the Metropolitan water and sewer board, says there is no danger of a scarcity of water being felt in the district supplied by the metropolitan system on account of the drouth that at present extends throughout New England. Even should there be no rain for nine months, Mr. Davenport said there would still be plenty of water to go around. The storage capacity of the metropolitan reservoirs is 80,000,000,000 gallons and there are on hand at present between 66,000,000,000 and 67,000,000,000 gallons of water. Yet the commission forced the cities to put in meters claiming danger of shortage.

DEAD AT SOLDIERS' HOME

Benjamin Bass Formerly Superintendent of Gas Cy.

Word was received this morning of the death at the Soldiers' Home at Chelsea of Benjamin F. Bass of Quincy, a former well known resident of this city. Mr. Bass will be remembered in connection with the Citizens' Gas Light Co., where he was for many years employed as superintendent. It was while here that he discovered water gas, although he never turned his discovery into commercial use. Later it was discovered by others who made use of it. Mr. Bass was of an ingenious turn of mind and while with the Gas company, invented many valuable appliances from which others profited.

He was also the builder of the famous yacht Rocket which won so many prizes in her day and which eventually passed into the ownership of Henry M. Faxon, who sailed her in many races and captured many prizes with her. Several years ago Mr. Bass went to the Soldiers' Home to pass his remaining days.

He was born in Quincy, Aug. 31, 1835, and always lived here. When the Civil war broke out he enlisted for three months in Co. H. of the 4th regiment and was discharged at the expiration of his term of service.

BOY RUN OVER.

James Keating, the six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Keating, of Chestnut street, had a close call about 5.30 Thursday afternoon while playing in the street at the head of Cottage avenue. The automobile of E. Burton Hill of Milton, an employee at the shipyard, was approaching City Square, and Mr. Hill was proceeding cautiously as he observed the boy, but the boy was throwing things into the air and chasing them, and suddenly changed his course, darting in front of the car. He was knocked down and the car passed over him, probably without touching him.

Peter F. Talbot, who lives near by, witnessed the accident, and carried the boy to his home. Mr. Hill stopped and deeply regretting the accident. Dr. Middleton responded promptly. He found no bones broken but the boy was more or loss injured, and will be laid up for awhile. Bystanders do not consider Mr. Hill responsible for the accident.

BOY SCOUTS.

The Wollaston Boys' club held its weekly meeting in the chapel of the Baptist church on Thursday evening. After the reading of the scout rules by Lester H. Clee of Y. M. C. A. a company of Boy Scouts was formally organized. The boys were divided into six groups of ten each, with a scout master over each group. The scout masters will meet at the Y. M. C. A. on Saturday afternoon to receive further instructions. For the meeting on next Thursday a spread has been arranged and the club will be addressed by an officer of the Boston Y. M. C. A. Plans were discussed for the formation of a football team and Messrs. Hooper and Gilliat were appointed to organize the same.

NEW ENGLAND ALLIANCE.

The New England Associate Alliance met in the First Parish church of Kennebung, Maine on Thursday. There was a fine program throughout, and although it was very hot in the cities the weather was fine in the town. The Quincy and Wollaston Alliance sent a number of delegates to the convention. Among them were: Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, president of the New England Alliance, Mrs. Edward Marsh, Mrs. W. B. Nichols, Mrs. Carl G. Horst and Mrs. Frank A. Page. The metropolitan district was well represented, as a while, and Maine of course sent large numbers to the meeting. The convention was the best and most largely attended ever held by the Alliance.

Rev. Daniel Wilson, former pastor of the First church Quincy, and now pastor of the First Parish church in Kennebunk, gave the greeting to the ladies at the opening of the convention.

"Have you anything to say before we eat you?" asked the King of the Cannibal Isles of the pale-faced stranger.

"I should like to address a few words to you on the advantages of a vegetarian diet," was the reply.—Answers.

PRESENTATION BY KNIGHTS

After an Interesting Talk on Base Ball

Edward J. Murphy, past grand knight of Quincy council, Knights of Columbus, wears a handsome diamond ring today, the ring being a gift from the council as a mark of appreciation for his services for the council while in office. The presentation took place at Colonial hall Thursday evening and was a complete surprise to Mr. Murphy.

The main object of the gathering was to listen to a talk by Tim Mullane of the Boston Globe on "Base ball players I have known and met." The talk was an exceedingly interesting one. During the talk the speaker had a good word to say for Charlie Ganzel of Quincy, a former member of the Bostons.

After the talk, City Solicitor John W. McAnarney was called upon and after a few remarks he ended his little speech by presenting Mr. Murphy a diamond ring. The presentation was a complete surprise, and it was with difficulty that Mr. Murphy found words to express his thanks.

Before the meeting adjourned, a committee was appointed to arrange for a ladies' night to be held in the near future.

THE RED-LEAF DAYS.

Emerson Palmer.

The red-leaf days make glad the heart
The autumn tints have come again.
The color glows on hill and plain.
Yet tears unbidden almost start!

The red-leaf days delight the eye,
Though leaves may russet be or brown,
As they fall fluttering softly down.
Yet scarce can I repress a sigh!

The red-leaf days restore the soul
That looks through nature to the end,
That sees how Death with Life doth blend,
And grasps the meaning of the whole.

Let me find peace in you, not gloom.
I know the earth again will bloom
When potent Spring her sceptre sways.

—The political outlook in Massachusetts in November is for a very hot spell followed by a freeze. You can figure it out for yourself who will be frozen; your guess is as good as anyone's else.—Brockton Enterprize.

CLOSE CALL FOR CONDUCTOR

Fell Onto Tracks in Front of Moving Car

A. Ryan, one of the conductors on the street railway, had a narraw escape this morning from serious if not fatal injury. He had charge of a car due in City Suare shortly before 8.30. His motorman was Robert Eagan. As the car was coming up the hill on Newport avenue toward Adams street the dead leaves on the track prevented the wheels of the car from holding, and it began to slide back down the hill even the brake not being able to hold it.

At this point Ryan stood on the rear fender and grabbed hold of the trolley rope to keep the trolley pole from being caught. Suddenly this rope broke and he was thrown backwards onto the track directly in the path of the car. The car rolled onto him and the passengers were spellbound for a minute, as it was thought that his life would be crushed out. Fortunately however, the pilot board in front of the wheels hit him and pushed him one side enough so that he was able to roll out of the way of the wheels. A great sigh of relief went up when it was seen that he had not been killed. Ryan did not fully escape injury, however, for his face was badly scratched up where he was pushed along the rough ground.

The Y. M. C. A. bowling league season will open Nov. 7. Quincy, Taunton, North Abington, East Weymouth and Hyde Park are the cities represented. Each team will roll with every other team on the home alleys thus making a schedule of ten games.

—Heaven help the man who imagines he can dodge enemies by trying to please everybody! If such an individual ever succeeded we should be glad of it—not that we believe in a man going through the world trying to find beams to knock and thump his poor head against, disputing every man's opinion, fighting and elbowing and crowding all who differ with him. That, again, is another extreme. Other people have a right to their opinion, so have you; don't fall into the error of supposing they will respect you less for maintaining it, or respect you more for turning your coat every day to match the color of theirs. Wear your own colors in spite of wind or weather, storm or sunshine. It costs the vacillating and irresolute ten times the trouble to wind and shuffle and twist that it does honest, manly independence to stand its ground.—Ware ham Courier.

DEMOCRATS ALL AT SEA

Gaston and Pelletier Will Not Accept

No standard bearers of the Democratic party had been secured up to 1 o'clock. Frederick W. Mansfield, who was nominated early this morning for Governor, has resigned. An eort was made to get Willfliam A. Gaston to take the nomination, but he refused on the ground that his financial interest would not allow him to run. At noon the leaders were trying to get District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier to consent to take the nomination, but he has not been persuaded at present.

Mayor Fitzgerald came out with a statement this noon that either Gaston or Pelletier could win.

In case Pelletier refuses, which now seems probable, the leaders will try and compromise on some other candidate.

The Turkish Doctors' Oath.

In Turkey they have a Hippocratic oath, though they do not call it by that name. It is given in Al-Kulliyeh, the magazine published by the Syrian Protestant college in Beirut. To each of the graduates in medicine the oath was administered by the Turkish head of the medical examining board. We cite a few of the pledges:

"That when I am called at the same time by two different patients, the one rich and the other poor, I will accept the call of the poor without taking into consideration the money offered and will do my best for his treatment, and that I will never decline to answer any call, day or night, during the reign of common diseases or of an epidemic or of contagious diseases.

"That I will not ask extra fees from the patients and will not act against my conscience by exaggerating their sickness in order to get the calling fees.

"That in case of a doubt as to the treatment of a patient I will not leave his life in danger through a failure to consult other doctors on account of my pride."

Modern Bookmaking.

A large bindery may have a capacity of 10,000 books a day. The resources of some of these binderies are wonderful. There is an instance on record where a publishing house took an order on Monday for a cloth covered 12mo. volume of 350 pages and actually shipped 2,000 copies of the book on the following Wednesday. The type was set by machinery for the entire 350 pages before work stopped Monday night. Electrotype plates were made so rapidly that on Tuesday morning several printing presses were set in motion. In the meantime covers were made in the bindery, and by Wednesday morning the binders had the book in hand. Two thousand volumes were completed that day, and the edition of 10,000 was entirely out of the way before Saturday night. In modern bookbinding machinery, as in the production of printing presses, America leads the world.—Philadelphia North American.

Women Prisoners In Japan.

The cells in every Japanese prison are practically sleeping dormitories, as the prisoners are engaged in the work sheds all day or attending lectures and lessons in educational subjects, deportment and morality. The small Japanese woman prisoner is even taught how to serve tea properly, because the Japanese have grasped the fundamental truth that whatever raises a woman's self respect helps to eliminate bad habits—in a word, to reform her. The keen zest of the prisoners in Japan contrasts with the hopeless, hunted look of our women prisoners in England. In Japan the women prisoners are learning, learning, learning all the time. They are given prizes and decorative rewards for excellence. They are being encouraged instead of repressed. Everything is done to instill a real desire for permanent reform.—London Express.

In Memoriam.

A policeman was entertaining some friends to an afternoon tea, when one of them, with an inquisitive turn of mind, happened to see on a shelf a glass shade, underneath which was a brick, with some flowers upon it.

The friend, thinking they were mementos of some heroic deeds or were perhaps of some historical interest, asked the policeman why he kept that brick underneath the glass shade.

"That brick," replied the son of the night, "is what I had thrown at me at the last election."

"And what about the flowers?" further inquired the friend.

"Them flowers," continued the policeman, with a smile that wouldn't come off, "came off the grave of the man that threw the brick."—Pearson's.

No Profit In It.

"What are you kicking about? She returned all your presents, didn't she?"

"Yes, but the expressage amounted to more than the presents were worth!"

No Right to Live.

Beggar—Won't you give me some money, professor? My money is all gone, and I can't live.

Professor—How old are you?

Beggar—Forty years, sir.

Professor—Forty years! Don't you know that according to the latest mortality tables the average age of the male population of Europe reaches only thirty-four years and five months? Statistically you have no right to live any longer anyway!—Meggendorfer Blatter.

Perhaps.

NO SCORES YET AGAINST QUINCY HIGH

Abington High the Fourth Team to be Smothered at Football

Score Was 37 to O in Favor of Quincy Boys

In spite of the rain, Abington high showed up for the game yetserday at Quincy, and although defeated, the team put up a good game but were no match for Quincy High. At times the Abington men were very effective but they lacked the power necessary to break through the opposing line.

On the first kickoff, the ball bounced along the ground, as it fell off the mound just bfore Arthur reached it. Johnson got the ball on the 30-yard line. Good gains by Rice and Hill brought the ball to the 4-yard line where it was lost on downs. Abington gained well in turn. Johnson and Harmon did some good tackling. Abington kicked, but the ball slipped out of Larkin's arms and Abington recovered it near the center of the field. Rice tackled the man from the rear. Abington tried an on-side kick but it failed to go the required distance, and a 10-yard penalty was given.

Harmon made another good tackle on the next rush. Abington lost the ball on downs. Hill and Harmon made long gains up the field. Johnson did fine work in making holes for the backs to get through. After a fumble Arthur kicked to the 2-yard line. Johnson blocked the kick and Chapman fell on the ball for a touchdown. No Goal. Score 5-0.

SECOND QUARTER

At the opening of the second quarter, Brett ran the ball back 20-yards on the kick-off. During the rushes that followed, White and Johnson did some great tackling. Abington tried a forward pass and Johnson got the ball. Hill made a long gain. Harmon fumbled. Larkin and Chapman worked a pretty forward pass for a touchdown. No goal. Score 10-0.

On the kick-off Clark muffed the ball but it was recovered by an Abington man. In the next rush Pfaffmann made a clever tackle. An onside kick was tried but Arthur got the ball. Rice made a long gain. Harmon fumbled but Rice recovered the ball. Hill made a long gain to the 5-yard line. Harmon brought the ball to the 1-yard line where Abington held. A quarter back trick gained two yards. After another attempt to make the distance Abington punted. Rice received the ball. Hill made no gain. Johnson opened up a hole for Harmon in two successive rushes and Arthur in a tackle back plunged through the line for a touchdown. He also kicked the goal. 16-0.

Hill received the kick off. Rice gained well on an end run. Quincy tried a forward pass but the whistle was blown befoer the ball was caught.

THIRD QUARTER.

The sensational play of the game came at the opening of the third quarter. Hill received the ball on the kick-off and ran the length of the field for a touchdown. The interference was good and Hill did not break away from it until the 35 yard line was reached. He slid by two men by his own efforts and beat out a third who gave chase. Arthur kicked the goal. Score 22-0.

At the kick off, three men were offside, and the ball was placed five-yards back for a second try. White made a good tackle. In the succeeding rushes Prout and Tirrell tackled

TO HAVE MODERN EQUIPMENT

New Quincy Blue Granite Quarry Company Incorporated

The new granite company, to be known as the Quincy Blue Granite Quarry Co., mentioned in the Daily Ledger a few days ago, was organized under the laws of Massachusetts yesterday. The incorporators are John L. Miller, Henry McGrath, Andrew Milne, Napoleon Reed, Armand Vendret, P. T. Fitzgerald and Byron C. Miller. The following were elected directors: John L. Miller, Napoleon Reed, Andrew Milne, Henry McGrath, and P. T. Fitzgerald. Napoleon Reed was elected treasurer and Andrew Milne clerk. At a subsequent meeting of the directors John L. Miller was chosen president and managing director and Henry McGrath vice-president.

The company takes over all the rights and titles of the old Field Wild quarry, which without exception produces the best dark granite, and experts in quarries claim this is the best quarry proposition in the city. The new company will commence at once to equip the quarry with modern up-to-date equipment.

A quarry with four of the oldest manufacturing firms in the business behind it, and one of the younger firms of hustlers, surely has an advantage that no quarry every had, and means much for the granite indu..tries of our city. For the present each firm interested in the corporation will maintain their own indentity in the manufacturing business, but it will only be a question of time when further consolidation of that part of the business can be looked for, to save the wastful practice of running so many separate plants, when one up-to-date plant can produce the wohle at a great saving in expense and energy.

RUN OVER BY AUTO.

Miss Georgiana C. Lane had her hand badly injured in going to the rescue of her dog who was run over by an automobile on Adams street on Thursday evening. As usual the autoists sped away without apology leaving the dog in agony in the street. Miss Lane who was driving with a friend hastened to the dog's assistance and in some way in looking him over and getting him into the carriage was cut or scratched so that her hand bled profusely and needed the attention of a doctor.

The dog is reported better today and it is thought has no internal injuries. Friends of Don and his mistress are glad the accident was no worse.

HACKETT OF QUINCY THE MARATHON WINNER

Over Five Minutes Ahead of Piggot the Second Man at Brockton Fair Grounds

His Time Better Than Last Year —2 H., 27 M, and 9 S.

For the second time William J. Hackett, a product of the Fore River school for apprentices, wearing the colors of the Brookline gymnasium A. A., has won the great Brockton fair Marathon race, making the fastest time that has ever been made over the course.

He ran a wonderfully well-judged race yesterday from start to finish. He did not take the lead of the van of runners until within a mile from the intrance to the grounds. Then he passed DeMar of the North Dorchester, A. A., with Dick Piggott of the Cambridgeport gym a good second. The later however was not equal to the task of overtaking Hackett who was never headed after taking the lead. At the grand finish Hackett had circled the half mile trotting track once before Piggot and DeMar put in an appearance.

After DeMar had lost his lead he seemed to lose the spirit which he had maintained from the third to the 23d mile, yet he gamely struggled around the track. With just an even mile to go Piggott swept past him but he was not able to overtake the fleety Hackett.

When Hackett loped across the line at the finish he duplicated a feat that had been only once before performed in the history of long distance running, that is winning the same event twice in succession. The only other man to do this was John J. Coffrey of Hamilton, Ont. who captured the B. A. A. classic in 1900 and 1901. Hackett also clipped his former record over this same course some seconds, his time yesterday being 2 h., 27m., 9s.

Piggott who finished second was also the runner to finish second a year ago. He also clipped his previous record by 7 minutes, 20 seconds.

Hackett was always in the commanding position, and although not in the lead as early as a year ago he was never far behind the leader, and when the time came for him to put on the burst of speed necessary to take the lead he possessed the necessary energy to do it. DeMars defeat at a time when he was so near the finish was a sore disappointment to his friends, who had implicit faith in his ability to hold the lead and win the race.

Although rain fell almost constantly during the race, it was an ideal day for the arduous grind. The roads in some places were well ankle deep with dust before the race were hard and the wind cooled the runners as much as the rain refreshed them. The weather, however, prevented as large crowds along the course as a year ago.

There was plenty of enthusiasm at the finish, Gov. Draper, Senator

The man who invented ball should be highly esteemed by the beef trust.

"Adulterated" eggs is the latest output of the food trust. Next thing it will be reinforced chicken.

"Uncle Joe" refuses to go into vaudeville. He couldn't begin to express all his feelings in a half hour stunt.

Although it is still quite a time before election, perhaps a little advice to the voters of the town will not be amiss. Don't stay away from the polls because the weather is not propitious or you think you cannot take the time to vote. This is better than staying at home and then getting a grouch because your favorite candidate didn't win. If you want him to be elected cast your ballot for him and thus help out all you can.

The new holiday, Columbus day, Oct. 12, seems to be destined to be a very popular one judging by the preparations that are being made in many cities for its observance. The great order of the Knights of Columbus is especially interested and is planning parades and celebrations on a very elaborate scale. If Columbus could be on hand now and see the almost unbelievable transformation of the western continent since he first set foot on it he would probably be at a loss for words. Well we are glad he discovered us and whether he was the first man to do it, or not, America has certainly proved a great "find."

Again Quincy's greatest charity is in need. Again "Our Hspital" is appealing to the people of Quincy for money to carry on the current expenses of the year. It is needless to go into detail about the meaning of "Hospital Week." It has come to be household term. Every year the good people of the city are asked to contribute something to help the cause along and every year these same good people have done their duty. Now, dear people, the appeal is sent out again, and we feel sure that you will at once respond to the call in the same generous way as in the past.

As will be seen in the advertisement on the front page of today's issue, this year's Hospital Week will be during the week beginning October 16 and ending October 23. One week from tomorrow the collectors will go into every section of the city. Every home will be visited and at every home an envelope will be left. Later in the week the collectors will call for the envelope and we urge everyone to have his or her envelope ready with some contribution. We know that all cannot give large sums, but we earnestly hope that each and every one will give something. Charity begins at home, but who knows when the need of the hospital will come to his home.

The hospital is called "Our Hospital" and well it may. For it is indeed ours. A worthy and honorable son of Quincy left the hospital to the people of Quincy and it is their duty since they have accepted it, to help support it. There is a generous endowment, but the current expenses make it necessary to have a little to pay the running expenses for the year. This is what you people help to do by contributing a little every year. Now good people do your duty. Do not be found wanting. If you do it will be the first time you ever have.

In a list of 107 cities of 25,000 to 100,000, issued by the National Census Bureau, 50 made a better percentage of gain than Quincy, and 56 a smaller percentage of gain, so that Quincy is above the average in rapid growth with 36.6 per cent. Seven cities showed rates of 100 per cent or more, viz.: Oklahoma City and Muskogee, Okla.; Birmingham, Ala.; Flint, Mich.; Fort Worth, Texas, Schenectady, N. Y.; Dallas, Texas; and Waterloo, Iowa.

Twenty-six cities gained from 50 to 99 per cent; ten from 40 to 49; seventeen (including Quincy) from 30 to 39 per cent; twenty from 20 to 29 per cent; twenty-five under 20 per cent, while two cities lost.

Some of the cities making a smaller per cent of gain than Quincy were: Altoona, Pa.; Auburn, N. Y.; Aurora, Ill.; Battle Creek, Mich.; Binghamton, N. Y.; Camden, N. J.; Covington, Ky.; Davenport, Iowa; Dubuque, Iowa; Easton, Pa.; Elgin, Ill.; Elmira, N. Y.; Erie, Pa.; Evansville, Ind.; Hartford, Conn.; Haverhill, Mass.; Hoboken, N. J.; Holyoke, Mass.; Jackson, Mich.; Joliet, Ill.; Joplin, Mo.; Kingston, N. Y.; La Crosse, Wis.; Lancaster, Pa.; Little Rock, Ark.; Lynn, Mass.; McKeesport, Pa.; Malden, Mass.; Manchester, N. H.; Meriden, Conn.; Mobile, Ala.; Newburgh, N. Y.; Newcastle, Pa.; Newport, R. I.; Newton, Mass.; Oshkosh, Wis.; Pawtucket, R. I.; Peoria, Ill.; Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Racine, Wis.; Reading, Pa.; Saginaw, Mich.; Salem, Mass.; Savannah, Ga.; Somerville, Mass.; Taunton, Mass.; Troy, N. Y.; Utica, N. Y.; Waltham, Mass.; Watertown, N. Y.; Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; Williamsport, Pa.; Wilmington, Del.; and York, Pa.

Quincy certainly has an enviable growth, and when anybody says that Quincy is dull or slow just quote to him the figures. Less than 200 cities in the United States are larger than Quincy while thousands are smaller.

BUSY! BUSY!

Busy! with a great big exclamation mark describes the condition of everyone at the Ledger Office. Way back in August during the vacation season when every one else was getting a restful outing, work started in with a rush and there has been no let up since.

Instead of taking every job of printing brought in we have realized our capacity and much against our inclination have had to refuse some. It seemed wise to do this instead of accepting the job and then disappointing our customers because it was not done when wanted.

Our motto has always been good work delivered when promised. Taking more than it is possible to do seems poor policy to us and is sure to result in too much haste and consequent poor work or a disappointed customer. Poor work we will not do.

We have added to our force and also put in another type-setting machine in an endeavor to keep ahead of our orders. But don't crowd gentlemen, one at a time.

At the Ledger Office you can get what you want, a good job of printing or an attractive ad. as we are adding to our equipment every day and are right up to date

"FROM CAVE LIFE TO CITY LIFE."

A band of thirty full blooded Iroquois Indians—warriors, squaws and papooses—will take the trail for Boston about Nov. 8 to appear in the Civic Pageant, "From Cave Life to City Life," to be presented by Boston-1915 in the Arena, Nov. 10-12. These Red men will act in the episodes showing colonial and pre-colonial times. Their dialogues, songs, etc., will be given entirely in native dialect. The Indians live on a New York State reservation and are already familiar with pageant work as they have taken part during the past summer in a successful production of Hiawatha given at New Rochelle, N. Y.

The various schools of the Metropolitan District will impersonate the changes in methods and ideals of education, which will be followed by a scene showing the characteristics of "The Perfect City of the Future," represented by groups from many nations joining in their native dances

The final feature of the pageant will be a tableau representing "Boston and Her Neighbors." This scene will be impersonated by thirty figures representing the surrounding districts of the city, grouped around a center figure impersonating Boston itself. All of the pageanters will pass before this final group and take their places for the last assembly, when all will be grouped appropriately, audience and performers joining in the singing patriotic hymns.

EVANGELISTIC SERVICES.

Beginning Sunday Oct. 9, a series of evangelistic services will be held in the Hall Place M. E. church. These services are to be held every evening except Saturday and will continue throughout the month of October. The new song books will be used for the first time Sunday evening. These services are to be held in accordance with the simultaneous evangelistic services throughout the Boston district of Methodist churches. This district includes about 159 Methodist churches all of which will be engaged in this work at the same time.

NO SCORES YET AGAINST QUINCY

well. Abington attempted a forward pass, but it failed and Quincy was given the ball. Harmon and Rice brought the ball up the field with substantial gains. Hill was tackled for a loss, and a forward pass was tried but failed to gain the distance. Abington rushed the ball back down the field for 30-yards on two or three plays. A forward pass gained another five but the ball was lost on a fumble in the next rush. Hill made a long end-run for 20 yards. Chapman added another 20 by means of a forward pass. When he was tackled he spun around on his neck and although not hurt badly he was taken out and Church went in at end. Quincy brought the ball to the 2-yard line. Abington was offside on the next play, but Quincy refused the penalty. Harmon broke through the line for a touchdown. No goal. Score 27-0.

On the kick off Church wa down fast and made a pretty tackle. On the next rush Arthur tackled his man for a loss. A forward pass was tried but was blocked by Church. The ball was fumbled on the next play but time was up before Quincy could make use of its recovery.

Quincy received the kick off and good gains by Rice and Hill brought the ball to the 2-yard line where Abington held. Johnson did some more fine tackling on the next rush. The ball was fumbled on the second rush and Quincy again started for the goal. Hill made no gain. Rice went through for a touchdown. No goal. Score 32-0.

On the kick-off the ball bounced out of the hands of the Abington man and into Chapman's arms. Hill made good gains on two successive rushes. The ball was fumbled in the next play but Hill recovered it. Rice made a gain of 3-yards but Quincy failed to get their distance. Abington tried a forward pass which Hill scouped in and brought over the line for a touchdown. No goal. Score 37-0.

Pfaffmann was down with the ball on the kick-off and tackled his man in fine style. Abington fumbled. Rice and Arthur made gains of 5 and 2 yards on the next two rushes but time was called before another touchdown could be made.

Abington had a good team with lots of snap to it but the Quincy line could break through their line too easily, and owing to the condition of the ball fumbles were ferquent. The visitors seemed to be able to gain when they had the ball, but lost it nearly eevry time on fumbles. Quincy fumbled considerably but the men had their eyes open and recovered the ball in nearly every instance.

Larkin played a wonderfully good game at quarter. He ran the team well and in spite of the slippery condition of the ball, made some excellent forward passes. Johnson was prominent in line play and did great work i nblocking and making interference. All three ends played first class football and the back field worked like a machine with first one part and then another making the big noise.

Prout appeared for the first time in the line-up and did very good work for one who has not ben training. White showed a marked improvement in defensive work. Arthur played his usual powerful game at tackle. The team as a whole played a rattling good game but there was some trouble on the line in offensive work.

The supporters of the team turned out in good numbers for such a disagreeable day, and there was some cheering when a good play or a touchdown was made. If the game with Melrose is arranged for Columbus day we hope the day will be auspicious and the cheering enthusiastic for the High school has a team this year which should call forth a great deal of enthusiasm and Melrose will be no mean opponent.

HACKETT WINS

Lodge and other of the dignitaries present freely applauding.

The start was made from the B. A. A. club house, Boston promptly at noon, and at the sound of the pistol shot 32 hardy runners started an their long trip.

The runners strung out in Indian fashion, and it was near Blue Hill avenue when DeMar took the lead with Harrop second and Hackett and Cleary third. There was but little difference in the relative position of the leaders until Randolph avenue was reached. The top of the hill at the Quincy line was reached in just an hour, and DeMar was a quarter of a mile in the lead and Harrop was leading Haskett by 20 yards. Piggott passed Hackett and Harrop at the foot of the great hill leading into Randolph. When that town was reached DeMar led Hackett by just two minutes.

After leaving Randolph, Hackett beban to increase his speed. At Avon, Hackett was a third of a mile behind the leader. Then Fowler had trouble with his stomach and had to stop for relief. Three miles from the finish DeMar lead Hackett two and a half minutes.

The pacemakers pulled Hackett up yard by yard until at Elmwood avenue, Brockton, he rushed into the lead. DeMar did not have strength enough to give battle and he slowly fell back. Hackett finished the first lap of the course as DeMar entered. He tried hard to regain lost ground but did not have the strength.

The order of the first four to finish was Hackett, Piggott, DeMar, Fowler and Harrop. There were also fifteen others who finished who received silver medals.

Y. M. C. A. AUXILIARY

Women Start in the Season Auspiciously

Mrs. E. I. Beal, the new president of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Young Men's Christian Association, was greeted by a large audience at the opening meeting Friday afternoon. Every seat in the assembly hall was taken and the year's work started very auspiciously. Mrs. Beal has entered upon the work with great enthusiasm, and success will surely follow her efforts.

Rev. Charles P. Marshall of the Washington Street Congregational church conducted the devotional exercises. In previous meetings, Mr. Marshall has been very helpful to the ladies in this and in other respects and his kindness is appreciated all the more because of the busy life he leads among his own people.

Rev. W. M. R. Lord, formerly of Wollaston, and at present pastor of the church in Dover, gave a very fine address on "Boys." He spoke chiefly of the training of boys and the keynote of his remarks seemed to be this Appeal to the best there is in the boy. Assume from the start that he is a gentleman, and treat him as such.

Do not try to force the boy, for it will surely fail in the end as a corrective measure. The whole address was exceptionally good and those mothers who failed to hear it missed a rare treat. As it was, there was a large attendance and the most gratifying thing about it was that all sections of the city were well represented.

At the close of the address, refreshments were served. Definite plans have been laid for the year's work and the ladies have every reason to believe that it will be the banner year for their organization.

EXHIBITION AND FAIR.

A new feature in Braintree Grange will be an exhibition and fair by the patrons and their friends on Monday evening, Oct. 10th in Odd Fellows hall. Granges are invited to be present and assist from Brookville and South Weymouth. This is in charge of a special committee appointed by Braintree Grange, which elected the following patrons: Henry M. Storm, Josephus Sampson, Fred H. Sanford, Mrs. Charles Bangs and Mrs. Fred H. Sanford. Flowers, fruits and vegetables, together with fancy work and cooking will be admitted free of charge. Of the flowers, fruits and vegetables there must be six of each variety, and all productions must be properly labelled with the name and address of the exhibitor. The ladies' table will be in charge of Mrs. Susan Butler. Eggs will be exhibited, six of each, and it is hoped that the housekeepers will make an exhibit of loaves of bread.

All the exhibits will be free and open to all whether they are a patron or not. The only condition that exists is that all exhibits shall become property of the Braintree Grange to be sold at the close of the exhibition for the benefit of the said Grange. Awards will be made by the judges ,who will be from outside of Braintree Grange. These judges will be assisted by judges from among our patrons as follows: Vegetables. Worthy master George M. Mosher; fruit, Past Worthy Lecturer, Joseph J. Spear; flowers, Patron Carl Waldecker.

There will be an entertainment in charge of Sister Abbie Hayden, admission to which will be free. During the past year children have been encouraged to raise flowers, fruits and vegetables; also to make many things with their hands. Here is an opportunity to let others know and see what you have done. The Grange desires to encourage skill in all lines, and being a public institution of this town it wishes to encourage progress in every way. The public schools are invited to place an exhibition special work of pupils that is deemed worthy of public notice. We want the general public to feel that they have a part in this exhibition. The Grange has felt that this will supply a long felt need to encourage skill in the arts and sciences among all people especially the young. The idea is young yet, but as time goes on we hope to make it a prominant thing for progress in all lines. So we shall be glad to have you "tell your neighbors" of the scheme, and if you have any good thing to show bring it to the Odd Fellows hall on the evening of October 10th.

DESPERADOES RUSH KEEPERS

Five Convicts Fight Their Way Out of Sing Sing Prison

GREAT BOLDNESS DISPLAYED

Guards Beaten Insensible With Butts of Their Own Revolvers—Assailants Scale Prison Walls and Escape by Climbing Down Rope—Fattest Man In Institution Among Those Who Have Disappeared

Ossining, N. Y., Oct. 8.—Aided by friends from the outside, five prisoners escaped from Sing Sing prison after beating two guards nearly to death, and are thought to have made their way to New York. They have two revolvers and clubs.

On the chance that they have not been able to get far from the prison, the woods and riverside are being searched thoroughly by armed guards and citizens. The ease and boldness of their escape has piqued the prison authorities more than any other escape in recent years, and they are making unusual efforts to recapture the men.

The prisoners who escaped are William Green of Ossining, the fattest man in the prison; Walter Brannigan of Mount Kisco, Robert Boylan of Brooklyn and Joseph White and Israel Blum of New York.

All were confined in cells on the top tier of what is known as the chapel dormitory. This was formerly a part of the Protestant chapel, which had to be turned into a dormitory because of the crowding of the prison.

One hundred and ninety-five prisoners were asleep there, guarded by two keepers, who had locked themselves in to stay until 7 o'clock in the morning.

Some one, it is believed, had smuggled a pick lock in to the men, for about 2 o'clock all five opened their doors at the same time, and while four of them rushed the keepers, the fifth cut the telephone which communicates with Warden Foster's office. The prisoners wrested the keepers' revolvers from them. They did not shoot for fear of giving an alarm, but fought with the butts against the loaded clubs of the two guards. The two were finally beaten down, insensible, by weight of numbers.

While one of the men was binding and gagging them, the others were making a rope of their clothes and the bed clothing. They sawed through the bars of the window and made the line fast to one of the stumps, and then descended. Green, who weighs more than 300 pounds, apparently was the last to descend, for the rope was broken off nearly twenty feet above the ground, and two deep impressions in the soil showed where the big fellow, who is serving a sentence for highway robbery, had landed. The men then walked across the yard, climbed over the iron fence on the west side of the prison and dropped down on the railroad tracks.

It was half an hour before their escape was discovered. The wild clanging of the bell, which announces a prisoner escaped, awoke the entire village. When it was learned that five desperate armed men were at large several score men turned out to help find them.

Those living on the outskirts of the village and in the farm houses up and down the river are greatly alarmed, and few women have dared to leave the house since the men got away.

Green is a well known character in Ossining, where he was long the fattest man in town. His girth is enormous. He was arrested for highway robbery several months ago. The man who was held up and robbed swore that his assailant ran down a narrow alley. Green's defense was that it would have been impossible for him to get into such a narrow space, but the jury did not believe him.

TURNED DOWN BY CITY CLERK

Refuses License to Young Couple from Brockton

What was probably a well planned elopement of a young Brockton couple was nipped in the bud this morning when the City Clerk's office at City Hall refused to issue them a marriage license. The prospective groom and blushing bride arrived at City Hall shortly before 10 o'clock and walked confidently into the City Clerk's office and asked for a marriage license when the following dialogue followed:

Do you reside in Quincy?

No, I am boarding in Brockton just now.

Then you are not a resident of Quincy?

Well, no.

Well, said the clerk in charge, I can not issue you a license.

The pretty dimpled chin of the bride to be dropped as the couple walked sadly out of the office and headed for the Quincy depot.

As the couple did not fill out the application blank their names could not be learned. The young lady was a pretty girl and apparently 16 or 17 years of age and the young man not much older. They left Quincy a disappointed couple on the 10 o'clock train.

THE WIDOW WINNIE WYNNE.

"The Widow Winnie Wynne," the musical satire which the Moore Musical Comedy Company will present at the Quincy Music Hall Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings with matinees on Tuesday and Wednesday, is one of those merry frolicsome affairs that was built just to make the great masses of theatre goers laugh, although light and farcical in construction it possesses a great deal of merit in construction, as, while never letting the plot obtrude itself to the detriment of the fun it tells an interesting and funny story in a most direct way. The plot hinges on a young widow who must marry within a year after her husband's departure for, well wherever he went and how she succeeds is most humorously told. There are a number of bright catchy musical numbers by the chorus of pretty girls and many really bright vaudeville hits by the various principals. The cast is headed by Lew Williams, a character comedian of more than ordinary ability.

INJURED BY FIRE.

The Rev. W. S. Key formerly pastor of the Wollaston Unitarian church had a narrow escape from death by fire a few nights ago, while travelling from his headquarters at Watha, Pender County, to keep his monthly appointment at Pink Hill, Lenoir County. On this journey he is compelled to remain over night in Goldsboro. He stopped as usual at a new hotel close by the railroad depot. Between four and five o'clock next morning he was awakened by the crashing of falling glass. Flames were entering his bedroom through the window, and, seizing a few articles of clothing, he groped his way amid dense volumes ofsmoke to the main stairway , and was soon in the street, where he found three or four buildings, including the hotel, some being on the opposite side of the road, all ablaze. He was the last person to escape from the burning building, for in the excitement his presence as a guest had been overlooked. When that fact, however, became known, a report soon got into circulation that he had been entrapped by the flames and lost. Such was not the case, however; for, after dressing as far as his depleted wardrobe would permit in the shadow of a near-by building, he boarded a train for Kingston and at once consulted a physician, for in making his escape he injured one of his legs quite badly. The physician wanted him to go to the city hospital for treatment, but he did not see the necessity for any such extreme measure. The physician dressed the injured leg, and Tuesday night, through the assistance of friends, for in the fire he lost his watch, a presentation one, pocketbook containing all his available currency, and part of his wardrobe, he reached his residence, the Dix House, Watha, where he is being attended by his own physician; and report has it that his injured leg is doing fairly well, though it is likely he may be more or less incapacitated for the full discharge of his many, varied and arduous duties for some time to come.—Christian Register.

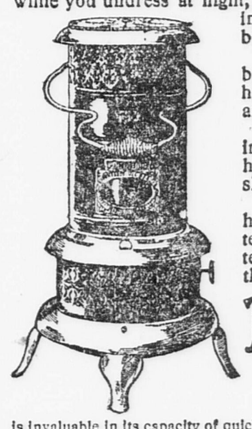
Temporary Heat Quickly

Did you ever stop to think of the many ways in which a perfect oil heater is of value? If you want to sleep with your window open in winter, you can get sufficient heat from an oil heater while you undress at night, and then turn it off. Apply a match in the morning, when you get out of bed, and you have heat while you dress.



Those who have to eat an early breakfast before the stove is radiating heat can get immediate warmth from an oil heater, and then turn it off.

The girl who practices on the piano in a cold room in the morning can have warmth from an oil heater while she plays, and then turn it off.

The member of the family who has to walk the floor on a cold winter's night with a restless baby can get temporary heat with an oil heater, and then turn it off. The

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

Absolutely smokeless and odorless

is invaluable in its capacity of quickly giving heat. Apply a match and it is immediately at work. It will burn for nine hours without refilling. It is safe, smokeless and odorless. It has a damper top and a cool handle. An indicator always shows the amount of oil in the font.

It has an automatic-locking flame spreader which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back so that the wick can be cleaned in an instant.

The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, and can be quickly unscrewed for rewicking. Finished in japan or nickel, strong, durable, well-made, built for service, and yet light and ornamental.

DEMOCRACY IN GREAT TANGLE

Question of Head of Bay State Ticket Not Settled

MANY MEN ARE CONSIDERED

Gaston Thought to Be Most Likely Candidate to Be Agreed Upon—Riley an Independent Candidate For Lieutenant Governor—Says Convention Committee Has No Right to Make the Nomination

Boston, Oct. 8.—The question of who shall be the Democratic candidate for governor was not settled at the meeting of the convention committee yesterday.

The committee discussed the availability of a number of candidates, including William A. Gaston of Boston, Charles de Courcey of Lawrence, District Attorney Pelletier of Boston, James B. Carroll of Springfield, Thomas P. Cassidy of North Adams and Joseph H. O'Neil of Boston.

The committee were inclined to the belief that Gaston would be the strongest candidate if he would consent to run. None of the candidates mentioned was approached by the committee with the offer of the nomination.

Clifton R. Loring of Medford, secretary of the state committee, was nominated as a provisional candidate for second place.

Colonel Gaston is considered as the most likely candidate to be agreed upon. He has great strength in the western part of the state and the same forces in Boston who have opposed Congressman Foss, the Keliher-Doyle-Coakley-Donovan combination, are admirers of Gaston.

It is pointed out that Gaston when he was in control brought the Democratic organization up to the highest standard of efficiency in its history. Furthermore there is a very friendly feeling between Foss, Vahey and Gaston.

It has been discovered that Chairman MacLeod of the Democratic state committee was in error at the convention when he thought that the last hour for filing nomination papers for governor was at 5 o'clock last night. As a matter of fact nominations may be filed until 5 p. m. on Monday, and nominations close Oct. 17, and withdrawals may be made within seventy-two hours after.

There is a considerable difference of opinion expressed as to whether or not the convention committee had the right to fill the nomination for lieutenant governor. The members of the committee are of the opinion that they have the right and they propose to fill the nomination.

Representative Riley of Malden, believing that the committee has not the right of making the nomination, took out papers yesterday from the office of the secretary of state as an independent Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor.

In the event of the committe nominating a candidate for governor and Riley securing enough signatures to his nomination papers to qualify as a candidate for lieutenant governor before Monday at 5 p. m., it is probable that the matter will be taken before the ballot law commission for a decision.

Both ends of the Boston Democracy are blaming one another for the trouble which was precipitated in the last hour of the convention.

The Keliher forces say that Lomasney started the trouble when he fought the motion made by Keliher that a double ballot box be used. They point to the fact that such a motion was made on the suggestion of Chairman Thayer in order to facilitate the balloting.

On the other hand the Lomasney forces say that the Keliher crowd came into the convention looking for trouble and announced in advance that Keliher wanted ten minutes to speak a few truths about Mayor Fitzgerald. They say that the opposition started the fight and they had no choice but to take sides.

The members of the convention committee will meet today and will in all probability take some definite action.

James H. Vahey held a conference last night with John W. Coughlin of Fall River, William P. Hayes of Springfield and Senator Doyle of Boston. It is generally understood that the Vahey-Hamlin forces intend to name the candidate for governor. They feel that they have the upper hand in the situation because of the fact that Frederick W. Mansfield, the provisional candidate for governor, is one of Vahey's closest friends.

IS NOT A CANDIDATE

Hearst, However, Has a Qualifying "but" In His Statement

New York, Oct. 8.—William R. Hearst, who was nominated by the Independence League for lieutenant governor of New York state at the League's recent convention, held while Hearst was on the ocean returning home, arrived on the Mauretania with the statement that he would rather not be a candidate on any ticket.

F. W. MANSFIELD

Stop-Gap Nominee For Governorship

"But I always stand ready to do whatever my friends in the Independence League desire," Hearst added. "I hope," he continued, "that my nomination will not interfere with the campaign that I hoped to make in other states than New York in behalf of progressive principles in whatever party I might find them."

Mayor Sues Boston Newspaper

Boston, Oct. 8.—Mayor Fitzgerald has instructed Attorney Carroll to bring suit against the Boston Transcript for statements published in that paper relative to the gubernatorial fight in which it was stated that the mayor demanded $25,000 from Eugene N. Foss in return for his support of the latter's candidacy.

NOT CONNECTED WITH BOOK ENTRIES

New Bedford, Mass., Oct. 8.—The exact amount of the shortage in the accounts of the late George W. Weymouth, president of the Atlas Tack company of Fairhaven, who was killed in an automobile accident at Bingham, Me., last month, is not known, but unofficially the sum is placed at $100,000. The amount was previously estimated at $150,000, but the company's legal firm announces that the shortage will be much less.

The lawyers added that the accounts had not been manipulated in order to warrant the payment of larger dividends, as was reported. They further said that the company, which is controlled by the estate of the late H. H. Rogers, is in no wise financially embarrassed by the loss due to the alleged defalcation. "The books and accounts," said the attorneys, "are in no confusion, as the defalcation was so managed as to have no connection whatever with the book entries."

TO SUE FOR DIVORCE

Cavalieri Has Become Wearied Over Trouble With Chanler

New York, Oct. 8.—Lina Cavalieri, the songbird to whom Robert W. Chanler virtually signed over his entire estate of millions before making her his bride, it is declared by friends, is preparing to sue for a divorce.

According to these friends, the grand opera star, who is wealthy in her own right, is tired and sick of the whole affair, and is anxious to obtain her freedom from matrimonial bonds as soon as possible.

She will, it is said, base her suit on grounds of non-support, of violent treatment and behavior and incompatibility of temper.

INVESTIGATION OF HUB CUSTOM HOUSE

Affairs Are Expected to Be Found In Good Order

Washington, Oct. 8.—An investigation of the Boston custom house has been ordered by the treasury department. The department orders these examinations periodically to ascertain if everything is in good working order. It has every reason to believe that the affairs of the Boston custom house are in excellent shape.

The examination will be under the supervision of Special Agent Parker of Detroit. The special agents are required to make examinations of all official books, papers and accounts of the officers of the port. They will examine the collector's office, the appraisers' office and the surveyor's office, the operations of inspectors on the steamship docks, examination of baggage, etc., and finally the office of the naval officer, who has charge of accounts of the port.

IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

Don't Mistake the Cause of Your Troubles.

Many people never suspect their kidneys. If suffering from a lame, weak or aching back they think that it is only a muscular weakness; when urinary trouble sets in they think it will soon correct itself. And so it is with all the other symptoms of kidney disorders. That is just where the danger lies. You must cure these troubles or they may lead to diabetes or Bright's disease. The best remedy is Doan's Kidney Pills. It cures backache which are caused by weak or diseased kidneys. Residents of this locality are constantly testifying to permanent cures.

Richard Smith, South Central avenue, Wollaston, Mass., says: "I suffered from backache and kidney trouble for a long time. I had dull pains through the small of my back and on arising in the morning, I was so stiff and lame that I could hardly dress myself. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills I procured a supply and in a short time after beginning their use, I was relieved. After I had taken the contents of two boxes of this remedy, I was in good health and I have had no kidney trouble since. I give Doan's Kidney Pills the credit for this change for the better and I gladly recommend them."

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

A Dear Good Dominie Defends the Hobble Skirt—White Wings Flit Against the Grey Walls of the Hub's Great Pleasure Basin—Art Circles are Twisted in Tangents—An Autobiography That Reads Like "Sherlock Holmes"—Do You Use the Equal Suffrage Cook Book?

Bostonians looked fearfully over the Charles River basin on the occasion of the recent races when canoe sailing was the main feature of the events. Everyone hereabouts is familiar with the sight of the frail craft paddled quietly along the upper waters of the Charles, but there were gasps of apprehension and involuntary shuttings of the eyes as the slim canoes dipped their sails before the wind until it seemed they must be swamped. The sight adds a touch of picturesqueness to the beautified basin.

Boston art circles are all twisted into tangents, as it were, by a controversy which has arisen regarding the proposed figures for the Public Library plaza. That advocate of civic uprighteousness and journalistic purity, "The Boston Common" has assailed the trustees of the library for disregarding the architects of the building and the municipal art commission in considering the art works to be placed on the long barren pedestals which front the building Others rise to the defense of Bela Pratt's proposed seated figures and announce that when the city gets so good a thing everybody ought to be satisfied. What the outcome will be remains to be seen, but the discussion waxeth wrathy for the time being.

An American returning recently to Boston from France tells an amusing story of a visit to a book-store in Barbizon, where Millet painted some of his famous pictures. Looking into the window he recognized the name of John Adams Thayer, the well-known publisher, as the author of one of the gaily-colored French volumes displayed therein. Entering with his little boy, he asked the woman proprietor if the book was interesting, and receiving a forceful affirmative reply, further asked, "What kind of a book is it?" The French woman, eager to sell, said "It is like Sherlock Holmes!" Amused at the reply, he solemnly maed inquiry if the book was a good one for little boys to read, and as the saleswoman, with a sweeping glance from father to son assured him that it was not only a moral story but a beneficial one for the young, he purchased a copy of the French edition of "Astir," the publisher's life story which has proved very popular in Mr. Thayer's own country.

Here's a minister of the Baptist denominating defending the hobble skirt. One of the Hub's widest known and most revered preachers has devoted the large part of a sermon to upholding woman in her vagaries of fashion, her frivolity and changeableness. The good pastor maintains that woman could not be so loyal and steadfast in her devotion, were she not allowed the outlet of "giggle, gabble, gobble and git." He declares that the hobble skirt is by long odds the ugliest fashion that women have adopted in many years, but withal it it is more to be desired and less depressing than the dreary greys and drabs of the Quakers and Shakers, far better than that all women should dress alike all the time. He has Virgilian warrant for his belief that woman is a variable and changeable quantity. The purveyors of fashion, who need the money at all seasons of the year, will doubtless vote this dominie a perfect dear.

New England women who swear by the White House Cook Book may have to change their allegiance. From the same centre of high class dinners and swagger breakfasts, from the feasting and frivolous city across which runs the great national free lunch route, comes the Equal Suffrage Cook Book, issued by the Washington Equal Suffrage Association, Dr. Cora Eaton Smith, author, a living refutation of the familiar charge that red hot suffragism is synonymous with the cold cook stove. The many favorable press comments on this publishing venture of the Washington suffrage society are an indication that the use of the "woman's-place-in-the-home" argument is about played out, so far as it refers to the question of equal suffrage. One is reminded, indeed, of the recent incident of the Kaiserin's issuing a letter addressed to German women in which she urged her good subjects "to stay at home and be good wives and mothers." Among the many tart replies she received was one in which it was stated that on account of existing economic conditions 4,000,000 women of the fatherland are compelled to be wage earners as well as wives and mothers. In general the lese majeste in such a retort must have shocked the Empress, though assertiveness of this kind is becoming quite as common in monarchies as in free republics. Even in China, oing the land of swaddle footed female slaves, one reads of women going on hunger strikes as a protest against the present unfair and uprighteous laws against the woman, subject first to parents, and then to husband and husband's family and, in widowhood to her minor sons. As marriages in China are reported to have fallen off about 80 per cent it looks as if there were neither east nor west in the big world wide woman's movement.

Mr. Bates said that it seemed more certain than ever that all the depositors will receive 100 cents on the dollar. He would not promise the payment definitely.

New Republic Performing All the Functions of Government

ROYAL FAMILY NOW EXILES

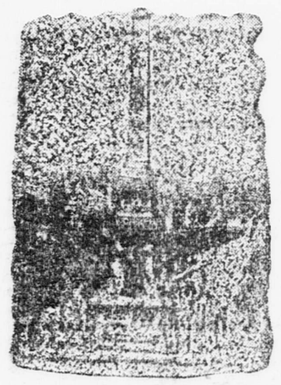
Under Protection of British Government at Gibraltar—Spanish Royal Yacht In Readiness For Possible Flight of King and Queen Should Revolution Occur In Spain, Which Is a Possibility of the Near Future

London, Oct. 8.—There seems to be no doubt that the revolutionary government is firmly seated at Lisbon. It also appears that the important cities of the country are proclaiming the republic, and that their garrisons are accepting the orders of the new regime. Thus for the moment the Portuguese republic is in existence and is enforcing its rule. Monarchists in Spain, France and Rome pretend to believe that the throne will soon be restored by loyal armies.

Assuming that the republic endures, Europe is facing a new crisis. Strong elements will work to prevent Spain from following Portugal's example, and other elements already are looking longingly at Portugal's rich colonies with a view to despoiling them.

Stories of the taking of Lisbon show that the revolutionists fought with great bravery and resolution, and that after victory they conducted themselves with seeming propriety.

Through its foreign minister, Machado, the new republic promises to maintain order, to decentralize both local and colonial government, to equalize the financial budget in the interest of the people, to insure a free press, provide secular schools, listen to popular opinion and develop the nation's resources.



SCENE IN LISBON.

Dispatches to the foreign office and to the press say that the members of the royal house of Braganza were declared exiles from Portugal by the provisional government. However, it is stated that the personal property will be respected.

With the entire royal family of Portugal fugitives under British protection on the fortified rock of Gibraltar, the Portuguese monarchial flag hoisted on the masts of the warships in the British port, including the American cruiser Des Moines, the eyes of all Europe are turned upon Spain, where a sympathetic revolt is momentarily anticipated.

The Des Moines has been ordered to proceed to Lisbon immediately.

The Spanish royal yacht Giralda, fully manned and equipped for a long voyage, is being held at anchor off Ferroll, and it is believed that this is for a possible flight of King Alfonso and Queen Victoria, with the other members of the reigning family in case revolution occurs.

These facts are conveyed in dispatches to the London foreign office and to the press. It is also stated that General Weyler, the "Cuban butcher," in full charge of the Spanish army, is preparing for two different outbreaks. With troops massed in Republican strongholds, additional soldiers are being sent into Basque and adjoining provinces to guard against a Carlist uprising. Three Spanish warships have arrived at Algeciras, awaiting orders. The Spanish cruisers Princess de Asturias and Carlos V are reported en route to Lisbon.

Premier Canalejas appeared at the palace in Madrid for a conference before the session of the cortes. National attention is directed towards Senor Azcarato, the Republican leader in the cortes and vice president of the chamber of deputies. He is reputed to be the brains and the political strategist of the malcontents. He has threatened the government that he would not be responsible for the result if Spain should take the slightest step towards favoring the deposed Manuel or towards hindering the advance of the Portuguese republic.

Official advices say that at any hour the Spanish monarchial government may find itself with its back to the wall fighting for life against a movement which is declared to comprise more than 70 percent of the nation's people, with some of the foremost nobles, soldiers and publicists of the kingdom at their head.

QUEEN AMELIA

Mother of Deposed Ruler of Portugal

Ready to Check Invasion

Lisbon, Oct. 8.—On account of reports that some of the troops in the provinces have not yet declared their adherence to the republic, the provisional government is exercising the greatest vigilance. Thirty-nine heavy guns and ten Maxims have been posted in trenches on the heights of the city and are ready to check any attempted invasion of Lisbon. Up to the present time, however, the government has received no advices of risings in favor of the monarchy.

Clericals Barred From Portugal

Paris, Oct. 8.—The Lisbon correspondent of The Temps says the new government has decreed the dissolution of religious orders, the members of which must quit Portugal within twenty-four hours. Another decree, he says, calls on the clergy to abstain from wearing clerical raiment on the streets so as not to provoke attack.

Thousand Fatalities at Lisbon

Madrid, Oct. 8.—Refugees who have arrived here from Vigo, Spain, report the number of fatalities in Lisbon as a result of the revolution at about 1000 and that several thousand persons were wounded.

CAT BOAT PLANS WANTED

Man in Scotland Has Heard of Quincy Yachts

That the fame of Quincy's fast cat boats has been far reaching was shown this morning when Mayor Shea received a letter from Harry Wright O'Couel of Little Terry, Sutherland, Scotland, making inquiries about them.

The writer said that he was very desirous of building a boat to sail in the shallow waters near his home. He had heard considerable about the famous cat boats sailed in Quincy bay and he therefore wrote to the Mayor thinking that perhaps he was the best party to furnish him what he desired, or if not he would know to whom he should apply.

What the gentleman desired was the working plan of a cat boat that he might build one. From what he had heard it was just the type of boat that he wanted.

The reporters who were present when the Mayor received the letter advised him to turn it over to Dock and Water Front Commissioner Crane Water Front Commissioner Crane, owner of the Iris, and a great cat boat man, or to Thomas Fleming Day of the Rudder, who was also very much interested in this type of boat. It is probable that plans will be sent to the gentleman and that later the Cape cat will give a good account of itself in foreign waters.

WILL GO TO LONDON.

William J. Hackett, who by winning the Marathon race yesterday becomes the amateur champion runner of the world, is none the worse today for his run of 25 miles. When seen by a representative of the Daily Ledger this noon he said that he was very glad that he had won the race. Not so much because of the handsome trophy, but because of having won this race he would be sent to England next year by the A. A. U. to compete in the Olympic games to be run off in London.

Hackett modestly disclaims any credit for winning the race, and said the credit belonged wholly to his trainers and pacemakers, Fisher and Delory. They took turns in pacing him with a bicycle, Delory at one time riding for ten miles with a flat tire.

These pacemakers he says won the race for him. They kept him informed how the leaders stood and held him back when he would have spurted until the proper time. He says that when Randolph was reached he was 3 minutes 40 seconds behind the leader, and at Vine street Brockton was 4 minutes 10 seconds behind. Between Vine street and Cross street a distance of two miles his pacemakers speeded him up so that when the latter street was reached he had a lead of 15 seconds. Hackett also had a good word to say for DeMar and Piggott

The plant has been closed nine weeks in alternate weeks since June 11. There are 7000 operatives employed. Their loss in wages from the nine weeks' stopping amounts to $315,000.

DID POCKET BUSINESS

Quincy Man Fined for Violating Liquor Laws

John Melzard, who it is alleged has been doing a thriving pocket liquor business, and a man whom Chief Burrell has been looking for, fell into his hands by mere chance Thursday. The Chief has been looking for the man for sometime. It is alleged that he had no regular occupation, but that he made frequent trips between Quincy and Neponset and that on his return trip he has been thought to have lijuor in his pocket. On Thursday Melzard looked too long on the liquor and became a victim to its influence. The result was that Officer Johnson took him on the charge of drunkenness. When he arrived at the police station Chief Burrell recognized him as the man for whom he had been looking, and a warrant for violation of the liquor law was served upon him.

In court the police gave him a bad reputation and testified to what they had seen while watching his place. Other witnesses who had received liquor from him also told of the transaction.

Melzard denied violation of the law, but the court thought differently and imposed a fine of $50 on the liquor complaint and $10 for drunkenness.

HOUGHS NECK PEOPLE ARE HOPELESSLY DIVIDED

Have Assumed That City Is to Expend $10,000 on Streets of the District

Some Want It on Sea Street Others on Causeway

(Special Correspondence)

At Associate hall, Saturday evening an enthusiastic body of Houghs Neck people met the Committee on Streets of the City Council to give their opinions on widening Sea street from "The Willows" so called, to Bird street. There was the usual variety of opinions. President Maloney, introduced the committee and turned the gavel over to Chairman John Moir.

Councilman Moir said, I suppose you know the object of our visit, to get your sentiment on the Sea street question. We are here to serve your best interests, and to consider your arguments on the question. Evidently by the reports I have heard there is considerable opposition. We will entertain your suggestions and act in conjunction with proper advice and our best judgment. We are ready to hear you.

Henry W. French made a motion to hear from the abutters first. Chairman Moir held a whispered consultation with his committee and allowed the point.

John Brown was the first man heard. He was not ready to have the street widened. It would take off much of his estate, in fact it would bring the street up to his front steps. Chairman Moir asked if he would sign a release to the city, and Brown emphatically said no!

E. J. Barrett, was much in favor of widening, pointing out that the property never would be purchased at the low price, for which it could now be obtained.

Mr. O'Connell of Babcock street endeavored to talk, and President Maloney objected, on the grounds that he (O'Connell) was not an abutter.

HEAR ALL SIDES.

Thomas Phillips entered the hall at this moment and at once got into the argument, claiming that it was the committees duty to hear all sides.

Chairman Moir brought down his gavel, and stated that he would have order, or dismiss the meeting. All should be heard but heard with order. He dismissed his first ruling and made the meeting open to either side. O'Connell attempted to speak, and Phillips asked him his privilege of the floor. O'Connell consented, chairman Moir recognized Phillips and he came forward.

Mr. Phillips said in part: I enter into this controversy on account of past statements, and matters learned a few days ago. This question is a matter which concerns every man of Houghs Neck. It should interest every man whether he pays assessment or poll tax. This Improvement Association held a meeting last winter at which certain men present tonight condemned you councilmen and officials of Quincy. They said the only thing to be done to improve Houghs Neck, was to fix the Causeway. This was the so-called committee on streets.

Councilman Moir—To whom do you referr, Mr. Phillips?

Phillips—I referr to the committee from the Houghs Neck Associates. Then comes the Sea street matter. Now they want Sea street widened. The questions have never been properly brought before the people. Plans should have been drawn, and submitted that people should know which is best for them. Some man has been crafty enough to peruse City Hall files to learn who is assessed and who objects to your question. If you give $10,000 to Houghs Neck, place it where it will do most good Your city today is not in a condition to add to its burden of

PERPETUAL DEBT

I pay taxes on $3500 worth of property Its up to you to help me. Babcock street is always full of mud through winter storms. Resurface it. Take care of the people first. The school house lot property was placed at 15c per foot, and after the Cavanagh property was sold up went the taxes. It is no order that is presented for Sea street, simply a petition. I would like it read. (Petition not produced.)

I would like to know if you intend

HAROLD FAXON ARRESTED

Has Been in Nevada Since His Disappearance

News comes to Quincy of the arrest at Goldfield, Nevada, of Harold B. Faxon, formerly of Quincy by a United States marshal, for embezzlement from the Peoples National bank of Boston.

The amount involved was $5,000 and the embezzlement is alleged to have been made by Faxon in 1903 at a time he was employed as paying teller at the bank. Immediately on the discovery of the shortage he disappeared and nothing has been heard from him until Saturday night when word of his arrest was received. At the time of his disappearance the bonding company made good the loss. Efforts were made by his friends to make the alleged shortage good but they failed.

Faxon was well known in Quincy. He was an enthusiastic yachtsman and for several years was the secretary of a local yacht club. His downfall was said to have been due to stock speculation. It is reported that he has been living in Goldfield under the name of Jack Morgan and was at present working in the Mohawk mine. The report also says that he was married two years ago, but had recently been divorced. The dispatch says that he confessed to the marshal that he had expended his money in stock raising.

Inspector McKay who had been working on the Faxon case with United States Marshal Bancroft of Boston since his disappearance, says that Faxon was located three days ago and that instructions were telegraphed from Boston to arrest him.

There will be pictures of the leaders of the class, Mr. Theophilus King and Dr. Hardy; pictures of the various teams and the trophies won by these teams; accounts of the activities of the organization, among them being the full page account of the banquet at which Dr. Edward Everett Hale spoke. The motto, the constitution and by-laws, the names of officers and committees, and various other things of interest in connection with the fraternity will be in evidence also. Since its foundation ten years ago this organization has broadened out and grown both in size and in efficiency, and its record will be a credit to the city which it will represent.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

HOLIDAY NOTICE.

Columbus day, next Wednesday, will be observed by the Daily Ledger as a holiday, no paper being issued. See Ledger of Thursday for holiday news and regular features.

Mr. Sherman now begins his march to the cold, salt sea.

It is surely about time for some airship man to go into vaudeville.

It takes a man like Ambassador Oscar Straus to snub the Czar of Russia.

It cost Ohio just $250,000 to pay the bill for the militia to put down the riots in Columbus. Peace surely pays.

New York is complaining of a shortage of chambermaids. There is no complaint of the shortage of chorus girls however.

Caleb Powers, having been thrice sentenced to be hanged is now running for Congress in Ky. Congress has no terrors for him.

Thirty-two voters of Houghs Neck—Democrats, Republicans and Prohibitionists—have decided that they should have one of the candidates for the City Council from Ward One this year. They forget that Ward One has over 1,000 voters and that many streets of the ward have more voters than all of Houghs Neck.

The ward is only entitled to one Councilman for every 350 voters, and Houghs Neck falls short by considerable. They have presented the name of a popular young man, but could he accomplished more for Houghs Neck than is being accomplished? Houghs Neck has been getting a big share—a brick schoolhouse on a large school lot, water extensions, street lighting, police and fire protection, education of children, etc., etc.

There is no better way of judging value of a thing than by the testimony of those who have had experience with the thing. This was never better exemplified than in the case of the City Hospital, which we are proud to say ranks with the best in the State, both in beauty and in completeness of equipment. In regard to the hospital and the treatment received there, one young man tells how he wanted to remain there after he got well, he was having such a good time. As the City Hospital is not a convalescent hospital, it is the custom to send patients home as soon as they are able to leave. This young man, whom we have in mind, was having such a good time and was receiving such kind and attentive treatment, that he did not want to go home. Of course, he went, but it was not because he wanted to, but because it was the rule of the institution.

This is one of the few incidents in connection with the hospital, and there are many others. One woman, who had plenty of money and could have afforded to live elsewhere, came back to the hospital after he had been sent home, and asked if she could not hire a room and live there. She was allowed to do this, although she had to pay a good price for the permission.

These things go to show that we have a hospital here in Quincy to be proud of one to which we should always lend a helping hand, when it is needed. When a hospital is equally pleasink to the sick as it is to the well, what more could be desired.

Now the hospital, "OUR HOSPITAL" is in need of funds to bear the current expenses. Now is the time for the people to show that they desire their hospital to continue on in its successful way. The way to do this is to contribute generously next week when the hospital collectors call. Kindly try to remember that "OUR HOSPITAL" is something necessary to the common good, and as such should be aided by the people in general.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

The local merchant too often thinks that the local paper is entirely unnecessary for the development of his business. This is where he makes a mistake and that he is not progressive and his goods ancient is too often apparent to the people glancing into his show windows. They see the fly-specked cans and packages and the spider webs that span between. They pass by his store and visit that of his competitor—the man who wisely advertises in his local paper. They know he is up-to-date and that they are sure of receiving fresh, clean goods for their money.—Dedham Transcript.

Postmaster General Hitchcock whose appointment received mild criticism because it was recognized as a reward for his able management of President Taft's political campaign, is giving proof that he is quite as able a manager of the postal service. He is following the plan of the secretaries of war and the navy in making special study of his department with an eye to reorganizing it in the interest of economy and greater efficiency. President Taft, when all is said, has not only increased the government revenues, but he has cut down the expenses of the departments that are the largest spenders.—Framingham News.

Thirteen states have declared Oct. 12 as a legal holiday, and the citizens of these divisions of the nation will honor the memory of Christopher Columbus in various ways. It has been largely through the efforts of the Knights of Columbus, an organization of Catholic laymen, that so many states have enacted laws giving the people a holiday. It was Colorado that took the lead in the matter. On April 1, 1907, both branches of its legislature passed a resolution "setting aside the 12th day of October each year as Columbus day." The governor, who was heartily in favor of the measure, signed it immediately that the bill became a law. Other states that have made Columbus day a legal holiday are California, Connecticut, Illinois, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachustts, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania. It will no doubt surprise many to know that there are no less than 29 statues and monuments to Columbus in America. There are six in Spain and seven in Italy. What is believed to be the first Columbus shaft erected in the United States is that in Baltimore. It is a hunderd years old. There is a fine bust of Columbus in the White House in Washington.—Rockland Standard.

GAS STOCK.

The Tax Commissioner of Massachusetts has placed the following values on property of the Citizens Gas Company of Quincy; Real estate and machinry, $278,075; value per share of stock, $70. Share of the Boston Consolidated Gas Co, are placed at $145, in increase of $20; share of Newton Gas Co. at $150, and shares of East Boston Gas Co. at $50.

BLUEJACKETS IN PARADE.

A regiment of buejackets, 1,200 strong, and a battalion of marines, 250 strong, will be the U. S. naval representation in the Columbus day parade in Boston next Wednesday. The Rhode Island built at Quincy, the Nebraska and the Virginia will be in port. Each of the battleships will landa full battalion of four companies and the scout cruisers will land two companies each for a battalion. A company of marines from each of the three battleships and one company from the navy yard will form the marine battalion.

DEWEY SQUARE CARS.

For the enlightenment of the host of people who have occasion to board trolley cars in Dewey square, Boston, each day and who frequently become confused by the many car lines that converge there, the Boston Elevated has black-lettered five poles alphabetically and suspended from the elevated structure facing the South station as an index to them a big sign, to be illuminated at night, giving the following information:

At post A one may get cars for the South End, Washington and Tremont streets and Columbus avenue, connecting for the Tremont street subway, Post B is for cars for Atlantic avenue, Rowe's wharf, the Revere Beach station and the East Boston ferry. North bound cars for Post Office Square the North station and East Cambridge stop at post C. Cars for Summer and Washington treets, West Somerville and Park square, connecting for the Tremont street subway, pass post D. Post E for southbound cars for Mattapan via. Franklin Park, Dorchester, Ashmont and Milton, City Point and Bay View, South Boston.

Post A and B are on the north side of the square; D is on the south side under the elevated, and C and E are on the east side of Summer street.

FOREIGNERS THREATENED

American Interests In Peril From Threatened Revolution

FIVE FACTIONS IN HONDURAS

Each Wants to Have Presidency Under Its Control, Causing Conditions Bordering on Anarchy—Gunboat Princeton Ordered to Proceed to Revolutionary Hotbed, Where Self-Appointed Commandant Controls

Washington, Oct. 10.—Responding to an appeal by the Honduran government to the state department, the gunboat Princeton is headed for Amapala, a revolutionary hotbed, to look after American interests.

The Princeton, commanded by Commander Hayes, under instructions from Acting Secretary of the Navy Winthrop, left Acapulco for Amapala and should reach there by tonight. She has been working down the coast from San Francisco the past ten days.

Meantime at Amapala General Valladares, the commandant, self-appointed at that island post three years ago and too influential in that vicinity to be ousted, up to the latest advices is a figure of interest to the Tegucigalpa government. He is credited with having made threats against the foreigners, but Amapala and the consular corps there protested to President Davilla, who promised to remove him Saturday. But the Davilla government realizes that that action might fan the revolutionary spark into a blaze and took additional precautions to safeguard the government interests.

Amapala and Cholupeca usually witness the first flashes of the frequent revolutionary movements in Honduras and likewise witness the finish.

Amapala, on Fonseca bay, a regular port of call of steamships and the recent haven of Dr. Madrid and other Nicaraguan refugees, is a strong place for Valladares to fortify against the government. Besides his military command backing him, the Honduran foodstuffs imports pass through Amapala, and many German wholesale houses are represented there, insuring large commissary supplies if needed.

The state department and the Honduran government have been aware of the increasing revolutionary agitation, but the official advices here do not show that an actual revolution has broken out.

Government safety there seems to rest in the multiplicity of factions. It is said there are now at least five of these, each with a presidential aspirant, each apparently weaker than the government, but the aggregate probably strong enough, if united, to overthrow the Davilla government.

The American and Mexican ministers are understood here to be the only diplomats at Tegucigalpa, but the German and French charges are on their way there.

Ex-President Manuel Bonilla and ex-President Policarpo Bonilla have had their eyes on the presidential chair lately. They are enemies.

Guatemala had occasion recently to curb Manuel Bonilla's efforts to maintain communication with his adherents at home. Policarpo Bonilla has been more active and was reported a fortnight ago as preparing an expedition to land with arms and supplies on the Atlantic coast of Honduras. President Davilla adopted counter precautions, fortifying several points of expected attack.

The revolutionists recently have counted on the aid of several thousand followers of General Estrada, and it is said that a number of American soldiers of fortune have been ready to cast their lot with them.

In State of Anarchy

New Orleans, Oct. 10.—Conditions of anarchy prevail in Honduras, cable dispatches to The Picayune state. Foreign interests are said to be in jeopardy and warships of leading governments are reported to have been asked for.

Killed by Shot From Own Gun

Rockland, Me., Oct. 10.—The discharge of his own gun, which he had just picked up, while gunning, sent a charge of shot through the heart and both lungs of Clarence Leach, aged 16, of South Union, and he was almost instantly killed.

Not Training For Presidency

New York, Oct. 10.—"Never!" is the word used by Mayor Gaynor as refuting the suggestion that he has the presidency in mind. This is the emphatic term he employs in a letter to James Creelman.

DRAPER TICKET RATIFIED

Bay State Republicans Have Fun at Expense of Democrats

Boston, Oct. 10.—Six of the best speakers the Republican leaders could muster raised gales of laughter at the expense of the recent Democratic convention and brought rounds of cheers from their 3000 auditors in urging them to stand pat, at the first ratification meeting of the state Republican campaign, in Tremont Temple.

The word had gone forth that to Senator Lodge would be given the duty of grilling the Democrats and their convention, but from the time Curtis Guild, Jr., opened the meeting until Congressman McKinlay of California closed every speaker took a fling at the opposition party.

The opening address was made by Governor Draper. He was followed by Lieutenant Governor Frothingham, James M. Swift of New Bedford, Republican nominee for attorney general; Senator Lodge and Mr. McKinlay.

SEES DANGER IN NOT KEEPING THE FAITH

Cardinal's Warning to Catholics at a Boston Banquet

Boston, Oct. 10.—At one of the most notable Catholic gatherings held in Boston for several years, at the Hotel Somerset, Cardinal Vannutelli warned the people of Boston and the state of the dangers of the future unless every member of the church lived up to the faith.

The visitor in eloquent tones congratulated those assembled for the present prosperity of the Catholics in Boston, which he had heard about before coming to this city, and which impressed him even more when he was paraded through the streets by prominent laymen of the church and applauded by thousands of persons.

In these times of prosperity he warned all they must not forget their religion, for if they do, he said, this country will see conditions that are now in existence in certain European countries.

The banquet held at the Somerset was given by the Catholic people of Boston in behalf of Vannutelli, and was graced by more than 500 dignitaries of the church, laymen and public officials.

SUNDAY IN THE CHURCHES

Quincy Pastor on Committee for National Council

FIRST UNIVERSALIST

At the Univeralist church on Sunday the pupit was occupied by Rev. Ernest H. Carritt, who delivered a thoughtful and apprehensive sermon to an appreciative audience. A pleasing baritone solo by Otis Bent of North Weymouth added to the pleasure of the service. An abundance of bright autumn flowers were massed about the pulpit.

Mr. Carritt is a candidate for the pastorate and is recommended by Dr. Conklin, the superintendent of Universalist churches of Massachusetts.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Universalist church are to give a harvest supper with entertainment on Thursday evening.

The Young People's Religious Union enjoyed an unusually interesting meeting Sunday evening. The gathering was in charge of its beloved president, William French. Subject, "The Charitable Institutions of our City." Mr.French led in prayer, selecting for the scripture reading I Cor. 13th chapter. A song service was elevating. The different charities in turn were recommended, as worthy of confidence and regard. Mrs. Thomas A. Addison, a former president of the Quincy Day Nursery, was presented, speaking at length on the large progression of that institution since its formation early in November 1903; of the true and sincere efforts of a band of loyal women working together for the good of the cause, and paying high homage to the matron, Mrs. Loring, for her conservative services. Much enthusiasm was manifested and questions were asked, giving those present an intelligent knowledge of the work. So inspiring was the service that it seemed the city was verily captured for Christ.

HALL PLACE M. E.

The subject of the sermon at the Hall Place M. E. church on Sunday morning was "A pertinent petition" the text being taken from Matth. 6-12. "Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors."

The Sunday School was held at the close of the morning service with a good attendance. The Junior League met at 3 P. M.

The evening service was held in the vestry. The pastor took for his text "Behold your King" St. John 19-14, his subject being "The rightful Ruler." The new Alexander Song books were used for the first time at the evening service. These books are to be used every evening at the Evangelistic services which are to be held in the vestry of the church every evening except Saturday during the month of October.

The Ladies Aid are to meet in the vestry of the church, Thursday afternoon.

BETHANY CONGREGATIONAL

Dr. Hardy preached at the Sunday morning service. He spoke of the triennial council and the centennial meeting of the American Board which take place this week. The main thought of his sermon was the wonderful way in which God makes use of weak and frail instrumentalities and small beginning. In illustrating this he told how four boys under a haystack in Williamstown were responsible for the foundation of the great denominational enterprise.

In the evening Rev. Harry J .Newton of New Haven preached on the subject, "What is it to be a Christian?"

The Junior Christian Endeavor society at its meeting Friday afternoon decided upon a course for the year. Starting with a study o fthe Bible the various steps connecting it with the church and the Christian life will be followed. The idea is practical and should prove very helpful to all concerned.

The Bethany Ladies' Circle will meet with Mrs. Theophilus King on Wednesday afternoon to discuss plans for the year's work.

Dr. Edwin N. Hardy has been honored highly by the denomination. He is one of the committee of thirty which has entire charge of arrangements for the National council which opens today. There are to be 1200 accredited delegates beside many others who will come at their own expense from all parts of the country. Inaddition to the work in connection with this committee, Dr. Hardy is acting as secretary of the special committee on transportation and publication. This committee has published a guide book of Boston with special cars and trains for the pilgrimages, and during the convention will publish daily bulletins. The council is one of stupendous proportions and the duties of the committeemen are by no means trivial. Dr. Hardy's ability along these lines has recommended him to the national executive staff and the honor done him is significant.

FIRST CHURCH.

Rev. E. C. Butler preached from text "Out of the abundance of the heart, the mouth speaketh," at the Sunday morning service.

to build or rebuild under the betterment act or not?

Moir—I would say for your benefit, Mr. Phillips that if built under the betterment act, the land would be assessed. Excitement followed during which Phillips endeavored to talk betterment acts. Maloney objects and Moir calls for order.

Councilman Sandberg—Mr. Phillips do you object to having "any" part of Sea street widnened?

Phillips—No, certain parts; yes!

Sandberg—what do "you" recommend?

Here Phillips, and some of the committee proceeded to study plans, brought down for the purpose.

Phillips—I believe that if Quincy spent a portion of the $10,000 from Winthrop to Bird streets at the Leonard property it would result in greater improvement than if appropriated on entire street.

Sandberg—If the committee favored your plan, you think no fault could be found?

Phillips again switched on the Causeway, stating that the movement had not taken the people into its confidence.

GOT A SHOW.

President Maloney defended the Associate's committee previously referred to. He said the committee appointed last winter was asked to recommend the improvement of the Causeway, looking to future years to widen Sea street from The Willows to Bird street. The Mayor recommended the same, but we found the expense too great. Then came the Sea street proposition. Mr. Cavanagh cut up his land into house lots, and the taxes from same would come back to the city. It looked good for the city.

Henry W. French said the order read to widen from Willow to Hose House. It was a blanket order to cause other improvements. It was sent to the Council as the cheapest proposition. The Causeway was considered a future compulsion.

Councilman Richards—Could land on Causeway ever be any cheaper?

French—It would seem that we accept Sea street or none.

Richards—Whose suggestion was it that Sea street be widened from 40-to 60 feet?

French—The City Engineer.

Richards—If $10,000 were appropriated which in your opinion would be better expenditure, the Causeway or Sea street?

French—The Causeway.

Councilman Smith—It would seem that someone was exceeding authority who recommended this question.

NON COMMITTAL.

French—Mr. Chairman if you thought Houghs Neck wished the Causeway improved would you back up the association and vote it in the council?

Moir—I would use my own judgment Mr. French, coupled with the guidance of the City Engineer and my observation.

Phillips endeavored to gain the floor, but French was recognized. The object, he said of putting in order was for the Causeway, but we were side tracked.

Sandberg—Suppose that the council only appropriated $5000 what would you recommend?

French—That the curve at so called "Calamity Corner" be removed and the street widened in front of the schoolhouse.

McDevitt—If that were not done, what would you advise?

French—John Phelan claims that enough waste stone and grout could be put on Sea street and $10,000 would go a long way on the sea wall, so only expense of labor in hauling would be required, but would not cover land damage.

Phillips got another chance at this time and said: It seems that general opinion is for the Causeway and improving conditions in front of the school. Do this and latter all of Sea street.

THE CAUSEWAY.

Capt. Oliver G. Fosdick delivered good eulogy on the Causeway citing a father who had lost his position last winter through inability of cars to cross a vital point of the Causeway.

Councilman Flynn made the most suggestive point of the entire evening. He said—If this Committee on Streets report that you wish $10,000 for the Causeway and you lose, and later put through an order to improve Sea street would you be satisfied?

Fosdick—I am satisfied that you gentlemen would advocated the most deserving needs of Houghs Neck.

Flynn—Are any of the gentlemen here who appeared in the Council for Sea street? There seems no attitude to change the first idea of the Causeway improvement. I do not see why any man who wished could not get to his work, through any Causeway blockade of a few hours, in stormy weather.

Michael Coughlin was in favore of the Causeway but as $10,000 was the maximum amount which City Hall could expend and as that was not enough, he thought that the money could best be expended on "Calamity Corner and Sea street.

COUNCILMAN SURPRISED.

Councilman Whiton was surprised that any agitation should arise. The order to rebuild Sea street had been handed to him to place before the Council, but he would not say whether he was in favor of it or not. He did think that "Calamity Corner" should be fixed but that if Sea street were widened in its entirety, it would not be for several years.

Charles E. Decker made a plea for Sea street. He thought the father's first intention was the protection of his children. He thought a man would rather lose his job through a few hours of Causeway delay, than the life of his child. He represented the interests of five families, whose 16 children were in constant hazard at "Calamity Corner" through the passage of vehicles. He had hammered the question through the columns of the Daily Ledger, with the approval of these families. In conclusion he said, Mr. chairman, and gentlemen of this committee, you have with great patience listened to arguments pro and con on the Causeway, you have listened to please to save human lives on Sea street. We know you will exercise your best judgment. I move that we adjourn. Voted.

Charles E. Decker.

GRANITE CITY CLUB.

An important meeting of the Granite City Club was held Saturday evening. Several gentlemen were elected to membership after which the subject of holding a Ladies' night was brought up. The president announced that the rooms were to be entirely renovated and it had been decided to give a ladies' night. The date on which this will be held has not been determined as yet, but it will be held as soon as possible after the work renovating the club rooms has been completed. The arrangements were left in charge of the entertainment committee. The program as outlined will include an entertainment at Colonial hall by a well known male quartet, reader and orchestra, to be followed by refreshments which will be served in the club rooms, and probably dancing.

L'AUTOMNE.

William Struthers.

Vines that wake from verdant slumber
Round the summer porch,
Drink life's wine cups without number;
Flaunt a flaming torch,
Lanes that lead, in motley splendor,
By wide bronze-hued lawns;
Skies that offer, without vendor,
Beauty's eves and dawns.
Woodlands, wrapped in lilac veilings,
Tints no art may seize,
Hark the frost-harp's fatal wallings
Chill the mild, soft breeze.
And the breeze ,stirred by keen yearning
For more buoyant wings,
With a swan-song fervor burning
Unto silence sings.
Sings to Silence 'midst the glisten
Of weird opal fires;
Whilst my heart, alert to listen,
Echoes its desires.

What does the wind-voice say?
And wherefore would my heart
In its desires have part?
"Death, stand thou off, keep far away!
Let the amorous sunlight stay
To kiss the crimson sumac leaves,
With maples' bright red robes to play,
To transform shrivelled shocks of corn,
Mid fields of stubble, now forlorn
To golden wealth of harvest sheaves!
In multicolored ecstasy,
Looks Autumn from her jewelled seat.
Let her not pale at sight of thee!
Death, I protest: It is not meet
That thou shouldst lift thy ghostly hand.
To smite the ruby-sprinkled land.
O Death! Life is too blushful-sweet
Thine ashen-bitter lips to greet!"

CLEAN POULTRY HOUSES

A disinfectant was once supposed to be used only for cleaning human habitations. Now we are beginning to realize that what is good for man is also good for beasts and fowl. The up-to-date horse owner uses disinfectants freely about the stable, using for the purpose a solution of carbonol, the well-known disinfectant that is so largely used for household purposes.

In the poultry-house it has been found that the liberal and continuous use of carbonol keeps the fowls in better health. Food and water dishes are cleaned with it, and it is sprayed on roosts and platforms. It kills germs and keeps away insects. Breathing its fumes will cure a flock of colds.

Carbonol has been found useful also in curing other internal ailments of poultry, when it is mixed with the drinking water.

Getting rid of the insects contributes to the peace of the fowls and increases their health.

The liberal use of Carbonol in a poultry-house makes the poultry-house a less uncongenial neighbor to a human habitation.

Carbonol is a grease-solvent in addition to being a disinfectant. It can be used to brighten the coats of horses and to clean harness. In both cases it is the accumulation of grease which produced dinginess, and carbonol, by dissolving the grease, improves their appearance decidedly.

Carbonol is a coal tar product, and is practically carbolic acid with the danger left out. It can be bought at any drug store in 10c, 25c, 50c and 75c bottles. A sample can be obtained free by addressing the manufacturers, the Barrett Manufacturing Company, 297 Franklin Street, Boston, Mass. Oct. 10-1t

READ LEDGER ADVS.

He Was Too Enthusiastic.

Hank Dobbs was noted as an "honest" horse trader. He would not lie about a horse. He would merely suppress the truth. Incidentally he always beat the customer who dealt with him. The way he could slur over the defects and buzz about the virtues of an animal amounted to genius.

Once Hank was trying to sell a neighbor a horse that had an eye which was nearly sightless. The neighbor knew Hank would not lie outright to him, so he questioned the horse trader as to the various points of the brute.

"How about his eyesight? Can he see out of both eyes?"

"Sure," said Hank. "He's got good eyes." Here he leaned forward, his eyes fairly scintillating with suppressed honesty. "One eye is particularly good!"

Hank's enthusiasm for the truth had carried him too far. The deal was off. —Tulsa (Okla.) Post.

THIRD CASE OF CHOLERA

It Developes In Steerage of Steamer Detained at New York

New York, Oct. 10.—A case of cholera developed Sunday in the steerage of the Hamburg-American liner Moltke, which has been detained at quarantine as a possible cholera carrier since last Monday.

Dr. Doty, health officer of the port, reported the case last night, with the additional information that another cholera patient from the Moltke is under treatment at Swinburne island. This makes three cases of cholera which have actually reached this port.

The latest victim is Giovanni Caleiglia, 36 years old, who came from Naples in the steerage of the Moltke. He is critically ill at Swinburne island, as is the other patient, Rudolph Sellitch, a coal trimmer, who was regarded as a "suspicious case" and was responsible for the Moltke's detention.

LANDOR CLAIMS DISPUTED

Explorer Hedin Takes Exceptions to Reported Discoveries In Thibet

Paris, Oct. 10.—A variant of the Peary-Cook disagreement has broken out between Sven Hedin and Henry S. Landor over the claims of the respective explorers to priority of exploration in Thibet.

To The Matin Hedin contributes a long letter from Stockholm, in which he makes reference to an article previously published in the same journal.

Dealing with the British explorer's claim to have discovered the two principal sources of the Bramaputra, Hedin declares that as far as the northern source is concerned, Landor only followed in the footsteps of Nat Singh, who discovered it in 1865, while there is no source at all at the spot where he has charted his southern source. The two sources which Landor claims to have discovered are, he says, only minor tributaries.

COLLECTION OF $242,110

Liberal Response to Call For Funds at Communion Service

Cincinnati, Oct. 10.—What was said to be the largest collection ever taken up on plates by any church in America, an interpretation by the house of bishops on the "open pulpit" subject, and refusal to change the name of the church, were among the most important matters transacted by the triennial convention of the Protestant Episcopal church in session here.

While the convention body was in session a communion service was being held in Christ church, where the donations were being received from the women's auxiliary for the general missionary fund.

At the conclusion it was announced that the plates placed upon the tables in front of the trustees had been piled with funds aggregating $242,110.83.

SHOTS FROM A MONASTERY

Replied to by Republican Troops, Who Continue Firing Until British Flag Is Raised Over Building—Amnesty For Political Prisoners and Revival of Old Law Increasing Liberty of the Press

Lisbon, Oct. 10.—The proclamation of the republic of Portugal is being received by the people generally in a matter of fact way. While order has been in a measure restored, the fear still prevails that the attacks against the religious establishments may become general. The most marked feature of the situation now is resentment shown by a portion of the populace against the clergy.

Republican troops attacked the Jesuit monastery in the Rus Do Quelbas, after they had been fired upon from the windows. One priest was killed and the others were placed under arrest. The hoisting of the British flag over the building had the effect of checking the fire of the troops.

Armed bands have descended upon the houses of various officials closely affiliated with the monarchy, but the property was not damaged. Because of this condition of affairs police measures have been increased and patrolling parties have been sent out to guard against marauders and rioters.

The government has granted amnesty in the case of all political crimes and has revived a former law, increasing the liberty of the press. It has ordered the payment of moneys to functionaries and has changed the old oath to the form of a mere promise on the part of the officials "to accomplish their duties on their honor." An extension of ten days has been granted for the settlement of pending legal affairs.

One of the most interesting features in the new regime will be the line-up of different parties in the constituent assembly. All the old political groupings have disappeared, and there must spring up new divisions. A majority of the old party organs, such as those representing the conservatives, the progressists and the regenerators, have suspended issue.

A band of revolutionary adherents sought to enter the college of Portuguese missions at Lieutra, which also is the residence of the papal nuncio, under pretense that arms were hidden there. The nuncio ran up the papal flag and refused to allow the men to enter the building. The mayor dissuaded the insurgents from making an attack, but finally the nuncio consented to admit a small number. They left after a fruitless search.

FUGITIVE TELLER CAUGHT

Further Testimony to Fact That Bank Thief Never Escapes

Boston, Oct. 10.—The claim of the police that the bank thief never escapes, now become an American maxim, seemed to be clinched with another proof when word came from Goldfield, Nev., that Harold B. Faxon was under arrest there.

Faxon in 1903 was, and for some years had been, the teller of the People's National bank. He was known as a quiet man of intellectual tastes and an enthusiastic yachtsman. When he went away, leaving a shortage of $7000 to be discovered immediately following his disappearance, he was 32 years old.

Dispatches from Goldfield gave no particulars of the life that Faxon has led since leaving New England, and no hint of his wanderings.

LORIMER PROBE ENDS

Sub-Committee Will Receive Counsels' Briefs at Washington

Chicago, Oct. 10.—The senate subcommittee on privileges and elections, after listening to the testimony of witnesses for twelve consecutive days, closed its inquiry into the election of Senator William Lorimer and adjourned subject to the call of Chairman Burrows.

The next session of the committee will be in Washington, when briefs of counsel on both sides will be in the hands of the senators who have listened to the charges that the election of the junior senator from Illinois was procured by bribery and corrupt practices and to testify in his defense.

FOUR TOWNS DESTROYED

Many Settlers Perish In Great Forest Fire In Minnesota

Warroad, Minn., Oct. 10.—Beaudette, Spooner, Pitt and Graceton, Minn., were wiped off the map of Minnesota Sunday by the most terrible forest fire ever experienced by Minnesota.

The dead bodies of seventy-five settlers have been found and it is estimated that the death list will be upwards of 300.

It is reported that many settlers, crazed with grief at the loss of families and property, are roaming the woods, and searching parties are constantly going out after the injured, the dead and the demented.

THINKS CATS ARE USELESS

Human Ills Charged to Them by London Veterinary Surgeon

London, Oct. 10.—Cat lovers are very much upset by the indictment which has been brought against their pets by a London veterinary surgeon. According to him they are the most dangerous animals known to man.

"The cat," he says, "is responsible for more human ills than any other creature that walks on four legs. I cannot think of one good reason why cats should be tolerated, for even at mouse catching they are excelled by traps.

"In nine cases out of a dozen if a post-mortem examination were made of a cat's lungs it would be found that it was either actively tuberculous or had been at some time of its career."

Foreclosure For a Million

Portland, Me., Oct. 10.—Judge Putnam of the United States circuit court filed a decree of foreclosure of the mortgage for $1,000,000, held by the Central Trust company of New York as trustee of the Bodwell Water Power company of Old Town to secure the bonds of the company.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

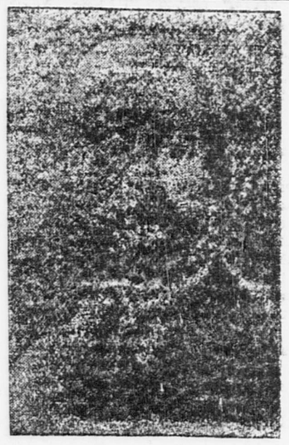
WILLIAM A. GASTON

Probable Democratic Nominee For Governor



GASTON NOW HAS THE POLE

May Be Nominated by Democrats For Head of Ticket

VAHEY AND FOSS ARE OUT

Each Has Declared That He Is Not a Candidate For Governor of Massachusetts, but Hamlin Has Made No Statement—Chances of Election of Latter Not Favorable—Decision May Be Reached Today

Boston, Oct. 10.—The question of the Democratic nomination for governor is still unsettled. A meeting of the convention committee appointed to select the candidate will be held today.

There is no truth in the statement that Charles S. Hamlin has been agreed upon as a candidate for governor. James H. Vahey says:

"Mr. Hamlin has not been selected by the committee as the candidate for governor. The committee has not agreed upon a candidate, and no member of the committee or any person representing a member has approached anyone in connection with the nomination."

It is more than probable that the committee will arrive at some decision today. It is true that Foss, Vahey and Hamlin, the convention candidates, have been discussed by the committee together with a number of others. It is also true that while Foss and Vahey have both eliminated themselves from the situation by declaring that they are not candidates, Hamlin has made no statement.

The name of William A. Gaston has received the most favorable consideration. No member of the committee has stated that he will not support Gaston.

As the situation stands, Gaston holds the pole. It is believed that if called upon by the Democracy that he will serve as the standard bearer this year. It has been stated that on account of his business connections Gaston would be unable to stand as a candidate, but the fact still remains that before the convention men were sounding the Gaston sentiment in every part of the state.

Mr. Gaston has the reputation of taking a definite stand on any situation that he is confronted with. When the question of whether or not he would take the nomination for governor if it was offered to him was put up to Gaston he stated that he would have nothing to say on this matter unless the nomination was put up to him.

It may be stated authoritatively that Vahey will not accept second place on the ticket.

There is no doubt but that Messrs. Crowley of Lowell and Hayes of Springfield of the nominating committee would like to see Hamlin have the nomination.

The purpose of the committee is, if possible, to secure a candidate on whom all can agree, and for this reason the chances of the selection of Hamlin are not very favorable.

MISMANAGEMENT CHARGED

Head of Government Weather Bureau Is Under Fire

Washington, Oct. 10.—Chief Willis L. Moore of the weather bureau is charged with gross mismanagement of his bureau and favoritism to subordinates by James Berry, a former division chief in the weather bureau service.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, Moore's superior, will investigate. Berry threatens to carry his charges to congress.

BY SIMPLY DOING ORDINARY THINGS

Roosevelt Tells Boys How He Has Achieved Success

Rome, Ga., Oct. 10.—In a speech to the boys of the Martha Berry industrial school at North Rome, ex-President Roosevelt said: "I'm going to do direct to you what I don't think I've done to any other audience, and that is to talk to you a little about myself. In so far as I have been a success it has been absolutely and solely through doing the ordinary things that any man could do, but that so many people do not do.

"Among my more intellectual opponents it is often stated as a matter of complaint that I preach what is commonplace, humdrum. So I do, and so I intend to do. Honesty, courage, decency, tenderness and force combined—they are the kind of things I want to see developed in the American man and the American woman and, therefore, in the American boy and girl.

"I never got anything in my life by an unusual display of genius or even by an unusual display of talent. Whatever I got always came through doing a number of things just as hard as I know how." Roosevelt told the boys to be honest and pull their own weight.

PLOT TO KILL TAFT

Tale of Stranger Who Threatens Aunt of the President

Millbury, Mass., Oct. 10.—Miss Della G. Torrey, aunt of President Taft, was badly frightened at her home here by a wild-eyed stranger who entered the house unannounced and when met in the hallway by Miss Torrey, told her he heard of a plot planned in Boston to murder the president and that if she said anything about it so that it got into the papers he would come back and murder her.

The man was in the house only a few moments and hurried away to take a trolley car bound for Worcester.

Miss Torrey told the story of her strange visitor to the selectmen, and the police of Millbury and Worcester were notified. The conductor of the car said the man went through to Worcester, but the police have not been able to locate him.

The man is described by Miss Torrey and others as about 30 years of age, five feet six inches tall and dressed in black.

HOLE MARKS ITS SITE

Explosion In Powder Factory Shakes Up Town of Maynard

Maynard, Mass., Oct. 10.—With a report that shook buildings throughout the town of Maynard and broke a number of windows in different parts of the town, a press mill, one of the many small structures which make up the plant of the American Powder company, blew up last night.

The mill building was wrecked, its contents destroyed, and a big hole torn in the ground. No one was hurt. The officials of the company are at a loss to explain the explosion.

This is the sixth mill which the company has lost through explosions during the past year. Nearly a year ago four buildings were blown up and a few weeks ago the fifth explosion took place. In the latter case one life was lost. Last night's loss will probably not exceed $5000.

COULDN'T GET A DRINK

Treloar Was Disappointed While In the "Provinces" of Maine

New York, Oct. 10.—Sir William Treloar, the English philanthropist, formerly lord mayor of London, sailed for Europe, carrying with him some varied impressions of American life and institutions. He pronounced the American women as being the "smartest dressed women in the world."

Sir William praised the American cocktails, but he could not understand why, in riding through the "provinces" of Maine, he should be refused a cocktail on the train.

"And you call this a free country!" declared Sir William. "A man who likes a drink, however, can't take one because some one else feels he should not."

"FEDERATION OF PEDLERS"

New York Pushcart Men Plan to Elevate Their Intellectual State

New York, Oct. 10.—The uplift movement of the pushcart and fruit pedlers received further impetus when the "Federation of Citizen Pedlers of Greater New York" applied to Judge Gay in the supreme court for approval of articles of incorporation.

Their first desire is to elevate the intellectual state of those paying dues to the federation, and when that is accomplished the cultivation of friendly feeling and the elimination of cut-throat competition are expected to follow.

The Atlantic Boys' club will meet in the Methodist church tonight at 7.30. E. P. Conlin will give his interesting address on "Camp life" and every boy who ever saw a pine log should get out to hear him.

Among the engagements recently announced is that of Miss Amy Gallagher, daughter of Charles T. Gallagher of Roxbury and Alva Morrison of Middle street, Braintree, brother of Mrs. Henry M. Faxon of this city.

The names of Josiah Quincy and Congressman O'Connell have been considered in connecion with the Democratic nomination for Governor, but the former was flatly turned down by the Hamlin-Vahey representatives, and the latter by the Foss men.

An automobile, whose owner could not be learned, skidded on Granite street Saturday afternoon and brought up with a bang against a telephone pole. The driver was thrown out but escaped injury as did also his two lady passengers. The automobile was considerably damaged.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin H. Ticknor of Harris avenue, Jamaica Plain, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Emeline C. SHIPBUILDERS' AGREEMENT.

A Boston paper prints a dispatch from Hamburg which says an agreement has been reached for a settlement of the lockout of the ship workers thus averting the threatened lockout of the metal workers. The changes will begin on January 1. Work resumed in yards on Monday. The strike involved many thousand shipyard workers, who demanded an increase of ten per cent in wages and a fifty-three-hour week.

RIIHIMAKI—KAURAMEN.

There was a pretty wedding at the Finnish Congregational church on Buckley street Saturday evening when Miss Johanna Kauramen, the daugher of John and Mary Kaurmen, became the bride of Mr. Hemming Riihimaki, son of Thomas Riihimaki, both of Albertina street. The bride was gowned in white silk trimmed with silk embroidery and flowers. She wore a veil and carried a shower bouquet. An important meeting of the Quincy Historical society was held at the home of Mr. Brooks Adams Saturday evening. Plans were formulated for the public meetings of the coming season, and if these plans carry the public may expect to hear some exceptionally interesting addresses during the fall and winter seasons.

AGAIN IN TROUBLE.

Freeman S. Gray, a well known East Mtlton young man who has figured in numerous court cases for larceny, s again in trouble, as he is now under arrest in Boston for alleged larceny from the American Radiator Co. Gray telephoned the company to send die studs valued at $24 to the South station using the name of a recognized contractor, P. E. Baker. He then pawned the studs for $1. Then his conscience troubled him and he telephoned the Radiator company where they could find the studs and then went to police headquarters and told the story. The dollar, he said, he had spent. He was sorry he had been dishonest he said.

Another Rubaiyat.

Think, in this muddy stein of simple glass
Whence you and I have quaffed our drink, alas,
Boozer and lush have drunk their sottish fill
And trod the path no sober man shall pass!

SCRAPPY MATCH

Tie Score in Wollaston Orient Football Game

The weather was pretty warm in the vicinity of the lower field at Merrymount Park on Saturday when the Wollaston A. A., and the Orient A. C. of East Boston engaged in a drawn battle on the gridiron. The game was scrappy all the way through but matters came to a head near the close of the game when a Wollaston man was tackled in a manner which he did not like. A fistic remonstrance followed in which both teams and a number of the spectators joined. But after a few minutes, peace was restored and play was about to begin again when another difference of opinion caused the insurgents to renew hostilities. For a time it looked as if bedlam and pandemonium both had let out, but the sulphur cleared away finally and the combattants stopped beating the air and each other.

The teams were pretty evenly matched and the spectators were looking for a close and exciting contest. The Orients scored their first touchdown in the second quarter. With the ball about twenty yards from the goal, Benson circled the end for a touchdown. He also kicked the goal. It was in this period also that Johnson sprained his ankle. He was taken home in an auto. It is not likely that he will appear in the High school line up for a week or two.

During the third quarter neither side scored, and up to the time of the dispute near the end of the fourth, there was no further scoring. After the little debate was completed, the East Boston team kicked off to Wollaston. Macdonald returned the punt and it was a long one. Kelley was up with it and fell on the ball behind the goal. Clapp kicked the goal.

The whistle was blown for time up while the ball was in the air, but according to the rules the play could be completed and it saved Wollaston from defeat. The thing was done in the nick of time, for in less than 15 seconds after the ball was punted the whistle was blown.

Most of the players on both sides were former High school stars in and about Boston, and there was some good football played. The Wollaston men showed signs of more practice in signals than their opponents. For the home team, Clapp, Bennett, Woods and Macdonald were the star performers. Benson excelled for the visitors.

The summary:

WOLLASTON	ORIENT

McGREGOR VICTORY

Defeat Fast Beverly Team Two to One

Fresh from a victory over the Brockton soccer team, Beverly went down in defeat before the McGregors on Saturday afternoon by a score of 1 to 0. The home team deserved their victory for their opponents were worthy and made them fight every inch of the way. Three new men appeared in the line-up for the McGregors, and Ross proved his fitness at any rate by scoring the only goal.

The weather was ideal for football, and there was a good deal of snap to the play at times. The scoring was in the first half and throughout the remainder of the game the ball was kept see-sawing back and forth. The team work of the visitors was very good in the second half, but they were unable to get the ball past Robertson and Craig very often, and when they did Malcolm was on deck to drive it out of danger.

Penalties were few and the game was satisfactory from every standpoint, except possibly Beverly's. The wind was not as bothersome as it was a week ago and Hendrie in particular showed good judgment in making allowance for what there was. The spectators were almost as energetic as the players in their endeavors to keep warm, and half a hundred on each side line ran up and down with efery play.

The line up:

MCGREGORS	BEVERLY
Malcolm, G	G., Monroe
Robertson, RB	LB., Page
Craig, LB	RB.,Evans
McDonald, RHB	LHB., Sheriden

PRIZE WATCH GONE.

Peter Morton of 48 Bennington street, reported to the police Sunday that burglars had entered his room early that morning and stolen his gold watch. He said that he was awakened during the night by the flash of a pocket electric flash light, and saw a man ruuaging about the room. He cried out to the man who immediately backed out of the room.

Owing to the glare of the light Morton says that he could not see the man's face. Investigation after the burglar had gone disclosed the fact that his watch had been taken. Entrance to the house was had through an open window. The watch was one that Morton had won in a bowling contest.

Hair Monstrosities.

French theater managers in the eighteenth century had worse evils than picture hats to contend against. Marie Antoinette, who was short, even according to French standards, set the fashion of high coiffures and ultra-fashionable women prided themselves on measuring four feet from their chins to the tops of their heads. These structures took about six hours to erect, the hairdresser mounting a ladder in the process. Some coiffures were almost as broad as they were long, with wings sticking out about eight inches on each side of the head. For the "frigate" coiffure the hair was rippled in a huge pile to represent the waves of an angry sea and surmounted by a fully rigged ship. As a consequence of these monstrosities, disturbances in theaters occurred almost daily until an ordinance was issued against the admission of women with high coiffures to the floor of the house.

Three Curious Bells.

There is a curious legend connected with the bells of Messingham church. It is said that a long, long time ago a traveler was passing through Messingham when he noticed three men sitting on a stile in the churchyard and saying, "Come to church, Thompson; come to church, Brown," and so on. Being very much surprised, he asked what it meant and was told that, having no bells, they called folks to church in this way. The traveler remarked that it was a pity so fine a church should be without bells and at the same time asked the men if they could make three for the church, promising to pay for them himself. They undertook to do this. They were respectively a tinker, a carpenter and a shoemaker. When next the traveler passed that way he found the three men ringing three bells which said, "Ting, tong, pluff," being made respectively of tin, wood and leather!—London Tit-Bits.

Calling on Tennyson.

A young American girl, who with her mother had called at Farringford to see the famous poet Tennyson, but was not received, shortly after expressed her regret to Mrs. Cameron, Tennyson's neighbor, who was also his intimate friend and a lady at once charming and masterful.

"Oh, so he wouldn't see you!" cried Mrs. Cameron indignantly. "Come with me!"

She took the reluctant American straight back to Tennyson's house and, without knocking or ringing, went into the room where he sat with his wife.

"Alfred," said she as the two looked up, startled, "these strangers came from a far country to see the lion of Freshwater, and behold—a bear!"

Tennyson burst out laughing and became amiable at once.

Taking a Chance.

The mistress was giving Harriet the benefit of her advice and counsel touching a momentous step the latter contemplated.

"Of course, Harriet," said the lady of the house, "if you intend to get married that's your own business, but you mustn't forget that marriage is a very serious matter."

"Yis, mum," said Harriet; "yis, mum. I know 'tis sometimes, mum. But, mum, maybe I'll have better luck than you did, mum."—Brooklyn Life.

His Nationality.

The little girl had come home from school and was telling the family about a certain stout man that had lectured to them in the morning. When through her father said:

"What nationality was the man, daughter?"

"Broken English," she replied.—Exchange.

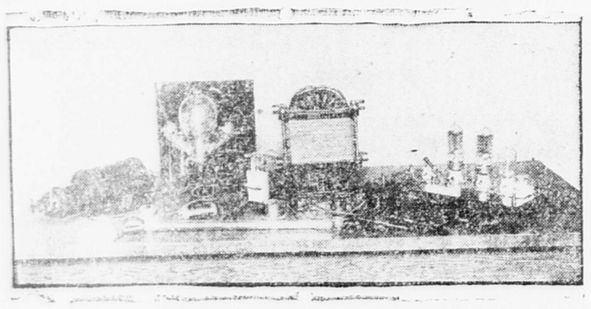
FREE EXHIBIT OF ELECTRIC SCHOOL

Will Be Opened Under Auspices of Quincy Y. M. C. A. This Month

One of Chain of Cities Which Is to Be Favored

More than usual interest was shown Monday evening in the exhibition of some of the electrical apparatus that is used during the course of instruction in the electrical night school under the auspices of the Quincy Y. M. C. A. The exhibition was in one of the stores in the Johnson block on Maple street, and the store was crowded all the evening with young men who looked in wonderment at the many electrical instruments that were shown.

understood by the general public. Many of these instruments had been connected up with the electric light circuit while dry batteries were used in the operation of some of the delicately constructed measuring instruments.



MERCURY ARC RECTIFIER AND MERCURY VAPOR LAMP.

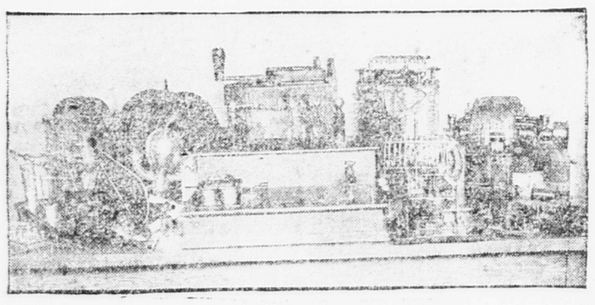
Outside the rooms on Maple street was the large demonstrating automobiles that are also used to transport laboratories from city to city where the evening classes are to be held.

The use of many of these instruments was briefly explained by one of the instructors who was present, while Secretary Gay and other officers of the association were present to explain the terms and arrangements for the courses.

W. B. CLAYTON.

As stated in a previous issue of the Daily Ledger, the complete course requires two yars. The course is a practical one and aims to give a comprehensive and practical idea of the electrical field. The instructors of the school are W. B. Clayton and A. DeForest Davis, and classes will be held every Monday evening, beginning Oct. 24, with special lectures every other Monday. Trips will also be made during the course to large electric power plants. The first year's course 32 weeks, and the fee for the course has been fixed at $18 which also includes membership in the association.

A. DEFOREST DAVIS.



APPARATUS FOR OPERATING AND DEMONSTRATING PURPOSES.

These were displayed in the two large show windows, and included among other things volt meters, ammeters, fields and field frames, rheostats, transformers, rectifiers, induction motors, apparatus used in wireless outfits as well as many others whose technical names would not be on Friday evening when by a unanimous vote of the members he was elected to honorary membership in the association. This is an honor that has only been conferred upon three other officers of the M. V. M., besides Capt. Wardwell, Maj. Gen. Curtis Guild, Jr., Maj. Gen. William F. Stopford and Brg. Gen. William H. Oakes.

SCOOP AT WEYMOUTH.

Officers Butler and Pratt of the Weymouth police made a raid on a drunk's retreat in the woods at East Weymouth ,on Monday afternoon, and found five well known characters of the town very much under the influence of liquor basking in the sun. They were too much overcome by the influence of what they had drunk to get away, and the whole bunch was locked up. In court four of the bunch was transported to the State farm for an indefinite period, and one was placed on probation until Nov. 18.

BOSTON 1915 TO INCLUDE QUINCY

Will Have a Rally and Also Enter Pageant

The editor of the Daily Ledger represented Quincy on Monday evening at the dinner givn by th Boston-1915 organization to about 80 representatives and newspaper men of the districts in which civic advance rallies are to be held next month, when methods and purposes of the campaign were explained.

James P. Munroe, executive director of Boston-1915, presided. Other speakers were J. L. Sewall, executive secretary; C. Bertrand Thompson, organization secretary; William A. Leahy, secretary to Mayor Fitzgerald, and Miss Lotta A. Clark, director of the pageant, "From Cave Life to City Life," which is to be given Nov. 10 to 12; and others.

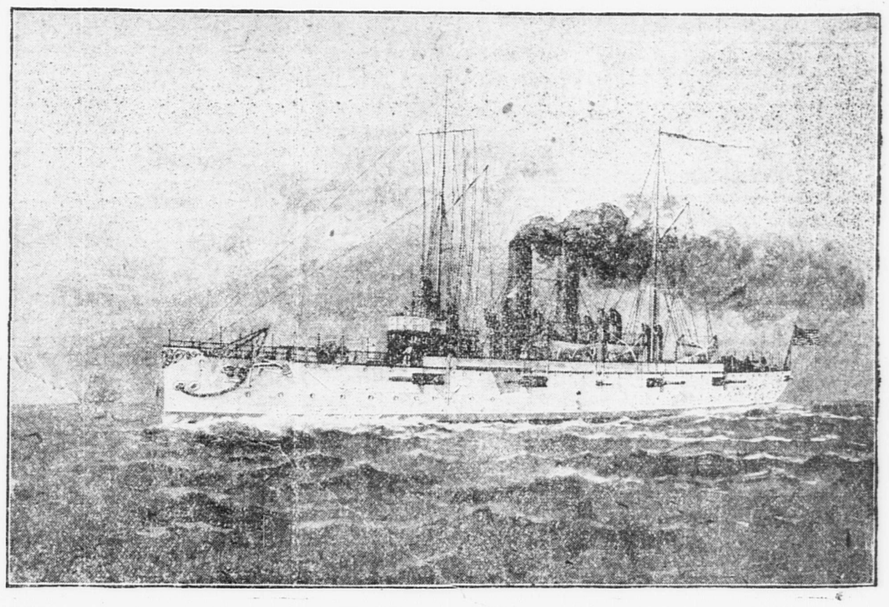
"Boston-1915 does not mean the political city—we mean the real Boston the 10th largest city in the world and the fourth largest in the United States," said director Munroe. "We are not seeking to promote any plan of annexation, but it is to foster a 'get-together' spirit that the civic advance campaign is planned."

Secretary Sewall described a two-days' conference of mayors, which will begin Nov. 10, and said rallies will be held from Nov. 14 to 19, culminating with central meetings Nov. 20 and 21. Quincy wil probably have one of these rallies on Wednesday, Nov. 16, at Music hall with a prominent speaker. Quincy will also figure in the civic pageant at Boston Arena, when "Greater Boston" will hear something about our granite. The first mass rehearsal was held Monday.

Various suggestions were offered by delegates present for the improvement of Greater Boston.

—Over in Wakefield the merchants have taken a decided stand on the subject of advertising by the adoption of the following: "Advertising or taking space in other than daily or weekly newspapers in considered inimical to the best interests of the association and shall not be countenanced "by the Wakefield Merchants and Business Men's association.—Chelsea Record.

QUINCY BUILT CRUISER AT PORTUGAL



A Washington dispatch to the Globe says that Commander Luby of the American protected cruiser Des Moines built at Quincy reported his arrival at Lisbon Monday and announced that he called upon American Minister Gage, that the Republican flag was flying generally, that everything was quiet and that business conditions apparently had returned to the normal.

From Lourenco Marques, Portuguese East Africa, Consul Chamberlain telegraphed to the state department that the governor-general continued in office, that the Portuguese republic had been proclaimed throughout the province and that the transition was peaceable.

The American diplomatic representatives have been authorized to transact any necessary business with the responsible officials at Lisborn on any matters arising during the uncertain diplomatic status of the Portuguese provisional government, but such communication does not signify any formal recognition of the new government.

The recent general circular note to the powers from Pres. Braga, announcing the new republic, has not yet been acknowledged by the Washington government but will be within a few days, it was stated.

The DesMoines was launched by the Fore River Shipbuilding Company at Quincy, Sept. 20, 1902, being the first warship built at Quincy. On Oct. 1, 1906, the timely arrival of the Des Moines at Santiago relieved a serious situation. The Des Moines has also been prominent in negotiations with South American neighbors.

HANCOCK STREET WIDENING

Needed Improvement That Should Not Be Delayed

The widening of Hancock street between Saville and Dimmock streets, as proposed by the plan sent to the City Council, by the Mayor at the last meeting, contemplates making the street 80 feet wide btween these two points. Starting from nothing at Saville street the plan takes a strip about fifteen feet wide from the Faxon property now occupied(by Dr. Garey and a strip about 18 feet wide from the lot of Mr. Faxon opposite the residence of Dr. Gordon. From the lots occupied by John Whitney Hall and Dr. Sargent, owned by the Adams Temple and School fund, a strip about 13 feet is taken.

In other words 1500 square feet is taken from the Dr. Garey lot, 5800 feet from the old Brackett estate, 1370 feet from the Hall estate, and 2400 feet from the estate occupied by Dr. Sargent.

This will give a straight street line on the westerly side from City Square to Adams street and will be readily admitted as an improvement much needed. The street is now too narrow for the main thoroughfare between Boston and the South Shore, and if that side of the street is to be paved as contemplated it will be a wise plan to provide for the widening before this is done. Most of the noble lm trees will be saved, the sidewalk being place on the inside.

MUSICAL COMEDY POPULAR.

A good-sized audience greeted the presentation of the musical comedy intitled "The Widow Winnie Wynne" at Music hall Monday evening, and was kept in a continuous roar of laughter from beginning to end. The comedy abounds in funny incidents and although it was over two hours duration the audience made no effort to leave, but showed by frequent and spontaneous applause that they would have remained longer. The comedy will be presented again this afternoon and evening, and Wednesday, afternoon and evening and it is safe to predict that many of those present last evening will attend some of the other presentations and will take their friends with them. The prices of admission are of the popular kind nothing higher than ten cents, and more for the money could not be desired.

TODAY'S COURT.

Thomas McCarthy, Thomas F. Smith, Christopher Fraher and Benjamin T. Raymond were sent to the State farm for drunkenness at Weymouth. Peter M. Lemmer for the same offense was put on probation until Nov. 18 on payment of $3 costs.

Jeremiah O'Leary for drunkenness at Quincy had his case placed on probation until Dec. 16.

Frederick S. Krag was find $10, William Hayes $15, Gustave Leuchle $10. Louie F. Russell $15, J. Euchide Dansereau $10, and Carl T. Kellogg $20, for exceedingthe automobile speed limit at Milton.

HOLIDAY NOTICE.

Columbus day, next Wednesday, will be observed by the Daily Ledger as a holiday, no paper being issued. See Ledger of Thursday for holiday news and regular features.

The trouble with the Milk Trust is its greed to get all the cream.

Sometimes an "old guard" that never surrenders gets the shins kicked off of them.

Baltimore may well be excused for going up in the air over the proposed aviation meet.

They always call attention to the need of cleaning up Coney Island when the season is about over.

Since Boss Barnes, of New York has come out in defense of the Constitution the country has felt considerable safer.

Chicago girls are to be taught plumbing. As if they did not already know too much about a lead pipe cinch.

The total increase of the State of Vermont by the new census was 12,315, only 3,572 more than the gain of the city of Quincy. None of the cities of Vermont are as large as Quincy, in fact the two largest—Burlington and Rutland—have together only 34,009, while Quincy has 32,642. Quincy is larger than Burlington and Barre together, or Rutland and Barre. The largest actual gain in Vermont was made in Barre, 2,286 in ten years, against 8,743 in Quincy. In fact the five cities of Vermont—Burlington, Rutland, Barre, Montpelier and St. Albans only gained 7,888. The population of Vermont is 355,956, an increase of 3.6 per cent, a little better per cent than between 1890 and 1900.

While the School board has under consideration a name for the school house being provided for the children of the so-called Montclair district, it might be fair to consider a name from a historical standpoint. The school lot there is a part of the original grant of land given by the town of Boston to its first minister John Wilson. In fact it was the first grant of land given to any settler. This was in 1634. It contained about 560 acres and was bounded approximately as follows: North, by Bay field and the Neponset marshes; east by bay; south by Sachem brook; west by Granite avenue. Mr. Wilson left a comfortable church building in England, and came to Boston in 1630 to share the harships with the colonists. He was at that time 45 years old. He identified himself with all the interests of the settlement and did much to bring about success of the undertaking. He was an intimate friend of Governor Winthrop and his services added much to revive the drooping spirits of the people. From 1632 to 1667 when he died he served his church faithfully, and left his people much to be thankful for. No better name could be inscribed over the entrance of the new school building.

If anything can be judged by the hearing at Houghs Neck Saturday evening, on the widening of Sea street to sixty feet, the residents of that section are not so red hot over the plan as has been supposed. Although the hearing was widely advertised in the Ledger as well as by flyers that were circulated at the beach, less than thirty residents attended the hearing given by the Committee on Streets.

Those present seemed to have the idea from the start that it was an assured fact that the sum of $10,000 was to be expended in that section of the city. The general public, however, realize that the 10,000 spoken of would be hardly a drop in the bucket toward the widening of Sea street. This sum would hardly pay the land damage let alone widening the street, and before the job was completed the expense would be nearer $30,000.

The residents of Houghs Neck are not a unit on the proposition. In fact there is a decided opposition, especially from some of the abutters who will lose practically all of their frontage. What the residents apparently want is that the "Causeway" be raised, so that no matter how high the tide the street will be passable. To do this would require raising the street some four feet, and then in order to hold the street it would be necessary to build a breakwater along the shore. Here another obstacle would be met for the rights to the beach would not only be encroached upon, but the breakwater and raised street would throw the water to the south side between the street and sewer embankment. Along this section there are a number of houses which would immediately become flooded, and the land damages would immediately, begin to pile up, so that even here if $10,000 were appropriated it would be but a drop in the bucket.

If the street at this point was raised two feet, however, which would be a small expense, it would not often be overflowed. With the limited amount of money which the city has to expend, it would seem that the wise thing to do at the present time would be to widen that part of Sea street, opposite the new school building the expense of which would not be large.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

Among the things which the girl student in the household arts course in the Chicago High school is going to be taught, is the scientific proportionment of the income of the home over all its needs. She will be taught what is a just percentage of her own or her husband's earnings to be devoted for house rent, how much may fairly go for food, how much for light, fuel, and the other inevitable household expenses. She will be given an idea of how much it may cost to run a house, and how to run a house on a given income be it large or small. What a woman with a house to support may expect for himself, to invest in clothes or insurance or pleasure, she will also be taught; and what she may expect for her own dress and recreation.

There ought to be virtue in such a course—making of housekeeping an art that shall be also a science It may tend to disillusionize the young woman who has her visions of leisure and plenty when she shall become a housekeeper, but if it keeps out of that occupation her who fears to be forced to make a salary do what it will and stop there with the having, small harm will be done. One good purpose at least such instruction will serve, and that is to open the eyes of the students to just what a given sum of money will do in the matter of living. That is something a good many actual housekeepers, both men and women, are never quite equal to mastering.—New Bedford Standard.

Governor Draper has been one of the best business governors the State of Massachusetts has ever had, and if the members of the Republican party, by their opposition or indifference, allow him to be defeated they deserve to lose the State for the next ten years. It would be a calamity if it was announced to the country that a man of Governor Draper's signal ability and courage was sacrificed. It would be serving notice that fearless men and able men were not wanted at the head of the government of Massachusetts. We believe he will be triumphantly reelected as he deserves to be.—Gloucester Times.

A Brockton judge has ordered the husband of a woman to stay at home to do the housework and care for the babies of his family. His wife, who earns $18 a week in one of the shoe shops, says that she is willing to be the wage earner of the home, but objects to doing both the earning and the housework. The judge declared that since her husband refused to work like other men, he must do the work of his wife and take care of the children.—Chelsea Record.

DUCKING FOR SMELTERS.

Two smelters, whose names could not be learned, had a narrow escape from drowning off Houghs Neck Monday A. M. One of the men attempted to reach a neighboring boat when over his boat went. Both men were rescued, the ony damage being a ducking. The men who belonged in Boston refused to give their names.

RALLY DAY.

Rally day was observed on Sunday in all departments of the Atlantic Methodist Episcopal church. In the Sunday School Lester L. Clee boys' director of the Quincy Young Men's Christian Association, gave an interesting talk to the school. At 6 o'clock the first meeting of the season of the Epworth League was held. The Rev. Lincoln Arnold of Somerville and Miss Edith Greenard of Hyde Park, a former member of the league were the speakers.

REGISTRATION TOO SMALL

Less Than Half of Assessed Polls Do Not Vote

Less than one-half of the men upon whom a poll tax was assessed in Quincy in 1909 voted at the State election that year. The number assessed was 9,539, of whom only 5,683 became registered, and only 4,246 of these voted.

In both precincts of Ward One the number to vote was in excess of half the assessed polls, and this was also true in Precinct one of Ward Five, but in all the other precincts the vote was below fifty per cent of the assessed polls. In precinct one of Ward Two the percent of voters was below 28, about one in four.

These figures are from the public document—"Polls and Voters" for 1909, and show the opportunity for registration in the city:

BLUE HILL OBSERVATORY.

The Blue Hill Meteorological Observatory has celebrated the 25th year of its existence. When he founded the observatory in 1885, Mr. A. Lawrence Rotch was a graduate of the department of mechanical engineering of the Institute of Technology. The observatory was first occupied by Mr. Rotch and his observer, Mr. W. P. Gerrish, on Feb. 1, 1885, and observations have been continuously made since that time under unrivalled and identical conditions of exposure. The observatory was one of the first institutions in the United States to be equipped with self-recording instruments, and is one of the few in the world today where nearly every element is continuously recorded. No other institution has studied the upper and lower air so long, and much of this element in the observatory's history is due to the intelligent investigation of H. Helm Clayton, who recently retired from active duties at Blue Hill, and who has been engaged in South American Meteorological researches.

DID DES MOINES HELP?

HOUGHS NECK BUDGET

A Prediction on Completion of The Schoolhouse

(Special Correspondence.)

Contractor Crowley was discovered at Houghs Neck on Monday. He was working on the school. The plaster is dry, the black-boards are up and the steam pipes are being put in place. The general opinion seems to be that the school will be completed in about two weeks. Hustle up Mr. Crowley, and finish the job, the dedication committee are itching to speak their pieces.

J. E. Johnson of the Olive May cottage has been missed for several days He was discovered on a Houghs Neck car on Monday, and admitted that he had been to the Brockton Fair. He also shook hands with Graham-White Now that is somewhat "airish" but speaking about fish, Johnson says, that he and a few other friends caught 300 smelt about 10 days ago, which he thinks is the season's record but here comes a few sports from "Spotless Town"—(Melrose.) Enter Warren S. Towner, Aubury Dunton, Carleton H. Tomer, and Karl M. Hunt, newspaper men of Boston, and they say "we caught 75 smelts each. Mr. Harvey will vouch for us, and we did it on Harry's Rock. Oh-fish!"

When the school gets into line, and some up-to-date teacher asks some up-to-date little boy, "who discovered Houghs Neck, and he says, Christopher Columbus, don't blame him; Wednesday is a holiday for the school children.

John Ross the chosen lamb for the City Council hasn't much to say. Be like the postage stamp, John, stick to it. Citizens, have you received your postal notifying you of the 32 mens sentiment of Ross for the Council? but honestly Fred,—did you do them in an hour?

There is talk of cutting the meetings of the Men's Club of Union Chapel to every other week. Better be on deck next Monday if you are a member and have something to say. That's all this time; its getting cold now.

Republic Holds a Strong Hand In Portugal

WORD "ROYAL" ABOLISHED

It Is Even Removed From All Public Buildings and Other Establishments —Arrests of Fleeing Religionists Continue—Hundreds of Nuns Are Herded In Lisbon Awaiting Transportation Out of the Country

Lisbon, Oct. 11.—The transformation of the country into a democracy manifests itself on every hand. The word "royal" in connection with public buildings, theatres and other establishments has been entirely suppressed. Official documents begin: "In the Name of the Republic," and end with "Greeting and fraternity." The privileges of the nobility have been abolished and the equality of religious sects proclaimed.

Each day apparently adds to the stability of the republic. The members of the new administration assert that adherence to the new principles has been given by many outlying towns and districts. Openly there are no royalist troops to oppose the forces of the Republicans, and Lisbon, after two days of bloodshed and a further brief period of disorder, is quite as peaceful as it was weeks before the rising took place. It is understood that all the officers who aided the revolution refused offers of promotion, affirming that they had done only their duty to the nation.

Senator Barreto, the new war minister, says that the killed and wounded in the revolution number under 300. The bodies of Dr. Bombarda, who was assassinated by an army lieutenant, and Admiral Reis, who committed suicide, are lying in state. The coffins are covered by Republican flags, but no religious emblems are in view.

Arrests of disguised and fleeing religionists continue. The discovery of secret subterranean tunnels at the monasteries set afloat rumors that many monks were still hiding underground, awaiting a favorable opportunity to emerge and continue the fight against the new regime.

To satisfy the crowd the military initiated subterranean explosions, and in one instance went so far as to dig a trench to locate the suspected tunnel.

As was the case at the time of the Barcelona riots, the popular feeling seems to be restricted to the monks and nuns, and does not manifest itself toward the secular clergy.

More than a score of nuns have been wounded, some of them fatally, and it is reported that several have been killed in the storming of Catholic convents in Portugal by fanatical mobs of Republicans and anti-clericals. More than 400 nuns, herded together like sheep and guarded by Republican soldiers, are held in Lisbon to be transported out of the country.

The most rigid censorship over news relating to the anti-religious movement is being exercised by the new Republican provisional government.

TO RECOGNIZE REPUBLIC

France and Great Britain Will Be First of Great Powers to Act

Paris, Oct. 11.—It is stated upon high semi-official authority that the French government will announce its recognition of the republic of Portugal within a few hours, and that England's recognition will follow soon after.

These important steps are declared to have resulted from direct advice from King Manuel to the effect that he has abandoned all idea of struggling against the new republic.

The United States cruiser Des Moines and the British cruiser Venus have arrived at Lisbon.

To Remain "True Portuguese"

Gibraltar, Oct. 11.—Before leaving Portugal King Manuel sent the following autograph to the Portuguese premier:

"I am compelled, owing to stress of circumstances, to embark, but wish to inform the people of Portugal that my conscience is clear. I have always acted as a faithful Portuguese and I have always done my duty. I will ever remain at heart a true Portuguese, and hope that my country will do me justice and try to understand my feelings. My departure must in no way be taken as an act of abdication."

COMES HOME TO MANY

Perhaps the Reader May Be Next to Go to Hospital

Last night a well known young man of this city was rushed to the City Hospital to be operated on for that dread disease appendicitis. This young man a week ago had not the least idea that he would spend Columbus day in the hospital, but as has been said before many times one never knows when he is going to be stricken down with something.

And so we say, for just this very reason each and every resident of the City of Quincy should contribute something to the collection for the Hospital, which will take place next week, from October 16 to October 23. The family of the young man mentioned above probably never thought that sometime when they least expected it, one of theirs would need the hospital The keen realization of the value of "Our Hospital" was brought very vividly to their minds last night and it is safe to say that hospital has won several more loyal friends.

What would have happened last night to this young man if Quincy was not fortunately blessed with an excellently equipped hospital? It is practically a case of life or death, when it is necessary to hurry a person to the hospital in such a way. What if he had to be taken to a Boston hospital for the operation? He might be dead now, while the fact is, he has been operated upon and will recover.

This is one of the few cases of the very same nature that happen each week, and the people do not appreciate the value of the hospital until something happens in their own home which makes it necessary to use the hospital. It is indeed a worthy charity and ought to be supported loyally by the people. In past years it has indeed been supported and the people are urged to continue in their support by contributing generously next week. No one is immune from disease. No one knows but what he will be the next one to go up there on the hill, where that beautiful and perfectly equipped hospital stands.

You are reading this article now and in five minutes you may be on your way to the hospital. How can you tell? Therefore consider this side of the question. Besides being a question of charity towards others, it is also a question of providing something for yourself in time of sickness or accident. Think of this. Think of the fact that you are doing something to help yourself. You cannot refuse to help yourself, and by contributing to the support of the Hospital, you are also contributing to the support of something that may be of great aid to you in a time when you or yours will sadly need it.

FAXON HAS CONFESSED

Said to Have Made Clean Breast of Everything

U. S. Marshal H. H. Humphreys, of this city is expecting a copy of the indictment against Harold B. Faxon, alleged bank embezzler, to arrive Tuesday from Boston says a Reno dispatch to the Boston Globe.

For three hours Sunday the prisoner and officers were closeted. It is understood that Faxon made a clean breast of everything. He expressed an urgent wish to see his young wife. This was permitted and the interview was held in the presence of the marshal. An affecting scene ensued during which caresses were exchanged between the husband and wife, who only two weeks ago had concluded they could not further continue their marital relations peacefully and separated.

Faxon, after leaving Boston, roamed over the country for a while and finally settled under the name of Jack Morgan in Nevada's big mining camp, accepting a position in the Mohawk mine. There he became acquainted with a daughter of a well known mine operator and two years ago they were married, but it did not prove to a happy union.

They have no children, but continued to live together until the close of the last month. Whether the recent developments will result in reuniting them is a matter of speculation. Some persons well acquainted with the pair declare that it will.

Faxon is now being held in the county jail, whence he will later be taken to Carson City, where Federal Judge Farrington will issue an order for his return to Boston, providing he does not fight extradition

It is said that his life here has been characterized by quietness and refinement.

The information that Faxon had confessed comes from friends who had been positive of his innocence and were about to take steps looking toward his release on habeas corpus proceedings.

—It is expected that fully 20,000 persons will participate in the big parade of Catholic societies in Boston on Columbus day, October 12, and a novel feature of the parade will be the presence of about 80 Chinese Catholics in the line. This will be the first time that the Chinese have ever appeared in a parade in Boston.—Milford Gazette.

PASTOR WANTED.

Under the heading, "Wanted—A Pastor," prominently displayed in its leading editorial column, the Okanogan Record, published at Conconully, Wash., says in part: "Conconully is without a pastor for its thriving Methodist church. This is the first time in upwards of 10 years such a thing has happened and it is to be hoped it will be several times that many years before it happens again. Some how or other, it doesn't seem just right for a live, thriving community like this one to be without a spiritual adviser. We have one of the best churches in the county and it seems a pity to have it stand idle at this time of the year. The church was built for divine worship. It is a place where the good people of this territory may gather once a week, at least, and give thanks to a just God for His tender mercies to them and for His bounties. We cannot overlook the fact that this is part of God's great universe. He created it and it will remain His until the end of time. But what we want now is a live, wide-awake pastor for the church, of which we are justly proud and may he come soon!"

TAFT POLICY IS ATTACKED

Roosevelt Opposes Conservation View of President

ARKANSAS SWAMP LANDS

Former President Insists That Government Must Do Its Part In Helping Drainage, Thus Turning Worthless Waste Land Into Block of Most Fertile Land In the Nation——Contrary to Attitude of President

Hot Springs, Ark., Oct. 11.—Theodore Roosevelt for the first time has come out squarely against a policy of President Taft.

He placed himself on record as believing that the federal government should assist in the reclamation of the great swamp areas of the Mississippi valley.

In a speech at the national conservation congress in St. Paul on Sept. 6, President Taft said he believed the work should be done by the states and that he deprecated the idea that the national government should do it.

As soon as Roosevelt reached Hot Springs Governor Donaghey and several other men who are interested in obtaining help from the national government in the reclamation project, asked him to touch on the subject in his address to the Arkansas state fair. Roosevelt promised to do so. In his speech he said:

"There are things about the open country that should be done by the government, that is, by the representatives of all of us working together.

"Arkansas is one of a group of states with an enormous area of swamp lands. Until drained the land is worthless; and when drained, it is a block of the most fertile land in the entire nation.

"The national government must do its part in helping in the drainage, because the drainage is an inter-state affair. Arkansas, Missouri, Tennessee, Louisiana and Mississippi are all concerned and ought to work together, and the national government should render all possible legitimate aid."

In his St. Paul speech Taft's words were:

"Suggestions have been made that the United States ought to aid in the drainage of swamp lands belonging to states or private owners, because if it is drained they would be exceedingly valuable for agriculture and contribute to the general welfare by extending the area of cultivation. I deprecate the agitation in favor of such legislation. It is inviting the general government into contribution from its treasury toward enterprises that should be conducted either by private capital, or at the instance of the state. In these days there is a disposition to look too much to the federal government for everything."

It is estimated that there are 25,000,000 acres of swamp lands in the states mentioned by Roosevelt. Governor Donaghey said that the question of their reclamation was a vital one.

Mr. Roosevelt made his remarks on the subject in a speech on "New Nationalism." He urged, as he has done in his other speeches during his trip, that the power of the central government be extended to deal with present day problems in the way Roosevelt believes they should be dealt with.

One of the largest crowds which the colonel has addressed during his southern trip was at the fair grounds to hear him.

SIGNED AWAY $60.000

Sister of Voliva Says She Was Influenced by "Spirit" of Dowie

York, Me., Oct. 11.—"I am the sister of Wilbur Glenn Voliva, head of the Zioists, but I have not seen my brother for twelve years. I believe that at three distinct times in my life I have been under the control of the late John Alexander Dowie, whom I never met. On each of these occasions, twice when he was in the spirit world, I have been induced to write checks and forward them to Zion City, signing away the sum total of $60,000, or two-thirds of my entire fortune."

So asserts a woman of 45 years, living temporarily in this town since her return from Europe. She says she is Miss Margaret R. Voliva.

LANCASHIRE MILLS RESUME

Man Whose Discharge Resulted In Costly Lockout Is Given Work

Oldham, Eng., Oct. 11.—The cotton mills of Lancashire resumed operations Monday. George Howe, a local employe, whose discharge caused the strike at the Fern mill and resulted in the lockout of 300,000 operatives, was given work in another factory.

In one week the lockout cost the workers $500,000 in wages and depleted the union funds by $200,000.

WEDDING IS OFF

Would-Be Groom Is Driven From Home of His Fiancee

Northbridge, Mass., Oct. 11.—John T. Moran, a weaver, and Miss Della Miller, both of Northbridge, were to be married, but now it is all off.

Mr. Moran went to the expense of a new suit. He purchased a dinner, a couple of boxes of cigars and other necessities of a wedding, paid for them and sent them to the farm.

Two days before the marriage was to be, Moran walked up to the Barron farm to see Mrs. G. F. Barron, Miss Miller's sister, about the preparations for the big dinner. He was informed that he was guessing wrong; that there was to be no wedding. Two days later he reappeared, "to get his belongings," he says.

When again he tried to open the gate Mrs. Barron struck at him with a garden rake, which scraped Moran's left arm from the shoulder to the wrist. The result is that Mr. Moran is bringing suit against Mrs. Barron for assault. Miss Miller has nothing to say about the case at all.

NO CANDIDATE NAMED

Division In Massachusetts Democratic Committee Continues

Boston, Oct. 11.—There is a wide open split in the committee appointed by the Democratic convention to select a candidate for governor. The committee has now been in session for three days and it is as far away from a choice as when it started.

The names of both Charles S. Hamlin and Eugene N. Foss were turned down by the committee in a session held last night, two of the committee being in favor of Hamlin and two favoring the nomination of Foss.

The split in the committee was further accentuated by the failure of its members to decide upon a fifth member. The names of six Democratic leaders were in turn brought before the committee and rejected.

POLICE ARE LOOKING FOR DYNAMITERS

Attempt to Blow Up New Railroad Bridge at Worcester

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 11.—The police of this city endeavored to place the responsibility for two explosions of dynamite, intended apparently to wreck a new bridge being constructed for the Boston and Albany railroad over Franklin street. The double explosion did little damage to the bridge and caused no serious injury to any person. All windows within a radius of 500 feet were broken, however.

The police are sifting reports of trouble between the Phoenix Bridge company, which is constructing the bridge, and former laborers. The firm now employs only non-union labor, and it is said their help and the union laborers employed on a nearby job have had several joint disturbances recently.

HUGHES ON SUPREME BENCH

Court Adjourns After Former Governor Takes Oath of Office

Washington, Oct. 11.—After the oath of office as associate justice was administered to Charles E. Hughes of New York, the supreme court of the United States adjourned until today out of respect to the memory of the late Chief Justice Fuller. The court was in session only eight minutes.

Presiding Justice Harlan announced as soon as the court had taken its place that the president had appointed Hughes to the bench, that the senate had confirmed the nomination and that Hughes was present. He directed Clerk McKenney, by whom Hughes was seated, to read the latter's commission.

"The court extends a cordial welcome," said Harlan, as the clerk finished reading.

He then directed the new member to take oath of office, the oath of allegiance having already been administered in the robing room a few minutes before.

Helen Gould's Private Swimming Pool Is to Cost $60,000

Tarrytown, N. Y., Oct. 11.—Miss Helen M. Gould is to have a private swimming pool at her country seat, Lyndhurst, and it will cost about $60,000. The building will be 140 feet long and 60 feet wide and is to be built of brick with Indiana limestone trimmings. The pool will be 70 feet long by 35 feet wide.

It will be lined with mosaic and the roof will be of glass. After leaving the bath one will find a fine lounging room, shower bath and dressing rooms, all of which are handsomely appointed. When completed it will be the finest private swimming pool in the country.

Vermont Is Growing Slowly

Washington, Oct. 11.—The figures of the thirteenth census give the state of Vermont a population of 355,956, which shows an increase of 12,315, or 3.5 percent as compared with the twelfth census. The 1900 census showed a gain of 3 percent over the 1800 figures.

FOR LUMBER OPERATIONS

Whole Town In North Carolina Is Bought by Large Corporation

Charlotte, N. C., Oct. 11.—Preparatory to beginning extensive lumber operations in Graham county, the Whiting Lumber company, a large corporation backed by an English syndicate and controlling thousands of acres of timber lands in Graham and adjoining counties, has purchased practically every piece of property in the town of Robinville, which has about 300 inhabitants and is the capital of this North Carolina mountain county.

The exceptions to the purchase are the courthouse property, the Methodist and Presbyterian churches, a school and two or three pieces of private property.

The purchase of the town of Robinville was necessary to the operation of the lumber company, because the site is practically the only location possible for a lumber camp. The present village is expected to bloom into a lumber town of from 3000 to 5000 people during the coming year.

BARCELONA REBELS BUSY

They Are Encouraged by Success of the Portuguese Revolution

Barcelona, Oct. 11.—A state of increasing excitement reigns in Barcelona. The success of the revolution in Portugal appears to have fanned the fire of rebellion that has smouldered since the furious outbreak of a year ago.

There is the greatest animation in the streets. The people pretend not to notice the patrols and civil guard, which are being strengthened gradually in preparation for eventualities on Oct. 13, the anniversary of the execution of Professor Ferrera, the director of the modern school of Barcelona, who was convicted of having incited last year's revolutionary movement.

Rio Janeiro, Oct. 11.—Governor Betancourt of the state of Amazonas has been deposed by the deputy governor, with the assistance of the federal troops and the naval squadron, which revolted and bombarded the capital of the state.

A special coach was attached to an express train leaving Magnolia yesterday afternoon. The coach was transferred at Boston for the justice and his party to catch the federal express to New York. Accompanying the justice is his sister and his physician.

SAYS OFFICE COST MORE THAN SALARY

"Boy Mayor" of Salem Says He Has Had Enough of It

Salem, Mass., Oct. 11.—Mayor Howard, in a statement announcing his determination not to run again for the office, unbosomed himself on the trials and tribulations of a "boy mayor."

"Day after day I have been insulted," complained the mayor in his statement, "insulted, humiliated and hounded as no leading official of a New England city ever was.

"I have had against me the city council, the school committee, and practically every city official, including my own appointee, the chief of police, whom I have consistently supported in his every endeavor to clean up the city.

"I am glad I am able to say that I have not once lost my temper or forgotten the dignity of my office. My outlay to maintain the office of mayor in a suitable manner has been $3500 to date, while the salary of the office is but $1500."

LABOR MEN AFTER DRAPER

Governor Is Scored For His Veto of the Eight-Hour Bill

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 11.—Condemnation of Governor Eben S. Draper for his second veto of the eight-hour bill was made in several of the reports submitted at the opening session here of the Massachusetts state branch, American Federation of Labor.

President Durnin, in his annual report, declared that "No one man should stand in the way of an eight-hour law. If the trade unionists of Massachusetts are loyal to the cause of labor, and not to their political affiliations, we will bring about the defeat of the man who so boldly boasts of his veto of this bill of legislation."

The legislative committee censures Draper for the same cause, with the statement that it seems incredible that any voter ever again should vote for Draper under these circumstances."

More Than Two Hundred Lives May Be Lost

WIDE AREA BURNED OVER

Six Towns Already Destroyed In Minnesota, While Flames Are Creeping Toward Southern Manitoba—Relief Trains Sent to Rainy River With Supplies For Fugitives—Burned District to Be Under Martial Law

Warroad, Minn., Oct. 11.—Estimates of the loss of life in the forest fires which started Friday, destroyed several small towns and are still raging, range all the way from 200 to 500. The property loss will amount well up into the millions.

The fire zone covers an area of eighty-five miles in length, from the gravel pits west of Warroad to Stratton, the fourth station east of Rainy River, and in width about thirty miles, covering all the territory between Red lake and Lake of the Woods.

The fires have burned up the villages of Baudette, Spooner, Graceton, Pitt, Myron and Malcolm. The last two named places are small settlements south of Warroad. The greatest property loss occurred at Baudette and Spooner, which is practically one community, being paralleled by a narrow river. The other towns consisted of only a few small buildings.

There were hundreds of homes destroyed in the territory and as there are no roads in the district save for the trails through the bushes, the full facts as to the loss of life may not be known for weeks.

The state of Minnesota is sparing no expense to check the fires. Every man available is fighting the fires, but because of the moss which covers the ground for a depth from one to two feet, it is difficult to accomplish much. If the blaze is fanned by a breeze, all efforts to check it are futile and it is only where it is creeping along the ground that any attempt is made to head it off. To do this it is necessary to dig wide and deep trenches.

The fires are almost at the boundary of Manitoba. Burning over the Sprague Lumber company's timber limits around Sprague, Manitoba, the fires are making steady progress toward the wooded districts of southeastern Manitoba. From the north another fire is coming to join it.

The missing include some 2000 residents of Baudette, Pitt, Spooner and adjoining territory, most of whom, however, are safe in Rainy River and adjacent towns on the Canadian side of the line. The most serious aspect of the missing includes the homesteaders and farmers in the bush, of whom absolutely nothing can be learned for some time, as searching parties do not dare penetrate the still smoking forests through which the fire has swept.

A special relief train has arrived at International Falls from Remidji, bearing provisions destined for Rainy River and the Remidji company of the Minnesota national guard, which will take charge of the distribution of supplies and provisions.

The burned district will be placed under martial law. There are three typhoid fever cases among the refugees at International Falls. It seems that every family of settlers has from two to ten children. Almost without exception they are absolutely destitute. The women have borne up under the terrible strain with wonderful fortitude, and all stories from the fire district are that the women, not the men, were the heroes.

When the refugees fled in panic from the freight train that bore them to International Falls and Rainy River men crushed down women and children, and in spite of the fact that the cars were choked so that standing room was at a premium, they insisted on cramming themselves in.

Miss Myra Burt of Baudette stationed herself at the door of one car, kicked every man in the face with her pointed shoe who attempted to board the car and herself reached out and took babies from the arms of mothers. When the train started there were five babies aboard whose mothers were left behind. They are being cared for in the hospitals here.

Baby Girl Abandoned

Boston, Oct. 11.—A pretty little girl about 3 months old was left in the ladies' waiting room at the North station, with a note pinned onto her coat, which read: "If anybody wants a baby, they can have mine, because I am too poor to support her." The police are trying to locate the mother.

Banns For Princess Clementine

Brussels, Oct. 11.—The banns of the marriage of Prince Victor Napoleon and Princess Clementine of Belgium have been published. The wedding will take place about the middle of November.

Johnstone's Biplane Wrecked

St. Louis, Oct. 11.—Ralph Johnstone was slightly injured and his biplane wrecked when he attempted to make a short turn close to the ground on the aviation grounds here.

VITAL QUESTIONS TO BE CONSIDERED

Congregationalists Open Their Triennial Convention at Boston

Boston, Oct. 11.—Congregationalist delegates to the fourteenth triennial session of the National Council and members of its affiliated societies were given a hearty welcome last night at Tremont Temple by Governor Draper, Mayor Fitzgerald and Rev. A. Z. Conrad. More than 2000 were gathered in the auditorium when Thomas C. MacMillan called the audience to order, thus officially opening the convention.

The convention promises to be the most successful and important series of meetings held by the organization and its tributaries since its inception.

The question of centralizing the forces of the church which heretofore have been conducted as societies affiliated with the church, but with their business policies under the separate control, is one which faces the followers of Congregationalism all over the world.

AMERICAN MINES SEIZED

Our Marines May Find Some Work to Do In Honduras

New Orleans, Oct. 11.—Hondurans have taken possession of American interests upon the west coast of Honduras near Amapala, according to private cablegrams received in this city.

Soldiers under the command of Commandant Mapal of the Amapala barracks, the radical anti-foreign leader, have seized American mines and driven off the workmen. The mine foremen have sent tugs to the United States gunboat Princeton, off Amapala, with the request that marines be landed.

One report from Honduras says that followers of the Amapala commandant had attacked the United States consul.

CURED TO STAY CURED

If you suffer from backache—
From urinary disorders—
From any disease of the kidneys,
Be cured to stay cured.
Doan's Kidney Pills make lasting cures.
Grateful people testify.
Here's one case of it:

C. H. Foster, 180 Thatcher street, Milton Mass., says: "The symptoms of kidney trouble in my case were not serious at first and I paid little attention to them. The result was that before long I found myself firmly in the grasp of this complaint. I became so weak that I could hardly attend to my work and I also suffered from sharp pains in various parts of my body. I lost twenty pounds in weight and could not sleep well. I was very nervous, had no energy and was in such poor health that the doctor told me that I should take to my bed. I did not do this, however, being unwilling to give up. When I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised. I procured a supply and had only taken part of the contents of one box before I began to feel better. From that time on I improved steadily until I was well." (Statement given May 1905.)

A Permanent Effect.

On June 24, 1908, Mr. Foster added: "My former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills still holds good. I have been free from kidney complaint during the years that have passed since I first took the remedy."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

HOUSE LOTS AT AUCTION.

One of the largest land sales in Quincy for some time is advertised by Auctioneer James F. Burke for Saturday, when he will sell the large tract of land at the junction of Washington and Chubbuck streets which has recently been laid out into house lots. This land is situated in the heart of the Fore River district, and while the lots facing Washington street afford excellent locations for business blocks, those on the Chubbuck street side are good locations for dwelling houses.

There is an urgent and crying demand for houses in this section of the city to accommodate the thousands employed at the shipyard, many of whom are obliged to live out of town for lack of houses. For the investor a sure and steady return is assured, for houses can be let for good rentals as fast as erected. The lots will be sold on terms that will be acceptable to the purchaser and the title to the land has been registered.

GRANITE SHIPMENTS.

The amount of rough and finished granite forwarded from Quincy during the month of September was 11,846,791 pounds. Of this amount 6,053,335 pounds was sent out from West Quincy and 5,793,456 pounds from South Quincy. Compared with September of 1909 the output was not as large. The records of the Daily Ledger show that last year the output was 19,341,159 pounds. Of this amount West Quincy sent our 13,573,420 pounds and South Quincy 5,767,639 pounds.

G. C. I. U. HEADQUARTERS.

The Helena, Mont., correspondent of the Granite Cutters Journal recommends 'the establishment of a permanent headquarters as a question which should be brought before a convention; further to consider the advisability of building a home of our own. Why pay rent to the other fellow? Let them pay rent to us. It is evident that on account of the headquarters being in Quincy does not improve the conditions there; they are working for as low wages in Quincy as any other part of the country. I am not advocating any particular place, but I do think it should be at our meetings. We compel them by convention, select some suitable location and build a home for ourselves which could be done by assessing each member. The little town of Billings, Mont., with only a handful of union men, has just bought a building costing $61,000; and we with a membership approximately 18,000 are paying rent to the capitalist."

FUMES FROM CHEMICALS

Cause Firemen to Beat Retreat While Fighting Flames at Boston

Boston, Oct. 11.—Blue and green jets of flame shooting from the fifth floor of the building at 173 Summer street early this morning drove firemen on ladders scurrying to the ground to escape the noxious fumes of the chemicals that were blazing in the offices of the Hub Engraving company and caused three alarms to be run in.

For a few minutes the fire looked like one of the most dangerous that has broken out in the congested district for years. The whole plant of the engraving company was destroyed. The loss has not yet been ascertained.

—At the Denver electric show it demonstrated how the atmosphere of a city might be kept pure by the use of Ozonizers.

QUINCY'S PART IN PARADE

Knights of Columbus and Other Societies Participate

Large delegations of Quincy council, Knights of Columbus, and the Holy Name society of St. John's church took part. The members of the Knights of Columbus assembled at their rooms in the Savings Bank at 8:30 and shortly after marched in a body to St. John's church where high mass was celebrated by Rev. John J. Coan, chaplain of the council, with John Mahan as organist. They then marched back to their club rooms from which place they proceeded to the Quincy depot and took the 10.19 train for Boston. The council proudly carried in the parade a new beautiful white silk banner presented by Fr. Coan, and also a new American flag. Quincy council had the right of line in District 10 of the Second division, headed by the Boston Letter Carriers' band. Uniformity of dress contributed to make a fine appearance.

The Holy Name Society did not go to Boston until the noon train. After attending mass the three companies headed by a band, the Rev. P. J. Scannell, spiritual director, E. J. Lennon and M. T. Sullivan, marched to the Quincy depot. They also made a good appearance and marched well.

Quincy members of the Catholic Order of Foresters and of different Italian societies also took part in the parade, and also battalions from the U. S. battleship Rhode Island and the U. S. S. Salem, built at Quincy.

EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS.

The special Evangelistic meetings which commenced Sunday at the Hall Place M. E. church and have been held each evening this week are progressing and decisions have been made. The meetings have been interesting and helpful to all, and have brought strength and courage.

The Alexander songbooks are being used, and the old familiar songs are well liked and inspiring.

On Friday night a special solo will be rendered by Charles Goucher.

On Sunday, the regular choir, under the leadership of Mr. Goucher, will be present again and lead in the music. The special Evangelistic services will be held every night next week with the exception of Saturday. Simultaneous meetings are being held all over the Boston district of Methodist churches, about one hundred and fifty churches being in the movement, a fact which gives added strength in the knowledge that so many are engaged in this same work.

DONATION TO HOSPITAL.

The action taken by Manager Jelatis of the Auditorium in giving the entire receipts of next Wednesday afternoon and evening, to the Hospital collection fund, is indeed worthy of the highest praise, and we feel sure that the offer will be highly appreciated by the trustees of the City Hospital. The receipts for the day should amount to quite a sum and will be an excellent addition to the general fund. It is earnestly hoped that some of the other business men of the city will see their way clear to do something of this kind in the interests of Quincy's greatest charity.

NEW EXALTED RULER.

A meeting of Quincy lodge of Elks was held Tuesday evening which was largely attended. The vacancy caused by the death of Exalted Ruler William J. Coleman was filled by the election of Elmer E. Paine, the sitting leading knight. The election of Mr. Paine to the office of exalted ruler left another office vacant and this was filled by the election of Robert J. Williams, Jr., the sitting loyal knight, and the vacancy thus created was filled by the election of the sitting lecturing knight, George J. Jordan as loyal knight. The vacancy in the latter office was filled by the election of Philip H. Sullivan. These officers will probably be installed at the next meeting of the lodge. After the business meeting a lunch was served at the club rooms.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN CLUB

Former Superintendent Speaks On Education

A large number of Quincy school officials, past and present, were among those attending the meeting of the Wollaston Unitarian club on Tuesday evening, to hear the address of Frank E. Parlin, former superintendent of the Quincy schools, who now holds a similar appointment in Cambridge. The meeting which was well attended opened the eleventh season of the club.

Among those at the head table, besides the new president of the club, Charles H. Brigham and the speaker, were: Albert L. Barbour, superintendent of the Quincy schools, Headmaster Howlett of the Quincy High school, Leslie L. Cleveland, headmaster of the Cambridge High school, Frederic W. Plummer headmaster of the Chelsea High school, and John L. Miller chairman of the Quincy School Committee.

Superintendent Parlin gave as his subject: "An examination of present methods of education" and was introduced by Charles H. Brigham with a few germane remarks on education in general.

Business men as a rule, said Mr. Parlin are apt to give too little attention to the education of their children. It is a subject which should appeal to all, and there are various opinions as to teachers and schools. Education is rapidly becoming a profession and I hope sometime to see it have the standing of medicine, law and divinity.

If we want conditions what they ought to be we should give more attention to the selection of our school committees and city councils. While present school conditions are much criticised, the child has never been so well understood or the school done as efficient service as today. No department that is an expense to the city gets so much for the dollar as the school department. The only hindrance to progress is public opinion. If there is one thing everyone knows all about it is how to run a school. If we will only have confidence in trained educators, said Mr. Parlin, in closing, they will soon give us some results to prove they know what they are about.

Following his address Mr. Parlin spoke briefly on vocational education. He favors vocational training but objects to putting every child in the vocational schools. If we train children in only about twenty occupations these will become overcrowded and there will be as many misfits as now. Give the child all 'round developement, said Superintendent Parlin, and assist him to select wisely some occupation he would like to follow."

FOUND—A HAT.

Two shots fired in quick succession near the corner of Hancock and School streets in the vicinity of 2 o'clock Wednesday morning startled the residents of that section. It seems that Officer Broburg and Ford saw a man who appeared to be acting on a suspicious manner andcalled upon him to stop. Instead of doing so the man began to run. The officers gave pursuit. The man jumped over fences and ran through yards in that vicinity and finding that he was bent on getting away the officers fired at him. They did not hit him, however, and instead of halting the man it only served to make him run the faster, so that he eventually got away. In his hurry however he lost his black derby hat which the owner can have by calling at the police station.

OCTOBER WEDDINGS

Tuesday a Popular Day with Many Brides

A wedding of rare interest took place on the evening of the holiday when Miss Ada Fleming Stone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Stone of 102 Grand View avenue, Wollaston, and Mr. Harold Ralph Gillette of Cortland, N. Y., were united in marriage. The ceremony, which took place at the home of the bride's parents, was conducted by Rev. Edward S. Tead of Somerville, Rev. E. A. Chase of Wollaston, assisting.

The wedding march began at 7.30 to the accompaniment of an orchestra. The bride was attended by Miss Dorothy Gillette of Cortland, N. Y., a sister of the groom, and Mr. C. Frank Sannett of Washington, D. C. was best man. The group presented a very pretty picture as they approached the bower of roses and carnations before which the clergymen stood. The maid of honor was gowned in pink chiffon over jacquard silk and the bride wore a gown of white satin en train trimmed with princess lace and orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley and orchids.

The house was artistically decorated with southern smilax, banks of roses and carnations and an abundance of cut flowers. Before one of these immense banks of flowers the wedding group formed for the ceremony. The bride was given away by her father Mr. George W. Stone.

After the wedding, a reception toon place at which the following acted as ushers: R. S. Kidney of Auburn, N. Y., William W. Nichols of Wollaston, Roy S. Licking of New York city and Harold Farrington of Cambridge. About 150 guests were present to congratulate the bride and groom. One of the large upper rooms was filled to overflowing with the presents the young people received.

At 10 o'clock the reception was over but a number of the guests stayed to speed the bride and groom on their journey with the aid of confetti and such. Mr. and Mrs. Gillette will take an extended wedding tour after which they will make their home in Cortland, N. Y.

Mr. Gillette is a very successful business man of that city, being president of the Gillette Skirt Co., and of the Auburn Silk Co., which is located in Auburn, N. Y.

Mrs. Gillette was a Quincy Mansion school girl. Last year Mr. Gillette was a passenger on the Cleveland, a trans-Atlantic liner on which Miss Stone was travelling. They did not meet until the island of Madeira was reached. From there they completed the tour around the world by the same route. and thus had an opportunity to get well acquainted. The maid of honor and the best man were also of the party. Miss Stone and Mr. Gillette became engaged before the trip was completed and the engagement was announced in May of this year. The courtship was of the most romantic type and the wedding was a fitting climax to the chain of events which started about a year ago. Mr. and Mrs. Gillette will be at home in Cortland after Jan. 1.

GANZEL—PAWSEY.

A beautiful autumn afternoon, a beautiful bride and a gathering of many friends made the wedding at Christ church on Tuesday one long to be remembered. The bride was Miss Sarah Eliza Pawsey daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Pawsey of Pawsey road, and the groom Rupert Karl Ganzel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Ganzel of Summer street, Weymouth, formerly of Quincy.

Prof. Wrigley organist at the church played while the guests were arriving and at three o'clock the bridal party entered the church to the strains of the wedding march. At the chancel the rector of the church Rev. Richard E. Armstrong, the groom, and his brother, Wesley Ganzel who acted as best man awaited the coming of the bride, who was escorted by her father and preceded by her sister Mrs. Clarence Andrew Perkins of Allston the matron of honor.

Among those present at the reception beside the two immediate families were members of the bride's girls club and the groom's young men's club and friends from London, England Boston, Brookline, Brockton, Weymouth and Quincy.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the parish house the parents of the bride and groom assisting them in receiving. Ices and cake were served. It was a very informal and a happy occasion.

The decorations in the church were cut flowers and palms and in the parish house autumn leaves were used profusely. The bride who is a particularly sweet and attractive girl looked charming in her bridal robe of ivory white satin with embroidered trimming. She carried a bouquet of bride roses and her veil was caught up with a gold key, a family heirloom. She wore a crescent of pearls, a gift from the groom. Mrs. Perkins the matron of honor wore a pale blue crepe de chene over blue silk with pearl trimming and carried a bouquet of pinks. She was the recipient of a crescent of pearls from the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Ganzel have gone on a wedding trip to New York and Washington.

They are to reside at 123 Atlantic street, Atlantic where they will be at home to their friends after December first.

WINLOCK—POLAND.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Poland at 22 Glover avenue, Norfolk Downs, was the scene of one of the prettiest home weddings of the season, Tuesday evening when their daughter, Miss Caroline Marguerite Poland, became the bride of Mr. Walter Winlock also of Norfolk Downs.

The house was beautifully decorated with green vines, asters, roses and potted plants. The bride was becomingly gowned in cream mesaline draped with chiffon made in the modified hobble style. Her only ornament was a gold pin, the gift of the groom and she carried bride roses. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Eleanor Fountain, who was dressed in blue silk muslin and caried pink roses. The groom was attended by his cousin, Mr. Harvey Winlock.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William Ayers of the Park and Downs Congregational church. The single ring service was used.

After the ceremony a reception was held and the bride and groom were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Poland and Mrs. Winlock, the bride's parents and groom's mother.

Miss Marguerite Louise Holbrook was the pianist and played Lohengrin's wedding march as the bridal party marched in, and Mendelssohn's wedding march immediately after the ceremony.

The bride's gifts to her maid of honor and pianist were gold collar pins set with pearls.

During the evening ices were served by the Miss Winlock Miss Grebbenstein, Miss Weymouth and Miss Fountain. There were guests present from Somerville, Cambridge and Quincy. There were a large number of gifts which included cut glass, silver and china.

The bride and groom left for a two weeks' trip to Washington amid hearty congratulations and great showers of confetti and rice. They will reside in Norfolk Downs on their return.

VOY—ARNOLD.

A wedding of interest to Braintree and Quincy people was solemnized at Gloucester on Tuesday by Rev. Chas. H. Williams, the bride being Miss Florence May Arnold of 374 Middle street, Braintree, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Webster Arnold. The groom was George Arthur Voy of Boston. Russell of Quincy presided and Norman L. White of Brookline spoke in praise of Capt. Cushing in nominating him. In accepting the nomination Capt. Cushing said he had honestly endeavored to perform his duties to the best of his ability, and it was with the deepest gratitude the he accepted the nomination, as it showed his efforts had been appreciated.

MALTA INITIATION

To Be Witnessed by Many Visiting Knights

Today is another red letter day in the history of the Knights of Malta of this city for they have made arrangements to entertain visitors from Hyde Park, Whitman and other towns. The new Malta degree staff will exemplify the initiatory work.

An organization which is attracting considerable attention at the present time in fraternal circles is the order of Knights Hospitalers of St. John of Jerusalem, more commonly known as Knights of Malta. A brief sketch of the origin and history of it may be interesting to the readers of the Daily Ledger, especially those who have seen the "travelling staff" at the store of W. G. Shaw.

In the tenth century of the Christian era it became quite customary for people from Europe to make pilgrimages to Jerusalem with the expectation of obtaining some spiritual benefits from prayers offered up at the sepulchre where the Saviour was believed to have lain after His crucifixion. Then, as now, the city of Jerusalem was in the hands of the Turks, who looked with disfavor upon any emblem which was not subordinated to the Crescent. The visiting pilgrims were treated with harshness by the constituted authorities and practically left at the mercy of Moslem robbers, who infested the paths of travel.

Finally certain merchants in Italy secured certain privileges from the Turkish authorities for the visiting Christians, among others the right to erect a chapel and hospitals. Certain pilgrims then in the city undertook to care in these hospitals for the other pilgrims who arrived from time to time sick and destitute. One of the hospitals—devoted to men—was dedicated to St. John the Almoner, and the other, in which women were cared for, was dedicated to St. Mary Magdalene. The institutions were supported by gifts received from friends in various parts of Europe. The hospitals were erected about the year 1048. Soon after, the Pope approved the order under the name of Brothers Hospitalers of St. John in Jerusalem, and Pierre Girard was made the first Guardian or Commander.

After five years, Girard was succeeded in office by Sir Raymond du Puy, who decided to arm the Hospitalers, as the serving pilgrims were then called, so that they might not only administer to the wants of Christians in want and distress, but protect pilgrims, who wished to visit the Holy City, from the Turks. Thus it was that the Order came to take on a military aspect. The Hospitalers proved apt pupils in learning the use of weapons, and before long they constituted a magnificent military body. They were soon called upon to give an account of their prowess. An infidel army undertook to drive the Christians from Palestine. Fierce fighting followed in which the Hospitalers were victorious.

Sir Raymond DuPuy died at the hospital, after having served as grand commander for forty years. During this period decisive battles had been fought between the Christians and the Turks, in which the latter suffered severely. In one battle they lost six thousand men, and among other strongholds they had lost the city of Jerusalem.

Eighty-eight years after the Holy City had been wrested from the infidels, it passed again into their control, after a fierce battle with the Hospitalers. By treaty the Christians were allowed to remain until such time as the Christians then in the hospital were able to leave.

Forty years later—in 1228—the Knights Hospitalers again captured Jerusalem, this time with the assistance of another order that had come into existence, namely, the Knights Templars. The Christian occupation this time was destined to be brief. A large infidel army attacked the city and when the Christians ceased to fight there were only 49 alive—33 Templars and 16 Hospitalers. The grand masters of both orders were slain.

From this time on, the Knights Hospitalers did considerable brilliant fighting with the Saracens, but not on so gigantic a scale as formerly. They moved from one place to another in search of a resting place. For a time they resided on the island of Cyprus. Then they were offered the island of Rhodes by the king of France, which they accepted. More than two hundred years later, they were dispossessed by the Turks, after a long and bloody siege. Charles V., the Emperor of Germany and Spain, deeded to them the island of Malta, which they occupied for about a century and a half. They were finally driven from the island by the first Napoleon. This island, by the way, was the one on which the Apostle Paul was shipwrecked. It was then called the island of Melita.

From being a Catholic organization the order underwent a gradual change and when the Reformation had done its work in England and Scotland the Knights of Malta had become a Protestant body, having for one of its objects the separation of church and state. A Scottish branch had come into existence under David I of Scotland, he, himself being the first Prior or Master. Another branch had been established in England. In 1853 the Grand Lodge of Scotland established its right to the Supreme government of the Order and has ever

Congratulations to the Quincy societies taking part in the grand Columbus day parade in Boston; they made a dignified appearance which reflected credit upon the City of Presidents and the orders with which they are affiliated.

The first October holiday was appreciated, the weather for Columbus day being ideal. A clear sky and bracing temperature. Many will remember for years the first Columbus day in Massachusetts, not alone because of the big parade in Boston, but because of other events.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen company, a man who has done more for Lawrence than a hundred of its politicians and would-be statesmen, showed the broadness and liberality of his make-up at the ceremonies attending the formal opening at the great new Ayre mill last night.

After the exercises attending the setting in motion the largest clock of its kind in America and when cheers had been called for and given for Mr. Ayer and Mr. Wood, the latter gentleman called for cheers for the press.

How differnt this is from the attitude of mind of some of the little chaps in Lawrence who have had occasion to appreciate the influence of the press, who have been helped forward by the press but whose idea of their own importance leads them to denounce the press whenever it does not fall into line with their plans.

Here is a man of national size in the greatest industry in Lawrence who does not think it out of place for him to publicly acknowledge his obligations to the press. And he probably is not really under so much personal obligation to the press as are some of the fellows of parochial size who think it adds to their importance by pretending to disregard it.

But a big-brained, large-souled man is broad-minded and large-minded in all his undertakings. That magnificent tower and clock that adorns the Ayer mill cost a great deal of money. The mill could grind out dividends without any such expenditure. But Lawrence would be lacking in a very useful public clock and in a very handsome tower, if a niggardly and narrow policy had prevailed over Mr. Wood's ideas when the subject of placing a tower upon the new mill was being considered.

It would be well if Lawrence had a few more men of Mr. Wood's spirit in all walks of life.—Lawrence Telegram.

A series of experiments which have been made this summer in Birmingham, England, seem to have proved the close relationship of flies to stomach and intestinal disorders Tracing the extent and degree of diarrhoea and enteritis on one chart and the prevalence of flies on another, a very close agreement has been found between the curve of the increase of the flies and that of the diseases. It must be more than accident that resulted in the maximum of both coming within the same week. Here is still another warning against carelessness in permitting flies to have their way—and this not only in the matter of their living themselves upon our supplies but in breeding upon our premises. Indifference might well give way before the possibility of their turning into curses come home to roost.—New Bedford Standard.

LINES MANNED BY MILITARY

Railroad Strike In France Assumes a Serious Phase

IT MAY BECOME NATION-WIDE

Central Strike Committee Votes to Ask Men of All Roads to Quit Unless Demands Are Granted at Once—Ministry Plan to Muster Railway Employes Into Service May Result In Trouble

Paris, Oct. 13.—With more than 80,000 men already out, the railroad strike is spreading throughout France. Before night many more thousand employes, it is believed, will have quit work unless the officials of the transportation company agree to grant the demands of the men.

The employes of the Northern railway were the first to strike. Resolutions calling for a similar action were soon passed by the men employed on the Western railroad, which is now under state control. It is believed the strike will spread to the eastern railroads of the country and tie up the Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean roads.

The strikers demand a general increase in wages with $1 a day as the minimum wage, a retroactive application of the employes' pension law, monthly and not daily employment, and one day a week off. They declare they will refuse to work unless these demands have been granted.

At a meeting of the central strike committee of the National Railroaders' union it was decided to make the strike nation wide unless the demands are granted at once. The union leaders have requested that the officials of the road call a conference at once, and representatives of the employes will be ready to explain the situation and the alleged injustices to the men.

Military engineers and army men are already taking the places of the strikers, and it is expected that all the roads affected will be put on a military basis. Passenger, freight and mail service is already being seriously hampered by the labor trouble. At the Northern railway station fifteen instead of five hundred trains arrived yesterday.

In putting the roads on a military basis the ministry plan to muster the railroad employes into service, thus subjecting them to military discipline for thirty days. It is feared that this will result in trouble, as the strikers have voted not to respond, basing their refusal on the ground that the law calls for the mobilization of technical employes of the roads only for transportation of troops and materials.

Thousands of men living in the suburbs were unable to get to work yesterday, owing to the trains failing to run, and many had to walk miles. Plans are being prepared for automobile service for the mails, and already the food supply from the outer world is endangered.

Several trains scheduled to handle the mails from Germany have been abandoned, and no attempt made to put on others to take their places.

Guardian Wanted to Marry Protege Many Years His Junior

Cortland, N. Y., Oct. 13.—Committed to his care on her mother's death bed, Miss Lillian E. Dodge, a New York girl, who lies mortally wounded in the hospital here, was shot by her guardian, L. R. Loomis of New York.

After he had promised to care for the girl, Loomis, thirty years older than she, so importuned her to marry him that she fled here to escape from him. He followed her and shot her twice.

Thinking he had killed her he shot himself in the neck, the bullet breaking his jaw and tearing his tongue, after which he walked three blocks to the home of a physician. He will recover.

The report will be submitted to the trtustees of the new scheme at a meeting which will be held probably next week. To assist in the report, two committees of treasury officials have been appointed to consider such questions as the designation of banks as depositories of postal savings funds, the issue of bonds and work of auditing.

STILL LOOKING FOR CANDIDATE

Democratic State Committee Takes Up the Question

MAY STRAIGHTEN OUT TANGLE

Votes to Canvass Preference of Delegates to State Convention For Governor With Special Delivery Letters—Committee of Four Appointed to Select Candidate Remains Deadlocked, With Little Chance of It Being Broken

Boston, Oct. 13.—It was voted at a special meeting of the Democratic state committee yesterday afternoon to send to every delegate to the state convention a special delivery letter asking him to express his choice on the question of the most available candidate for governor.

The opinions of the delegates will be considered by the convention committee appointed to select a candidate for governor and Chairman MacLeod is of the opinion that it will help to break the deadlock now existing in the committee of four.

The convention committee met yesterday but came to no agreement on the fifth member. Both Crowley of Lowell and Hayes of Springfield, although invited, refused to participate in the meeting of the state comittee, claiming that MacLeod, in calling this meeting, was merely attempting to usurp the responsibility put upon the committee of four by the state convention.

Chairman MacLeod called the state committee meeting, believing that it was the only way in which the deadlock in the convention could be broken.

Asked by Crowley why he called the meeting of the state committee, MacLeod said that he did so because he was "obliged to fight the subsidized press of Boston."

Thee were twenty-three members of the state committee present at the meeting. Later on there were thirty-two members who put in an appearance.

Timothy D. Sullivan of Fall River created somewhat of a sensation when he said that if he were "not amenable to the law he would move that a committee be appointed to hang the committee of four because of their failure to agree upon a candidate for governor."

The resolution calling for an expression of opinion from the delegates was passed by a vote of 19 to 5.

The resolution was as follows: "That a special delivery letter be mailed to every regularly elected delegate to the recent state convention, with a special delivery return envelope enclosed addressed to William P. Hayes, secretary of the committee of four having the power to select a candidate for governor, and requesting them to reply immediately, stating their preference for the most available candidate for governor at this time, for the information and the guidance of the committee."

Chairman MacLeod asked permission to make a statement. He said that he would vote against all names suggested for fifth member of the committee without prejudice, believing that this matter should be postponed until after the meeting of the state committee.

This statement on the part of MacLeod was subscribed to by Maynard.

TO CAMPAIGN FOR LABOR

Congregational Brotherhood Makes a Sweeping Declaration

Boston, Oct. 13.—The most sweeping declaration yet made by an organization affiliated with the Congregational church on the labor question was adopted by the Congregational Brotherhood of America at their meeting in the Park Street church yesterday.

The questions which the labor constituency have contended the churches were dodging were placed before the body and after a unanimous vote which embodied provisions for a campaign to bring these things about so far as the church could and financial assistance was pledged for this purpose, the matter will now be placed before the council whose support the Brotherhood seeks.

About thirty years ago the first Commandery on this continent was set up in Toronto, Canada and the Order has made great headway in that country. In 1889 the Imperial Parent granted a charter to the "Supreme Grand Commandery of the Continent of America," to have unlimited authority on this continent "so long as it maintains Protestantism, civil and religious liberty, and the ancient landmarks of the Order."

The Supreme Commandery of America has its headquarters at Philadelphia. Grand and Subordinate Commanderies exist in more than twenty of the States and the Order is very strong in New York, Peansylvania and Massachusetts. While distinctly Protestant in its character and aims, the Order is free from intolerance and bigotry. It is religious, fraternal, military and beneficial. There are twelve degrees in its ritualistic work and they posses a great deal of beauty and sublimity. It is a boast of the Order that all of its ritual is its own, not a linehaving been borrowed or stolen. The twelfth degree, known as the Red Cross and Sepulchre Degree, is said to be of surpassing dignity, meaning and impressiveness.

There are two points of especial interest in connection with this organization. It is the oldest knighlly order in existence, and there is not a link missing in the entire chain of its nine hundred and fifty years of illustrious history. Through troubles, trials and persecutions it has managed to live, and today it connects the glorious past with the living present; and it is difficult to conceive of its passing away so long as work remains to be done for the betterment of society.

QUINCY DAY NURSERY ASSO.

The annual meeting of the Day Nursery Association was held in the Woman's club house on Tuesday, Oct. 4. It was a large and enthusiastic meeting. Reports were read and officers elected for the ensuing year.

An interesting and illuminating talk about the work of the Nursery was given by the Matron, Mrs. Loring.

A vote was passed ,thanking the Woman's club for the use of the club-house for the meetings of the Association. After the regular meeting tea was served in the tea room by the President, Mrs. Wadsworth; Mrs. Bryant and Mrs. Burgin presiding at the tea table.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

In many respects this seventh annual report should be the most satisfactory and encouraging of any in our history.

Money—the all important item has seemed to come more easily, the number of willing workers has been large and enthusiastic and the Nursery by the good work done is more firmly established. The number of children cared for has jumped from 2,507 last year to 3,576, this representing 16 families.

In addition to caring for these children our matron has brought comfort and cheer to many a weary discouraged and oft-times deserted wife and mother by finding work for her.

The Association has held eleven regular meetings and two special during the year. The attendance as a rule has been good but several small meetings pulls the average down to twelve. Through the continued courtesy of the Woman's club all regular meetings have been held in the pleasant comfortable club house.

For the way of money raising the Association has been active and successful.

Tag day on Oct. 23 realized for the Nursery $458.57. In November a rummage sale was held jointly with Unity Circle of King's Daughters and from that our treasury received $156.83.

In December a "donation shower" was held in Bethany chapel. This was pleasant socially as well as very profitable for the Nursery. The ladies of Bethany Circle graciously acted as hostesses and served tea to the company. The store of provisions was so generous that only within the last few weeks did the last of them disappear from the Nursery shelves.

The Valentine parties which have become annual affairs were successful as usual bringing in $202.05.

Of the life at the Nursery home there are none but pleasant reports to make.

Our good matron has made it a home indeed for the little ones and a haven of rest, comfort and genuine help to the mothers.

There has been no serious illness and the rosy cheeks and happy faces tell of the excellent care these little ones receive from Mrs. Loring

In July the house which the Nursery had occupied for nearly two years was sold. The situation at first looked hopeless for there seemed to be no available houses in the proper neighborhood but before many days committee, Mrs. King and Mrs. Wadsworth had found a house in the same locality, more pleasant and desirable in every way with a fine large shady yard for the children's play.

Before the month's notice had expired the Nursery was established in its new quarters everything looking as homelike and attractive as possible. This however was only possible by the untiring efforts of our devoted Matron, Mrs. Loring.

The donations through the year have been very generous and from many sources especially notable have been the gifts from children.

The birthday money from the infant department of Bethany church, the charity penny collection from the First Unitarian Sunday school, proceeds of fairs held by groups of girls and circuses given by boys

On Thanksgiving day through the kindness of friends a fine dinner was enjoyed by the matron and fourteen happy children.

At Christmas time a bountiful Christmas dinner was sent to the Nursery by the Society of Elks and on New Year's day a delightful Christmas festival was given at the Nursery for children and their mothers. The committee in charge being Mrs. Dasha, Mrs. Wrisley, Mrs. Addison and Mrs. Wadsworth.

During the year a telephone has been installed and the year's rent cared for by subscriptions received from friends.

This telephone has proved its usefulness and necessity. Through it Mrs. Loring has been able to find work for the mothers and efficient help for ladies applying to Mrs. Loring.

To all who have given so liberally to the support of the Nursery the Association is very grateful and asks for the continued support and encouragement of the public.—Alice L. Page.

TELEPHONE COMMITTEE.

My appointment as special committee, to place a telephone in the Quincy Day Nursery was received Feb. 21, 1910. The same day at 3 P. M. thanks to the prompt service of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company the telephone was installed therein ,our management informed, and the business of the Nursery was swung into line. The price of the telephone a two party line was forty-eight dollars. With the usual charity discount it was made thirty-two dollars. The amount of money collected is thirty-six dollars and fifty cents leaving a balance of four dollars and fifty cents to be applied to the toll service in the Metropolitan Exchange which is at the Nursery obligatory.

For the convenience of your committee the money was placed with the New England Telephone and Telegraph Compony credited to the Quincy Day Nursery Association. Now, each month a credit slip is received and an accurate account registered. Feb. 21, 1911, you will begin to owe them money.

The payment of the telephone has been by subscription and the undersigned who have subscribed are as follows: Hon. William T. Shea, Mayor of our city leads the list, followed by Mrs. Frank Page and Mrs. R. D. Allen, secretary and treasurer of the association.

A number of children ,residing in the city, who have shown their interest in the little folks at the Nursery, on former occasions, have contributed generously. They are Elizabeth Reed, Margaret Atwood, Frances Sherman, Mary Tuttle, James Tuttle, Beatrice Sherman, Rhoda Johnson, Elizabeth Hazlett, Joyce Buchanon, Ruth Jones, Anna Whitham, Gladys Glover, Elizabeth Ferguson, Dorothy Sprague, Katherine Follett, Charlotte Barstow.

The Children Hour a club of forty-eight children, in charge of Mrs. Grace Condon, gave an entertainment which was well attended and giving a material profit for this object.

There were also a number of people, in the neighborhood and about the city, who using the telephone in securing help from the Nursery, were pleased to pay the small remittance charged.

Pioneer work in this philanthropy teaches me to appreciate the telephone in the Nursery and to understand its meaning to the present board of management therefore at this time I am taking the liberty of expressing their thanks and gratitude to each and all, who have responded so cheerfully to this need, especially to our new friends The New England Telephone and Telegraph Co.—Mary E. Addison.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

After a vacation of five months it was pleasant for the members of the Quincy Women's club to come together again for the season of 1910-1911, and the clubhouse was thronged on Tuesday afternoon with happy animated womankind.

Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney president called the meeting to order at half-past two, and in a few words cordially welcomed old and new members. She spoke of the new year books which had been sent each members and of the view of the clubhouse on the front cover. The photograph had been taken by Mrs. Walter E. Blanchard and the Music committee had had a cut made last year for their operetta programs which they afterward presented to the club, so that now it was the property of the club. With the year books had also gone out copies of the by-laws. Mrs.Gurney hoped all members would read the by-laws carefully and become familiar with them. Mrs. Irene Chipman Tirrell who wrote the club program had today had a copy of it handed to each member and Mrs. Gurney advised members to place it in their year books as it would be sung on club days such as President Federation and opening days Mrs. Gurney asked all to unite in singing the hymn which they did standing accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Chandler W. Smith.

After singing the hymn routine business was taken up, reports being given by the recording secretary of the last club meeting and also the executive board meeting. The corresponding secretary reported a full membership and a waiting list of 76. Treasurer's report was read after which the chairmen of committees reported.

Mrs. Charles Bickford for the Art and Literature committee said plans were not completed but there would be a lecture on art; a gentlemen's night with a Shakesperian reading and the current events lectures by Mrs. May Alden Ward would be resumed in November, members tickets at $1.00; non-members at $1.50 and single tickets thirty-five cents for each lecture.

Mrs. Edward S. Tenney for the Arts and Crafts committee spoke of the classes being formed. There would be 3 lessons in tooled leather; 3 in stenciling; 3 in brass; 6 in jewelry; 6 in basketry; 10 in embroidery and Irish crochet; 8 in millinery; 8 in dressmaking and one or more classes would be made up for china decorating, etc. The exchange is run for the benefit of club members and she urged patronizing home industry. A specialty was made of order work and invited all to visit the Arts and Crafts rooms after the meeting and see the many pretty things exhibited. Although the next meeting would be in First Church chapel the exchange table would be there waiting for patronage.

In the abseince of Mrs. W. G. Shaw, Mrs. Victor E. Miller spoke for the Civic committee and told of the work at the children's playground, the club house grounds and improvements about the Atlantic station. The annual assembly would be on Nov. 25 for which plans were going forward.

Mrs. John D. Mackay said the lunch counter at the High school which had been her plea last year and a continued story had now a sequel as a lunch counter had been established not by the club but by the school committee. Speaking of the summer school Mrs. Mackay said:

"The Education committee, after full discussion and due deliberation, voted to continue the Summer school for girls, which had been in existence for some years past. It was the sense of the committee that the curriculum be changed. Since sloyd and sewing are to be so extensively taught in the public schools next year, these subjects were abandoned and the following courses substituted: Physical culture, folk dancing, swimming, cooking, home nursing, a short business course, current events, and spelling matches. Some arithmetic was taught to girls who were below grade in their school work.

The number of girls registered was 220. The average attendance was below that. For the first two weeks the club house was over-crowded, but after awhile there were smaller numbers and things were more comfortable. If the school board would grant the use of one of the public school buildings to the Education committee for the summer school, many of the difficulties which had to be met this summer would be removed.

The cost of maintaining the Summer school was $130.56. Last yearthe cost of the school was $143.80. The committee feel that they gave to the girls of Quincy good value for this $130.56.

We had at the opening of the school only two paid teachers, but when the number of pupils continued so large, we found that there must be some third person upon whom we could depend. Miss Birse consented to help us out. The Committee realize that $10 was in no measure payment for the teaching which Miss Birse did, but it was all that they had to offer her.

We are fortunate in having in our cit ywomen who are trained teachers and yet in a position to give their services to the summer school. Mrs. Stanley Bone, who was before her marriage a teacher of Domestic Science, in a large high school in St. Louis was willing to give, through the long stretch of hot weather her services to the summer school.

Mrs. A. J. L. Kennedy is also an ex-teacher, as well as a graduate of the Boston City hospital, and she was for some time a head nurse in that institution. For the sake of teaching the girls in our summer school she came from her home two days each week through the heat of July and early August to help make our school a success.

Our committee realized that if we could keep the classes small, the girls would get more instruction. As we had only three teachers upon whom we could rely, we had to ask for volunteer teachers. Below is a list of those who assisted us in our summer school:—Mrs. James M. Nowland, Miss Clara Thompson, Miss Clara E. G. Thayer, Mrs. Albert Parker, Mrs. Charles R. Safford, Mrs. Percy Holman, Mrs. William E. Alden, Miss Harding, Miss Millie Wainwright, Mrs. W. T. Babcock and Mrs. Chandler W. Smith.

Every Friday we planned to give the girls a treat in the way of instructive entertainment. Following is a list of the speakers and their subjects: Mrs. H. J. Gurney, a story; Miss Georgianna Lane, "How a Great Painting Grows"; Mrs. Walter E. Burke, "Dickens as an Educator;" Miss Edith Randall, "Holland"; Charles H. Hardwick, Esq., "Birds"; Miss Mary Nowland, "Manners"; Mrs. H. H. Kitson, "How a Statue Grows"; Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, "A Word About Some Old Songs."

Prizes were awarded for the best account of these lectures and excellence in class work.

All of the work done by the teachers was deserving of praise. The cooking class did work which must help to make happier homes. The aim of the committee was to give the course in cooking to the girls who were at the heads of families. One of the girls only fourteen years of age, was the eldest of a family of five where the mother was ill. Last winter this girl did all of the cooking for the family. The course was a great assistance to her, and she can now give her other more intelligent help. This report does not allow for space to describe the work done in this course, but if the ladies of the club could have seen the quality of the food which the girls prepared it would have given them immense satisfaction.

The Home Nursing was a long step in the right direction. To teach the young girls of the family what to do in ordinary cases of illness which arise in their homes in the truest kind of philanthropy, besides making the girls womanly, for it is in the time of trouble and sickness that the best which is in a woman is shown.

The swimming classes were conducted in accordance to the tides. Somedays the lessons were given in the afternoons, agan on an alternate day from a school day or on Saturdays. About 180 girls were instructed in the art of swimming. The wisdom of teaching girls to swim is beyond question. In Chicago it is to be compulsory that every girl shall learn to swim.

It was not possible to have a swimming class for clerks. There were only two stores which closed on Wednesday afternoons, and the girls could not arrange for a class. Mrs. Souther, at Wadsworth's store, tried to form a class, but the girls could not get any time for the lessons.

The physical culture work was a delight. The girls enjoyed it and worked with a willing spirit. It is a means of cultivating a taste for the cleanest, most wholesome exercise.

The business course was short but comprehensive and the parents expressed themselves as pleased with the work done in it.

The spelling matches gave fine drilling and it is safe to say that the girls who spelled at the summer school, will spell better during the regular school year.

The Current Events class was a very happy experiment. Under Miss Clara E. G. Thayer, the class studied the events of the day, in our city, and gave a little time to the study of famous persons connected with the history of Quincy.

The class in arithmetic in charge of Miss Birse, was given work in which they were deficient; for example, work in the fundamentals of

CORPORAL PUNISHMENT

Defined by State Superintendent of Schools In New Jersey

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 13.—State Superintendent of Public Instruction Baxter denies stories to the effect that he had issued an anti-corporal punishment edict. The story, he said, had its origin from a letter forwarded to the principal of the Mahwah school, who requested him to define just what corporal punishment meant.

The principal, being a new teacher in the state, was not acquainted with the New Jersey rules on the subject. In defining the law of corporal punishment, Baxter replied:

Any means of inflicting physical pain, whether with the hand or the rod, or of causing undue physical weariness, is corporal punishment. Standing on one foot, holding down a nail, holding some form of weight with the arm extended, or any similar test of endurance, is corporal punishment.

CUSTOMS BARS LET DOWN

Relief Supplies For Fire Sufferers Will Be Admitted Free

Washington, Oct. 13.—Customs barriers between the United Statets and Canada have been broken down for donations by Canadians for forest fire sufferers in the northwest. Collector of Customs Johnson at St. Paul was advised by telegraph that Canadian gifts of emergency foods and clothing for the unfortunates may be admitted free as an act of international courtesy.

This action follows advices from Johnson, who has charge of the customs district which embraces the fire-devastated area, reporting that Baudette and the territory for miles around had been burned, several hundred persons had perished in the flames and several thousand had been left homeless and destitute. Canada, the collector reported, is furnishing supplies of all kinds.

—Policeman Anton Klinger who retired last week from the Chicago police force has accumulated $300,000 in the 40 years he has been in the department. Here are his rules: Keep out of saloons. Never play any gambling game. Never report late for duty. Always be respectful to your superior. Always turn your money over, to your wife, and invest it in good real estate.

Dix Endorses Every Plank as Adopted a' Rochester

HE ACCEPTS HIS NOMINATION

Devotes Some Attention to Roosevelt In Discussing Attacks Upon Courts and Says Various Institutions of the Country Are Menaced by Doctrine of "New Apostle of Discord and Dissension"

Thomson, N. Y., Oct. 13.—A large number of prominent Democrats of this state arrived here on a special train to attend the formal notification to John A. Dix of his nomination as the candidate of the party for governor. Wilson Bissell of Buffalo, permanent chairman of the recent convention, made the formal speech of notification.

Mr. Dix made a speech accepting the nomination, in which he set forth the issues of the campaign. He pledged himself to an honest, capable business administration of the state affairs and against wastefulness and extravagance.

"Never before," he said, "has a political party made a more thorough, more straightforward and more complete declaration of its position upon the vital question concerning the people than was done by our party at the recent convention at Rochester. I wish to plant myself squarely upon that platform and upon each and all of its planks."

Mr. Dix discussed upon the various phases of state affairs at length, and continued:

"But above all, I resolutely and aggressively take a position against attacks and assaults upon the courts of the country. They are the very bulwarks of our free institutions. Without tribunals in which all men have confidence and from which all men are certain of justice, civilization would cease and anarchy prevail. Any American who, occupying a position of authority, or having the public ear, assails and attacks our courts—now, as they have always been, the seats of justice and of equity—is to be regarded as a public enemy and should be so branded by every reasonable man.

"Overshadowing all these questions, and of most vital importance to the people, is the menace offered to the various institutions of the country by the New Nationalism fathered and advocated by a new apostle of discord and dissension. We have already had to our cost ample proof of his ability to disturb business, destroy values and create a condition of panic country-wide in its evil effects.

"But if with all that, he is to be permitted to succeed in his campaign to weaken or destroy the powers of the supreme court of the United States, to take over to the central government the powers reserved to the states, to substitute the will of the president for the will of the people as expressed through all the regularly chosen officers of the federal government, and set arbitrary bounds to what any man by ability and enterprise may legitimately secure, then all the sacrifices made by the founders of the republic, all the blood shed for its preservation, will have been in vain, and we shall see in a time of profound peace a dangerous disturber bringing about the destruction of a free people against whom all the forces of the world in arms might have been hurled in vain.

"No question so vital in its consequences has ever been submitted to the people of this state. We have before us now what may be our only opportunity to stay the march of this agent of destruction and to restore to the country at large the business tranquility and peace under which we have grown as has no other country in the history of the world; and to have again the chance to work out without discord or turmoil the other pressing problems presented by our complicated condition of society in such manner as to keep us in the vanguard of the army of progress and to adhere to the fundamental Democratic principle of 'Equality for all and special privileges for none.'

"In a word, we are at the parting of the ways. If the people of the state place the representatives of the Democratic party in power we shall so administer the public affairs as to secure to the citizens of the state of New York, regardless of party, liberty without license, progress without disorder, retrenchment and economy in public expenditures without meanness, and that due respect and regard for constituted authorities which, while assuring to every man the fullest measure of his own rights, shall prevent any encroachment upon or interference with the rights of others."

Coward Held For Boy's Death

New York, Oct. 13.—Adolph Berg, 21 years old, was arrested on a charge of homicide, accused of being the man who held 12-year-old Charles Fischer in front of him as a shield from a fusillade of shots from the revolver of Henry Greenwald. The boy was killed and Greenwald, when cornered, shot and killed himself.

C—O—L—D.

Only a few degrees from the freezing point at sunrise and below 40 at 8 A. M.

Warren Edwards of Washington, D. C., formerly of Quincy, is in town for a few days previous to going to Cape Cod with a party of Washington friends on a gunning trip.

The family of Benjamin Johnson who have been at Adams Shore during the summer months have taken the house on the corner of Hancock and Bridge street for the winter.

Wednesday was generally observed as a holiday in Quincy and business in general was suspended. The flag on City Hall was displayed during the day in honor of Columbus day as well as flags on all of the public buildings of the city.

MORE DELEGATES.

A vote of 600 in Wards One and Five would give each ward five delegates; this would be an increase of 88 in Ward One, and 62 in Ward Five.

Ward Three must cast 112 more to obtain four delegates. Ward Two needs 67 and Ward Six 52 more to obtain three delegates, while 14 more would give Ward Four two delegates.

This year the city had 16 delegates while Brookline had 15. In the senatorial convention there were 49 delegates, in the Norfolk county 106, in the second councillor 221, and in the State 1,578.

IN FASHION'S REALM

French Women's Gowns Different from those of Americans

Hobble Skirt thing of the past Shoulder Scarfs Popular

One hears always the same old story, that the real styles will not be launched until the Parisiennes arrive in the city, which means the latter part of October, but the American takes that with a grain of salt; and in any case it makes little difference, for it is what the well-dressed American is going to wear this winter that is of utmost importance to those who live in America.

The designers of clothes insist that this widespread tradition that no outsider gets the latest styles in Paris in September is a relic of other days in dress; that the very newest and best is given the American buyers during August and March and it would be folly to do otherwise, as a few errors on this score would lose thousands of dollars the next season to the house that made them.

Nevertheless it is true that the gowns made for the Frenchwomen are quite different from those made now for us, but that is more a question of taste than fashion. The Parisienne does not dress like the American. She is far more bizarre, eccentric, conspicuous.

Her one aim in life is to attract attention to her clothes and she dresses accordingly. She has never been more amazingly eccentric than during the last two years, and no Americans of taste and breeding could possibly follow her styles. There are Americans who attempt it, but they do not qualify in the two qualities mentioned.

One thing is true about this change of style—that it is likely to take place in the late spring or early summer, when the Americans are not here, and shows itself more plainly in tailored suits than in evening and afternoon gowns. Take the case of the plaited skirt and long coat. The very best buyers brought these home to Americans in March and took all their orders from these models. The skirt was plaited below a yoke effect, the waistband was cut off at the waist, and the coat came nearly to the knees.

The skirt of this one is short and exceedingly narrow—about a yard and three inches wide—and its seams are lapped and unstitched. The coat is short, just covering the hips; is fastened nearly to collar bone, single breasted, has a breast pocket in which is stuck a colored silk handkerchief, and short, mannish revers. You can imagine the decided contrast the two walking suits presented.

I asked the heads of the great houses here how it happened. Their explanation was that the buyers for totteur suits were here in February and March, and that there was then no indication of a change from what was sold them as the new model; but the June races changed it entirely, and the Frenchwomen threw aside these suits and made the others the vogue.

The Americans have all their clothes made by this time for the entire season, and the buyers brought in no new models; therefore the trouble.

The plaited skirt was not only conspicuously dead, but so were the waist and skirt worn with a belt. The latter was entirely replaced by the fitted high extension skirt stitched at the top. Belts have looked utterly out of place over here since June, for the most commonplace striped suit carries the high skirt. This fashion is being carried out on all the new suits that are now brought in by buyers.

The hobble skirt is out of fashion; dead as a door nail. Any one who wears one may as well wear a placard with "Spring of 1910" printed on it. Anything that ties the skirt in is utterly unstylish, but the skirt itself, by its own cut, is excessively narrow. One can manage to walk in it, but cannot run. This is the gulf of difference fixed between the skirt of July and September. Cut it narrow, yes; but tie it in, no; twice no.

Another fashion that is utterly out is any semblance of length or fullness in a house gown for afternoon or evening, after it leaves the ankles. You can quickly see for yourself that, given the fact that the skirt must be making it long. There are some queer little apologies for trains on ball or narrow, there is no acceptable way of opera gowns, but all other house skirts are cut just to touch the floor and hang over a bit, as it were.

All of this means that most, if not all, of your Spring and Summer skirts must be altered if you intend to wear them this Autumn. The graceful dinner gown that spread its folds on the floor at sides and back is no more. It belongs to a day that is done. (Fortunately it is much easier to alter it to a narrower fashion than to a wider one, and I fear that is what we will be doing when the Winter is dying. But sufficient to the day is the evil thereof. We can see our way out of this present evil by elimination of material and leave for to-morrow the question of tomorrow.

The plain undraped skirt is also out of style, except for tailor suits, where it rules. A soft charmeuse or liberty evening skirt is plain as a foundation, but a tunic of some sort almost covers it. An afternoon gown has its skirt trimmed with wide bands of fur, of moire, of velvet.

Nearly all the skirts could be called double, for in some ingenius manner there is a drapery that drops nearly to the hem.

As for the tunic—the much-discussed tunis—it has not gone out; it is very much in fashion; but it is not as it has been. The new ones are draped from the back to the front, always showing the middle front of the gown as a panel. This is not always true as a rule; fashions, like folk, must be inconsistent to be attractive; yet while the draped tunic sometimes starts from the middle front of the waist and drops to the back, it can be depended upon to show the front of the skirt.

It is probable that for ordinary afternoon wear the skirt that is to be most fashionable has a slight fullness at the waist, narrow as it reaches the knees, and is trimmed with two wide folds of moire. Fur is better if you want it, for of fur there is no limit. Some of it is dear in price, and lovely; some is cheap and ugly, but some of it you must have.

There is something quite endearing about this new tunic, that swirls around, Alexandrian fashion, from the back. It is often of metal, brilliant white jet, which is so ultrafashionable, by the way, studded with pink coral; again, of blue jet, that gorgeous deep blue, studded with black, and again of gold and silver tissue strewn with beads of various kinds. Gold gauze embroidered in corals is one of the splendidly Byzantine tunics, draped over a one-piece slip of white net over white liberty satin.

In many of the resplendent evening gowns this white net is threaded with tiny silver bits that are not beads or discs. It is a very fashionable material, this gauze perles, and it is used extensively in white and black. The same idea appears in velours perles, which is velvet with these bits of metal, cut steel or silver worked in.

The shape of the new evening tunic is a bit difficult to describe. It is Eastern in silhouette and coloring. It is draped about the figure just under the bust, and covers the back of the gown, opening in front. It is this opening in front that marks the difference between the tunic of Summer and the tunic of Autumn.

One accessory that greeted the American in London and Paris upon arrival was the universal shoulder scarf of black satin lined with white satin, the ends finished with long, thick tassels of jet or silk fringe. This is worn over coats as well as gowns. It is placed at its widest across the back and dropped over the elbows, or one end is thrown around the neck in military style. It was difficult to make people over here believe that we had not had the scarf up until August; you may have it by this time, but surely it will be universal through the Autumn days if America copies Paris in clothes. It is the most conspicuous accessory of dress on this side. It is not worn in any color but black and white. Satin is preferred, but chiffon is used. Unless the two colors are put together the scarf has no fashion.

The scarf for evening wear is of that gauze perles in colors as well as black and white, but especially in golden bronze. All shades of yellow are immensely fashionable, even to artificial flowers.

And, by the way, an extensive amount of these will be used especially on evening gowns. The drapery that is not caught with a Roman buckle is fastened with flowers—chrysanthemums, poinsettias, sweet peas, orchids, and also cherries and tiny crabapples.—Anne Rittenhouse in New York Times.

THE CELLAR.

Don't Overlook in the Cellar in Planning the New House.

In planning the new house the whole attention is liable, to be given the rooms on the first and second floors, while the basement or cellar is left entirely in the hands of the architect and contractor. If more thought were given to this part of the house, the comfort and pleasure of the entire family would be greatly enhanced.

The cellar used to be merely a hole in the ground, dark, damp, ill-smelling, with tiny gratings for the admission of air. Here vegetables were kept and cast-off furniture was stored.

With the advent of the furnace the cellar enlarged its borders and let in the light, until now it is practically a sub-story, well lighted, well ventilated, and in it not a little of the work of the house is carried out. The improvements have been great, but still more thought should be directed to this part of the house.

It should be high enough above ground to let in plenty of light and air. The windows should be as low as possible and there should be enough of them to flood the whole place with light. There should be as few partitions as possible, the passage of the air currents aiding in keeping the place dry.

The most important room in the basement is the laundry. It should occupy a corner or the entire end of a house ,that cross ventilation may keep it both dry and cool. It is well to have it under the kitchen. If the tubs are placed out from the wall the pipes reaching it either from the ceiling or through the floor, the work will be considerably expedited.

A small wooden grating placed before each tub and also the ironing table, which should accordingly be placed near a window. As a washing machine has become a necessity, so a mangle for table-cloths, sheets, towels and other flat articles is becoming an important accessory. These two machines soon pay for themselves in the saving of both time and labor.

The vegetable cellar should be partitioned off on the shady side of the room and should have an outside window. A closet for preserves can be built off from this. This should be kept cool and dark. Racks for the vegetables and shelves for the preserves economize space and insure order.

The entire family will appreciate a tool room. I tmay be partitioned off and safeguarded with lock and key, or it may merely be in a suitable part of the basement, preferably near the outside door. A shelf of hard wood will serve as the bench. When once installed in a house, a workshop such as this will be found indispensable. A cellar equipped thus at once returns with big dividends the time and money spent upon it.—S. C. Monitor.

KEEP MATTRESS CLEAN.

An immaculate mattress is more than the sign of a good housewife. It is essential to good health. Even a clean sheet will not keep a sensitive person from shrinking if the mattress looks queer.

There need be little excuse for any dust if care be taken. Every mattress should have a twilled muslin cover that buttons on, so that it can be frequently washed.

If a mattress is for a big double bed, it should be in two parts for easier turning. The extra-careful housewife pulls the mattress up over the footboard each morning, so that it airs on all sides. It should at least be turned once a day, not always in the same direction. This prevents the ugly ridge when two are sleeping in the bed.

Rubber sheeting should be used under the linen in cases of sickness. In an emergency folded newspapers are a good substitute.

The easiest way to clean a mattress is by the vacuum cleaner. If it must be done at home ,put it in a slightly dampened sheet and beat with a wicker carpet beater until all the dirt seems to be out; then take a new sheet, turn the mattress and repeat.

IN BUYING FOOD.

From his experience with false weights, false measures and tricky tradesmen, the commissioner of weights and measures, Clement J. Driscoll, has compiled a little booklet entitled "What Every Housewife Should Know." Here are some of its don'ts and its do's:

"Don't allow your grocer or dairyman to weigh in the wooden butter dish when he is weighing your butter.

"Don't buy in a careless manner. Always ask for whatever the commodity is by known weight or measure.

Don't buy in small quantities if you can avoid it.

"Don't understand cheapness for economy.

"Don't be afraid to carry a bundle unless you are prepared and willing to stand the expense of having it delivered at your home.

"Don't gossip with you merchant while he is weighing your purchases, unless you are absolutely sure of the honesty of your tradesman.

"Don't be ashamed or too proud to do your own purchasing.

"When you purchase vegetables by dry measure be sure to examine the measure the merchant uses before making your purchase to be sure it has not a false bottom

"Do not leave the trimmings of meat that are charged up to you with your butcher. If the butcher can sell them at various prices per pound, surely they have some value for you."

FORTY THOUSAND IN HUB'S BIG PARADE

First Celebration of Columbus Day Is a Great Success

Boston, Oct. 13.—Forty thousand men surged up over the slope of Beacon hill for three hours and a half yesterday in a great parade. With all of that great army of marchers, not a single hitch occurred from beginning to end. Those in charge of the parade say 40,000 men passed in review.

Attended as it was by the president, the governor of the state, by the mayor of the city, and by the archbishop, and escorted by over 1500 jackies and marines from United States battleships, by a large detachment from the marine corps and the coast artillery, Boston's first celebration of Columbus day took on a national aspect.

Ninety-eight bands blared and boomed. Men of every nationality tramped side by side. Side by side with the Stars and Stripes crackled the silken folds of the flag of the French, of the Irish, of the Italian, of the Portuguese, and even of the Chinese—and all for the man who had discovered the continent which has become their common home.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

arithmetic and drill on common fractions.

It was not planned to give this course in the summer school but when the division of classes was made, it was found that because of the large number of pupils, there would be some girls unprovided for during this period. After a consultation, the committee decided that these subjects would be most beneficial to the girls.

At a meeting of the committee held July 16th it was voted to set aside a portion of our fund to carry on the work of summer gardens. The sum set apart was about $32. After a conference with Mrs. Marsh, who was unable to be present at that meeting it was learned that the sum must be increased to $100.

A prize of $3.00 was given by the Civic Betterment committee and one of $2.00 by Mr. William Patterson for excellence in some line of garden work, making a total of $117.45 expended upon the gardens.

Through the courtesy of the Mayor and City Council we were permitted to hold our exhibit in the Council chamber, on August 17th, in the afternoon and evening. This proved to be an excellent place for the purpose of exhibiting the produce. The location is so central, that with signs displayed, attention is easily attracted to the exhibit.

This report of a grand good work carried on through the hot summer weather was loudly applauded.

Mrs. Mary L. Wade for Home Economics committee said Mrs. Tyler head of the State Federation Food department would lecture and there would be an exhibit of a sanitary and unsanitary market. Classes for five lessons would be formed. It was by talking over the problems of our homes and helping each other that mutual benefit could be obtained. Miss Mary L. Hinkley would receive names for the class.

Mrs. John T. Conway for the Exchange said beside the food sale at W. G. Shaw's and at the club house, there were also tables of household goods and orders were taken for brushes, etc.

Mrs. Frank S. Davis, of the House committee spoke of the handsome clock recently placed in the club house the gift of two members Mrs. John W. Sanborn and Mrs. Theophilus King. She said she thought it was both useful and beautiful.

Mrs. W. H. Doble for the music committee said the musicale this year would be given in Alpha hall, the talent being the Westland quartet and Henrich Schuecker harpist of the Boston Symphony orchestra.

Mrs. Chandler W. Smith of the Philanthropy committee said meetings had been held and aid given. The young Women's club was to be continued and the work of a charities conference to go forward. Meetings are held the first Tuesday morning each month. Organized charity was needed.

Mrs. W. W. Whitcher late chairman of the Visiting Nurse committee told of the busy season of the nurse the calls being May 143; June 120; July 171 and the summer busy.

Another nurse was needed for obstetrical cases and also in the public schools. A report of the nurses conference held last June would be given by Mrs. Tirrell.

This closed the reports and new business was taken up. The club voted that Mrs. John F. Welch who has been acting as head of the Visiting Nurse comittee be made chairman.

Features of the afternoon much enjoyed were the two reports of State and National Federation meetings given by Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard and Mrs. John B. Worster.

Mrs. Sheppard said:

"I will try in as few words as possible to tell you of some of the most important things that were said and done at the eighteenth annual convention of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's clubs. The federation met by invitation of the Women's Club House Cooperation of Lynn, the meetings being held June sixth and seventh in the First Unitarian church of that city. It was a very popular day in Lynn for not only was the federation there, but Barnum and Bailey's circus also was there. The opening sessions of the federation were devoted mostly to club reports.

The tone was optimistic, the year had been one of great promise and helpfulness resulting in very satisfactory and intelligent work. By these reports it would seem that Civics lead in club work, with household economics, literature, legislative and art work following. The federation now has 248 clubs with a membership of 40,000. Massachusetts has 83 clubs, holding direct membership in the general federation. The report of the treasurer was most interesting showing large sums of money received and expenditures wisely made to mention one item four hundred dollars was expended the past year by the federation for the settlement school at Happy Valley, Tennessee, where three months' instruction was given the white children. Several clubs have given scholarships to some of these children, who are particularly apt and desire to continue their education further. The Monday club of Weymouth is educating a fine girl. The Woburn club a promising boy, the Pilgrim Women's Literary club a dear little mountain girl. The Education committee, the report being given by its chairman, urged the formation of parents associations. Thirty clubs have become interested in the formation of such associations. Fourteen clubs are maintaining scholarships six of these ofr southern schools. A decided interest in school gardens, industrial and moral training, teachers pensions, has been shown. The report of Library extension and settlement work brought to the attention the splendid work that can be done along these lines. In the western part of the state are some poor small libraries and to them traveling libraries have been sent. The mountaineers in the south are being taught also the art of home making. A number of our Massachusetts clubs have made gifts of works of art to local schools, several clubs have aided in beautifying their towns by planting trees erecting drinking fountains, placing park seats, cleaning the streets and inspiring the people to make their houses and gardens more attractive. Added interest has been taken the past year in arts and crafts and civic art. At the morning session June 7th came the election of officers, Miss Bacon was given another term in presidency, and it was with pleasure, pride and satisfaction the several Quincy club members who were in attendance, heard the name of your president, Mrs. Claire H. Gurney, elected, as one of the directors for the coming three years. The reports on Household Economics, Food Sanitation, Industrial Conditions of Women and Children, Consumers League, were all filled with interest 55 clubs have departments in Home Economics 64 clubs devoted at least one public program to the subject, 8 clubs have directly influenced the introduction of the teaching of Domestic Science into the public schools. Six other clubs have either installed and managed lunch rooms which have been turned over to school boards, or have been active in securing equipments. To touch upon Food Sanitation one speakers said, if women had continued to superintend their own kitchens preserving fruits and vegetables, curing meats and by their own industry, storing away the winter's supplies there would be little need of pure food laws. Women still have one tremendous advantage. If they would use it intelligently, it would correct many evils, it is the buyer's power, which is almost entirely in the hands of house keepers. Educating mothers is the best means we can use against the evils that threaten the proper development of children. We see many children poorly nourished which is more often from ignorance than poverty. Miss Laura Drake Gill, chairman of education in the General Federation and president of the Association of Collegiate Alumnae spoke in regard to "The Economic Status of Women." She summarized briefly the statistics compiled through the last census about the occupation of women. They show that 20 per cent of American women are wage-earners at some time in their lives and that their term of service averages a little less than four and a half years, while 20 per cent of the American men are wage-earners and their average duration of service is 20 years. It is among well to do families that the loss of skilled household industries has wrought greatest harm to American women for no group of people remain more intelligent ,or conscientious, than their daily duties demand. The rich woman must do worthy service in some way in order to keep worthy in character and ability. So every woman should have a skilled occupation, not only for insurance against possible reverses, but for her self respect and personal development. Many clubs report progress in legislative work, Civics, Forestry and Civil Service reform. The chairman of Committee on Legislative work thought the club women of Massachusetts were beginning to recognize the magnitude of their power in legislative affairs and they were using it carefully and effectively, she recommends that a committee be adopted in every club and that such committee obtain at the State House the legislative bulletin and copies of the bills indorsed or before the federation, and attend hearings to report to her club information on the bills considered and interview local representatives and instruct them on bills affecting women and children. The Civics committee comprises six departments, Health, Juvenile court and Probation work, Town and Village Improvement. A saner and safer Fourth-Stamps Savings Bank, Junior Leagues, active as all these departments have been they have not interfered with the progress of the stamp and school bank savings. Fifty-six clubs conduct this work.

During the past year 134 clubs have reported the name of a Forestry chairman, considerable work has been done along the lines of this department.

One hundred fifty have a Civil Service Reform committee, the Federation committee are trying hard to arouse in clubs a more active interest in this vital subject. In regard to federation dues the general federation State Secretary, strongly recommends that the clubs so change their constitutions as to add to their regular club dues ten cents each for the federation dues making them as was intended really per capita dues.

At the close of the business session the first afternoon of the convention the assembled delegates repaired to the Women's club house, a new and beautiful club home. Here a reception was tendered intheir honor, this was a brilliant function, giving the delegates an excellent opportunity to become better acquainted with each other. Extremely heavy and disagreeable weather prevailed during the first day of the convention, and the morning hours of the second day, but as the noon hour approached the clouds began to roll away and the sun shone forth in all his glory, making it possible for the automobile trip which had been arranged previously for the entertainment of the delegates. There were 63 cars filled with ladies and a delightful trip was enjoyed along the North Shore from Nahant to Marblehead. This closed the convention having been largely attended, representing clubs from all parts of the Commonwealth. It was a cultured and public-spirited gathering representing the best thought and the best effort of organized womankind in Massachusetts.

Mrs. Worster gave a fine report of the biennial at Cincinnnati which she attended as a delegate from the Monday club of Weymouth. We wish it were possible to give it in detail. The meetings lasted over a week and were full of inspiration to those attending. The influence would reach out into thousands of homes. Mrs. Worster believed in Federation and said the meetings were wonderful in their power. She hoped every club member present would keep in touch with the National and State Federation. It was a fine report and much enjoyed.

Mrs. N. G. Nickerson said she was still in the rubber business and asked members to contribute old rubber as she wished to buy coal for the Day Nursery.

Mrs. Nickerson had charge of the musical part of the afternoon's entertainment and introduced Mrs. Mabel Walker of South Central avenue, Wollaston who sang a group of three songs. The Loreley by Liszt, The Lady of Dreams and In a Garden. Her rich contralto voice and pleasing selections gave much pleasure and received hearty encores.

The afternoon closed with a reception, all the club officers receiving. Miss Helen T. O'Reilly was head usher and had many assistants, who carried large yellow chrysanthemums as a badge of their office. During the reception there was music by the Alexander trio of young ladies which added much to the enjoyment of the occasion.

In the tea room the hostesses were:

Mrs. Russell C. Low, Mrs. Alfred H. Remick, and Mrs. B. H. Bain. The pourers were Mrs. John R. Richards, Mrs. Edward Russell and Mrs. Hazen E. Ricker and there were many assistants. Pinks and dahlias adorned the tables.

A beautiful autumn day and a cordial happy meeting marked the begining of another club year.

NEEDLE WORK GUILD.

The Needle Work Guild of America was organized in Philadelphia in April 1885; and is modelled after a society in England, founded by Lady Wolverton. It is non-sectarian. The object of the Guild is to furnish new plain, suitable garments to meet the needs of hospitals, homes and other charities."

The Guild in Quincy is a branch of that organization; and a contribution of two or more new garments, once a year, constitutes membership. Notices are being sent out now, for the annual collection of these garments. Members are requested to send them as soon as possible to the director to whom she belongs. Each director collects her garments and makes a list and these are all sent to the president on the day of the exhibition. Last year we collected three hundred and eighty garments and would like a larger one this year. We have directors at Atlantic, Wollaston, South Quincy and Quincy Centre and would like to have West Quincy and Quincy Point represented, by at least one in each place.

The garments are given to individual cases mostly; but some are given to institutions in Quincy. The annual collection and exhibition will be held Tuesday, November 1st at 3 P. M. at the home of the president, Miss Abigail B. Wood, 68 School street. All members and all interested in this worthy charity are cordially invited to be present.—Maria A. Whitney, Secretary.

MAKES RAPID HEADWAY

Add This Fact to Your Store of Knowledge.

Kidney disease advances so rapidly that many a person is firmly in its grasp before aware of its progress. Prompt attention should be given the slightest symptom of kidney disorder. If there is a dull pain in the back, headaches, dizzy spells, or a tired, worn-out feeling, or if the urine is dark, foul-smelling, irregular and attended with pain, procure a good kidney remedy at once.

Your townspeople recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Read the statement of this Quincy citizen.

P. J. Garrity, 367 Granite street, Quincy, Mass., says: "Some time ago I suffered so severely from kidney disease that I could hardly get about. I was restless at night and could not find any position that was comfortable. The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and contained a heavy sediment at times. I was rapidly growing worse and was at a loss to know what to do, as the many remedies I tried failed to help me. Finally Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me and I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. After I had taken the contents of four boxes I was in good health. I highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to other kidney sufferers."

DYSPEPSIA

"Having taken your wonderful 'Cascarets' for three months and being entirely cured of stomach catarrh and dyspepsia, I think a word of praise is due to 'Cascarets' for their wonderful composition. I have taken numerous other so-called remedies but without avail, and I find that Cascarets relieve more in a day than all the others I have taken would in a year."

WOLLASTONS WIN EASILY

South Boston Did Not Get Together Regular Team

The pick of South Boston appeared at Merrymount park on the afternoon of Columbus day for a game with the Wollaston A. A. and lost 33 to 0. The costumes they wore were suggestive of the Fourth of July parade, ranging anywhere from overalls to lingerie for the lower extremities. According to the captain only six of their regular men could be rounded up. The five subalterns they secured to fill out the team said they had seen a shin guard before. All of the team had tough luck on the whole. When the Wollaston team rushed the ball they would knock the cigarettes out of their mouths or put them out, so that they would have to light up again. They came very near having to call time once, so that the end could get a light. The wind was blowing pretty hard and even a man from South Boston had difficulty in keeping a match burning.

Owing to all these difficulties the South Boston team did not show up very well against the Wollaston boys. Morrisey, the captain, was a good player but he could not do much unassisted. Macdonald and Woods did some fine work in ground gaining.

The feature of the game was a seventy yard run by Macdonald. The ball was caught on a line with the goal posts and carried to the opponent's 40 yard line. Woods, who showed up so well at end in Saturday's game, did equally well at half back, and reeled off some long gains. "Bulldog" Marden played a scrappy game at tackle and Danahy the other half back made some good gains. Mansfield at end played a good game and made long gains on two or three well executed forward passes.

The summary:

McGREGORS 3 WANDERERS 2

Close Score at Holiday Game at South Quincy

The McGregors defeated the Wanderers on the morning of the holiday by a score of 3 to 2. There was some good football but the contestants were out for a good time first of all, and did not get into the game as hard as they might. Craig, Ross and Rennie waked it up occasionally by rushing the ball the length of the field. Now and then the spectators would take a hand and help out the Wanderers but both goals were scored without any such assistance. When the 12 oclock whistle blew football seemed to lose its charms even for the McGregors, and the game ended rather abruptly after Ross had scored the winning goal.

The summary:

WEDDINGS

CLEAVES—RICHARDS.

A very pretty autumn wedding was solemnized at 13 Euclid street Dorchestero when Miss Ella M. Richards daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Richards and Mr. William H. Cleaves of Wollaston were united in marriage. Rev. Dr. Arthur Little pastor of the Second Congregational church of Dorchester officiated.

The house were beautifully decorated with roses and cut flowers. At 7.30 P. M. the bridal couple entered by the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march rendered my Mrs. Samuel Wiswall. The bride looked charming in a gown of white messaline. She wore a veil and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor was Miss Gertrude Cleaves sister of the groom. She wore burnt orange satin with yellow overdress and carried day break pinks. Herbert S. Dame of Dorchester was best man.

After the ceremony the wedding guests partook of a supper consisting of salads, ices, etc. A reception followed the couple being assisted in receiving by the parents of the bride and groom and the maid of honor and best man. The ushers were C. F. Cleaves, L. S. Cleaves and C. L. Cleaves the three brothers of the groom. They were the recipients of many beautiful gifts.

After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Cleaves will reside at 6 Norfolk Terrace Dorchester.

WATERHOUSE—SMITH.

Miss Catherine J. Smith of 5 Old Colony avenue, Wollaston, and Charles Y. Waterhouse of 23 Chestnut street, Quincy, were united in marriage Wednesday evening by Rev. Edwin Noah Hardy of the Bethany Congregational church, at the home of the groom's mother. The wedding was simple and quiet, only the immediate family being present.

The bride was attended by Miss Sarah Burns of Wollaston, as maid of honor, and George S. Waterhouse of Brockton, a brother of the groom, acted as best man. The house was very prettily decorated with palms and cut flowers.

After the wedding a reception was held in the home. Mr. and Mrs. Waterhouse will take a short wedding trip, after which they will reside at 23 Chestnut street. They will be at home after Nov. 1.

BELANGER—MORRISSETT.

Two well known West Quincy young people were married on Wednesday eevning by Rev. Fr. Grady, Miss Annie L. Morrissett and Mr. William Belanger. A reception followed at the home of the bride's mother on Crescent street. Later Mr. and Mrs. Belanger left on a wedding trip to New York city. They were remembered with numerous presents.

THE GRANITE WAGE RATE

Discussed by Quincy Correspondent of the Journal

Charles Osborne, the Quincy corcespondent, has an interesting letter in the October number, relating to labor question. It is reprinted in full:

"Sept. 30—Business is good at this date and indications show that there is still lots of work on hand.

"Some of my fellow scribes are taking their views on the New England wage rate very seriously; one in particular takes my remarks in the July Journal to mean that Quincy branch is opposed to progressive ideas. I will now endeavor to make myself clear so that all may understand. Quincy branch believes that every branch in New England looking for new agreements should demand a substantial increase, commensurate with the increased cost of living and to be not less than forty-two cents per hour minimum. Quincy branch also believes that it is for the best interests of all our members that agreements in different localities should expire at different dates, and I hope that our members will not think I am casting any reflection on their intelligence if I stat why Quincy branch to belie ves that Quincy is better thant believes.

"We believe it is better to have matters so arranged, if possible, that a member, whose branch may be in suspension for any cause, may have an opportunity to get a job within a reasonable distance of his home, and this can only be done by arranging to have bills in different localities terminate at different times. This may be a "guerilla" method of warfare, but it is a good one in our opinion, and I would like to be informed of any advantages which would accrue if our agreements all terminated at the same time. Probably there would be some consolation to a few of our members in thefact that the other fellow was on strike, too, but this feeling should have no place in a man's mind.

When the National Association of Granite Industries was formed, one of the first moves made by that body was that a fight should be made to get agreements in localities where the Association was represented to terminate on the same date. It was a far-seeing scheme on the part of the manufacturers, who were evidently of the opinion that it would be a great deal easier to make their striking cutters come to terms, if it was practically impossible for the cutters in question to get a job at their trade unless they cared to spend more money for car fare than most of us can afford; but what looked best to the manufacturers was the fact that we should be playing havoc with our funds if we were all suspended at the same time.

The condition of our treasury does not appear to have much bearing on the matter of suspensions, in the minds of some of our secretaries, but believe me, fellow, $1.25 per day helps a good deal and a number of our employers are of the opinion that our back-bones would not be so stiff if the amount named was not forthcoming.

"During the discussion of this matter no attenion whatever has been paid to local conditions and some of our correspondents should read up the back page of any of this year's circulars. They will find that in a number of instances two different rates prevail in the same branch, one for monumental and one for building work.

"The branches in question know their own local conditions and act accordingly, but if the same reasoning was applied to the making of an agreement for any one State as that applied to agreements in branches where two rates prevail, then branches cutting monumental work almost entirely could hardly be rated in the same class as a branch doing cutting for building work.

I do not mean to infer that Quincy, which is practically a monumental branch, should have the lowest minimum; I do not believe that there is so much difference in the two subdivisions of our trade that would make the average cutter worth more in one case than the other, but I am simply trying to show that certain conditions exist in every branch, that have to be dealt with as the branch involved thinks best.

Every branch knows the short comings of its present agreement and they all seem imbued with the idea that the granite cutter is one of the lowest paid mechanics in this country, and as my friend from Hardwick puts it, "we should strive for higher wages consistent with fairness to our employers as judged by the rates prevailing elsewhere.'

"Do we need a convention of delegates from our New England branches, a convention that could not have any power to arrive at this conclusion? I think not, and the warmest adherents of the New England Convention idea have yet to show what good would come of a convention of the kind, other than the meeting of a number of men who could state their opinions about what should be done about certain things, and the probabilities are that if these same opinions were acted on by their own branches, the opinions in question would be voted down. Such things have happened. My friend from Concord argued against his own subject in his last letter, when in referring to the idea of agreements from different localities expiring in different years, he stated that the method was a guerilla one at best etc., and that the system referred to got its final knockout in Vermont last winter. Well, now, Bro. Brown, did it?

"As a matter of fact the trouble in Vermont was between our Vermont branches and the Vermont Manufacturers' Association, and which belongs to the National Association of the Granite Industries. There is no analogy between the trouble referred to and th New England lockout of 1892, because the 1892 trouble was caused by the New England Manufacturers in a body and only a part of the National Association of Granite Industries took part in the Vermont trouble last winter, and the employers of Quincy, Westerly, Hardwick, Milford, Mass., Cape Ann, etc., are all members of the same organization.

"The employers would like to see the cause of one the cause of all in as far as they are concerned and a good way to bring about a realization of their hopes in this directfon would be something in the nature of a New England agreement which would commence and terminate on the same dates respectively.

"Sec. Collins of Bethel must appreciate the vast immensity of the difference between the Quincy minimum of $3 and the Bethel minimum of $2.08 and I can assure him that we deeply appreciate his advice to look for an increase and we shall try very hard to get within hailing distance of $3.08.

"Bro. Collins or any one else, for that matter, would do us a favor by stating the names of the four Quincy firms whose yards are filled up with Milford stock, and I would state for the Bethel scribe's benefit that he is evidently very much misinformed about the cost of labor being less in Quincy in winter than in summer.

"The facts are that there have been several carved jobs of Milford, Mass., granite cut here, and the wages paid to carvers in this city compare very favorably with wages paid anywhere else in New England, and as there is nearly always a scarcity of carvers here, the idea that these men would work for less in winter than in summer is preposterous. I am assuming that the jobs referred to by Bro. Collins are carved jobs.

"I sincerely hope we shall be informed of the names of the four firms to whom he referred in his last letter.

"There is a clause in the present Barre agreement which, if incorporated in all new agreements, will do a great deal towards adjusting this matter of stone being sent from one locality to another, the clause in question means that the price paid in the locality from which any granite comes shall be paid for the cutting of the granite in question, if it happens to be cut in Barre, but in no instance shall the price paid be less than the Barre minimum."

Dawkins—"What a healthy-looking man Dr. Squills is!"

Dawson—"Yes; he looks so different from his patients. I wonder who his physician is?"

RESTELLI'S BODY FOUND

WOLLASTON AND MONTCLAIR SCHOOLHOUSES

Description of the Two Buildings Which Will Be Up-to-Date and Attractive

One to Cost $75,000 and the Other $45,000

As has been noted in previous issues of the Daily Ledger, plans for the two new school buildings at Wollaston and Montclair have been forwarded to the City Council and at the last meeting of the Council the Committee on Public Buildings reported orders for the erection of these buildings.

The order for the Wollaston school calls for an appropriation of $75,000, and that for the Montclair building, $45,000.

James McLaughlin is the architect selected for the Montclair building and McLean & Wright for the Wollaston building.

As the residents of these two sections of the city are vitally interested in these two buildings a brief description of them will be read with interest.

The Wollaston school will have a frontage on Highland avenue of about 163 feet and a depth of about 64 feet. This building is two stories high with a semi-flat roof and will have twelve school rooms and an assembly hall. In the basement are two large playrooms which squared would be about 52 by 62. In addition to these there is a coal pocket and boiler room and six fresh air rooms, and the usual toilet rooms. On the rear is an incline leading to the school grounds by which the janitor may easily wheel ashes from the basement.

On the first floor are eight class

HOUGHS NECK BUDGET

Congressional Candidates to be Invited to Reception

(Special Correspondence)

President Maloney, being absent, James P. A. Purcell was elected temporary president, to fill the vacancy of the chair o f the Houghs Neck Associates Thursday night. He did the job well and handled several mixed-up questions with ease, and order. Purcell is a good man to have in mind for one of the next selection of Associate officials. Take notice, Houghs Neck.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. Mr. Coughland reported progress as chairman of committee on streets.

The committee on the public playground say they must wait until after State election for further progress.

Mr. Purcell, as chairman of ways and means committee entertained suggestions for a dance to replenish the Associates treasury.

Mr. O'Brien asked for information, as one of a committee on by-laws, and got a lot which resulted in nothing. President Maloney seemed to run the committee, so matter was laid on table for his advice.

Considerable discussion ensued between Messrs. French and LaBrecque as to inviting Messrs. Galvin and Curley to Houghs Neck to address the people, as to what they should do for us if elected. French wanted Galvin, LaBrecque thought courtesy should also be extended to Curley. Result—both Galvin and Curley will have a night set, with opportunity for each to have his say to the people.

The present campaign committee will immediately proceed to advertise John Ross for City Council. The same committee will have charge of the Galvin-Curley reception.

Mr. LaBrecque stated that Contractor Crowley had informed Mayor Shea that the Atherton Hough school would be completed Nov. 1.

A mass meeting will be held at Associates' hall Saturday evening Oct. 15, to discuss forms of entertainment for the dedication of the school. Everybody at Houghs Neck will be invited.

Charles E. Becker presented a letter from Mrs. William G. Markham, 1072 Sea street forwarding a handsome lithographic picture of Betsey Ross and the flag in glass and frame to the chairman of school dedication who will present the same to the school, during the exercises.

Complaints from Mr. Freethy of the Pheneox cottage, Littlefield street and neighbors, and from Mr. Wall, to the effect that the sanitary division had not emptied garbage cans for 2 weeks were referred to health committee.

Jim Malone has a few false teeth in his possession, which were found in Quincy square recently. If your face matches the teeth apply to Hose 5, Houghs Neck. If you hav'nt the courage telephone

Stone throwing always was a mania with boys If parents took note of this fact many dollars would be saved on glass houses. The boys who throw stones at inoffensive little girls, must lack moral training in the home. As a result of such actions 12 year old Sadie Files of 1062 Sea street is nursing a deep cut in her lip, which required two stitches. The child was playing in the girls side of the school yard at Quincy and was made a deliberate target by some young heathen whose name is unknown, on the boys side. No reason can be learned for the boy's action. As for the Files child, she comes of a highly respected family and is lady-like and far from attempting such offence as to cause anyone, small or large to take such revenge. The teacher should cause rigid investigation. The accident occurred at the Coddington school.

Rev. C. R. McMeekin has decided to remain the local pastor of Houghs Neck. It will be welcome news to his large number of interested friends, who have built much on his decision.

COOMBS FOR SENATOR

Nominated as Stop Gap Candidate in First Norfolk

Hon. William T. Shea, the Mayor of Quincy, was the unanimous choice of the Democrats of the First Norfolk district on Thursday, as their choice for the Senatorial nomination, but from the first Mayor Shea has declined to be considered a candidate and he declined to accept the nomination.

After a conference the convention nominated ex-Representative Rodnor P. Coombs of Quincy as the candidate.

For member of the Democratic State Committee there was a contest between Edward P. Healy of Canton, a Foss man, and John A. Kiggen of Hyde Park, a Hamlin supporter. The former failed of reelection, Mr. Kiggen being chosen 10 to 5.

The convention adopted a resolution unanimously endorsing direct primaries for nominating candidates for Governor and other State offices.

The report in a Boston paper was entirely erroneous. Mayor Shea was not present; and positively declined in advance to become a candidate. The office has no attraction for him.

BETHANY CIRCLE.

The Bethany Ladies Circle held its annual meeting Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Theophilus King, Adams street. Although it was a holiday a large number of the ladies were present to share the hospitality of the hostess. The election of officers took place with the following results: President—Mrs. John F. Welch; vice president, Mrs. George McFarlane; secretary, Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard; treasurer, Mrs. C. W. Guy. At the business session it was voted that the circle bend all its energies in one direction this year. All the funds that are raised will go toward the redecoration of the interior of the church.

At the conclusion of the business, ices and fancy cakes were served. Mrs. A. Isabelle Davis entertained the ladies by giving several very pleasing readings. Mrs. King has made it a practice for some years past to invite the circle to meet with her for the opening meeting, and the ladies appreciate this kindness very deeply. The successful opening of the season is always an assurance under these auspices and this year the prospects look brighter than ever. With a definite object to work for much better results will surely be accomplished.

—One impressive lesson of our recent fire says the Marblehead Messenger is the danger of allowing roofless old buildings to remain standing. When a conflagration has started and blazing fragments are dropping here and there, every such building is a fire trap and a peril. The fire department ought to have some jurisdiction in such matters.

BRISK FIRE IN SWAMP

Large Area Burned Over Near Tubular Rivet

Box 612 was sounded at 11.33 this morning for a big grass and brush wood fire at Norfolk Downs. The swamp between the plant of the Tubular Rivet and Stud Co. and the Boston Gear Works was set on fire by sparks from a passing locomotive. The wind swept the flames all over the expanse and many of the people living in nearby houses began to get frightened. Three lines of hose were used to put out the fire and even at that it was an hour's job. The recall sounded at just 12.33.

PECULIAR ACCIDENT.

Mrs. John G. Thomas of Standish avenue met with an accident in a peculiar way in her yard on Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Thomas had driven into the yard with a load of slate and as the horse backed Mrs Thomas was caught between the back of the wagon and the house breaking both bones in her right arm below the elbow. It was remarkable that she was not crushed. Her friends hope for a speedy recovery.

—Public drinking cups were banished Oct. 1. One would think that considerable hardship would result at first, for it's no simple matter to make so universal a change in public park, street, and building, says the Milford Gazette. The drinking fountain companies that have a successful invention will reap a harvest. I have personal experience with four different kinds and I know that there is still chance for improvement. Nevertheless, all those on the market are far better than the cup that is displaced. The great wonder is, if the old way was so disease-laden, what will be our future state with the hygienic fountains. Probably some new germ will burst into pernicious activity to balance the loss due to the public drinking cup.

LOCATED IN OLD QUARRY

Persistent Work of Two Officers Rewarded

Suicide Was As Well Planned as the Shooting

At 12.50 this afternoon New England's great mystery of eleven weeks was solved when the body of Louis Restelli was brought to the surface by grappling irons at the old Merrymount quarry.

There is no doubt about the identity of the body, and the suicide of the assassin was as deliberately planned as the shooting of his numerous victims. The details of the tragedy of Friday, July 29, are too well known to Quincy people to be rehearsed now.

The Merrymount quarry is located but a short distance west of Carroll's lane through which the murderer was known to have entered. It is now filled with water from 10 to 20 feet deep.

It was due to the persistent work of Officer Patrick A. Milford of Quincy and Officer James R. Qualey of Braintree that the body was located as they have devoted several spare days to grappling.

They secured a three prong and a boat and have been busy on the pond, and pulled up various things.

The reason why the body was not brought to the surface by dynamite some weeks ago was the fact that it was weighted.

Restelli had deliberately handcuffed his hands together and then fastened to the handcuffs two heavy

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The direct primary system, in the opinion of most of the machine politicians and bosses, is all wrong

It is a little curious, to say the least, that just because there is a water famine over in Baltimore the price of milk should increase

DRIFT OF OPINION.

The outlook for the reelection of Governor Draper is better than it has been for some months. It was properly said of him at the State convention that he is a man of "surpassing power in the achievement of constructive results, a typical Republican, a typical American" hat is vastly different from being a man of surpassing power in destructive results. It is the difference between the nation builder and the nation destroyer. There has been a tendency in the past few years to regard the nation destroyer as great and useful, because he invariably promises to bury all the evils of Americanism. He has not promised to put anything in their places to accomplish better results. It may have been his intention to find substitutes, and perhaps he has had in mind better American institutions to replace those which are criticised, but he has not taken the people into his confidence and named them. Now the people are beginning to think about it, and they miss the assurance of better Americanism. It is safer to tie to those who are known as being honest of purpose, who have shown the ability to accomplish constructive results. Therefore, it looks bright for the reelection of Governor Draper. Taking chances on Democratic promises of the indefinite kind or any other kind, have not turned out right for the voters in the past.—Worcester Telegram.

An interesting suit for damages against a charity hospital maintained by an order of Sisters of St. Francis has recently been decided by the supreme court of Pennsylvania against the plantiff, who was not a charity patient, but paid for the care she received. Through the alleged negligence of a nurse, the woman was seriously scalded. During the trial of the case, there was no attempt to refute the charge of negligence. The sole defense was that, being a charity hospital, the organization was not liable. The plaintiff took the wily course of disclaiming right of execution against any funds other than those received from pay patients; but the high court sustained the defense, holding that every dollar received from any source, was stamped with the impress of charity, that even the accommodations paid for by plaintiff were provided through the use of money donated to it, so that "the money received from pay patients was as strictly the increment of its charitable donations as would be the interest on money given it if invested on loan." The hospital was therefore declared not liable for damages.—New Bedford Standard.

Roosevelt thinks our army is large enough, but he still adheres to his old belief in a large navy and a big stick. Once his formula was "walk softly, but carry a big stick." There is not much difference in the phrases. The same idea appears in both expressions. No nation can get along without a big stick. It may take the form of protection given by a larger one, as in the case of small European countries that are safe by reason of their connection with the balance of power. The United States, Great Britain and Germany are not in that class, however ,and they must see to it that their big stick is no allowed to shrink, and that it is always well within reach. The peace of the world is maintained by treaties between the great powers, but there is always more or less jealousy between them, and none can afford to neglect the means that makes them powerful. Disarmament is the dream of the visionary. It will come when all men love their neighbors better than themselves; when human nature is different from what it is now; when the millenhium comes. In the meantime the Roosevelt idea is teh best thing that any nation can adopt.—Lynn Item.

"Columbus shouldn't have discovered this country. He should have found something nearer. You are too far away from the seat of things Self-satisfaction is America's evil. You sit back complacently and say to yourselves that you are it, that you are ex-officio omnipotent. Youhaven't seen anything, but you know it all, or think you do. Other nations learn about Chinese. You just pick up and from these pickings form your opinions."—Rev. Arthur H. Smith, D D. of China.

NOT GETTING THEIR DUES

Women Should Control the Government, Says Lillian Russell

Pittsburg, Oct. 14.—"Woman has forced herself into a position where she has to fight for her rights, and now that she is fighting in organized earnest, why not take the real step—the consummation—of suffrage for women and the abolishment of the male vote."

This is one of the assertions made by Lillian Russell, who takes the stand that the American woman is not getting what is coming to her. In part Miss Russell said:

"Absolute suffrage for women and the withdrawal of the power and the reins of government from man's hands will give the men themselves a fuller oportunity to play the games in which they have been most successful."

OPPOSED TO RESUBMISSION

Good Templars Will Make an Effort to Keep Maine Dry

Biddeford, Me., Oct. 14.—Strong opposition to the resubmission of the prohibitory liquor law to the voters of the state was voiced last night by the semi-annual convention of the grand lodge of Maine Good Templars in this city.

A committee was appointed to take steps on behalf of the grand lodge towards preventing the question of resubmission. A long set of resolutions was adopted upholding prohibition.

ASSESSOR ARRESTED

Chief of Department at Cambridge Charged With Theft

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 14.—Daniel B. Shaughnessy, principal assessor of Cambridge, was arrested and arraigned in court here, charged with larceny of $172. He was placed under $500 bail to appear for a hearing Oct. 19.

The arrest of Shaughnessy followed an investigation by the Taxpayers' association of Cambridge. It is alleged by the complainants that Shaughnessy, after receiving the money from certain people to pay their taxes, abated the taxes of his own volition and instead of returning all the money, kept a part of it.

High Prices For Coins

New York, Oct. 14.—One thousand six hundred and thirty dollars was the price paid for sixty-five 1-cent pieces. The coins were of the issue of 1794 and the prices per coin ranged from $50 to $101.

—Philip Miller, a pioneer rancher at Millerdale, in the Wenatchee valley, central Washington, has just harvested 60 boxes or 3,000 pounds of high grade commercial apples from a single tree in an orchard planted 30 years ago. Three other trees of the same age produced 40 boxes each. These apples are of the Spitzenburg variety. Other portions of the old orchard planted to Ben Davis trees will yield 20 boxes of apples each, while 60 trees of Rhode Island Greenings yielded 800 boxes, an average of 13 boxes to the tree. Pearl Hatfield has one tree in her orchard in the same district that produced 70 boxes or 3,500 pounds of apples this season. Miller settled in the valley 37 years ago and many of the trees he planted at that time are thriving today. He originally owned 320 acres of land. This was cut up into small tracts four years ago and sold for $150,000.

PLATFORM OF BEVERIDGE

It Is Defended by Roosevelt In the Hoosier State Campaign

Richmond, Ind., Oct. 14.—When the Roosevelt special train rolled into Indiana from Illinois, Theodore Roosevelt plunged into the campaign to send Albert J. Beveridge back to the United States senate. He campaigned his way across the state and last night he said that there was "victory in the air."

Senator Beveridge voted against the Payne tariff bill. Roosevelt defended his action in regard to the tariff and his words were the nearest thing to an expression of an opinion in regard to the new tariff law which he has yet made.

"Senator Beveridge did not split from his party," the colonel said. "He merely stood by the bulk of it, because the real party consists of the mass of the people. The mass of the people wished to see done just what he did. And before the next presidential election comes around the platform will be fairly and squarely the platform for which Senator Beveridge stands."

THE NEW PORTUGAL

Her International Status Appears to Grow Brighter Each Day

Lisbon, Oct. 14.—The German minister to Portugal, acting upon instructions from Berlin, took initial steps to enter into semi-official relations with the Republican provisional government of Portugal, following the official recognition from Brazil and notification by the Swiss government that the Alpine republic is now ready to recognize officially the provisional regime.

The international status of the Portuguese situation is brighter today than it has been at any time yet. It is believed that France and Italy and the other important continental powers will lose no time in recognizing the new government, now that England and Gemany have indicated the courses which they will pursue, and that the United States will then fall into line.

CHANLERS CANNOT TRANSFER PROPERTY

First Wife of "Sheriff Bob" Has Checkmated Cavalieri

New York, Oct. 14.—Justice Guy, in the supreme court, granted to Mrs. Julia C. Chanler, first wife of Robert W. Chanler, an injunction against R. W. Chanler, Lewis S. Chanler and Winthrop Chanler, the Union Trust company and the New York Insurance and Trust company, as trustees of the Chanler estate, and Lina Cavallieri Chanler, restraining them from disposing of or transferring any property belonging to Robert W. Chanler until the action brought by the plaintiff to set aside the prenuptial agreement entered into by Robert W. Chanler and Lina Cavalieri is determined in court.

Mrs. Julia C. Chanler is Robert W. Chanler's divorced wife, and the mother of his two children, of whom she was given the custody when she obtained a divorce.

EIGHTY-FOUR FEET IN AIR

Steeple Jack Enjoys a Snooze and Scares Fellow Workmen

Boston, Oct. 14.—While working on the steel trusses of the Boston Arena building, on St. Botolph street, eighty-four feet in the air, "Steeple Jack" Eccles went to sleep and had a fine, quiet nap.

Some of the other steeple jacks saw Eccles and thought he must have dropped dead. One of the bolder climbers of the crew volunteered to crawl up over the network of steel crossbars and see what could be done to get Eccles down.

As he neared Eccles he stopped astounded. Eccles was deep in a sixty-knot snore. The climber awakened Eccles by a gentle shake and Eccles then took up his tools and went coolly to work.

THE EDUCATIONAL FIELD

High School — Public Schools
Woodward Institute — Parochial School

QUINCY HIGH.

The English and History classes in the High school discussed the discovery of America and its discover to some extent in their recitations on Tuesday.

The class of 1913 have elected the following officers and committees:

President—Richard Crane.
Vice President—Marion Rand.
Secretary—Ednah Sanborn.
Treasurer—Ralph Prout.
Class pin committee—Ethel Hatfield, Joseph Betts and Ethel Clifford.
Motto committee—Beatrice Costello, Millicent Chapman and Elsie Burrell.
Song committee—Osbourne Rogers and Julia Holteen.
Athletic committee—Roswell Bill.

The nominating committee consisted of the following Elton Chase, Roland Estey, Francis Foy, Carleton Smith, Henry Safford and Richard Ash. Through the kindness of Russell Green an official ballot was printed resembling those used in municipal elections. By using these the election was simplified and a great deal of time was saved. The whole class voted in about fifteen minutes and the tellers had the results of the eelction ready to be annouced in about an hour from the time they started to count.

The daily grind does not sound on the surface of it like a very exhilarating subject A pupil spends five hours a day in school. At least three on the average are used for recitations, and the remainder for work or play as the case may be. Outside of school a certain amount of time is given over to "plugging," and it seems on the whole to be rather monotonous and an affliction which must be endured.

This is a natural and a common conception of the thing. To some scholars, Latin seems to be the bane of their existence, while others just cannot see through algebra. Oftentimes a man who appears to be a hero on the football field is made a coward by thirty lines of Virgil or an algebraic equation. Physically he is brave perhaps but he is sadly lacking in mental stamina. Now, there are several ways to account for this. In the first place he is ignorant of the fundamental principles of education, which fact is not to be wondered at. The modern education turns out pupils with such gatling gun rapidity that they do not have time to look about and think.

They do not realize that the study of Latin is going to be of great help even if the Latin language is not necessary for their complete mental equipment. The training ones brain receives in getting out a sentence will make one so much better fitted for business transactions. The man who can get a clear understanding of a Latin construction can see through a business proposition so much the easier. Likewise in the study of the sciences and history, the ability which is gained in analyzing and weighing evidence will be invaluable to a man to enter business or any profession.

If a pupil in High school gets into the habit of acknowledging himself defeated by a lesson, when the more serious problems of life confront him the same tendency will prevail. Thus we say if a study comes hard, that is the one study a pupil should stick to until it is mastered.

Another form of mental cowardice, which should be done away with, is this. For some good reason, or for a poor one, or for no reason at all, a pupil has not studied a certain lesson and decides to stay away from school. Oh! the folly of it. For a possible injury to his pride or his dignity he has taken in exchange a loss of two whole days. The lesson was not prepared for the first day, and not being present at the recitation, the student does not know what the lesson is for the second day, and thus it will go unprepared also. How much better it would be to take the teacher into his confidence and get the thing straightened out at the start.

If there are difficulties the teacher is only too glad to help and the principal is there in his office for the purpose of advising and assisting. So many of us look on a principal as an ogre waitingto eat us up at the slightest provocation. Give him a show and he will help solve your problems.

The parents can do a great deal toward the solution also. Many of them fail to grasp the ideals for which the school is striving. Perhaps they have been deprived of many of the advantages of education themselves and, blinded by their love for the boy or girl, lose sight of the horizon and allow their children to choose their own course. Youth's natural tendency is toward the easiest way and the result is one sidedness in many of the students.

Would that all three forces,—the home, the school and the pupil might work together with a better understanding of the fundamental objects of schooling! Would that they might see that lessons are a means to an end, and that the boy and girl are in school striving not merely for learning but for wisdom, and insight and usefulness in life.

Franz Marceau, '10 won the mile and two-mile races at the Dartmouth inter-class track meet last week. His time for the mile was 4.34, and for the two mile 10.14. Along in the spring we will be hailing him as intercollegiate champion of the N. E. I. A. A.

The football team goes to Brockton today for its first out-of-town game this season. The last three games have been easy contests. They have served as practice, but have not called forth the best efforts of the players. Today's game will give our High school team a chance to prove its mettle. Cambridge Latin was a stiff proposition but our team with much less experience and practice than it has now, won out very handily. Brockton is heavy and fast, and they have a captain who is in a class with Hill, which is no mean recommendation, but with a good following of rooters and a will to win on the part of the team Quincy should gain the victory even against these odds.

Johnson will go with the team today to Brockton. His sprain did not prove to be as bad as was feared ,at first, and his ankle is practically all right now. Manning will be unable to play owing to a torn ligament. The doctor has ordered him to stay out of the game until it is fully mended, lest something more serious should come of it. Larkin will go in at quarter and we can feel confident that he will conduct himself creditably.

The games and scores to date are the following:

Quincy 6,	Cambridge Latin	0
Quincy, 43,	Weymouth	0
Quincy 32,	Holbrook	0
Quincy 37,	Abington	0
Quincy 118,	Opponents	0

When the lunch counter was installed at High school the general opinion seemed to be that its popularity would be on the wane before it had been going a month. The time limit will be up in a few days now, but from present indications the lunch room will live on and increase. The domestic science department is improving the menu and the service. Each day a special appears on the bill of fare. Blackboards are displayed at the head of the stairs indicating what the special is to be. During the recess period its popularity is attested by the small army of boys and girls who climb to the upper story and attend to the wants of the inner man or woman as the case may be

Quincy High should have an entry in the school-boys cross country run announced for Nov. 18, ages 16 to 21. No entrance fee. Entries close Nov. 14.

EVENING SCHOOLS.

The evening schools are progressing very favorably. At the Adams and Willard schools where courses are run for non-English speaking residents the enrollment is large; 140 attend the sessions at the Adams school, and 150 at the Willard. Finnish, Swedish and Italian are the nationalities which predominate.

At the High school the total enrollment is 180. The cooking class has 18 members, the sewing and dressmaking, 35; civil service, 21; commercial, 43; drawing, 63. The Superintendent of Schools has secured Miss Whitcomb as instructor for the course in dressmaking and sewing and Messrs. E. J. Goulart and Harold Fenner for the commercial course. Those who take advantage of these courses are there for a purpose, and progress is rapid after the first few preliminary lessons.

In the non-English speaking classes, the work must of necessity be slow and thorough going, but most of the pupils are eager to learn and thus matters are greatly facilitated.

WOODWARD INSTITUTE.

Mr. Plummer has succeeded in getting into his new home at Chelsea and Mr. Rice will occupy the house just vacated. It is expected that he will move his family here on Saturday of this week, and then Quincy will see more of the new principal of the Woodward.

GRADED SCHOOLS.

FORE RIVER SCHOOL.

The winter term of the Fore River apprentice school opened on Monday with an unusually large entering class, which numbered 54. Of the entering class fully one-half are High school graduates. General Manager H. G. Smith was present at the opening and briefly addressed the class, telling them of the aim of the apprentices classes which was to give them a working knoweldge of the trade which they should elect to learn, and that it was the desire of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, in providing the school, to turn out skilled workmen who would be given employment at the works at good salaries.

The school this year as in other years will have James E. Neary as its instructor. The school is planned to be on a more elaborate school than in other years for it is the intention to have several industrial educators give lectures during the year.

The greater part of this week has been taken up in examinations in order to determine just what course each of the entering class should receive. The school however will get down to hard work the coming week.

SCHOOL NOTES.

The Schoolmasters' club had a very pleasant outing at Germantown last Saturday. About fifteen of the members started bright and early, headed for Mr. Edwards' cottage. Athletic sports and a baseball game were indulged in between meals and very substantial meals were necessary when the time came around.

A WISE PRECAUTION.

The woman who had charge of a certain village post office was strongly suspected of tampering with parcels entrusted to her care.

One day a rosy-cheeked youngster dressed in his best clothes, entered the post office and carefully laid a huge slice of iced-cake on the counter.

"With my sister the bride's compliments, and will you please eat as much as you can," he said.

The post-mistress smiled delightedly.

"How very kind of the bride to remember me," she cried. "Did she know of my weakness for wedding-cake?"

"She did, answered the youngster, coldly, "and she thought she'd send you a bit of it this afternoon, just to take the edge off your appetite before she posted any boxes off to her friends!

COMMON-SENSE PLAN PREVAILS

Army Men Will Undertake Raising of the Maine

APPROVED BY THE PRESIDENT

Cause of Explosion and Whether Source of Destruction Was From Inside or Outside Vessel to Be Settled—Disposition of Skeletons and Hulk to Be Decided Upon Later—All Red Tape Is Cut

Beverly, Mass., Oct. 14.—President Taft has finally approved plans for raising the wreck of the battleship Maine from Havana harbor which called for the completion of the work on or before the thirteenth anniversary of the destruction of the war vessel, Feb. 15 next.

The work is to be done according to plans made by army engineers and to be under direction of an army officer,

President Taft believes that the paramount question in the raising of the Maine is the determining for all time of the cause of the explosion, and whether the source of the destruction was from the outside or inside the vessel. For this reason he desires that the work shall be retained in the hands of the army engineers and not let out by contract.

By direction of the president, Spain has been invited to send a representative to Havana to be present during the work of exposing and removing the wreck.

General Bixby, chief of engineers of the army, spent an hour with the president yesterday afternoon and after explaining the plans for the removal of the wreck in detail, secured the president's formal approval in writing. Bixby later issued a statement which in a formal way outlines the work to be undertaken.

A large number of the bodies of sailors who lost their lives in the disaster were never recovered. It is believed that nothing but skeletons will now be found. These will be removed at once and taken to Arlington national cemetery at Washington for burial.

After the wreck has been thoroughly examined and studied, bulkheads will be built into such portions of the wreck as it is thought can be floated, and the damaged portions will be hoisted from the bottom piecemeal. Congress then will be asked to settle the question of the disposition of the last remnants of the amor clad whose destruction is generally believed to have precipitated the Spanish-American war.

If congress approves the recommendation of the engineers in charge, the wreck will be taken out to sea and given a ceremonial burial in deep water, there to remain until the end of time.

The wreck is now in twenty-five feet of water. It has sunk but one foot in the twelve years and a half since sinking.

The dam to be constructed about the wreck will be 415 feet in length and 275 feet in width at the widest point. Twenty or more plans were submitted to the army engineers and to the president for raising the wreck. None was so simple as that adopted by the army officers.

When Bixby was asked whose plan had been finally determined upon, he replied: "It is best to call it simply the common-sense plan." President Taft has cleared the work of removal of all red tape.

The engineer officer who will be designated to take charge of the work is to be free of all interference, is to make his purchases in open market and to employ labor wherever he can find it, as he shall direct. Speed in pressing the work to completion and accuracy in determining the cause of the wreck are to be the two essentials.

FIVE MORE BOMBS FOUND

Indications of Determination to Destroy Bridge Work at Worcester

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 14.—Five bombs, each in the form of a potato, filled with what is supposed to be nitro-glycerine or some other high explosive, have been found at the bridge work under construction in connection with the new Union station.

Louis Senecal was arraigned in district court charged with attempting to destroy a bridge with a bomb. He pleaded not guilty, and at the request of Chief Matthews his case was continued for a week, he being held in $2000 bail.

Capron Out of Congress Fight

Providence, Oct. 14.—The Second congressional district committee will meet to consider the matter of choosing a candidate for congress, in the place of Congressman Capron, who has declined to run. Capron's reason for declining to run is his poor health.

Steamer Sinks Barkentine

London, Oct. 14.—Seven lives were lost by the running down of the Swedish barkentine Diana by the steamship Senator Holthusen, of Doggerbank. The bargentine was sunk and the Holthusen was badly damaged.

ONLY ONE OF ITS KIND

New Rockefeller Hospital Is Ready to Begin Work

New York, Oct. 14.—All the forces of medical and surgical science will be centered on some one disease until it is vanquished in the new hospital annex to the Rockefeller institute, which is open today to visitors, and which will throw its doors open to patients suffering from special ailments next Monday.

It is the only institution of its kind in the world. It differs from other hospitals in this, that its only patients will be those afflicted with some obscure disease or one for which no remedy is known at present.

Although the hospital is connected with one of the greatest institutions for research work in the world, its patients will not be made subjects of experiments.

The building is eight stories high and fitted with every modern surgical appliance. All who will be admitted will be fed, lodged, nursed and treated free.

SPAIN AN ARMED CAMP

Troops Are In Readiness to Crush First Signs of Rebellion

Madrid, Oct. 14.—Spain's drastic military precautions to stamp out revolt against Alfonso's throne have come to a climax. For a fortnight troops have been massed in the barracks at Madrid, Valencia, Barcelona and other centres of dissension. In Catalonia, the hotbed of agitation against monarchy, General Weyler, who declared that he would stifle the first signs of rebellion in blood, is at the head of a great military force.

Not alone the cities, but Spain in its entirety, is an armed camp. The frontier and provincial districts are policed with soldiers. Artillery is massed at all strategic points. Soldiers with bayonetted guns and double rounds of ammunition are used as police. The government's plan is to overawe the people by a tremendous military display.

WRONGFUL USE OF MAILS IS CHARGED

Manager of Investment Company Taken Into Custody

Boston, Oct. 14.—Charged with using the mails illegally, Charles H. Brooks, manager of the Redeemable Investment company, which occupies an entire floor at 85 Devonshire street, was arrested by United States Deputy Marshal Ruhl.

The offices of the company are sumptuous in the extreme. A great deal of literature, explaining the scheme of the concern, was found there. This literature says that the company was capitalized at $10,000,000, 1,000,000 shares at $10 a share.

Among the property the company claims to have are wheat lands in the northwest, timber and mining lands in the southwest and in Mexico. Promises are made to redeem half of the stock with interest at 6 percent.

Brooks was arraigned before Commissioner Hayes and held in $5000 for a hearing Oct. 20. Bail was furnished.

rooms each of which is about 23 by 30. The main entrance is on the centre front on Highland avenue and leads into a vestibule from which a short flight of stairs lead to a landing which opens into a corridor 11 feet wide running lengthwise of the building.

Entrance to the several school rooms is had from this corridor. Between each school room are the wardrobe rooms. On either side of the main vestibule are rooms. On one side is the teachers rom 12 by 23, and on the opposite side the master's private office 11 by 7, and a public waiting room 11 by 11.

There are also two entrances on the rear of the building, each of which lead into a vestibule in which are located stairways leading up and down.

On the second floor are four class rooms of the same size as those on the first floor. In addition to these there is an assembly hall whose dimensions are about 64 by 41. There is also a good sized stage on the rear, which has an opening of about 50 ft. and a depth of 13 feet. On either side of this stage are dressing rooms which lead from the stage. There are also on each side of the hall a anteroom 23 by 16, and between these ante-rooms and read vestibules, in which are located the stairways, are two lobby rooms about 18 by 8.

There is also a corridor four feet wide in the rear of the platform or stage so that one may go from one dressing room to the other.

Both buildings will be fitted with electric bells and lights, as well as speaking tubes connecting each room of the building with the master's room.

The proposed new school for Montclair also has a frontage on Highland avenue of about 136 feet and a depth of about 55 feet. There is one entrance in the centre front and two entrances from the rear of the building. In these two rear vestibules are stairways leading up and down.

In the basement are two large playrooms, one for boys and the other for girls, both of which are entirely separate. There are also two fresh air rooms and a coal room, also the usual toilet rooms.

In the rear over the master's room and waiting room is a good sized recitation room the dimensions of which are abouc 36 by 18.

GREAT LINES ARE TIED UP

Premier Briand Calls French Strike Insurrection

GREAT LOSS TO COMMERCE

Paris Already Feels Pinch In Food Supply and War Prices Will Prevail If Trouble Continues—Violence Reported on Western Road—Government Fulfils Its Promise to Punish the Leading Offenders

Paris, Oct. 14.—All France is tied up by the great railroad strike, which Premier Briand denounces as "an insurrection built purely upon criminal foundations." The Paris end of the Western road strike is complete. The highways out of the city are jammed with humanity, afoot and in all manner of vehicles.

The strike now includes the five great trunk lines of France. The employes of the Paris subway have voted to strike, following the same decision on the part of the employes of the Eastern, Orleans and Paris, Lyons and Mediterranean lines.

The call of 30,000 strikers to the colors as reservists has been largely ignored. In spite of this official decrees will be issued as soon as possible calling every railroad employe to the colors.

The loss to commerce is enormous. Whole train loads of produce are rotting where the trains are stalled by the strike. Food is being rushed into Paris from the sea up the river Seine. All the food coming in from the land side is also river borne. Prices of fish, eggs, butter and milk have jumped more than 25 percent in twenty-four hours. Merchants are arranging to have food brought into the city in automobiles, but unless the strike is broken quickly war time prices will soon prevail here for food.

Premier Briand is bitter against the strikers. He says that those responsible for it will be prosecuted criminally.

Most of the violence so far reported on the part of the strikers has been on the Western road. There they have held up trains, derailed others, destroyed signals, ripped up rails and destroyed telephone and telegraph communication.

Telegraph lines connecting several French points with London, Brussels and Berlin were destroyed. American travelers are having hard times getting to the coast.

The strikers have now resorted to attempts to wreck passenger trains. The Southwest express was nearly wrecked by the cutting of the air brake tubes. At Bois Colombes the strikers held up the express train for Havre and forced the engine driver and his crew to abondon the train at the point of their revolvers. The locomotive was then uncoupled and toppled over from the track.

The French government is meeting the situation with a firmness that challenges the admiration of even those who sympathize with the men in their demands for a minimum wage of $1 a day. Five of the most influential strike leaders have been placed under arrest. This action was in fulfilment of Brian's promise to punish the agitators who, he has declared, precipitated an insurrectionary movement at the very hour that the premier and M. Millerand, the minister of public works, posts and telegraphs, were conducting negotiations looking to the peaceful adjustment of the differences between the railroad managers and their employes.

The arrested leaders were charged with provoking seditious meetings and leading in violence and destruction of property. The government is convinced that this move, together with the summing to military service as reservists all of the strikers, will break the backbone of the strike.

SEVEN KILLED IN FIRE

Champion Billiard Player Among Victims In Montreal

Montreal, Oct. 4.—Seven lives are believed to have been lost in a fire which destroyed the King's hall building on St. Catherine street.

Among the victims was Charles Threshie, a member of the Boston Athletic association and the foremost figure in amateur billiard circles of Boston. In 1898 he was the winner of the B. A. A. club championship.

Since then he has been prominent in national billiards. About six weeks ago he came here to take charge of a thirty-six table billiard parlor.

AMUSEMENTS

DOINGS ON THE STAGE OF

LOCAL AND BOSTON THEATRES

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

"The Talk of New York" at the Castle Square next week will be John Craig's first musical comedy production of the season. The work of George Cohan, in music, dialogue and action it is the livelist of the lively, and it promises to rival the success of "The Circus Girl." Unlike most pieces of its kind, it has a plot, and its central figure is one Kid Burns, a celebrity of the race track who encounters all sorts of amusing experiences when he breaks into good society. He is a very likable sort of fellow, and although frowned upon by the family of his warmest friend, who happens to be a millionaire, he takes things easily, and radiates happines and fun in all directions. The characters that surround him are all New Yorkers, and the action of the piece moves amid scenes that are as easily recognizable as they are amusing. Interspersed with the plot of the play, and giving added pleasure, is the music, which is made up of the most taking songs, dances and choruses. A chorus of two dozen manly young men and beautiful girls has been specially engaged for this production, and will be one of its leading features. The part of Kid Burns, the hero, will be taken by Donald Meek, who needs no introduction to such a role, and it may be expected that he will make an emphatic hit in it. The other roles will be filled by the various members of the John Craig Stock Company, and a complete production in every way is promised. The scenery has been especially built and painted, and it will present some striking effects.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

Every week at B. F. Keith's theatre new faces brighten the bill, and next week will be no exception to this rule, as there will be a number of newcomers, all stars in their particular lines, with several old and tried favorites. One of the newcomers will be Gene Greene, who has made a tremendous hit during the past few weeks singing his own songs in a characteristic manner. The Field Brothers are also newcomers, recently with one of the big minstrel troupes. Among the old favorites are Will H. Murphy and Blanche Nichols, in what is probably the funniest farce now on the boards, called "The School of Acting," in which the passing army perishes in a scream of laughter. Goleman's Dogs are without question the most wonderful trope of canine actors ever on the stage. Local favorites will be Katherine Nelson and Elizabeth Otto, in their pianologue, and among other features to be announced are Cooper and Robinson, the celebrated colored entertainers, in "A Friend of Mine."

BOSTON THEATRE

The engagement of Irederic Thompson's elaborate scenic production of the William-Von Alstyne-Hobart musical play, called "Girlies" has registered a success o fthe most enormous proportions at the Boston Theatre where it is now on the second week of its engagement. No musical comedy presented in Zoston in late years has attracted the wide-spread critical and popular attention as has "Girlies." The Boston newspapers in their reviews of the performance were a unit as to its splendid merits and this verdict is being endorsed every day by substantial box-office returns.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

One of the pleasant theatrical treats of the season is to be offered at the Boston Grand Opera House next week, when Preston Gibson's southern romantic comedy drama, "The turning point," will have its first presentation in this city. "The Turning Point" was originally produced at the Hackett Theatre, New York, last spring, and was quick to attain popular favor, not only through its bright story, but the many witty epigrams that Mr. Gibson has infused into his work soon became the talk of the town during its stay in the metropolis.

ON THE STAGE.

"Seven Days" is almost here, for the comedy, based upon the miseries of a quarantined house party, has only one week more left in New York, and then it will come to Boston to open ot the Park theatre with all the matropolitan players undiminished.

"The Chocolate Soldier," an operetta based upon Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man," with music by Oscar Straus, comes to the Majestic Monday evening.

E. H. Sothern and Miss Julia Marlowe appear soon at the Shubert theatre in their repertory, which now includes "Macbeth" and "As You Like It."

SOUTH CAROLINA WINNER OF TROPHY

Remarkable Work Because of Newness of the Battleship

Washington, Oct. 14.—The battleship South Carolina is the trophy winner, with a percentage of 54.466 in the elementary firing for qualification of pointers at the target practice, according to the figures compiled at the navy department. There were also three "star" ships with percentages of more than 45, these being the Mississippi, with 53.988 percent; the Michigan, with 47.738, and the Idaho, with 47.647.

Special attention is called at the department to the fact that the South Carolina and the Michigan were required to fire after being fewer than three months in commission, thereby being deprived of the experience and trained which the other vessels in the competition had obtained.

The cruiser trophy was won by the Charleston, the Mayflower won the gunboat trophy, while the torpedo boat trophy was captured by the Reid

TAFT TO VISIT PANAMA

Convinced That Problems Confronting Officials Require His Presence

Beverly, Mass., Oct. 14.—President Taft will sail for the isthmus of Panama on Nov. 10, from Charleston, on the armored cruiser North Carolina, and will be convoyed by a sister ship, the Montana. The president will be gone about twelve days.

The president had practically given up all idea of visiting the canal this year, until Colonel Goethals, chief engineer of the canal, spent two hours with him yesterday afternoon.

At the end of that time Mr. Taft had been convinced that the problems confronting the officials at Panama required his presence on the isthmus.

ELIHU ROOT

New York Senator May Become Chief Justice

ROOT FOR SUPREME COURT

Belief That the President Will Make Him Chief Justice

Washington, Oct. 14.—President Taft is seriously considering the advisability of appointing Senator Root of New York chief justice of the United States supreme court.

It is learned that the president has had the appointment of Root in mind almost from the day of the death of Chief Justice Fuller and officials of the administration who have conferred with him are authority for the statement that it is Root and not Hughes whom the president desires to make chief justice.

It is declared upon excellent authority that should Root see his way clear to accept the president's proposition to retire from the senate for the purpose of going upon bench there is every reason to expect his appointment as the successor of Chief Justice Fuller.

GREATEST MECHANICS FAIR.

The end of the second week of the Mechanics Exposition in Mechanics Building, Boston, finds it the greatest Mechanics Fair ever held in New England. This famous building, vast as it is, has been found none too large to accommodate the crowds that have been in attendance every morning, afternoon and evening. The concerts by the United States Marine Band, Lieut. William H. Santelmann, leader, has created a positive sensation and there was universal regret when the engagement ended Saturday night. For the final two weeks beginning Monday, the 17th instant comes the celebrated band of the 75th Canadian regiment of Lunenburg, Nova Scotia, considered the crack military band of the maritime provinces.

A model printing plant shows every detail of how a daily newspaper is gotten out. Paintings and statuary valued at $1,000,000 are on exhibition in the art gallery and in Paul Revere Hall adjoining lectures on domestic science are given by Bertha Palmer Haffner of Chicago and colored motion pictures with talks on the cultivation and marketing of coffee and tea supply an excellent and instructive entertainment given by Charles E. Greeley. Edna Frances Simmons orchestra play morning, afternoon and evening. These are only a few of the many features of the great exposition.

bush hammers weighing perhaps fifty pounds.

In his pockets were two guns and also a knife.

Chief of Police Burrell, Mayor Shea and Medical Examiner Jones were promptly notified, and only two other persons were present when the Daily Ledger man arrived.

The Mayor and Chief of Police wore a very happy smile when they were positive that the body was that of Restelli

Medical Examiner Jones carefully noted everything about the body, and then delivered it to John Hall, the undertaker.

It was just eleven weeks ago today that Restelli fatally shot his mother and also Henry E. Hardwick, the granite manufacturer. He also wounded his brother, Gaspre Restelli, Benjamin Bishop, C. T. Hardwick and William Adrian and others.

The Merrymount quarry is only about 500 yards from the Hardwick quarry the scene of the last shooting, and the suicide undoubtedly took place within an hour of the time Mr. Hardwick was killed, probably before the police call was sounded on the fire alarm, or at that time.

There certainly will be a feeling of relieve now that the body has been found, and Norfolk county is saved the expense of a costly trial. Thanks to Officers Milford and Qualey.

AWAITING THE "STRAW VOTE"

Democratic Committee of Four Suspends Until Monday

THE CANVASS OF DELEGATES

If It Shows Their Choice to Be Hamlin For Head of Ticket Macleod Will Cast Ballot For Him and Thus Break Long Deadlock—Vahey Comes Out Strongly In Favor of Hamlin's Nomination For Governor

Boston, Oct. 14.—Not until next Monday will the Democratic committe of four resume its deliberations over the task of picking a candidate for governor. The action of the Democratic state committee has caused the delay. The committee feels that it would be folly to take up its work till the preference from the delegates to the convention are received by mail. Consequently nothing remains for the committee to do but mark time.

The committee members met yesterday and talked over the situation. A meeting was scheduled, but the informal discussion showed that nothing could be accomplished by further deliberation on the candidates, as the committee is hopelessly deadlocked between Hamlin and Foss.

Frederick J. Macleod, chairman of the Democratic state committee and one of the members of the committee of four chosen by the Faneuil hall convention, declared that he would break the deadlock that has tied up the committee, and cast his vote for Hamlin if the canvass that is being taken of the convention delegates by registered letter shows Hamlin to be their choice.

Developments lead to the belief that Robert J. Crowley of Lowell and William P. Hayes of Springfield will continue to support Hamlin for the nomination for governor, no matter what may be the verdict of the special delivery letter canvass.

There was considerable talk about an independent Foss candidacy for governor in the event of Hamlin's nomination by the committee. Hamlin has declared flatly that he will support the nominee of the committee.

It was suggested to Messrs. Maynard and Macleod that they secure from Foss a statement similar to the one issued by Hamlin—that he will support the party nominee for governor. Such a statement, it was pointed out to Maynard and Macleod, would tend to remove the suspicion that Foss intends to run as an independent at the polls in the event of his defeat for the regular Democratic nomination.

James H. Vahey, one of the three candidates for the gubernatorial nomination at the state convention at Faneuil hall a week ago yesterday, declared in a statement issued yesterday afternoon that he favored the nomination of Charles S. Hamlin as the best move for the Democratic party of the state.

"I am not now a candidate and desire that my friends should not vote for me," he says. "It would be a gross breach of faith for me to be a candidate now after my statement in the convention. The contention is now between Mr. Foss and Mr. Hamlin. The committee has considered no other men.

GREEK CABINET RESIGNS

Premier Believes That Country Is In Desperate Straits

Athens, Oct. 14.—The Greek cabinet of which M. Dragoumis is premier resigned yesterday. The ministry was formed Jan. 31. The resignation was due both to the complications with Turkey and to internal dissensions.

Premier Dragoumis has been attacked bitterly on the ground that he had failed to support the dignity of the country against Turkish aggression. In a recent speech the premier said that Greece had never before been in a position of such incredible danger from causes both external and internal since the accession of King George.

SUICIDE OF RESTELLI BY DROWNING

FINDING OF BODY OF MURDERER

A Great Relief to Many Anxious People of the City of Quincy

How Restelli Planned to Drop Out of the World

Now that it is all over many people are saying, "I told you so," but the fact still remains that government authorities are endeavoring to trap Restelli near his old home in Italy and at last reports expected to make the capture within a few days. In the meantime Officer Patrick G. Milford has been "sawing wood" and the recovery of the body of Restelli came not as the result of good luck, but of perseverance and hard work. During his vacation in August Mr. Milford spent much of his time in grappling for the body, and whenever he had a day off he would take the opportunity for a search of the old quarry holes.

Officer James R. Qualey of the Braintree force has had a lively interest in the affair, and the Quincy officer discovered a few days ago that their views on the subject coincided. A number of other men have been lowering about the old Merrymount quarry hole also. Among them was George McKay, brother of the inspector. Until yesterday all the dragging has been done from the edges of the quarry. Yesterday Officer Qualey had his skiff and grappling irons brought over to the quarry hole, and the two men pushed out from the edge just at noon and began grappling. The edges sloped gradually and from the bank it was impossible to reach the centre of hole. After about fifteen minutes' work on the third trial, when the boat was twenty feet from the shore, the prongs caught in something that did not rise very easily. After considerable effort the object was brought to the surface, and the mystery was rvealed.

NO DOUBT.

The hook caught in the back of Restelli's coat. He had on a black suit, light striped shirt with no collar attached, black calf shoes and colored stockings. The face was emaciated beyond recognition, but other evidences gave proof that the body was Restelli's beyond the shadow of a doubt. Upon examination it was discovered that the fourth toe on the right foot was missing which was true in the case of Restelli. The head was bald on top and the mustach which he formerly wore was shaved off. There wasa three or four days' growth of beard on his chin and no mustache.

A search of his clothing revealed about $16 in money, $15 in bills and the rest in change, a big jack-knife in his side trouser's pocket, and a butcher knife in his hip pocket. The two big Colts army revolvers and a broad bladed dagger minus its sheath were stuck in under his belt. The key to the handcuffs which he had on, was found in his coat pocket. Two pneumatic bush hammers weighing 30 pounds apiece were tied to the handcuffs with heavy manilla rope.

REVOLVERS IDENTIFIED.

The two revolvers must have weighed 15 pounds. These were 38 calibre and their numbers served as a means of identification. One of them No. 320001 had four loaded cartridges in it, the other No. 322255, had all five chambers filled.

It is probable that the fifth chamber in the first revolver was not filled because the cartridges gave out. The report that one fell out when Chief Burrell started to examine it, was false. It is not probable that the fifth bullet was discharged, and it is certain that if it was, it was not discharged into Restelli's body.

There was a slight scoriation under the chin and a small hole in the forehead, but these were due to other causes, probably injury by means of sharp pieces of granite.

The handcuffs were of special design bearing the stamp "Tower patent" handcuffs. One of the cuffs was not locked up very tightly for it was possible ot draw it off his hand without unlocking it. Evidently he had one hand free until the last minute, but there is positive proof that his reason was not suicide by means of a bullet. If such had been the case he would not have been able to slip the other hand through the hand cuff. It would have been absolutely impossi-

OUR GREATEST CHARITY

Hospital Collectors Begin Annual Visits on Sunday

Beginning tomorrow and lasting all through next week, the accredited collectors for "Our Hospital" will make a canvass of this city in aid of the City Hospital. This annual feature of the hospital work is so well known to the majority of thepeople, that it is hardly necessary to explain what it means. But for the benefit of those who do not know, let us say once more, that each year the hospital endowment fund runs short a few thousand dollars and in order to cover the running expenses of the current year, this collection is made among the people of the city. The people have always given generously and the trustees of the hospital feel sure that they will not be found wanting this year when the collectors visit them.

Every house in the city will be visited and an envelope will be left, with the request that some contribution will be enclosed, when the collector comes later in the week to collect. Try and give something and have the envelope ready when the collectors come. Remember that these collectors are giving their time freely, and it is only fair and just that you should treat them courteously. Every little bit adds to the general total, and no sum is too small, none too large. The small amounts will be welcomed just as much as the larger ones, so if you cannot afford to give a big contribution, do not be ashamed to give a small one. All will be welcomed and received in the spirit with which they are donated, so all are urged to give something, no matter how small the sum may be.

Each one of the collectors will have a credential of authority. This will be signed by the secretary of the hospital, and if you do not know the collector personally, you are requested to ask him to show his credential.

The trustees of the hospital wish to remind the people that through the kindness of Manager George Jelatis of the Auditorium, next Wednesday, October 19, will be "Hospital Day" at the popular moving picture theatre.

In conclusion we must repeat that there is no greater charity than "Our Hospital." You never know when you yourself are going to need the institution. Many of your friends have used it in the past, and you may need it tomorrow. Try and do your best. Give generously and God will bless you.

City Loans of 1910 Excessive and Big Appropriation Orders Pending

Itemized List of New Debt and Proposed Loans

How much should the city government o f 1910 mortgage the future?

There are now pending in the City Council orders aggregating $200,000 in addition to the $188,465 already authorized for which loans have been made.

There are indications that the loans of 1910 may exceed the amount which can be raised in a single year for city purposes under the $12 limit.

This year the amount of Municipal debt maturing, as stated in the Mayor's inaugural address, is $107,375, but the Mayor and Council have already authorized new municipal debt to the amount of $108,465.

The amount of Sewer debt maturing in 1910 is $22,000, but the new Sewer debt amounts to $50,000.

The amount of Water debt maturing this year is $45,500, but new Water debt of $30,000 has been negotiated, and $20,000 more is asked.

The loans passed this year to date are:

TIME FOR HALT.

In view of the large appropriations already made, is it not time to very carefully consider all the appropriation orders now pending in the City Council, and shut out others during the remaining months of the year. Only a few of the items in the list below are really imperative this year, and there is certainly a limit on loans

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The Daily Ledger regrets to make excuses, but circumstances beyond control in the press room have prevented the paper coming out on time the last two days. Although occasionally late, a Ledger is always issued every day. We hope to be on time in the future. The fault this time may be laid to the railroad which handles the paper from the factory allowing something of a sticky nature to gum the ends of the rolls of paper so that they would not unroll in going through the press.

Now that the body of Restelli, the assassin, has been found, there are many reasons for congratulations. First of all to Officer Patrick A. Milford of Quincy and Constable James R. Qualey of Braintree, for the persistency of the search. Second, to the relatives of Restelli and to the families of his victims because an end has come to their days and weeks of anxiety as to Restelli's whereabouts and fear for his reappearance at any time. Third, to the Quincy police as a vindication, as Restelli undoubtedly disappeared from view in the waters of the quarry witain fifteen minutes of the tragedy at the office of C. H. Hardwick & Co., before the alarm was given. No police department was ever more dilligent in its search for a murderer than Chief Burrell and his inspectors. Fourth, the families of Restelli and his victims are spared the publicity of a murder trial and Norfolk County the heavy expense.

The greatest incentive in the search for Restelli was not so much of punishment as to learn his whereabouts and prevent other tragedies. Restelli has paid high for his crime. He has given all, including life and reputation. He is stamped as a murderer and a suicide. It is to be regretted that so many became his victims, and that the innocent must suffer, but it is not probably that any one else will care to repeat his crime. Ten to one they would not be as successful as he. The people of Quincy can well afford to give Officers Milford and Qualey a large purse for their part in relieving public suspense.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

A representative from one of the towns in a western county will not be a candidate for re-election this fall, because he expects to spend next summer in Europe. "A man ought to be able to serve in the legislature," says the North Adams Transcript, "and spend the summer abroad, but unfortunately this can not be done by a Massachusetts legislator, who, if he attends to his duties, has to spend a fair share of the summer in Boston"

Four months ought to be ample for the sittings of the Massachusetts legislature, when the fact is taken into account that the body sits annually. As things rule, however, one-half of the year is taken up with the tinkering of old laws and the framing of new ones for the rest of the year.—Salem News.

Now that the cool fall autumn nights are coming on, how many of us will have the resolution to keep our windows wide open at night and breathe God's fresh air, instead of poison stuffed atmosphere in closely shut rooms?

It is not many years since most of us believed that windows open an inch or two at night during cool weather gave the human organism all that was ncessary for health. And most of us fit as afraid of a little cool air on our face, as of being exposed to the small pox,

People who have learned to take out doors air freely into sleeping rooms every month in the year, find a tonic inspiration better than anything the druggist can hand out. In this indoors age, most town dwellers are shut up in the bad air of offices and factories during the day time, but they can get during the night time the good air that gives out door workers their robust physique. So pile on the coverlids as you need them, but don't turn your room into a woodchuck hole by closing the windows.—Beverly Times.

CITY LOANS

which the City Council and Mayor of 1910 should authorize. Most of these loans are for ten years and some for 30 years and entail large annual appropriations for interest. The tax bills of 1910 show that over one-fifth of the taxes levied go to pay debt and interest, $5.46 out of every $20.00 raised.

APPROPRIATIONS PENDING.

Loan orders to provide funds appropriated for the following purposes are pending in City Council, aggregating $31,300:

In addition to these, there are numerous orders pending asking for the appropriation of smaller sums.

CAMPAIGN CUT SHORT BY FLIGHT OF KING

Royalists Deny Blame For the Predicament of Manuel

Lisbon, Oct. 15.—King Manuel, in a letter to personal friends, asserts that he was forced to leave his country because the ministers absolutely abandoned him. The royalist officers, on the other hand, maintain that they were ready to continue the fight, but that the king's rapid flight left nothing to fight for.

A rigorous censorship is being maintained upon all news except platitudes concerning the new government. The correspondents, it is affirmed, are allowed to telegraph nothing concerning the doings of the anti-clerical mobs.

The government endeavored to conceal an incident in connection with the arrival at Lisbon of the American cruiser Des Moines. A Portuguese officer warned the commander of the danger of a torpedo attack or a submarine mine. As a result everybody aboard the Des Moines was alert through the night, but nothing happened. The British cruisers received a similar warning.

TESTS ARE SUCCESSFUL

Destroyer Drayton Makes Four-Hour Run at Average Speed of 29.5 Knots

Bath, Me., Oct. 15.—After being delayed in her start because of bad weather conditions outside and failing to get away until afternoon the torpedo boat destroyer Drayton successfully completed her final acceptance trial, a four-hour run, at an average speed of 29.5 knots.

She maintained an average during the four hours that she was outside of 30.8 knots, and even then no attempt was made to push her because of the rough weather and only thirty-seven of the forty-four oil burners were in use. The Drayton also came well under requirements as to water pressure.

DEATH TOLL OF STORM

Two Hundred May Have Perished Along North Sea Coast

London, Oct. 15.—Two hundred lives are believed to have been sacrificed to the fury of the tempest which has wept the British coast of the North sea for the past two days.

The steamship Cranford went down at sea, and it is almost certain that all on board perished. Twenty-five bodies have already been washed ashore at Hartepool, all of them encased in life belts marked "Cranford." All were members of the crew.

It is thought that many other craft of various sizes have foundered in the storm, and the loss of life will probably prove the heaviest on record in a decade.

LORING IS RULED OUT

Cannot Run For Second Place on Bay State Democratic Ticket

Boston, Oct. 15.—The Massachusetts state ballot law commission decided that the Democratic state convention had no right to delegate to the committee of four the power to name a candidate for lieutenant governor.

This sustains the objections made by Secretary of the Commonwealth Olin to the certificate of nomination of Clifton R. Loring of Medford as the provisional candidate for lieutenant governor.

The Democrats are left in this predicament by the adverse decision of the ballot law commission. The only way in which they can get a candidate for lieutenant governor upon the official ballot is by someone running on nomination papers. The last day for filing nomination papers for that or other state officers is Oct. 17 at 5 p. m.

BREAKS TRACK RECORD

Oldfield Goes Over Readville Mile Circuit In Fifty Seconds Flat

Readville, Mass., Oct. 15.—Barney Oldfield scored his first point in opposition to the American Automobile association, the governing body of the country, by breaking the Readville track record for one mile at a regularly sanctioned meet, from which he was supposed to be debarred owing to his recent disqualification by the association.

Driving his Benz "Blitzen" machine at a speed of better than a mile a minute, Oldfield covered the mile circuit in 50 seconds flat. The former record was 54 seconds, made by Ralph De Palma in a Fiat.

Oldfield's time is not official, and will not be accepted by the association. It is authentic, however.

MRS. GLOVER WINS AGAINST BROTHER

Had Sued For Reconveyance of Her Homestead

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 15.—Judge Hitchcock of the superior court found for Mrs. Lillian M. Glover, widow of Clarence E. Glover, the Waltham laundryman who was murdered some time ago, in her suit against her brother, Tobio Le Blanc, for a reconveyance of the homestead estate in Waltham, which stood in the defendant's name. She asked the court to hold that her brother held it in trust for her on the ground that it was her money that paid for it. The judge found a resulting trust in favor of the complainant and directed the defendant to reconvey the property to her.

The judge found that the complainant purchased the property for $5500, the money being drawn from a deposit in the Waltham Trust company. The acount in the bank was opened in 1903 in the name of the defendant. All deposits were made by her at different times of her own money; no part of deposits was made by defendant. She kept the bank book and withdrawals were made on orders signed by defendant.

WATER FAMINE RELIEVED

Palmer Pumps Needful Fluid Through 2300 Feet of Hose

Palmer, Mass., Oct. 15.—The plan of relieving the shortage of water in this town by pumping a supply from the Burleigh brook seems likely to prove successful. A good supply of water is now pumped through the 2300 feet of hose laid from the brook to the centre of the town and forced into the mains.

It is estimated that the brook will furnish about 150,000 gallons daily, while the local water company's reservoir at present yields but 75,000. The normal consumption of the town is 250,000 gallons daily, but all users now are consuming much less than the ordinary quantity.

COUNT TO WED HEIRESS

Eleanor Steele of New York to Change Her Name For a Title

New York, Oct. 15.—Count Jean De La Greze arrived aboard the Adriatic to marry an American heiress, Miss Eleanor Steele, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Steele. Steele is a partner in J. P. Morgan & Co.

The ceremony is to be performed at Westbury, L. I., the summer home of the Steeles, after which the couple will tour America and then leave for France, where they will make their home.

Baby Deserted In Church

Brookline, Mass., Oct. 15.—A baby boy but a few weeks old was abandoned in St. Mary's Church of the Assuption by a well-dressed woman of about 30 years, who boldly walked out without the baby, passing the janitor, who had seen her enter. The child was sent to an infant asylum.

Police Chief Ousted

Cincinnati, Oct. 15.—Chief of Police Milliken was peremptorily removed from office by Mayor Schwab as a result of the gambling graft inquiry. Milliken had refused to resign. He declares he will carry the fight to the courts.

RESTELLI

ble for him to shoot himself with the handcuffs on and then slip the revolver back into place under his belt.

The real reason will of course never be known, but we can conjecture that it would have been rather difficult for him to lock the cuff with his wrist inside, so he did the only available thing for him to do.

SUICIDE BY DROWNING.

The water came up within a few feet of the ledge from which he jumped. As was stated before, the slope was gradual and the body could slide down very easily. With his hands weighted down as they were, it would have been impossible for him to take a leap of more than a couple of feet, but that was all that was necessary.

TRAGEDIES RECALLED.

The recovery of the body occurred eleven weeks to a day from the time of the tragedies. The shooting of Mrs. Restelli occurred about 1 P. M. on Friday the 29th of July and the body of Restelli was brought to the surface of the water at 12.45 P. M. on Friday the 14th of October.

In the interim the world has been agog over the mystery and clues have been reported in half of the eastern states, and in several foreign countries.

The deductions that can be made regarding his manoeuvres are these.

Immediately after the shooting occurred Restelli hastened down Carroll's lane toward the old Merrymount quarry. The bush hammers with the handcuffs attached were hidden in a little cave nearby, probably on the lay before, since he was seen going in that direction with a bundle. It is impossible to ascertain whether he had any hopes of escape or not, but we are inclined to believe that he did not.

ALL FOR REVENGE.

Revenge was sweet and after that was accomplished it mattered not what happened. Furthermore, Restelli was too clever a man to expect to go unpunished for his deeds.

After getting the bundle from the cave, he probably hastened to the edge, slipped on the handcuffs and took the final leap.

The whole thing was so cleverly executed and gave evidence of such careful planning that we cannot help having a certain admiration for the sheer nerve and ingenuity of the man.

Probably he had been over the whole ground many times before, and had rehearsed all but the plunge into the abyss below. He must have known that he would be captured eventually if he tried to escape, and thus preferred to meet death in his own way.

The eelven week's exposure had caused considerable bloating of the body, but the coolness of the water prevented much decomposition. As soon as the body was brought out into the air oxidation set in immediately.

BODY IN TOMB.

The body wa brought to the morgue in the ambulance of Undertaker John Hall. Owing to its condition it became necessary to remove it, and place it in the receiving tomb at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

The family have claimed the body and whatever funeral services take place will probably be held there, since the body cannot be removed until it is taken to be placed in the grave.

THE REWARD.

Both Officers Milford and Qualey claim the discovery of the body with the grappling irons but probably the rewards will be equally divided and thus prevent any dispute. The only reward which is positively forthcoming is that offered by Charles H. Hardwick, $100 for the body of the murderer. The $500 rewards offered by the City of Quincy and by the State of Massachusetts called for the arrest or detention of the murderer. It is not probable, however, that the labor of the men will go unrequited by the municipal and state executive, or the people of Quincy.

BROTHERS SATISFIED.

Gaspare and Adolf Restelli, the brothers of the deceased, were taken to the tomb this morning to view the body. They did not wish to give orders for its burial on the claim of another. They were unable to stay more than a minute or two but seemed to be atisfied that the statements were true, and that the body was that of their brother.

Mr. Hall was given orders to go ahead with the burial and by sunset today the interment will have taken place. Owing to the condition of the body, no funeral services will be possible at the cemetery.

Congregational Delegates to be Here on Sunday

The Quincy public will be glad to know that Dr. William E. Barton of Chicago, a clergyman of national reputation, has been secured to preach at Bethany church Sunday morning. The National Council meetings now in session in Boston have brought to New England the ablest men of the Congregational denomination. Dr. Barton is one of the most distinguished men of the group. Formerly pastor of Shawmut Church, Boston, he was called to Chicago some years ago, and has become one of the religious leaders of the great West. A general invitation is extended to the people of Quincy to hear this great preacher.

A strong speaker has also been engaged for the evening service at Bethany church, Rev. L. Thompson of Idaho, who will speak of the religious life in the far West. Mr. Thompson is considered an exceptionally fine speaker.

At the Wollaston Congregational church Sunday morning Rev. David N. Beach of Bangor, Maine, will preach.

At the Memorial church at Atlantic Rev. Seelye Bryant of Springfield will be the speaker.

At the Washington Street church at Quincy Point the congregation will have the pleasure of listening to Rev. William Ganley of Agawam.

The auto patrol was summoned and the injured man was taken to the hospital. Carlson has been in Quincy three years. He is a Finn 28 years old and unmarried.

Driver Morrisey started his car up in the yard of the express office and was half way across the street when the car was in front of the Y .M. C. A. The electric car struck the rear wheels of the truck and shoved it eighteen feet along the track.

Fortunately no one was injured. Motorman Moran came very near being cut by glass from one of the front windows, but he ducked just in time. The front wheels of the truck were lopped over and the fender of the car was battered. Thse, together with the broken window were the only damages.

The blame has not been laid as yet. The electric car was going at a good speed and the auto truck, being of very heavy construction ,would be difficult to stop, so it is hard to say just where the blame should be attached, if it is to be placed on any one.

JOHN P. MITCHEL.
Young Acting Mayor of New York City and Reformer.

CONTROVERSY AT WHITE HEAT

Open Rupture Over Police Commissioner of New York

LIE IS PASSED TO GAYNOR

Mitchel Resents Charge That List of Suspected Places of Vice Was Trumped Up and Says Mayor Is Trying to Create Public Misconception of True Conditions—Demands Official Decapitation of Baker

New York, Oct. 15.—Mayor Gaynor and John P. Mitchel have come to an open break on the question of police neglect in dealing with gambling and other vice. The mayor charged that a list of suspected places compiled by Mitchel as acting mayor was prepared in a "sensational newspaper office" and trumped up for purposes of "scandal and sensation."

Mr. Mitchel answered that the charge was a "deliberate lie," and in turn made the accusation that the mayor was attempting to create a public misconception of true conditions. He again stated that Police Commissioner Baker had failed to obey orders and was incompetent.

Since Gaynor returned to city hall, following his two months' absence, he has intimated several times that he did not approve of the course taken by Mitchel when acting mayor in directing a crime investigation. The mayor had intimated that the action was inspired by a desire for publicity.

But in a letter to Baker the mayor not only discredited Mitchel's entire conduct, but intimated that it was a conspiracy of his enemies, in which the acting mayor had been an accomplice.

The clash occurred when Mitchel learned the contents of a letter that Gaynor sent to Baker. Gaynor took occasion to deprecate the insinuations that the city is vice ridden. He ordered Baker to apologize to the owners of some of the premises mentioned, declaring that no vice existed in their places.

Mr. Mitchel reddened when he read the letter. He had been trying to have Baker removed on the charges of insubordination and incompetency. He had a list, prepared by investigators, of places where, he charged, vice flourished. He declared they could not exist without the police department knowing it. He thereupon demanded the official decapitation of Baker. Gaynor asked that the matter be deferred until he returned.

Immediately upon his return the mayor made it plain he was not in sympathy with the actions of Mitchel. That he disproved of the attitude of Mitchel is shown in his letter to Baker, which led to the open clash.

SCOFFS AT WELLMAN

Atlantic City Becoming Weary of His Promises to Fly Across Ocean

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 15.—Another promise that an attempt would be made to start the dirigible "America" on her voyage across the Atlantic came from Walter Wellman, but Atlantic City scoffed only at the promise.

The hotel men backing the project are considering a demand that the trip be attempted or the balloon taken away.

American Potato Vindicated

Paris, Oct. 15.—A commission of scientists has come to the conclusion that American potatoes are no longer a source of contamination and the French government has decided to admit this product, which has been barred since 1875 on the ground that it was infected with a disease dangerous to French potatoes.

To Wed American Girl

London, Oct. 15.—Carl Fisher, son of Lord Fisher, admiral of the fleet, will marry in Philadelphia in December Jane Morgan, daughter of Randall Morgan of that city.

GOING BACK TO ITALY

Wife Murderer Charlton In Charge of Federal Officers

New York, Oct. 15.—Porter Charlton, the confessed murderer of his wife, Mrs. Mary S. C. Charlton, was ordered to be turned over to the federal authorities in proceedings which have been instituted for his extradition to Italy.

Judge Blair of the New Jersey supreme court declined to release Charlton and issued the order for him to be placed in charge of the federal authorities.

Charlton was arrested on a German liner in Hoboken on his arrival from Italy last summer, shortly after the body of his wife had been found in a trunk in Lake Como, Italy. He confessed to having killed his wife and was held to await the action of the Italian authorities and the federal government.

MURDER VICTIM FOUND

Italian Believed to Have Been Slain For His Money

Hull, Mass., Oct. 15.—The nude body of a man, bearing long knife wounds on each side of the neck, also wounds indicating an attempt to behead with an axe, was found on Sunset Point beach.

The body is believed to be that of Frank Cosanona of Hull, who has been missing for several weeks. It is believed by the police the man was murdered and robbed of $250, which he is known to have had. Cosanona was an Italian resident of this town.

The body was found bound up in a quilt which was secured by a piece of telephone wire passed several times around his body and around his neck.

Great hopes are placed in the quilt which surrounded the body, for it is believed certain that this can be traced.

FRENCH STRIKE IS DOOMED TO FAILURE

Bomb Found Close to American Embassy In the Capital

Paris, Oct. 15.—A powerful bomb was discovered by the police at the foot of a tree in Avenue Kleber, near the American embassy. The officers attribute the attempted outrage to anarchists, who sought to put new ginger into the apparently dying railroad strike.

The missile was removed to a laboratory, where examination showed that it consisted of 300 grams of cheddite powder and several iron bolts.

Traffic conditions generally are improved. The Western railroad is still practically tied up, but only 8 percent of the employes of the Northern road failed to report for duty. Provisions in sufficient supply for Paris are arriving.

The arrest of some of the most prominent strike leaders and the failure of the large majority of the employes of the Eastern railroad, the Paris, Lyons and Mediterranean and the Paris-Orleans roads to respond to the strike order, have had the effect of dampening the spirits of the strikers, who now number about 10,000 men, and of encouraging the government to continue its repressing measure with a firm hand.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, because of a new device in construction, and can always be easily unscrewed for rewicking.

An indicator shows the amount of oil in the font. Filler-cap does not need to be screwed down, but is put in like a cork in a bottle, and is attached to the font by a chain. Wouldn't any woman be happy,
After years of backache suffering,
Days of misery, nights of unrest,
The distress of urinary troubles,
She finds relief and cure?
No reason why any Quincy reader
Should suffer in the face of evidence like this:

Mrs. George L. Nott, 99 North Street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I have every reason for holding a high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills. I was troubled a great deal by headaches and dizzy spells which were so severe at times that I had to grasp something for support to keep from falling. My sight was also affected, spots often appearing before me and my back ached intensely. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store and began their use. I was helped from the first and after I had taken the contents of five boxes, I was cured. Other members of my family have used this remedy with equally good results."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

I am entirely cured and feel like a new man." George Kryder, Napoleon, O.

AVIATOR PAYS SOCIAL CALLS

Grahame-White Lands at Door of the White House

DROPS IN NARROW STREET

Circles Capitol Dome and Passes Washington Monument Level With Apex Before Receiving Congratulations of Officials of War and Navy Departments—Bird Man Flies Six Miles Over Capital in Ten Minutes

Washington, Oct. 15.—Grahame-White dropped in his airship at the side door of the White House, in a space where the slightest deviation from his course would have impaled him upon the spikes of the iron fence around the White House grounds, at his right, or driven him against the granite wall, at his left.

The aeroplane struck the asphalt paved street squarely in the middle and rolled 200 feet along the stone and iron hedged lane in as straight a line as an automobile could have moved.

The aviator's visit to the White House followed an aerial flight of more than six miles across the city, and his landing was upon a precisely selected spot in the narrow street.

On the way thither, at a height of nearly 500 feet, he circled the dome of the Capitol and passed the lofty Washington monument level with the apex. He landed between the great building of the state, war and navy departments, and the low structure of the executive offices.

President Taft was not "at home" to receive his unexpected caller from the air, but Admiral Dewey was there to grasp the hand of the daring aviator and to offer congratulations.

"I am proud to welcome you," exclaimed the hero of Manila bay, with enthusiasm. Other high officials of the army and the navy departments crowded about the aviator and added their word of commendation.

An hour later White again ascended from the from the spot where he had landed and returned to his starting point, the Benning race track, without mishap. Later in the day, while giving exhibition flights, he had two accidents which resulted in slight damage to his two aeroplanes, but the aviator escaped unhurt.

When White started on his remarkable flight he rose to a height of 800 feet by circling about the grounds and then darted away toward the city, six miles distant. Making his objective point the Washington monument, upon reaching that point, he turned his machine northward and sailed directly over the White House. He then circled the state, war and navy building and turned northward again, directly toward Executive avenue, a one block street, not more than sixty feet in width.

Police had closed the street to traffic and the people were cleared from it, but several thousand persons had gathered in the White House grounds, in addition to those who crowded every window of the big government building, and stood on the broad steps and portico.

As he flew about the building Grahame-White brought his machine to a lower level and gradually descended as he approached the street from the southward. When he reached the lower end of the thoroughfare he was about fifty feet in the air—with a descent he brought the biplane to the pavement before he had reached the centre of the block. The flight occupied only ten minutes.

At 3:30 p. m. when White's Bleriot monoplane started to make an ascent, a heavy side wind blew the machine through two fences before he had risen ten feet. A propeller blade was broken but White escaped uninjured except for a bad shaking up.

Government Engineer Discovers New Mountain on Alaskan Boundary

Seattle, Oct. 15.—Thomas J. Riggs, Jr., a government engineer who has been at work on the Alaskan boundary survey, reports the discovery far north of the Arctic Circle of what he believes to be the highest mountain on the continent, exceeding Mt. McKinley by nearly 2000 feet.

Riggs and his party discovered the mountain while at work on the boundary survey near the Porcupine river, north of latitude 67. The mountain is east of the 141st meridian. The height of Mt. McKinley is 20,480 feet.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Original Manuscript Sketch of Debussy's "Pelleas et Melisande" Reveals Thoroughness That is Commended to American Music Students—Boston's "Vocation Bureau" Will Take Part in Great Conference on Industrial Education—Christian Scientists Help to Beautify the Hub—A Precocious Youngster and his "Practice" Best Girl—Everybody in Eastern Massachusetts Has Heard of Columbus.

If there is any citizen of Boston and nearby New England who does not know when America was discovered and who did it, he is probably hiding in obscurity in some dark corner until the frenzy blows over.

"Boston is the best city in the United States"—at least, that is what Mrs. John E. Redmond, wife of the Irish leader, says about it. Perhaps some one coached her to say it ,but her enthusiasm looked genuine enough. Mrs. Redmond was a very busy person while here, taking in the places of interest and being entertained here, here and everywhere, but she found time to express her admiration of the city and its people, and to say that she felt real sorrow at leaving. Another swat for folk who say that Boston is cold, inhospitable and unapproachable.

The Christian Scientists of Boston have won the heartfelt commendation and appreciation of their fellow citizens by one of the most striking contributions to the beautification of the municipality yet undertaken by private enterprise. The admirable church whose great marble dome rises above the city roofs in one of the most congested districts has hitherto been suffocated and submerged by an unsightly array of apartment houses and faced by an unkempt vacant lot. This latter eye-sore has recently been acquired by the Scientists and is now about converted into a spot of beauty, artistically terraced and laid out in grassy sweeps and well designed walks, affording a vista of approach to the noble piece of architecture which inspires enthusiasm and sets an example for further civic advancement. The blank wall of the apartment block which flanks one side of the little park, and which has hitherto been given over to glaring theatrical advertisements, has been made the foundation of trellis work which is presumably intended to support beautifying vines.

The Congregationalists also evidently find the Hub to be a pretty good place, as they have again made it the rendezvous for the great triennial session of their National Council. The several thousand delegates, including representatives from both England and America, received a greeting of sincere cordiality in Massachusetts, where Congregationalism found its first home in America. The glorious October weather lent itself admirably to the pleasure of the visitors.

Love finds a way even to the sharpening of the love maker's wits. Precocious young America was walking down the street of a suburban town recently in company with his sister. As they passed along a diminutive young lady called out coyly, "Oh you Tommy!" "Tommy," age ten, blushed, and was promptly accused by his sister of having a best girl. "Oh, no," he responded, "she's not my best girl. She's only my practice girl."

The valuable lesson of the thorough workmanship of practically all French artists is taught to the music student by inspection of a unique treasure which the library of the New England Conservatory of Music has lately acquired. This is the original manuscript sketch of Claude Achille Debussy's "Pelleas et Melisande," representing Maeterlinck's dramatic poem put to music. The manuscript, beautifully bound in vellum, is one which Mr. Eben D. Jordan whose magnificent contributions toward the development of music in Boston have been many and famous, secured from the composer and has presented to the admirable institution on Huntington Avenue of whose board of trustees he is president. In speaking of the value of the manuscript to students Director George W. Chadwick says that it reveals the professional thoroughness and precision of the well trained Frenchman. Debussy is, of course, regarded by many of his more classical minded contemporaries as an arch insurgent, a revolutionist, shattering some of the most venerated canons of composition and leading modern music in the direction of Chinese cacophonies. Yet there is nothing freakish about his methods of work. The score of the Pelleas et Melisande was neatly written from beginning to end, evidently without long pauses or interruptions but also without undue haste. Then it was very carefully gone over and corrections and amendations made in red and green ink. Any page of the manuscript, however much interlined, shows at a glance the hand of the trained professional. Mr. Chadwick, who has served on juries of award for musical composition, believes that the casual appearance of a composer's manuscript is usually enough to indicate to the practised eye whether or not his manuscript is worth considering. Half baked amateurs often take chances at these competitions and send in "copy" which either by its sloppiness or its unnecessary primness of aspect betrays its impossibility. The really meritorious works look right. Just so Debussy, winner of the Prix de Rome, is, like most of his countrymen who follow music professionally, so competent in his craftsmanship that his manuscript contains implicitly an invaluable preachment to the American music student, who is too often content with easy going and careless ways of work. To insist on as high standards of workmanship as those of the French and Germans is part of the New England conservatory ideal today.

Young Bostonians who are undecided as to their vocation in life, and indeed young people all over the country, will soon be tendered valuable assistance in finding out what they are best fitted for, in preparing systematically for their particular life work and in following it intelligently and progressively. The first national conference ever held on the subject of vocations for the young men and young women of this country is to be held in this city on November 15th and 16th under the auspices of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and the Vocation Bureau of Boston. This Vocation Bureau, organized by public spirited men and women of the Hub, has for its purpose cooperation with business men, manufacturers, parents, teachers, young people and the community as a whole, with a view to lessening the present waste incurred in the transition from school to work, and from job to job. Information will be kept up to date regarding the openings for workers in various occupations and the conditions of success therein, and everything possible will be done to encourage young people to consider seriously what vocation they had best adopt. If the plans of the Bureau meet with success it should prove of great value to the rising generation of workers in this city and throughout the country.

TAG DAY.

City Square presents a gala day appearance today with its high coloring, principally of red. Also many fair damsels and stalwart youths are to be seen, not only in the square, but in all parts of the city, vending their wares. The whole populace is entering into the spirit of Tag Day with enthusiasm, which is no more than right and proper, considering the worth of the object. Business seems to be rushing and very few people refuse to buy. An occasional grouch appears, but after the appeal is made he begrudgingly digs down into his jeans and pulls out a nickle or dime for a tag. Even the horses and pet dogs seem to hold their heads a little higher with the realization that they are supporting this charitable organization by wearing a tag. Thus all are working together for the common cause, and one's heart gives an extra throb as he witnesses the good work in progress.

THEIR FIRST DEFEAT

Quincy High Well Matched However with Brockton

Quincy High met its first defeat of the year yesterday at the hands of the Brockton High school team at Brockton by a score of 9 to 6. The teams were evenly matched and the contest was exciting throughout. Brockton was unable to make respectable gains through the Quincy line, but end runs and forward passes worked pretty successful on the whole.

Chapman intercepted one of the forward passes, however, and brought the ball to the 1-yard line after a 25-ward run. Prout went through for atouchdown and Arthur kicked the goal tying the score.

With about two minutes to play Keith of Brockton kicked a goal from the field and won the game.

Hill was kicked pretty severely near the end of the game and had to be taken out. It was a hard game to lose, but the Quincy team played good football and the influence of the defeat will spur the players on the greater efforts in the next game.

LACK OF GREAT LEADERS

Canalejas Sees No Chance For Spain to Become Republic

Madrid, Oct. 15.—Premier Canalejas says that there is no chance for a republic in Spain, as the Republicans have no great leaders and their ranks are hopelessly divided. Moreover, the radical nature of his program involving a struggle with the Vatican, the premier says, is disarming the Republicans, as anti-clericalism is one of their strongest principles.

An official note has been issued announcing that advices from all parts of Spain indicate that there had been no demonstrations of any account to commemorate the death of Ferrer, and no disorders.

Biddeford, Me., Oct. 15.—Five hundred depositors of the York County Savings bank, which was closed upon the discovery of a shortage in the accounts of the treasurer, Richmond H. Ingersoll, listened last night to the final report of the committee appointed by them to assist the trustees in the readjustment of the bank's affairs.

The committee report, which was adopted, said that from a private account book found in the desk of Treasurer Ingersoll, there was a reason to believe that of the total shortage of about $300,000 a loss of $193,000 was due to bad investments made by the bank between 1874 and 1903. During this period of nearly thirty years, the losses were charged off to the profit and loss account.

ANOTHER CONTRACT FROM ARGENTINA

Quincy Shipyard Expected to Build Second Mammoth Battleship for South Americans

Officers and Cadets of Training Ship Here Today

At the time the contract was awarded the Fore River Ship Building Co., for the building of two mammoth battleships for the Argentine Republic it was intimated that a contract for a third vessel had been or was about to be awarded to the Fore River Co. For various reasons, however, this fact was not generally known.

This rumor seems likely to become a fact, for Capt. Fliess of the Argentine training ship Presidente Sarmiento, which is now anchored in Boston harbor, is quoted with the statement that the contract for another mammoth battleship would shortly be awarded and that it might be built at the Fore River yard. He is further reported to have said that the awarding of the contract may depend on the report of the officers on the work already at hand at the Quincy plant.

Sunday afternoon 90 of the crew of the Argentina training ship paid a visit to the Quincy yards and inspected the battleship now building for the Argentine Republic. The jackies arrived at 3 o'clock and immediately boarded two special electric cars. They were met at the Fore River yards and shown about the plant returning to Boston at 6 o'clock.

CADETS HERE.

Seven officers and 23 cadets of the Argentine training ship Presidente Sarmiento honored Quincy this morning when they visited the shipyard. The party, in charge of Capt. Fliess, arrived at 9 o'clock and immediately boarded a special electric car which was run via Quincy avenue and over the Fore River private tracks to the yard. The visitors were greeted by President Bowles and turned over to several of the Fore River officers who piloted the party through the yard.

They first stopped at the office building occupied by the Argentine officials stationed at the works where the officers paid their respects to Capt. Aguirre and the other officials.

From there they paid a visit of inspection to the huge steel hull of the mammoth battleship being built for the Argentine Republic. The cadets climbed nimbly up the ladders leading to the vessel. In order to get inside it was necessary to crawl through many narrow places. They never faltered, however, and unmindful of dirt and red paint, swarmed about the vessel inspecting every part of it. This consumed nearly an hour, after which they were taken through the different departments at the plant.

They seemed greatly interested in all that they saw, and one of the officers who spoke good English said that they were all very much pleased and greatly surprised at the great progress that had been made on the battleship.

He said that the cadets were young men who had finished their educations as far as the naval academy was concerned, and were finishing up with a practical knowledge by a sea voyage. The cadets he said ranked somewhat higher than the midshipmen of the American navy, and that upon their return to Argentina the Sarmiento would go into dry dock for repairs and that the cadets would be commissioned as lieutenants and be assigned to battleships.

The visit to the battleship under construction was an interesting one, as some of these cadets would doubtless be assigned to her when she was completed and commissioned.

After visiting the various departments at the yards the visitors were escorted to the new office building where they were served with a lunch. The room was gaily decorated for the occasion, the blue Argentine flag with the sunburst being prominent.

After the lunch the guests were welcomed briefly by President Bowles, who expressed his pleasure at having the officers and cadets at the yards. He also spoke of the progress that had been made on the battleship under construction. Remarks were also made by some of the Argentine officers.

VISIT TO SHIP.

The Globe says: Many have taken advantage of the presence of the Presidente Sarmiento, schoolship of the Argentine republic navy in Boston harbor to visit the big ship and look her over, and from the happy look on the faces of the Argentine sailors who came ashore in groups Sunday, Bostonians are not the only ones who are enjoying the novelty of a South American naval boat's visit to the city

All day rowboats and pleasure launches carried visitors out to the ship. The officers of the ship received their visitors courteously and detailed men to show them about and explain—so far as a Spanish-speaking sailor is able to explain anything to an English-speaking landlubber—how everything worked.

A great many of the men were given shore leave yesterday and availed themselves of the opportunity to see Boston Their inability to speak or understand English, while it did not seem to interfere with their enjoyment, prevented them from spinning any sea yarns to the crowd that gathered about the landing place, to which every now and then a ship's launch, flying the pale green and yellow colors of the South American republic, would draw up and deposit its cargo of sailors.

There are a number of Argentinians working on the battleship being built at the Fore River works in Quincy and they visited the ship yesterday, greeting their friends and receiving tidings from home. In the afternoon some of the men aboard the ship became in turn the guests of the Quincy residents.

The Argentine sailors wear a uniform much the same as that of the U. S. sailors, with the exception that the collar of the blouse is of a light blue instead of being of the same color as the rest of the suit. The officers' uniforms do not differ materially from that of the American naval officers.

SURPRISE PARTY.

A surprise party was tendered to John Capiferi at his home 67 Penn street, Friday evening. Mr. Amirault made the presentation speech presenting a handsome gold stick pin set with pearls. There were friends from Braintree, Weymouth, Brockton and Quincy. The party broke up shortly before midnight after all having a very nice time. There were piano solos by Joseph Levangie, Miss Ellen Anderson and Harry Maxim, also songs by Mr. Amirault. The commit tee included: Harrison Maxim, George Friberg, Clarence Amirault and William Anderson.

CHARLES F. BROWN.

Wollaston friends will be shocked to learn of the death, at Winthrop on Sunday morning, of Charles Franklin Brown, a former resident of Wollaston. He was for many years a resident of this city, having moved from Prospect avenue two years ago to Winthrop. Always a gentleman in his demeanor, and of unbounded goodwill, he endeared himself to many in the community. He is survived by a widow and two sons Harry and Wanson. The funeral will be held on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from his late home, 79 Loring road, Winthrop.

NEW SUMMER RESORT.

William Norteman of Houghs Neck has purchased Sheep island, and intends to erect a large pavilion there the coming winter. Next season a line of boats will be put on between Houghs Neck and the island which bids fair to become quite a summer resort.

HOUGHS NECK BUDGET

Fishermen Were Out in Large Number on Sunday

The mass meeting, held in Associates hall, Saturday evening was not very largely attended. Many people had gone to Quincy to purchase Sunday dinner. The meeting was postponed, and will be held in Union chapel, Tuesday evening, Oct. 25, for the purpose of devising a good program for the dedication of the school. Every body invited.

By the way, Crowley, have we got it straight,—is the school to be completed Nov. 1st?

The Men's Club of Union Chapel, will hold its 18th meeting tonight. Matters of importance require the attendance of all members who can make it possible to attend.

Smelting parties were as thick on the water Sunday as "fish lies" If a few smelters would attend church services once in a while, the smelts might bite better in the afternoon. Rev. C. R. McMeekin had a good sermon Sunday he always does.

Charles E. Decker.

ROOSEVELT IN BOSTON.

Ex-President Theodore Roosevelt will speak on Friday evening at the Boston Arena at the Grand Republican rally. Senator Lodge, Gov. Draper and ex-Gov. Bates will also speak.

INCENDIARY FIRE.

An alarm was sounded at 1.05 this morning from Box 441 for a lively blaze in the polishing shop of C. H. Hardwick & Son on Quarry street. The fire was discovered by the watchman at Fallon & Son's Quarry who sounded the alarm. The prompt discovery of the blaze enabled the firemen to quench it before much damage had been done. Chief Williams estimates the loss at $25 and gives incendiary as the cause.

INHERITANCE TAXES.

Three or more Quincy estates were called upon to pay an inheritance tax to the State this year, the list including: Horace B. Spear, $2505.65; Judith Spear, $1,002.37; Hollis G. Rogers $189.18.

The first class of relatives including husband, wife, children, lineal ancestor, adopted child, lineal descendant of an adopted child, the wife or widow of a son, or the husband of a daughter pay a tax of 1 percent, if the bequest does not exceed $50,000; 1 1-2 percent from $50,000 to $100,000, and 2 percent if over $100,000.

The second class of relatives including brother, sister, nephew or niece of a deceased pay 3 percent up to $25,000, 4 percent from $25,000 to $100,000, and 5 percent if over that. No taxes are collected on money passing to the first class of heirs unless it exceeds $10,000 or to others unless it exceeds $1000, or if it will reduce the value of the estate below these sums.

SAVINGS BANK LIFE INSURANCE.

A report just issued by the insurance department of the People's Savings Bank of Brockton covering receipts for the month of September 1910 shows that during that month there was received from the policy holders as premiums $2,479.47 as against $1,779.75 for the month of September 1909,—that is, a gain of 39.3 per cent. The report of the Insurance department of the Whitman Savings Bank shows premium receipts received during September 1910 of $2,558.83 as against $1,820.47 for September 1909,—that is, a gain of 40 per cent. While these increases are not startling, yet they do reveal the steady advance which the Insurance departments are making. Moreover, it indicates more active cooperation on the part of manufacturers. Already some eighty agencies for Savings Bank Insurance have been established. Only recently agencies have been arranged for at the Stevens-Duryea Co., Chicopee Falls, makers of automobiles; at the White & Wyckoff Mfg. Co., Holyoke, manufacturers of high grade stationery and at the Watson Shoe Co., Lynn, makers of the Sorosis shoe.

RUNAWAY CAR DERAILED

Travelled About Two Miles on the Granite Branch

There came near being a bad accident on the Granite branch Saturday afternoon when a heavily loaded freight car was sent flying wild over the branch and ran as far as the Montclair station before it was derailed and ditched.

The accident happened on the Quarry railroad near the scales A freight train backing down struck a box car standing on the tracks and demolished it.

The impact also started a loaded flat car, and before it could be stopped it had run down onto the main line and was speeding along the down grade gathering headway with every foot it ran The car running wild rushed through East Milton and on toward Atlantic. In the meantime the tower man at the Atlantic station had been notified by wire of what had taken place and he succeeded in throwing the derailing switch near the Montclair depot when the car was detached. Had the progress of the car not been checked it would have gone down onto the main line and serious results might have followed. It travelled about two miles on the Granite branch.

WOODMAN—EVERETT.

A very pretty college wedding took place in Wollaston, Saturday evening, when Miss Ethel M. Everett, daughter of Willard E. Everett of Grand View avenue was united in marriage to Dr. James E. Woodman of Franklin, N. H., at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. Harry C. Adams of Winthrop performed the ceremony. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Bernice J. Everett and Winthrop W. Sulloway of Franklin, N. H., accompanied the groom as best man.

Mrs. Woodman is a graduate of Wellesley college of the class of '06 and Dr. Woodman is a Dartmouth '00.

After the ceremony there was a reception and wedding supper. The couple left for their wedding trip that night. They will make their home in Franklin, N. H., where Dr. Woodman has a successful practice.

BONDS AWARDED.

Bids were opened by City Treasurer Curtis this noon for a $10,000 sewer loan at 4 per cent. Eight bids were received as follows:

E. H. Rollins & Son,	100.55
Adams & Co.,	100.53
Blodget & Co.,	100.429

The bid was awarded to E. H. Rollins & Son.

LIVELY BLAZE THIS MORNING

House on Young Estate at Newcomb Square Damaged

The alarm from Box 173 at 8.44 this morning was for a lively fire in the house at 479 Quincy avenue owned by the J. S. Young estate, and occupied by James Mortemier and Hugh G. Wright. The fire started from an oil stove in the Mortemier kitchen, and was discovered by telephone linemen, who ran to the house and assisted in getting out some of the furniture. In the meantime a boy notified J. A. S. Pierce, who rang in the alarm.

Mrs. Mortemier was in the yard at the time, and so rapidly did the fire spread that it was impossible to save anything in the kitchen. Some of the furniture in the other part of the house was taken out however. The fire was a hot one but the streams from two lines of hose soon had it under control. The kitchen which is located in the L is a complete wreck. The fire not only burnt through the roof but through the sides and it will have to be rebuilt. Some fire entered the rear part of the main building which was also filled with smoke.

As the lines of hose were laid across the street car track the cars were tied up. The special car containing the Argentine officers and cadets was held up a few minutes and the visiting naval men had an opportunity to see how fires are handled in this country. Chief Williams places the lose at $1,000.

—Judge Ben K. Lindsay of Denver is stumping Wisconsin for the insurgent ticket. He declares the fight is not between the Democrats and the Republicans, but between the people and the special interests.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

A hearty welcome to the large party of South Americans, who are on a visit to Quincy today. We wish that your stay with us might be longer.

Probably the Mayor and City Council were not aware of the magnitude of the proposed city loans of 1910 until they saw the summary in the Daily Ledger of Saturday. The Mayor told us in his inaugural address that $375,695.00 was the amount available this year for current expenses under the $12 limit. This sum and about $30,000.00 in receipts were appropriated in the annual budget, and since then municipal loans to the amount of $108,465.00 have been authorized, aside from water, sewer and temporary debt. Now orders amounting to $200,000 are pending.

It is not the Councilmen who succeed in appropriating all this money who should be reelected, but the men who protect the interests of the tax payers, and hold up some of the needless loans.

Query—Is it not illegal to borrow outside the $12 limit the following items in the tax levey of 1910? For city sewers, $28,851.42; interest on temporary loans, $18,000.00. If these two items were included within the limit, the tax rate of 1910 would be over $1.50 less.

Real estate has become a burden in Quincy, and taxpayers look to the Mayor and City Council for relief.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

At a meeting of the Fire Underwriters' association of the Northwest, held in Chicago recently, one of the speakers said, "This conflagration habit is what makes scientific underwriting impossible. We have got to teach the people to build better. We must abolish, as a public crime, the use of wooden shingles.' This remark about wooden shingles had reference to the ease with which a fire is spread by burning shingles sent flying through the air by the wind, to ignite other wooden shingled houses, and carry the horrors of a conflagration far beyond the limits that would be possible in a collection of buildings covered with slate or metal tilings. The older countries of Europe build more substantially than is common here. The speaker quoted above said that "Chicago's annual fire loss is $5,000,000 and its fire department costs over $3,000,000. Berlin has an annual loss of less than $175,000, and its fire department costs a little over $300,000 a year." Berlin has a larger population than Chicago, and the difference in fire loss and protection cost is largely due to the heavier material used in the construction of buildings in the German city. Their regulations against the careless use of combustibles may also be a feature in the case. With us the man on the street goes around throwing his matches here and there with a reckless disregard of the consequences, while in Berlin that is not permissible. The insurance man who spoke at Chicago, advocating the abandonment of wooden shingles may have realized what it would mean to the producers, as well as the consumers, but being interested only as an underwriter, he may not have regarded it as important That it would be better to cover the roofs of buildings with incombustible material there can be no question. To change the existing methods, municipal regulations might be made, and they should be made. The comparison between Berlin and Chicago in the matter of fire loss and protection should not be lost upon the cities of the United States. A reform would be a matter of extended time, but it would be a good thing to make a beginning.—Lynn Item.

The New Bedford Standard is right in protesting against the threadbare description of New Bedford as "the quaint old whaling town." It declares that the place is no longer "quaint" and derives no distinction nowadays from hunting the whale. New Bedford evidently wants to be known as a flourishing business town, growing rapidly in wealth and population. Such it is, and as a factory town New Bedford is rapidly catching up with older seats of industry. It is Stonington that may be properly described as "the quaint old whaling town," although its whaling glory has departed.—New York Sun.

TOO KIND.

"Can you tell me," said the cool-looking young lady in white, confidentially approaching the young man at the soda fountain, "the most agreeable way to take castor oil?"

"Oh, yes, indeed," replied the man his eyes brightening. "And while you are waiting," he added, "won't you have a glass of soda?"

"Oh, thank you," said the young lady, as he set it down before her. The day being hot, in a few minutes sh drained the glass.

"Is the prescription ready?" she asked sweetly, wiping her mouth.

The young man's eyes gleamed with benevolence. "The prescription," he said, tapping the glass, "was in here."

"Do you mean to say I've drunk it?" she screamed. "But it wasn't for me; it was for my little brother!"

Daily the soda fountain young man watches her enter the drug store across the way, where they look before they leap.—Washington Post.

THE EVENING OF AUTUMN.

Samuel Minturn Peck.

A cricket clings to a weed and sings
A song that is weird and chill;
Like a dirge it seems, that is heard in dreams,
As it floats o'er the windy hill.
The birds are dumb, and no bees hum;
The wave of bloom is spent,
Yet the scent of the fields my spirit yields
A soft and sweet content.

The barberries red their coral spread
Athwart the lichened rocks;
So grace lives on though Summer's gone,
At the threshold Winter knocks.
The spell ne'er tires; twixt the mullein spires,
O'er the grass, in every place,
Beyond compare, with a shuttle rare,
The spider weaves his lace.

Doth Beauty go? To the eyes that know
She only takes new form,
And lies at rest on a meadow's breast,
Or flits through a shrieking storm.
Thus memory finds neath calms and winds
A harvest fresh to reap
For fancy's food in solitude,
And ravel-knitting sleep.

BABY FOUND IN DRAWER

Mother Passes Away Soon After Little One's Appearance

Brockton, Mass., Oct. 17.—William Wilson of Clinton avenue was awakened by the groans from a room which he had rented to a girl stranger two weeks ago.

He broke down the door, found the girl in need of medical attention, and immediately sent for a doctor. Shortly after the arrival of the physician the girl died from internal hemorrhage. A new born baby was found by the doctor in one of the dresser drawers.

Through a letter which was found in the room, the police managed to ascertain that the dead girl was Christina McBran of Concord, N. H. Her father was telegraphed for and arrived here late last night and identified the girl as his daughter.

WANT A DEMONSTRATION

Request of French Strikers Refused by Premier Briand

Paris, Oct. 17.—The union of the railroad men asked Premier Briand to authorize a big manifestation in the Bois Demode Vincennes. The premier refused, declaring that such a manifestation would be illegal. The strictest measures have been taken to prevent any attempt to hold this demonstration.

The police raided the anarchist newspaper Libertaire and found three bombs, similar to that which exploded a few nights ago in the Rue de Berri, in the possession of one of the printers.

MANUEL QUITS GIBRALTAR

Royal Refugees Are Now on Their Way to British Shores

Gibraltar, Oct. 17.—The members of the Portuguese royal family left Gibraltar Sunday. King Manuel, the Queen Mother Amelie and the Duke of Oporto embarked on the British royal yacht Victoria and Albert, while the Queen Dowager Marie Pia went aboard the Italian warship Regina Elena.

The departure of the royal exiles was marked by the thunder of salutes and the playing of the Portuguese national anthem. The British authorities showed the king and his party all the honors due their rank.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict that Fisher's death was caused by the blows of Hall, who has disappeared.

TAFT DELIVERS SERMONETTE

Formal Farewell to Residents of Summer Capital

HAS ENJOYED HIS VACATION

Hopes to Return to Beverly or "Hereabouts" Next Season—Expresses Gratitude of Himself and Family For Courtesy Shown Them and Has Praise For Unitarian Church—Children's Farewell In Flags

Beverly, Mass., Oct. 17.—President Taft yesterday made his last appearance for the summer at the First Parish Unitarian church when he delivered a little sermonette—a sermonette that told of the pleasure his stay in the summer capital had given him, and the hopes that he had of finding a place in Beverly or "hereabouts," as they expressed it in the west.

It was a heart-to-heart talk—a graceful appreciation of the courtesies extended to him and to Mrs. Taft in his stay in Beverly, and a promise that he would come here again to services next summer.

The president was greeted by a large gathering outside of the church, and when he arrived with Mrs. Taft and Captain Butt, the gathering gave him a Chautauqua salute. The sermon by Rev. B. R. Bulkley was on the supremacy of the spiritual man. At the close of the sermon Bulkley presented the president, who walked to the front of the church and addressed the gathering as follows:

"My friends, I should be most reluctant to break into the regular course if it did not give me the opportunity on behalf of Mrs. Taft and myself to express the gratitude we feel at having the privilege of worshipping with you during this beautiful summer season in a church of full of history, with such a wealth of usefulness in the last 250 years. It is a church that illustrates in its history the growth of liberalism in religion and the development out of the orthodox tenets of those who came here to make the beginnings of New England into our faith of Unitarianism—the church that began with a Dr. Bulkley and now has a Dr. Bulkley to administer to it.

"Those of us who are summer visitors in Beverly and who are of the Unitarian faith may well congratulate themselves at having such a pastor and such an opportunity under the arrangement of Dr. Bulkley to hear sermons from the leading ministers of the Unitarian church. I do not know how you feel about it, but I feel that we of the Unitarian church have an advantage over most other churches in the excellence of the sermons that we hear, and those of us who have enjoyed hearing the eloquent preachers of our church may well rejoice.

"Without being invidious or making any comparisons, I am sure all who heard, for instance, the sermon of Dr. Frothingham on the importance of the facts in the life of Christ will never forget its influence and its beauty.

"I hope we—I mean my family and myself—are going to be here or, as the say in the west, 'hereabouts,' and certainly if we are within any practicable distance, and you will treat us as well next summer and as hospitably as you have this, we shall be numbered among the worshippers under this roof. I thank you sincerely."

The president left this morning for New York. Thirty-seven hundred children were lined up along Lothrop street and gave him a farewell in flags as he motored along the street. The boys' brigade of the Methodist church acted as a patrol, and the farewell was the most spectacular the president has yet received.

TO DIE IN UNITED STATES

Bernhardt Thinks She Will Drop on Stage During Coming Visit

London, Oct. 17.—In the course of a chat with a few friends Sarah Bernhardt made the startling announcement that she "had a premonition that she would die on the stage during her forthcoming tour of America."

Her friends only laughed, as it is generally known that Sarah's great wish is to die on the stage. She carries an elaborate coffin about on her travels, but Bernhardt went on to say: "You may laugh, but the life, the movement of America will exhaust what vitality is left in me."

The fact is, as her friends say, the Divine Sarah, who is a great-grandmother, is herself astonished at the extraordinary attack of youthfulness and energy which has seized her during the past few weeks. She declares solemnly: "It must be the last flicker of the lamp."

A Banquet For Horses.

Banquets prepared exclusively for animals are not altogether unknown in England. The aged inmates of the Home of Rest for Horses, Westcroft farm, Cricklewood, celebrate each New Year's day with a sumptuous repast. The menu for the last banquet consisted of lumps of sugar, chopped carrots, apples, brown and white bread and biscuits. These were mixed together in a wooden box and placed outside each stable door.—London Family Herald.

NOW CHIEF CONSTRUCTOR

R. M. Watts Entered on Duties Oct. 1

The leading article in the Army and Navy Register for Oct. 1 is an illustrated sketch of the new chief constructor of the United States Navy, Richard Watt, formerly stationed at the Fore River shipyard in this city, and a resident of Wollaston. The sketch will be read with deepest interest by Quincy and Wollaston people, because he interested himself in local and church affairs here. He was a leader among the young people of Wollaston, and was for two years president of the Men's Club of the Congregational church. The sketch is reprinted in full:

"Naval Constructor R. M. Watt, U. S. Navy, began his duties as Chief constructor of the Navy Oct. 1. He succeeds in that position Chief Constructor W. L. Capps, who retires after thirty years' service.

"Naval Constructor Watt entered the service as a naval cadet at the Naval Academy on Sept. 32, 1887, graduating fourth in a class of 36 members in June 1891; served on U. S. S. Bennington June-July, 1891; on U. S. S. Franklin July-September, 1891, when he was detached and ordered to Glasgow, Scotland, to pursue a course of study. Returned to the United States in May, 1892, and served on U .S. S. Vermont and at the works of Wm. Cramp & Sons before returning to Glasgow in October, 1892. He returned to the United States in July 1893, and his resignation was accepted to take effect from June 30, 1893.

"On July 1, 1893, he was appointed an assistant naval constructor in the Navy and served in the bureau of construction and repair until October, 1893, when he was detached and ordered to duty at Cramp's ship yard, Philadelphia, Pa. He was detached from this duty August 15, 1896, and ordered to the navy yard, New York, where he served until September 1900; assistant to superintending constructor at Elizabethport, N. J., and Morris Heights, N. Y., September, 1900, to March, 1901; navy yard, New York, March, 1901, to October, 1901.

"He was appointed a naval constructor, with the rank of lieutenant, July 1, 1901; duty as superintending constructor at Fore River Shipbuilding Co., Quincy, Mass., October, 1901, to August, 1907. He attained the rank of lieutenant commander from July 1, 1905; duty at navy yard, Norfolk, Va., as head of the department of construction and repair from August 1907, to August 1910, when he was ordered to special duty at the Navy Department, Washington, D. C., where he is serving at the present date.

"The selection of Naval Constructor Watt to cusseed Chief Constructor Capps was directly due to the visit of the secretary of the navy to the Norfolk navy yard in May of this year. When Secretary Meyer went over the affairs of the yard with Rear Admiral Taussig, the latter called his attention to the work of Naval Constructor Watt as manager of manufacturing department. He said: "We have a most excellent man here—Mr. Watt—and things have gone along nicely. The orders were to make the scheme work and we have made it work." The secretary was informed that Naval Constructor Watt's engineering experience consisted of the usual course at the Naval Academy and two years' post-graduate course at the University of Glasgow, fully one-third of the instruction period being given to marine engineering.

"In relation to the consolidation at the Norfolk yard, Naval Constructor Watt informed Secretary Meyer that his plans had resulted in a marked improvement in the general condition of the shops, and that the yard, by reason of increased shop facility, concentration of the best tools and elimination of the older and less satisfactory tools, was prepared to undertake tasks of greater magnitude in every branch of trade than it was prior to the consolidation. He further said: "Consolidation at the Norfolk navy yard has proved a success. Friction has been almost wholly obliterated. Economy in time and money can be clearly demonstrated. Uniform methods of keeping accounts, making reports ,administering shops, and rating labor are in force.

"All work in progress receives the personal supervision of an officer from the manufacturing department(which was not always possible with the single commissioned assistant previously on duty in the steam engineering department and none in the equipment and ordnance) All work also receives thorough inspection by the inspectors of the yard and the assisting inspectors on the ships in commission. Discipline amongst yard employes has been improved. The work is divided amongst fewer foremen, whose wages can, therefore, be increased, insuring retention of the good men. By frequent conferences the foremen are kept fully informed of the relative importance of work, and work is arranged in its logical sequence."

"When Secretary Meyer appeared before the committee on naval affairs o fthe House of Representatives in reference to his plans for the proposed reorganization of the Navy Department, he gave testimony to the ability of Naval Constructor Watt in the following words:—I have in mind one constructor as manager who has shown special ability and yet he has had to work until midnight and then has not been able always to keep up with his work. This is a young man, named Watt, at Norfolk, who has also managed to avoid the errors which so many others have made. He is at Norfolk, and the officers there without exception speak in praise of him."

A TALE OF TWO CITIES.

In the September "World's Work," the Rev. Newton M. Hall of Springfield, Mass., makes an instructive comparative study of conditions in Exeter, England, and Salem, Mass. Exeter, with a population 12,000 greater than Salem, has a budget of $957,857, as compared to Salem's $1,145,857. Exeter's debt is considerably larger, because that city is engaged in municipal enterprises that require a heavy investment, but which nevertheless return a profit to the municipality. The police of Exeter cost 72 cents per capita, as compared with $1.34 in Salem. Exeter's per capita fire loss last year was eight and a half cents; Salem's, 56 1-2 cents. The cost of maintaining Exeter's department was nine cents; the cost in the case of Salem was $1.04. Dr. Hall gives these conditions in Exeter as reasons for the difference: (1) Entire absence of graft; (2) economy of administration; (3) municipal enterprises and business principles in administration; (4) the sense of civic pride and responsibility.

In Exeter, England, the municipal electric railway line carries passengers for two cents a mile and issues workingmen's tickets at one cent a mile, good for certain hour of the day. Service, not profit, is its motto.—Boston Common.

LEGALLY SEPARATED FROM HER HUSBAND

Mrs. Sothern Gets Much Coveted Divorce Decree at Reno

Reno, Nev., Oct. 17.—It required exactly half an hour for Mrs. Virginia Harned Sothern to obtain her much-coveted divorce decree. She testified as follows:

"My husband and I separated at our home in New York, on June 30, 1906, and I have not seen him since. No communications have passed between us since. He has never offered to return. I never gave him the slightest cause to leave me.

"I have earned my own support ever since. He has never since given me a cent. His salary is $100,000 a season of forty weeks. We have no children and I ask no alimony. There is no property division."

All through both her efforts at divorce it was manifestly apparent her husband would place no obstacles in her way. He even came here once to have a summons served upon him to facilitate proceedings. Mrs. Sothern's effort to get a divorce last year failed.

EXPRESS RECORD BEATEN

Dirigible Sails From Compeigne to London In Six Hours

London, Oct. 17.—Another chapter was added to the history of aviation when the French dirigible balloon Clement-Bayard made the voyage from Compeigne to London in the remarkable time of six hours, a journey requiring seven hours by the fastest express trains and boats.

Compeigne is forty-five miles northeast of Paris and about 195 miles by air route from London.

This is also the first occasion on which a dirigible balloon has crossed the English channel. The over-water route occupied forty-five minutes.

The Clement-Bayard, with a crew of seven, left Compeigne at 7:15 o'clock Sunday morning, and reached London without a stop at 1:15 o'clock in the afternoon. The atmospheric conditions were perfect. The behavior of the dirigible was excellent and the 440 horsepower engines worked well.

SUNDAY IN THE CHURCHES

Congregational Delegates in Several Pulpits

CALVARY BAPTIST.

The pastor took for his morning theme "How to have power." He spoke of the need the church and the individuals in the church have of power and showed how power might be gained and retained by all who seek it through the paths of righteousness.

The Men's class was very well attended. Announcement was made of a gathering for the members of the class at the home of the president, J. E. Mundie, Wednesday evening.

The Alexander song books were used in the praise service. The choir rendered "Who could it be, but Jesus." The subject of the sermon was "The Upward Reach" the text being taken from 1st Cor. 12-31. "Show I unto you a more excellent way."

The subject taken for the evening service was "The great question," text Matt. 22:42, "What think ye of Christ?" Miss M. Shirley and Mr. C. Goucher sang a duet, "I am with you." The choir rendered "That beautiful golden gate." There was a good attendance at all the services of the day.

A service of special interest in connection with the Evangelistic meetings at the Hall Place M. E. church will be held this evening at 7.30. The work of the evening will be conducted by a group of silent evangelists and all will find a most cordial welcome. Come and help sing the famous Alexander songs. The meetings will be continued throughout the week each evening at 7.30 except Thursday night. Short interesting talks will be given by the pastor, and these will be supplemented by song selections. The Gospel team of Boston will take charge of the services of Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

BETHANY CONGREGATIONAL.

The congregations at Bethany church were favored both morning and evening by addresses by western clergymen who are delegates to the council in Boston. In the morning Rev. William A. Barton, D. D., of Chicago preached an able address from Acts 17:29—"For we are also His offspring. Being the offspring of God we ought not to think that the Godhead is like unto gold or silver or stone, graven by art and device of man." He maintained it was just as easy to make a graven image in logic as in clay. In conclusion he said the only thing that can save this world is the doctrine of Jesus Christ.

At the evening service Rev. L. Thompson told of his work in Idaho and eastern Oregon. He said that section among the mountains was the real frontier of the country today. Towns and settlers were very scattered and it was not easy to get over his territory which was 400 miles by 700 miles in extent. He told of conditions and of his efforts to start Sunday schools, then societies, and finally build churches. The boys vested choir sang at this service.

The Intermediate Christian Endeavorers will meet this evening with Edward Hayden of Hancock court.

Rev. Dr. Hardy the pastor was busy all day Sunday in Boston in connection with business of the council.

Rev. and Mrs. L. B. Tenney of Williamatic, Conn., were in the congregation Sunday morning.

The Galahad Brotherhood will hold a special meeting in the parish house Tuesday evening at 8. Delegates will be present from the neighboring towns to hear the address by Rev. A. M. Gardner who is general secretary of the movement of which he will speak. The world in Boston exposition will be held in Mechanics hall in the spring and great interest has been shown in it by the members of the Brotherhood.

The first debate of the Men's Club will he held Wednesday evening at 8. Arthur Thomas has it in charge. The question for debate is "Should Senators be elected by popular vote." With ten debaters, the question should prove to be a live issue.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN.

The regular Sunday afternoon service was held at 3 with a large attendance as usual. The Christian Endeavor society met in the manse at 6 for their regular service; over 60 were present at the meeting which was a very inspiring one.

The Ladies Aid society will hold their meeting in the manse on Wednesday, and Thursday evening the prayer meeting will take place at the usual hour.

UNITED PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. A. M. Thompson, the pastor, preached at both morning and evening services. His morning text was in Lev. 6:13, "The fire shall ever be burning upon the altar. It shall never go out."

The Y. P. S. C. E. had a well attended meeting at 6 o'clock. Topic—"Your amusements. Do they build up or tear down?"

At the evening service the second of the series of sermons on the life of Joseph was delivered. Joseph's Dreams and Visions was the topic of the evening.

The regular prayer meeting will be held Thursday evening. Topic—"What is the object of the mid-week prayer meeting? Is it the duty of all church members to attend this service,"

SWEDISH LUTHERAN.

Both morning and evening services called forth large numbers of people. Rev. S. N. Elwin preached on timely topics both in the morning and the evening. The musical portion was especially good at the morning service.

The Dorcas Society will meet on Tuesday at the home of August Johnson, Commercial street, East Braintree.

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

The Hon. Guy Ham, representative of the Anti-Saloon League, gave a very interesting address on the work that the Anti-Saloon League is doing, in the Wollaston Baptist church, Sunday morning. In the evening the pastor, Rev. Joseph Walther, preached.

WOLLASTON M .E.

Sunday morning Rev. Wesley Wiggin took his text from Gal. 3-20. "I live, yet not I but Christ liveth in me." The Christian, said Mr. Wiggin, has real vital relationship with God. The object of our faith determines what we are. If that object be Christ, it transforms all our desires, and our lives crave the purest and best.

Miss Rena Chamberlain is doing excellent work in the Junior League.

The Sunday school is taking on from one to five new enrollments each Sunday so far, since Sept 1.

We believe the president of the Epworth League will be pleased to find that the league kept up good work, while he was away on his honeymoon.

Sunday evening after a song service, the pastor took for his theme "Conditions of Salvation." First, Atonement; Belief in Christ as able to save; confession of sins.

The Men's club will have their first meeting in the vestry Thursday evening.

The evangelistic meetings last week were well attended, helpful and inspiring.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN.

A congregation of Wollaston and Quincy people that filled the auditorium was present on Sunday morning to hear Rabbi Charles Fleischer of Boston, one of the most liberal thinkers of the Jewish church, who occupied the pulpit of the Wollaston Unitarian church.

Taking for his text "Sympathy," Rabbi Fleischer prefaced his sermon by saying that he looked forward to the time which was not far off, when under the broadening views of the denominations the present occasion—that of a Jewish rabbi occupying the pulpit of a Unitarian or any other church would not receive undue notice and exchanges between these and other churches would be frequent.

"I am here," said Rabbi Fleischer, not to quarrel with you, reform you or convert you to Unitarianism, but simply to say a few words on "Sympathy."

Mentioning the relationship of sympathy and love to civilization, the speaker declared that he was most civilized who had developed most the capacity for loving. The inclusion of life is the process of civilization. I find it a common notion that the Jew's belief is that of a God, stern and of rigorous justice. This is not so. We read of Moses' characterization of God as "gracious and merciful and abundant in kindness" and we are told repeatedly that "the Lord desires not the death of the sinner, but that he should return and live." This is proof of God's love. It was a daring, if quite irrational dogma of Christianity that God's love for the human race was so great that he condescended to put on human flesh and form.

The whole tendency to Hebraic and Christian metaphysics has been towards establishing a friendly, loving family relationship between man and God. This effort of man to claim kinship with the Soul of the Universe may be pure metaphysical assumption and presumptuousness, but it is a beautiful evidence of the rise of the tide of love in the heart of man.

Whatever may be the fate of the Hebrew-Christian metaphysics in the course of the ages—and it is conceivable that we shall grow beyond the theology of our forefathers, even as they outgrew fetishism and the later lowly forms of faith. I cannot see how the race will ever develop beyond the ideal of human relationship summed up in the commandment: "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

Although we may change in thought and formal creed I believe we have reached the ultimate relationship of man to man. The ethical standard of love has been permanently fixed and to love the fellow beings as one's self will be the ever increasing goal of the individual.

Indeed I can only imagine that with developing humaneness the individual and the race will pass on from mere innocuous indifference to gradual goodwill and friendliness, then to neighborly charity and communal philanthropy, and finally to universal sympathy and world-wide love, which will be searching in spirit and militant in energy, and will be the realization at last of active human brotherhood from which the actual progress of the race will spring."

In the Sunday school Rabbi Fleischer spoke a few words upon "the progress of mankind" telling of the lowly origin of the human race and forecasting the high goal toward which it was ever trending."

STREET REPAIR LOANS.

Editor Quincy Ledger:

I would like to ask through your columns if the City Council, Mayor or City Solicitor think it legal to borrow money to repair the following named streets:

Rebuilding Brook street,	$1,500
Rebuilding Furnace avenue	1,000
Rebuilding Trafford street,	3,000
Rebuilding Crescent street,	2,000
(Total of four $7,500)
Rebuilding West street,	$3,500
Rebuilding Pleasant street,	900
Rebuilding Marsh street,	400
(Total of three $4,800)

And also if the money borrowed for all such in the past has not been voted illegally?

Yours respectfully,
A Subscriber.

TODAY'S COURT.

Alton C. Hall was arraigned for threats at Weymouth. Case continued until Dec. 16.

John Asparachi of Weymouth was fined $15, Joseph Wilson, William M. Foss, Frederick McCauley, Herbert Spergeon and Timothy Moriarty of Quincy $5 each for drunkenness.

Joseph P. Gurney of Braintree was sentenced to two months in the house of correction for larceny. Sentence suspended.

NON PARTISAN GOVERNOR.

In accepting a renomination at the hands of the delegates to the 2d councilor district, Councilor J. Stearns Cushing paid a high tribute to Gov. Draper, saying among other things:

"For two years he has given this state an exceptionally clean and business-like administration, with a 'square deal' for all. In the conduct of his multifarious duties as chief magistrate he has known no party—his appointments have been based strictly on merit and fitness for the office regardless of the appointee's political affiliations.

I know that this fact has not always pleased—in fact, has sometimes displeased—those of strong partisan preferences.

But, after all, is not that the best evidence that he has been faithful to his oath of office; has served the interests of all the people of the state unselfishly—and that he has not used his office simply for political capital and for his own ends?"

The councilor also complimented the lieutenant governor, observing: "In the sometimes necessary absence of the governor from his duties at the state house, the affairs of this commonwealth have been, time and time again, ably and honestly conducted by our lieutenant governor, Louis A. Frothingham, and no further argument, it seems to me, is required to prove his absolute fitness for his office, and that in all justice he should be relected by a majority commensurate with the faithful performance of his duties in the past."

The Story of the Short Ballot Cities

A Series of Articles on the New Commission Form of Municipal Government

By RICHARD S. CHILDS

II.

The Success of the Commission Plan

IT is no easy matter to prove conclusively and in true scientific fashion that one city is better governed than another. Nevertheless, despite the difficulty of making comparisons, there is nothing more certain than the fact that, whether the commission form of government is the ideal form or not, it is better than the forms of government which preceded it in the various cities.

The total list of cities which now have the commission form of government numbers sixty-eight. Many others have voted in favor of it and are waiting for legislative action. Of these sixty-eight, however, many are of very small size. Some of them, in fact, are mere villages and do not present the problems that a city does. Adopting 25,000 as a minimum population for a true city, the list runs as follows:

Massachusetts — Gloucester, Haverhill.

Tennessee—Memphis.

Iowa — Burlington, Cedar Rapids, Des Moines, Sioux City.

Kansas—Leavenworth, Wichita, Topeka.

Missouri—St. Joseph.

Texas—Austin, Dallas, Fort Worth, Galveston, Houston, Waco.

Of these seventeen cities nine have had the plan in actual operation so short a time—a year or less—that accurate comparison of the results of the new regime as compared with the old is not yet possible. All reliable testimony regarding the commission plan must therefore be based on the remaining eight cities.

Brief as the trial has been, the evidence nevertheless is startling. In every one of these cities there had been waste, some corruption and much inefficiency. In all of them party machines had been in complete control and had been maintained in running order at the public expense through political favoritism in the making of appointments. How much the "gangs" cost the cities was revealed when the government passed into the hands of men who, having obtained office without the help of the "gangs," could afford to ignore them.

Galveston's experience has already been described.

Gloucester—Commission plan in effect 1909. The first year's report showed all bills paid and a reduction in the city debt of $18,000. It is claimed that the roads and streets have been better kept at $6,000 less annual expense. The city bookkeeping has been reformed, and the commissioners point to a reduction in the expense of caring for public property It is still too early to demand much in the way of tangible results.

Haverhill—Commission plan in effect in 1909. The first year's report under the new plan showed a saving of $67,900 in running expenses. When the commission took hold the financial status of the city was very bad. It had reached both its debt limit and tax rate limit and was steadily falling behind in its payments. Appeals were being made to the legislature for an extension of the tax rate limit, but this extension has now become unnecessary. In addition the city has voted no license, the revenue from the saloons being no longer needed. The commission has been fighting a big battle against the gas and electric light monopolies to obtain lower rates for the city and for private consumers, and has obtained from the people permission to resort to municipal ownership if necessary. There was fierce political opposition to the commission at the expiration of its first term, but it was re-elected. Party lines in Haverhill, which was formerly a Republican city, have been completely broken. The commission consists of two Democrats, two Republicans and a Socialist.

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—Commission plan in effect in 1908. The commision has reduced the tax rate and the debt, while making certain big improvements, such as the acquirement of a big island in the river, out of current expenses instead of bond issues. The island is for municipal buildings in a handsome park setting, in accordance with a "city beautiful" plan devised by an expert. The police and fire department forces have been enlarged despite the reduced tax rate.

Des Moines, Ia.—Commission plan in effect in 1907. In its first year the commission saved $184,000 in running expenses, as compared with the previous year under the old government. It made better bargains for the city in electric light charges, obtained interest on city deposits for the first time, cleaned streets and alleys better, (the alleys had formerly not been cleaned at all) and wiped out the "red light district," the effect of which has since been shown in reduced crime. A system of periodical fines which were practically licenses levied in this district formerly brought in a huge yearly revenue and the financial results above noted were obtained despite the ceasing of this illegal income.

Leavenworth, Kan. — Commission plan in effect in 1908. The commission has reduced the bonded indebtedness by $112,950, while the tax rate has remained stationary. Kansas is a prohibition state, but Leavenworth had always defied the law and allowed the saloons to exist, subject to periodical fines which brought in $80,000 a year The commission closed the saloons and disposed of this illegal revenue without disturbing the tax rate. Over $200,000 was spent in special improvements the first year as against an average of $25,000 in previous years. In the first two years under the new system six miles of street were paved as against twelve miles in the preceding twenty-five years.

Dallas, Tex.—Commission plan in effect 1907. In its first two years the commission wiped out a deficiency of $200,000 and established a credit balance. At the expiration of the first term of the commission, a petition signed by 3,700 voters was circulated amid much enthusiasm asking the commissioners all to run for re-election. The chamber of commerce advertises the commission government as a desirable feature of the city to attract new industries.

Houston, Tex.—Commission plan in effect in 1905. The commission reduced the tax rate 10 per cent and established a policy of so regulating expenditures as to further reduce the rate 10 per cent each year, until the tax becomes one-half what it was under the old government. A floating debt of $400,000 was paid off and in 1909 the cash on hand was $900,000. The city has bought a waterworks and made enormous paving additions (which are not assessed on property in Houston) has acquired new parks and deepened the ship channel instead of languishing in the hope of a federal subsidy. The price of gas has been forced down from $1.50 to $1.15 per thousand. In advertising herself to attract new industries, Houston states "her city hall is a business house; she has no wards, no ward politicians and no graft."

More remarkable than the fact that every one of these cities has bettered its financial condition—the surest proof of efficiency—is the fact that in none of the whole sixty-eight has there yet been reported a single serious allegation of graft. Any instance of graft, whether proved or merely alleged, would have been seized upon triumphantly by the enemies of this type of government and magnified and exploited to the utmost, but thus far the objections have perforce been mainly theoretical.

A type of these theoretical objections has been the frequent statement that the commission plan is "un-American." Yes, thank Heaven! A city government in which graft is not even suspected is decidedly un-American! It looks like the splendidly administered cities of Europe. The sooner we can Americanize this un-American thing the better!

The phenomenon of the commission plan of government which gives the most satisfaction to many people is the complete disappearance from influence of the typical ward politician. The whole field of "peanut politics" seems to have disappeared. In Galveston, for example, the nominations which are recognized as emanating from the politicians who formerly controlled the town, get only 20 per cent of the votes. In all the cities it is claimed that the city service has been put on a nonpartisan basis, with a great increase in efficiency. Certain it is that under the commission plan, candidates have repeatedly been elected without the help of political machines, while the voters are casting their ballots without relying upon the guidance of the machines either.

Under the typical old style city government with its multiplicity of petty elective offices, elaborate political machines are necessary. The government cannot go on without them. They have supplied a real deficiency in our governmental plan, filling a gap between the people and their public servants which had to be filled somehow. We have no right to curse the politicians, for they have been highly useful to us. Rather we should pity them! The politician has one of the hardest jobs in the world. In return for his service in applying the necessary cohesion to our ramshackle government and keeping our impractical form of democracy from collapsing altogether, we have forced him to make a catch-as-catch-can living, giving him small, insecure offices in the government, and bouncing him without ceremony or justice with every change of administration. We have put him in a position where he could acquire wealth by having an easy conscience and could earn nothing but defeat and discourtesy if he were honest. Considering the power he has had to do evil without getting caught at it, it is astonishing that he has served us no worse.

Goodby, old friend! You have contributed to our American life a unique type, unknown elsewhere in the world—genial, picturesque, human and useful—but the people are beginning to learn how to do without you, and in days to come they will arrange their business directly with the candidates without your friendly intermediation!

The sound short ballot theory upon which the success of the commission is based, in opposition to certain of our pet political superstitions, will be dealt with in the next paper.

FOR CHRISTIAN SERVICE

More Than 2500 Men Express Allegiance at Boston Meeting

Boston, Oct. 17.—Tremont Temple was crowded from the gallery to the floor corners yesterday afternoon, at one of the greatest Christian demonstrations witnessed in Boston since the Chapman-Alexander revival meetings.

More than 3000 men filed the large auditorium of the building within ten minutes after the doors were opened and hundreds more were sent away, unable to gain entrance because of lack of space.

Fred B. Smith, secretary of the National Young Men's Christian association, made an appeal for men to connect themselves with the Christian life and more than 2500 stood and solemnly expressed their allegiance to the principles of the church.

The meeting was interdenominational and was for men only. Nearly every denomination in or near Boston was represented.

CANVASS OF DELEGATES

Will Be Made Today to Pick Head of Democratic Ticket

Boston, Oct. 17.—The Democratic nomination for governor will in all probability be settled today. The convention committee of four will meet at the Hotel Bellevue and, in the presence of representativs of the Boston papers, will examine the canvass of the delegates to the state convention on their preference for governor.

It is stated on the very best authority that Frederick W. Mansfield, the provisional nominee of the party for governor, would not withdraw in the event of Foss being the choice of the delegates canvassed. In this event, Foss will be an independent candidate and he has his papers all ready to file.

It has been understood all along that Mansfield was pledged to withdraw for the choice of the committee of four, no matter who the candidate may be.

STRONG STAND MADE AGAINST CHOLERA

Uncle Sam Keeping a Close Watch on Foreign Ports

Washington, Oct. 17.—With the knowledge that for the past month cholera cases have been developing in Russia at a rate exceeding 5000 a day, the public health and marine hospital service is exerting itself to the utmost to prevent the introduction of the dreaded disease into this country.

The United States consuls at the seaports were cabled by the state department early in the season to enforce the treasury regulations, and an experienced officer of the marine hospital service has inspected the enforcements of the regulations at the ports of Bremen, Hamburg and Antwerp and is today at Havre to do the same.

Medical officers are stationed at Naples and Genoa, and at Naples, the chief port, intending emigrants are detained five days on a vessel anchored in the harbor.

MURDER SUSPECTS TAKEN

Slain Man's Wife and Boarder Supposed to Know Something of Crime

Hull, Mass., Oct. 17.—Mrs. Calagera Cusumano and Enrico Masciolo, a boarder in the Cusumano home at Bayside, were arrested by the Hull police, charged with having knowledge of the murder of the man whose mutilated body wrapped in an old quilt bound with telephone wire was found on the beach at Sunset Point.

The body was identified by a dozen Italians as that of Frank Cusumano, husband of the woman now under arrest. He disappeared on Sept. 18.

The arrests were the climax of a dramatic police trap arranged with the ghastly remains in undertaking rooms at Hingham as the bait, and the Italian woman and her boarder as the quarry.

TWO AUTOISTS KILLED

Boston, Oct. 17.—Two dead and three injured in auto accidents was Sunday's toll on the ranks of the autoists.

AMERICA SETS SAIL AT LAST

Wellman Starts on Airship Voyage Across the Ocean

DECISION IS HURRIEDLY MADE

Supposed to Be Exhibition Trip Until It Is Announced "You Will Hear From Us In Europe"—Dirigible Airship Has Gas Bag 229 Feet Long and Carries Crew of Five Besides Wellman—Heard From at Sea

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 17.—The dirigible balloon America, with Walter Wellman and his five men on board, has cut loose from the coast of America and started for Europe by way of the Grand Banks.

The America left Atlantic City in the first attempt ever made to cross the Atlantic ocean in the air. The start was made when the America rose into a fog and disappeared over the ocean, while a thousand men, women and children cheered. The trip was scheduled as a trial flight, but, so far as can be learned through wireless messages sent back, Wellman and his plucky crew decided within twenty minutes to start for Europe. A score of messages have been received here since the America disappeared in the fog blanket off the inlet.

When the America was drawn out of its housing it was intended that a flight should be attempted merely for exhibition purposes. The first intimation that the supposed exhibition trip might be turned into a daring flight for Europe came when Vaniman grimly announced his farewell to his friends and declared: "The next you hear of us will be from Europe."

Fifty days' supply of gasolene and provisions sufficient for weeks were stored in the America.

The crew aboard the America includes Walter Wellman, Melvin Vaniman, chief engineer; K. M. Simons, navigator; J. K. Irwin, wireless operator, and Albert L. Loud and John Aubert, assistant engineers.

The America's gas bag is 229 feet long. Its width is about fifty-two feet and is said to be capable of lifting about twelve tons. The gas bag weighs more than two tons.

Attached to the gas bag is a car 156 feet long. The floor of the car is really a large flat tank, in which gasolene is stored for the motors. The America carries three gasolene engines, one of which is a donkey, and the other two for motive power. They are in the centre of the car and are of about eighty-horsepower.

Beneath the car hangs a lifeboat twenty-seven feet long.

Strung beneath the car is a 330-foot long equilibrator, which takes the place of a drag rope used on balloons. It consists of a long steel cable, to which are attached thirty small steel tanks, each carrying seventy-five pounds of gasolene and forty wooden blocks, each about twenty inches long. The equilibrator makes it unnecessary to carry ballast.

It is intended that the balloon shall sail at a height of about 200 feet, If it settles close to the water the wooden blocks and the tanks would float on the water and relieve it of some of its weight. As the gasolene is required the steel cable will be put up into the car of the balloon and a tank emptied.

Altogether the America carries 9000 pounds of gasolene. The America is equipped with sextants, compasses and other instruments for locating positions.

Walter Wellman is a man of enterprise and energy. He has attempted many things, though he has achieved but few. He has been spectacular rather than successful.

The training he has had as a newspaper man has ever stood him in good stead. He has the news sense, so-called. He managed to make his attempts fall in line with the public interests. He "dashed to the pole" when Nansen and Peary were "dashing" it neck and neck.

Then, when "dashing" had become an old story for this generation, he hit on a new plan. He would "fly" to the Pole—at a time when Count Zeppelin's achievements in the line of dirigibles had set the newspaper reading public on edge.

Now he has attempted one of the few remaining "great stories of the world." He has said he will try to cross the Atlantic in a dirigible.

Wellman is now 52 years old. At the age of 14 he was editing a newspaper in Sutton, O. From that day down to the present he has been either furnishing copy, or writing it, for newspapers.

Word From Wellman

Stasconnet, Mass., Oct. 17.—Somewhere east of Nantucket island, off the coast of Massachusetts, and approximately 300 miles from Atlantic City, its starting point, Walter Wellman's airship America signalled a wireless "All's well" and a goodbye at 12:45 o'clock Sunday afternoon and swung on up the coast through the fog. This message, the last of the day's wireless conversations, was received here by A. H. Ginman, the Marconi operator.

END OF COLUMBUS STRIKE

All but Forty of Street Car Men Are to Be Reinstated

Columbus, O., Oct. 17.—The street car strike which began three months ago, and which has been a great menace to the city since that time, was declared at an end at a meeting of the strikers' association.

The men admit that their cause is lost, and their intention is to apply individually for reinstatement, the street railway company having informed them that all but forty of them would be restored to their old positions. The chief cause of the strike was the company's refusal to take them back after their dismissal three months ago.

GIFTS OF $250,000 EACH

Rockefeller and Hanna Lend Helping Hand to Western Reserve

Cleveland, Oct. 17.—Announcement was made of a conditional gift of $250,000 by John D. Rockefeller to the medical department of Western Reserve university. The gift, which is a personal one, is made conditional on the raising of $750,000 more by the university.

H. M. Hanna, the trotting horse owner and enthusiast, has pledged $250,000 of the remainder of the proposed million dollar fund, according to the same announcement.

TROLLEY CAR UPSETS

Motorman and Three Passengers Killed In Boston Accident

Boston, Oct. 17.—Four persons were killed and fifty-nine were injured when a surface trolley, filled to overflowing, jumped the 'S' curve at the Boston end of the West Boston bridge and landed with a deadly crash upon the pavement.

The accident is believed to be due to unwarranted speed while taking the dangerous curve, but if such was the case the motorman, John J. Welch, paid the penalty with his life.

STYLES IN NEW YORK.

Freak Hats That Go With New Costumes—An Artistic Melange of Materials—Velvets, Satins and Crepe-Finished Materials— New Motor Coats and Others.

Hats are freaky but more varied in shape and size than ever so everyone can find the right thing to suit the face, figure and costume. This last item is not by any means least important. Now that the Directoire styles are once more on the top of the wave the harmony between the hat and dress must be perfect or all the effect of both is lost.

THE VOGUE OF SATIN SUITS.

Suits of black satin are especially smart but are only desirable where the material is of the best grade, and as the waist, hat, boots, and gloves must correspond in elegance, such costumes rank among extreme luxuries. All black costumes of broadcloths, corduroys cheviots or silk finished suitings are fashionably worn for almost any occasion with contrasting accessories—hat, gloves, etc., in white or color—or in all black if that is becoming.

3631

MODISH COLORS.

Browns in leather shades, greens in olive tones and blues in royal and navy as well as in the grayish medium shades are very much worn, and the combination of black with everything especially with blue, and with white is noticeable wherever handsome costumes are seen. Black hats with colored trimmings, especially with white, are decidedly faddish. Amazon turbans with their high velvet facings of black velvet have crowns of white ribbed silk, or of some of the brocades or tapestries so much used for millinery purposes this season. Patterns and materials that have hitherto been used for upholstery purposes are now seen in millinery departments everywhere, and these same fabrics are being used for coat trimmings vests etc.

NEW LONG COATS.

New long coats for motor use or general wear are straight cut, as everything is just now, but are loose enough to completely cover the costume and made with ample reveres, and wide collars that can be buttoned up close to the throat, and with wide cuffs, dust guards, big buttons and patch pockets that also fasten with a button in many instances. Long coats of broadcloth, serge or of ratine which is the latest French craze for this use, are made up in dolmanesque style with straight kimono sleeves cut in one with the rest of the coat, and have the fullness at the back, if there is any confined near the foot by some sort of band trimming, which usually does not extend beyond the side of the garment. Large sailor collars that finish in long front reveres and fastenings below the waist well over toward the left side characterize the best of these coats, which are used with all sort of dresses for day and evening wear. The black coat with white, gray, yellow or apricot lining is the one most generally useful, but browns, grays and blues are all smart especially in ratine.

GLOVES AND FOOTWEAR.

Suede finish leather with pointed toes are fashionable for dressy footwear, and considerable use is to be made of velvet and silk for the same grade of shoes. Dull gray suede with matching hose is the Parisian fad, but here black is more used for general wear. Gloves with wide stitchings in black or white to contrast with the kid are decidedly modish, and the chamois glove with heavy spear point finish are very smartly worn. Dogskin gloves of similar mannish cut and finish are used for harder wear. As sleeves continue to be abbreviated considerably for almost all dress purposes, the Mousquetaire glove worn is long enough to meet the sleeve. Nothing, uglier in a sartorial way exists than the gap often seen between the top of the glove and the sleeve. The very pretteist arm is unattractive so displayed.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES.

Spiced Grapes. Separate the pulp from the skins and cook in a little water. When pulp is soft, strain out seeds and put with skins. To five cups of grape use three heaping cups of sugar, one teaspoonful of cinnamon. Cook until thick. Put in jelly tumblers or large-mouthed bottles.

Browned Fillets of Cod. Get a thick piece of cod and skin it. Take the flesh from the bone ,and cut into thick blocks about two or three inches square. Brush over with beaten egg, or melted butter, toss in fine brown bread-crumbs ,and lay on a greased tin. Bake in a hot oven for about ten minutes and serve with a sharp sauce. The sauce may be a melted butter sauce, with a little acid such as lemon juice or vinegar. Oyster sauce or anchovy sauce are equally suitable.

Sweet Apple Salad. Sweet apples slice in thin strips. Slice about half as much celery in thin crescent shape pieces. Chop fine one tablespoon of green pepper free from seeds and white veins, and cut one-half cup of sweet almonds into thin strips. Mix all thoroughly and dress generously with French dressing. Serve in nests of lettuce centres and pass toasted cheese wafers with the salad.

Breaded Lamb Chops, Tomato Sauce. Trim chops, season with salt and pepper. Dip in crumbs, beaten egg, and crumbs again, and fry in very hot fat, four to six minutes if rare, eight to ten if well done. Arrange in centre of hot dish and pour tomato sauce around them.

Baked Pears. To one-half peck of pears use one pound of brown sugar, one-half cup of water, bake a number of hours or until juice is the color of amber and pears are dark. Seal while hot in a small crock with cover.

Many Leave Newport Without Settling For Summer's Provisions

Newport, R. I., Oct. 17.—One of the oldest provision stands of Newport has closed its doors, as the proprietor has been unable to collect accounts amounting to $1000 from members of the cottage cololny. His customers left for their city homes forgetting to settle their accounts.

A good many other merchants are in much the same plight. Some accounts show that goods were supplied to summer residents all season without a single payment having been made for them.

Woman Finds Snug Sum of $1145 In an Old Can

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 17.—In shaping up a flower bed, Mrs. Edward Casey uncovered a rusty old can bulging apart with gold pieces amounting to $1145. Some bore the date of 1835, but most of them were coined in 1880.

The farm was formerly occupied by Henry Casey, father of Mrs. Casey's husband, who died about twenty years ago. It is thought that he buried the gold.

SENATOR DOLLIVER

Became Leader of Insurgent Forces

COPYRIGHT BY HARRIS & EWING

Dolliver Always In Active Opposition to Them

HIS DEATH WAS UNEXPECTED

Acute Indigestion the Contributory Cause—Iowan of Southern Birth Had Distinguished Career In Halls of Congress—Was Leader of Insurgents and Used Oratorical Powers Freely In Opposing Payne Bill

Fort Dodge, Ia., Oct. 17.—United States Senator Joseph Prentiss Dolliver died of dilation of the heart, caused by an attack of acute indigestion, at his residence Saturday night, while being rubbed by an osteopath physician.

Senator Dolliver's death was unexpected by his relatives and close friends. He had been up all day and had made a trip from his residence down town.

He told several of the men whom he met that he believed he had completely recovered from the indisposition which followed his trip through Wisconsin on a speech-making tour for Senator La Follette.

Senator Dolliver was born near Kingwood, W. Va., Feb. 6, 1858. In 1875 he was graduated from the West Virginia university and three years later was admitted to the bar, and was successful in that profession.

Mr. Dolliver never held public office until elected to the Fifty-first congress from the Tenth congressional district of Iowa, and succeeding congresses up to the Fifty-sixth.

On Aug. 23, 1900, Dolliver was appointed to the United States senate, to fill a vacancy caused by the death of J. H. Gear. He was elected to succeed himself over John J. Seerley, Democrat. Again in 1907 he was re-elected, and had he lived, his term of office would not have expired until March 3, 1913.

Senator Dolliver was married to Miss Louise B. Pearsons, a daughter of D. K. Pearsons, the millionaire philanthropist of Chicago. In spite of his wealth Dolliver won an enviable place in congress solely on his merits during his twelve years of service. He was an eloquent speaker and whenever it was whispered about that Dolliver was booked for a speech the galleries usually were crowded.

It was Dolliver who was selected by the insurgents in the senate to deliver a speech in reply to the speeches of President Taft, Attorney General Wickersham and Congressman Nicholas Longworth. Dolliver, like many other prominent Republicans, did not like the way things were going after the inauguration of President Taft.

Mr. Dolliver was constantly before the public eye as an enemy of the trusts, as a tariff revisionist, as he friend of La Follette and the opponent of Aldrich, and as a possible candidate for the vice presidency of the United States.

He not only was a master of the English language, but also was master of sarcasm and argument and used his powers freely in opposition to the Aldrich-Payne tarif bill, which he fought tooth and nail.

A good soap at a fair price.

No, madam, soaps are not "all alike."

They differ in size, shape, quality and price; also in what they do and the way they do it.

The ideal soap is a soap that is of convenient shape and good quality, and, at the same time, sells at a fair price.

McGREGOR VICTORY

Shut Out Boston Ranger at Brighton

The McGregors won their game with the Boston Rangers at Brighton, Saturday afternoon, by a score of 4 to 0.

Most of the game was played in a downpour but it did not dampen the ardor of the contestants. Ross continued to do good work for his team by scoring two of the goals. Rennie was of great assistance in running the ball up the field, and for speed, and accuracy he was excelled by none. Rennie also scored one of the goals. Roe was back in the game after a three weeks rest.

By winning this game the McGregors are tied with Brockton for second place in the League.

Rev. Fr. Coan of St. John's church, the parent church of St. Francis parish, was the master of ceremonies. After the first prayers and blessing over the cornerstone, Bishop Anderson escorted by Fr. Coan and Fr. Cuffe, and followed by other clergymen, entered the church and blessed the interior after which the corner stone was laid and a male quartette sang "Veni Creator."

The sermon was preached by Rev. T. J. Prendergast, S. J., of Boston college, his subject being "The Catholic church." Following the sermon Bishop Anderson gave the benediction.

FORE RIVER SIX TO TWO

Defeat Lynn Fosse Team in Interesting Game

Fore River defeated Lynn Fosse in a soccer game Saturday by a score of 6 goals to 2. The weather was forboding at the outset, but the players were undaunted and the showers which started to come down in about the middle of the first half served only to revive their spirits. The game was exciting throughout, and the team work of the losers was remarkable at times. Lakie, their goalkeeper, was responsible for most of the goals scored against them.

Fore River had the best team they have put on the field this year. Patterson, a new man, showed up very well, and Fleming, who played on the team two years ago put up a star game. He scored three of the goals for his team, and was conspicuous at all times when the ball was in his territory for his fast and accurate playing.

One of the goals was scored in a peculiar manner. Jackson, the left back on the Lynn team, was aiding the goal keeper in his defense of the goal. Fleming shot a speedy one toward him and in endeavoring to stop the ball he was turned at too great an angle. It glanced off his chest and went between the goal posts. Undoubtedly the goal would have been scored without his interference or assistance.

Carruthers and Fleming make a great pair of linesmen both in offensive and defensive work. Elliot played a strong game as usual. Harkins did some very good work in all departments and got in the way of the ball once in front of the goalposts, preventing a score against his team. Patterson showed great accuracy in kicking the ball despite its slippery condition.

At the close of the first half it was raining, but after a few minutes rest the players went at it again. Lynn braced up considerably and scored two goals. The storm broke toward the middle of the second half and a three minutes' cessation was necessary. Play was resumed as soon as the worst of the downpour was over. The players could not be made much wetter and the ball was of course in a slimy condition.

Lynn played a good game but was unable to win from the "Champs." Fore River let down in the second half but with the aid of Fleming and a little luck, two goals were scored. Despite the unfavorable weather conditions, the game was the most interesting of the year from the spectators standpoint.

The summary:

FORE RIVER	LYNN FOSSE
Ridge, G	G Lakie
J. McDonald, RB	LB Jackson
Lewis, LB	RB Cundy
Harkins, RHB	LHB Rothbottom
Patterson, CHB	CHB Butterworth
Melville, LH.B	RHB Barr

D. McDonald, IR	IL Smith
Hughes, C	C Fletcher
Carruthers, IL	IR Morgan
Fleming, OL	OR Lakin

Score—Fore River, 6; Lynn Fosse, 2. Goals—Fleming 3; Elliot, Hughes, J. McDonald, Butterworth, Dunn. Referee—Maitland of the Boston Rovers. Linesmen—T. Ritchie for Fore River. Springthorpe for Lynn Fosse. Time—two 45 minute halves.

COBB IS DECLARED CHAMPION BATTER

Shade Better Than Lajoie, Who Also Gets an Automobile

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Tyrus Cobb, by official verdict of President Johnson, was the leading batsman of the American league during the last season, with a winning percentage over Larry Lajoie of Cleveland of .000860.

As the National leaguers dropped out of the batting contest some time ago, President Johnson's announcement means that Cobb is the champion hitter of the country. The automobile, over which trophy there has been so much excitement and not a little criticism, goes to the Detroiter, but the Cleveland captain, by permission of Johnson, will be allowed to accept a duplicate.

The batting record of Lajoie and Cobb, as turned in by the official scorers, and approved and promulgated by Johnson, is as follows:

Player	At Bat	Basehits	P. C.
Cobb	509	196	.384944
Lajoie	591	227	.384084

ATHLETICS HAVE BEST PITCHERS

In Other Departments Chicago Outclasses Mack's Team.

CHANCE'S MEN ARE KEENEST.

Many Think Cubs Brainiest Team That Ever Appeared on a Diamond. Great Twirling Staff Does Not Assure Team of Victory.

Will the great pitching staff of the Philadelphia Athletics be able to effect other advantages that are generally conceded to the Chicago Cubs in the coming world series? This is the question most frequently discussed just now between the partisans of the National and American leagues.

Mack's Great Twirling Staff.

It is claimed that the pitching won every world's series that has been played. Supporters of the Athletics figure the Cubs will have little chance against Bender, Coombs, Plank and Morgan. Manager Mack of the Athletics has intimated that he expects to rely on Bender and Coombs against the Cubs. But Connie is an old fox and there are those who think he's talking for the purpose of leading the Cubs to look forward to right handers and will come strong with Plank and possibly Krause, the young Californian, who has recently shown a return to the form that made him the pitching sensation of the early season of 1909.

Cubs' Pitchers Are Not Weak.

Manager Chance and his followers do not by any means concede that the Athletics have everything in their favor in the pitching line. While the hitting and fielding of the Cubs have been potent factors in keeping them on top in the championship race, Chance declares the pitching of Cole, Brown, Reulbach, Overall and Pfeister should not be overlooked.

They have had the experience in playing in world's series games and are noted for coolness and nerve in the pinches. Nerve is the feature Chance likes about a pitcher. He prides himself on having a group of flingers who have the nerve and declares that is why they have been so successful in major league ranks.

However, winning a world's championship does not all depend on the pitchers. The twirlers are more in the limelight than their teammates, naturally, but there are eight other men on each team, and each man's individual strength must be considered, and then to this must be added the collective ability of the outfit.

Why the Cubs Should Be Favorite.

There is one reason why the Cubs should always be considered a favorite, or at least an even money proposition in a short series—they are always at their best at such a time. The wonderful defensive play of the Chicago brigade and the subtle manner in which they score enough runs to win even if they make fewer hits than their opponents makes them the hardest team in the major leagues to defeat.

It is seldom that the Cubs lose a game in which their opponents fail to secure a big lead. Give the Cubs an even chance or a handicap of one or two runs and they are pretty certain to win out in the end.

MACK HANDS OUT LEMONS.

Players Do Not Come Back When He Lets Them Go.

Did any player amount to anything after Connie Mack released him? Scan the list carefully—Lave Cross, Monte Cross, Davy Fultz, Ossie Shreck, Waddell, Weldon Henley, Andy Coakley, Socks Seybold, Schlitzer and Rath.

Briscoe Lord is one of the few come backs of Connie's squad of released players, and Bris was not in the physical form at that time he is now. Joe Jackson may prove another, but in Joe's case he was not released until Philadelphia negotiated for Lord.

Played Game In Thirty-two Minutes.

Recently at Atlanta the world's record time for a ball game was broken when the Mobile and Atlanta teams played a full nine inning game in thirty-two minutes, Mobile winning 2 to 1. This remarkable record was made possible by the two teams going on the field and coming to bat on the run. Invariably the first ball delivered to each batter was struck at and usually hit without any effort to place it. Thirty-five assists tell the story.

HISTORY OF WORLD'S SERIES

The coming world's series will be the sixth clash between American and National league champions. In 1903 the Boston Americans defeated the Pittsburg Nationals. In 1904 no world's series was played. In 1905 New York defeated the Philadelphia Americans. In 1906 the Chicago White Sox scored over the Chicago Nationals. In 1907 and 1908 the Chicago Nationals defeated the Detroit Americans. Last year the Pittsburg Nationals defeated the Detroit Americans. This makes four wins for the National league teams and two for the American league representatives.

Vol. 25 No. 242 QUINCY, MASS., TUESDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 18, 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

CITY OF QUINCY SUED BY THE STATE

Claim Damages of $26,400 Because of Failure to Install Water Meters Under Law

But Quincy Has Made Large Appropriations for Meters

A Boston paper reports: The attorney-general at the request of the metropolitan water and sewerage board has brought suit in the superior court against the city of Quincy for penalties ranging from $5280 to $26,400, for its failure to equip its water service with water meters under action of the Legislature of 1907 and 1909, particularly the former year, all cities and towns of the metropolitan water district were required to install water meters after Dec. 31, 1907. Failure to do so made the city or town liable to penalties of not less than $100 a day while the violation continued. Up to 1909 Quincy should have 229 meters, and only installed 33. Last year they should have installed 365 and didn't install any. Quincy is claimed to have violated the act 264 days. A deadlock in the city council over appropriations, it is understood, was the chief cause of delay.

Reference to the City Auditor's reports in the City Books shows that in five years the city of Quincy has expended $26,362. 12 for water meters, as follows:

1906	$9.362.12
1907	7,171.37
1908	7,369.01
1909	1.345.69
1910 to date	1.113.93
	$26,362.12

An apropriation order for $10,000 for water meters is now pending in the City Council.

Reports of the Commissioner of Public Works show that at the close of the year 1905, Quincy had only 194 water meters, and at the close of 1909 it had 2,032, an installation of 1838 in four years.

At the close of the year 1905 Quincy had 5418 water services not metered, so that about 33 per cent have been metered in four years.

The following summary shows the work of metering, and is in excess of the State's claim:

ENTERTAINED AT BANQUET

Chamber of Commerce Dine Argentina Officials

A dinner in honor of the officers of the Argentine Republic training ship Presidente Sarmienta, now in port, was given at the Algonquin club Monday evening, says the Globe, by a number of members of the Boston chamber of commerce, under the auspices of the Trade Extension committee.

Those attending were the captain and principal officers of the Argentine vessel, Argentine officials who are in Boston superintending the building of the battleship now in course of construction for their country at the Fore River Shipbuilding works in Quincy, Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, several members of the governor's staff, Admiral Francis T. Bowles, president of the Fore River company, and a number of prominent members of the chamber of commerce.

Pres. Bernard J. Rothwell of the chamber of commerce presided. After dinner informal remarks were made by several speakers in both English and Spanish.

Among those present were the following officers of the Presidente Sarmiento: Capt. Undique Fleiss, Lieut. Teadoro Cailiet Bois, Lieut. Adolfo Garnaud, Lieut. J. M. Pastor, Lieut. Zarrato, Ensign J. B. Castelino, J. Gonzales and A. Lopez Esq.

Other Argentine officers present were Admiral D. Garcia, Capt. D. Augirre, Capt. E. Olivera, Ensign M. Branchi, Lieut. F. Currice.

Others present were William McKissock, Argentine consul; Walter M. Lowney, chairman of the Trade Extension committee of the chamber of commerce; Gen. William A. Bancroft, Paul Fitzpatrick, Walter C. Fish, W. D. Fulton, J. Richard Carter, George T. Coppins, John M. DeNovan, W. R. Peabody, Lieut. Commander D. M. Goodridge, Capt. Furlong, U. S. N., Daniel D. Morss and Edric Eldridge.

—After rounding up the dealers in potatoes butter, cloth and such necessities of life, who have been cheating the public by short weight or adulteration, the New York authorities are getting after the jewelers who sell plated stuff as gold or silver. In England, says the commissioner of weights and measures, "sterling silver" and the "karat" mark are almost as sacred as the crown seal. But in New York, dealers stamp "14 kt" on jewelry which has merely been subjected to the cheapest kind of gold dip.—Milford Gazette.

INCENDIARY ARRESTED

Louis A. Parks Subjected to Third Degree

The mystery surrounding the incendiary fire at the polishing mill of C. H. Hardwick & Co., early Monday morning was cleared up Monday afternoon by Acting Inspector Goodhue, when after submitting Louis A. Parks, the night watchman at Fallon & Sons quarry, to the third degree he confessed that he had set the fire.

Parks was the man who discovered the fire and sounded the alarm and told the story of chasing two men whom he had seen about the quarry. The fire coming so soon after the finding of the body of the murderer Restelli naturally made the family of Mr. Hardwick somewhat uneasy, as it was though that possibly some enemy was at work against them, but the confession of Parks makes it clear that this was not the cause of the setting of the fire, but that his reason was that he thought it might induce the firm to put on a night watchman and that he would get the job.

Inspector Goodhue was told to investigate the case, and he naturally questioned Parks as he was the man who discovered the fire. After talking with him a few minutes and observing the discrepancy in the stories he told, Inspector Goodhue accused him of setting the fire and placed him under arrest.

He was taken to the police station where he stoutly denied the story. He was taken up stairs, however, and given what is technically known as the third degree although not in a rough form. Question after question was asked of him, and later in the afternoon Chief Williams and Charles H. Hardwick joined in the questioning.

After continuing the questioning until late in the afternoon, Inspector Goodhue said "Parks you set that fire yourself." At this he broke down and said, "Yes I did."

After making this confession Parks said that he felt better. After same further talk it came out that his reason was that he thought if there was a fire that the firm would put on a watchman and that he would get the job.

Parks said that he saturated some waste with oil and placed it against the outside of the building about 10 o'clock Sunday night, and set fire to it. He said the fire smouldered until 1 o'clock before it broke out. Then he sounded the alarm. In setting the fire he selected a place where it would do the least damage.

He was arraigned in court for setting the fire and pleaded guilty. He was held in $1,000 for the grand jury.

Parks who is 50 years of age, resides at 2 Town Hill street, and came to Quincy from Connecticut. He is unmarried. He has always borne an excellent reputation, and parties in Maine for whom he has worked speak of him in the highest of terms and give him an excellent reputation.

The Hardwick family feel very much relieved that the cause of the fire has been cleared up.

Little Ethel has been put to bed and told to say her prayers. Pretty soon her mother hears her pattering feet up stairs. She goes to her room and says, "Why, Ethel, why aren't you asleep? Have you said your prayers?"

Ethel—"No, mamma, I told God it was too hot to pray."

Mother—"And what did He say?"

Little Ethel—"He said, 'Miss Brooks, don't mention it."

WORK OF SAILORS' HAVEN

Told by S. H. King at Men's Club

At the second meeting this season of the Men's club of St. Chrysistom's church on Monday evening, Stanton H. King, superintendent of the Sailor's Haven at Charlestown spoke upon "The sea and the sailor."

A short business meeting preceded the address, at which Secretary Hamilton read his report and President Vibert appointed a reception committee, consisting of J. W. Hallett, George B. Curwen, W. A. Mann, W. D. Purdom, C. E. Manchester, E. F. Parlee, and an entertainment committee composed of A. E. Holland, H. W. Richmond, Frank Musgrave.

Mr. King told in frank sailor fashion of his childhood days on the island of Barbados, where he was the 27th child of a family of 29. He told of the many incidents this relationship entailed. When he went back to the island he would meet someone and they would say "What Mr. King are you?" Upon his reply they would say "Why, I'm a cousin of yours."

He told of his early training at sea and of the time he ate six meals a day—three down and three up.

Mr. King was on the sea twelve years, serving six years on the merchant service and six years in the United States navy, after which he was disqualified for color blindness.

The speaker told of the present hardships of sailor life, how they are subject while at sea to discipline twenty-four hours a day and when on land no respectable place is open to them. This was the reason Sailors' Haven was started, and Mr. King closed his talk with a description of the workings of that institution.

By general acclamation, Mr. King sang "Old King Cole," a typical sailor's ditty in a manner that set feet to keeping time and at its close brought down the house with applause.

Following a vote of thanks to Mr. King, the club adjourned for a social hour, at which refreshments played an important part.

SEAT OF COUNCILMAN DECLARED VACANT

That City Council May Pass Loan Orders Requiring Two-Thirds of All Members

Eleven of 23 Members Push Councilman Snow Out

The question that the members of the City Council were asking Monday evening when it adjourned at 10.30 was, "Where are we at?" The Council had declared the seat of Councilman Snow vacant and late in the evening Councilman Smith had moved to suspend Rule 1 and that when the Council adjourn it be until Monday Oct. 24. President Hobbs, as has been his usual custom, divided the motion and put the question on suspension of the rules. This was voted, but before he put the second half of the question Councilman Bryant moved to adjourn. The President put this motion which was carried so that the Council virtually adjourned without date. It is probable, however, that the Mayor will call a special meeting for next Monday evening.

The object in declaring the seat of Councilman Snow vacant was that the loan orders for street improvements might be passed. Under the law sixteen votes are necessary to pass these orders, that being two thirds of the council. Fifteen votes, however, was all that those in favor of the orders could muster. With the seat of Councilman Snow vacant there would be but 22 members and fifteen votes would be enough to pass the orders. It was one of the shrewdest moves ever made by the Council.

The debates of the evening came on the loan orders the claim of, the opposition being that it was too late in the year to open streets, and it would not be wise to appropriate the money until next year. Councilman Gardner, Snow and Woodward were absent.

APPOINTMENT.

A communication was received from the Mayor appointing John Voyro as a constable at the aviation field. Confirmed.

LEGAL OPINION.

The City Solicitor forwarded his opinion on the legality of the order offered by the special committee on financial investigation transferring balances remaining to the credit of overlays of the Assessors department for the abatement of uncollectable taxes. The opinion which was as follows was laid on the table.

My opinion is requested by the City Council as to the legality of the Order introduced at its last meeting creating a special appropriation for the abatement of certain taxes from the balance of overlays from certain years, aggregating $10,721.02. The Order refers to these overlays as "remaining to the credit of the Assessors Department."

Unless there has been some legislation by some preceding Council I do not understand that these overlays can be said to remain to the credit of said department. My attention has not been called to any such legislation.

Section 55, Chapter 12, Revised Laws, provides as folloys:—"The assessors may, for the purpose of avoiding fractional divisions of the amount to be assessed in the apportionment thereof, add to that amount not more than five per cent thereof, although the limit of taxation may by such overlay be exceeded."

The purpose of an overlay is merely to simplfy the method of determining the amount each one thousand dollars worth of taxable property in the City shall contribute towards the municipal charges of that year. To illustrate —If the City needed to raise $495,000. in a given year, and that would make the tax rate for that year $19.19 2 1-2. The Assessors to avoid using that inconvenient fraction of a dollar would have a right to add to the amount otherwise to be raised a sum sufficient to make the tax rate $20 on a thousand, providing that did not exceed 5 percent thereof, and if $5000. represented the increase in the tax rate the City would in that year raise by taxation $500,000. or $5000. in excess of the amount needed to finance the city for the year.

COUNCILMAN SMITH.

If all the taxes were paid, and the receipts taken by the Assessors amounted to as much as estimated clearly there would be a surplus of $5000 at the end of the year, which would automatically be carried forward and lessen the amount to be raised during the next year.

If, however, the receipts were to fall $$6000 below the amount estimated then notwithstanding the fact that all the taxes of that year were paid, the surplus $5000 would be wiped out; or if the abatements either alone or in connection with the shortage in the receipts exceeded the $5000

Suburban Rents Are A Distinct Advantage

United States money has a specific value, and your neighbor's money is worth no more than yours. The money of a New York or Boston merchant is worth no more and can buy no more than that of a Quincy merchant. In the Furniture business we buy the same furniture at the same price and from the same factories as our neighbors in Boston or New York. Our money is as good as theirs and buys equally as much. Now this is where your interest is an issue. Our suburban rents and operating expenses are not half as much as those of Boston stores and we can and do sell the same home furnishings at a much lower price than they do.

Thousands and thousands of families in Quincy and South Shore towns find it pleasant and economical to buy their entire House Furnishings at our popular priced store. We gladly arrange time payments for the convenience of those customers who desire it.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

William R. Hearst seems to be a prominent member of both parties.

The girl whose hair curls naturally does not get a bit of credit these days.

The Comptroller of the currency is preparing a black list. Apparently some of the bankers are bad.

Gambling has been abolished in Nevada. But it is only gambling with cards that is under the ban. Gambling in divorces continues.

A bare majority of the City Council, are now resorting to desperate methods to pass loan orders which require a two- thirds vote of all the members. The items which make up the loan orders have passed by a majority vote, but a two-thirds vote is required on all loan orders.

A majority of members PRESENT at the Council meeting this week, not a majority of ALL the members, has to further their object, declared the seat of one of the Councilmen vacant. They figure that two- thirds of 22 is 14 3-4, where two-thirds of 23 was 15 1-3. It is a case where a fraction of a man counts. Should eleven members in a body of 23 have the right to oust a member without a hearing on the evening a motion is introduced? If such is the case the tenure of other Councilmen may be very insecure; an absent member might be ousted at most any meeting of the City Council.

President Taft is now about to discharge one of the heaviest responsibilities that has devolved on him since he became President, that of appointing a Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. The great mass of the people are overwhelmingly in favor of the appointment of the associate Justice John M. Harlan to the Chief Justiceship of that great court.

President Taft is debating this question with himself and it is geneally hoped that he will appoint Harlan, who while he is for justice and equality for everyone, corporations included, is nevertheless on the side of the people as against the privileged classes.

It is thought that President Taft sincerely desires the Supreme Court to sustain the income tax provision of the last tariff bill and by appointing Judge Harlan to the Chief Justiceship he will further the cause as Judge Harlan is one of the ablest champions of the income tax in the country and a life long republican.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

World's Work tells us that German cities are the best governed in the world, and the article then describes the German method. It is interesting reading for Americans, who have yet to solve the municipal government problem. How far apart are the ideas of Germans and Americans on the subject of city government may be seen from reading an advertisement which appeared in a number of German papers announcing that the place of mayor of Magdeburg is vacant. The salary of 21,000 marks ($5250 a year, including the rental of a dwelling in the City hall. Besides his salary the incumbent will receive 4000 marks ($1000) for his official expenses.

Can anyone imagine an American city advertising for a mayor? Can anyone give a good reason why a city should not advertise for a mayor when it needs one? asks the writer. The German idea is that a municipality is a business, he goes on to say, to be conducted on business lines. The office of mayor is one requiring knowledge and skill of a technical, professional character. A man who has proved himself a good mayor in one German town is frequently invited to another. The larger towns look to the smaller towns to train municipal officers for them. It frejuently happens that two cities bid in competition for a particularly expert man.

It seems queer to us, but isn't it practical? A municipality is nothing more than a big business enterprise and should be directed by a man or men skilled in such lines. Of course, we are not ready in this country to adopt such a system. We have too many statesmen. But the idea is sound.—Haverhill Gazette.

The value of the system of medical examination of immigrants into this country is sufficiently proved by the fact that during the past fiscal year about thirty thousand applicants for admission were excluded as unfit, either physically or mentally. This is not a large proportion of the more than a million and a quarter of arrivals, being only one in every forty-three, but it is altogether too many to have been safely admitted; and when one takes into consideration what it would have meant to have gone on year after year permitting entrance to all who asked admission, it is plain to be seen that physical examination was an essentially wise course to have entered upon for the protection of the country from the possible and almost probable burden of expense and danger through the accumulation here of the thousands of diseased that would have liked to have settled in this country. Restricted immigration has much in its favor, though it is truly unfortunate that, like any system dealing with great numbers of people, it can not be modified for worthy individual cases.—New Bedford Standard.

The finding of the body of Luigi Restelli, who killed two persons in Quincy, Mass., last summer, now solves a mystery which was very baffling but the solution of which bears out the expressed belief of many Quincy police officers that the body would be found not far from the scene of his crimes. There have been clews and clews in this case, and these have been run down necessarily, while all the time many believed that the body of the man would be found in some one of the quarry holes about Quincy, as indeed it was found. The case illustrates the utter unreliability of a great deal f the public chatter about some of our mysteries, the total unfoundedness of much of the so-called information which the police and detective bureaus have to contend with, and it serves notice on he public that the proper authorities are generally to be trusted with the carrying out of the work of their particular provinces.—Barre Times.

MARVELOUS EXHIBITION.

Aurophone Affords Sound for Deaf—Public Test at Williams' Jewelry Store.

A hearty invitation is extended by T. L. Williams to the public to visit that firm's well known jewelry store Wednesday and Thursday and witness public tests of the famous aurophone, the latest invention for helping the deaf to hear.

It is claimed that relief can be secured through the use of the aurophone, a pocket telephone, which can be used with beneficial results to those stricken or partially so. With this laudable object in view, Mr. Williams arranged to hold demonstrations of the use of this device.

To all who suffer from this trouble, an invitation is extended to have a practical test of the aurophone, which is highly recommended by all who have had occasion to use it in all parts of the country. The use of this instrument has afforded a vast amount of pleasure, from the fact that it enables them to hear distinctly everything that is going on, and it also improves the natural hearing in a high degree after the use for a short space of time, which does away with the unpleasant noises in the head so prevalent among persons who are defective in a hearing sense. The demonstration is on Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

SENT BACK TO RUSSIA

Suspect Must Undergo Trial For Alleged Larceny of $3160

Boston, Oct. 18.—Theophile Pavlutchek of Chelsea, who is wanted by the Russian government on a charge of larceny of $3160 from the postal telegraph funds, was sent back to Russia by Commissioner Hayes, under extradition proceedings, which have been in progress since last August.

Pavlutchek's wife and five small children are dependent upon the city of Chelsea for support. Pavlutchek's parting with his wife and family was most pathetic. He was sent to New York, where he will be turned over to the officials of a Russian steamship line for his removal to his native town, Zacharievka, for court martial proceedings, as the army controls the telegraph system in Russia.

PACKERS INDICTED BY FEDERAL JURORS

Sulzberger Is Held With Concerns In New England

Boston, Oct. 18.—Three joint indictments, charging unlawful restraint of trade, were reported by the federal grand jury in the United States circuit court here against Horatio W. Heath and Cyrus S. Hapgood, both of Boston; Ferdinand Sulzberger of New York, the Consolidated Rendering company of Portland, Me., and Manchester, N. H., and the rendering establishment of John Reardon & Sons company, Cambridge, Mass.

The indictments are considered important by the federal authorities for the reason that they are the first to be returned against Ferdinand Sulzberger, head of the big packing house of Schwartzchild & Sulzberger, which has control of the rendering plant of John Reardon & Sons company.

As a result of the grand jury investigation here and in Chicago, five out of the six big packing houses of the country have been implicated in alleged violations of the interstate commerce act.

WAITERS VS. PROFESSORS.

Interest has once more been revived in the oft-emphasized assertion that hotel waiters in many of the large hotels in the city earn as large and often larger amounts than the professors at Columbia and New York Universities. Attention was attracted this week to the earning capacity of this class by the statement made by the wife of a West Side waiter, in her application for alimony to a Supreme Court Justice, that her husband makes $70 a week.

It has been well known for years that waiters in the Waldorf, Plaza, St. Regis and Astor Hotels, and at Delmonico's and Sherry's earn as high as $100 a week. In some of the hotels they get no wages from the house, but depend entirely upon the gratuites given them by patrons. In no city in the world are patrons more generous than in Gotham. A retrospect view of careers of some of the prominent hotel lessees of the city is illuminating. George Boldt, owner of the Waldorf-Astoria, started as a hotel stewart. So did William Muschenheim, of the Astor. Oscar, the maitre d'hotel of the Waldorf-Astoria, now a partner in the enterprise, used to be a waiter. James G. Regan, owner of the Knickerbocker, was a bar-tender.

COST CHARLES RIVER DAM

Why Quincy Should Not Be Assessed for Payment

City Solicitor John W. McAnarney of Quincy, in conjunction with counsel for Braintree, Weymouth, Hingham, Hull, Milton and Hyde Park, has submitted an exhaustive brief to the special commissioners remonstrating against any part of the cost of the Charles River dam being assessed upon these cities and towns. They give 30 reasons why the advantages of this great work, because of its character and location result almost if not wholly to the municipalities of Boston, Cambridge, Newton and Watertown. Among the reasons are: Abolition of nuisance of exposure of tidal flats. Low lands can be filled for building purposes at greatly reduced cost. It assists in preventing the flooding of cellars in the low districts tributary. Vessels can now reach the wharves at any hour. Boston and Cambridge saved on cost of embankment. Elimination of malarial mosquitoes. Increase on assessed values in Boston.

The commissioners are Ernest H. Vaughan, Charles G. Bancroft and Frederic S. Hall. The report is signed by John W. McAnarney, Charles C. Mellen, Albert P. Worthen, Joseph O. Burditt, Thomas F. Buttimer, Charles S. Pierce and Edwin C. Jenney. It covers 21 pages.

LEVANGIE—LEVANGIE.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John Simpson, 9 Hall avenue, South Braintree, presented a pretty sight Monday evening when the house was filled with relatives and friends who had come to attend the wedding reception of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Levangie. Miss Margaret Helen Levangie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Levangie of Franklin street and Mr. William S. Levangie son of Mrs. Susan Simpson of Hall avenue were united in marriage at the parochial residence at four o'clock in the afternoon of the same day by the Rev. A. J. Fitzgerald of the St. Francis church. The groom was attended by his brother Arthur L. Levangie as best man while Miss Marie Levangie of 1307 Washington street, South Braintree made a charming bridesmaid.

The ushers were Joseph P. Levangie and Lawrence L. Levangie. Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party was conveyed by automobile to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Simpson where a wedding supper was served. Then followed the reception from 7.30 to 10 o'clock. The rooms were beautifully decorated with palms carnations and the national colors. The bride was becomingly gowned in messaline satin and carried a shower bouquet of white carnations.

The contracting parties were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. John Simpson and Miss Marie Levangie. There were a great many guests present from Braintree and the surrounding towns and cities of Weymouth, Dedham, Dorchester, Braintree, Brockton, etc. Nathaniel McSherry of Brockton rendered some fine piano selections and a general social time and exchange of good fellowship was enjoyed until a late hour.

The bride and groom are strictly up-to-date and instead of using the conventional hack were conveyed by automobile from the parochial residence to the house and from there to depart on their wedding trip. They refused to divulge their destination but will make their home for the present at 9 Hall avenue and will be at home there to their friends after November first. The great number of useful and beautiful wedding gifts testify to the many friends and the popularity of Mr. and Mrs. Levangie.

WONDERLAND

An old dweller in the hills of Arkansas who had lived all his life in one township recently took a trip to Little Rock ,forty miles away, and was full of his subject on his return.

Mrs. Pester—"Isaac! When you came home last night I distinctly heard that hall clock strike three."

Mr. Pester—"So did I, Sarah."

Mrs. Pester—"You did? And yet you distinctly told me when I asked you what time it was, that it lacked a good deal of being twelve."

Mr. Pester—"Well, what of it? Don't three lack a good deal of being twelve, I'd like to know?"

CITY COUNCIL

then again there would be no overlay remaining.

I do not understand that the overlay is credited to the Assessors Department. As a matter of law the amount of overlay raised in any one year bears no relation to the amount of taxes the Assessors may abate for that year.

Whenever it becomes proper for the Assessors to abate a tax, whether committed to the Tax Collector for the time being, or to any of his predecessors in office for collection, they may do so irrespective of whether there is a balance of overlay or not. The Assessors have nothing to do with the overlay after they have once determined the tax rate, and they cannot be controlled in the discharge of their duties with reference to the abatement of taxes by the size of the overlay.

The Order while stating that there is a balance of overlays for certain years, does not contain sufficient information to enable me to say as a matter of law that in the years referred to all the overlay raised was not used, either to offset shrinkage in receipts, abatement of taxes or on account of the non-payment of taxes not yet abated.

I understand that the special appropriation referred to in the Order is to be used for the abatment of taxes uncollectable for the years 1894 to 1905 inclusive. I do not understand as a matter of law that the City Council has anything to do with determining what taxes are uncollectable or when an abatement should be made. These functions belong to the executive department. and as I have hereinbefore stated the exercise of them is irrespective of the existence of any overlay or any special appropriation for that purpose.

PETITIONS.

Councilman Smith presented a petition for a new street from the Furnace Brook parkway to Common street. Referred to the Committee on Streets.

A petition for the repairing and oiling of Billings road was referred to the next City Council.

A petition for street lights on Taylor and Hobart streets, Wollaston, was referred to the Executive.

Petitions were received from the Telephone Co. for a location for poles on Hancock street and Cottage avenue. Referred to Street Committee.

A petition was received from C. F. Gouch Co., to store gasoline. Later in the evening Councilman Nowland offered an order for a public hearing on the petition for Nov. 7.

Action on an application from Clements express to transport liquor was refused under the rules the application not having been received before May 1.

Several applications for minor licenses were received and referred.

The report was accepted.

SCAVENGER WAGON.

The Committee on Health reported an order for $350 for a new scavenger wagon. Referred to Finance Committee.

FIRE ALARM BOX.

Councilman Flynn offered an order for a fire alarm box and hydrant on Sumner street between Main and Washington streets. Referred to Executive.

POLICE SALARIES.

Councilman Cherrington, by request offered two orders amending the Police ordinance relating to salaries. The first increases the salary of the Chief from $1,400 to $1,500 per year. The second increases the salary of the lieutenant from $1,100 to $1,200 per year; the salary of the sergeants from $1,050 to $1,100 per year and the salary of the permanent men practically twenty-five cents a day. Referred to Committee on Police.

NEW STREET LOAN ORDER.

The order appropriating $19,000 for providing funds to build the new streets accepted at the last meeting of the Council took its second reading and the rules were suspended.

Councilman Nowland moved the order be referred to the next Council.

Councilman McDevitt opposed. He spoke at length of the large number that had appeared at the public hearings and of teh general demand for the street. The money would be well expended.

Councilman Sandberg favored the motion. The season was too late to do street work. Sidewalks for concreting had been dug up two months an dnothing had been done.

Councilman Smith opposed. It was going to make a lot of trouble. The whole matter would have to be gone over again next year and it would be late next year before an appropriation could be passed. The proposition should be handled now.

Councilman Branch asked the Commissioner what kind of road surface was contemplated and the Commissioner replied Macadam for the most part. Councilman Branch then asked if he had considered the composition roads and the Commissioner replied that it had been considered.

Councilman Branch favored using the more modern method of bilding streets. He was sorry that the Commissioner could not see his way clear to do more that way. In other places better results are being had by using thsi method. It was not wise to dig up streets after Nov. 20. He regretted that the street order could not have been acted upon earlier in the year. He favored the motion to refer to the next Council.

Conciman Whiton opposed. As far as results are concerned it would be the same old story next year. These streets are all under the betterment act.

Councilman Bryant opposed. Another year there will be a new body of Councilmen. This body should decide and have it settled. We are better able to decide than a new Council would be. The money will rest until wanted. The Street Committee have looked into these streets and hearings have been held. The Council has passed the orders accepting the streets and he believed that they were now public streets and that the city was responsible for them. The composite street was all right in some places where the street was one that connected two towns, but he thought it different on streets that were used a great deal in thickly settled places.

Councilman Richards said that under the present conditions the motion should prevail. Anyone with experience in construction work must realize that the proper time to dig up streets is when there is no frost in the ground. All admit that the streets need fixing. He could see no objection to referring to the next Council.

Councilman Nowland was not opposed to fixing the streets, but it was not the time of the year to do it. It would be the first of November before the money could be borrowed, and too late to do teh work.

Councilman Flynn opposed the motion. The Council has taken up considerable time in considering these streets and it was time something was done for the taxpayers. Some of the streets are nothing but mud holes. If the money is appropriated it will not be used until streets can be opened.

Councilman Whiton said that some of these streets were unsafe and if the city had accepted them it would be liable in case of accident.

Councilman Cherrington moved the main question be now put. Voted.

The order was then put on its passage and failed to receive the necessary two-thirds vote, 15 voting yes, and 4 no, as follows:

NO—Branch, Nowland, Richards, Sandberg.—4.

NOT VOTING—President Hobbs.—1.

ABSENT—Gardner, Snow, Woodward.—3.

The vote was then reconsidered and teh order laid on the table.

THE $7,500 LOAN.

The loan order for Trafford, Crescent and Brook streets and Furnace avenue came up for passage.

Councilman Whiton was called to the chair.

Councilman Hobbs moved to ameed by making the rate of interest four per cent instead of four and one-half. Voted.

The order was then read and the rules suspended.

Councilman McDevitt argued in favor of the order.

Councilman Whiton said he was in a bad box. He would vote for Crescent and Brooks streets but not the others. If the loan was amended so as to include these streets only he would vote for it.

Councilman Richards said that the same objection applied to this order. It was too late in the season to do street work.

Mayor Shea took the floor, and said that in all due respects to what had been said, November was the best month in the year for street work. The Highway Commission has 7,000 tons of construction work to do. Brook street was accepted in 1876 but has never been built. The property on the street is being developed and it was the duty of the Council to build the street. Trafford street was accepted in 1890 and no work has been done on it. Crescent street is one of the most important streets in West Quincy. There are two cemeteries and a church on it, and it is much used. He wanted to go on record as being in favor of building these streets.

Councilman Clark regretted that these street orders could not be passed earlier in the year. These matters are kept before the committee until late in the year when it is too late to do the work. People on these streets should be considered.

Councilman Whiton moved the Council take a recess for five minutes. Motion lost.

Councilman Cherrington moved the main question be now put. Voted.

The order was then put on its passage and failed to pass 14 voting yes and 5 no, as follows:

YES—Bolster, Boyd, Bryant, Cantfill, Carey, Cherrington, Clark, Ericson, Flynn, Histen, Loud, McDevitt, Moir, Smith—14.

NO—Branch, Nowland, Richards, Sandberg, Whiton—5.

NOT VOTING—President Hobbs—1.

ABSENT—Gardner, Snow, Woodward—3.

Vote reconsidered and order laid on the table.

THE $4,800 LOAN.

The loan order for $4,800 to take care of West, Marsh and Pleasant streets came up and the rules were suspended.

On motion of Councilman Cherrington the rate of interest was changed to four per cent.

Councilman Richards moved reference to the next Council. Motion lost.

Councilman Bryant moved to lay on the table. Lost.

The order was then put on its final passage and failed to receive the necessary two-thirds vote. 14 voting yes, and 5 no. Councilmen Branch, Nowland, Richards, Sandberg and Whiton voting no.

YES—Bolster, Boyd, Bryant, Cantfill, Carey, Cherrington, Clark, Ericson, Flynn, Histen, Loud, McDevitt, Moir, Smith—14.

NO—Branch, Nowland, Richards, Sandberg, Whiton—5.

NOT VOTING—President Hobbs.

ABSENT—Gardner, Snow, Woodward—3.

Vote reconsidered and order laid on the table.

SALARY OF FIREMEN.

On motion of Concilman Cherrington the order amending the Fire department ordinance was taken from the table. This order amends the salary clause placing the permanent men on the same basis as the police.

Chief Williams appeared before the Council and answered a number of questions. In reply to Councilman Richards he said that the increase was justifiable. The permanent men are not over paid. They should be given an increase.

Councilman Sandberg by questions attempted to bring out that the Chief was under paid. It was a delicate question and the Chief in brief said that his salary was not as large as the Chiefs in other cities and he would not object to an increase. He gave much of his time to the duties of the office.

Councilman Whiton by questions brought out the fact that the Chief was satisfied with his present salary if the Council did not increase it, and that he would rather have his present salary than to give up his outside work and devote his whole time to the city for a larger salary.

The only opposition to the order came from Councilmen Sandberg who did not favor unless the Chief's salary was raised at the same time.

The order was then passed, 18 voting yes, and one no. Councilman Sandberg voted no.

SEAT VACANT.

Councilman Smith offered an order declaring the seat in the Council of Councilman Snow of Ward Five vacant, as he had ceased to be a resident of Quincy.

Councilman Whiton was called to the chair.

Councilman Hobbs moved to lay on the table. This was a new move and he thought it unwise to act hastily on it.

In reply to a question of Councilman Cherrington, the City Solicitor said that if Councilman Snow had ceased to be a resident of Quincy his seat was vacant whether the Council so voted or not.

Councilman Richards did not believe that this question should be decided off hand. We have no absolute knowledge that he is not a resident of Quincy.

Councilman Hobbs asked if a man's residence was where his family was or where he might temporarly be. City Solicitor McAnarney replied that either was not conclusive, yet it might be.

Councilman McDevitt said that if action was postponed that it was a question if Councilman Snow could be gotten here. It was all nonsense to refer to another meeting.

Councilman Bryant said there was no question but what Councilman Snow had ceased to be a resident of Quincy.

Councilman Nowland thought he should be given a chance to resign.

Councilman Flynn asked if any communication had been received from Councilman Snow to the effect that he had moved out of town.

President Hobbs said that there had not been, but he wold like to give him a chance to resign.

Councilman Loud moved the previous question. Voted.

The vote on adoption of the order was taken by roll call, 11 voting yes and 8 no as follows:—

YES—Boyd, Bryant, Cantfill, Carey, Ericson, Flynn, Histen, Loud McDevitt, Smith, Whiton—11.

NO—Bolster, Branch, Cherrington, Clark, Hobbs, Nowland, Richards, Sandberg—8.

ABSENT—Gardner, Moir, Snow, Woodward—4.

President protem Whiton was in doubt if a majority or two-thirds vote was necessary to declare a seat vacant. The City Solicitor said that a majority vote only was necessary. President Whiton then declared the order passed.

RULE SUSPENDED.

Councilman Smith moved that rule one be suspended and that when the Council adjourn it be until Monday, Oct. 24.

As this involved two questions and the motion to suspend the rules required a two-thirds vote the question was divided.

The rules were then suspended by a vote of 12 yes and 5 no.

Before the President had an opportunity to put the second half of the motion, Councilman Bryant moved to adjourn. This motion was put and carried.

A PERSISTENT CALLER.

"I lunched with Winston Churchill in London," said a journalist, "during his remarkable campaign. This brilliant young cabinet minister, with his American blood through his mother and his ducal blood through his father, praised American journalists.

"He gave me an example of our perseverance. Not less than than forty-seven American correspondents called on him at the Board of Trade offices for an interview one week on the American tariff, and as none of them had sufficiently good credentials he refused to see them.

"Finally a correspondent came with a letter from Mr. Lloyd-George, and him Mr. Churchill saw gladly.

"'Do you know,' he said to the young man, 'that I have refused to see forty-seven of your compatriots on this very subject?'

"'I ought to know it,' the correspondnt answered, 'for I'm the whole forty-seven.'"—Philadelphia Bulletin.

A CLEVER GUESS.

The minister was addressing the Sunday school.

"Children, I want to talk to you for a few moments about one of the most wonderful, one of the most important, organs of the whole world," he said. "What is it that throbs away, beats away, never stopping, never ceasing, whether you wake or sleep, night or day, week in and week out, month in and month out, year in and year out, without any volition on your part, hidden away in the depths, as it were, unseen by you, throbbing throbbing, rhythmically all your life long?"

During this pause for oratorical effect a small voice was heard:—

"I know. It's the gas meter."—Boston Courier.

GAVE LAVISHLY OF HER POWERS

Mrs. Howe Cherished and Admired by All Americans

HER LIFE FULL OF ACTIVITY

Won Distinction In Widely Varied Spheres, Always Being Champion of the Oppressed—Made Appeal In Interest of Humanity Only Last May, When Se Was 91 Years of Age—Her Helpfulness Will Be Missed

Boston, Oct. 18.—Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, for three-quarters of a century a leader in everything that pertained to the good of humanity and the advancement of her sex, sometimes called "New England's Grand Old Woman," died at her summer home in South Portsmouth, R. I.

Mrs. Howe was more than 91 years of age, and while the immediate cause of her death was pneumonia, the real cause was her advanced years. Mrs. Howe had been ill since last Wednesday. Yesterday her heart weakened.

At "Oak Glen," Mrs. Howe's summer home, at the time of her death were her three daughters, Mrs. Florence H. Hall, Mrs. Laura E. Richards and Mrs. John Elliott. There were present also John Elliott, her son-in-law. Mrs. Howe's only son, Professor Henry M. Howe, and his wife were on the way to South Portsmouth from New York city.

Mrs. Howe's body will be brought to Boston, and the funeral services will be held at the Church of the Disciples (Unitarian) next Thursday. Mrs. Howe was a Unitarian minister and had preached at the Church of the Disciples and elsewhere.

The venerable author of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," advocate of human liberty, philanthropist, whose span of life covered almost a century, and who in that time saw her sex lifted from a place of dependence to the position of independence it now occupies; educator, reformer and public speaker, led an active life from her early years and she was active almost to the end.

Since she went to South Portsmouth, after recovering from the effects of a fall in her home in Boston last June, Mrs. Howe had spoken at several places and twice had been present at meetings of the Women's Civic League of Newport. Only last month she visited the naval training station in Newport and inspected the station, also watching the sailors at drill.

Mrs. Howe's last appearance at a public function of importance was at Smith college, Oct. 5, when President Burton was inaugurated. On that occasion the honorary degree of doctor of laws was conferred on her.

Mrs. Howe stood the journey to Northampton well, and was congratulated by many on her ability to make the long trip. She was taken in a wheel chair to the platform at Smith college to receive her degree. When she appeared the entire audience rose to its feet. After the degree had been conferred there was a tremendous burst of applause, and then the entire audience, numbering about 3000, burst into singing the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," one of Mrs. Howe's best-known compositions.

One of the venerable woman's last appeals in the interest of humanity was made last May, when she appeared at the state house and asked the milk investigating committee of the legislature to take some action which should guarantee pure milk for infants.

Mrs. Howe was born in New York city on May 27, 1819. She was descended from the stock of Roger Williams and of Governor Ward of Rhode Island. Her father, Samuel Ward, a wealthy merchant, provided for her that basic education, that familiarity with Latin and Greek, and the practical knowledge of French, Italian and German, which have proved useful to Mrs. Howe ever since.

Her father was a man of wealth and influence, so her studies began early under the ablest instructors. When only 16 years old she began her literary career by writing for a daily paper called The American.

She was married at the age of 24 to Dr. Samuel G. Howe of Boston, a well-known philanthropist and teacher. After her marriage she made her home in Boston.

Hurtz, Who Killed Pugilist Ketchel, Is Landed In Missouri Jail

Springfield, Mo., Oct. 18.—Walter A. Hurtz, who shot and killed Stanley Ketchel, world's middleweight champion, was captured at the home of Thomas Haggard, one mile from Niangua, Mo. Hurtz was taken to the Webster county jail at Marshfield, where he is being closely guarded.

Hurtz, in describing the killing, asserts Ketchel made insulting remarks to Goldie Smith, a cook employed at the farm. He says words passed between Ketchel and him, and he ordered the prize fighter to throw up his hands. When the champion refused to do this, he said, he was so frightened, knowing Ketchel carried a revolver, that he fired in self-defense and, without hardly realizing what he had done, fled.

A MILLION OR MORE IN DUTIES INVOLVED

New York Art Dealers Are Charged With Conspiracy

New York, Oct. 18.—Assistant United States District Attorney Temple, representing the government, filed notice in the United States district court of the bringing of a civil suit against the importing firm of Duveen Brothers to recover alleged withheld duties aggregating more than $1,000,000 on articles imported by that firm within the last three years.

The federal grand jury returned indictments against members of the firm of Duveen Brothers on the charge of conspiracy to defraud the government out of duties and importing under-valued goods. Bench warrants were issued for the indicted men.

It is learned that the office of George W. Wanmaker, appraiser of the port, was not consulted in the investigation conducted by Loeb, which resulted in the arrest of the Duveens on the allegation of having undervalued imports aggregating millions. Practically all of the art objects imported by the Duveens for many years have been examined and appraised under Wanmaker's supervision as an administrative officer.

Miss Morgan is populalr in society in many countries; she is fond of outdoor sports, and a member of several organizations. In 1906 it was rumored that she was engaged to Sir Thomas Lipton, the Irish cup challenger, but this was denied.

NO REASON FOR IT

When Quincy Citizens Show the Certain Way Out.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of diabetes of any kidney ills when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that they can be cured. Read what a Quincy citizen says:

James P. Daugherty, Hammond Place, Quincy, Mass., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and am glad to let other sufferers know what they have done for me. I was bothered a great deal by back ache and had but little strength or energy to do my day's work. I took many so-called kidney cures, but did not succeed in finding relief until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills which I procured at the Cox Drug Store. I was surprised and gratified at the prompt way in which they relieved me. My back was soon strong and free from pain and I felt better in every way. I would go to considerable trouble to induce anyone to use Doan's Kidney Pills, as I have so much confidence in them."

A Mother and Daughter Got There In the End

By MILLARD MALTBY.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

A stagecoach lumbered up a zigzag road in the Rocky mountains. On the outside seat behind the driver sat a gentleman whose eminently respectable traveling suit and his clean cut features indicated that he was to the manner born. Beside him sat a young man in the costume of the country. His skirt was flannel; his hat was a sombrero.

On the next seat back sat a lady, the aristocratic gentleman's wife, and beside her a girl of nineteen, their daughter. The man in the sombrero was telling them about the mountains and its people and pointing out the more prominent peaks, to which the travelers listened with great interest.

The sun was hot, the pace was slow, and the two combined tended to make the driver drowsy. When the coach reached an eminence and started down an incline, instead of being wide awake to the dangers of mountain travel, he was nodding. He not only failed to put on the brake, but dropped the reins. He was awakened by the shouts of the passengers behind him, who saw a terrible death staring them in the face. The horses, unchecked, started down the slope and were soon going at a breakneck pace.

The driver baśely abandoned his post and, putting his foot on the iron step beside him, swung himself to the ground. The young man who had been pointing out objects of interest let himself down over the footboard on to the tongue, gathered up the reins, quickly remounted to the box, put on the brake and managed to reduce the pace sufficiently to enable the coach to turn a curve without going over a precipice. Then after a further short descent he brought the horses to a standstill. The first sensation that came to him after it was all over was feeling the arms of the aristocratic gentleman about his neck.

One day a couple of years after this episode Mrs. Murphy and her daughter, while bowling along Ocean avenue at Newport, received a terrible shock.

"Oh, heavens, mother, there's Barton Keith! Look the other way, quick!"

Miss Murphy, pretending to see something to which she desired to call her mother's attention, pointed in the opposite direction from the young man, the carriage rolled by, and the women began to discuss the situation.

"What in the world could have brought him here?" exclaimed the mother.

"I would as soon have expected to see a Mississippi pilot."

"Bart has been a stage driver."

"He'll tell everybody here all about our antecedents."

"He won't know any one to tell."

"It seems hard to cut him after that affair you had with him."

"There have been changes since then. At that time father was building his little branch railroad; he hadn't got on to the main line."

"Well, I don't think there's much danger, considering that he can't have any entree here. Heaven knows what a time we've had to even get in on the outer circle. How can Bart Keith with no money get in at all?"

"He may be prosperous; he's well enough dressed."

That night there was a grand function at one of the "cottages," and the next morning Mary Murphy ran to her mother with a newspaper in her hand and her eyes wide open.

"For land's sake, mother, listen to this: 'Among those present at Mrs. Atherton's last night was Mr. Barton Keith.'"

"You don't mean it!"

"How in the name of conscience do you suppose he got in there?"

"I can't imagine. I know we couldn't get a bid."

"He must have a pull somewhere."

"Your father had a pull, but it didn't work. He offered Peter Jones a tip on the stock of our road if he'd get him an invitation to the Athertons'. But Pete said they were of the old New York blue blood and rich besides. These people who have both blood and money are the hardest of all to move."

"Oho! Here's the explanation!" and she read a social item:

Mr. Barton Keith is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Forbes.

"Oh, my goodness gracious," exclaimed the mother, "how in the world did he ever get in with them?"

There was a silence between the two which Mary ended by saying:

"Mother, we've gone and done it."

"So we have."

"We must find a way to take a backtrack."

"So we must."

"But we're entirely ignorant of the key to the position."

"What do you mean by that?"

"We don't know what reason the Forbes have for taking in Bart."

"Do you suppose they know what he's been?"

"Of course they do. Bart couldn't keep it if he wished. That's the singular part of it. The Forbes have been prominent in New York and Newport society for a hundred years. But one thing I have noticed in these old families — they're more independent about whom they take up than any other people. I can't imagine those Perkinses who made their money in fertilizing material having anything to do with Bart Keith. You know how they snubbed us."

"Yes, indeed I do, and I'm waiting for the time to come when I can get even with them."

"But, mother, how are we to fix it up with Bart?"

"I don't know, Mame, unless you have the same power you used to have over him."

Mame cast a glance in a mirror. Art had done a great deal for her since she waited on the railroad men her mother fed in their days of poverty. Nothing that money could buy was now denied her. But she knew Bart Keith well. He had loved her in calico, and to love her in costly fabrics must excite an entirely new sensation. Besides, he was in the swim at Newport, where he would meet the finest costumes in America, to say nothing of the women they incased. To make matters worse, she had cut him.

"Mother," she said, "I believe I'll write him a line saying I've heard of his being in Newport and telling him we're here. That'll look as if we hadn't seen him on the avenue."

"Do you think he'd tumble to it?"

The girl pondered awhile, then admitted that she knew very well he would; their eyes had met and there had been a mutual recognition. She dare not write the note.

But one morning she received a note from Keith. He told her that, having heard she was at Newport, he had come on from the west to find her. But time had made great changes for both of them and he did not doubt she was following a course which seemed inviting to her in her new sphere. He shrank from parting with her without letting her know that he had kept the boyish promises made years ago. He refrained from mentioning the cut she had given him, but it was evident it was this that had turned him from her. He closed his epistle with the word "farewell," and she knew that he had passed beyond recall.

For a time the Murphys heard that Keith was being introduced under the wing of the Forbes. Then they began to hear his name mentioned among the people and in the society notes independently of his introducers, and it was not long before they learned that which travels on the wings of the wind. Keith was rich. He had become interested in certain western speculations with Mr. Forbes and the two had made money together. Then came a rumor that Keith was to marry Miss Alice Forbes.

Up to this time the Murphys had merely wondered. Now they were astonished. And over Mary Murphy came a wave of regret. It was not for the loss of Barton Keith's wealth or position; it was for Keith himself. The prize they sought for and for which she had snubbed the lover of her young girlhood every day seemed further from her grasp. Despite their millions, the Murphys found it impossible to effect an entrance into Newport society. Mary had become accustomed to wealth, and it failed to satisfy her. She was hungry for the boyish love that had been hers in poverty, but she had thrown it away.

The report that Keith was to marry Miss Alice Forbes proved true. When the engagement was formally announced the Murphys read in the society columns of a New York newspaper a story concerning the contracting parties that gave them the key to the situation. It told how Mr. and Mrs. Forbes and their daughter were traveling in the Rocky mountains, how a stage driver fell asleep, how a young man who had been formerly a handler of the ribbons saved the passengers from death, how Mr. Forbes had taken him up and enabled him to make a fortune. But the story did not tell the most important feature that had led to the union—a young girl seeing an act of cool bravery on the part of a young man.

The wedding of Barton Keith and Alice Forbes was not celebrated with that splendor usual to nuptials in the fashionable world. It was said that this was in deference to the wishes of the groom, who bore the reputation of being an extremely modest man. He devoted himself to business, his only recreation being driving four-in-hands, and this was supposed to be in memory of experiences of former days.

"Mother," said Mary Murphy one day, "I have a plan."

"What is it, Mame?"

"We can't break through the shell of this Newport egg. We must go elsewhere."

"Where shall we go?"

"To London."

"Good gracious, daughter! If we can't succeed here, how can we do so among the British nobility?"

"Others who have failed here have succeeded there. Leave it to me. Money, dear mother, is the power that opens doors wherever money is needful. These British nobles are getting poor. Our people are getting rich. Many here have always been rich, and some care nothing about becoming richer. In England commoners have been getting rich, while the nobles have been getting poor. Noblemen would prefer to marry an American to a commoner of their own country, there being no titles here. I shall go to London, marry a title and come back here for just long enough to snub those who have snubbed us."

Two years later Mary Murphy returned to Newport as the countess of Mumbanon. Her advent was heralded, and when she arrived invitations were piled on her table. Before looking for those she intended to accept she picked out those from certain people who had snubbed her as Miss Murphy and sent immediate "regrets."

CUBA RAVAGED BY CYCLONE

Terrible Blasts Develop Into Torrential Floods

MANY LIVES REPORTED LOST

Millions of Dollars' Damage to Sugar and Tobacco Plantations—Thousands of Peasants Lose Their Homes and Food Crops and Are In Most Deplorable Condition—Square Mile of Havana Is Under Water

Havana, Oct. 18.—Many persons are dead, thousands are homeless and damage aggregating many millions of dollars are reported as a result of the terrific storm.

The island of Cuba has probably sustained the greatest material disaster in all its history in the practically continuous cyclone which began with light rains on Thursday morning, developing into torrential floods and devastating hurricanes and continuing until last evening.

The first cyclone, of which there was some warning, had hardly abated on Sunday night, when suddenly the wind, which up to then had been southeast, changed to southwest and with renewed fury the cyclonic blasts swept over Matanzas, Pinar del Rio and Havana provinces, completing the destruction wrought by the first storm.

Even now there are fears of another cyclone, on account of rumors of the approach of a storm reported to be forming south of Jamaica. At 10 o'clock last night, however, the rain had ceased falling, the wind had abated considerably and the sea was falling.

In addition to the great destruction to sugar and tobacco plantations, many thousands of peasants in the three western provinces have been rendered homeless and destitute by the loss of their homes and the food crops, especially plantains and corn. It now seems probable that the republic may be compelled to request international aid for the relief of these sufferers, whose condition is most deplorable.

In the city of Havana the losses probably will exceed a million dollars, mainly due to the destruction of the custom house sheds, which were filled with perishable goods, the sinking of scores of lighters, many of them containing valuable cargoes which had been unloaded from the steamers, and the submerging of about one square mile of the residential section of the city, facing the sea.

The flooding of this section was caused by the tremendous waves which, when the wind suddenly veered yesterday afternoon, were driven with tremendous violence over the Malecon sea wall, inundating as well a great portion of the suburb Vedado.

The upper part of the Prado was filled with throngs of panic-stricken negroes, carrying such household effects as they could rescue from their homes.

At the height of the storm, the great waves breached clean over the ramparts of Morro Castle.

A barge containing all the outfit of the divers working on the wreck of the old battleship Maine was carried away and stranded on the rocks of Morro Castle. Later the soldiers of the fortress succeeded in saving considerable of the apparatus, but all of the divers' buoys, stakes and other marks around the Maine were swept away, which may seriously delay the work of raising the wreck.

DOLLIVER'S SENATE SEAT

It Will Be Temporarily Occupied by a "Regular" From Iowa

Des Moines, Oct. 18.—Governor Carroll, who is one of the "regulars" of the Republicans, will appoint the temporary successor to the late Senator Dolliver, but the legislature, which meets in January, is controlled by Senator Cummins, which means that an "insurgent" or "progressive" Republican will then follow the dead leader.

The death of Dolliver is the most serious loss which the "insurgents" have experienced. He was one of the ten who opposed the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill and voted against it, and was one of those classed as "outlaws" because of his opposition to all the pet projects of the administration.

APPLES ARE SCARCE

Peculiar Weather and High Winds Blamed For the Shortage

Middleboro, Mass., Oct. 18.—There is a scarcity of apples in this section and it is estimated that the crop of this year will be 50 percent less than last year's yield.

Two reasons are assigned for the shortage, one being the peculiar weather of the past several months. The heavy winds of the last several weeks have also blown many unripe apples from the trees.

Mother of Twenty-Seven Divorced

New Haven, Oct. 18.—Rosanna Green, who said she was the mother of twenty-seven children, has received a divorce in the superior court.

BY ELEVEN VOTES

Foss Beats Hamlin In "Mail Order" Votes of Democratic Delegates

Boston, Oct. 18.—Eugene N. Foss Foss got eleven more votes than Charles S. Hamlin when it came to counting the letter ballots received from delegates to the recent Democratic convention.

Foss received 495 votes, Hamlin 484, James H. Vahey 3, Charles F. Riordan, treasurer of the state committee, 3, and Frederick W. Mansfield, provisional candidate for governor, 1 vote.

The comittee of four met after the results of the canvass were determined. William P. Hayes, secretary of the committee, had hardly finished his report of the canvass when Robert Crowley, who had refused to recognize the canvass, made a motion that Chief Justice Aiken be elected a fifth member of the committee. On this motion Crowley and Hayes voted yes. Macleod and Maynard voted no. The committee then adjourned to today.

FRENCH STRIKE IS OFF

Many Acts of Violence Just Before It Comes to an End

Paris, Oct. 18.—The railroad strike was formally called off last night. This was decided at a meeting of the strike committee of the National Railroaders' union.

An attempt was made to dynamite a railroad bridge spanning the River Loire at Miranas, but the damage was slight. Dynamite had been strewn along the tracks for some distance.

There was a terrific explosion of a bomb outside the residence of Director Massard of the Nationalist newspaper Patrie, who had praised Premier Briand's method of handling the strike situation.

There was considerable material damage, but no casualties resulted. Securely fixed to Massard's door was a paper having written on it: "First warning from the strikers."

Another bomb was found in the first-class compartment of a train near Rouilly. It contained enough dynamite to blow the train to atoms.

"ARISTOCRACY OF BOODLE"

Minister Names Some Things Which Stand In Way of Sermons

Boston, Oct. 18.—Hunger, dirt, ignorance and disease in the cities stand in the way of sermons and tracts, declared Rev. Henry S. Bradley of Worcester last evening in his address before the Congregational council.

"Today we have an aristocracy of boodle, and the dollar mark is more respected than the student's lamp or family rest."

The speaker was discussing the "Challenge of the Modern City" and said that one of the most significant facts revealed by the present census is the disproportionate growth of our urban and rural population.

CHARGED WITH MURDER

Woman and Man Do Not Seem to Realize Their Position

Hull, Mass., Oct. 18.—Mrs. Lena Cusumano and Enrico Mascioli, charged with the murder of Mrs. Cusumano's husband, Calagero Cusumano, whose body was found, stripped, bound in wire, on Sunset Beach, were arraigned in the Abington court and then sent to jail to await a continuance dated for Oct. 28.

The two suspects did not seem to realize the serious nature of the charge against them and chatted in Italian during the brief court proceedings. Through their counsel they pleaded not guilty.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. ACCIDENT AT FREIGHT YARD

Well Known Citizen Crushed By Crane

Joseph Fletcher of Granite street, aged 69 years, had a narrow escape Monday from a very serious if not fatal accident while at the Quincy Adams freight yard. Mr. Fletcher had gone there with a load of granite which was being unloaded by the massive travelling electric crane.

The crane is so constructed that it moves north and south along a run or track at the end of which is a bumper. Its operation is controlled by a man in a house on top of the crane. At the time of the accident Mr. Fletcher stood on the run or track facing the bumper and did not see that the crane was bearing down upon him, neither could the operator see Mr. Fletcher.

The crane bore down on Mr. Fletcher, crushing him between the bumper and crane. His cries attracted the attention of the other workmen, and the progress of the crane was stopped. Mr. Fletcher was taken from his perilous position and taken to his home by a physician. The physician found that fortunately no bones had been broken, but that Mr. Fletcher had been quite badly crushed and bruised and will probably be confined to his home for a few weeks. It was purely a case of accident and no blame is attached to anyone.

SILENT EVANGELISTS.

A good number were present Monday night at the meeting held in the Hall Place M. E. church. A number of "Silent Evangelists" were present with their helpful influence.

Tonight will doubtless bring out a larger number, as special plans have been made to make the service of great interest. Beside the usual Gospel talk by the pastor and the chorus singing of the Alexander songs a special duet will be rendered by Misses Maud and Catherine Hodgkinson. The service begins promply at 7.30 and all are most cordially invited to attend and all will find a welcome.

TAYLOR—EVERETT.

Miss Florence Everett of Oneonta, N. Y., and L. William Taylor of 17 Newport terrace, Wollaston, were united in marriage Saturday morning at the home of the bride's parents. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. T. A. Dickson in the presence of only the immediate family, and after the wedding luncheon, the couple started on a short honeymoon trip. Mr. Taylor is the son of Mrs. S. S. Taylor of Wollaston. He has been employed by the Stone Lumber Co., of which G. W. Stone is president, for the past eight years and is at present a travelling salesman for that firm. The bride was a teacher, first at the Salem Normal school and later at the Newton High school. Mr. Taylor met her when she was visiting friends in Wollaston.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor returned to Wollaston Monday evening. They will reside at 17 Newport terrace, where they will be at home after Nov. 15.

HOSPITAL WEEK.

The publicity committee and the trustees of the City Hospital wish to say, that through a mistaken idea it was stated in the little paper, "Our Hospital," that the new nurses home was progressing rapidly. This is not a fact, although the plans are already and the place of construction has been selected. It has been thought best not to begin building, however, until the spring. Do not let this keep you from remembering the Hospital, however, when the collectors come around this week.

An important thing to keep in mind about Hospital Week, is that tomorrow will be Hospital Day at the Auditorium, the popular moving picture and vaudeville house, on Hancock street. Tomorrow afternoon and evening the gross receipts of three performances will be given to the hospital by Manager Jelatis.

THE CASE OF RESTELLI.

It is strange that nobody thought of suicide in connection with the Quincy murders committed by Louis Restelli. There were clues of him daily for some time. He was sought for in Italy and all over the country. It was imagined that having killed his mother and a man against whom he had a grudge, and wounded several others, he would take the war path, Indian fashion, and kill all those who were regarded by him as enemies. Large rewards were offered, the search for the murderer was world wide. And all the time his body was lying at the bottom of an abandoned quarry pit that was filled with water. It was only 300 yards from the scene of the tragedy. But there were two members of the police force of Quincy who had a fancy that Restelli had drowned himself, and they have been secretly dragging the abandoned quarry pits to test their theory, which at last has proven to be correct. There are many instances on record similar to the one in Quincy. The long drawn out processes of the law in the cases of murderers and the uncertainty of conviction even where their guilt is clear renders Restelli's final act a public benefit.—Lynn Item.

—It is generally the case that a man's estate is worth more before his death than after, and the shrinkage in the estate of Isaac C. Wyman of Salem was no exception to the rule. Princeton University expected to benefit from his estate to the extent of eight or ten millions of dollars, but now that the inventory has been filed in the probate court the amount is scaled down to considerably less than two million dollars, a shrinkage which will be regretted by the friends of the university, who had built many hopes of extending the usefulness of the institution with the larger sum expected.—Old Colony Memorial.

BENDER IN WINNER'S BOX

Philadelphia Scores Three Runs In Second and Third Innings, Chicago Barely Escaping Shutout by Scoring In Ninth—Thirty-Five Thousand Persons Witness Game, Thousands of Fans Coming From Far Away

Philadelphia, Oct. 18.—Thirty-five thousand frenzied fans who jammed every inch of the space of the Philadelphia Athletic park saw the Athletics defeat the Cubs in the opening game of the series for the championship of the baseball world.

The game was won in the second and third innings. In the second the Athletics jammed home two runs off Overall, the first twirler Chance sent to the mound. In the third they added another and Chance took Overall out of the box and substituted McIntyre.

In the meantime the veteran Chief Bender was pitching dazzling ball for the champions of the American league. In the first game the prediction had been verified that Mack's superb corps of box men would out-pitch Chance's twirlers. It had been verified to the extent of at least one notch of the big series.

The game was played in the presence of such a crowd as has never attended a professional game of baseball in America. Every available inch of space was taken, while thousands clamored for admission outside. The playing space was so congested that ground rules had to be adopted and the first hit of the Athletics in the second, which eventually scored, would have been a homer but for these rules.

With every seat sold, thousands of baseball enthusiasts from all parts of the country had camped before the gates of the park all night, in order to make no mistake about getting their proper places.

When the gates opened there was a rush for the entrances, and a great army of police had all they could do to keep the fighting, struggling mass in order.

Thousands were wagered on the game. Odds were as they have been during the last week, 10 to 7, and 13 to 10, on the Cubs.

The game was called promptly at 2 o'clock, and the greatest contest of years, the east against the west, the Athletics against the Cubs, and Connie Mack against Frank Chance, was on. Every play was cheered wildly, and every star received an ovation when he came to bat. Never before has a series opened under such good auspices.

Although they were not the favorites in the betting, Connie Mack's men looked in prime condition when they took the field. Not a man showed any signs of nervousness, and the entire team seemed full of confidence.

As with the Athletics, so it was with the Cubs. With the assurance of the backing and experience, the knowledge that they have already won other world's series, Chance's men had nothing to fear and appeared fresh and confident.

Down town the rush for seats was remarkable and all kinds of fancy prices were offered for pasteboards. Two dollar seats brought $25 a pair and any old price was offered for $3 seats. At that the demand far exceeded the supply, and many visitors were compelled to remain away from the game. The score:

Chicago .....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—1

Batteries—Bender and Thomas; Overall, McIntyre and Kling. Runs—Lord, Collins, Baker, Tinker. Two-base hits—Baker 2, Lord. Stolen bases—Off Bender 2, off Overall 1, off McIntyre 3. Struck out—By Bender 7, by Overall 2, by McIntyre 3. Umpires—Rigler, O'Day, Connolly, Sheridan. Time—1h 45m. Attendance—35,000.

WHO WILL BE HERO OF SERIES?

In Every World's Contest Some Star's Playing Has Stood Out.

LAST YEAR IT WAS BABE ADAMS

His Great Work In Box Beat Detroit. Either Coombs or Cole Likely to Acquire Fame In Coming Games—Both Are Great Pitchers.

Not the least interesting feature of the world's series of the past has been the flashing of some star or stars in the firmament of baseball. Dopists always find a considerable amount of pleasure, not to say interest, in wondering who will be the next star that will dazzle a multitude and sparkle for a nation.

Men Who Starred In Other Years.

In the first world's series, played between the Boston and Pittsburg teams in 1903, it was Bill Dineen. The latter's great work in the box practically captured the honors for Boston. In 1905, when the New Yorks defeated Philadelphia for the premier honors of the diamond, Billy Gilbert's great battling and Christy Mathewson's brilliant pitching were the features. In 1906 George Rohe's work at third and particularly at the bat made the Chicago Americans victory certain over the Cubs. Frank Isbell of the White Sox was another to shine that year. It was his four two base hits in the fifth game of the series that helped put the Cubs to rout.

O'Leary and Rossman of the Detroits were the heroes of the Tiger-Cubs games in 1907. In 1908 Johnny Kling of the Chicagos was the big show. Last year it was Pitcher Babe Adams of the Pittsburgs. His great work in the box enabled the Pirates to defeat Detroit.

Will It Be Cole or Coombs?

Now that the Philadelphia Americans and Chicago Cubs are to play for the world's baseball honors, who will be this season's hero? At the present time it seems to be that either John Coombs of the Mackmen, or King Cole of the Cubs is the youngster being groomed for the laudatory honors of hero of the series.

Both these boys have had spectacular careers this season. Cole, of course, is the National league sensation. Picked from Bay City, Mich., in a Class D organization, where he had divided his time between barbering and twirling, this lanky genius has risen to the place of leading the twirlers of the older organization. His success has been due in a great measure to his own ability, but he has not suffered in the least by the tutoring of that wonderful bunch of baseball, the Cubs.

Coombs has been with the Mackmen for four years, but never glowed with anything more sturdy than a feeble flicker during this time. Hero of the twenty-four inning game in Boston, the longest game in major baseball, he never seemed to have shown anything since that time. This season, however, has brought him into the limelight as one really great pitcher.

His strength, his mighty curves, sweeps and breaks and his other asset—hitherto unknown to him—grand control, has made him one of the best in the business. His work as the Mack iron man has bruited his success from coast to coast, and he is able to work every other day without feeling the strain.

These two youngsters stand the chance of having the film of fame filled with their pictures. Will it be Coombs or will the barber of Bay City spring into eternal fame in a single bound?

McIntosh to Try to Corner Fighters.

Promoter Hugh McIntosh's plan to corner all the best boxers in the world and have them appear at his new clubs in London and Birmingham, England, and in his stadiums in Sydney, Melbourne and Brisbane, Australia, is the biggest thing of the kind ever attempted in the history of the pugilistic game. His clubs in England will be so arranged that 8,000 people can be seated, and he has Jimmy Britt, the former San Francisco lightweight, who has been making his home in England, as an assistant. McIntosh has also secured Eugene Corri, regarded as the best referee in England, to act as the third man in the ring at his contests.

Pugilist Lang a Chess Champion.

Bill Lang, the alleged prizefighter, is Australian champion chess player. What a queer combination!

MATTY FIRST EVER TO GET ASSIST ON STRIKE OUT.

One of the most peculiar strikeouts on record was made by Christy Mathewson of New York in a game with Pittsburg recently. Babe Adams struck at a ball that was bouncing, and it struck Meyers on the foot and bounded up in the air. It was a third strike, and Mathewson darted for the ball. He grabbed it and threw the batter out at first. That is the first time on record that a pitcher ever got an assist on a strikeout.

LOCAL SPORTS.

The football game with Quincy High for this afternoon has been cancelled by the Revere manager. So many of the players are disqualified because of deficiency in their lessons that the team is badly crippled and wholly unfit to cope with as formidable an antagonist as our High school team.

Vol. 25 No. 243 QUINCY, MASS., WEDNESDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 19, 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

LAW RELATIVE TO WATER METERS

State Requires Them on All New Services and Five Per Cent of Old Services

From 500 to 800 Should Be Installed Annually

Insomuch as Quincy has expended $26,362.12 for installing water meters since Jan. 1, 1906, it would seem as if the State was taking extreme measures in bringing suit against the city of Quincy. Every year since, the city has expended large sums for meters. The present year the city has expended $1,113.93, and may expend $10,000.00 more, so how can it be claimed that the city has violated the act for 264 days, or since Feb. 1 last?

THE METER ACT.

Chapter 524 of the Acts of 1907, relative to water meters reads as follows:

Section 1. All cities, towns, districts or corporations which derive all or any part of their water supply from the metropolitan water works or from sources used by or under the control of the metropolitan water district shall after December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and seven, equip with water meters all water services thereafter installed for them and shall also annually equip with water meters five per cent of the water services which were unmetered on December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and seven; and shall also thereafter charge each consumer in proportion to the amount of water used: provided, that no city, town or district shall, in any one year, contract for more than the number of meters to be installed by it during that year under the provisions of this act; and provided, also, that a minimum rate may be fixed for which the consumer shall be entitled to a stated quantity of water.

Section 2. The provisions of this act shall not apply to the water service for fire purposes only of any city, town fire district or individual, nor shall such service be taken into consideration in computing metered water service. All water used for the supply of public buildings or other premises under the control of a city, town or district, and all water used from the public works for the flushing of sewers, watering of streets and all other purposes, except for the extinguishment of fires, may be paid for by the city, town or district.

AMENDED IN 1909.

As Sections 3 and 4 of the above act were amended in 1909, they were omitted, but as amended will be found below. Chapter 177 of the Acts of 1909 reads:

Section 1. Section three of chapter five hundred and twenty-four of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and seven is hereby amended by striking

HALLOWE'EN PARTY

Opens the Season for Wollaston Social Society

One of the jolliest evenings its members have enjoyed was in order at the opening meeting of the Wollaston Social society in the Unitarian vestry on Tuesday evening, where a genuine Hallowe'en party with all its trills was in full swing Invitations did not give an inkling of the event, and although a large number were present some of the members will feel taken in when they find what a good time they missed

As one entered, instead of an electric light, a pumpkin manikin stared one in the face; then one saw the vestry changed into a dim abode of ghosts and hobgoblins. The program opened with mournful chorus from sepulchral figures which materialized into ghosts.

The first fun of the evening consisted in guessing the identity of these. The result was a tie, Mrs. G. Ernest Carr and Mrs. Clifton Baker each giving five correctly. The ghosts developed into the following: Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Oldham, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Bond, Dr. B. F. Bowles, Miss Winifred White, Miss Mildred Sayward, Miss Lillian Clapp and Miss Hattiemay Mitchell.

In the contest of suspended apples Mrs. Paul Broderick secured the first "bite" and received an appropriate prize. The men next busied themselves bobbing for apples in the good old-fashioned way, causing roars of merriment. Louis B. Weston excelled in this adept art. A corn shelling contest was the next exciting event and was won by an "ear" by G. Ernest Carr.

The ladies then manipulated the corn poppers, Miss Elsie Moulton coming out as victor.

The audience satisfied their appetites with Hallowe'en fare consisting of apples, pop corn, doughnuts, cheese, coffee and Hildreth's "Velvets." The decorations were of unusual merit all carrying out the Hallowe'en idea. Cornstalks and pumpkins graced the walls and strings of crepe paper of appropriate coloring lent to the effect. The lights were covered by Japanese lanterns of Hallowe'en variety. The stage was turned into a "cave of the winds" with a witches fire and kettle and a sign "Leave hope behind all ye who enter here."

Responsible for the success of the evening are the executive committee headed by Irving L. Shaw and consisting of Roy C. Baker, W. M. Southworth, Mrs. B. F. Bowles, Miss Elsie C. Moulton, Herbert Percival, George E. Brown ,Miss Helen L. Foster and Dr. F. S. Andrews. The club starts its season successfully having added seven new members to its lists on Tuesday evening.

CANDIDATES SPEAK

Tell Why Democrats Should be Elected

A well attended Democratic rally was held at Music hall Tuesday evening. Councilman John D. Smith, chairman of the Democratic City Committee, presided, and on the platform were Councilmen John J. McDevitt, candidate for representative from the Sixth district, Patrick Ferguson, Councilman Histen, William Kelley, William S. Charlton and James M. Curley the party candidate for Congress from the Tenth district.

Chairman Smith said that the only thing to be considered at the present time was the local candidates for Congress and the Legislature. In introducing Councilman McDevitt he said he was a man who had made a record for himself in the City Council, and was just the man wanted for the Legislature.

Councilman McDevitt spoke of the 8-hour and 54-hour bills which he championed. All he asked was a chance to represent this district, and he would put up a strong fight for the working men. He then quoted at length from the records of the Legislature showing how Representative Langelier had voted.

William Kelley spoke briefly on the so-called 8-hour bill which the Legislature had passed and which Governor Draper had vetoed.

The last speaker was Mr. Curley who first spoke of the clean campaign he had carried on for the nomination. He thanked the voters of Quincy for their support. He then paid his respect to Congressman Lodge and Candidate Galvin, both of whom he handled without gloves. He also dwelt on the trusts, and contrasted the cost of necessities of life today with what they were fifteen years ago He promised if elected to use his vote for a revision of the tariff on these articles. He also touched upon the merchant marine. He was battling for the plain people and felt confident of winning in the coming election.

A rally in the interest of Candidate McDevitt was also held at West Quincy being presided over by Councilman Boyd.

SMILE 'EM UP COMMITTEE

Have Increase Pleasure of Congregational Council

The Congregational Council is nearing its conclusion in Boston after more than a week of stirring addresses, pleasant and profitable pilgrimages and progressive business sessions. The success of whole convention, or series of conventions, has been due to the indefatigable energy of the efficient corps of workers who have served on the various committees. Chief of these is the "Smile 'Em Up" committee. To be a member of this committee, one was required to have the smile that won't come off to know everybody and endeavor to have as many as possible meet each other; to straighten out and smooth out and all the time keep everyone happy in general, to see to it that everything and everybody was all right and that the convention was doing the greatest good to the greatest number.

About twenty-five ministers with a wide circle of friends throughout the country have done this work admirably. Dr. Edwin N. Hardy of this city has been working on the committee. At the meetings and banquets and pilgrimages that whole-souled laugh and genial manner have been working with telling force in welding together the various denominational links from all parts of the republic. Vive la sourire!

CITY SQUARE ACCIDENT

Auto and Electric Car Were in Collision

There came very near being a serious accident in City Square Tuesday afternoon. An automobile numbered 433, driven by John Stuart the Wollaston beach boat builder came into City Square about 4.10 o'clock. In the car besides Mr. Stuart was his wife and young child. He was evidently not in full control of the car for first he ran into the sidewalk and then ran his automobile directly in front of an electric car going to the Fore River. The motorman had no time to stop his car and it crashed into the automobile. Fortunately the electric car was not moving very fast, as it would have overturned the auto. As it was, it gave the auto quite a bump and threw it violently to one side.

The force of the collision threw the occupants of the automobile out and smashed the spokes in one of the wheels. Mrs. Stuart was somewhat bruised and shaken up but was able to walk with a limp. The mechanism of the auto was not damaged, for a few minutes later Stuart cranked it up and drove off.

Mr. Stuart does not own the automobile but it is said that it was one that had been left with him for repair. He holds a license as a professional chauffeur.

VIEWS OF CALIFORNIA

Shown at Meeting of Wollaston Congregational Club

At the opening meeting of the Wollaston Congregational club on Tuesday evening, George R. King delivered a stereopticon lecture on "California". For the past few years Mr. King has been photographing the beauty spots of this western state in the interests of the larger railroads and hotels resulting in the material for a most interesting lecture.

At the business meeting the resignation of Amos T. Leavitt, as chairman of the benevolence committee, was accepted and Mr. Mann elected to the office.

C. F. West chairman of the committee appointed in the spring to look into the matter of improving the railroad timetable, reported progress and told of the minor changes the committee had been able to effect.

Upon motion of Rufus B. Tobey resolutions were adopted on the death of A. A. Lincoln.

Mr. Campbell moved that a letter of congratulation be sent Richard M. Watt, a former president of the club, upon his appointment as chief constructor of the United States navy. Adopted.

The new president, Chester N. Godfrey, the secretary R. B. Locke and E. S. Tenney chairman of the membership committee all spoke of the club's prospects the coming season, and urged a large increase in attendance.

Mr. King's views were exceptionally clear and well colored, and covered all of the features for which California is noted. Among other pictures was one of the Los Angeles Times building taken before it was blown up by vandals. Other pictures showed beautiful suburban residences, shore and mountain scenery, the big trees, the missions and many others which rounded out an evening of interest and beauty.

At its close Mr. King was extended a most hearty vote of thanks. The usual roast beef dinner was served. At the November meeting of the club an address on "Socialism" will be made by a prominent authority on this subject.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Registration figures indicate that Quincy will show a large increase in voters this fall. All the new voters are not a net gain, however, as every year at the beginning of registration work a large number are dropped because of removal, non-assessment of poll tax or death.

There should be no question about the date for the next regular meeting of the City Council. Having failed to set a date, the suspension of rule one of the Council holds good only for the date the City Council met. The next regular meeting will come the first Monday of November, which is Nov. 7, three weeks from next Monday. If a special meeting is called in the meantime only business stated in the call can be transacted.

The population figures for Massachusetts indicate that the State will have 15 members of the next Congress instead of 14 as at present. This is on a basis of 224,429 population to each member, where now it is 193,167.

Boston with 611,417 would not have poplation enough for three Congressmen, as one-third of 611,417 is 203,806. On the other hand one-third of the population of Suffolk county (731,383) is 243,794, more than required for three Congressmen. Today, Chelsea and Revere of Suffolk county are in the Seventh district which is not a Boston district. Quincy and Milton people believe Chelsea or Revere should go into a Boston district rather than Norfolk county towns. Otherwise they might take Brookline instead of Quincy and Milton.

Norfolk county with a population of 187,500 needs about 38,000 more people to be entitled to one member of Congress, and Newton the home of Congressman Weeks, with 39,806 would just fill the bill.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

Usually, when a record is broken, it simply means that a record is broken, and there is the end of the whole business, until some other ambitous and perspiring soul comes along and breaks that record. The achievement is precisely that of a man who should say: "I have broken the record. I have held my left ear with my right hand for a longer time by five minutes than any man who has ever tried that test of endurance."

In matters that really count we seldom hear of broken records. In the matter of quality, in works of human endeavor, it is difficult to apply a standard measure and declare that this or that is the best. In all that counts, the matter of bigness or quantity is not considered. No artist attempts to break the record by painting the biggest picture in the world. No writer tries to make a book that that shall contain ten thousand words more than is contained in any other single volume in the world. No composer tries to smash the speed record by writing a complete opera in twelve hours. It is recorded that Oscar Hammerstein did this stunt on one occasion, but it was the result of a freak bet and the finished product was not a success. No one ever claimed that Oscar was a genuine composer, anyway. The biggest bridge in the world is a record breaker of course, but the engineer who built it merely designed the bridge that was needed at that particular spot, and the breaking of a record had nothing to do with his purpose.—"Topics of the Day," in the Providence Journal.

There is a disposition in some quarters to criticise the government at Washington because of failure to recognize the Portuguese republic. Stress is laid upon the point that Switzerland, the oldest republic in Europe, was the first to bolster up so far as recognition can work to this end, the new republic. In the comparison drawn between the United States and Switzerland, the latter has been favored thereby. The fact is worth bearing in mind, however, that there is quite a difference between declaring a republic and perpetuating it. The public at large is not so completely informed of the actual state of affairs in Portugal as it might be. The fame of the United States will hardly be tarnished, nor will its citizens be pilloried as non-sympathizers with peoples who attempt to throw off the yoke of corrupt and moribund monarchies, if the government at Washington does not make the receipt of intelligence that such and such a country has set up a republican form of government the basis of immediate recognition of the new republic. In a concern like this, as in many another, there is no occasion for indiscriminate haste.—Salem News.

out the last sentence and inserting in place thereof the following:—It shall be the duty of the metropolitan water and sewerage board to supervise and promote the enforcement of the provisions of this act, and if any city, town, district or corporation violates or neglects in any respect to comply with the provisions hereof, said board shall forthwith give written notices of such violation or neglect, together with the facts relative thereto, to the attorney-general for his action in the premises. The supreme judicial court shall have jurisdiction, upon an information in equity filed by the attorney-general, to enforce all the terms and provisions of this act,—so as to read as follows:—Section 3. Meters shall receive the necessary care and maintenance to secure proper efficiency and shall be tested or replaced by the city, town, district or water company whenever there is reason to believe that the records furnished by them are inaccurate, or whenever the service furnished is in other respects inefficient. Cities, towns, districts and corporations may make rules and regulations relative to the care, maintenance and protection of meters, and for propertly ascertaining and recording the amount of water actually used during specified periods by each water consumer. It shall be the duty of the metropolitan water and sewerage board to supervise and promote the enforcement of the provisions of this act, and if any city, town, district or corporation violates or neglects in any way respect to comply with the provisions hereof, said board shall forthwith give written notice of such violation or neglect, together with the facts relative thereto, to the attorney- general for his action in the premises. The supreme judicial court shall have jurisdiction, upon an information in equity filed by the atorney-general, to enforce all the terms and provisions of this act.

Section 2. Said chapter five hundred and twenty-four is hereby further amended by striking out section four and inserting in place thereof the following:—Section 4. If a city, town, district or corporation in any year neglects or refuses to comply with the provisions of section one, it shall forfeit to the commonwealth for the use of the metropolitan water district not less than twenty dollars and not more than one hundred dollars for each day after the expiration of said year during which such violation or neglect continues. The penalties or forfeitures which may be incurred hereunder may be recovered in an action of contract brought in the county of Suffolk in the name of the commonwealth, or mal be recovered by an information in equity in the name of the attorney-general at the relation of the metropolitan water and sewerage board, brought in the supreme judicial court for the county of suffolk.

Section 3. Section one of this act shall take effect upon its passage, and section two shall take effect on the first day of January, nineteen hundred and ten. (Approved March 18, 1909.

Since Dec. 31, 1907, up to 1910, Quincy has installed 723 new services as follows: 312 in 1908, and 411 in 1909. Under the law all of these should be metered, as installed, also each year five per cent of the 4,586 umetered on Dec. 31, 1907, which would be 230 additional each year.

An order introduced into early in the year, to create a loan of $48,000 to install meters on every service was defeated, as it should have been, as it is too great a work to be undertaken in one year, and entailed a big debt and large interest account. Had the order appropriating $30,000 for water extensions, which passed, included a clause reading "construction and meters" it would have met all requirements, as 500 to 800 annually covers the law. Daily Ledger figures of Monday showed that in five years including 1910 Quincy has expended $26,362.12 for water meters.

GRANITE BY TROLLEY

Quincy Manufacturer Pleased With His Experiment

Editor Quincy Ledger:

We have in the past suggested the possibilities of the trolley freight as an asset to the granite industry of our city. This does not imply that our position is changed regarding the fact that logically the people who pay to keep the streets in a city or town, viz. citizens, should have control of said streets. This privilege we have lost by commission.

The fact is now established that he trolley freight is with us to stay, and the proper thing apparently is to get the best mutual results. I will cite a case to show the granite men the possibilities, it having been my privilege to send the first shipment of granite from our city via trolley freight. Having a memorial to place in New Bedford on the 15th of the month owing to delays it was the 13th before it was ready to go forward. The people for whom the work was made were due to leave for California on the evening of the 15th, the average time of freight via, railroad from Quincy to New Bedford appears to be from one week to time indefinite. The trolley freight seemed my only hope. I suggested the matter to our General Manager, Mr. Gammons, who very kindly had a car on the switch at Independence avenue. The work was loaded on at 5.30 the evening of the 13th and edlivered at New Bedford at 2.30 on the 14th.

I would suggest tothe granite manufacturers and others to look into the possibilities of connections with our water front from the granite plants at South and West Quincy and other points via. Water street from Dobles corner, thence turnpike to Quincy Neck, where the old shipping point could be established, trolley cars could haul for shipments by water to New York, Philadelphia and other points. By combined and centralized effort and utilizing the facilities at hand, Quincy's industries and product can be placed on a proper footing. The problem is to deliver the goods to market at a minimum instead of a maximum of cost. A public discussion of this will do no harm, and may possibly wake our people up to a proper solution of a problem that means much to the prosperity of our city.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

WHAT THEY ARE DOING AND SEASONS' PLANS

I have made a voyage upon a golden river,
'Neath clouds of opal and of amethyst.
Along its banks bright shapes were moving ever,
And threatening shadows melted into mist.

My journey nears its close—in some still haven
My bark shall find its anchorage of rest
When the kind hand, which every good has given,
Opening with wider grace, shall give the best.
—Julia Ward Howe.

Y. M. C. A. PLEDGES

Most Payments Have Been Prompt But Not All

The date of the final payments on the Y. M. C. A. Campaign Fund pledges was set for October 1, 1910, and notices have been issued reminding subscribers that their final payments are due.

The treasurer of the association states that payments have previously come in very satisfactorily, that out of 1417 different pledges amounting to $27,000, over 1150 have been paid in full and 150 others have met their payments according to aggrement.

A balance of $6,500 is still uncollected, and it is hoped that this may come in at an early date so that the final payment on the mortgage may bemade by January 1 at latest.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

The South Quincy Extension club is rehearsing two plays to be given in November. Mr. Osgood is directing the rehearsals and when the performances are given next month the public will have something worth going to see. The titles of the plays are: "Slasher and Crasher," and "Turn Him Out."

The Wollaston club will meet Thursday to listen to a plain talk by Cyril D. Bond on the subject "Knots." He will tell how to "tie" the different kinds of knots, how to splice rope, etc. and will illustrate all the things he explains.

The Juniors of the Y. M. C. A. will meet in the Association building Friday afternoon, at 4.30 for the formation of Boy Scout platoons.

WOULD WATER BY PAILS

Unique Proposition of the Humane Society

The recent suggestion of a Daily Ledger correspondent seems practical for a Boston paper reports that President Rowley of the Mass. S. P. C. A., has offered the city of Quincy the servicesof his men to relieve a unique situation, and one which is causing much hardship to the horses used in the heavy teaming that passes through the Granite City.

Because of a case of glanders, the most virulent horse disease, the only horse drinking fountain in Quincy, at the square, has been closed. Teamsters, working on the long hauls from below Quincy to Boston and from the Fore River works, have relied on this fountain as their watering place, and its closing has occasioned much hardship.

Dr. Rowley has offered the use of his men without cost to the city of Quincy, to do the work of watering the passing horses with pails, provided the city will open a hydrant for that purpose.

SUM NEEDED BY HOSPITAL

Hope to Raise $6,500 During Hospital Week

This year the running expenses of the City Hospital have been increased by the erection and operation of the new pavilion. This addition to the equipment, while it increases the running expenses, also adds materially to the efficiency of the plant and this should be an incentive to the people in making their contributions.

The total running expenses for the year will figure up to about $18,000. This sum will be taken care of, it is hoped, by receipts of $6,000 from the patients, $4,000 from the city, $3,500 from the income of the endowment fund, leaving about $5,000 to be collected during "Hospital Week." There is also a note amounting to $1,500 coming due and it is expected that this will also be covered by the collection.

The sum realized at the Auditorium today and tonight will help a lot towards getting the money and the trustees hope that everyone will try and attend one of the performances.

Over Fifty
Furniture Stores
Have Failed In Boston

Within a very few years over 50 Furniture Stores in the city of Boston have failed and gone out of business. Loss of business is the answer—and you may well ask "why!"

Here's the answer—The wonderful development of suburban furniture stores which on account of low rents and operating expenses can sell the same household goods cheaper than the large City stores have turned the tide of trade their way.

People from all parts of the South Shore who for years traded in Boston are today buying their Home Furnishings in our low priced store and find it largely to their own financial advantage to do so.

We make it Easy to buy and Easy to pay.

METHODS OF BRIAND

They Prove Successful In Bringing French Strike to an End

Paris, Oct. 19.—With the return to work of the 15,000 railroad employes, who have been on strike here for a week, there ends the most disorderly and menacing labor disturbance that France has had in years.

Even after the strike had officially been declared off by the strike committee of the Railroaders' union, bombs continued to explode along the lines of the different systems, or to be found in some of the cars.

By tonight the regular schedules of all the roads will be in operation. The congestion on the lines in many places is very great. At some points lines of cars extending more than a mile are stalled.

The collapse of the strike is primarily due to the stringent measures taken by Premier Briand. After having broken the back of the strike, Briand successfullly arranged a practical settlement, whereby the chief demands of the men were met.

—During the coming winter there will be a weekly steamship service between St. John and Manchester, England. In past winters this service has been fortnightly. Winter port business generally between St. John and Trans-Atlantic ports is expected to be considerably larger, with more sailings than last year. The Australian service will be added this winter.

IN FASHION'S REALM

Paris Frocks Present Many Striking Features

Daring Colors, Tight Sleeves and Narrow Skirts

One of the most interesting things in this city is the serious aspect that clothes take on at this time of the year. Every one is asking every one else about the fashions. Men and women, tourist and native, discuss eagerly the slightest flicker of news that comes from the great houses. The American buyers have left with their trunks and boxes of splendid gowns, on which they have paid splendid duty at the pier, and the French women are beginning to order their gowns.

It really does not make very much difference to the majority of Americans what the French women will wear; it is what the Americans will decide is fashionable that will count in America. The argument is always brought up that we bring our gowns over too early for them to be really correct, but whether or not this is true, they are the gowns that American buyers have chosen for their people and which can be bought in this country.

True, the ultra smart set who go abroad twice a year for their clothes or cable for special frocks to their dressmakers in Paris dress according to Paris and not America, but these women are in the minority.

A number of certain types of gowns are brought over so early in the season that the buyer is entirely misled into thinking they are right and finds to her dismay two months later that she is quite out of the fashion. This is up to the manufacturers, not the dressmakers.

This was the case with the plaited skirt last Spring. Some of the buyers—and even the tailors erred here—brought it over as the correct fashion for Summer, and hundreds of plaited skirts with coats were sold and made as the style that would last. By the first of July it was on the wane in America and utterly out in Paris. One has not seen a plaited skirt on any smart woman here since May.

This mistake has been duplicated in the hobble skirt, which was never a leading fashion among French women but which was extensively taken up by English and Americans. It has been out of fashion for two months, and not one was shown by the great houses at the openings, but that did not prevent dozens of them being exploited in America during the early Fall by those who had nothing really new to show, but made a pretense of offering styles that were to be.

The hobble skirt gave way to a plain, narrow, tight skirt, that has no name, but is exceedingly graceful and well made. Mark you, the last is very important. It will be badly made by a great number of incompetent cutters, and this may kill the fashion. It owes its grace to the fact that it is straight up and down, and reaches to a graceful line above the waist. If it were tight at the waist it would be entirely ugly. The omission of a belt is effective.

On all gowns there is a lack of fullness at the hem, and the train is eliminated. Gowns of last season that sweep the floor must be remodeled. There is something about the side and back lengths that are wrong, and they must be shortened and narrowed. Fortunately it is much easier to make a skirt narrower than wider, and there will probably be a battle of alteration going on over the land.

Some of the dressmakers, like Paquin, use a broad sash that drops from the shoulder to form a train; the two ends meet and cross at the hem, then trail behind the wearer. One cannot entirely approve of the style, and it is not probable that it will have wide vogue. It is a novelty and must be treated as such; one of the things that the dressmakers must do is to create something different from what has been.

It is not easy to see just where gowns are really new this year until one looks at those of last Winter, which, by the side of the new ones, seem hopeless. This is a discouraging thing, and will probably be brushed aside by the majority of women who each year insist that they will not follow the fashion, and end by conceding a good deal.

The tight sleeve was a case in point. When it suddenly came upon us after a season of full sleeves most women thought that it was merely a whim and that it would spend itsforce in a short time, but it remains with us as a dominant fashion. It is strongly in evidence this year.

Coat sleeves are exceedingly small, and so tight at the wrists that they are buttoned up after the arm is slipped through.

The new fashion, by the way, of fastening coat sleeves is by link buttons such as are used in a man's shirt. They are not of gold or silver but made to match the buttons used in front. Some are lozenges of satin mounted in a metal rim, others are of brass in bullet shape. The latter are especially smart for suits of navy blue serge for every day wear.

These buttons are held together by links or soutache and the buttonholes are ornamental. The more they resemble embroidery the better.

There is a good deal of embroidery done in soutache, by the way, and it now looks as though we were to see a good deal of it on the afternoon coat suits, as well as certain types of afternoon gowns. The soutache is combined with a broad silk basket braid that is quite effective. It is put on the front of the skirts, across the hips of coats to simulate pockets down the side seams of the skirts to give a panel effect, and at the top of coats to form a yoke.

One of the best coats for morning wear has a deep yoke made from three wide bands of the basket braid with a bit of soutaching in between. This reaches to a high collar of braid and satin, and there is one rever reaching from neck to bust. This fashion for one rever instead of two is gaining ground. It is attractive and is a change from the long shawl collar we have had with us for a year.

Writing of collars, there is a wide return of the old-fashioned sailor shape with its long square back and narrow fronts. It is put on coats and gowns, on wraps of every variety, and used separately in sheer fabrics on blouses. Another clever trick is to make it of black satin and wear it over a sheer white blouse. This does not mean the ordinary lingerie waist with its frill down the front, but the peasant blouse of white voile or chiffon cloth or marquisette, so much in favor with smart coat suits. These soft white blouses are quite charming, and they lend a better note to the skirt when one must remove the coat.

There is no reversal of the verdict concerning the colored glouse to match the suit when the costume is worn for anything important. With the rough tweed and cheviot suits which are in such high fashion the white blouse is used, but with all other suits one sees the blouses of the color, in voile, crepe marquisette and chiffon cloth. They have none of the snug, tight look of other days, because they are cut on peasant lines with what is known over here as the Magyar sleeve, which would keep any blouse from looking stiff and set.

There is no boned lining in blouses, as there are few in gowns, and the lining that is used is of chiffon or voile, so you can imagine how loose and Eastern they are. They must be cut on broad lines across the shoulders and under the arm, and sag a little above the high-waisted skirt.

One sees a good many Persian blouses made of gauze or chiffon, while many are of silk veiled with chiffon in the dominant tone of the design, but these are not quite as smart, pretty as they are, as the blouse to match the skirt with the Persian or Byzantine effect-worked out in heavy floss of crewels.

The rival of this design is Indian. Many of the embroidered bits are taken directly from the beading on the basket weaving of the American Indian. The Indian colors are as popular as the Byzantine ones. By this time, however, we have all gotten very used to the words Apache and Sioux.

Paris seems to have gone utterly mad over everything Indian, a craze which originated with the famous Apache dance, which they do not pretend to pronounce in its right way. By the way, this is an interesting case in the provincialism of Paris, which expects the outsider to pronounce its proper names in the proper way, but has no intention of being instructed in the way to pronounce the proper names of other countries.

The blouses gotten up with the Oriental or Indian coloring on a neutral surface, such as taupe, brown, marine blue or cloud gray, are very effective. The embroidery is put around the low neck and at the hem of the tight kimona sleeve. I say tight because it has the effect of clinging closely to the arm, although it is cut in generous dimensions. The under part is not so apt to reach the waist line as it did last Spring. The sleeve comes in much nearer to the armhole proper, and it falls closely against the arm at the top, therefore the appearance of being small and tight.

The embroidery is not put down the shoulder line and the top of the arm in the becoming way of last Winter. It is not used in this lengthwise form at all. It is massed over the bust in a point or a panel, and narrows to a band around the neck line.

This neck line is more or less high, according to inclination. The Americans and the English will continue to wear flat and plaited collars surround the peasant neck, without the high-boned stock above, but the French, who dearly love their Bernhardt, collar, will continue it in fashion.

The fashion of wearing a colored overblouse with an underslip of coarse ecru lace or thin linon is not new, but it has been developed in all sorts of attractive fashions during the last six weeks. The dressmakers and the shops are tempting in their display of them and the best part of it is they are so reasonably priced. The best ones are made of chiffon clota, with soutaching or embroidery to look like it.

Odd idea, isn't it, to do hand embroidery to imitate scroll work in soutache? Yet this is done over and over, and the French workers declare they would rather do the embroidery than put on the braid. All these blouses are cut in peasant fashion, as there is not the slightest suggestion of a change in this direction. This should be a matter of congratulation from every one, for rarely has there been a prettier or a more comfortable waist invented.

There is a fashion among some of the well-dressed women to have slips made of thin china silk, the thinnest procurable, and add a narrow yoke elbow cuffs of lace. This they use under the colored peasant blouse instead of lace and I think it is an improvement. They are lining chiffon with china silk over here a good deal, and the use of a slip of it gives the appearance of a regulation blouse.

Outside of the chiffon affairs there are many others, one of which is of an Oriental stuff which looks like refined canvas and is colored with brilliant designs arranged like bands. The foundation is ecru, the colors may be red, blue, and black. These sell at some of the shops for $1.50 and have a band of wide black silk braid at neck and sleeves. They are artistic and go in well with a variety of dark suits.

The fashion for using colored rubber and wooden beads for embroidery was brought out last Spring by Paul Poiret, and has increased instead of diminished. Such work, of course, gives the Indian effect. One hears the word wampum applied to this work on all sides. I wouldn't like to attempt to tell you how the French pronounce that word!

Because of this fashion all other beads have come into prominence again. Porcelain and china ones of all kinds are used, and white is preferred. Cut steel ones are in high favor; so are small pearls and rhinestones. The latter are called crystals.

The fashion for cut steel in every form is remarkable, and it vies with the use of porcelain, which is saying much. Some houses use the latter on almost every afternoon and evening gown they make. Lattice work, ten and fifteen inches wide, is put around the hem of the skirt and whole bodices are made of it.

Bodice is a rather formal word to use for the frivolous little affairs that are in fashion. The Frenchman who spoke of "the souvenir of a bodice and the regret of a skirt" must have been a prophet fortelling this Winter's fashions.

The skirts are all high, you see, and there are practically no sleeves except this peasant effect, with a little lace undercuff for day, and none for night; then the stuff is transparent, there is little lining, and the shoulder straps have been eliminated under sheer materials; therefore, a bodice resolves itself into a wisp of gauzy drapery.

Beading and embroidery are so mixed up in the majority of gowns that it is difficult to tell where one begins and the other ends. They are cunningly intermingled and the colors are put together exceedingly well. Brilliant ones are used. There is no attempt to make anything look anaemic or negative. While it is true there are not so many gorgeous colorings in materials as there were two years ago, it remains true that the general effect is brilliant because of the vivid beading and embroidery which are put on all dull surfaces.

Any one who learned to do the Indian bead work of a few seasons ago when belts of it were in fashion can do wonders with her gowns this season. The embroidery is still of the heavy Chinese kind, which has held on so long that we have quite forgotten there was ever a French kind, except for underwear, where it is still used.

The gown is one piece which fastens up front or back is in excellent style. It has undergone some changes from last year, or rather some extra varieties of it have been offered. There is still the peasant frock, with its extra broad waist and its narrow skirt without the hem—and the latter point is important. This is still worn by smart women.

It is made of black satin more often than any other material, but it is also seen in voile and marquisette, in silk cashmere and thin blue serge. Just why the black satin leads the rest is not difficult to explain, for it is far prettier and more graceful than all of them.

The skirt is narrowed by the cut of the gores, and not by being held in. It is trimmed with two wide lose folds of moire or satin. These are put on half way between knees and ankles. The skirt is high waisted, slightly gathered under thick silk cords that are knotted at left of back and hang nearly to floor.

The blouse is finished with a low chemisette of thin lace, which also covers the elbow and shows below the short satin sleeve. If one prefers, the chemisette is omitted and a plaited frill of fine linen is used instead.

It is considered newer to make these frocks of one material than two, as was the fashion last year, when a sheer fabric was draped over a satin one. This remains in fashion for evening.—Anne Rittenhouse in New York Times.

STRIKE BREAKERS SUE BOSTON FIRMS

Claim $15,000 on Old Bill Has Not Been Paid

Boston, Oct. 19.—James A. Waddell and Archibald Mahon, strike breakers of New York, have brought suit for $15,000, the sum, the complainants allege, due them for services rendered in the teamsters' strike in 1907.

According to the statement of the strike breakers, their services were valued at $400,000, and these terms were agreed to by the master teamsters. All but $15,000 of this was paid, and the complainants have tried to collect the balance several times. Now they have brought suit.

The strike was begun on April 4, 1907, and was not finally settled until June 15 of the same year. During all this time teaming and trucking work through the city was done by the men brought on here by Waddell and Mahon. At times the strike breakers employed 500 men. Their expenses were enormous.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Opening of Trial of Crippen on Charge of Murdering Wife

London, Oct. 19.—"Not guilty, my lord." With these words spoken in a terse, low voice by Dr. H. H. Crippen, charged with the murder of his wife, Mrs. Belle Elmore Crippen, the American music hall artist, the internationally famous trial was started in Old Bailey court. Miss Leneve, charged with being an accessory after the fact, was not present. She will be arraigned later.

The king's counsel pleaded in a dramatic manner for the conviction of the prisoner. In a booming voice he pointed out that the domestic tragedy of the Crippens was caused by a false love and greed of gold.

"For three years the defendant carried on an intrigue with Ethel Leneve, whom he desired to marry," exclaimed Barrister Muir.

Don't use a small, concentrated light over one shoulder. It puts an unequal strain on your eyes. Use a diffused, soft, mellow light that cannot flicker, that equalizes the work of the eyes, such as the Rayo Lamp gives, and avoid eye strain.

The Rayo is designed to give the best light, and it does.

It has a strong, durable shade-holder that is held firm and true. A new burner gives added strength. Made of solid brass and finished in nickel. Easy to keep polished. The Rayo is low priced, but no other lamp gives a better light at any price.

DEMOCRATS FIX THEIR TICKET

Foss and Cassidy Selected by Committee of Four

HAMLIN QUITS THE CONTEST

Mansfield, Who Was Named as Stop-Gap Candidate For Head of Bay State Ticket, Expected to Withdraw Before Legal Time For Such Action Expires—Riley Very "Sore" Over Losing Second Place

Boston, Oct. 19.—Eugene N. Foss was nominated as the Democratic candidate for governor by the committee of four yesterday. Thomas F. Cassidy of Adams was nominated as the candidate for lieutenant governor, and Charles J. Martell of Boston for secretary of state.

The balance of the state ticket follows: For treasurer, Benjamin F. Peach of Lynn; state auditor, Charles C. Paine of Hyannis; attorney general, John B. Ratigan of Worcester.

This action was taken by the committee of four after Robert Crowley of Lowell had presented the withdrawal of Charles S. Hamlin as a candidate for governor.

Hamlin's statement was as follows: "The present situation removes my name from further consideration under any circumstances. This is final and irrevocable."

Frederick W. Mansfield, who was nominated at the convention as the provisional candidate for governor, declined to place his withdrawal in the hands of the committee last night.

An attempt made to get his withdrawal by Chairman Macleod of the state committee and Chairman Maynard of the city committee failed. This is the only hitch in the situation.

It is stated, however, on the highest authority, that Mansfield will withdraw before tomorrow at 5 p. m., which is the last hour that he can withdraw under the law. Mansfield has stated that he would not withdraw for Foss.

It was pointed out last night that the mandate of the convention was that Mansfield would be obliged to withdraw for the nominee of the committee of four and that there was no other course that he could take unless he wished to set himself up in opposition to the expression of opinion from the convention.

There is no question but that Mansfield was not pleased with the selection of Foss, and his refusal to withdraw last night was said to be due to this fact. It was stated that he believed that undue haste would compromise his dignity.

The "sorest" man was Representative Riley of Malden. Up to 3 o'clock in the afternoon Riley had stated positively that under no circumstances would he withdraw as a candidate for the nomination for lieutenant governor. During the meeting of the committee of four Crowley insisted that Macleod and Maynard secure the withdrawal of Riley in order that the choice of the committee for lieutenant governor, Cassidy, might be protected.

The heavy guns of the Foss end were then brought to play on Riley. Foss himself went to Riley's office to plead with the latter to withdraw. Daniel Kiley, who is Riley's law partner, objected strenuously and it looked as if it would be impossible to mollify Riley. Others were then brought to the front and Riley finally yielded.

It is now thirteen days since the state convention. The state election is on Nov. 8.

Chairman Macleod expects to get both Hamlin and Vahey on the platform with Foss at a big ratification meeting early next week or possibly on Saturday night and to conduct a strenuous campaign from this date.

NEW JOB FOR TUTTLE

Former Railroad President Is Offered Boston Health Commissionership

Boston, Oct. 19.—Former President Lucius Tuttle of the Boston and Maine road is as yet undecided as to whether or not he will become a member of Mayor Fitzgerald's official family and accept the position of health commissioner which Fitzgerald personally urged him to take yesterday.

The mayor asked Tuttle to accept an appointment to the vacancy in the health board caused by the death of the late Health Commissioner North.

The mayor stated that while the position only pays a salary of $4000 a year and he realized that such a salary would not attract a man of Tuttle's ability and experience, he thought that Tuttle might accept the position because of his well known public spirit and thus give the city the benefit of his great business ability.

MASSACHUSETTS IS IN SEVENTH PLACE

Census Bureau Gives Present Population as 3,366,416

Washington, Oct. 19.—The state of Massachusetts has a population of 3,366,416 according to the enumeration made in the thirteenth census as announced by the director of the census. This is an increase of 561,070, or 20 percent over the population of 1900, when the total was 2,805,346.

In 1890 Massachusetts was sixth state in the union in point of population, but in 1900 Texas forced Massachusetts into seventh place. Whether Massachusetts will retain seventh place in the 1910 census cannot be determined until the statistics for the remainder of the states have been announced. Indiana is believed to be pressing close to Massachusetts for seventh place.

The percentage increases in Massachusetts for the last half-dozen decades are as follows: 1890 to 1900, 25.3; 1880 to 1890, 25.6; 1870 to 1880, 24.4; 1860 to 1870, 18.4; 1850 to 1860, 23.8.

OCEAN JOURNEY IS CUT SHORT

Wellman's Airship Is Wrecked and Abandoned at Sea

CREW RESCUED BY STEAMER

Last Heard From Off Massachusetts Coast, the America Having Drifted Southward at Mercy of Wind Until It Was 250 Miles Off Cape Hatteras—All Previous Records For Dirigible Balloons Probably Broken

New York, Oct. 19.—The dirigible balloon America, carrying Walter Wellman and his crew of five, was wrecked at sea and abandoned. Wellman and the entire crew of five were rescued and are on their way to New York on board the steamship Trent of the Royal Mail Steam Packet company's line, plying between Bermuda and New York. This information was conveyed in an official report from Captain Down of the Trent to his office in the following dispatch:

"At 5 a. m. Tuesday sighted Wellman airship America in distress. Signalled by Morse code that she required assistance and help. After three hours' maneuvering, with fresh winds blowing, took Wellman and entire crew on board. They were hauled safely on board. The America was abandoned in latitude 35 degrees 43 minutes north, longitude 68 degrees 18 minutes west."

Captain Down later notified his company that the Trent would arrived in New York today. According to the description given by him of the disaster to the airship, she was abandoned about 250 miles north by east of Cape Hatteras.

From 12:45 p. m. Sunday until Down's message was received the Atlantic had been swept from wireless stations along the coast. The America was last heard of off Siasconsett, Mass. At 12:45 Sunday afternoon the wireless operator in the Marconi station at Siasconsett sent a query directed to the America asking if all on board were well.

The reply, very feeble and indistinct, came back. It consisted of the single word "Yes." It was then estimated that the America was from 100 to 300 miles east of the Massachusetts coast, although her exact location was doubtful.

At that time and since the weather bureaus have reported mild weather off the Atlantic seaboard, with the exception of an electrical storm off Sable island, 100 miles off the Nova Scotian coast.

Although no official advices have been received as to how the balloon was wrecked, it is believed that it fell a victim to the Sable island electrical storm and was wrecked in a tempest of lightning and sharp contrary winds.

The America had evidently been blown out for to sea and drifted down past the gateways to the harbors along the coast between Boston and the southern ports. At 11 a. m. Sunday a message was received at Siasconsett, which said that the motors were shut down, owing to the dragging of the equilabrator in the water, which gave the airship a jarring motion injurious to the engines.

At that time it was reported that no damage had been done and no mention was made of bad weather. At noon Sunday the last message but one from the America said that Wellman believed he was southwest of Nantucket.

The America was equipped with all instruments used by navigators and many had been especially constructed. Among these was a barometer for the forecasting of weather.

The original plan was to turn the America landward if the weather became too dangerously threatening. As events have transpired, it is believed that the America was taken unawares by the storm probably late Sunday and has been drifting about in the air at the mercy of winds ever since.

The fact that the wireless instruments were working on the America indicated that the balloon had been inquiring for help through the agency of her wireless, although experts thought that probably the operator, Jack Irwin, has husbanded the precious electric "juice" and did not send calls for help except at long intervals.

The weather off the coast all along the Atlantic seaboard has been foggy and it is considered probable that Wellman did not know exactly where he was drifting.

Judging from the information received it is believed that Wellman has broken all dirigible balloon records. According to Down's report the America was in the air seventy-two hours.

Having left Atlantic City at 8:03 o'clock Saturday morning it was almost three days to the minute that the crew of the America were aloft. Down said that he first sighted the America at 5 a. m. yesterday, although the balloon was maneuvered in wind currents for three hours before the men were taken off.

The old record for continuous flight was made on May 31, 1909, by Count Zeppelin, who remained aloft for thirty-seven hours. Wellman doubled this.

MORENO AND RIVADAVIA

Fore River Contracts Bringing South Americans Here

The names of the two mammoth battleships for Argentina, for which the Fore River Company has the contract, are the Moreno and the Rivadavia, which are twin ships.

The building of these battleships is bringing a large number of South Americans to this country. In Quincy there are now 20 to 30, some of whom have leased furnished houses for two years ,and are entering into the social affairs of the city. All are studying English and making good progress.

On the U. S. ships California, Pennsylvania and Colorado, which reached San Francisco on Sunday from the Chilean centennial were ten Argentina naval officers who will spend six months on the warships for educational purposes.

A Portsmouth dispatch of Monday says six naval officers representing Argentina are studying the practical management of a modern navy on the U. S. S. Montana and Tennessee, now at this navy yard.

The officers come by order of their own government. Their coming was arranged through the U. S. state department, and they were cordially received by the navy department, instructions being sent to the ship commanders to permit them to inspect any branch of the service they desire.

Lieut. Andreas Hachard, Lieut. Ernique G. Plate and Lieut. Silvano A. Andrews are aboard the Montana. Aboard the sister ship Tennessee are Lieut. Guillermo Ceppi, Lieut. Ricardo Vago and Lieut. Jose Gorrochategui.

Though the Argentine officers are permitted to take part in all life aboard ship, they are not required to perform the duties of the ship's officers. They live at the mess with the line officers, and they are guests at the social functions. Aboard ship they are permitted to shape their work without restriction.

Lieut. Hachard is an electrical engineering officer. He is studying the electrical construction of the Montana. Lieut. Andrews, an engineering officer, is confining his attention to the mechanical branch of his department. The other officers are studying general conditions aboard the ships.

The officers were picked up in the southern maneuvers of the cruisers. Their names have been entered in the ship's rosters. It is said that he officers will eventually comprise an inspection board, and will probably be given service during the preliminary and test trials of the dreadnoughts.

GOSPEL TEAM COMING.

The text of the short talk given at the meeting at the Hall Place M. E. church Tuesday night was "Return unto me and I will return unto you saith the Lord." The Scripture lesson for the evening was the story of the Prodical Son . A good number were present and the service was both interesting and helpful. A duet was rendered by Misses Maud and Catherine Hodgkinson.

Tonight the service will be conducted by the pastor who will be aided by personal workers.

At the week-end services the pastor will be assisted by six consecrated young men who have been trained in Evangelistic work, and who are known as the "Gospel Team" of Boston University All are interesting speakers and good singers. They will assist the pastor Friday, Saturday and all day Sunday. There will be special song services, each evening and Sunday. Every one who comes will find a sincere welcome and all are invited to come.

REWARD DIVIDED.

At the time of the murder of Henry E. Hardwick by Restelli the family offered a reward of $500 for the arrest of the murdered, or $100 to the persons who should find his body. As has already been told, the body was recovered last Friday in the old Merrymount quarry by Officers Patrick H. Milford of Quincy and James R. Qualey of Braintree. Without waiting for a claim to be made for the reward, representatives of the Hardwick family have paid the reward of $100 to the two officers, dividing it equally.

Former Have Exceeded Later by $16,969.90

Now that overlays and abatements in the Assessors department are the subject of a legal opinion of the City Solicitor, the figures of the expert accountants who reported last spring to the Mayor and City Council will be of interest. The total abatements for the 21 years from 1889 to 1909 inclusive were $156,386.97, while the total overlays assessed (or appropriations) were $139,417.07. So that the abatements exceed the appropriations $16,969.90. Since 1896 in five of the years only there has been a surplus, but was more than offset in other years by large abatements.

Year	Overlays	Abatements
1889	$2,500.00	$3,742.74
1890	4,500.00	2,397.72
1891	5,664.87	2,477.50
1892	5,454.45	3,491.31

1909	7,525.15	7,329.33
	$139,417.07	$156,386.97

The second table shows the surplus and deficit each, there having been deficits in 12 of the 21 years, which is larger in the aggregate than the surplus:

	Surplus	Deficit
1889		$1,242.74
1890	$2,102.28

SHOULD BE A LOCAL HOLIDAY

Birthday Anniversary of Quincy President

Today is the 175th birthday anniversary of President John Adams, the second President of the United States. In honor of the event Benjamin King who has charge of the John Adams cottage on Franklin street has two flags displayed on the grounds and others in the old house which is in charge of the Quincy Mistorical society.

Outside of the display of flags at the cottage, but little is done in the city to keep in mind the birthday of Quincy's distinguished citizen. The rapid pace at which the present generation is travelling often makes those who did so much for this nation to be forgotten.

On all such days as the birthday anniversaries of Quincy's two Presidents, John Adams and John Quincy Adams, there should be public spirit enough to have the flags displayed on all public and private buildings, and some recognition should also be made of it in the public schools of the city as is done on Washington and Lincoln's birthday anniversaries.

WORLD IN BOSTON

Galahad Brotherhood to Help in Movement

The Galahad Brotherhood of Christ church were more than repaid for their efforts in securing the Rev. A. M. Gardner for their speaker Tuesday evening. Mr. Gardner, who is general secretary of the world-in-Boston movement, spoke to an audience representing Weymouth, Wollaston and Quincy, speaking very forcibly, with effectiveness, describing with vividness, scene after scene of the work that is laid out and that which is already done by the prodigious exposition.

This work will need a body of people 10,000 strong to carry it through. Mr. Gardner told his audience that this movement was to present conditions through out the world, so that the people of Greater Boston could see for themselves how other people lived in the north, south, east and west of this universe. Teach the people through the eye and not the ear, what the eye sees the mind is impressed with, but what the ear hears goes in one and out the other and is lost. Put people into a position to answer their own questions by observations. Produce the missionary field, and put real live Christians into it to act the part, in native houses and under exact natural conditions under which all foreign elements live, and you have a small conception of what is going to be exhibited in Mechanics hall, Boston, next April.

Mr. Gardner was loudly applauded at the end of his address. Classes will be held in parish house of Christ church by a representative of this movement to school people to participate in its work. Outside of this class the Brotherhood have elected members to carry out the business part of the work in which Christ church is involved, viz: Roy Prout, secretary of stewards; B. C. Miller, secretary of exhibits; R. King, secretary of advertising; W. Walker, secretary of sales of tickets; and F. Wrigley, secretary of music.

Another Victory Hammered Out by Philadelphia Team

COOMB'S CURVES EFFECTIVE

Cubs Unable to Solve Them Until Near End of Game—"Three-Fingered" Brown Knocked Out of Box In Seventh Inning, When Athletics Pile Up Six Runs—Many Thousand Witness Second Game

Philadelphia, Oct. 19.—By dazzling baseball from start to finish, the Athletics again trounced the Cubs. While thousands of fans cheered themselves hoarse, they made a total of two against the Chicago Nationals in the great world series.

The Athletics smashed "Three-Fingered" Brown for six runs in the seventh and the final score was 9 to 3.

Coombs went into the box for the Mack wonders, and pitched superb ball. He was wild at times, but always his team was on edge and held the Cubs safely. Davis, first baseman, too, got rattled and made two costly errors, but they didn't count in the final result. The Cubs simply could not connect with Coombs' curves until late in the game, when they bunched two hits in the seventh. The Athletics landed on Brown as often as they pleased.

Eddie Collins drove in two runs for the Athletics in the third inning, and they added another in the fifth. Chicago landed one in the first, but, although having men on bases time and again, with chances to score, they could do nothing until the seventh, when Chance drove in a run. A magnificent throw by Murphy from right field in the fifth shut off a great chance for the Cubs to score. In the seventh the Athletics landed on Brown and never stopped till they had scored six.

The Cubs started the ball rolling in the very first session. Sheckard walked, but Schulte forced him. Then Coombs gave Hofman four wide ones and Chance singled. This filled the bases. Zimmerman sent out a long fly to Strunk, Schulte beating the throw in for the first tally. With Hofman on third and Chance on second, Steinfeldt couldn't connect for anything and struck out.

Although Davis dropped two thrown balls and Coombs was a bit wild, the Cubs could do no more in the next two innings. In their part of the third session, the Athletics put over the two runs that took the lead and made the fans howl with delight.

Thomas put an easy bounder through the infield, and, running like a deer, beat the ball to first. Coombs failed to hit three good ones and was out. Strunk then placed a neat little bunt and the first two stations were occupied. Lord walloped one to Zimmerman, who shot the ball to Tinker, nailing Strunk. But Lord was safe and Thomas succeeded in reaching third.

This was the critical stage of the game. It was up to Eddie Collins, the famous second baseman. He was equal to it. The third ball pitched he lined a beauty down the third base line, and while the great crowd cheered madly Thomas and Lord crossed the plate. Collins was stopped at second by the ground rule.

The attendance was 24,597. Gross receipts, $35,137. Commission's interest, $3,513.70. Players' share, $18,973.98. Clubs' share, $12,649.32. The score:

FLAG PRESENTATION TO ST. STEPHEN'S CHAPTER

Also Public Installation of the Officers Elect and a Social Event

The Retiring High Priest Receives A Jewel

There was a large attendance of companions and ladies Wednesday evening at the flag presentation and public installation of the officers of St. Stephen's chapter Royal Arch Masons, at the Masonic apartments in City Square. The Harvard male quartette and Wilson's orchestra assisted in the ceremony, which was very impressive, especially the presentation of the flag.

The flag which was of silk with gold fringe was attached to a staff surmounted by a golden eagle. The colors were escorted to the room by a color guard of six companions costumed as Continentals, who were preceded by two drummers and a fifer costumed to represent the famous painting known as "The Spirit of '76."

Marching into the hall in front of the altar, Miss Gertrude E. Cleaves advanced to the oriental chair and presented the flag to the chapter in behalf of the wives and sisters of the companions of the chapter. As she concluded her presentation address the flag was unfurled and the quartette sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

Most Excellent High Prist Thomas D. Borst accepted the flag in behalf of the chapter, assuring the donors that it would always have an important place at convocations of the chapter.

As the flag was placed in its stand the quartette sang "America." The ceremony was a pretty one, and as the Continental guards retired they were given a spontaneous outburst of applause.

While prepairing for the installation ceremonies the quartette sang several selections.

Excellent Companion John Morgan as grand captain of the host, was then announced, who informed the high priest that Rt. Ex. Albert W. Fay was in waiting to install the officers. He was received with due honors and without further ceremony installed the following officers, the musical part of the ceremony being by the quartette:

High Priest—Roscoe M. Horton.
King—William H. Parry.
Scribe—Albert M. Willis.
Chaplain—John O. Hall.
Treasurer—Eben Hardy.
Captain of Host—Walter E. Piper.
Principal Sojourner—Lawrence Duncan.
Royal Arch Captain—Arthur F. Raymond.
Master Third Vail—Louis S. Cleaves.
Master Second Vail—John G. Roberts.
Master First Vail—David Hansen.
Senior Steward—Lafayette Gleason.
Junior Steward—Arthur Crowley.
Organist—Herbert Y. Follett.
Tyler—Dexter Remick.
Trustee—Elisher T. Spear.

The installation of James H. Webb as secretary will take place at a later date, as Mr. Webb was unable to be present on account of illness. Mr. Webb has been secretary of the Chapter for many years and the October convocation was the first that he had missed for seventeen years.

After the usual proclamation had been made, bouquets were presented to the installing officers and to Miss Cleaves. In presenting the bouquet to Rt. Ex. A. W. Fay, High Priest Horton said that it was particularly pleasing to have been installed by him for the reason that seven years ago when he was exalted, Excellent Companion Fay was the sitting high priest.

One more presentation followed when Rt. Excellent Fay presented the retiring High Priest, Thomas D. Borst with a Past Hight Priest jewel. At the close of the installation, refreshments were served being followed by dancing.

—The women of Indiana are inveterate politicians. Kin Hubbard says there is not a woman in the state 30 years old, who has not been at one time or another, one of the units in making a "human flag," and sang the "Star Spangled Banner" to welcome a visiting statesman.—New Bedford Mercury.

SENATORS BY POPULAR VOTE

Affirmative Wins at Debate of Mens Club

The first debate of the Men's club of Christ church took place Wednesday evening in the parish house. Question "Resolved that United States senators should be elected by popular vote." Principals on the affirmative were H. Marr and Joseph Grossman; on the negative, N. M. Spencer and Rev. R. E. Armstrong.

M. A. Turner presided at the debate. Others who spoke on the question were William Walker, Albert Newton, J. Marr and M. A. Turner.

The negative side contended that the country had not assimilated its foreign population sufficiently to warrant the direct popular vote. Furthermore if "the machine" can control the legislature it could also control the popular vote.

The speakers on the affirmative pointed out instances where the popular vote system had worked very satisfactorily, and gave figures to prove it. They maintained that the constitution was drawn up to cover the needs of 4,000,000. At the present day with the population nearly 20 times as great, radical changes were necessary. The people had outgrowa the constitution in that respect. The people as a whole should have the choice of senator in their own hands since the power he wields bears directly on them.

After over an hour of heated debate and argumentation a vote was taken on the merits of the presentation of the question, and the affirmative side won. All the speakers gave evidence of much preparation and the subject was thrashed out pretty thoroughly. The meeting was well attended and everything points to a very successful outcome for the year.

STATE HIGHWAYS.

A Boston paper says the hearing at Dedham on Wednesday for discussion of Norfolk county roads held under the auspices of the Massachusetts Highway Commission at the Court House was poorly attended. Col. W. D. Sohier of Beverly and F. D. Kemp of Springfield represented the commission.

Others present were County Commissioners John F. Merrill of Quincy and Silas A. Stone of Sharon. Selectman W. W. Littlefield of Avon and Superintendent of Streets Michael Driscoll, Dr. E. M. Bowker, a Selectman, and Thomas F. Cook, all of Brookline.

FIRE ALARMS.

The alarm from Box 173 at 2.46 Wednesday afternoon was for a fire in the woods of Quincy avenue on the line of the street railway power wires. More men were needed to fight the fire.

The alarm from Box 57 at 6.55 this morning was false and is said to have been rung in by some small boys.

FIRE AT HOUGHS NECK

No Alarm Given and Cottage Is Totally Destroyed

Everybody at "Calamity Corner" knows "Spot Thorn" "Spot" is a beautiful big setter dog. He is the friend of all the children, and early this morning proved his intelligence and friendship for all. It was Spot who jumped on his mistresses' bed and aroused her to her danger. Mrs. Thomas Thorn, awakened by the actions of the dog, felt the intense heat of her room, and the glare of the flames. She aroused her husband, screaming that the house was a fire. Upon arising she found it to be the house next them towards Quincy, situated only a distanc of about twenty-five feet from the Thorn home, and owned by a Mr. Leeman of Boston.

Mrs. Thorn threw on a wrap and ran bare-footed to Hose 5 and aroused Driver Malone. "Jim" responded in quick time. Upon arrival at the grounds, William Marcus, Mrs. Thorn's neighbor on the north side came out in his fare feet, and stood by Driver Malone and assisted him in handling the hose.

The house which was a two and one-half story frame was totally destroyed. It was partially destroyed about a year ago and folks are glad the job is done up good this time, although it would have made neighbors feel better if it had been during the day.

Fortunately there was no wind. Had there been a little breeze to the north the flames would surely have swept seven cottages to the Hose house. Driver Malone did not consider it necessary to call assistance, on account of favorable wind conditions, but he deserved a pile of credit for handling that job. Several trees were destroyed. The fire came and went so quick that only about twelve people knew of it.

The fire started at about 2.45 A. M. cause unknown, was under control at 3.10 and out at 3.30.

Houghs Neck is without police protection after 11 P. M. Is it fair for 200 families to depend on dogs and chances to save their lives and property? Is it not due us to have police protection "all night" at this beach? Has Hose 5 got to get along with only one man until January? Can Houghs Neck afford to sleep and let her homes burn, simply because there are no "Spot Thorns" in every home, or because no all night officers are paid to patrol the beach. We have good men in the departments, but poor intelligence from Quincy in the direction of their several duties. Several men will have something to say in this column tomorrow night. Watch for it.

Charles E. Decker.

SONG SERVICE.

The male and mixed chorus of the Swedish Congregational church on Garfield street will give a sacred concert or song service, this evening at 7.30 o'clock.

A splendid program including selections by the choirs, duets, quartettes, piano solos and a brief address by the paster, Rev. G. W. Palmgren has been arranged. The singing will be in charge of John S. Anderson. No admission is asked, but a generous free will offering for a deserving cause will be taken. The public is invited.

AVALANCHE AT QUARRY.

The largest avalanche in the history of the local limerock industry took place south of the Pleasant street iron bridge Wednesday, says a Rockland, Maine, dispatch to the Globe, when a mass of earth and limerock, estimated at 100,000 tons, fell from the eastern cliff of one of the Blackington farm quarries. But 15 minutes before the cavein occurred four men had been working on the edge of the cliff and eight others were in the quarry beneath. The fact that they had suspended work for noon-day lunch alone prevented the worst tragedy the city has ever known. As it was, the men were all out of danger when the crash came.

VICTIM OF PICKPOCKET

But Did Not Discover Loss For 24 Hours

Ex-Councilman Eugene R. Stone was the victim of pickpockets Tuesday evening, on the 5.45 train from Boston, although the loss of his pocket-book was not discovered until Wednesday evening, and then in a peculiar way.

Mr. Stone says that he carried his pocket-book in his hip pocket, the flap of which was buttoned. He remembered that as he left the train at Quincy Tuesday someone gave him a violent push, but he thought it nothing more than a little fooling. Wednesday he remained in Quincy all day, and wore another suit of clothing. That evening his telephone bell rang, and upon answering the call he found Frank Shay of Wollaston on the line. Mr. Shay said he called to inform Mr. Stone that he had found his Elks card in a car seat on his way out this evening. "But I was not in town today" replied Mr. Stone, "and my card is upstairs in my pocketbook. Just hold the line a minute and I'll run up and see."

It required but a minute to convince him that the book was gone, and he then recalled the pushing on the car.

Mr. Stone thinks that the fellow who picked his pocket must have left the Elks card in the car seat intentionally Wednesday evening so that someone might find it and return it to him.

Mr. Stone said there was about $35 ni money in the pocket-book, in addition to numerous papers and two railroad ticket books, a Quincy Yacht club card, etc. He said he did not care so much about the money, but he would like the papers back as they were valuable to no one but himself.

CONFERENCE OF CHARITIES.

Joseph Lee, one of the members of the Boston School Committee, has aroused considerable discussion by his declaration in favor of Sunday play. He believes that the Sunday laws, as they stand, are responsible for much disorderliness and other evil especially among the young people of the cities. It is his desire that the people shall seriously consider this matter as a foundation for future Sunday legislation of a more liberal sort. Mr. Lee has been the chief worker for the establishment of playgrounds in our cities and towns. His views on the importance of play are of great value. He will speak at the opening session of the State Conference of Charities in Fitchburg, on Wednesday evening, October 26, and will be listened to with great interest.

ANNES A. LINCOLN.

Mr. Annes A. Lincoln of 109 Lincoln avenue, Wollaston, passed away on October fifteenth, after a short illness at North Sutton, N. H., where he had gone for a brief vacation.

The funeral services were held at his late residence on Tuesday. An unusual gathering of friends and a profusion of flowers marked his position in the church, the business world, and the community. Rev. E. A. Chase of Wollaston, and Rev. E. A. Robinson of Hingham, conducted the services. Mrs. Harry Slade and Miss Ida L. Poor sang two of Mr. Lincoln's favorite hymns, "My faith looks up to Thee," and, "I'm going home."

The men of the Wollaston Foundry Company of which Mr. Lincoln was treasurer, stood in line on either side of the street as the carriages left the house. They expressed their devotion also by floral designs representing "Gates Ajar," and the symbols of "Faith, Hope and Love."

Mr. Lincoln was in his eightieth year, and had been a resident and leading manufacturer of this city for thirty-seven years. He was a man of great strength and nobility of character and will be much missed in the community.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Many who do not believe in the annexation of suburban cities and towns to Boston are fast coming to the belief that there is need of a more responsible government in the Metropolitan district than the commissions which now exert arrogant powers. Where money is authorized by the State for certain Metropolitan reservations and parkways, there is no assurance that it will be expended for that purpose. Quincy thought some years ago the connection of the Furnace Brook and Quincy Shore parkways was included in the budget passed for Metropolitan boulevards, but the commission passed us by. And it may again, for the people have no control over them.

When the Metropolitan Water board has insisted on needless expenditures of hundreds of thousands of dollars for the installation of water meters. These are needed for all business and manufacturing concerns ,but not at residences. There is no prospect of a shortage of water in the district for many years, and therefore we claim meters are an unnecessary expense. Especially when cities establish rules that the minimum price for water shall be $12, or $14 or $16 per annum. The thousands of dollars expended for water meters do not decrease the Metropolitan assessments. They do not increase the city revenue. They do increase the city debt, and thereby increase the annual appropriations necessary for debt and interest, and cause the tax rate to be higher.

In a Metropolitan district, controlled by a Metropolitan council, all taxes for water, sewers, parks, boulevards, etc., would be assessed on "valuation" as they should be, which is perhaps the strongest argument for a Metropolitan government.

We quite agree with the editorial of the Globe this week which is reprinted in full:

"Now that it has been determined officially that the total population of Greater Boston is 1,423,429, it is essential for the future growth and prosperity of the cities and towns represented by that number of residents that they should have a larger measure of self-rule. In other words, their local affairs should not longer be governed to the extent they are now by the state through commissions.

"In 1900 Gov. Crane declared in the most emphatic language that the metropolitan district should be given a breathing spell for financial recuperation, and he recommended that a stop be made at once to the authorization of expenditures for new work in the Greater Boston district.

"Cities and towns in Greater Boston are feeling the burdens of taxation due to the metropolitan improvements made in the past 15 years. Because of these burdens there is now an imperative need, in the 30 or 40 cities an dtowns affected ,for the creation of a new form of government relative to metropolitan affairs, which would at the same time not interfere with present methods of local self-government, but, on the contrary, strengthen them.

"The incoming legislature should consider this subject of improvement of government in Greater Boston and devise methods whereby the taxpayers can have a voice in the amount of money to be expended hereafter for transportation, parks, water supply, sewerage, etc., that have already added millions of debt to the communities concerned. The problem should be solved along business lines entirely. A spirit of civic pride should dominate all other considerations. We want the best possible kind of local self-government in Greater Boston, and can have it if all parties at interest will work harmoniously to that end."

BEES AND DEATH.

There is, or used to be a curious superstition, in English country places to the effect that, wherever bees were kept, if the owner died ,the bees must be informed. It was the custom to rap at the hive with the key of the house door and say three times: "Little brownie, little brownie, your master's dead, and you must work for "So- and-So," giving the name of the new owner. In Worcestershire, we find in Lean, bees were on one occasion, at least, informed of their master's death in the couplet: "The master's dead, but don't you go: Your mistress will be a good mistress to you."

If the bees were not informed, it was supposed they would die. Elsewhere crape used to be hung on the hives, and wine and honey left for the bees, and in some places, it is said, the bees are even nivited to attend the funeral.—Dundee Advertiser.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

A preacher's son was arrested in an eastern city the other day. He had transgressed the laws of the state, and probably will be severely punished by his fellow men. Much notoriety was given the case, although the crime was a most ordinary one. Other men have stolen far larger sums of money, and many other men have stood in the shadow of more severe punishment than awaits this preacher's son. Other men can commit crimes and there is no special reference made to their fathers' occupation, but let a preacher's son make a mistake, and the gossipers are set going at once. "What can you expect from a preacher's son?" is so easily asked by those who seem to expect preachers and their children to be immaculate specimens of human beings. It must not be forgotten that while your minister is doing a thousand and one things for the spiritual and material comfort of the members of his congregation on a salary that most bricklayers would despise, his children must necessarily be neglected to that extent, and they have each the same temptations to struggle against that your boy or girl face. The next time it occurs to you that preahers' children "are no better than they should be," read over this ist of preachers' sons:

Oliver Wendell Holmes, author.
Edward Everett Hale, statesman and author.
John Hancock, first signer of the declaration of independence.
Jonathan Edwards, theologian.
Increase Mather, former president of Harvard.
Cotton Mather, author and scholar.
Geo. Banroft, statesman and historian.
Louis Agassiz, naturalist
Henry Clay, statesman and orator.
Ralph Waldo Emerson, essayist and poet.
David Dudley Field, jurist.
Stephen J. Field, justice United States supreme court.
Cyrus W. Field, founder of the Atlantic Cable Co.
John B. Gordon, soldier and statesman.
Henry Ward Beecher, preacher and reformer.
Samuel F. B. Morse, artist and inventor.
Jas. Russel Lowell, author and diplomat.
Francis Parkman, historian.
Grover Cleveland, twice president of the United States.
David J. Brewer, former justice of the United States supreme court.
Jonathan P. Dolliver, senator.
Henry James, novelist.
Richard Watson Gilder, editor and poet.
Lyman Abbott, preacher and editor.

There are others too many to enumerate, enough to prove that were all men's sons up to the average made by preachers' sons there would be a much higher average.—Beverly Times.

A TRANSFIGURATION.

William Struthers

Though on drear sunless days
They shall stand shivering,
This morn the birch trees fling
Their leafless boughs through haze,
Whose tinted veil doth cling
About them, silken-soft—
As if dropped from aloft
By elves in sportive flight;
A mantle of delight
Through which the warm rays glide
In opalescent glow.
The latter season's tide
Or life begins to flow—
A magic life of dreams,
Bewitching woods and streams!
Though it shall came again,
Forgotten is the pall
Of yester's fog and rain;
And winter's trumpet-call
Its frost-sharp cry delays.
A wizard spirit strays
Among low-whispering boughs
That from a trance up-rouse;
As though to hark the praise
Of some enchanted queen
Sung 'thwart the pale-gold sheen,
Or to await the beat
Of phantom horses' feet,
And knights, in armor clad,
Whose eyes gaze long and sad—
As eyes of them who meet
No more in earthly ways.

—The fisheries of the Bay of Fundy are of enormous value. The fish taken include herring, cod, haddock, hake, halibut, alewives, salmon, shad, lobsters and sardine herring. At present there is an agitation in favour of action to preserve the shad fishery, as the catch is declining. The Board of Trade ofMoncton has asked other Boards to co-operate in a memorial to the Fisheries Department at Ottawa to take such action as may preserve the spawning grounds of these fish.

ARE PLANNING SECOND TRIP

Wellman and Vaniman Expect to Fly to Europe

HAMPERED BY EQUILIBRATOR

Retarded Flight and Weakened the America, Finally Causing Disaster—Exhaustion of Supply of Gasolene, Which Had to Be Thrown Out, the Direct Cause of Abandoning Airship—One of Wellman's Hands Injured

New York, Oct. 20.—Walter Wellman and his five companions were landed here by the steamship Trent, which picked them up at sea after they had abandoned their dirigible balloon America, and failed in the first attempt ever made to cross the Atlantic through the air.

Though Wellman was guarded in his statements, it became known that he had confided to his friends that he and Melvin Vaniman, chief engineer of the expedition, will at once begin preparations for the construction of another dirigible, in which they feel confident that they will be able to make a flight to Europe.

A bruised right hand, which Wellman carried in a sling,, was the only physical injury that resulted from their long voyage of arpoximately 900 miles, and a rescue the like of which is unknown to all history.

None of the aeronauts expressed regret for the loss of the America. They agree that it had served its purpose and taught its lesson. All stand ready to renew the attempt as soon as Wellman and his engineers find a way to conquer the difficulties that brought their first trip to its thrilling end Tuesday morning, 400 miles southeast of Sandy Hook.

Standing on the deck of the Trent, clad in the same suit of khaki he wore when he and his crew launched the America last Saturday at Atlantic City, Wellman made the statement:

"We thought we could not get along without the equilibrator. Now we find we couldn't get along with it. Our plans for the future are indefinite until we find something that will do what we thought the eqlibrator would do."

The "equilibrator" to which Wellman attributes the failure of his voyage, was the series of tanks containing gasolene which floated in the water attached to the airship by a long rope. Its purpose, in addition to storing gasolene and serving as a wireless "ground," was to keep the balloon steady, compensating for the expansion and contraction of gas due to changes in temperature, which would have made the America rise or sink erratically.

The America's experience proved that this floating tail, jerking at the delicately poised airship, made it impossible to steer or make headway in the desired direction and severely weakened the structure. To find another means of compensating for this unavoidable change in the volume of gas is the problem to which Wellman and his engineer, Melvin Vaniman, will now devote their attention.

The direct cause for abandoning the America was the exhaustion of the supply of gasolene, which had to be thrown out to save the airship. When the crew abandoned the balloon, only enough was left to last about twenty-four hours.

This is Wellman's description of how he hurt his hand:

"While we were afloat in our lifeboat trying to reach the Trent, I tried to grasp a rope thrown from the steamer. In some way the rope got twisted about my hand and before I could get loose it nearly tore off my little finger and badly bruised the rest of my hand."

The comparative unimportance of the injury, however, was demonstrated by the fact that as Wellman said this he held a cigar in his bandaged hand and was not obliged to let the member rest in a sling.

The other members of the America's crew said they felt as well as every, and they looked it. They are: Melvin Vaniman, engineer; J. M. Simons, navigator; J. K. Irwin, wireless operator, and Albert Loud and John Burt, air sailors.

There was also the gray kitten, which was so pampered by the women passengers aboard the steamer that her sides bulged with feeding. She had made the air voyage as a nameless cat, but on board the liner was promptly christened "Trent." She left the steamer on Vaniman's shoulder.

Disastrous Woodlands Fire

Leominster, Mass., Oct. 20.—Fifty thousand feet of sawed lumber, valued at $90,000, have been destroyed and 1000 acres of timber land burned over in a fire which is still raging in the "No Town District," which borders on Leominster, Westminster, Princeton and Fitchburg. Firemen are battling vainly to stay the progress of the flames.

Cholera on Ocean Liner

London, Oct. 20.—Two cases of cholera have been discovered on board steamship Araguaya, from Buenos Ayres to Southampton, with 1500 passengers.

REBUILDING FAMOUS HIGHWAY.

There still live in the West men who knew the old Santa Fe Trail in the days of its glory when mile-long wagon trains dragged slowly over hill and plain. The prairie schooner of that day has given way to the motor car of this, the bullwhacker has become a chauffeur, and the old trail has become the new—the New Santa Fe Trail— a motor speedway from the bank of the Father of Waters to the Plaza of Santa Fe. Over the old trail, these pioneers and their sons are spreading a boulevard one thousand five hundred miles long.

It is not merely a project, this New Santa Fe Trail. It is a solid actuality, which four states are pushing to completion, with Kansas and Colorado well in advance. The "whereas" and "be it resolved" stage has long been passed and the oratory has given way to the cunch of the steam grader. The New Santa Fe Trail is practically finished between Hutchinson, Kansas, and Canyon City, Colorado, at which latter place one branch ends. It is being pushed south from La Junta to Santa Fe and east from Hutchinson to Kansas City and St. Louis.

What thepreaching of twenty years has failed to accomplish, the motor car accomplished in one—the conversion of the Kansas farmer to good roads. In the western part of the state at the last count every third family owned a motor car. At the rate they have been buying them since it is probable that a car to every other family would be nearer the right figure. Every town has its motor club and garages have supplanted the livery stable. The farmers have their sociability runs with the townspeople and very frequently the merchants in the trading towns go out on extensive business tours, visiting the smaller places within a radius of fifty miles or so. With motor cars in such common use, good roads were not only desirable but a necessity.—From "A Fresh Trail to Santa Fe," in Technical World Magazine for November.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES.

Breakfast Puffs. Mix one saltspoon salt with one cup flour; add half a cup of milk slowly until a smooth paste is formed; add half a cup of milk with the beaten yolk of one egg and, lastly, the beaten white of one egg. Pour into well buttered gem pans, each two-thirds full, and bake until the puffs are brown.

Vegetable Oyster Soup. Scrape, slice thin one quart of salsify or vegetable oyster roots and drop them into cold water containing a spoonful of vinegar as soon as scraped, to keep them from turning dark colored. Put on to cook in boiling salted water to cover, and cook until tender. Add one pint of milk, salt to taste, thicken with a spoonful or two of flour rubbed smooth in a little cold milk, and just before taking from the fire add a cupfull of thin sweet cream. Crackers may be added if liked.

Corn Toast. Toast some slices of stale bread and butter them, then pour over some canned corn prepared as for the table sprinkling a little pepper over it, if you have not already peppered the corn. Do not prepare so long before serving as to soak the bread too much. Peas are also good used the same way.—Mrs. Bradford.

Cheese Balls. Beat the whites of two eggs stiff Have ready one-half cupful of finely grated chese. Mix cheese and beaten eggs quickly, mould into balls with floured hands and fry in hot fat. Serve while hot.

Peach Kisses. Beat the white of two eggs until very light and stiff, flavor with one-half teaspoon vanilla and then carefully fold in one cup of fine granulated sugar. Lay a sheet of paraffine paper over the bottom of a large baking pan and drop the mixture on the paper, in any size you wish, from the teaspoon to two tablespoons. Have them some distance apart, so they will not run together. Bake them in a very moderate oven and be careful to bake sufficiently—45 minutes is none too long.

They should be only delicately colored and yet dry all through. When done remove to a platter and break the top in, remove a little of the inside and fill with a pulp of sifted peaches, sweetened and mixed with equal parts of whipped cream. Sprinkle pistachio nuts over the tops and serve with fancy cakes.—Mary J. Lincoln.

—It may not be generally known, but it is a fact, nevertheless, that a flock of something like a dozen wild ducks have built nests on the little islet in the Public Garden pond, and are frequently to be seen there, in the Back Bay Fens and sometimes on the Frog Pond. It is thought by those in charge of the Public Garden that originally two ducks for some reason stopped in the Fenway and that the others have since been hatched in the Fenway or on the Public Garden.—Boston Record.

EIGHT BANDITS KILLED

Made Desperate Stand Until Overcome by Mexican Rurales

Mexico City, Oct. 20.—In a bloody battle between a company of rurales, the picturesque mounted national police of Mexico, and a strong band of robbers near Huazuntlan, Vera Cruz, a sergeant and a corporal of the rurales and eight of the robbers were killed. Five rurales were wounded.

Among the dead outlaws was the notorious Santanon, whose daring raids have caused a reign of terror through portions of Vera Cruz during the last ten months. The bandits made a desperate resistance and surrendered only after the death of their leader and half of the band.

Haverhill, Mass., Oct. 20.—Josephine Williams, 17 years old, died yesterday afternoon of ptomaine poisoning. She had suffered since a week ago last night, when she attended a church supper where canned salmon was served.

What brought on the attack the doctors cannot say. She was taken ill in the night after eating the supper. Her illness continued and when she seemed worse a doctor was called in for the first time and it was then that it was first known that she was suffering from ptomaine poisoning.

HIGH SCHOOL.

Miss Perkins, the singing teacher, is trying out the voices of the pupils for parts in the school singing.

* * *

It is rumored that the cover design for the Golden Rod is unusually good this year.

* * *

The football team goes to Dedham Friday for another interesting contest. Judging from comparative scores our High school should be the victor.

* * *

The suggestion that President Adams day be observed annually in the schools of Quincy, the birthplace of John Adams, is a good one. The date is October 19.

* * *

Enthusiasm counts in school success as in other walks of life. Here is a plan to be adopted in Malden. In order to arouse a better supporting spirit as the day of its game approaches, those closely indentified with Malden High's football interests have announced that a mass meeting will be held Friday night in the school hall. Although Malden is represented by one of the best teams in its history, and has been on thewinning path all season, the team has not received the support it is entitled to. On Saturday the team plays Somerville High in perhaps the hardest game it will have this season. The Hon. Alfred E. Cox will preside at the meeting. Prominent among those invited to speak at the meeting are Mayor Fall, Principal Lee, Superintendent of Schools Dempsey, Coach Charley Cuddy, Submaster and Teacher-Manager Thornton Jenkins. Capt. Henri Benoit, W. R. Reed, F. A. Bayrd and Joseph Wiggins.

The management of the Golden Rod has had men out seeking subscriptions to the magazine. They are meeting with success in their efforts, and it is easy to believe that the "yellow journal" will appear in the near future.

* * *

The basketball team will begin their work at the end of the football season. Most of the basketball players appear on the eleven and at present they are bending all their energies in the direction of the gridiron. The five men that represent the school on the floor this year should reflect credit on the school. Captain Bates will be missed at right forward, but Manning, Arthur, Harmon, Prout and the Chapman brothers are still ready to do business, and the prospects are decidedly favorable. The manager has the schedule well in hand and arrangements have been made with strong team for the most part. Two games have been arranged with Middleboro this year. Milton, Newton, Bridgewater, Thayer Academy and a number of others will probably be met.

Dedham High scored a victory on Wednesday over East Boston High 9 to 0.

* * *

Hudson High has not been defeated at football this year, and has played six games.

* * *

Brighton High won from Norwood High on Wednesday 24 to 6.

* * *

The Brockton High school has 1103 pupils, two less than in 1909. The total enrollment of the Brockton school is 9,120 which is 73 less than last year. The city has 30 school buildings 17 with less than 200 pupils each.

* * *

The collection which was taken last Friday for the benefit of the football team amounted to $28.31.

* * *

Manager Arthur of the basketball team has arranged 18 games, 10 home gmes and 8 out of town.

* * *

It is expected that a school concert will be given later in the year. Miss Perkins is trying out the voices of the pupils for parts in singing. The orchestra is organizing and regular practice will begin next week. There are lots of violin players in the school and plenty of accompaniments, but there seems to be a great scarcity of performers upon wind instruments and a 'cello player is needed.

PAROCHIAL SCHOOL.

New children are applying for admission each day and an effort is made to accommodate all who apply, but there is a tendency toward overcrowding in some of the rooms Owing to some misunderstanding work was delayed on the new desks and chairs for the scholars. In consequence the two extra rooms on the second floors have not been fitted up yet.

* * *

Two new teachers begin their work in the school this week. Until the two new rooms are fitted they will assist in some of the others which have more scholars than one teacher can handle satisfactorily.

EVENING SCHOOLS.

The evening school at the Adams building is making good progress under the direction of Mr. Townsend. Three rooms are in use at the present time. The greatest attendance for any one evening has been 113. About 17 nationalities are represented, and the majority of the scholars could neither read, write or speak any English when they started in.

GRADED SCHOOLS.

The teachers and principal of the Coddington school had a very pleasant outing last week at the home of Miss Garrity on Rock Island road. Sixteen teachers and Mr. and Mrs. Bentley were present. A lobster supper was served at 6 and in the evening music and a general good time were enjoyed.

* * *

Mr. Nowland, former principal of the Adams and Cranch schools was a visitor at the Adams school recently.

* * *

New sanitary towels are in use in all the school buildings. These are made of a paper fabric similar to that in paper napkins. A child tears off a strip from the roll and dries his hands with it very much on the same principal as that by which blotting paper dries ink. This does away with the common towel which is considered so unsanitary.

* * *

The boys of the 7th and 8th grades at the Cranch are divided into four teams, each squad having its own captain. These teams compete in several kinds of relay races straddle ball and ball tag. The four captains are Harold England, Paul Larkin, Earl Bates and George Norris. The team headed by Harold England is in the lead now, having won 11 contests and lost 8.

* * *

A Magazine club, composed of teachers of the Coddington school, is proving to be a very valuable organization for its members. The magazines they take are not pedagogical, but the best popular magazines of the day, Harpers, McClures, Worlds Work, the Ladies' Home Journal, etc By the payment of a very nominal fee each member has the use of all the magazines. Each member receives one magazine direct from the publishers each month, and by means of a regular rotation all the magazines are passed around so that each member has had a chance to read eight or ten of the best monthlies within two weeks from the time they are published.

* * *

The captains of the athletic teams for 7th and 8th grade boys at the Adams school are: John Swan, Henry Ford, Peter Williams and John Farquharson. The team headed by Peter Williams has scored the greatest number of points by winning six out of ten contests.

* * *

Two teachers of the Willard school are on the sick list, Miss Annie Z. White the Grade 3 teacher, and Miss Ellen Haley who has charge of Grade 2 were both out. Wednesday, and Miss White was obliged to be out Tuesday.

* * *

The class pin of the Quincy school in Atlantic bears the Quincy seal. The idea of the principal, Charles Sampson, is to have a rotation of colors as is the case in the High school. Every fifth year the color cycle will have made a complete revolution. Staple colors will be used since they give the best results in enamel work.

* * *

Miss Florence Howe, a Quincy school teacher, visited the schools of Newton on Wednesday.

* * *

One of the greatest difficulties with which the school principals have to contend is thematter of attendance. Many of the parents fail to recognize the fact that they are doing the child an injury by keeping him out of school without a valid excuse. The child is away for a lesson or two and the rest of the class has been advancing in the meantime. When he returns, after one or two vain endeavors to grasp the meaning of the lesson before him, he gives up. He has lost interest in the lessons and the teacher has lost her grip, for the time being at any rate, on the scholar's mind.

* * *

The truant officer gives only a portion of his time to the duties of that position because that is all he is paid for. Even so the city is his debtor because he gives more than an equal value of work for the money he receives. He gets around to the schools once a week and if a child has "played hookey" on Monday, and the officer is not able to get to that school until Friday, the thing has been forgotten, or is an old story and punishment is of little avail. In one school alone there is enough to keep the truant officer engaged during the whole of the time he can give to all ten schools. In most cities of equal size with Quincy a man is paid enough to warrant his giving all his time to the work. Every school is visited every day and the offenders are attended to properly. Quincy should attach more importance to the office and give the officer sufficient salary to enable him to give his whole time to he work. The attendance records would be greatly improved and there would be fewer failures among the pupils.

ON THE FRONTIER.

The National Indian War Veterans, an organization with headquarters at 1643 Market street, Denver, Colorado, at their last regular meeting decided to send two delegates, Henry Hegwer, teh national commander, and C. R. Hauser, the national secretary, to Washington, D. C., to inaugurate a vigorous campaign for the purpose of procuring pensions for those noble and brave soldiers who defended the frontier in the early days, and who have so far been unjustly neglected by this government, whose great western empire they so valiantly protected, making it possible for this generation to develop its unlimited resources and live in peace and prosperity.

INTRODUCTION NEEDED.

The public-spirited lady met the little boy in the street. Something about his appearance stopped her. She stared at him in her near-sighted way.

The Lady: "Little boy, haven't you any home?"

The Little Boy: "Oh, yes'm; I've got a home."

The Lady: "And loving parents?"

The Little Boy: "Yes'm."

The Lady: "I afraid you do not know what love really is. Do your parents look after your moral welfare?"

The Little Boy: "Yes'm."

The Lady: "Are they bringing you up to be a good and helpful citizen?"

The Little Boy: "Yes'm."

The Lady: "Will you ask your mother to come and hear me talk on 'When Does a Mother's Duty to Her Child Begin'? next Saturday afternoon at three o'clock, at Lyceum Hall?"

The Little Boy (explosively): "What's the matter with you, ma? Don't you know me? I'm your little boy!"—Boston Courier

HIGH SCHOOL.

Miss Perkins, the singing teacher, is trying out the voices of the pupils for parts in the school singing.

* * *

It is rumored that the cover design for the Golden Rod is unusually good this year.

* * *

The football team goes to Dedham Friday for another interesting contest. Judging from comparative scores our High school should be the victor.

* * *

The suggestion that President Adams day be observed annually in the schools of Quincy, the birthplace of John Adams, is a good one. The date is October 19.

* * *

Enthusiasm counts in school success as in other walks of life. Here is a plan to be adopted in Malden. In order to arouse a better supporting spirit as the day of its game approaches, those closely indentified with Malden High's football interests have announced that a mass meeting will be held Friday night in the school hall. Although Malden is represented by one of the best teams in its history, and has been on thewinning path all season, the team has not received the support it is entitled to. On Saturday the team plays Somerville High in perhaps the hardest game it will have this season. The Hon. Alfred E. Cox will preside at the meeting. Prominent among those invited to speak at the meeting are Mayor Fall, Principal Lee, Superintendent of Schools Dempsey, Coach Charley Cuddy, Submaster and Teacher-Manager Thornton Jenkins. Capt. Henri Benoit, W. R. Reed, F. A. Bayrd and Joseph Wiggins.

The management of the Golden Rod has had men out seeking subscriptions to the magazine. They are meeting with success in their efforts, and it is easy to believe that the "yellow journal" will appear in the near future.

* * *

The basketball team will begin their work at the end of the football season. Most of the basketball players appear on the eleven and at present they are bending all their energies in the direction of the gridiron. The five men that represent the school on the floor this year should reflect credit on the school. Captain Bates will be missed at right forward, but Manning, Arthur, Harmon, Prout and the Chapman brothers are still ready to do business, and the prospects are decidedly favorable. The manager has the schedule well in hand and arrangements have been made with strong team for the most part. Two games have been arranged with Middleboro this year. Milton, Newton, Bridgewater, Thayer Academy and a number of others will probably be met.

Dedham High scored a victory on Wednesday over East Boston High 9 to 0.

* * *

Hudson High has not been defeated at football this year, and has played six games.

* * *

Brighton High won from Norwood High on Wednesday 24 to 6.

* * *

The Brockton High school has 1103 pupils, two less than in 1909. The total enrollment of the Brockton school is 9,120 which is 73 less than last year. The city has 30 school buildings 17 with less than 200 pupils each.

* * *

The collection which was taken last Friday for the benefit of the football team amounted to $28.31.

* * *

Manager Arthur of the basketball team has arranged 18 games, 10 home gmes and 8 out of town.

* * *

It is expected that a school concert will be given later in the year. Miss Perkins is trying out the voices of the pupils for parts in singing. The orchestra is organizing and regular practice will begin next week. There are lots of violin players in the school and plenty of accompaniments, but there seems to be a great scarcity of performers upon wind instruments and a 'cello player is needed.

PAROCHIAL SCHOOL.

New children are applying for admission each day and an effort is made to accommodate all who apply, but there is a tendency toward overcrowding in some of the rooms Owing to some misunderstanding work was delayed on the new desks and chairs for the scholars. In consequence the two extra rooms on the second floors have not been fitted up yet.

* * *

Two new teachers begin their work in the school this week. Until the two new rooms are fitted they will assist in some of the others which have more scholars than one teacher can handle satisfactorily.

EVENING SCHOOLS.

The evening school at the Adams building is making good progress under the direction of Mr. Townsend. Three rooms are in use at the present time. The greatest attendance for any one evening has been 113. About 17 nationalities are represented, and the majority of the scholars could neither read, write or speak any English when they started in.

GRADED SCHOOLS.

The teachers and principal of the Coddington school had a very pleasant outing last week at the home of Miss Garrity on Rock Island road. Sixteen teachers and Mr. and Mrs. Bentley were present. A lobster supper was served at 6 and in the evening music and a general good time were enjoyed.

* * *

Mr. Nowland, former principal of the Adams and Cranch schools was a visitor at the Adams school recently.

* * *

New sanitary towels are in use in all the school buildings. These are made of a paper fabric similar to that in paper napkins. A child tears off a strip from the roll and dries his hands with it very much on the same principal as that by which blotting paper dries ink. This does away with the common towel which is considered so unsanitary.

* * *

The boys of the 7th and 8th grades at the Cranch are divided into four teams, each squad having its own captain. These teams compete in several kinds of relay races straddle ball and ball tag. The four captains are Harold England, Paul Larkin, Earl Bates and George Norris. The team headed by Harold England is in the lead now, having won 11 contests and lost 8.

* * *

A Magazine club, composed of teachers of the Coddington school, is proving to be a very valuable organization for its members. The magazines they take are not pedagogical, but the best popular magazines of the day, Harpers, McClures, Worlds Work, the Ladies' Home Journal, etc By the payment of a very nominal fee each member has the use of all the magazines. Each member receives one magazine direct from the publishers each month, and by means of a regular rotation all the magazines are passed around so that each member has had a chance to read eight or ten of the best monthlies within two weeks from the time they are published.

* * *

The captains of the athletic teams for 7th and 8th grade boys at the Adams school are: John Swan, Henry Ford, Peter Williams and John Farquharson. The team headed by Peter Williams has scored the greatest number of points by winning six out of ten contests.

* * *

Two teachers of the Willard school are on the sick list, Miss Annie Z. White the Grade 3 teacher, and Miss Ellen Haley who has charge of Grade 2 were both out. Wednesday, and Miss White was obliged to be out Tuesday.

* * *

The class pin of the Quincy school in Atlantic bears the Quincy seal. The idea of the principal, Charles Sampson, is to have a rotation of colors as is the case in the High school. Every fifth year the color cycle will have made a complete revolution. Staple colors will be used since they give the best results in enamel work.

* * *

Miss Florence Howe, a Quincy school teacher, visited the schools of Newton on Wednesday.

* * *

One of the greatest difficulties with which the school principals have to contend is thematter of attendance. Many of the parents fail to recognize the fact that they are doing the child an injury by keeping him out of school without a valid excuse. The child is away for a lesson or two and the rest of the class has been advancing in the meantime. When he returns, after one or two vain endeavors to grasp the meaning of the lesson before him, he gives up. He has lost interest in the lessons and the teacher has lost her grip, for the time being at any rate, on the scholar's mind.

* * *

The truant officer gives only a portion of his time to the duties of that position because that is all he is paid for. Even so the city is his debtor because he gives more than an equal value of work for the money he receives. He gets around to the schools once a week and if a child has "played hookey" on Monday, and the officer is not able to get to that school until Friday, the thing has been forgotten, or is an old story and punishment is of little avail. In one school alone there is enough to keep the truant officer engaged during the whole of the time he can give to all ten schools. In most cities of equal size with Quincy a man is paid enough to warrant his giving all his time to the work. Every school is visited every day and the offenders are attended to properly. Quincy should attach more importance to the office and give the officer sufficient salary to enable him to give his whole time to he work. The attendance records would be greatly improved and there would be fewer failures among the pupils.

WOODWARD INSTITUTE.

The Senior class will give a reception to the new class Friday afternoon. The arrangements are in charge of the Senior class officers.

* * *

An informal reception will be given to Dr. and Mrs. Felice Ferraro (Miss Frances Lance) at the Woodward Institute on Saturday evening at 7.30. All former pupils of Mrs. Ferraro are invited to be present.

OTHER SCHOOLS.

It was a happy thought at Beverly on Monday when 3,000 school children gathered and waved a parting salute to President Taft when he left the summer capital. They line up on both sides of Lothrop street between Hale and Stone streets and the President passed through in an automobile.

* * *

A glee club is proposed at Brockton High school.

* * *

The Junior class of the Whitman High school will have a supper at the Town hall, Nov. 3.

* * *

At a fire drill at the Brockton High school on Monday the building was emptied in 95 seconds.

* * *

The Senior class at Randolph High school will present a desk to the teachers for the teachers room.

* * *

The Plymouth County teachers' convention will be held at Brockton next week Friday. Department meetings have been arranged.

ON THE FRONTIER.

The National Indian War Veterans, an organization with headquarters at 1643 Market street, Denver, Colorado, at their last regular meeting decided to send two delegates, Henry Hegwer, teh national commander, and C. R. Hauser, the national secretary, to Washington, D. C., to inaugurate a vigorous campaign for the purpose of procuring pensions for those noble and brave soldiers who defended the frontier in the early days, and who have so far been unjustly neglected by this government, whose great western empire they so valiantly protected, making it possible for this generation to develop its unlimited resources and live in peace and prosperity.

INTRODUCTION NEEDED.

The public-spirited lady met the little boy in the street. Something about his appearance stopped her. She stared at him in her near-sighted way.

The Lady: "Little boy, haven't you any home?"

The Little Boy: "Oh, yes'm; I've got a home."

The Lady: "And loving parents?"

The Little Boy: "Yes'm."

The Lady: "I afraid you do not know what love really is. Do your parents look after your moral welfare?"

The Little Boy: "Yes'm."

The Lady: "Are they bringing you up to be a good and helpful citizen?"

The Little Boy: "Yes'm."

The Lady: "Will you ask your mother to come and hear me talk on 'When Does Mother's Duty to Her Child Begin'? next Saturday afternoon at three o'clock, at Lyceum Hall?"

The Little Boy (explosively): "What's the matter with you, ma? Don't you know me? I'm your little boy!"—Boston Courier

BRIEFS

Two storms are approaching.

The morning prediction was rain today and tomorrow.

Mrs. Edward Cruikshank of Easton is the guest of Quincy friends.

Manet encampment, I. O. O. F., has been invited to work the golden rule degree for Old Colony encampment at Brockton on Nov. 7.

Members of John Adams commandery, K. of M., witnessed the block degree as performed by St. Johns commandery of Brockton this week.

One of the most interesting exhibits at the Mechanics Fair is the Edison products. George W. Holden of this city is in charge of the storage battery department.

Capt. Michael Green of the Trawler Foam reports that he and the crew saw Wellman's balloon on Sunday when about 75 miles east southeast of the Highlands off Cape Cod.

The Ward Six Republican committee will tender a reception to Hon. J. Mitchell Galvin, candidate for congressman from the Tenth district, next Tuesday evening at the residence of Herbert S. Barker.

At the regular meeting of Abner B. Packard Camp 95, Sons of Veterans, to be held on Friday night, a social evening has been arranged and all eligibles to the order of Sons of Veterans are cordially invited to be present.

Frank E. Hollis of South Braintree, a well-known local newspaper man, who has been working all summer in Lawrence, has accepted the offer to take charge of the Hartford office of a gas company. Mr. Hollis has been spending the past two days with his parents at South Braintree.

—Under the new automobile law in New York state no person under 18 years of age is permitted to operate an automobile in that state, and "joy riding" is punishable by a fine of $500 or two years' imprisonment. If the new law is strictly enforced, this form of diversion is not likely to be as popular as it has been. The rapid increase in the use of motor cars makes the regulation of their operation an absolute necessity in the interests of public safety, and New York's example may be followed in other states where life and limb are not so wisely safeguarded.

WILL OF PARTY MUST PREVAIL

Mansfield Therefore Withdraws as Candidate For Governor

FOSS STATES HIS ATTITUDE

Stands Firmly on Platform Adopted by State Convention and Selects High Cost of Living, Reciprocity With Canada and Tariff as Paramount Issues—Says Democrats Have Arguments Which Will Win the Election

Boston, Oct. 20.—Frederick W. Mansfield, who was nominated by the Democratic state convention in Faneuil hall on Oct. 6 as the "provisional" candidate for governor, has withdrawn. He issued the following statement:

"When I was nominated for governor by the Democratic convention at Faneuil hall it was under the express condition and solemn pledge that I should withdraw if the committee of four appointed at the same time should agree upon another candidate. The committee has so agreed, and it only remained for me to withdraw accordingly. I have kept my pledge and I have withdrawn.

"All arguments that can fairly be used against a candidate before a nomination are legitimate and proper. But, as the convention has spoken through its committee and has now made a nomination, any personal views of mine are overshadowed and overruled, and the will of the Democratic party must prevail."

Eugene N. Foss, Democratic candidate for governor, made a statement to a Boston newspaper that he believed fully in all the planks of the platform adopted by the convention and he selected the high cost of living, reciprocity with Canada and the tariff as the three paramount issues in the present campaign.

Mr. Foss declared that the chances of success for the Democratic party in the state were never brighter. "We shall win the fight and win it easily," he said.

"Will the delay in choosing the candidate and the incident friction have a bad effect on the party chances?" he was asked.

"No, on the contrary, I think it will do us good. It think it will be worth 500 political speeches. It has awakened interest in the party. It has directed the attention of all the party to the fact that there is a fight on.

"It will unite the members," declared Foss. "In two days all the disagreements will have been forgotten and we will be together stronger than ever to present a united front to the enemy. We can win and we will win. We have the issues on our side. We are going to get back to the real issues—the high cost of living, the tariff and reciprocity. Every argument is with us and we are going to win.

"I know that many of the papers and many people have been against my candidacy. That is all fair. They had a right to their choice. Now that the choice has been made, they will unite with me and will do everything for my candidacy. I have no fear of the result. We will win."

LOYAL TO THE CUBS

Chicago Fans Not Discouraged Over Loss of Two Games

Chicago, Oct. 20.—In spite of their two successive defeats at the hands of the Athletics, setbacks which have convinced Chicago fans that Chance's team is not the only baseball organization in the big leagues, the Cubs were given a tremendous reception when they arrived here from Philadelphia, and from the warmth of the greeting accorded them there is little doubt but that the West Side enthusiasts are just as loyal as of yore.

The demand for tickets is even greater here than it was in Philadelphia, and all sorts of prices are being offered for the pasteboards. A greater assemblage even than that which saw the opening game at Philadelphia is expected today.

STREET CARS CRASH

Thirteen Passengers Are Injured In Wreck at Kittery

Portsmouth, N. H., Oct. 20.—Two cars on the Atlantic Shore line street railway, carrying nearly 100 workmen to the navy yard, crashed at the foot of Fort Hill, Kittery, causing serious injury to three passengers and badly bruising and cutting ten others.

There was much confusion owing to both cars being closed, but a number of the men escaped by dropping from the window and those who were able assisted the men pinned in the wreckage.

Banker Kills Wife and Self

Pensacola, Fla., Oct. 20.—R. A. Bushnell, cashier of the Citizens' National bank, shot and killed his wife and then committed suicide. No motive can be ascribed for the crime.

SUES FOR $10,000,000

Attorney Causes Consternation at Illinois Central Meeting

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Stockholders of the Illinois Central Railroad company had a lively hour and a half at their annual meeting, owing to the presence of Attorney Edgar, who held sixty shares of the 784,866 shares of stock represented. Edgar was accompanied by two deputy sheriffs, who added to the confusion by serving subpoenas on various directors during every lull in the meeting.

The subpoenas were in a suit for $10,000,000 damages, which Edgar, constituting himself an attorney for the road, started in the circuit court. The defendants to the suit are the directors of the road, whom Edgar seeks to hold responsible for alleged financial loss through alleged car repair graft, general mismanagement and alleged rebating.

While the two deputies were serving papers in the meeting, half a dozen others guarded exits from the building.

INTERESTED IN Y. M. C. A.

Taft In Conference With Delegates of the Organization

Washington, Oct. 20.—This morning in the White House, President Taft on his own initiative held a conference with representatives of Y. M. C. A. organizations from many states east of the Mississippi river, at which were present representatives of foreign governments, on the subject of Y. M. C. A. work for young men in foreign countries.

The president observed some phases of this work on his last trip abroad and became deeply interested. There were present at the conference as delegates Arthur S. Johnson, president of the Boston Y. M. C. A., Jacob P. Bates, its vice president, Lewis A. Crossett, chairman of the executive committee for Massachusetts and Rhode Island, and Henry H. Proctor.

DEW REPEATS STORY IN LONDON COURT

Crippen Trial Delayed When One of the Jurors Faints

London, Oct. 20.—The prosecution continued its case against Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, charged with the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore, by introducing the testimony of Inspector Dew of Scotland Yard, who pursued the doctor and his companion, Miss Leneve, across the Atlantic and brought them back to England under arrest. The inspector's evidence was a repetition of the now familiar story which he had recited previously in the lower courts.

While Alfred A. Tobin, chief counsel for Crippen, was cross examining Dew with the object of showing that the defendant exhibited no trace of anxiety or nervousness during the police investigations at his Hilldrop Crecent home, one of the jurors fainted and the court was adjourned for two hours.

TO PRESS LIBEL SUIT

McReynolds Will Act For Government In New York World Case

Washington, Oct. 20.—The principal argument for the government in the case of the United States against the Press Publishing company (New York World), which the supreme court is to take up in a day or two, on a writ of error by the United States, from the decision of the circuit court of the southern district of New York, quashing the indictments the federal government had secured, on the ground of libel, in connection with Panama canal purchases, will be made by James C. McReynolds of special counsel for the department of justice.

Attorney General Wickersham will not participate in the arguments. It is understood that Delancy Nicoll and John B. Lindsay will appear for the publishing company.

ELKINS SERIOUSLY ILL

Nervous Affection of Senator Has Reached Critical Stage

Elkins, W. Va., Oct. 20.—Senator Stephen B. Elkins, the senior senator from this state, is in a critical condition at his home, "Halliehurst."

The senator is 67 years of age and his condition has been such that this summer for the first time in many years he has been unable to go abroad as had been his custom, or even to be moved from this district.

He has been suffering from a nervous affection, which has now reached the critical stage.

Insanity Plea For Gallagher

Woolen Mill Burns

Stafford Springs, Conn., Oct. 20.—The large mill of the Fabyan Woolen company here was practically destroyed by fire. Several employes were injured by jumping from the windows of the upper stories. The loss is about $100,000.

POTHIER FOR A THIRD TERM

Again Heads Ticket of Rhode Island Republicans

NO OTHER CHANGES MADE

State Officers Unanimously Renominated by Convention—Taft Administration and Payne-Aldrich Tariff Bill Indorsed In Platform—Retirement of Senior Senator After Long Service Is Regretted

Providence, Oct. 20.—Governor Aram J. Pothier of Woonsocket was renominated for a third term by acclamation at the Republican state convention held here. All the other state officers were unanimously renominated. The state ticket follows:

Governor, Aram J. Pothier of Woonsocket; lieutenant governor, Zenas W. Bliss of Cranston; secretary of state, J. F. Parker of Providence; general treasurer, Walter A. Read of Gloucester; attorney general, William B. Greenough of Providence.

Representative Jennings of Cranston was temporary chairman and was made permanent chairman. In his address Jennings recited the achievements of the national and state administrations. In his opening he said:

"The opportunity for public service that the hour affords places a grave responsibility on this gathering, for we must not be unmindful that we represent the only agency where decent and efficient administration of public affairs can be looked for."

The platform adopted by the convention starts off with an indorsement of the Taft administration, expresses gratitude to Senator Aldrich for the honor conferred on the state by his achievements and regrets his retirement after twenty-nine years of service, indorses the tariff and the state administration and calls for support of the convention's nominees on the party's record.

Of the Taft administration the platform says: "We indorse the able, dignified and progressive administration of William Howard Taft."

Next it takes up the legislative achievements of the administration and refers to the revision of the tariff, the regulation of the railroads, the establishment of postal savings banks, the punishment of the white slave traffickers and the addition of two new states to the union. The language used regarding the tariff follows:

"The tariff has been revised according to the basic principles of the Republican party to protect American labor and capital and encourage home industries. The Republican party of Rhode Island again asserts its approval."

Of Senator Aldrich it said: "We sincerely regret that Nelson W. Aldrich, who for twenty-nine years has represented the state, has declined to accept another term. We express our confidence in his integrity and our gratitude for the honor he has conferred on his state by his achievements."

The platform contains a plank calling for the establishment of a bureau on taxation to make a further study of tax problems.

ACCIDENTS COST $500,000

One Reason Why Railway Should Not Maintain Ambulance Corps

Boston, Oct. 20.—That the Boston Elevated Railway company paid out $500,000 last year on account of injuries occurring to passengers on its lines is one of the interesting statements contained in a letter which President Bancroft has sent to Mayor Fitzgerald in reply to the mayor's request that the company establish an ambulance corps.

Mr. Bancroft points out that the Elevated contributes money to several hospitals, pays $125,000 for the use of the city streets and $1,500,000 in taxes, and on that basis he believes that it is entitled to the services maintained by the city and its hospitals.

HOLDS SEVEN TOWN OFFICES

Leicester Man Is Also Bank Cashier and Club Janitor

Leicester, Mass., Oct. 20.—Town Clerk Henry Evans says he will be a candidate for town clerk again. He is town clerk, collector of taxes, clerk of the selectmen, clerk of the board of health, clerk of the overseers of the poor, clerk of the registrars, sealer of weight and measures.

He is also assistant cashier at the Leicester Savings bank, janitor of the Leicester club, and a member of the Spencer I. O. O. F.

With the nine offices, his time, he says, is not limited.

Mandao Gets Twenty Years

Manila, Oct. 20.—Simeon Mandao, ex-governor of Ilicos Norte, who recently headed an uprising in the province of Nuova Vizcaya, was sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment. He received the minimum punishment in consideration of having pleaded guilty and turned state's evidence.

FUND OF $500,000

Alleged to Have Been Raised For Use as Race Track Graft

New York, Oct. 20.—The reported raising of a $500,000 corruption fund to fight the anti-race track bills caused a sensation at the hearing before the Marritt joint legislative committee.

It was claimed by Robert Elder, assistant district attorney, that former Senator Gardner confessed that the money was used to bribe politicians, newspapers and others.

According to Elder, James R. Keene, Harry P. Whitney, Charles H. Hyde and other New York business and social leaders contributed to the fund. Two of the newspaper men accused denied the charge, branding the so-called confession a lie.

Gardner, called to the stand, refused to testify, but Elder, the next witness, repeated a conversation he said he had with Gardner in March last, which has been previously referred to as a "confession."

CITY CONTRACT ENJOINED

Equity Court Judge Disapproves Surrender to Union Labor

Boston, Oct. 20.—Judge Richardson, sitting in the equity court, ordered an injunction to issue restraining the city of Boston from paying any money to Peter F. Dolan and the latter from proceeding under the contract recently awarded to him by Superintendent Fish of the public buildings department of the city of Boston for installation of electrical equipment in Curtis hall.

The court held that the award to Dolan was illegal because it was given to him and not to James Wilkinson & Co., a lower bidder, because a delegate had called upon Fish and informed him that Wilkinson did not employ union labor and was unfair to it.

This decision is one of the most important to organized labor that has been handed down in years.

EXPLOSION THROWS PEOPLE FROM BEDS

Bomb Outrage In Italian District of New York

New York, Oct. 20.—Somebody dropped a powerful dynamite bomb into a sewer excavation on Prince street, in the heart of New York's East Side Italian district, and the explosion which followed rocked the earth for a radius of several hundred yards as if by an earthquake.

Two nearby tenement houses were badly damaged but all the occupants escaped injury. Two hundred windows were broken and damage estimated at $4000 was done to walls and store fronts.

The shock of the explosion was so severe that all the tenement dwellers in the two buildings were thrown from their beds. They fled in panic to the streets. No clue to the identity of the bomb thrower was found by the police.

GREAT BENEFIT TO SCIENCE

Cornish Pitch Blende Makes Big Addition to Radium Supply

London, Oct. 20.—Official announcement is made that the first 500 milligrammes of radium have been produced in England from Cornish pitch blende. A continuous supply of British radium is thus assured for the future.

For the last eighteen months work has been proceeding quietly at the Frenwith section of the St. Ives consolidated mines in Cornwall, where pitch blende is being produced regularly in considerable quantities. From the pitch blende ore fair quantities of uranium oxide and other uranium products are daily being manufactured and the extraction and purification of radium bromides is now being worked out by continuous process.

Denies That Peary Reached Pole

Berlin, Oct. 20.—Professor Andreas Falle, the German astronomer of Potsdam, issued a sensational statement declaring that Commander Peary did not reach the North Pole. He declared that none of Peary's methods were reliable.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

OVERTAXED

Hundreds of Quincy Readers Know What it Means.

The kidneys are overtaxed;
Have too much to do.

They tell about it in many aches and pains—

Backache, sideache, headache.

Early symptoms of kidney ills.

Urinary troubles, diabetes, Bright's disease follow.

A Quincy citizen tells here the way to keep the kidneys well.

Mrs. George McDonald, 133 1-2 Quincy Street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I have more faith in Doan's Kidney Pills than in any other remedy I have ever known of and it gives me great pleasure to publicly recommend them. For at least six months I was feeling all out of sorts as the result of kidney trouble. I became tired easily and had but little strength or energy to do my housework. Pains through the small of my back annoyed me a great deal. A friend, knowing of my condition, advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. A short time after beginning their use, I was helped and I now feel like a different person."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

AUCTION AT ROKER'S GULCH.

Roker's Gulch had no benevolent societies or charitable organizations; and as they were mostly young men, in the prime of their strength, they were able to care for the poor; if not, there was the almost invariable partnership of two together, so that if illluck befell one, the other looked out for him.

This simple arrangement of society answered very well indeed for most purposes; while the camp as a whole felt itself equal to special occasions, of any sort that might arise. Anything that needed to be done could be and should be.

"Old Howe," was an exception at Roker's. He was at least fifty years old. He lived and worked alone. He was a quiet man whom nobody knew much about. Not that here was any mystery connected with him; there was not much to know.

He had failed in business a dozen years or so before "back in the States." Then his wife had died. In California any one might find gold and so he came there to look for some.

His one child, a girl of ten, had put her arms around his neck, and kissed him goodby as he left her, promising to write and to send her some of the gold. He had written once or twice at first; then he waited till he should find the gold to send her; so he had never written any more Perhaps because his purpose waited for fulfillment he thought of her too, as waiting a child as he had left her, not a grown-up young woman at all. When he spoke of her, it was always as his "little gal."

After he had come to the mountains he had drifted from place to place. If he never found anything of any account, he had the chronic expectation that possesses a miner, which is neither hope nor enthusiasm, but a habit that he cannot break away from.

At last he had come to Roker's Gulch. His dug-out cabin, a mile above the camp, was so much made of stones and earth that it seemed a part of the mountain side itself. It was a mile above the camp, and the last cabin at the Gulch, except one, that one belonged to Jack Harlink and Burney Scott. These two were coming down to camp one afternoon, swinging along down the easy grade, with the up-gulch wind in their faces, and the sharp click of their boot-heels now and then on the stones.

Opposite Howe's cabin they glanced at the open door. They had not seen him lately. They noticed him sitting on a stool before the fireplace, which was just opposite the doorway.

They turned up to the place. Howe did not move. "Hallo!" said Jack. 'What's the matter?"

Then the figure before them turned slowly. Such a gray, hollow face!

"Mountain—fever," he said, with effort.

He had been sick for a week, and had just managed to get up and get a little fire started in an attempt to get something to eat. They brought water, made coffee for him, and promised to bring him supplies when they came back.

The camp at Roker's Gulch had one long street, across which the saloons and stores stared at each other and vaunted their rival attractions. There were plank sidewalks and irrigation ditches. The end of the sidewalk in either direction was regarded as the city limit.

"What's your hurry, b'ys?"

The voice came from just within the door of Shag's Club House.

"Oh, hullo, Tom!" said Burney, as they wheeled about to face the speaker.

"Hullo yourselves. An' where would ye have got to if I hadn't stopped ye?"

The speaker was "Big Tom" O'Harra.

"About down to the corner, I reckon," answered Jack, good-naturedly.

"Well, this is a better place than any corner. Come in. The b'ys'll begin to collect soon; it's a good place to spend the evening."

"Maybe it's as good as any for what we want," responded Jack, as they stepped in.

The room was large. The bar was extensive, and showy along one side of it. Just now, except the bar-tender, Big Tom was the only occupant. He evidently felt the need of society.

"An' what do you want?" he continued.

"The last news from Lone Pine."

Lone Pine was the latest mining excitement. All over the State, indeed, men talked of it. The newspapers quoted and reported it. Little rills of men and burros were flowing along the trails toward it; Lone Pine blankets and shovels and frying pans were in the market. Roker's, like all the rest, were stirred up about it.

"You'll get the latest bulletin here before the evenin's out. It'll be yisterday's an' day before's over ag'in. 'Gold for the pickin' up.' When we've heard it times enough, we'll belave it, an' we'll all go. The foot of the rainbow's right there now."

"Well, I want something else," said Jack; "and as you know so much, maybe you will tell me what to do about it."

"I will," said Tom, positively. "Go ahead."

"Old Howe's sick with mountain fever. It's been on him for a week or more now. We found him on the way down. Somebody's got to help him, or he'll just naturally perish there all alone."

Big Tom was an authority at Roker's. He was six feet two, and a man of unhesitating action. His word carried weight. He was an invaluable ally when his sympathies were aroused.

Jack was glad they found him. He felt that as he and Burney were the only ones who knew of Howe's need, it was their move to do something about it. He felt that in some way he must appeal to the camp; but he was not sure what its temper or resources would be, or what was the best way to get at it.

Now Tom had committed himself to the task of telling him what to do, so he would be sure to help do it. "Auld Howe is sick!" repeated Tom, slowly. "How sick is he?"

"He'd got up and got a fire," said Jack "but he hadn't the strength to cook, and just sat before it. We fed him. Then he got back to his bunk. He's bad enough. His mind isn't very straight. He knows you well enough, but he's been thinking so much, while he lay there sick about his little girl and the old times before he come to the mountains that he's pretty near forgot about Roker's altogether. Keeps saying—if he could only see his girl once more before he dies. Maybe he'll die, maybe he won't. I think if we could chip in and send him out to 'Frisco before the snow flies, he might get along somehow. He ain't fit to be in the mountains any more."

Tom had been gazing intently at one of the gorgeous pictures that Shag had put on his walls, but he was thinking of Old Howe, sick in his dugout and heart-broken besides. It was not just what he expected when he told Jack that he would tell him what to do. He was casting about in some uncertainty for the right thing when Jack stopped.

"What has he?" he asked at length.

Jack laughed a little at the idea of old Howe's assets.

"Not a cent, likely. He's got a fry-pan, and a pick and shovel, and a pair of mighty poor blankets. Thats about all."

"Oh, hold on,' said Burney, "he's got a burro."

"Well, so he has," admitted Jack, "a little one."

"It's a whole one, if it is little."

"He can't ride to 'Frisco on it."

They were all silent a moment, then Tom spoke:

"I'll tell ye as I tould ye I would. Go get his things, an' his burro, if he's willing and has the sense to know he can't make use of them himself any more. Bring them down here right away. We'll have an auction of them tonight. The b'ys'll chip in, that way. Go get the things. I'll fix it with Shag."

Jack and Burney went out.

Shag was no philanthropist, but one of the most sordid of men. It was not in the least to be expected that he would let his room be used for an auction, for the sake of helping anybody; neither would persuasion amount to anything with him.

This Tom knew well enough; but also knew that Shag would appreciate the chance of getting the crowd away from his rival at the Opera House, on the other side of the street, and of selling them drinks after the auction was done.

So it proved. Then, having arranged that, Tom went about to advertise the affair and by the time Jack and his partner got back, the camp was looking for them, and the clubhouse began to fill up promptly.

It would have sounded strange if any one had said that Jack Harling was nervous over anything; but he was a little over this. He had just to tell himself to go ahead and make a start. So he stood upon a settee, and called the meeting to order.

"Boys," he began, "we're going to have an auction here this evening. You all know Old Howe, he's down on his luck."

"He never had no luck, anyway," interjected a listener.

"That's right," admitted Jack. "He never had. He ain't no capacity for luck. But this time he's regularly beat. He's got mountain fever; had it bad for a week and nobody knew about it. It's broke him all up. All he talks about is wishing he could see his little girl back in the States just once more. He can't help himself, and if we don't help him, we might just as well appoint a committee right now to attend to his funeral services. It won't be long, I reckon, before this camp empties itself out on to the Lone Pine trail. We shall be gone, but the snow will come. It will be as white and still as death up the gulch. We ain't going to go and leave him there, and have it to think of afterward. If we can send him out to 'Frisco he'll stand a chance to get along. I've got his tools and his burro here to sell for him. I want you to bid on 'em, not what they're worth, but for what it'll be worth to him."

Jack stopped abruptly. He had grown ardent in his speech; now he was not quite sure, whether he had said what he meant, or the right thing at all. His audience, however, seemed interested.

"Go on, Jack, you're all right," called a voice.

"We'll go on with a bid for the shovel," said the auctioneer. "Who'll make it?"

There was a little pause. Then a mean-faced man, near the door, said: "Ten cents."

Jack winced at this. To accept a ten-cent bid meant failure at the very start.

The man who made this bid was the proprietor of the Opera House, who had come to promote a failure of the affair, if he could.

Before Jack acknowledged it Tom's voice was heard:

"Speak up louder and don't be keepin' all the fun to yourselves." Tom had heard perfectly—"was it tin dollars I heard? That's a good start."

"Ten dollars," repeated Jack, blandly, with a questioning glance toward the meanfaced man. It was his turn to wince. The boys were laughing sympathetically with Jack. Popularity was worth money to him. He felt that he had made a mistake.

"Yes," he said, shortly.

"Ten; am I bid twelve?" Jack was saying.

"Twelve from the Tuesday Mine, boys," said a voice.

"Twelve—twelve. Some other mine want it at fifteen? Fifteen! Fifteen!"

"Fifteen from the Lost Trail. Fifteen—going at fifteen to the Lost Trail. Gone."

"If it hadn't started at ten," though Jack, "it never would have brought it."

The pick came next, and with much chaffing and joking, brought six dollars. Some drills and other implements something more.

Then Burney Scott's voice was heard outside the door, with "Hallo! Let us in."

The men parted a little, and he stepped forward. He had the end of a rope in his hand. Then he stopped because the rope tightened and stopped him. Those who could see through the door began to laugh.

"Well, why don't us come in?"

"Where's the rest of us?"

"Oh, yes Come in—come right along."

"Don't wait!"

Burney leaned his weight back on the rope and laughted. Burney's laugh was always one of the infectious kind. He was quite safe to put his weight on the rope for just over the doorsill four little hoofs were well braced against him, while a small gray face with two bright eyes and a pair of enormous ears, set sharp forward, gave not the slightest sign of consent to the proceeding.

"Say, boys, you'll have to help me," said Burney, when he got his breath.

The boys were in an uproar of hilarity. Four of them seized the reluctant little burro, and, lifting her bodily, carried her in, and set her up on the settee beside Jack.

"Now," cried the auctioneer, as soon as he could be heard, "some of you want your packs carried to Lone Pine, here's your chance."

But the boys were in no hurry to proceed to business. They made fun of the burro, which was, indeed, an entirely comical figure—a shaggy little beast, with an immense head, tiny feet, and an expression of irreconcilable astonishment. They bantered Jack. They sky-larked with each other.

Jack began to be afraid of this interruption. He could do nothing, however, but stood waiting, with his hand on the burro beside him.

"It's a tableau worth having," called somebody. "Yes—Mary and her little lamb," responded another.

There was a general laugh; then Burney caught the cue of the situation, and with his fine voice began to sing.

They made a splendid chorus of it, and it sent the affair back into Jack's hands again, as Burney intended.

"What am I bid for the lamb?" he said, as the singing stopped.

"Twenty dollars."

Now Roker's Gulch, being a long and narrow settlement, arranged its matter-of-course rivalries accordingly. Upper Town and Lower Town were always wrangling over something.

Jack glanced round the room as he repeated the bid. Then turning toward a corner where several Upper Town men happened to be, he said:

"Twenty dollars for the Lower Town. Who bids for the Upper?"

"Twenty-five." immediately responded an Upper Town man.

So the rivalry began over the burro, and bids and banter and general hilarity were mixed together for Jack to handle as best he could. Step by step the offers grew, till the burro was quoted at forty dollars.

Jack looked for no more, when the Sweepstake Mine, represented by four men, who meant to start for Lone Pine in a few days—one of whom was Big Tom himself—bid once more "Fifty dollars'

They took the burro and finished the auction. But before the words "Going-going-gone!" were fairly out of Jack's mouth, Big Tom was heard from again.

"Now, b'ys, we'll have a collecshin from them as hasn't bought anything; and we'll send Auld Howe clear back to his little gurl herself; thin if we've any money left we can drink to her good health with a clare conscience. Whats the use of lavin' him adrift in 'Frisco? Here's me hat. Pass it about, an' don't be afraid av spoilin' it by loadin' it too heavy."

And when the hat reached Jack it was heavy.

"Now hand over me burro," said Tom.

There was an instant's pause Jack heard a gasping sound and felt a tremor run through the little animal at his side. Then, with head outstretched, it began to bray "Ee-haw! Ee-haw! Ee-haw!"

The effect was explosive. The crowde roared and laughed, and stamped and cheered, till it could hear no more; then shook itself free into the street and broke up.

A week later Old Howe, in special charge of the stage driver, started for 'Frisco, and by him was ticketed through, second-class, to St. Louis, with money enough besides to take him the rest of the way.

Over the foothills, through the mountains, across sage-covered mesas, out on to the great plains, and on, he came at length to the place where he had left his little girl so long ago. And did he find her? Not exactly. But he found a young woman who put her arms round his neck and kissed him, just as his "little gal" would have done, and who had a home of her own, with a place for him in it.

So it was all right.—Wallace E. Mather, in Independent.

PAULINE CHASE
Erstwhile Pink Pajama Girl
Announces Her Engagement

TO BE BRIDE OF AVIATOR

Pauline Chase Will Quit Stage After Marrying Grahame-White

New York, Oct. 20.—Friends of Claude Grahame-White, the English aviator, are congratulating him on the announcement of Miss Pauline Chase, the "pink pajama girl," to be his bride soon. Miss Chase has had many admirers since she ceased romping about the stage in the famous pink pajamas and went to England to play in "Peter Pan."

The engagement was announced after she finished her work on the stage of the Knickerbocker theatre, where she is now playing. As she left the theatre with Grahame-White to go to a supper, where the engagement was announced to twenty-five of their friends, she said:

"Yes, it's true that we are to be married, and I am very happy. We will be married next spring in London." Miss Chase said that after they were married that she would leave the stage.

WOMAN CANDIDATE FOR STATE OFFICE

Fulfilling Her Duty as Member of the Socialist Party

Waterbury, Conn., Oct. 20.—Mrs. Ella R. Bloor has issued her letter of acceptance of the nomination of secretary of state on the Socialist ticket.

She does so, she says, believing that she fulfils a duty as a member of the party, and in recognition of her responsibilities as an advocate of the cause of equal political rights for women.

She points out that there are 50,000 self-suporting women working under the laws of the state which govern their work and in the making of which they have no voice. She says that one of the aims of the party is to overthrow wage slavery.

Dandérine

GROWS HAIR and we can PROVE IT!

A lady from Minnesota writes:
"As a result of using Danderine, my hair is close to five feet in length."

Beautiful Hair at Small Cost

HAIR troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment; when baldness occurs the scalp has simply lost all its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions.)

The natural thing to do in either case, is to feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Knowlton's Danderine has a most wonderful effect upon the hair glands and tissues of the scalp. It is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is similar to the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp.

It penetrates the pores quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities.

One 25-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself.

NOW at all druggists in three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle.

FREE To show how quickly Danderine acts, we will send a large sample free by return mail to anyone who sends this free coupon to the KNOWLTON DANDERINE CO., CHICAGO, ILL., with their name and address and 10c in silver or stamps to pay postage.

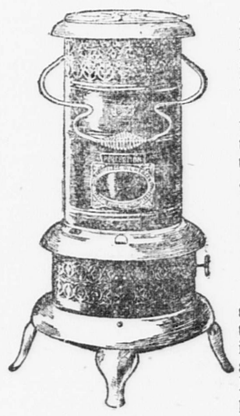
Fresh Air in Winter



In winter, it is hard to get fresh air in certain rooms. Some rooms in a house are usually colder than others, and if you open the windows it is hard again to heat the room properly.

If you keep the windows closed you don't get fresh air; if you keep them open you cannot quickly reheat the room. The solves the difficulty. You can leave the windows in a room open all day in winter, and when you close them apply a match to a Perfection Oil Heater and heat the room to any temperature you desire in a few minutes.

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

Absolutely smokeless and odorless

The Perfection Oil Heater is finished in japan or nickel. It burns for nine hours. It has a cool handle and a damper top. It has an automatic-locking flame spreader, which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back so that the wick can be quickly cleaned. An indicator always shows amount of oil in the font

The filler-cap does not need to be screwed down. It is put in like a cork in a bottle, and is attached to the font by a chain.

The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, because of a new device in construction, and consequently, it can always be easily unscrewed in an instant for rewicking. The Perfection Oil Heater is strong, durable, well made, built for service, yet light and ornamental.

GOOD CHECK FOR HOSPITAL

As Result of Shows at the Auditorium

"Hospital Day" at the Auditorium Wednesday afternoon and last evening proved to be a very successful affair and as a result the collection for the Hospital this year will be $55.20 bigger than otherwise. This sum is the total of the receipts taken in at the three performances at the popular moving picture house on Hancock street, and it will be turned over to the treasurer of the hospital. Peter M. Sullivan, the well known newspaper man, who has been handling the publicity during hospital week, was in the box office as the representative of the trustees of the hospital, and after the performance, Manager Jelatis handed him a check for the above named sum.

The affair was very gratifying to all connected with it, and the trustees wish to thank the manager and all who attended for the kindness shown, in coming to the show and thereby helping the hospital. Many people gave more than the ordinary price of admission and to these the trustees are doubly grateful.

It is the desire of the publicity committee to publish the names of all the collectors in the various wards, but so far the publicity man has been unable to get all the names. If each of the chairmen in the different wards will kindly send the names of their collectors to Peter M. Sulivan of South street, Quincy, the list will be published at once.

TODAY'S COURT.

Daniel Sandry and Raymond H. Proctor were fined $3 costs each for gunning on the Lord's day at Weymouth.

John F. Morril of Weymouth was brought in on a default warrant for drunkenness and fined $10.

EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS.

The largest number of people who have attended the week night meetings were present Wednesday night at the evangelistic service at the Hall Place M. E. Church. The pastor gave a short talk on "Real prosperity and the way to obtain it," taking as his text "He that covereth his sin shall not prosper, but whoso confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy." At the close, decisions were made and souls came to Christ.

Considerable interest is being felt by many of the West Quincy people in the coming to the community on Friday night for over Sunday of the Gospel Team of Boston University. The six young men are well fitted for the mission upon which they come and many are praying that the blessing of God may attend their efforts, and that many sous may be won for Christ. All are most cordially invited to the service Friday night at 7.30, and to the services that follow Sunday will be a day of special interest to all.

MAKARIA AVERAGES

Capt. Eggleton Awarded the Box of Cigars

The Makaria Baseball Team, under the management of Paul H. Frohwein, rounded out its most successful season and of the 23 games played, came out with 17 clean victories. Quite a few of these games were won over well known semi-professional teams of prominence.

Seven of the players this season received calls from professional league teams and made good in all the games they played. This weakened the team somewhat, but the manager played new men in the vacant positions, and thus gave some local boys a chance to prove their ability.

Following are the batting averages of the players for the past season, Capt. Eggleton receiving highest average and thereby winning a box of cigars offered by Mr. Shunk the Wollaston news dealer.

	Games	A. B.	Hits	Av.

LOCAL SPORTS.

The Young Men's Christian Association have been most fortunate in securing 25 tickets for Harvard-Brown football game at Cambridge Saturday. The first 25 members of the boys department applying to Mr. Clee at the Y. M. C. A. will receive a free ticket for the game. This is one of the big games of the year, and in order that a fair chance will be given to the boys, every boy wishing to go must apply after the issue of this paper.

Local fans were disappointed that there was no game yesterday in the World's series at Chicago. Rain may also prevent the game today.

Y. M. C. A. SCHOOL.

The Y. M. C. A. night classes in mechanical drawing started Tuesday evening. The enrollment is larger than usual and with a competent instructor like L. B. Doane, to conduct the course, excellent results should be accomplished. The new Y. M. C.A. electrical school will open Monday evening, Oct. 24.

ESPERANTISTS.

A good deal was written about Esperanto when the International Congress was held at Washington this August, and it is fitting that the public should know a little of what has happened since. Accordingly, Dr. D. O. S. Lowell, president of the Boston Esperanto society will tell of the Congress and of the status of Esperanto, in the Boston Public Library lecture hall, Saturday evening, at 8 o'clock. Following him, according to the program, there is to be a brief recital from "As You Like It," rendered in Esperanta, and then the audience will be given a general insight into the international language in a half-hour's "first lesson." Classes in Boston are to be held this year, as formerly, and they will be announced before the close of the meeting. The Secretary of the New England Esperanto Association is Dr. C. H. Fessenden, 34 Pelham street, Newton Center, who may be addressed for information with regard to the international language.

BY AUTO TO MAINE

Very Enjoyable Trip at This Season of Year

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Penniman and Mrs. George T. Magee, returned Wednesday evening from an extended automobile trip which took them to Winthrop, Me., a town sixty miles beyond Portland. The party left Quincy last Thursday morning 5.30 in Mr. Penniman's Regal car, the first stop being made at Portmouth which was rached at 9.30. From here an account of the roads being torn up they were obliged to take a round about circuit which took them through Kittery Point. It was while passing through here that Mrs. Magee discovered a house on fire. A quick stop was made, and while Mr. Penniman ran to notify the occupants of the house and assist in extinguishing the fire, Mr. Magee who made the outward trip, ran half a mile to a fire alarm box and summoned the fire department.

After rendering what assistance was possible the trip was continued through York beach and other towns to Kennebunk where stop was made for dinner. From this point the route took the party through Portland, Gray, Auburn, Lewiston and several small towns to Winthrop. The distance from Kennebunk to Winthrop was 83 miles and but one stop of five minutes, at Lewiston, was made in covering this distance, Winthrop being made at 6.15 P .M. The distance of over 183 miles having been made at a speed that averaged 18 miles an hour. It was a severe test for any automobile and the Regal made it without even a skip of the engine or a break down of any kind.

On the homeward trip Thursday the Regal worked equally as well and no better running car could be desired by any one. Leaving Winthrop at 9 A. M. several stops were made along the way to call on friends in Newburyport, which delayed them somewhat so that Quincy was not reached until 10.30.

The whole trip was a most delightful one, the scenery along the route being very beautiful. In many places the roads were rough and sandy, making it necessary to run slow in places. These rough roads gave the car a severe test, but it stood it well, and the most exacting person could not ask for a better running car, than the Regal proved itself to be. Mr. Penniman is the local agent for this type of car and feels justly proud of the manner in which it stood the test put upon it.

Robbed of Her Happiness.

"You are not looking well, Mrs. Willington."

"No; I haven't slept well lately."

"What's the trouble? Has the weather affected you?"

"Oh, no, it isn't that."

"I'll tell you what it is. You ought to give up the practice of drinking coffee at night. I know a lot of people who toss awake all night after they have been out to a late dinner and finished with coffee. I had to quit it myself."

"I'm sure that isn't the cause of my trouble."

"Have you seen a doctor?"

"No. A doctor couldn't help me any."

"But how can you tell until you go to one and let him examine you?"

"Well, if you must know, I'm worrying about my husband. He hasn't kicked at the size of the bills lately, and he's been so kind and even tempered right along for a month or two that I feel almost sure he must be leading a double life. Ah, if he would only get to grumbling and making it disagreeable around the house again!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Waiter With Two Cars.

A Cleveland party recently sojourning in a Toronto hotel decided to take an automobile ride about the city. They approached the extremely self conscious clerk and asked him where they could secure a car.

"Our head waitah has two, don't y' know," he replied.

It took some little time to recover from this shock, but presently one of the party ventured to ask the price.

"Three an hour," was the answer.

That was voted satisfactory, and at luncheon one of the Clevelanders turned to the nearest waiter.

"Who is the chap that owns two automobiles?" he asked.

"I am the chap," the waiter replied, and he threw such a freezing emphasis into the word "chap" that it was fairly frost cracked.

They finished their luncheon before they had enough courage to ask the price.

"Four dollars an hour," the waiter replied with haughty indifference.

Then they went uptown and hired a very good car for $3 an hour.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Gaelic A B C.

Every letter in the Gaelic alphabet is represented by a tree. The alphabet of today consists of eighteen letters—in ancient Gaelic seventeen—and now, as of old, all the letters with the exception of g, t and u, which stand for ivy, furze and heather, are called after trees.

The Gaelic A B C of today runs: Ailm, beite, coll, dur, eagh, fearn, gath, huath, fogh, luis, muin, nuin, olv, peith, ruis, suil, teine, ur, which is equivalent to saying elm, birch, hazel, oak, aspen, alder, ivy, whitethorn, lew, rowan or quicken, vine, ash, spindle tree, pine, elder, willow, furze, heath.

In the ancient Gaelic alphabet the letter h (the heath or whitethorn) does not exist. The alphabet is called the beth-luis-nuin, because b l n and not a b c are its first three letters.

His Lost Leg.

A mendicant approached a man on the cars the other day and said, "Dear sir, I have lost my leg," to which the man replied, as he hurried away, "My dear friend, I am very sorry, but I have not seen anything of it."

LOAN ORDERS DEBATED AT WEST QUINCY

Ward Four Anxious for Improvements Regardless of the Cost

Censure Councilman Who Voted in Negative

There was a red hot debate at the meeting of the West Quincy Improvement association on Thursday evening on the failure of the City Council to pass the several loan orders which provide funds for the acceptance of new streets and for the rebuilding of other streets, several of which are located in the Ward Four district.

Councilman Smith who favored the passage of the orders in the Council, and Councilman Sandberg who opposed the passage of the orders, are both members of the association, and both were present at the meeting and there was a lively and red hot discussion on the matter. Councilman Sandberg was taken to task by Councilman Smith and many members of the association for his attitude, and while on the rack he defended his position. He claimed that the season was too far advanced to do any rebuilding of streets, and that even if the work was done it could not be done in a permanent and proper shape.

Councilman Smith and other members took the ground that as the orders had been passed and approved by the Mayor the loan orders providing the funds to do the work should be passed even if it was not possible to complete to work this fall. With the loan orders passed the citizens would be assured that the work would be done next season early in the year. If the orders were referred to the next Council, it meant that as there would doubtless be many new men in next year's body that the questions would have to be gone all over again, and that it might be late in the season before the orders were eventually passed.

The association rather censured Councilman Sandberg for not voting for the orders, and thus helping the Improvement of streets in the West Quincy ward.

There was also quite a discussion on the proposition for the city to lay out a new street leading from the Furnace Brook parkway to Common street. It was pointed out that the building of such a street would be of great benefit to the people who used the Parkway, as under the present conditions one on the Parkway or Common street were obliged to travel quite a distance in order to get onto either of the streets. The proposed street would make a short cut not only to Common street but also to City Square, as it would cut out the curve near the Willard school building. The members of the association in CONCERT AT ATLANTIC.

Atlantic Music hall was well filled Thursday evening with a most appreciative audience who had assembled to hear a concert given under the auspices of the music committee of the Memorial church. Mr. Robert Bruce the well known baritone singer, was most enthusiastically received, and his numbers were rendered in such a pleasing and artistic manner that he will long be remembered. Mr. Schoock, the violinist, also won much applause. Miss Horton was at the piano and again showed her ability as an accompanist. Mr. Wilson, the professional entertainer, kept his audience in the best of humor. His ring tricks will keep people guessing for a long time to come, also how the magic wand performed its duty is another question.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

The Wollaston boys' club met Thursday night with a full attendance.. Mr. Bond told the boys how to tie all sorts of knots and then the boys were supplied with a piece of rope so that they might do the trick themselves.

At the Saturday morning meeting Rev. W. B. Ayres will speak on "The house that Jack built." Every boy should get out and hustle for his school. The Massachusetts Fields school leads in attendance now.

L. H. Clee has received a diploma from the headquarters of the Boy Scout movement. His title is Scout Master of the first troop of Quincy.

Rev. T. W. Davison will speak at the older boys' meeting Sunday afternoon at 3.30.

The electrical night school opens Monday in the Association building.

ANOTHER FIRE AT HOUGHS NECK

Unquestionably of Incendiary Origin

Houghs Neck had another incendiary fire this morning, and it would appear that this section of the city has a fire bug. Chief Williams has reported both the fire of Thursday morning and this morning to the Police department, and an effort will be made to apprehend the bug.

This morning fire was in a small cottage near the corner of Babcock street and Manet avenue owned by John Ingram of Roxbury. The cottage was unoccupied, the family having moved to their winter home. When discovered, the fire had made good headway, and the wind which was blowing a gale, soon fanned the flames into a roaring furnace.

An alarm was sounded from Box 14 at 2.14, which brought Chief Williams and a relief wagon with men from the Central station to assist the Houghs Neck apparatus. The fire had made such headway, however, that there was no hope of saving the building, and all that remains is part of the frame work. The loss on the building is estimated by Chief Williams as $500.

There has been a demand for more firemen at Houghs Neck, as well as additional police for night service, and it is believed by some that the two incendiary fires were the work of some over zealous person s who want to see the firemen and police question settled.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

In 1900 Nashua, N H., had a population of 23,898 and Quincy 23,899. The new census gives Nashua 26,005 and Quincy 32,642. Only one city in New Hampshire is now larger than Quincy, viz. Manchester.

Brockton evidently values its shade trees for the Brockton Gas Co. has just contributed $50 to the city treasury for two trees killed by escaping gas and four more are to be paid for making a total of $150.

It must be a pretty low down kind of a thief that will steal a glass eye and three months was none too long a sentence for him. He must have a grudge against the lame, the halt and the blind for once before he stole a crutch.

Two letters on the "deficit" in city finances appear in the Ledger today, one from President Hobbs of the City Council, and the other from Chas. H. Johnson, recently principal assessor. The taxpayers cannot have too much light on this perplexing problem, which promises to be an issue for several years. Evidently a larger sum should have been raised in the past for "overlays." The tax rates have been too small for the amounts appropriated and the taxes abated.

Massachusetts has passed Missouri and is now the sixth state in population in the country, although below the average in square miles. Rhode Island made a larger percentage or gain, but Vermont, Missouri, Deleware and Michigan made a much smaller percentage of gain. Only a few states have been reported complete, and Massachusetts is sure to make a good showing in the total. Massachusetts has 3,366,416, Missouri 3,293,335 and Michigan 2,810,173.

In years past the registered voters and the enrolled pupils of the public schools of Quincy have alternated in totals, but now the voters have a big lead with 6,005, for there are only 5,510 enrolled in the public schools. There are two reasons for the drop in pupils, one the raising of the age limit to six years which excludes all under six, and then the opening of the St. John's parochial school with nearly 500 pupils. Really there are today more school children than voters if the Woodward and parochial schools are included.

Everyone is pleased at the progress of Chelsea in recovering from her conflagration of two years ago, and wish her continued success. It is one of the cases where a commission government was needed and the board of control has certainly made good. Another great factor is the local press, too often overlooked in giving credit where credit is due. We have before us the "Achievement number" of the Chelsea Gazette issued last Saturday. it comprises 40 pages and profusely illustrates the "New Chelsea." It is well printed on coated paper and illustrates the new city hall, the new schoolhouses, the new public library, the new fire stations, new city stable, proposed new Federal building, new Y. M. C. A. and the men and industries which are making Chelsea a live progressive city. This week the city is having a "Chelsea Exposition," where may be seen the manufactures "made in Chelsea." Tomorrow the new City Hall will be dedicated. Other cities may well look to Chelsea and copy her campaign of progress.

In an address last Sunday, Rev. Fr. Ambrose F. Roche of Watertown, formerly pastor of St. Mary's church at West Quincy, gave utterance to a sentiment that we believe will appeal to the conscience of people of every religious denomination. There is need of just such protests against the growing tendency of the age. He said:

"Christians of all denominations are scandalized and offended at the sight of thousands showing their contempt for God's mandate. The day blessed, sanctified and consecrated to prayer, meditation, holiness and thanksgiving, is turned with special malice into one of noisy revelry, drunkenness, gambling and immorality no prayer, no instruction, no worship, no honor, no self-respect, no consideration for the peace and devotion of others, no decency, no sanctity, no God.

"It is time for Catholics, and in fact for all who claim to be Christians ,to stand together in strong protest against the desecration of the Lord's day. Catholics efderation will be true to its plain duty. We protest against each and every form of profanation of the sanctity due to the Lord's day.

"We condemn and reprobate political rallies on Sunday and hope that Catholics will punish by defeat all who dare to outrage and desecrate the Lord's day in such an abominable manner.

"We deprecate and abhor public picnics called "outings," held on Sunday, which only too frequently are used for debauchery and which give fearful scandal.

"We object not only to professional baseball games on Sunday, but also to amateur games, because they mean the concourse of shouting, blaspheming mobs on every vacant field, lot and park in every town and city.

"We protest against Sunday vaudeville shows, dances and the growing tendency of theatrical managers to take every possible advantage of the too liberal interpretation of the laws regarding public entertainments. Some there are who think that the Lord's day is sufficiently well observed if people attend religious services in the morning and then give the rest of the day to recreation of any kind. To these we make answer that the commandment does not read 'Remember that thou keep holy half the Lord's day.'"

EX-ASSESSOR ON ABATEMENTS

Regrets That the Word Deficiency Has Been Used

Editor Daily Ledger:

In view of the recent report of a Committee of the Honorable City Council appointed by that body to investigate the City Finances, I was interested to read the opinion of the present City Solicitor as to the much discussed question of overlays and the power of Assessors in granting abatements. I trust the citizens who have been so free to express their opinion will read this opinion.

Thereport is in entire accord with the law, as I interpreted it after a careful study of nine years and much inquiry among persons well versed in the complex question of taxation. This letter affords me the opportunity to inform the citizens that the record of abatements, and reasons for same, is a public record, and from the year 1900 to the present time have been carefully compiled. In every abatement made by the Board of Assessors, the records will show form their view a good and sufficient reason, and all abatements made upon the recommendation of the Tax Collector give reasons and a sworn statement to same.

The large overlay and abatements made under same for last ten years have been in part due to the failure of Tax Collectors to collect the personal tax, and also the many new laws enacted each year by the Legislature allowing certain exemptions, for example the last Veteran act went into effect after the levy for 1905 had been made causing abatements to be made of $50,000 in valuation for that year. If the personal taxes as levied are not collected they must then upon proper reasons being given to the Board of Assessors, be abated, otherwise they are carried along from year to year as an asset of the city which certainly is not sound business policy if the same are worthless.

Previous to the year 1900 apparently little attention had been given to this matter, the cleaning up of the Tax Collectors Book for the last ten years, is one large factor in the amount of abatements.

By refering to the Tax Collector's department. I do not place the blame upon the present or past collectors. The personal tax is largely elusive and therefore should be collected promptly. A proper force of officers should work upon collections outside the office. This would call for an additional appropriation but would be money well expended, as the detail work requires all the time of the Collector. The figures would show if compiled an appalling loss in this connection by reason of non-collection. "I regret the word "deficiency" has been used in reference to the committee's report; the whole question of 'city finance is so complicated, and there are so many ways in which appropriations and especially receipts are applied, that I believe that before the word deficiency is marked against all the names of the citizens who have given loyal service as public officials, this matter should be taken out of politics and considered by a person qualified by years of study and no personal friends to please.

Give us a statement covering the entire period of the city from 1900 to the present time and not a portion of it. I do not by the foregoing recommendation in tend to cast any reflection upon the recent report of Mr. Morse. I believe the Mayor of 1911 should take the matter of collection of taxes in hand early in the year.

SIX KILLED BY EXPLOSION

Three Thousand Persons Thrown Into Panic In New York Factory

New York, Oct. 21.—Six persons were killed, three are missing and probably dead, and twelve were seriously hurt by a boiler explosion at the jute mills of the American Manufacturing company at Greenpoint, L. I. The plant was wrecked. Those killed were all on the first floor of the building. The boiler burst and a part of its heavy iron cover tore away a large section of the first floor.

The plant belongs to the cordage trust and is the largest of the kind in America. In a four-story building adjoining the boiler room 2000 girls and 1000 men were working at the time of the explosion. They made a wild stampede for the street, trampling upon one another as they ran down the stairways. Some of the girls climbed down fire escapes.

DEFICIT IS MISUNDERSTOOD

Excess in Abatement Should Go into Tax Levy

Editor Daily Ledger:

Considerable misconception of the meaning of the word "deficit" as used by the Special Committee of the City Council, has arisen, particularly in relation to the Assessing department.

The action of this department is so controlled by statute that abatements which are legal must be made regardless of the fact as to what account the money is to be charged.

The Assessors have absolutely no option and the "deficits" (as shown by the committee) are merely the result of bookkeeping methods absolutely beyond their control. Bearing in mind that legal abatements must be made under penalty the assessors position is clear.

The wrong, if wrong has been done, is in not putting these abatements in the tax levy instead of allowing them as they have been up to the present day to be a continuous burden on the taxpayer.

These amounts are a part of the temporary loans and up to the present time I know of no attempt outside of this committee to abate the trouble. I believe it is imperative that these increasing temporary loans be stopped, that the money now paid as interest can be used for the development in the city.

TO SPEND MILLION.

Tuberculosis Association Shows How Money from Red Cross Christmas Seals Would Provide Needed Hospitals.

What "A Million for Tuberculosis from Red Cross Seals" will do in the checking of consumption, is explained in a bulletin issued today by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

Counting every available bed for consumptives in tne United States, even those in almshouses, penal institutions, and hospitals for the insane, there are at the present time accommodations for hardly 30,000 tuberculosis patients This is just about one bed for every ten indigent consumptives, and if all tuberculous persons in the country are counted, both rich and poor, hardly one for every twenty-five or thirty. If sufficient hospital accommodations are provided only for those who are too poor to pay the full price for their treatment, fully 275,000 more beds in special institutions for tuberculosis would be needed at once. The immense outlay necessary to provide and maintain so many beds in hospitals, makes it imperative, the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis declares, that such institutions be erected from public money, either municipal, county or state. In order to get appropriations for public hospitals for tuberculosis, agitation is necessary, and in order to create a campaign of agitation, organization is demanded. But in order that an organization may carry on an effective campaign, funds are needed.

These funds it is proposed to secure in as many communities as possible from the sale of Red Cross Seals.

The National Association cites one illustration of the way in which a small sum spent in education has secured large appropriations. The New York State Charities Aid Association in the three years, 1908, 1909 and 1910 has spent in the up-state portion of New York about $55,000 in arousing the people to the dangers of tuberculosis. As a direct result of the public sentiment produced by this outlay, the state, county and municipal authorities have already appropriated for tuberculosis work $1,500,000 and appropriations for hundreds of thousands of dollars are pending. Hundreds of hospital beds have been provided, and the Association already aims for "No Uncared for Tuberculosis in 1915."

Thus, the National Association says if a million dollars is realized from the sale of Red Cross Seals, millions more will be added to it from the public treasuries. Last year 25,000,000 stamps were sold. It is aimed this year to sell four times as many.

They will make their residence on Willard street upon their return.

GALVIN FOR REVISION.

J. Mitchell Galvin, the Republican candidate for Congress, was misrepresented at the recent Quincy rally and by local papers, and a quotation from the address in Mr. Curley's ward Thursday night is due him. He said in part:

"It is true that the great corporate interests of the country have been able under the tariff bill to bring about a situation under which they are able to charge extortionate prices for the food which we put into our mouths. If elected, I solemnly pledge you that I will vote for any revision in the tariff schedules affecting the cost of the necessaries of life.

"My democratic opponent talks of building in this district wharves, docks and channels. I wish that this could be done, as there is no section of the state where so many opportunities are offered for commercial development. I believe that the real solution of the commercial problem, the thing which would bring Boston into the place where she belongs as one of the foremost ports of the country, is the passage of a ship subsidy bill."

G. A. R. FAIR.

Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, department of Massachusetts, will conduct a fair in Faneuil hall, Boston, starting Monday, to raise a fund to provide a home for veterans and their wives and mothers, so that they need not be separated.

The opening night will be "citizens' night" and speeches will be made by Governor Draper, Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham, Mayor Fitzgerald, Joseph A. Walker, with singing by Miss Frances Fallon and Miss Bernedette Masterson.

Tuesday night will be given over to the army and navy veterans. Speakers will be John A. Gilman, national commander of the G. A. R. and W. L. Dickey, past commander. Friday will be "children's day," under the direction of Miss Bernedette Masterson and a corps of assistants.

The general committee comprises Mrs. Eliza K. Leman, Mrs. Alfreda H. Perkins of Auburndale and Mrs. Eliza J. Levitt of Lynn.

MUSICALE AT WOLLASTON.

Musical people of Wollaston enjoyed a pianoforte recital on Wednesday evening in the Wollaston Unitarian church given under the auspices of the Unitarian church. Helpers by Mrs. Mary Shandler West assisted by Miss Gertrude H. Dayton contralto. Mrs. West is a finished pianist and received the most of her musical education in Boston. She was a pupil of McDowell and Carl Phaelton also studying abroad under Phillippe. At the New England Conservatory of Music she received the Turner medal for excellence in concert work. Her renditions Wednesday evening were up to the usual high standard of her work and enjoyed by all who heard them. Miss Dayton's contralto solos received well merited applause. She is a pupil of Madame Clara Munger of Boston.

A WORD TO YOUNG MEN.

One of the largest merchants in Boston, a leading importer, too, is sending out this forceful and strong appeal to young voters of Massachusetts:

"Your hope for success and advancement as you look ahead depends on prosperity and steadiness in business throughout the whole country. No permanent growth is likely in your particular industry if all industries are not so successful that owners and employees have steady purchasing power.

"Successful business men whose judgment and honesty of statement you respect will tell you that a proper protective tariff is essential to general prosperity; 2d that escape from business unrest and lack of confidence can never come until the fear is removed that each four years the whole theory on which a tariff bill is built is liable to be upset.

"Now for the first time since the foundation of the government we have the chance of setting this whole matter right by coming heartily to the support of President Taft who stands squarely 1st for the principle of protection; 2d for intelligent revision down or up as proved wise; 3d for a high grade board of tariff experts who shall acquire and tabulate facts which will enable congress, without being dependent on special interests for their information, to intelligently pass as necessity arrives, on individual schedules.

"Under the leadership of President Taft the present congress revised the tariff probably as wisely as was possible in the old-fashioned way. The Democratic representatives in congress did all they could to thwart President's Taft's wise and patriotic plans by voting unanimously against the board of experts. If the Democratic party has a majority in the next house, can anyone doubt that they will attempt to throw overboard the principle of protection, subject us to another wholesale revision at once and give us a thoroughtly bad tariff bill at that?"

HOUGHS NECK CANDIDATE.

A meeting to further the candidacy of John R. S. Ross for representative in the City Council from Houghs Neck, was held Thursday when the boom which is expected to land the candidate, was started. The meeting opened with a fine coot stew that was pronounced excellent. Following this there was a little sporting during which the benefits to be derived by Houghs Neck having a representative in the City Council, were discussed and plans were outlined for an active campaign to be held in Mr. Ross' behalf at the proper time.

—One of the signs of the times which the people of St. John, N. B., rightly regard as significant of important development is the fact that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company is becoming a large property owner at St. John. By agreement with the City Council it is acquiring some forty acres of shore lots adjoining its present wharves and elevator at West St. John, on which it will construct railway yards. Although the work will be done gradually from year to year, there will eventually be yard accommodation there for 5,000 cars. Then within the last week the Company has taken up its options on a large area of property at the head o fthe harbour, where yards and freight sheds will be provided to accommodate local freight traffic, and the trade over the newly acquired Bay of Fundy and Nova Scotia route, hitherto controlled by the Dominion Atlantic Railway Company, between St. John, Digby, Yarmouth and Halifax. Thus the Canadian Pacific becomes a very large property owner at St. John, with large holdings on the harbour front, on both the north and west sides. The development of its properties will involve a very large expenditure, and will add immensity to the equipment of the port for handling both local and ocean-borne traffic.

LOAN ORDERS DEBATED

City Council were urged to favor the proposition.

The matter of a banquet was taken up and considering the success that attended the banquet held last year it was voted to hold a similar affair in the near future. The date, however, was left to the committee to decide upon. It is planned to have the affair this year on somewhat more elaborate scale, and while it has not been definitely settled it is not among the impossibilities that this year the ladies will be included at the feast. The committee who had charge of the affair last year with Edward J. Sandberg and John Callahan were made the committee for this year's banquet.

Brief discussions were held on several other matters pertaining to the welfare of West Quincy as well as the City in general.

FIFTY-TWO DOLLARS RAISED.

Those who were interested in the case of Mrs. Ellen Morris, the widow with eight children, who had difficulty in renting a house, may be interested to hear of her present circumstances. The money which was raised in Quincy and Wollaston to the amount of $52 was accepted by Miss M. A. Coe of the Associated Charities, 12 Carver street, Boston, who will use it for the family in case of sickness or loss ofwork. In the meantime the Associated Charities helped Mrs. Morris to find a tenement where she pays for her lodgings by her janitor work.

HAD SHED THEIR CLOTHING

Naked Men Chased by Policemen Shock Female Onlookers

Philadelphia, Oct. 21.—Six men, gathered around a big bonfire, none of them wearing a stitch of clothing, gave Policemen Ferguson and Prendergast a hard battle in the woods on the border of West Falmouth park. Before they were rounded up they ran out on the public roads and created excitement among the nurses and patients in Christ Church hospital.

Ferguson saw one of the men and, concluding the fellow had escaped from an asylum, gave chase. For several minutes the naked man and bluecoat fought desperately. Then Ferguson was surrounded by five others and they set upon him. He fired his revolver, which brought Prendergast. Then the men scattered. They were all caught.

THE COUNTRY PARSON.

The New England country parson in early times was a man of affairs as well as spiritual guide. He labored to save the souls of his people and prepare them for the celestial city, but at the same time he walked on the earth and was a farmer among tillers of the soil. The parsonage was in the midst of a good tract of land and he looked well after the cords of firewood which his people were bound to provide to warm his hearthstone. He was settled for life and his own welfare was inseparable from that of the community.

A college man, the learned minister spoke with authority to people whose education was acquired in the district school and in their application to their daily tasks. But now the theological seminaries for the most part graduate men who have been immersed for four years in a preparatory school, four years within college walls, and three or four more years with theologians, philosophers, linguists and higher critics. These young men are ambitions to fill either a metropolitan pulpit or a professor's chair. If they accept a call to a country church, it is usually with the expectation that they will soon be called to a larger field of labor. They speak a language and move in an atmosphere unknown to their parishioners. They find themselves strangers in a strange land.

Thus it has come to pass that the problem of the country church is being discussed. In this emergency Kenyon L. Butterfield, president of the Agricultural College, has called into being a summer school for country ministers. The third annual session of this school will begin next August. The courses include practical problems of the New England farmer, economic problems in American agriculture, the development of the rural community, the relation of the church to the rural problems, forms of cooperation among farmers, and rural literature.

The missionary societies of the Congregational and of the Presbyterian churches have indorsed the school and have made provision to send about forty country ministers to attend its courses, believing that what they will learn will more than compensate them for the cost. The object of the school will be to afford an opportunity for the clergymen and their wives to confer with each other and with lecturers who have devoted much time to the problems. It is expected that new enthusiasm will be awakened and that some means will be discovered by which life in the rural communities shall be made so attractive that the lure of the great towns and cities shall nolonger infatuate the young and undermine the country home and the country church.—Springfield Union.

PATRONS OF "SEER" ARE FEELING SHAKY

Detectives Get Hold of Letters of Rich Washington Women

Washington, Oct. 21.—On the discretion of two central office detectives hang the reputations and fortunes of many Washington women of wealth and standing.

If letters seized when the occult studio of Leon Devoux was raided are made public the world will know a great deal more of the inner lives of Washington's elect than is whispered over the teacups.

Already two women are suffering from nervous prostration brought on by the fear that their rashness will be discovered.

The letters held by the central office detectives, it is known, were written by women whose husbands are wealthy and have high positions. "Why, we can't make these names public," said Detective Burlingame. "If we did, we'd have half a dozen suicides within a day."

FROM ST. LOUIS TO QUEBEC

Balloon Travels Eleven Hundred Miles and Establishes Record

St. Louis, Oct. 21.—Theodore Schoeck, piloting the Swiss balloon Helvetia, which started in the international race on Monday, landed at Ville Marie, Quebec, 1100 miles from St. Louis, late yesterday, according to a message received by the Aero club of St. Louis last night.

If the reports are correct the American record of 873.4 miles has been much exceeded.

The other three balloons, which are believed to have landed in Canada, but have not yet reported, are the Swiss balloon Azures, the German ballolon Dusseldorf II, and the America II. All the other balloons were accounted for previously.

Counsel for Huston took an appeal to the superior court and Huston was later released on $25,000 bail.

BROOKS CASE GOES OVER

Further Investigation of Redeemable Investment Company's Affairs

Boston, Oct. 21.—A continuance until Oct. 27 was granted by Commissioner Hayes in the case of Charles H. Brooks, manager of the Redeemable Investment company, accused of using the mails in a scheme to defraud. The postponement of the hearing was made at the request of Assistant United States District Attorney Garland, who stated that the government was not ready to proceed.

A careful inspection of the accounts as found in the books of the raided company is being made by the federal authorities, and until this is completed, there will be no further move in the criminal prosecution. Some interesting disclosures are likely to be made as a result of the examination of the books.

Persons who are familiar with the case are of the opinion that Norman Plass, former president of the company, has no intention of returning to Boston at present.

NOT WORTH THE PRICE

Woman Seeks Divorce From Husband For Whom She Paid Two Dollars

New York, Oct. 21.—It cost Miss Susie Hassig $2 to make the acquaintance of George Stoeker, and Stoeker paid $5 for the same introduction, which resulted three weeks later in their marriage. The wedding came off on Sept. 4 and this was followed by forty-two days of fluctuating happiness.

Then the wife packed up her belongings and went to live with her sister. She was in the domestic relations court to press a complaint of non-support against her husband, for whom she had obtained a summons.

It came out at the hearing that the couple had met each other through a matrimonial bureau which they said was conducted by a Mme. Berghoff, to whom they paid the money.

The complainant is 26 years old and used to be a seamstress; her husband is 30 years old and is a machinist.

CRIPPEN TESTIFIES IN HIS OWN BEHALF

Denies That He Had Ever Administered Poison to Wife

London, Oct. 21.—Dr. Crippen faced his accusers from the witness box Thursday. Crippen's composure that has remained since he was first charged with the murder of his actress wife, Belle Elmore, did not desert him.

Under the tactful guidance of his counsel, Crippen gave a sketch of his career. He had studied the theories, but had not taken a practical course in surgery. The drugs which he had purchased in England he explained were wholly for his own preparations. He explained the purchase of hyoscin, the poison which the crown alleges was used to kill Belle Elmore, by saying that it was required for use in the treatment of nervous cases.

The prisoner admitted that there was a scar on the body of his wife four and a half inches in length. It was caused, he said, by an operation twelve years ago. He had never administered hyoscin to his wife. He had no idea whose was the body unearthed in the cellar of his Hilldrop-Crescent home.

Crippen told of the gradual alienation of his wife's affections until the climax was reached in a quarrel on the night of Jan. 31 last. His wife, he said, had accused him of a lack of attention to Mr. and Mrs. Martenetti, who had spent the evening with them. They quarrelled and on the following day his wife went away.

TWO LINEMEN KILLED

One Meets Death While Trying to Aid His Fellow Workman

Canton, Mass., Oct. 21.—Joseph Langley of Boston and Adelbert Daly of Arlington, linemen employed by the New England Telephone and Telegraph company, both lost their lives in a tangle of heavily charged wires in Canton. Langley was killed in an attempt to rescue Daly.

While working at the top of a forty-foot pole, Daly was shocked and fell across a live wire. Langley raised a ladder and went to his aid, but the moment he touched Daly's body he was knocked from the ladder by the force of the current and fell to the ground, breaking his neck.

DEMOCRATIC LEADER GONE

David B. Hill Long Preminent In His Party's Councils

HELD MANY GREAT OFFICES

Twice Governor of New York and Served In United States Senate—Had Been Talked of For Presidential Nomination—Death of Able Lawyer's Fiancee When He Was Young Made Him a Confirmed Bachelor

Albany, Oct. 21.—David B. Hill, twice governor of the state of New York, and United States senator, died at his home here. He had been ailing for a year past and for a considerable time had not left his home. Ten days ago his condition became alarming and several specialists were called to consult about his case.

At Wolfert's Roost, the home of Hill, it was said immediately after the news of his death was received that he had been in a condition of coma for some little time before the end came. His death was due to a general break up of his constitution.

Mr. Hill, who coined the famous phrase "I am a Democrat," was born at Havana, N. Y., on Aug. 29, 1843. He was educated in the common school of Havana and later graduated at the Havana academy. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1864.

Immediately he took an active interest in politics and became famous as a speaker. He was elected a delegate to the Democratic state conventions from 1868 to 1880. In the conventions of 1877 and 1881 he was chosen chairman.

He was chosen delegate to the Democratic national conventions of 1876, 1884, 1896, 1900 and 1904. In the Democratic national convention in 1900 he made a brilliant speech, seconding the nomination of William J. Bryan for the presidency.

In 1871 and 1872 Hill was a member of the New York assembly. From 1882 to 1885 he was lieutenant governor of New York state. Immediately following the expiration of his term he was elected governor and held that office until 1891, when he was elected to the United States senate, which office he held one term.

At the national Democratic convention in 1892, Hill was a prominent candidate for the presidential nomination. He had a strong following in the convention and for a time it looked as though his aspirations would be fulfilled. Hill was again a candidate for governor of New York in 1904. He was defeated and since then he has not taken a leading part in Democratic politics, although he has always been a factor.

As a lawyer Hill was considered one of the best in the country and from 1886 to 1888 was president of the State Bar association.

A peculiar trait of Hill was his confirmed hatred of women. He never married, and it is said that this was because of the death of his fiancee when he was a young man.

Mr. Hill had been suffering for some time from a bilious attack, which was followed by a severe cold. It was thought that he would recover, but the combined attack seemed to sap all his strength. Until the relapse came Hill's condition was not considered alarming. The attending physicians held out hope to his friends that he would ultimately shake off the disease and get well.

MAY GET MORE VOTES

Foss Will Run as a Democrat and Democratic Progressive

Boston, Oct. 21.—Eugene N. Foss will run for governor under two designations, Democratic and Democratic Progressive. Foss had until 5 p. m. last night to withdraw as a Democratic Progressive, but failed to do so.

He filed these nomination papers in order that he would have a place on the ballot in case Frederick W. Mansfield, the provisional Democratic candidate, failed to withdraw.

Mansfield having withdrawn, however, it was generally expected that Foss would only run as a Democrat. It is believed, however, that the designation "Democratic Progressive" will be worth thousands of votes.

FUNERAL OF MRS. HOWE

City, State and Nation Pay Tribute to Honored Woman's Memory

Boston, Oct. 21.—The patriotic, literary and political life of the city, the state and the nation was represented at the bier of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, in the Church of the Disciples yesterday afternoon.

The little brick meeting house, whose parish was founded by her cherished friend, Rev. Dr. James F. Clarke, held a notable throng, many of whose names are almost as familiar as that of the one whose memory they honored.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Dr. S. A. Eliot, president of the American Unitarian association, assisted by Rev. W. S. Jones, pastor of the Channing Memorial church of Newport.

Coincident with the services in the church every school in the city devoted half an hour to the memory of Mrs. Howe, and her poems were read and her "Battle Hymn of the Republic" sung by thousands of young voices.

The casket containing the body was laid beside that of her husband in Mt. Auburn cemetery.

FIRE IN SCHOOLHOUSE

Seven Hundred Children March Out of Building Without Panic

Boston, Oct. 21.—Through rooms and hallways thick with stifling black smoke, down wooden staircases beneath which could be seen the red glare of flames, 700 school children marched out of the Rice schoolhouse yesterday afternoon, without fear or panic and reached the street in safety.

Only the chance that the fire was detected before it had swept out of the waste paper bin where it started prevented a catastrophe.

The fire brought the first test of the new school fire system, whereby pressing a button in the master's office gave an alarm in every class room and called the nearest fire apparatus at the same time.

TO CONTROL MILK SUPPLY OF COUNTRY

Charge That Trust Has More Than $30,000,000 Capital

Washington, Oct. 21.—Charging that a "millionaire milk trust" of proportions undreamed of by any monopoly save the Standard Oil company is "perpetrating an audacious scheme to control the milk supply of the United States;" declaring that more than $30,000,000 is represented in the enterprise, and stating that the District of Columbia health department is "unwittingly in the hands of this gigantic enterprise," representatives of the Milk Dealers' association of Washington filed a series of sensational charges against the health department at a hearing before the district commissioners.

A. S. Trundle, chairman of the executive committee of the association, who conducted the fight for the dealers, placed in the hands of the commissioners names of the capitalists said to be identified with the milk trust.

AMUSEMENTS

DOINGS ON THE STAGE OF

LOCAL AND BOSTON THEATRES

PARK THEATRE.

The Park theatre in Boston beginning Monday Oct. 24 will be about the jolliest place in the land, for on that night "Seven Days begins an engagement there, and everybody knows this comedy is the greatest laugh-maker in years. Indeed, foremost dramatic critics proclaim it the best comedy ever produced in America. For two years it has been running at the Astor theatre in New York where, as one writer said, "it rocked Broadway with laughter." Two years is a tremendous run. A play that can achieve it is exceptional. From this record run in New York "Seven Days" comes to Boston with the entire brilliant Astor theatrecast. Mary Roberts Rhinehart and Avery Hopwood wrote "Seven Days." They have taken some of New York's smart set and quarantined them in the house of one of their number with a burglar and a policeman. Amusing mix-ups have been started before the quarantine. For example, a girl who loves one of the men is supposed to be the wife of another. Then it is found a divorced wife is present, and she pretends an engagement with the chap who thinks he's been jilted, and all these poses are maintained so Aunt Selia may not suspect the separation of her nephew and his former wife. The quarantine lasts a week—seven days of riotous mirth, side splitting laughter and tumultuous merriment that doesn't let up for a fraction of a second. "See 'Seven Days' and laugh seven months." is the advice a magazine gave to its readers.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

"The Talk of New York" has become the talk of Boston. Its first week at the Castle Square has been an unqualified success, and consequently a second week will begin on Monday. Nothing like it has been seen on the Castle Square stage since "The Circus Girl," and in humor, melody and variety it more than duplicates the attractions of that musical comedy. "The Talk of New York" is the work of George Cohan, who has won no little fame during the past few years as an actor, a dramatic author and a composer, and it is one of the latest and best of his works. Its production at the Castle Square does full justice to all his comic ideas the scenery and music adding not a little to its completeness. In the leading roles are to seen Donald Meek as Kid Burns, the young New Yorker who triumphs over all difficulties, and who never is at a loss when he is in trouble. Mary Young is sprightly as the heroine, and all the other players at the Castle Square contribute to its humor. The chorus does effective work, and the orchestra is under the expert direction of Joseph Marr. So great is the demand for seats that immediate application should be made at the Castle Square box office.

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE.

The artistic outlook for the coming season promises to put the Boston Opera House in the very front rank of the world's grand opera homes, while the subscription plan is arranged in a way that even those of moderate means will be able to enjoy an opera performance every week of the twenty weeks of the season.

The new subscription plan places grand opera performances within the reach of nearly every music lover in New England, and its popularity is fully attested by the response it has evoked. After Oct. 22, all the seats wil be placed on sale. The season's brilliancy is clearly indicated by the repertoire of the first week, which is as follows:

Monday, Nov. 7, Boito's "Mefistofele" with Mmes. Alda, and Carmen Melis, and Messrs. Sibirikoff and Constantino.

Wednesday, Nov. 9 Verdi's "Rigoletto" with Mme. Lipkowska, and Messrs. Baklanof, Constantino and Sibiriakoff.

Friday, Nov. 11 Verdi's "Otello" with Messrs. Slezak and Amato, and Mme. Alda.

Saturday afternoon, Nov. 12 Puccini's "Tosca" with Mme. Carmen Melis, and Messrs. Jadlowker and Baklanoff.

Saturday evening, Nov. 12. Donizetis "Lucia" with Mme. Lipkowska and M. Constantino.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

With at least three productions in the list of entertainers of world wide reputation, the bill at B. F. Keith's theatre next week promises to break all records. Among the productions will be included Jesse Lasky's big musical comedy called "The Photo Shop," with a large company of comedians and the splendid chorus wearing beautiful gowns; another will be Mrs. Gardner Crane and her company of comedians, in the comedy called "The Little Sunbeam" which is without question one of the greatest novelties of the year. The scene shows the interior of a Pullman sleeping car during the early morning, when all the passengers are turning out, and there are all kinds of difficulties in which the conductor and porter take a leading part. There is a plot running through the piece and an endless amount of comedy. This week will also mark the first vaudeville appearance of Florence Noyes and Walter Stiles, two well-known Bostonians, who have for some time been prominent in fashionable drawing rooms doing classic dances. It will be the first appearance in Boston of a man and a woman in this sort of dancing, which is called "classic pantomine." Still another feature will be Albert Hole, who can justly claim the title of the world's greatest boy soprano, who since he appeared in this country has made one of the biggest successes scored by a foreign entertainer in years. Still other features will be Bixley and Fink, grand opera comedians; Valerie Bergere's Players in the sketch called "What Happened in Room 44," Ruby Raymond and her boys; and the Coventrys in a musical importation from England.

THE BOSTON THEATRE.

The most important dramatic production of the present season will take place at the Boston Theatre, on Monday evening October 24th when Charles Frohman will present for the first time in America the current sensational dramatic success of London, "The Speckled Band," An Adventure of Sherlock Holmes" by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. Boston theatregoers are thoroughly familiar with the fact that one of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's Sherlock Holmes stories has already been dramatized with great success by William Gillette, he adopting "The Strange Case of Miss Faulker" under the title of Sherlock Holmes In "The Speckled Band" which is now running with wonderful success at the Globe Theatre, London, the detective (Sherlock Holmes) does not by any means occupy the whole of the stage, though he has an important influence on the action of the drama. The predominant personage is the villain, who is a great deal before the audience and who is a bold, big and emphatic individual. Out of his short but a thrilling story of cunning crime Sir Arthur Conan Doyle has evolved a highly sensational and enthralling drama of crime and its demonstration of affairs holds them in a grip of iron and leaves them at the close in a state of excited satisfaction. The play will be produced under the immediate supervision of Mr. Charles Frohman.

GLOBE THEATRE.

When "The Family" which had such a remarkable success in Chicago not long since and will be seen at the Globe for the second week beginning Monday, October 24, was produced there at the Power's Theatre, Charles W. Collins, critic for the "Inter-Ocean" wrote in its praise: "Simple, tender and true—these are the inevitable adjectives for 'The Family.' It is in the right line with the American drama—native in every stroke of its simplicity; close to the hearts of the people with its alternating moods of sorrow and mirth, the one poignant and the other genial; reaching elemental truth in its little cross-sections of life, without esoteric psychology borrowed from the complex problem propounders of Europe. Miss Mabel Bert's mother is a lovely histrionic study in soft gray hair and silver, and never flags in appeal. John Westley appears as the boy with vivid effect, carrying most of the comedy and one strong emotional scene with certain effect. This is the kind of a part in which Mr. Westley has no equal on the American stage." Amy Leslie, critic for the "Daily News" said: " 'The Family" is a beautiful, homespun, genuine drama, introduced to a pathetic and enthusiastic public. A more intensely moved, emotionally absorbed and delighted audience could scarcely have been built."

ON THE STAGE.

Ellen Terry will give the first of a series of Shakesperian discourses in Tremont temple on the evening of Nov. 4. The subject will be "The Heroines of Shakespere—Triumphant.' Miss Terry is due to arrive in New York Oct. 26.

The latest fashion among English actresses is to be photographed with their children. The family life of English theatrical people has always been of interest to the British public, and the new post cards and photographs of actresses holding their children in their arms or on their knees have sold better than any other pictures of the same gifted yet domesticated ladies.

The sermon preached last Sunday with the play, "The Dawn of a Tomorrow," as the text, has aroused much interest in church circles in Miss Gertrude Elliott and Mrs. Burnett's play, which is now being presented at the Shubert theatre. During this week there have been a noticeable number of ministers in the audience, anxious to see the piece which inspired such remarkable commendation from a fellow pastor. "The Dawn of a Tomorrow" will begin its last fortnight next Monday, and these will be the last performances of the play in Boston.

William Gillette is going to revive "Held by the Enemy" this season in addition to his other pieces. The original Boston hearing of this war play was at the old Boston museum where the stock company played it for a long run. Boston will be one of the first cities to be visited and the engagement will be played at the Hollis.

"The Wolf" Eugene Walter's great success, comes to the Boston Grand Opera House next week. In "The Wolf" Mr. Walter has gone to the picturesque and wild Hudson Bay country for his characters and locale.

William Gillette's audiences in more recent years have been yearning for a chance to see him in "The Private Secretary," which was one of his earlier successes, and there is general pleasure in the announcement that he is going to include the piece in the revivals which he will make when he comes to the Hollis St. theatre as the next attraction.

Not in many years has a play taken such a hold on the theatregoing public as has the Cohan and Harris comedy by Winchell Smith, "The Fortune Hunter" which is now in its sixth week at the Tremont Theatre, Boston. While it is a comdy of morals and contains an interesting lesson "The Fortune Hunter" is by no means of the "goody goody" variety. It is merely a good story well told and well acted, containing witty dialogue and amusing situations.

NEWSPAPERS OFFER REWARDS

Eager to Have Broker Sheldon of Montreal Run Down

MAY BE HIDING IN NEW YORK

Former Boston School Teacher Now Sought as Defaulter—Said to Have $1,500,000 With Him—Wife Left Montreal Last Sunday, but Police Have Lost Trail—Many Victims Left In Canadian City

New York, Oct. 21.—With $1,500,000, it is believed, in his possession, Charles D. Sheldon, the defaulting investment broker of Montreal, once a school teacher in Boston, is being sought by the central office of this city.

Rewards aggregating $15,000 for his arrest or for information leading to it have been offered by two Montreal newspapers. Canadian detectives with warrants are in this city.

Belief that Sheldon is here is based on two letters received in Montreal from him dated Oct. 13 and mailed from Station C, Hudson and Thirteenth streets. This is near the Cunard piers. One letter was to David Burnside, his office manager, and the other to H. B. O'Neil, a business associate.

In his letters he said he purposed to go into business in this city. He also expressed contrition for his acts and said that "some day" all losses would be repaid.

Mrs. Sheldon left Montreal last Sunday after buying tickets for New York. All trace of her has been lost since she boarded the train.

Sheldon's books show assets of $4,173,337, and liabilities of $2,860,656. F. B. Edwards of Montreal, one of the searchers, told a reporter that Sheldon had won and lost large sums in bucket shops with New York connections before the federal raids several months ago.

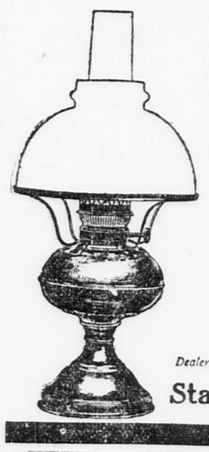
The Famous Rayo



Gives the Best Light at Any Price

When you pay more than the Rayo price for a lamp, you are paying for extra decorations that cannot add to the quality of the light. You can't pay for a better light, because there is none. An oil light has the least effect on the human eye, and the Rayo Lamp is the best oil lamp made, though low in price. You can pay $5, $10, or $20 for some other lamp, and although you get a more costly lamp, you can't get a better light than the white, mellow, diffused, unflickering light of the low-priced Rayo.

Has a strong, durable shade-holder. This season's burner adds to the strength and appearance. Made of solid brass, nickeled, and easily polished.

A delegation of men from the Quincy Point Congregational church was present to obtain pointers on conducting a men's club which is soon to be organized at that church.

A report of the program committee was followed by the reading of the Wollaston Herald, the club paper, by the editor-in-chief, J. A. Sedgwick. This included several original poems and many personal hits Brief remarks were made by Rev. Charles P. Marshall of the Quincy Point church and Rev. Wesley Wiggin. The remainder of the evening's program was taken up with the recounting of vacation experiences by George Taylor and A. N. Murray. Mr. Taylor's trip took him through the Canadian rockies to the Pacific coast, while A. N. Murray enjoyed a canoe trip in the wilds of Nova Scotia.

FLORISTS SWINDLED.

W. W. Hathaway, a Brockton florist, has uncovered a confidence game that has been worked on the florists of Boston and other places it is believed for at least three weeks, by a slick young man who asked for loans of from $1 to $5. The man, it is believed, came to Brockton the week before the Brockton fair and tried to "get to" Mr. Hathaway for a couple of dollars but Mr. Hathaway didn't fall for it.

Mr. Hathaway received a letter from a Boston florist Wednesday suggesting that he remit the dollar borrowed last week. Mr. Hathaway was amazed and called up the Boston florist by 'phone. Then the game became apparent and inquiries among other Boston florists revealed that the game had been worked on them.

—Brockton's Day Nursery day has netted nearly $1,300 to date and more is to come.

SLAUGHTERED BY ATHLETICS

Cubs Pounded For Twelve Runs on Home Grounds

TWO PITCHERS KNOCKED OUT

Coombs Gives Four Bases on Balls, but Opponents Are Not Able to Do Much Damage—Visitors Score Five Runs In Third Inning and Four In Seventh, Chinching Their Third Straight Victory

Chicago, Oct. 21.—Smashing out a terrific drive over the fence for a home run in the third inning, Murphy drove home two men ahead of him and clinched the game for the Athletics, who scored five runs in that period. They had already sent three men over the plate in the first two innings, but were tied by the Cubs, who had the same number of tallies. The score was Athletics 12, Cubs 5.

Reulbach was knocked out of the box, and gave place to McIntyre, who fared no better. Murphy's home run finished up the latter gentleman, and Pfeister took his place.

Errors were frequent, and both sides played ragged ball. Frank Chance was put out of the game in the third inning for disputing an umpire's decision, and Archer took his place.

Pitcher Coombs was not steady and gave many bases on balls. The Cubs were, however, unable to do much damage and up to the sixth inning had succeeded in getting but four hits from his delivery.

The game started out auspiciously for the Athletics. In the first inning they succeeded in geting Strunk across the plate by means of a base on balls, a sacrifice and Collins' single. Baker's double, Davis being hit, and Barry's two-sacker helped out to the extent of two runs in the second inning, and the swat-fest started in the third.

From this point on, it was all off with the Cubs' chances. They were too far gone to come back, and although they fought gamely, could not overcome the tremendous lead. The Athletics scored five runs in the third inning. It was practically all the result of hitting, with poor fielding on the part of Chicago a contributing factor in the scoring.

In the seventh inning the Athletics again came to time with their batting arms, and smashed out doubles for more runs, absolutely disheartening the Chicago men.

The Chicago fans were in the depths of despair, and were far from the joyful crowd that packed the doors early inn the day.

It was no use. Chicago didn't have the pitchers. Chicago is now in the deepest gloom, and despairs of getting even one game of the series.

Official attendance 26,210. Total receipts $36,751.50. Commission's share $3,675.15. Players' share $19,845.81. Each club's share $6,615.27. The score:

She Will Be the Perfect Woman of the Future, Says Woodworth

San Francisco, Oct. 21.—The celibate professional woman of future generations will represent the highest type of civilization, a perfection in mind and body, and will far surpass the woman of the present age, according to theories expounded by Professor Woodworth, head of the division of entomology at the University of California.

He declares that one-tenth of the present female population of the world could, as mothers, perpetuate the race, and argues the benefits of fewer mothers and larger families.

GAINS IN ALL WARDS

But Largest in Ward One and Precinct 2, Ward Six

The number of names on the voting lists at the close of registration Wednesday night was 6,006, an increase of 318 over the number on the lists for the State election a year ago. This is the largest registered list in the history of the city. While the grand total of 6,006 will be reduced some by names to come off by reason of death, the grand total even then will be the largest.

Ward One still retains the banner of having the largest number of voters with 1264, while Ward Five is a good second with 1066, and Ward Three third with 1030. Ward Six is the smallest ward of the city with 828, and Ward Two the second smallest with 852. Ward Four, which at one time was the banner ward of the city, has dropped to fourth place with 966. Ward Three is also dropping down.

Taken by wards every ward shows a gain, the figures being as follows:

	1909	1910.
Ward One	1169	1264
Ward Two	863	852
Ward Three	997	1030
Ward Four	945	966
Ward Five	997	1066
Ward Six	767	828
	5688	6006

Of the twelve precincts all with the exception of three show gains during the year. The second precinct of Ward Six shows a loss of 20, the second precinct of Ward Four a loss of 3 and the second precinct of Ward Two, a loss of 2. The following table gives the gain and loss of each precinct:

	Gain	Loss
Ward 1, pre. 1	44	0
Ward 1, pre. 2	51	0
Ward 2, pre. 1	40	0
Ward 2, pre. 2	19	0
Ward 3, pre. 1	35	0
Ward 3, pre. 2	0	2
Ward 4, pre. 1	24	0
Ward 4, pre. 2	0	3
Ward 5, pre. 1	36	0
Ward 5, pre. 2	33	0
Ward 6, pre. 1	81	0
Ward 6, pre. 2	0	20

It will be noticed that in the case of Wards Three and Four it is the Republican precincts that showed the loss, while in Ward Six the Democratic precinct showed a loss of 20 votes.

None of the precincts which gave Gov. Draper a majority last year have lost. It will also be noticed that greatest gains were made in the so-called Republican wards. The following table gives the number on the list by precincts compared with a year ago:

	Oct. 1909	Oct. 1910
Ward 1, pre. 1,	522	566
Ward 1, pre. 2,	647	698
Ward 2, pre. 1,	320	340
Ward 2, pre. 2,	493	512
Ward 3, pre. 1,	547	582
Ward 3, pre. 2,	450	448
Ward 4, pre. 1,	463	487
Ward 4, pre. 2,	482	479
Ward 5, pre. 1,	567	603
Ward 5, pre. 2,	430	463
Ward 6, pre. 1,	391	472
Ward 6, pre. 2,	376	356
	5688	6006

HUSKING BEE.

H. H. I. Smith is displaying some fine looking Indian corn known as the Longfellow in his window and below it is the assurance that an abundance of similar ears will be found at the husking bee which will take place at his home in Weymouth Heights next Wednesday evening. An effort will be made to give the event as much local color as possible by means of country costumes, red ears, etc. The evening promises to be unique and entertaining and everyone will be welcomed at the barn at 7 o'clock. Mr. Smith has had experience with the real old-fashioned husking bees, and will endeavor to make this one as old-fashioned as possible, which will mean lots of fun, lots to eat and lots of corn to husk.

HOUGHS NECK BUDGET

Winter Residents Alarmed by Frequent Fires

Special Correspondence.)

Houghs Neck is certainly not a safe place in which to sleep nights under present conditions, the responsibility of which rests on the heads of the police and fire departments. Residents of the "fire belt" are thankful for even minor considerations, and especially thank the fire bug, or bugs, in not selecting homes which protect wives and children.

People in the fire belt, are in constant fear of waking during the night to find red glaring flames peering in at the window; they too stupified for the instant to know whether it be their home or a neighbors. In all probability the guilty will not operate again soon for fear of armed watchful eyes. Houghs Neck is certainly in serious distress, and it is safe to say that the police and fire departments fully realize the intense necessity of vigilence.

Credit is due Mrs. James E. Ware in discovering the fire of Thursday night. It was Mrs. Ware who telephoned to Hose 5 while her husband James E. Ware battered down the cottage door, and rang the alarm from Babcock street. Dr. Von David, who resides a few doors below the Ingram cottage discovered the flames about the same time, and he and Burt Brown arrived on the scene about the same time. They assisted the relief man, Andrew Scully, and directed the first stream. After 20 minutes of drenching Bob Eagan took a hand.

In commenting on conditions and remedies, Mr. Ware suggested to the writer, that if Houghs Neck could not have patrol duty from officers, after 11 P. M. that conditions might shape themselves when we get two men at Hose 5, providing alternate nights for the firemen to do patrol duty. Not necessarily to walk the entire beach, but through the main parts, in a conspicuous position in which any fire might be detected at a distance.

Henry W. French, in a solicited opinion thought the affair of suspicious origin. To have two fires, in two consecutive nights in the same locality, and at about the same hour, was indicative of evil cause. The affairs of the last two nights is demonstrative of the immediate attention our order for more police needs, continued Mr. French. The locality demands protection as cottages are vacant during the winter and are open invitations to tramps, and persons of bad character, who are aware that the beach can be molested without detection under existing police conditions. The Mayor is aware of these conditions, and simply awaits funds to protect the people along the lines desired.

Another prominent man thought that maybe some one who desired to bring the police and fire question to a head, had made warm demonstrations by these recent fires. If that train of thought were a true reality, it would seem a costly risk of human lives to gain a point which thinking men could bring to an honest head by co-operating as a unit. Why endanger women and children in such an inhuman way by the possible spreading of the flames.

Thomas Phillips of Babcock street thought that if the city could not expend more money in the police department they could suspend day duty and put the officer on the beach during the nights.

As a personal precaution families who do not have brick chimneys should see to it that plenty of zink or tin cover a generous space around stove pipes and wood-work.

More activity from Quincy on building inspections, especially towards chimneys, would reduce insurance rates and enable more tenants to carry insurance. At Houghs Neck, it isn't a question of price, but "can" I be insured? Houghs Neck is generally considered a "condemned" district in fire insurance circles.

John C. R. Ross will give a little burst of oratory at Associates hall tonight. Curley and Galvin, the congressional candidates will also address the people. John don't say much and maybe he is saving his amunition for Council days to come. We at Houghs Neck feel sure Ross will benefit the Ward One people, without overdue thought of Houghs Neck. Ross is very quiet, but intensely popular, both in Quincy and Houghs Neck, and his supporters feel sure of his nomination, which virtually settles the contest.

Contractor Crowley will make a statement of interest to Houghs Neck, on the completion of the school next week. Be ready to receive it.

Let us hope there will be no fires tonight.

Charles E. Decker.

FIRE AT VARNISH WORKS

Loss However Only 15 Gallons of Oil

The fire alar was sounded this morning at 8.25 from box 61 for a slight fire in the works of the Norfolk Varnish co. near the Norfolk Downs depot. The fire, like the proverbial singed cat, looked much worse than it really was. Someone outside saw the flames shooting out of the funnel, and thinking there was a dangerous fire rang in the alarm. By the time the fire department arrived the flames had subsided almost, altogether. Box 53 is much nearer the works than box 61 which was rung in, but even if the right box had been used, there would have been little for the department to do. Two large kettles of oil were heating over a wood fire. The oil became superheated and was ignited in some way. The men at the works attacked the fire beneath and by cooling off the kettles had the whole business under control in a few minutes. When the fire department arrived, the firemen squirted a little water around to make sure everything was out and rang in the recall at 8.50. The loss consisting of 15 gallons of oil was very slight.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Teddy certainly has a grip on the people.

It seems to be the Ward One members of City Council who are acting as a safety valve on appropriations by the city, as three of the five negative votes this week were cast by Councilmen Branch, Nowland and Whiton. Again all the "no" votes were cast by Republicans. Some members have voted "yes" on every appropriation order introduced in to the City Council.

Ex-President Roosevelt spoke in no uncertain tones at the Boston rally relative to Gov. Draper, Senator Lodge and the tariff. He hoped that the tariff would be an issue, for the voters have spoken for protection, and they will again. The Republican party has inaugurated methods which will guarantee the principle being applied with justice and fairness. Protection is necessary to equalize the item of labor here and abroad.

Never has a candidate received a more hearty endorsement than Col. Roosevelt gave Gov. Draper-"supreme civic virtues, of unbending integrity, of unflinching courage, and of an absolute and perfect frankness and sincerity of character." All that and more, said Col. Roosevelt, and he was equally emphatic in endorsing Senator Lodge:

"Since 1888 I have watched Senator Lodge at close range throughout his quarter of a century of service in Washington, and I feel it would be not only a calamity to Massachusetts, but a calamity to the nation, if he were not returned. Again I ask you to support him because Mr. Lodge has stood for progressive legislation. I ask you to turn to his record on the legislation affecting labor."

The opinion of Col. Roosevelt on these issues are worth more than the idle rumors and unwarranted attacks which have been so widely circulated. Mr. Lodge himself said "We have never had, and never shall have, bosses in the Republican party in Massachusett. We have always had leaders."

DRIFT OF OPINION

"Friends, there are many legislative acts which I regard as of great importance, there are many principles of conduct for public men which I regard as of great importance, but the fundamental qualities that underlie the highest type of citizenship and that necessarily must underlie the highest tpye of public servant—those fundamental qualities are comparatively, simple, but are not too common.

"I ask your support for Gov. Draper I ask your support for him because he embodies in their highest forms the supreme civic virtues of unbending integrity, of unflinching courage and of an absolute and perfect frankness and sincerity of character.

"Now, my friends, as a matter of fact, I heartily agree with Gov. Draper on the great majority of the principles which he professes and upon which he acts, but if I did not agree, with him as closely as I do, I nevertheless should support him with all my heart and strength, because the one absolutely vital need of the American people is that it should continue to send into public life and should support in public life men of unbending honesty, of entire courage, and men, furthermore, who can be trusted to make their deeds absolutely square with every promise they have spoken."—Col. Roosevelt at Boston rally.

The recent investigations of the cost of living seem to show one thing, namely, that a prominent reason why Americans are hard up is because they buy things out of proportion to their income.

Take two illustrations. A working man at $2.00 a day thinks he is well within reason if he takes two drinks of beer or a cigar or two. His wife, down street on an errand, regales herself with an ice cream soda. The two expenditures mean only 20 cents to be sure, but that is one tenth of the days income.

It is probable that to be "even decent" the wife of this workman has to have a new hat every spring and fall, not because the old hat is worn out but because the style has changed.

The European workman's wife in the same grade of society, does not lose her standing if she goes bareheaded or wears the same head gear which was satisfactory last year. In other words, our people have many things, which are not of real service and which do not contribute to their real comfort or happiness.

It is hard to "do different" from your neighbors, and so it is hard to suggest a remedy. This is where our problem of living comes in for every class of society.—Healthy Home.

MRS. EDWARD MINER.

Mrs. Edward Miner of Old Colony avenue, Wollaston, passed away October nineteenth after a week's illness. Her husband and daughters, Miss Eliza Miner, Mrs. Walter Poch of Somerville, Mrs. John Morrison of Plymouth, Miss Elsie Miner and son Charles Miner of Brockton have in her life and memory a heritage that is vouchsafed to but few and they have the warmest and heartfelt sympathy of a wide circle of friends.

As sinks a tired child to sleep so peacefully went away to other environments this loving wife and mother and this loyal friend ,awaiting the coming of those to whom her life has been a comfort and inspiration.

Funeral services were held at her late residence Friday afternoon and th house was filled with friends and relatives some coming from Percy, N. H., Providence, R I., and North Chelmsford. The services were conducted by the Rev. Joseph Watlher pastor of the Baptist church, after which Paul Revere W. R. C. performed their services, and stood in line with draped flags as the carriages were taken for Mt. Wollaston cemetery. The Temple quartet of Boston sang four selections. Eternal Goodness, Heavenly Home. We shall meet. Goodnight, I am going home.

There was a profusion of beautiful flowers, including set pieces from the Wollaston Baptist church. The Walther cluass, Paul Revere, W. R. C., No. 103, and the American Benefit society.

BRIEFS

The lodge Skandia, Order of Vassar is holding a grand bazaar at Electa hall. An entertainment and dance is enjoyed each night, and other attractions are: post office, tumbo table, wheel of fortune, faro wheel, cane table, refreshments, etc.

The new boy on the South Quincy route is Roland Pinel of Independence avenue and Ledger subscribers will find him reliable. He has a good supply each day to sell so that transient as well as regular customers will be accommodated. He goes on School, Franklin, Pleasant, Water and Pearl streets and Independence avenue.

Mrs. F. H. Shackley of Everett, who was seriously injured at the Aviation meet at Squantum on Sept. 10, when the horse plunged into the crowd on Squantum street, has been confined to the house ever since. No bones were broken, but she was internally injured and suffered a serious nervous shock. The condition of the others injured is unknown. Mrs. Shackley and friends appreciate the prompt work of Mounted Officer Phillips, the surgeons at the hospital on the grounds, and others.

H. D. Cole, optician with C. F. Pettengill, attended the optical convention at Worcester on Thursday. The meeting was held during the afternoon with a banquet in the evening. One of the features of the convention was the lecture by John C. Everhert, one of the formost opticians in the country.

The mason work of the Memorial Congregational church is almost completed to the satisfaction of all in the community. Old residents express their admiration of its architecture, and say it is far ahead of their expectations. George E. Thomas has put on a full force of men to finish the interior as soon as posible, and the steam boiler and radiators are being installed. It is the expectation of Rev. Mr. Davison that the church will be dedicated the second Sunday in December. Several beautiful stained glass memorials windows have been donated.

The numerous friends of Loyal Safford will be pleased to learn that he has sufficiently recovered from his accident to return to his home on Clive street. For the past four weeks he has been at the Quincy City Hospital and become a great favorite among the nurses and doctors by his patience and cheerfulness.

The ladies of the Benevolent society of the Memorial Congregational church, are working very industriously for the annual fair which will be held at Music hall in November. This year the sale will take the form of a "College Fair." Each booth will be decorated to represent some of our most noted colleges.

PRICE OF CODFISH SOARS

Mark May Further Advance Unless Record Catches Are Made

Boston, Oct. 22.—The price of salt codfish has shot to the highest mark in the history of Boston and Gloucester fisheries. The advance is 75 cents per hundredweight for large, and 72½ cents for medium fish.

The schooner American, with 230,-000 pounds, and the Monitor in Gloucester, with 200,000 pounds of fish, salted on the banks, received the record price. Large cod brought $4.50, medium $4.10 and snappers $3.25.

Dealers predict that the price will advance further, and unless record catches are made no reduction will be made until next spring.

OUR HOSPITAL FOR THE POOR

All Treated Alike Who Are Admitted as Patients

Tomorrow is the closing day of Hospital Week, and from all accounts the result will be gratifying to everyone in the city. According to the collectors, the people in the various parts of the city have been very generous in their contributions and prospects point to successful a collection as was ever held for the Hospital. This is Saturday and pay day for the average person. If your collector is coming tomorrow for his envelope and contribution, just drop your little bit in the envelope tonight before you spend it, and then tomorrow it will be already.

Many people are of the opinion that it is necessary to have the proverbial "barrel of money" in order to be treated at the Hospital. Those who believe this are laboring under a misapprehension, and if they glance at the statistics given in the Hospital report and also printed in the little publication "Our Hospital," they will readily see that it makes no difference whether a person has money or not. It is a fact that cannot be denied, that 130 patients or over one-third of the total number of patients treated at the Hospital during the year 1909 ,were treated absolutly free of charge. This would seem to show conclusively that it is not necessary to be rich in order to go to the Hospital.

The Hospital is for the people of Quincy, as we have stated many times before, and it was given to the City of Quincy for the people. That the people have been using it will be seen from the fact that 15 different nations and 45 different occupations were represented in the number of patients treated during the past year.

These facts should be remembered by everyone when thinking, or speaking of the Hospital. No race, creed or color is barred from the benefits of the institution, and it makes no difference what your financial or social standing may be, your treatment will be the same. No favors are shown any individual at the Hospital. All are equal and each one is treated with equal care and kindness.

During the year ending 1909, the number of patients admitted to the Hospital was 313. Of this number 172 were males and 141 females; 157 were paying patients, 26 were partly paying while 130 were admitted free of charge, as stated above. Of the number of cases treated, 69 were medical, and 244 were surgical. These last figures show what a benefit the Hospital is in case of accident, for many of the surgical operations were due to accidents. Only 2 patients were discharged without being relieved, while 154 were discharged well, 100 were relieved, while not one was discharged without being treated At the end of the year 38 deaths had been recorded and 19 patients remained.

IN THE TENTH DISTRICT.

The Boston Advertiser is outspoken in its editorial against Candidate Curley, when it says:

"In perhaps no other congressional district of the state is the result so important to the good name of Massachusetts, so vital to the self respect of the voters, as in the tenth. It needs no description of the situation there, to inform any voter within the district what the real issue is. It is above and beyond any mere matter of partisanship. The nomination of Curley was an affront to the right-minded voters of that district, whether they are Republicans or Democrats.

"In the past few days there have been circulated certain petitions, whose purport does not appear very distinctly from a reading of those blank papers. It is wise for the voters of that district to refuse to sign anything of the kind. There is no call to complicate the situation by having an extra candidate for congress, for the opposition to Curley should be united on one candidate, Mr. Galvin. To run another candidate, whatever his title, would be plainly to help the Curley candidacy.

"Fortunately, Curley's record is known in the district. There is no real need for further emphasis on that point. It is right for Mr. Galvin to make known his platform and position to the voters, but even that important consideration is, after all much less important than the mere fact that Curley is a candidate. The issue in that district is of more importance than tariff or the price of living or anything else of the political issues of the day in other districts. The chief and really one important issue is whether Curley, as a Democratic nominee, even in that Democratic district, can win the election. Any voter in that district, who fails to go to the polls on November 8 will be guilty of moral cowardice."

CAWLEY—SMITH.

A society wedding took place at Christ church Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock when Miss Irene McPherson Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Locke Smith of Weymouth, and Mr. Frederick John Cawley of London, England, were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Richard E. Armstrong, rector of the church, in the presence of several hundred people from the neighboring towns, and Boston and New York.

The groom was attended by Walter Raymond and Paul Newell of New York city. Miss Azul Smith, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Cecile H. Marble of Weymouth. Mr. Jacob Locke Smith the father of the bride, gave her away.

After the wedding a reception was held in the parish house. The bride and groom were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. Dow of Boston, Mrs. Hammers of Milton, Miss Fox, Miss Ferguson, Miss Annie Fraher and Mrs. Denlinger.

The bride was charming in an exquisite gown of white, carrying a large bouquet of bridal roses. The maid of honor wore a gown of pale blue and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Cawley started on their wedding tour immediately after the reception. They will spend the next two years in travel going leisurely to California and thence to Australia, where Mr. Cawley has business interests. From there they will go to London and after a season of society will tour Europe and the east.

Mr. Cawley is the son of Joseph Cawley, a retired London merchant. He is independently wealthy in his own right and a noted clubman. Mrs. Cawley has been in Weymouth for nine years. For the past few years she has been teaching in the Tufts school, one of the graded schools of the town, where she has been very well liked by children and parents.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

CRIPPEN GAINS SOME SYMPATHY

Questions of Prosecutor Come Like Snapping of Whips

YIELDS UNDER FIERCE STORM

Subsequently Regains His Composure and Parries Attack—Admits Statements Regarding Wife's Death Were Lies—Fate Hangs Upon His Story and Its Acceptance by Jury—Verdict Is Expected by Tonight

London, Oct. 22.—Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, accused of the murder of his wife, known to the theatrical profession as Belle Elmore, matched his wits yesterday with Richard Muir, one of the cleverest criminal lawyers in England.

When Crippen was escorted to the witness box Muir promptly asked him whether he had seen or heard anything of his wife since early on the morning of Feb. 1. The witness replied in the negative and in answer to further questions regarding the letters and statements to Belle Elmore's friends which the husband had made regarding her death, Crippen admitted that all were lies and assented to the suggestion that he had to play the role of a bereaved husband.

Witness said that he resolved to go away on July 9 after realizing that suspicion had been directed against him. He feared that he might be jailed until she was found. He wished also to spare Miss Leneve, whom he persuaded to disguise herself and quit London by explaining that the statement which he had made to Inspector Dew involved her as well as himself. He told the girl that there would be a scandal and if his wife was not located that there would be trouble. The only way of escape was for both to start a new home together, abroad.

Dr. Crippen was a confused, self-damaging and cringing spectacle, facing a pitiless rain of questions while he slowly saw his case tottering before him.

The defense closed at 3:30 p. m. All records for speed in a criminal trial have been broken in this case.

It was the most terrific cross examination within the memory of the barristers who looked on. At times Solicitor Tobin tried to save his client from the avalanche of questions which were rained upon him.

Like the accusing personification of justice, Muir stood directly before the prisoner, hurling broadside after broadside at the diminutive prisoner. The questions came like the snapping of whips, until the amazement of those in the courtroom gave way to sympathy for the accused man.

When the defendant was excused from the box, Dr. Turnbull was called as the next witness for the defense. He bluntly declared that the so-called scar on the body of the victim could not possibly be a scar.

Dr. Wall was called next by the defense. He testified that as a result of three examinations he had concluded that the disputed mark was not a scar. This closed the evidence for the defense.

Crippen may know his fate tonight. Immediately after the defense closed its case yesterday afternoon, Attorney Tobin began his speech to the jury in behalf of the little American.

It was officially stated that the prosecution would not consume a great deal of time in summing up and that the case would positively be concluded today. Opinion is about evenly divided as to the prospects of Crippen's acquittal. Though he yielded under the fierce storm of cross examination that first met him when he took the stand yesterday, at the end he had regained his calmness and seemed to make a favorable impression on the jury.

It is upon Crippen's story and its acceptance by the jurors that his fate will undoubtedly hang, as the expert testimony was well balanced for and against.

VATICAN AND MOROCCO

Two Sources of Trouble For Spain, According to Paris Newspaper

Paris, Oct. 22.—Basing its conclusions upon what it terms "an impartial inquiry as to the chances for a republic in Spain, The Matin finds that two events are liable to confront the imperial monarchy.

The first is the capitulation of the government to the Vatican. This would be resented by the anti-clericals. The second eventuality is the succumbing of the government to the designs of certain military groups to launch a program for the political conquest of Morocco.

This would be most unpopular with the people, as it would involve the calling out of the reservists from their homes with the inevitable result of anti-monarchial outbreaks similar to those that occurred at Barcelona a year ago.

Report That Papal Nuncio Has Been Recalled by the Pope

Lisbon, Oct. 22.—Following the departure of Mgr. Tonti, papal nuncio at Lisbon, the report became current that he had been recalled by the pope as a protest against the republic's anti-clerical program.

NARROW ESCAPE.

People who stood in City Square this morning when Chief Williams dashed through responding to an alarm from Box 61 thought for a minute that he would be smashed up. As he approached the corner of Hancock and Temple streets an electric car took the cross over to turn into the latter street. It was a case of to decide quick which way to pass. There was room enough between the car and the chains, but the Chief had no way of knowing if the car intended to stop or keep on. He therefore turned sharply to the left and passed safely. The motorman of the car had also seen the Chief coming and had stopped his car.

GAVE A BRIBE TO ALDERMAN

Hamilton Paid For His Confirmation as Fire Chief

NINE COUNTS AGAINST HIM

Jury Convicts Him on One and Reports Not Guilty In the Others After Deliberating More Than Twenty-One Hours—Story of Queer Doings by City Officials of Lawrence

Salem, Mass., Oct. 22.—A verdict of guilty on the first count, that of giving Alderman Xavier Legendre a bribe of $100 for his vote to confirm him as fire chief, was returned against James A. Hamilton, fire chief of Lawrence, by a jury in the Essex superior court.

The jury reported "not guilty" on the eight other counts of bribery and attempted bribery. Judge Schofield sentenced Hamilton to from two and one-half to four years in state prison.

The jury had been out twenty-one and one-half hours. When the verdict was reported Attorney Dooley, counsel for Hamilton, objected to the report because the foreman of the jury had declared in open court that the jury stood eleven to one. Dooley maintained that this had a tendency to intimidate the one juror who was holding out.

Judge Schofield overruled the objection and dictated to the court stenographer his formal opinion to that effect.

It developed that when the jury first came in, it had already agreed on a verdict of guilty for the first count. The disagreement of which the foreman spoke was on the fifth count. So the verdict on the first count had been settled among the jurymen before the statement in open court.

The indictment of Hamilton was read on May 19 in the superior court at Newburyport, along with indictments against other prominent Lawrence citizens, city officials and ex-city aldermen. Among these were Mayor White, ex-Alderman Burns and Legendre.

There were nine counts against Hamilton, the first two alleging he promised Legendre sums of $200 and $300 for his vote on the confirmation of Hamilton as fire chief. Two other counts charged the payment of $50 and $100 for the same purpose. Other counts alleged that Hamilton promised Burns $400 and $500 at different times for his vote, and that he paid $400 to Burns.

While White and the other men convicted were indicted for conspiracy to bribe to oust Hamilton, Hamilton himself and some others were indicted for bribery in securing the confirmation of the appointment.

Since being indicted Hamilton has remained in office, attending to his duties as fire chief. Last spring, in a statement, he said his indictment was another attempt by his enemies to crush him, and he termed it the lifting of the curtain on the second act of the great play, "Taken from the Ranks." The chief referred to the fact that he had been promoted from the driver of Engine 2 to head of the fire department.

In May, 1909, White, feeling reasonably sure, it is said, that Hamilton would not be confirmed by the aldermen, appointed him as chief of the fire department for three years, in place of Charles G. Rutter. To the great surprise of White, four of the six aldermen favored Hamilton and the latter was confirmed.

Moore was condemned to pay the death penalty by electrocution at Richmond on Nov. 25.

GIRL FLIRTS WITH HER AGED FATHER

Brings About His Arrest For Deserting Wife and Children

Philadelphia, Oct. 22.—Bertha Miller, 18 years old, brought her own father to justice by deliberately flirting with him. Eleven years ago Benjamin Miller deserted his wife and several small children. Recently Mrs. Miller heard that her husband was in New York city. She sent Bertha to find him.

The young woman located her paternal parent at a christening and immediately began a violent flirtation with him. Her aged parent failed to recognize his offspring and returned the advances of his daughter. They kissed and hugged.

The upshot of the whole matter was that Bertha invited her father to visit her at her home in Philadelphia. Miller arrived yesterday.

His wife opened the door for him, immediately called an officer and caused Miller's arrest on a charge of desertion and non-support.

Mr. Case, who is 77 years of age and nearly blind, alleged that he was induced to make the loan to Sandford upon a promise of a high seat among the elders at Hill Top, the temple of the cult.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Quincy People Know How to Save It.

Many Quincy people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a Quincy citizen's recommendation.

Nicholas Albanese, 16 Gilmore street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I was annoyed by attacks of backache for some time, often while at work sharp, shooting pains darted through my loins, causing me great misery. I also had dizzy spells and my sight seemed to be affected. I tried many remedies, but did not receive relief and as a last resort, I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I procured a box at the Cox Drug Store and in a short time after using them, I was helped. I have no hesitation in giving Doan's Kidney Pills the credit for my cure."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

ROOSEVELT ON TRAIL OF FOSS

Makes Bitter Attack on Democratic Nominee

CALLED A STOCK SPECULATOR

Charged With Seeking Political Advancement by "Force of Effrontery and Power That Comes From Money"—Democratic Convention at Boston Denounced as "Crooked"—Praise For Taft, Draper and Lodge

Boston, Oct. 22.—Theodore Roosevelt bitterly attacked Congressman Foss, the Democratic candidate for governor, in a speech before 8000 people in the Arena last night.

It was through the influence of his intimate friend, Senator Lodge, that the ex-President of the United States was induced to come to Massachusetts and make a speech.

There was a tense silence in the great hall when Roosevelt, in clear and incisive tones and with both fists clenched and raised in the air, stated that the election of Foss as the Democratic governor of Massachusetts would be "scandalous."

He described Foss as a man "who, having tried to dominate one party and failing, with money made in speculation in stocks, seeks to rise in political life, not by his record, but by the force of effrontery and power that comes from money."

After denouncing Foss, Roosevelt with arm outstretched and his finger pointed at the great audience, asked that they support Governor Draper, describing the latter as a man who "embodies supreme civic virtues, of unbending integrity, of unflinching courage and absolute frankness and sincerity of character."

The ex-president also referred to the recent Democratic convention as one in which lawlessness and violence prevailed. He said that there were "sinister forces in the convention representing crooked business and crooked politics," according to his information. He went so far as to charge that there was criminality behind the actions of the convention.

"I have understated, I believe, what every well informed man knows," said he. "I am speaking with moderation, I believe."

Mr. Roosevelt also drew a comparison between the New York Democratic convention and the Massachusetts convention. He said that the New York convention was controlled by one man and that man was Charles F. Murphy, the Tammany leader. He spoke of the famous "212"where Murphy was said to have summoned the fifteen candidates who were mentioned as candidates for the Democratic nomination for governor of New York. The name of Murphy elicited a cheer from various parts of the hall.

This applause caused Roosevelt to remark "that he was glad to see that the name of Murphy awakened some applause."

Mr. Roosevelt stated that the New York convention was a one-man convention, in contrast to the spirit of lawlessness and violence in evidence at the Massachusetts convention. "Take an average between the two conventions and you would have done fairly well," said he. "One went infinitely wrong in one direction and the other went infinitely wrong in the other direction."

Mr. Roosevelt was cheered as the next President of the United States. The voice from the gallery that suggested the cheers wasn't very loud, but the 8000 people who crowded the arena cheered anyway.

The ex-president did not refer in any way to 1912. He did, however, refer to the administration of President Taft in very complimentary terms, and there was no question in the minds of his listeners but that he gave it his indorsement.

He gave his unqualified indorsement to Lodge and recited legislation after legislation which he claimed the latter should be given credit for.

At least 1000 people left the hall before he had finished his speech, evidently satisfied with having gazed upon him.

It was noticeable that every time that Roosevelt mentioned the name of Taft and in any way referred in a complimentary manner to the latter's administration, there was prolonged applause.

The ex-president did not refer in any way or even touch upon the high cost of the necessities of life. He indorsed, however, the idea of tariff revision by a tariff commission and the attitude of the Republican party in Massachusetts on this matter.

Much Damage by High Tide

Work of Lone Highwayman

Osage, Okla., Oct. 22.—A man armed with a revolver held up and robbed eight persons in the railroad station here and later robbed the clerk of a hotel. He escaped.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

All Banners at Half Mast for Author of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic"—Pied Pipers from Lunenburg Draw Little Kelley out of Retirement—Fashionable Women to Wear Wax on their Chins but not in their Mouths—New Hampshire's "Baby Farms" Are Shown to be Black Holes of Calcutta—Philip Snowden, M. P., "Father of the British Budget," Will Address Suffragists at Lowell.

"Listen to the band; aint it grand?" exclaim Mayme and Sadie as they enter Paul Revere hall. There is no doubt but that the famous 75th regiment band from Lunenburg, Nova Scotia, is making an effective and clangorous hit in Boston. The attractiveness of its music is perhaps best illustrated by the story of the little stowaway by the name of Kelley who was discovered on board the vessel which brought the Nova Scotians to this city. The lad had succeeded in escaping notice up to the time that the band struck up the popular air, "Has Anyone Here Seen Kelly?" This proved to be too much for him, and he crept up on deck as if to answer the inquiry, whereupon he was promptly pounced upon by the ship's officer. The bright red coats of the musicians make attractive spots of color as they pass up and down the streets in the vicinity of the big Mechanics' Exposition where they are drawing many lovers of music, who visit the exposition quite as much to hear the Canadian band as to see the exhibits.

"Julia Ward Howe is dead!" The shocked whisper which mechanically repeated the glaring newspaper headline and the rapidity with which the "extras" melted from the newsboys' arms told the sorrow which was felt by men, women and children when America's and Boston's "grand old woman" was obliged to yield to the burden of her many and useful years. Today Boston's brilliant and noted men are speaking words of reverential eulogy of the remarkable woman whose life work is now over, while there is not a woman in the city, it is safe to say, but feels a sense of personal bereavement in the loss of this level-headed, ardent supporter of women's causes. Many a Bostonian recalls the occasion of her last appearance before a large audience in this city, when she spoke briefly but eloquently at the suffrage meeting in Tremont Temple last December at which Mrs. Philip Snowden was given an ovation. The tense silence which gripped the auditorium testified both to the importance which was attached to her message and to the suspense which every listener felt lest the frail body be too weak to stand the strain imposed by the most wonderful brain and spirit of the century. It is small wonder that the yellow banners of the suffragists hang forlornly at half-mast, paying silent tribute to the memory of their lost leader.

Miss Mary Boyle O'Reilly, one of Boston's noted sociologists and a public spirited woman who does things when she sets out to, has effectually stirred up the authorities of New Hampshire through her investigations of the past few months. All summer she has been quietly studying the conditions on the various "baby farms" of that state, which she visited disguised as a working girl by the name of "Mamie McGoldrick." Miss O'Reilly has identified herself prominently with many good works, is a loyal champion of the working girl and a friend of the downtrodden everywhere, but she has hit upon a patricularly desirable wrong to be righted in this instance, and if she succeeds, as seems probable, in making the New Hampshire legislature enact new and stringent laws governing their baby farms she will have done a public work not to be forgotten.

Toward Lowellmas, as our Greek-American fellow citizens write it, the thoughts of thousands of Bay State believers in the political equality of the sexes are now directed. At the good city on the Merrimack where Lucy Larcom once toiled and sung the Masachusetts Woman Suffrage Association will hold its 41st annual convention, Oct. 27-28. The local hospitality for which the cotton town has always been famous will be freely extended to the visitors. Mrs. Maud Wood Park of Boston, Mrs. W. W. Penfield of New York and others will comment on current subjects. An open air meeting on the South Common will appeal to workers in the shops. As an especial attraction there will be an address by Hon. Philip Snowden, M. P., the crippled young Englishman who with no resource but his clear thinking and his wonderful gift of oratory has made his way to a seat in the House of Commons and who has been very generally hailed as the "real father of the British Budget." His pamphlet "Hints to Lloyd George" is created with having pointed out to that astute statesman the existence of "henroosts to sack." Mr. Snowden's reputation is such that although his talk will be confined to "The Fate of the Woman Suffrage Bill in England," he will be certain to draw to Colonial Hall hundreds of people whose interest in the suffrage question has not heretofore been awakened. In view of the high character of the program at the convention it is not at all strange that Miss Alice Stone Blackwell, president of the association, and Mrs. Mary Hutcheson Page, chairman of its board of directors, unite in urging all the suffragists of the state and all who wish to be better informed about the suffrage movement to be on hand at Lowell. Meantime for Bostonians and others a stimulating series of addresses on the second Friday afternoon of each month is being arrange at the equal suffrage headquarters, 585 Boylston Street, where Mrs. Park, who has just returned from a tour of the world, will describe the condition of women in Oriental countries. Many New England people hardly appreciate that even China is in the midst of an uprising of the women against the old barbarisms and that the same arguments are being used by conservatives for continuance of the custom of malforming girls' feet that are employed hereabouts for disfranchising half the adult population.

A living, walking edition of the Eden Musee seems to be forecasted in the news note from London to the effect that women of fashion are having wax injected into their chins to make them a desirable shape and to produce dimples. It is claimed that the wax molds itself into the tissue and looks perfectly natural, but the beauty specialist who advocates the process admits that she "has known cases of women's faces being utterly spoiled." But, of course, the risk of having one's face disfigured for life is a small item as compared with the desirability of having a perfectly molded chin—even though the style in chin shapes may change another season. One imagines the results of this treatment. Picture Glady's returning from the beauty parlors resplendent in a charming chin with a demure dimple therein, with lips of vivid scarlet, and so on. Perhaps Gladys in the privacy of her own domicile is obliged to cook supper for hubby, leaning now and again over the hot stove and the steaming delicacies in preparation. To the uninitiated there arises a mental image of Gladys sitting down opposite her admiring husband at the dining table, with her dimple melted around under one ear, and a distinctly lop-sided tilt to the point of the said perfectly molded chin. However, perhaps the experts have found a non-meltable kind of wax that doesn't act in this naughty way. If so, we have no further excuse for visiting the wonders of Eden Musee. We shall have living wax works parading the streets right under our noses. Ethel Angier

The young people are looking forward to the reopening of Miss Agnes Braman Hayward's classes in dancing in Colonial hall. Friday afternoon, Oct. 28, at 4 o'clock there will be a class for advanced small children and Monday, Oct. 31, at 4 o'clock the advanced pupils will start a term of

The steamship Herman Frasch has been floated and has been towed to Key West.

An informal dancing party will be held by the entertainment committee of the Wollaston Young Peoples Religious Union in Wollaston hall on Friday evening.

Miss Helen Rhines, a student at Boston University, has been confined to the house for a week with gastritis.

A social dancing party was held in Wollaston hall by the Dorothy Q. lodge of Odd Ladies last evening.

G. C. Shunk has removed his newspaper and periodical business from 325 to 331 Newport avenue, where he has larger quarters and better facilities for his increasing trade.

E. V. Earl of Boston who owns tract of land at Quincy Point through which the new street has been cut had a sale last week. Five or six lots on the upper side of the road were sold at low prices averaging two cents a foot. The lot at the corner of Chubbuck and Washington streets was sold, and it is rumored that a large building will go up on it in the spring.

A meeting will be held at Colonial hall on Monday evening to arrange for the Quincy meeting in the Civic Advance campaign.

There was an unusual high tide Friday noon caused by the high wind. As a result the much debated causway on the street to Houghs Neck was overflowed. It was high tide at 1 o'clock and the street was overflowed for two hours. As the street car tracks have been raised travel was not delayed by cars.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Frank Mitchell entertained a few of their many friends at their home on Pleasant street Friday evening to help them celebrate their twentieth wedding anniversary. A pleasant social evening was passed during which refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell received a number of pleasing remembrances.

McDONOUGH A HERO.

Warrant Officer James McDonough who was severely burned at the time of the fire on the battleship North Dakota, some weeks ago, has just been able to leave the hospital. As his friends in Quincy supposed, he enacted the part of a hero at the time of the fire, although for some reason his superior officers neglected to report it at Washington. What he did was to dive through a wall of flame in the engine room to rescue a boy who would have been burned to death but for his bravery. Mr. McDonough's face was one mass of blister when he was taken to the hospital, and his hand where he had turned the valve shutting off the supply was also badly burned.

So bad was his face burned and blistered that it was impossible to see so as to distinguish which part of his face was which, and holes had to be cut in the blisters so that he could see. Mr. McDonough is a member of Quincy lodge of Elks and married a daughter of Benjamin Johnson.

UNIONS LOSE THEIR CASE

Injunction Against Strike and Damages Awarded Employing Firm

Boston, Oct. 22.—Judge Hardy, in the supreme court, ordered an injunction to issue on the bill of Folsom & Sunergren and other photo-engravers against officers and members of the Photo-Engravers' union No. 3 and the officers of the International Photo-Engravers' union, restraining the defendants from carrying on a strike with a view to unionizing the shops in Boston. The court also ordered $500 to be paid Folsom & Sunergren as damages.

The case has been fought bitterly, and it will go to the supreme court in all probability, the main question relating to the legality of a strike called for the purpose of unionizing a shop.

RECEPTION TO HACKETT

All North Weymouth Turns Out to Do Him Honor

William H. Hackett of Fore River shipyard, twice winner of the Brockton fair Marathon, was given a royal reception by his many friends in North Weymouth last evening, which testified to the high esteeem in which he is held in his home town. During the early evening their was a grand parade and illumination. Headed by a squad of Weymouth's finest, and escorted by a local club of which he is a member, as well as a number of the Fore River Apprentices, Hackett and the other guests of the evening who were in carriages were escorted through the principal streets of the village. Red fire was burned all along the line, and with the hundreds of torches a stranger would have taken it to be a political torchlight parade.

The procession stopped at the engine house hall where an opportunity was afforded to meet the lively little runner. After the reception Mr. Hackett was presented a handsome diamond ring as a token of the regard in which he is held by his home friends.

Then came brief addresses by a number of athletes including the manager of the Brookline gym; Mr. Milen who recently won the championship race at New Orleans; James E. Neary, instructor of the Fore River Apprentice school where Hackett received his first training; and George L. Newton ,the local member of the board of Selectmen. There were also several other speakers well known in the world of athletics. Hackett is as clean a runner as was ever turned out, and if he is sent to England next year to compete in the great Olympic games he can be relied upon to give a good account of himself.

SUICIDE PREVENTED.

The quickness of Arthur J. Brady the street railway starter at Neponset bridge, prevented a demented woman from committing suicide in the Neponset river this morning. Mr. Brady noticed the woman walking about the car barn near the bridge, and as she appeared to be acting strangely he watched her, keeping as close to her as possible. Suddenly the woman climbed up onto the railing of the bridge and was about to jump into the river, when Mr. Brady grabbed her and pulled her back out of danger. She struggled violently for a few minutes to get away, but Brady held onto her, and turned her over to the Boston police. The woman refused to give her name.

AERONAUTS ARE MISSING

Fears That They Have Been Lost In the Wilds of Canada

This announcement was made by officials of the Aero club of St. Louis.

The situation in reference to the unreported balloons has assumed a serious aspect. It is believed that the men have landed somewhere in the wilds of Canada, where they may be victims of starvation before assistance can reach them.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 22.—Crazed with grief over the death of her fiance, Stanley Ketchel, the middleweight champion, who was murdered while visiting in Missouri, Miss Jewell Bovine, to whom Ketchel was to be married next spring, tried for the fourth time since the funeral of her fiance on Tuesday to commit suicide.

The girl was discovered raising a vial of carbolic acid to her mouth while in a carriage on the return from the funeral and was prevented by her sister from drinking the contents. Three other times since R. H. Dickinson, on whose ranch Ketchel was killed, stopped the girl from taking poison. She was finally put under guard.

EX COUNCILMAN WRITES ON WATER METERING

Present Trouble Not Due, He Says to Failure of City Council 1909

Proper Authorities Neglected to Carry Out Vote

Editors of Quincy Daily Ledger:

After reading the various articles that have appeared recently in the Ledger in regard to the information brought by the Attorney General at the relation of the Metropolitan Water and Sewerage Board against the City of Quincy, I cannot escape the conclusion that you are laboring under a grave misunderstanding as to the point in issue.

While a member of the City Council I was greatly interested in the subject of water meters and in the Water department, and I have therefore taken a particular interest in this case. I have consulted the original papers on file in the clerk's office of the Supreme Judicial court, which, by the way, are open to public inspection. I find that the complaint relates solely to the year 1909 and alleges that:—

1. Although the city should have installed meters for 229 water services during that year, being 5 per cent of the services unmetered December 31, 1907, when law went into effect, only 33 were metered, and

2. That instead of metering all new water services installed during that year, numbering 365, only 65 were metered.

That is, during the year 1909 a total of 594 meters should have been installed, but as a matter of fact only 98 were actually so installed. The amendment to the law passed in 1909 provided a penalty of not less than $20 nor more than $100 per day during such time as the city or town should continue in default. Action was began by the Attorney General, September 22, 1910, just 264 days after December 31, 1909, at which time the meters should have all been installed. This palpable violation of the law if true as alleged, subjects the City to the payment of a fine of not less than $5,280, nor more than $26,400.

There would seem to be no excuse for this failure to comply with the law. In one of your articles you state that because the $48,000 order for meters failed to pass in 1909 no money was appropriated for meters. This is not true. I was a member of the Council that year, and also of the Finance Committee, and the records will show that on April 26, 1909, the Finance Committee reported a substitute order for $40,000 for extension of the water system and "for purchasing and installing meters." This order was adopted and approved by the Mayor and the money was borrowed. In Committee I tried to have the order divided as it had been in previous years making a separate and distinct amount for meters, but was defeated. I was given to understand, however, that about $10,000 would be used for that purpose out of this $40,000 appropriation. Evidently not more than $1,200 at the most was so expended.

The other day it was stated in your columns that over $26,000 had been expended for meters during the last five years beginning January 1, 1906. While that may be true, it is not material as the law only went into effect December 31, 1907, about three years ago, and during this period only about $10,000 has been so expended. Of this amount $7,369.01 was so spent during the year 1908 when we had a separate appropriation for meters, but during the last two years only the paltry sum of less than $3,000 has been spent.

The average cost of meters, including installation, is between $10 and $12 each ,and as the number of water services to be metered each year under th law averages from 600 to 800 it can readily be seen that we must spend between $7,000 and $10,000 each year for that purpose. The expenditure of $3,000 in two years, or an average of $1,500 per year is not a compliance with the law and would seem to be inexcusable.

You object to the law as wrong, and as working a hardship on the city. The simple answer is that even if so it is no excuse for violating the law nor does it relieve the City from paying the penalty for such violation, which in this case is rather expensive. I believe, however, that the law is right because it looks to the eventual metering of the entire city. When that is done we shall no longer have the glaring injustice of one man paying $6 per year as the minimum water rate when his next door neighbor is paying $16 per year for identically the same service, merely because the latter's service is metered and the former's is not.

Until all the water services in the City are metered water rates will not be uniform, but will continue to be a matter of guess work pure and simple. It was for that reason that I favored the additional appropriation of $48,000 for meters proposed by Councilman Nowland, because I believed it to be an honest attempt to hasten the time when such inequalities can no longer exist, and the rate can be determined on a business basis.

The objection is also made that because of the installation of meters the water receipts have decreased, but this would not be the case if the plan were adopted of first metering those services where the most waste is found. This is a matter easily remedied and is the result of the way in which the law is executed, and is not inherent in the law itself.

In closing, I wish to emphasize the fact that the present trouble is in no way due to any failure of the City Council of 1909, of which I was a member, to make a sufficient appropriation for the purchase and installation of meters. It is due to the neglect of the proper authorities to expend the money for th purpose for which it was appropriated.

George W. Abele.

Quincy, Oct. 24, 1910.

NOTE—The editors of the Daily Ledger certainly believe the City should comply with the law, and each year meter all new services and five per cent of the old. But would stop there. We still maintain that the law is a needless expense upon the Metropolitan district to require the installation of water meters at residences. Water rates are controlled by cities, and so long as there is a $16 minimum in Quincy there is no incentive to use less than $15 worth of water, meter r no meter, and very few use more than $16 worth.

But it is not from th water takers' standpoint that the Daily Ledger looks at this question, but from the taxpayers' standpoint. Water meters increase the city debt and interest; do not decrease Metropolitan assessments; and therefore increase the tax rate.—EDS.

PETTENGILL—LITTLE.

At the home of Dr. and Mrs. George Thomas Little in Brunswick, Maine, on Saturday evening was married their daughter Rachel Thayer and Dr. Ray Waldron Pettengill, German instructor at Harvard university, by Rev. John H. Quint, pastor of the First Parish Congregational church.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Ruth B. Little, and Miss Marcia Reed of Roxbury, Maine , a classmate at Smith college, as bridesmaids. The best man was Dr. Frederick Lieder of Cambridge. Ruth Pettengill of Augusta, a niece of the groom and Russell Patten of Braintree, a cousin of the bride, were flower bearers.

After the service there was a reception. The bride and groom were assisted in receiving by Dr . and Mrs. Little, parents of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Pettengill of Augusta, brother and sister-in-law of the groom.

The ushers were Stanley Perkins Chase and Harold Charles Trott of Portland, Harold Starbird Elder of Westbrook and George Tappen Little of Brunswick, brother of the bride.

Dr. Little before going to Maine was a professor at Thayer Academy, South Braintree and well known in this vicinity. He married Miss Lillie T. W. Lane daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Lane of Braintree and Mrs. Little has many friends here. Braintree relatives went to Maine for the wedding.

CHARITIES CONFERENCE.

Judge Harvey Baker of the Boston Juvenile Court is the Chairman of the section on the neglected child of the State Conference of Charities, and will direct the program in Fitchburg on Thursday evening, Oct. 27th. He will explain what constitutes a neglected child under the laws of Massachusetts. He desires especially to call the attention of the public to the great importance of this problem. The neglected child is a far more fundamental and important difficulty than the delinquent child, because neglect usually leads to delinquency. A large portion of the truants are found to be neglected children.

Another serious problem to be considered at the conference will be in connection with the section on cooperation on Friday afternoon. The special topics of cooperation in the community for the children, and for the public health, will be presented in detail. Miss Francis G. Curtis, a member of the State Board of Charity and Chairman of this section, will discuss the general problem of mutual help between public and private agencies. Mrs. H. D. Sleeper of Northampton, Dr. H. Lincoln Chase, of Brookline and Miss Ida M. Cannon of the Social Service Department of the Massachusetts General Hospital will be the principal speakers.

—Bank Commissioner Chapin's instructions to certified accountants who may be called upon to audit the accounts of Massachusetts savings banks, are so explicit and rigid as to indicate that the unfortunate experience of some towns of the state during the past year has had a tonic and educational effect. Careful as the commonwealth has been in the past, it will be even more so in the future. There is to be far more uniformity of accounting, more exclusive examination by outsiders and less with the aid of bank officials; and far more reference to the bank commissioner for authority for specific acts than in the past.—Boston Herald.

THE STREET LOAN ORDERS

Claim It is Political Game to Withold Appropriation

Editor Quincy Ledger:

From an impartial observation of the way certain men and methods prevail in our City Council meetings, it is apparent there are "progressionists" and "obstructionists" in that body as well as in the larger political game now being played throughout the country.

Away back last spring certain people living on certain ways of the city received notices that the city of Quincy was considering the taking and accepting as public ways these streets with the evident intention of laying the same out as public thoroughfares. These people living on the streets were wiling that it should be done; were willing to be assessed one half the cost, and were willing, as a guarantee of that faith in them, to come to City Hall and in such numbers at the public hearing that the Council chamber was filled to the doors.

It was the opportunity that many men and women in this city had waited over 20 years for. What was the result? The Street committee viewed these ways and reported favorably. The Finance committee examined the matter of the money appropriations and reported favorably. The Council voted to accept the reports of the Street committee and thereby went on record as favoring the laying out of those streets.

So far, so good. All of these things through no fault of the abutters who live on the streets, but solely because the Council ordained it so for some reason or another, took time, and the date for passing the loan order to rebuild these streets came up at the last meeting of the Council.

What was the result? Without the least warning, the hopes of the people who had been sustained all the year were shattered because five men in the Council sought to play a political game in which none of these abutters had any interest, and choked off the appropriations by specious arguments relative to the time of year and character of the road construction that has been used in the city.

The vote of the president of the Council would have saved some of these orders, but it was not forthcoming. There was no reason why the president should have voted, of course, but the failure to do so is here cited only to show his connection with what followed, although it will be remembered he decided the tie vote of his own volition when the question of appointing the investigating finance commission came up.

Later in the evening when Mr. Smith of Ward Four moved to suspend rule 1 and adjourn the Council to Oct. 24, so that these loan orders might have another chance, the president of the Council ingeniously divided the question without any reason therefor, all previous presidents having submitted such motions as an entire question. So far, so good, again.

The Council, by a two-thirds vote, went on record for suspending the rules, thereby agreeing in effect at least, to a week's continuance. Then, when the president had decided the first part of the motion made by Mr. Smith, he allowed Mr. Bryant to interject a motion to adjourn when the second part of Mr. Smith's motion contained amotion to adjourn for a week. The president had no right to consider Mr. Bryant's motion at that time, and he would not have done so if he did not see a chance to block the week's adjournment to which he was apposed.

The people who live on the streets which have been accepted, but not placed in proper condition, must feel themselves placed in a peculiar position by men who are supposed to represent them and their interests, but who it would appear, think more of playing the political game for their own advantage.

The citizens of Ward Four have already gone on record as expressing their opinion of the action of a certain councilman who helped defeat the project to get their streets rebuilt as was contemplated when the orders were first reported. When Mr. Bryant used to be president of the council, and he was called a pretty sharp politician, I do not think he ever used his power as president of the council to such an end as has been seen this week. "Interested Citizen."

CANDIDATES AT HOUGHS NECK

Republicans and Democrats on Same Platform

A red hot political rally was held at Houghs Neck Saturday night under the auspices of the Houghs Neck Associates. The rally was intended to boom the candidacy of John R. S. Ross for the City Council, but it turned out to be more of a rally on state affairs, and Candidate Ross cut but a small figure in it. Many of the political spell binders were present, and had their little say. Both candidates for congress, Messrs. Galvin and Curley were present, but at different times, and each received loud applause at the conclusion of their remarks.

In addition candidates Thomas, Sullivan and McDevitt, for representatives from the fifth and sixth districts were present and spoke, as did also Rednor P. Coombs candidate for senator from the first Norfolk district. All of these gentlemen spoke briefly.

Representative Thomas when asked a pointed question by his rival, as to how he would vote on the Lodge question, wisely declined to pledge himself, and stated he should vote as his conscience dictated.

Candidates Sullivan, McDevitt and Coombs did not hesitate however to state how they would vote.

Chairman Smith and several other of the Democratic party leaders were present in the audience.

On the way to Quincy on the last car, Candidate McDevitt and Archie Thayer got into an argument which became sa heated that it looked as though a scrap would ensue. At this point the conductor took a hand, and stepping in between the two men told them they must cut that out or get off of the car. Mr. Thayer thought he had a right to defend himself, but the conductor said that there would be no scrapping on his car if he could prevent it. All was harmonious when the party landed in City Square at midnight.

HEAVY BOARD BILL.

It cost John Coffey of Cohasset over $27 in court this morning for neglecting to pay a $10 board bill when he left his usual place of abode at Cohasset last week. Coffey owed that amount of money for two weeks board and to avoid paying left the house one morning about 4 o'clock for pastures new. He was located, however, and a warrant issued against him. The court ordered him to pay his boarding mistress the amount due her and placed the case on file on payment of costs amounting to $17.35, making a total of $27.35 for his neglect to pay his just bill.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The Columbia State asks, "Do Colleges teach?" Of course, they hire a football coach each year.

Gen. Wood is not quite consistent when he urges that children should be trained to be soldiers. He was not.

A Montana woman sued for divorce because her husband took his stenographer to the matinee. And then the stenographer turned out to be a man.

We serve notice right now that we are not going to spend any more nickles for the Outlook unless the contribution editor contributes.

That man in Chicago who says he will sell himself to the highest bidder would probably prove dear at any price.

Councilmen who endeavor to prevent a few of the many appropriation orders should not be accused of playing a political game. Perhaps they have some regard for the taxpayers. It may be those who vote for appropriations who have an axe to grind.

While it will probably be next spring before active operations are commenced in the erection of the new County Courthouse in Quincy, it is none too early to begin a campaign to have the building erected of Quincy granite. The City Council has already passed a resolution to the effect that the building should be built of Quincy granite which has been endorsed by the Board of Trade. Quincy granite alone should be used. The building is to be erected in the heart of the city, and it is eminently fitting that Quincy's old industry should be represented.

Many architects in drawing plans select other granites unless sepcially directed to use Quincy granite. It is to be greatly regretted that the post office building could not have been of Quincy granite, but evidently no conserted movement was made to that end, with the result that here in a city renowned for its granite is a public building erected of granite from another state. Let it not be so with the Court House. Let everyone use their little influence to that end and the demand will be so great that it can not be ignored.

DRIFT OF OPINION

A big Chicago mail order house has decided to give the preference, hereafter, so far as employment is concerned, to non-college men. This decision is made after much experience, andthe reason for it is given as follows: "Thirty per cent of the college men we tried made good. Seventy per cent. of the 'dubs' made good. The success of the latter is due to the fact that he keeps his mouth shut and listens. The college man knows too much. It angers him to tell him to do a thing. We have had all kinds of trouble with university boys. They are so cocksure that they become unbearable. We give the decided preference to the ordinary, hard working uneducated chap. He concedes superior knowledge to men of experience and is in a mood to observe more quickly and more accurately than the college boy."

Well, to do the college man but justice, he certainly ought to know more in certain lines when he goes to work than does the young fellow whose education is less. The college man ought to be more sure of himself, ought to have less need of being told what to do and how to do it. Four years among picked men, however, naturally make a good many collegians a little less amenable to reason than are boys who have worked since early youth and who realize that they are just workers. Four years that have been largely marked by a sort of independence, by social success to a greater or less extent, by a feeling that one is a cut above the common, and perhaps by athletic prowess that have won acclaim from press and public, do not make a young fellow ready to run and carry and say "Yes sir" with deference and take unpleasant orders with a smile. These reasans probably have more to do with the Chicago result than have the absence among some collegians of real ability to make good.—Brockton Enterprise.

"A survey of the industrial situation in the eastern half of Massachusetts, just completed by the Chamber of Commerce, exhibits a wonderful degree of steadily progressive prosperity, and shows that this section, which may be regarded as typical of industrial New England, is building along lines of assured permanence. Day by day the path to permanent prosperity is being plainly blazed by men of farseeing ability-men who have themselves achieved success, and in order to reach the sumit we need but to follow diligently the pathway they have traced. This pathway lies along the development of exceptional technical skill—the establishment of exceptionally high standards and the production of articles embodying all that is suggested by the phrase 'superlative fitness.' The New England factory mark denotes the last word in material, design, novelty, workmanship, utility. It must mean freedom from shody or pretenceo it must mean honesty—visible and invisible.—"President Rothwell of Boston Chamber of Commerce.

The gain in population made by Massachusetts during the last ten years is one of the pleasant surprises of the census. A gain was looked for, of course, but that it should run over half a million was hardly anticipated by the most optimistic. The actual increase is 561,070 or 20 per cent over 1900. Much of this gain has been made since 1905, if the census taken in that year was correct, and there is no reason to doubt it. Then the increase over 1900 was only 193,612 or 7 per cent. By this showing Massachusetts not only passes Missouri and becomes the sixth state in the Union in point of population—3,366,416—but it upsets completely the notion that rapid growth is exclusively characteristic of younger states. Not all the growth of Massachusetts is attributed, of course, to industrial expansion, although much of it may be to set down. The agricultural districts of the state have of late been attracting population, and growth is as remarkable in the smaller towns as it is in the larger cities. Altogether, Massachusetts makes a splendid showing and one of which the entire industrial section may well be proud.—Christian Science Monitor.

WEIGHT OF AEROPLANES.

Assuming that the weight of the aviator is 170 pounds, the approximate weight in flight of the aeroplanes that are in constant and practical use is as follows:

The Wright biplane with 30-horse power motor and aviator, 1080 pounds

The Curtiss biplane with a 50-horse power motor and aviator, 710 pounds.

The Farman biplane with 50-horse power motor and aviator, 1170 pounds

The Voisin biplane with 50-horse power motor and aviator, 1270 pounds.

The Bleriot monoplane with 50-horse power gnome motor and aviator, 1150 pounds; with 100-horse power gnome motor and aviator, about 1200 pounds.

The Antoinette monoplane with 50-horse power motor and aviator, 1210 pounds. The latest Antoinette monoplane with 100-horse power motor and aviator is said to weigh about the same.

The Santos-Dumont "Demoiselle" monoplane with 30-horse power and aviator is the lightest aeroplane that flies, and weighs 412 pounds.

Cody of England has built a biplane which weighs with an 80-horse power motor and aviator 2170 pounds. This huge machine has not been very successful.

NEAT AND AIRY.

It was remarked several times during the late aviation meet, and in several different dialects, that flyers should wear a distinguishing uniform.

When a man comes out and does a nerve racking stunt for public approval he shouldn't feel satisfied to sport a buggy washing mackintosh, or an olly tarpaulin, or a knit smoking jacket of the Christmas before the Chicago fire.

Let him conceive something chromatic with pink tights and a blue sash and sleeveless fleshings. Then we would suggest touching up the aeroplane with a strong tint or two. Gild the planes and smear the flywheel in a rich maroon.

"Is that a bird man, aunty?" exclaimed the little girl in the grand stand.

"Yes, Mary"

"Dear me," said the little girl, "he's plainer than punk!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HAPPINESS.

Many recipes for attaining happiness have been given to the world and somehow most of them fail at critical moments. The person who deliberately says: "Go to, now I will be happy," usually finds unhappiness just round the corner; and the mass of persons who, with a vague longing for happiness, turn to excitement, may aver that they had a good time, but they revert to unhappiness because they persist in contrasting the monotony of the every day with the vividness of the occasional, so that, after all, they do not get much happiness that is worth while. In a German collection of wit and humor, dated 1644, there is a homely passage which says: Would'st thou be happy for a day ,get shaved; for a week, go to a wedding; for a month, get a fine saddle horse; for six months, build a fine house for thyself; for a whole year, marry a beautiful woman; for two years, inherit a rich uncle; but if thou would'st be happy for all thy life—be temperate." All of which is a parable, and not to be taken literally. The happiness often fails with every one of them.

Froude, the English historian, says, what has been said in effect by many other thoughtful men, that "to be happy is not the purpose for which you are placed in this world." Granting that there is a purpose for which we are placed in this world, and interpreting the statement through its spirit rather than its exact letter, there is much truth in this. But we should phrase it differently, if less gracefully by saying that "to be continually bothering about happiness is not the purpose for which you are placed inthis world." For to be persistently thinking about one's own happiness is selffishness, and selfishness is the deadly foe to happiness, no matter how friendly it may appear. The injunction is rather trite, and may justly be described as a platitude, but what comes as near to producing happiness as anything is in really trying to make other people happy. Whether the attempt succeeds, so far as they are concerned, is sometimes doubtful; and it may not always work as well as was hoped with the experimenter himself. When he finds that his well-meant efforts have really been injudicious the sensation is not always unalloyed happiness. Even then however, it is not as bad as getting things he wants only to find that he does not want them; while often the attempt has a pleasanter ending.—New Bedford Standard.

HAVE YOU SEEN HIM?

There are a number of parties about Middleboro who are wondering whether they were taken in by a clever confidence man last week, or assisted a worthy party. A well dressed, fine appearing young Englishman called at a number of houses and after inquiring for the man of the house told an unfortunate story. He stated that he had arrived in this country from England about eight weeks ago with about $50 in his pocket. He had been led to believe that it was an easy matter to procure employment in this country and all the work he had ever done on the other side was of a clerical nature and after he landed in Boston he had tried in vain to get work of this kind. His money was soon gone and he had sold his two suits of clthes to keep the wolf from the door. He had relatives in Portland, Me., but learned that they had moved to New York and was on his way there, trying to make Providence to take the Joy line of boats as they were cheaper. His apparent honesty and truthfulness so impressed many that they contributed financially to his assistance. As he called at numerous places, repeating the same tale, and stating that he was there because the family name was the same as his mother's, it is thought that he was a worker of an old game revamped.—Middleboro Gazette.

GENTLE HINT.

"Oh, Johnnie, Johnnie," said his aunt, reproachfully, "why is it you never remember to say "Thank you'?"

"I expect it's 'cause I don't get things given to me often enough for practice," answered the young diplomat, hopefully eyeing a box of chocolates.

—An illustration of the new civic spirit in St. John, N. B., was given recently when the residents along one block of a leading residential street petitioned the City Council and offered to pay half the cost of having that block and street paved and boulevarded in modern style. The city of St. John is literally built upon the everlasting hills, some of its streets being literally hewn out of the solid rock. The streets, therefore, are never a quagmire; but until the last year a very little has been done in the laying of permanent pavement. This year, however, considerable granite pavement has been laid, and the action taken by the citizens in question is an indication that before many years modern pavement will be the rule throughout the city.

TAFT IN NO HURRY

Has Not Yet Selected Members of New Court of Commerce

Washington, Oct. 24.—The positive statement is made at the White House that President Taft will not name the new court of commerce until a day or two prior to the reconvening of congress.

For weeks railroad lawyers and shippers alike who have been in Washington attending the sessions of the Interstate commerce commission in connection with the increase in freight rates have been discussing the probable personnel of the new court.

It is known that a dozen or more names are before the president for appointment. The northwest and the south are particularly anxious to be represented and favorite sons of those sections are being pressed upon the attention of the president. New England and the east will each have a representative on the court, it is generally believed.

TRAINS CRASH HEAD-ON

One Man Killed and Dozen Others Injured In New Hampshire

Somersworth, N. H., Oct. 24.—Two passenger trains on the Boston and Maine railroad crashed head-on on the single track between here and the Foundry station, killing one man and injuring fully a dozen others, but none seriously.

Both engines were in charge of engineers who had been running on their respective divisions but a day or two, the engineer of the express having a pilot with him at the time.

The dead man is Frank Garland, 52, a carpenter. He had completed his day's work and was riding in the cab of the engine on the local train, which he had boarded at the Foundry station.

VAST ARMY LOOKING FOR LOST AERONAUTS

Hawley and Post May Be Fighting For Life In Wilderness

Ottawa, Oct. 24.—To overcome the wilderness are now banded together every resource of Canada hunting for the lost balloon, America II. The federal and provincial governments are working hand in hand.

Ten thousand officials, contractors and employes building the National Transcontinental railway have been thrown on the lookout by telegraph from S. N. Parent, chairman of the National Transcontinental commission.

The widespread net formed by the Hudson Bay company, whose trappers are now in the woods more numerously than at any other season, is searching for the America. The Great Northwestern Telegraph company's operators are on the watch for the slightest scrap of information. The Dominion police and the provincial police of Ontario are engaged in the search.

It is the opinion of August Blanckerts, aide of the balloon Germania, that Allan R. Hawley and Augustus Post of New York, pilot and aide respectively of the America II, are fighting for their lives through the wilderness of northern Quebec.

Chicago Woman Admits Landing Four In Fourteen Months

Chicago, Oct. 24.—Mrs. Alice Hoskins, who was recently arrested in Medford, Okla., charged with bigamy, was brought back on a fugitive warrant.

CEILING OF CEMENT FALLS ON BATHERS

Seven Men Hurt, While Others Rush Into Street Unclothed

Malden, Mass., Oct. 24.—Seven men were injured, three seriously, and a score, thrown into a panic, rushed into the streets of Malden practically unclothed when a heavy cement ceiling in the steam room of the Turkish baths at 32 Suffolk street fell and buried the men who had been taking baths.

Scenes unlike anything ever experienced in the city followed. From within could be heard the groans of men imprisoned in the wreckage, and the crowd that hurried to the spot was dotted here and there with men wrapped with sheets who wanted to recover their clothing but dared not venture into the building.

The baths are in a house occupied by Max Jacobson, the proprietor, and a large crowd of bathers were in the several rooms used as the baths when the ceiling fell. The noise of the falling ceiling could be heard in all the other rooms and there was a wild scramble to get out as soon as the inmates heard what had happened, as it was feared that other ceilings might give way and tumble.

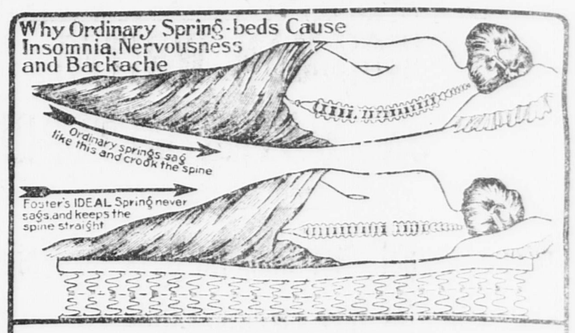
Ideal Bed Springs



A woven-wire spring, however good, can never be healthful, because its construction is wrong. It hangs like a hammock from rails at either end of the bed, sags in the middle—at first temporarily, then permanently—and crooks the spine at waist and neck; hence the backache, sleeplessness, nervousness, and nerve-irritation. Ask your doctor.

Foster's IDEAL affords luxurious healthful rest for a lifetime, because built on scientific, hygienic principles. It never sags, as each of its 120 double-coiled springs act vertically, and yield in exact proportion to the weight put upon it. The bed adapts itself to every curve of the body, and maintains the spine in its natural line. Plain or upholstered for wood or metal bedsteads.

SUNDAY IN THE CHURCHES

Gospel Team Very Successful At West Quincy

HALL PLACE M. E.

Seldom, if ever before, in the history of the Hall Place M. E. church, has the power of God to save souls in the community been so manifest as during the past week. Since the revival services started fifteen days ago the spirit of God has been felt by all, and all the people of the community have worked in sympathy with the movement. The services have been exceptionally helpful, decisions have been made and souls won.

The crowning success came, however, in the victories won by the "Gospel Team" of Boston University. This team consisted of five young men, R. P. Andrews, W. T. Kinsey, John Cornelius of Madras, India, R. F. Callahan and C. J. Burnhardt, all fully consecrated to God and his service, who came Friday night and took full possession of the meetings. And such meetings as have been held.

At the Friday night service each member of the team told something of their experience in coming to Christ, thrilling, fascinating stories concerning their acceptance of Christ and their lives as Christians. They spoke to the largest congregation that has ever gathered at the week-night services in this church. Everybody was stirred. Decisions were made, souls were won, and Christians claimed the victory over all doubts and fears.

Saturday night a similar service was held in the vestry, the members of the Gospel Team telling of some of the joys of the Christian's life. A duet "In Jesus" was rendered by Miss Ada and May Williams, and there were also selections by a quartet, Miss Ada and Miss May Williams, Mr. R. B. Callahan and Mr. R. P. Andrews.

Sunday was a day of great victory and rejoicing. The Gospel Team was on hand early and conducted the morning service at 10.30. C. J. Burnhardt and R. B. Callahan lead in prayer, and the Scripture lesson on "The Prodigal Son" was read by John Cornelius.

Mr. R. P. Andrews preached to the people on the Prodigal Son. A solo "Let the lower light be burning" was sung by Charles Goucher, the congregation joining in the chorus. Hearts were stirred and many were moved to tears at this service.

Although the morning service upstairs was brought to a close, the work continued at the session of the Sunday school downstairs and nearly the entire Sunday school or most of those members who had not previously done so, came to Christ. It was a victory never to be forgotten an experience long to be remembered by all present. A testimony service was held at the close when those who had completely surrendered their lives to Christ testified to that fact, and of their purpose to remain faithful to Him.

John Cornelius of Madras, India, spoke to a good number of the Juniors at the service at 3 P. M. R. P. Andrews lead the Epworth League devotional service at 6.15.

At the evening service at 7. R. P. Andrews spoke to one of the largest audiences that has ever gathered in this church for any service. Three of the men on the Gospel Team spoke on "The Fully Surrendered Life" and these young men certainly know the joy and happiness and peace which comes from surrendering their lives fully to God.

The general service was over early, a large part of the congregation going to the vestry however, to attend the after service. Here was the power of God most felt, as those who had accepted Christ during the past fifteen days gathered around the altar, while many others, some of whom have been holding out against the power, came and surrendered their all to the King of Kings. It was a time of great victory and if there is joy in heaven over one sinner that repenteth, surely heaven was filled with the joy and glory of seeing many precious souls saved.

A service of prayer was held during the service and many new voices were heard for the first time in public prayer. The greatest testimony service in the memory of the writer followed the service of prayer, when a large number fully alive to the Spirit of God testified to the power of God in their lives, the victory and blessing He gave and His saving and keeping power. It was a spontaneous service, at times, two people speaking at the moment, new converts saw their opportunity and testified to God's power in saving them.

R. P. Andrews, who is leader of the team, is an able and efficient worker, one who has the power to win and one who never gives up until he has won. As a leader in music he ranks with Charles Alexander and like Mr. Alexander, makes much of the power of song. As a preacher, he holds the attention of his congregation as the tells in a simple yet effective way he story of Christ and then sends home to the heart of each listener, the lesson God would teach, until they can no longer resist the magnetic power of both God and himself. His persistency in this work has aided in winning many a soul at its most critical point. He cannot help but be strong when backed by such earnest, zealous workers as the young men he had with him, each man alive to his opportunities, alive to God's power and filled with the love of Christ, working wonders in the midst of their audiences.

We have everything to thank these men for, who came and gave their time to us for the glory of the Master, and it is with regret that we part with them, yet we thank God also for the power He sent with and through these men and ever pray that the glorious work may not stop here but may still go on, each soul filled to overflowing with the love and the spirit of God and our prayers ascend for like, successes wherever these God-filled men may labor.

The services will continue all this week, every evening except Saturday at 7.30.

It is the longing of the human heart. Nothing brings happiness but doing good.

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

The sermon delivered by the Rev. Joseph Walther, pastor of the Wollaston church, Sunday morning, was taken from I Cor. 21:3 and 1 Cor. 22:7 Subject—"Stewardship." All things are ours. But, notice that while all things are ours God does not relinquish his claim on them. We belong to God. If we have been blinded by sin and lead away by dissipation, God gives us all an opportunity to come back to him. God does not expect from all men an equal gift. If you receive abundantly so should you give. Not only in silver and gold but in strength and power. Faithfulness on the part of the stewards means more than just distribution and administration, but that we should look out; we shall stand the expense. In closing, Mr. Walther said "Are we faithful in the use and distribution of these gifts."

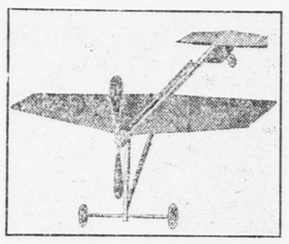
CHRISTMAS GIFTS

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS



A TOY AEROPLANE.

Captive airships which whiz around on a string are complete in every detail, and those made in celluloid are splendid toys that boys will be delighted to receive for Christmas presents.

The popularity of electric traction is reflected in the increased sales of electric trains and trams. The motorcar and taxicab figure prominently on the shelves. These are provided with hooters, adjustable hoods, windows which can be lowered, glass screens, lamps and even the telltale taximeter itself.

Monkeys and bears on trapezes, which squeal and grunt continually, are new and are bound to cause endless fun. There are those which turn innumerable somersaults until the motive power gives out.

In the parlor and board game department new ideas are rampant. The old fashioned Christmas tree may be superseded by the lucky pies, a big box full of prizes bearing numbers, which have to be drawn for.

The Always Popular Tool Chest.

There are few boys who are not "tickled to death" when Santa Claus leaves them a tool box, and now that manual training is taught in the schools most boys know how to use the tools intelligently. But they must be of the best quality to be of any practical value. And a watch! Well, the height of a boy's glory is reached when he gets a really truly timepiece. The popularity of the watch is well exemplified in one of Mr. Dooley's famous stories, in which the hero prayed for a watch as a Christmas gift, but, much to his disgust, received a hair chain that raveled.

TOOL BOX.

Things a Boy Likes.

He likes a pair of hockey skates, footballs, an air rifle, college pennants, a desk, games, jackknives, tie clips, and if you want to delight his heart give him a silver pocketknife with his monogram on it. School and college pins and just now the monogram scarf-pin may be what he'll want. Among more useful presents are to be found sweaters, school or dress suits. If the boy is interested in wireless telegraphy all kinds of batteries and appliances will help along the cause. Should you want a present for the small boy or for one of larger growth who belongs to a drum corps get him a really good drum and he'll be happy, but his parents probably will suffer. What difference? It's Christmas!

What a Girl Likes.

If she is a wee lassie who can just trundle a doll's carriage or is old enough to feel the real responsibility of a dollie as big as herself, she'll like nothing better than one of the up to date baby carts exactly like those a real baby takes her airing in. The carriage illustrated is a new model put out for the Christmas trade and the cheapest of them sells for $3.50. The shape is the same at all prices, the difference being merely in the appointments of the carriage. Of course the very wee girl will have an old fashioned model or a very tiny replica of this new variety.

Proud as Punch is the small girl when she wears her set of furs that Kris Kringle has brought her. This year there is a fascinating assortment of these sets, ranging all the way from ermine to the near ermine, which is just plain rabbit or cat, but pretty and dainty nevertheless. Chinchilla is an attractive pelt for young girls, and lately even the black furs have been considered smart for youthful wearers.

BUSINESS CHANGES.

Mr. J. L. Hodgson employed for the past eight years in the office of the Rice & Hutchin's shoe factory of South Braintree has lately resigned his position and accepted a similar but more responsible one with the firm of Cozzens & Cozzens of Brooklyn, New York. Mr. Hodgson is well known in Braintree also in the city of Quincy where he has lived for about eight years. He was a conscientious worker and popular with his business associates in the office and factory.

His fellow employees presented him with a handsome solid gold chain and charm with diamond setting as a token of their esteem on Saturday. The presentation speech was made by Clement McCann of Quincy in the presence of office employees and the foreman of the factory Mr. Hodgson replied in a few words stating that he appreciated not only the gift but the spirit with which it was given and hat he intended to make good in his new position. He and his family will remove from Quincy and will make their home in greater New York.

His place has been taken by Charles Stickney, formerly with the Armour leather company of Boston. Mr. Stickney was associated with the Rice & Hutchins company several years ago and resigned to enter the employ of the McElwain shoe company of Bridgewater and Boston. Mr. Stickney has many friends here who are glad to welcome him back again.

—There seems never a day for home, for home pure and simple. Not he day in which a floor must be painted or a room papered, but a real day at home, a day filled with a sense of rest and leisure and the delight of loving faces sharing that leisure. A day that is not stolen from neglected work, but that is the rightful heritage from completed tasks. Perhaps the times are out of joint. Perhaps the people are out of joint. The people make the times and if work is ill done it reacts upon the people, and they, alas, are of necessity out of joint.—Universalist Leader.

DISEASE GERMS ARE EVERYWHERE

How to Combat Them.

Nowadays a house is only partly cleaned until it is disinfected. Disease breeding germs lurk everywhere. Out of doors, the sunlight destroys many of these, but indoors the sun cannot penetrate into every room. Even were this possible, it could not reach all of these health destroyers. They lodge in corners, in clothing, in draperies, in sink drains, in closets, in ice chests, in cellars, in garbage. Only the right conditions are needed to breed typhoid scarlet fever, diphtheria, tuberculosis and the lesser ailments such as colds and sore throat.

The only means of getting rid of germ life, or at least mitigating their noxious tendencies is by frequently disinfecting the homes with a powerful germicide such as carbonol. This can be done economically and easily. Simply put a small quantity of this wonderful disinfectant in all the water used for cleaning purposes. Once or twice a week pour a few drops in the sinks, the closets and in the garbage can. No work, no trouble, and no more germs. It is absolutely non-injurious and non-poisonous.

Carbonol has many other uses. It has great healing and antiseptic properties and will be found unequalled for treating cuts, bruises, ringworms, ulcers, etc. If used freely it absolutely prevents infection.

It is as thorough in its disinfecting, antiseptic, healing and purifying properties as carbolic acid, but has none of its dangerous properties. It has no toxic or injurious effect upon the skin.

Carbonol is sold by all the leading dealers. Prices, 10c 25c, 50c and 75c per bottle. If your dealer doesn't handle same, send name and address and we will send you a liberal sample free. Write today. BARRETT MANUFACTURING CO., 297 Franklin Street, Boston, Mass. Oct. 24-1t

No Council meeting tonight, and none has been called for this week.

St. Francis court, M. C. O. F., will initiate several candidates tomorrow evening.

Warren Edwards is in town a few days previous to his departure for Washington where he makes his home.

The open air political rally announced to have been held in City Square Saturday night was given up on account of the storm.

The Monitor of Saturday published a brief historical sketch of the Granite City club and picture of President Henry F. Tilden.

The members of the Granite City club enjoyed a fine coot stew Saturday night. Dr. F. E. Jones shot the coots on the Cape and John Johnson the cigar man, made the stew. These two make a hard combination to beat.

A reception to J. Mitchell Galvin candidate for congress from the tenth district will be held Tuesday evening at the residence of ex-Councilman Herbert F. Barker, at 365 Hancock street, Atlantic.

WORDS.

Marian Kent Hurd.

The word that makes me lonesomest
Of all the words I know
Is "moor," it makes me think of night,
And weeds bent down with snow,
And low, dark clouds that do not hold
A single star for light,
And not a sound that you can hear
But winds that cry all night.

A very comfortable word
Is "plenty" it's so round
And fat and full and pantryish
It has a golden sound.
It makes me think of cooky jars,
And fields of yellow wheat,
And loaded vans, and market days,
And all good things to eat.

The word that sounds the happiest
Is "jingle." I should say
It is a rather thinnish word,
But still it's very gay.
I think it is a children's word,
It isn't meant for age
It always seems to shout at me
From out a printed page.

But, oh, the sweetest word I know—
The very coziest—
Is "soft" Just whisper it and see
If you don't love it best—
A quiet, cuddly, snuggly word
That makes you want to creep
Up to the lounge in mother's room
And be sung off to sleep.

NEW REPUBLIC UNEASY

Portugal In Fear of Her Soldiers, Who Refuse to Accept Vacations

Lisbon, Oct. 24.—The Republican government is somewhat uneasy over the attitude of the regiments which made the revolution possible. Although not openly insubordinate, the soldiers, flushed with victory, are showing extreme independence and are championing the maintenance of strong power in the hands of the military.

The government's real reason for granting leave of absence for four months to the soldiers who took part in the uprising, with full pay, is the desire to break up the regiments temporarily and remove the danger of a military rebellion. The majority of the soldiers, however, have refused to accept this offer, saying that they were not to be duped by the deceptive liberality of the cabinet.

INCREASE IN EXPORTS

Steamers About to Leave With Great Cargoes of Grain and Apples

Boston, Oct. 24.—The largest grain shipment for over six months will go to Europe from this port this week. Eight steamers will take nearly 500,000 bushels, and every liner but two sailing in the ext six days will have some grain in her holds.

The Ivernia of the Cunard line will be the prize carrier of the week. She will take 115,000 bushels to Liverpool. The half-million bushels that will form the export this week is just twice as large as last week's shipment.

The apple exports from Boston so far this year, amounting to 120,866 barrels, make the figures of last year at the same time, 19,788 barrels, seem insignificant. One steamer alone this week, the Ivernia, will take 25,000 barrels.

SPURIOUS MONEY SEIZED IN CHICAGO

Secret Service Men Arrest Three Alleged Counterfeiters

Chicago, Oct. 24.—Three hundred thousand dollars in counterfeit Nicaraguan five-pesos notes, freshly printed, were seized and the printer who made them, the engraver who made the plates and the man charged with securing their manufacture were arrested here by Captain Porter of the United States secret service and his operatives.

The notes had only been printed, not having the "official" seals or numbers impressed. There were 150,000, each of five-pesos (worth approximately $2 each, American money).

George B. Williams was charged with printing the spurious notes; H. N. Secreest of Tampico, Mex., was accused of being the promoter, having the notes printed, and Richard J. Trumbull is charged with having made the copper plates from which the paper was printed.

Commissioner Foote continued the cases against the three until Wednesday. Secreest's bonds were fixed at $10,000, Williams' at $5000 and Trumbull's at $500. Williams and Trumbull furnished bonds.

CARNEGIE SEEMS FEEBLE

Returns to His New York Mansion After His Trip to Europe

New York, Oct. 24.—Andrew Carnegie leaned heavily upon the arm of his secretary as he walked down the gangplank of the White Star liner Baltic, from Liverpool. He did not relinquish his hold on the supporting arm until he had entered a carriage to be driven to his Fifth avenue mansion, and in walking the length of the pier displayed signs of fatigue.

He declared, however, that he felt splendid and had enjoyed the voyage immensely. Fellow passengers said Carnegie did not appear often on deck.

TWO TREES YIELD $125

Equal to Return of $3750 an Acre From Pomona Apple Orchard

Portland, Ore., Oct. 24.—What is considered a record apple production has just been made by the Pomona orchard, near Dayton, Wash., where two trees of bellflower apples yielded 120 boxes of first-class fruit that netted the grower $125.

There are sixty trees to the acre in this orchard, and each tree yielding at the same rate makes the return $3750 an acre. When the full harvest is in from this orchard some more surprises are expected.

ROOSEVELT'S ATTACK IS MET

Candidate For Governor Reviews His Work as Manufacturer During Past Thirty Years—Fitzgerald Thinks Colonel's Statements Unworthy a Former President—Hamlin and Vahey Share Honors With Candidate

Boston, Oct. 24.—Theodore Roosevelt's attack on Eugene N. Foss at the Arena Friday night was met from various points of view by Mr. Foss, Mayor Fitzgerald and Sherman L. Whipple at the Democratic ratification meeting at Tremont Temple.

Personal references to Roosevelt by Foss were made only in passing, but he made the latter's attack the text of a statement of his public record as a business man and as a party man, taking up in detail his career in various industries and explaining his reasons for leaving the Republican party.

Mr. Foss said the only reply that he cared make to Roosevelt was to state in a brief way what he had accomplished as a manufacturer during the past thirty years of his life in building up the industries of Massachusetts and New England and affording labor an opportunity to find remunerative employment here at home.

"Beginning with B. F. Sturtevant company away back in my early manhood," he said, "at that time a small plant since developed into the largest establishment of its kind in the world, for thirty years I have been a successful manufacturer in Massachusetts. With two great plants at Hyde Park, the Sturtevant company and the Becker Milling Machine company, two of the largest iron working concerns in New England, I give employment to many hundreds of workmen.

"I have been largely interested in the building up of cotton mills in Fall River, New Bedford and Pawtucket, and am now the president and promoter of the new Maverick mills in East Boston, just ready for occupancy, where we shall at once employ 1200 people and when the other units are added a force of 500 more.

"I am willing to allow the people of Massachusetts to pass judgment upon me and my efforts in behalf of this commonwealth and New England. I stand upon my record as a builder up of New England industries, as a believer in New England. I don't need to make any other answer to those who are undertaking to misrepresent me to the people of Massachusetts."

Mayor Fitzgerald characterized the attack on Foss as "of the low order characteristic of the ordinary Republican politician of New York state. The colonel's statements, he said, were far from the truth and entirely unworthy of a former president.

Sherman L. Whipple declared that the former president's words were beneath his dignity and high standing and were uttered because of misinformation.

The meeting was marked by indorsement of the ticket by James H. Vahey and Charles S. Hamlin, Foss' rivals for the nomination, and of Thomas P. Riley, who spoke from the same platform with his successful contestant for the lieutenant governorship, Thomas F. Cassidy. The defeated candidates all pledged their ready support to Foss.

Fully 3000 people attended, despite the rain. Every seat was filled, the speakers' platform was crowded and double lines of men stood on both sides of the main floor with groups filling each entrance.

It was a good-natured crowd, which applauded a reference to "that honest man, President Taft," laughed at the chairman's shafts at a "distinguished African traveler," and hissed mention of Governor Draper. Both defeated candidates for the governorship nomination were given ovations.

Mr. Whipple, who presided, made a forty-five minute keynote speech, toward the close of which a voice from the gallery suggested that others might like to say a word. Except for this slight diversion, all was harmony and enthusiasm.

Foss Given Choice In Betting

Boston, Oct. 24.—Thomas W. Lawson, acting for a client, placed $20,000 worth of "Foss money" in State street, all by $900 being bet at even money. Lawson also announced that any one "differing with my client's views can find vent for his feelings up to say $75,000 to $100,000," even money.

HOOK WORM IN SAMOA

Eighty-Five Percent of Inhabitants Afflicted With the Disease

Washington, Oct. 24.—Eighty-five percent of the inhabitants of American Samoa are suffering from the hook worm disease, according to the annual report of Captain F. Parker, U. S. N., retired, governor of the American Islands of the Samoan group.

The discovery of a case of hook worm, the first known in the islands by the senior medical officer of the United States navy, led to a systematic investigation which brought out this startling result. This means that about 5700 natives have the disease.

The Story of the Short Ballot Cities

A Series of Articles on the New Commission Form of Municipal Government

By RICHARD S. CHILDS

III.

The Secret of the Success of the Commission Plan

NO mere form of government will automatically produce good government. But forms can be devised that will automatically give popular government. The people's will can be baffled or facilitated by the form of government. The people's work at the polls can be made obscure, complex and difficult, or it can be made clear, simple and easy. Under the commission plan, with its short ballot, the people's work is very clear, very simple, very easy. And that is all the secret there is to the success of the plan.

In theory citizenship is the business of every citizen. But in our old style city governments effective citizenship is one of the learned professions. To vote intelligently a citizen must "go into politics." That means work, and the average man can't afford to do much unpaid work. So politics becomes dominated by a few men, and the people at large helplessly leave the bulk of the ticket to the party politicians to do as they please with.

In our old fashioned city governments, we have committed two serious errors.

First, we have scattered the powers of government among so many petty officials that it is quite impossible for the people to watch and control them all.

Second, we have subdivided the power in such small fragments that no single part is really worth watching. A member of the city council, for instance, under the old form of government, has so little power that it is really not worth while for the people of the town to become agitated over the question of who shall get the job.

The typical old style city government of this country consists of a mayor, with fairly large power, a string of minor administrative officials also chosen by popular vote, and a council which sometimes consists of two legislative bodies. The feature of this plan is the distribution of power, based on our ancient fear of kings. We have always had a superstitious dread of giving to any elected official power enough to do anything for us without getting the consent of several others. We have overlooked the fact that to make the former official obey our wishes we had also to exert simultaneous compulsion over the latter, whose consent he needed, and that popular control became thus anything but the simple matter it ought to be. The politicians can always get their own way if they make the council large enough. A council of fifteen men might occasionally feel personally the pressure of public opinion, but triple the size of the council, and the individual members become so insignificant and publicity so subdivided that each member is safely "lost in the shuffle."

Those who promoted the idea of having a host of elective officials in the government have always taken it for granted that there was something democratic about this procedure. Democracy, however, does not consist in electing everybody, but in controlling everybody. The mayor's office boy, for instance, may be appointed by the mayor, or elected by popular vote. He is a public servant, but there is nothing democratic in electing him when he can just as well be appointed. The vital thing is that he shall be controlled by the people, and if he will be under better control through appointment than through election, it is more democratic to appoint him.

The commission plan of government is based on no false idea that the people want to elect everybody. It gives the power to five men, who thereby become conspicuously responsible before all the people of the city. Each one of them is important enough to make it worth while for the citizens to inquire concerning his record and character. Each candidate for the office can attract a crowd to hear him speak, whereas an old time councilman would have been utterly unable to get a hearing before the people. There are not so many of these officials but what every citizen can find out about all of them and vote intelligently on election day. There are not so many as to cause a citizen to depend upon tickets put together for him by political specialists. Each citizen can and does make up his own ticket, and the function of the professional ticket making machines is thereby entirely disposed of.

If the commission were composed of ten men instead of five the list of names would be longer than the average citizen would be likely to remember for himself, and we should see a natural grouping of candidates and their election by groups instead of singly. Some "good government association" or some party machine, even on a nonpartisan ballot, would be sure to advertise tickets for the guidance of the voters, and in accepting these tickets the people would be sharing their power with the ticket makers.

The Short Ballot.

The commission plan succeeds therefore because it puts the power where the people can see it. The vital feature is not the method of organization, but the method of popular control. It is the ballot on election day which is unique. It is so short that every citizen knows what he is doing and is not relying on a party label or on the guidance of a politician. The "average man," "the man in the street," or the "plain people," whatever you choose to call them, are in complete control of the government. The short ballot has left no work for the politician to do; the people arrange the whole matter directly with the candidates without the politicians' help.

The politician is a specialist in citizenship, and in the commission governed cities citizenship is so simple that there is nothing to be a specialist in.

The most marked phenomenon of commission government has been the increased interest of the people in their city government. All eyes have been focused on the city hall month after month without interruption. The acts of the commission are the topic of conversation for the street car and the business men's luncheon. Criticism is plentiful, and—better yet—knowledge of the facts is widespread. The people of the city oversee the government.

The force of public opinion has been repeatedly illustrated in the commission governed cities. Few men, good or bad, would have the strength to resist popular demand when it is so intensively concentrated upon them. Each commissioner knows his responsibility for what is done, and knows that everybody else in town knows it too. Politicians of the average sort have been elected to office many times in commission governed cities, but their conspicuous responsibility has brought about a remarkable responsiveness to the opinion of the people.

The initiative, referendum and recall are considered important features of the plan by many people, but Galveston and Houston made a success of the commission plan before any of these features were thought of and their charters to this day do not provide for them. Furthermore, these cities do not feel the need of these devices and there is no demand for their introduction.

A Chance For Mistakes.

A few suggestions for the improvement of the plan have been made rather persistently, based not upon any disaster that has happened in the past, but rather on the fear that there might be trouble in the future. It has been noted, for example, that the city clerk in Des Moines, who passes upon the correctness of petitions for the recall of commissioners, is himself a creature of the commission and that in this work he ought to be independent. It is also pointed out that there is no independent auditing of the city's accounts. The commission audits its own books. In both cases it has been suggested that these offices be filled by popular vote. In the language of those who propose these changes, "have them independently elected by the people and responsible to the people." This familiar argument involves an error, the avoidance of which constitutes the great value of the commission plan. It is easy enough to create a new office and make it elective by popular vote, but it is not so easy to "have" such an officer "responsible to the people." He will not be responsible to the people if he is elected in obscurity with no limelight directed on his office. To be sure, he may be legally responsible and the responsibility in law may be very clearly established, but the people cannot and will not hold him to account unless he stands out conspicuously before them. An officer whose functions are purely executive and not of great importance cannot possibly be conspicuous. If the city clerk or city auditor were made elective in Des Moines it would be a little office, overshadowed by the rest of the ticket, down at the bottom of the ballot. There would be very little publicity regarding the candidates, very little of the purifying limelight which is responsible for the present good political sanitation in the higher offices, and any group of schemers might put through a successful conspiracy to capture the job.

The desirability of an independent audit and an independent judgment on recall petitions is nevertheless obvious. It should, however, be secured in some other way than by attempting to make the people choose the officers. The same effect can be obtained by having the state assume these duties. Let an appointee of the governor be charged with the duty of auditing the books of all the cities in the state, with the right to prescribe a uniform method of keeping them. There is no difficulty in letting some state officer, such as the secretary of state, pass upon the genuineness and validity of recall petitions. The remoteness of such an officer from the disputants makes it reasonably certain that his position will be fair.

If all false "improvements" can be avoided the future of the commission plan will continue to be full of success, and its fundamental principle, when once understood, will be extended to states and counties. Already a national association, called the Short Ballot Organization, with Woodrow Wilson at its head, is in the field.

We are on the eve of vast and wholesome changes!

JURY'S NOTE MAY SAVE CRIPPEN

He Is Sentenced to Be Executed On Nov. 15

CHANGE CONSIDERED LIKELY

Prejudice Against Hanging of Man on Circumstantial Evidence May Lead to Doctor's Imprisonment For Life—Protests His Innocence When Jury Brings In Murder Verdict After Deliberation Lasting Thirty Minutes

London, Oct. 24.—Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, the American practitioner and medical agent, was found guilty of the murder of his wife, the American actress, Belle Elmore, and sentenced to death.

Lord Chief Justice Alverstone, who presided at the trial, sentenced Crippen to be hanged on Nov. 15.

There is, however, the strongest prejudice in England against the execution of a man on purely circumstantial evidence, and an incident at the close of Crippen's trial has caused the impression that the jury may have recommended a life sentence. After Crippen was sentenced to death, the foreman of the jury handed to the lord chief justice a note, after looking at which the justice said:

"That shall be forwarded to the proper quarter."

The "proper quarter" might mean the home secretary, who has jurisdiction in such matters. The jurors refused to discuss the incident.

The jury was out just thirty minutes. When it returned and announced that it had found the defendant guilty Alverstone asked the physician if he had anything to say. Crippen replied in a low voice: "I still protest my innocence."

Crippen received the death sentence with the apparent calmness that characterized him throughout the trial and which, in fact, has been noticeable from the moment of his arrest.

He appeared rather nervous during the judge's summing up, which was strongly against him. As Alverstone mercilessly portrayed his character, as developed during the trial, Crippen twirled his thumbs, crossed and recrossed his legs and occasionally shuffled his feet. However, as soon as the charge had been concluded, the prisoner seemed to pull himself together. When the verdict was announced he did not flinch and was in no need of the protecting arm which a warder held out toward him.

The chief justice then donned the black cap that has rested near him throughout the trial and pronounced the sentence of death. Addressing the condemned man, Alverstone said:

"You have been convicted on evidence which can leave no doubt in the mind of any reasonable man that you cruelly murdered your wife and then mutilated her body. I advise you to entertain no hope that you will escape the consequences of your crime. I implore you to make your peace with Almighty God."

As the lord chief justice concluded, a policeman stepped forward and, in the hush that had fallen over the court room, led Crippen from the dock.

The trial of Ethel C. Leneve as an accessory after the fact in the murder of Mrs. Crippen will begin tomorrow.

CASH FOR CAVALIERI

But She Will Not Get a Very Large Sum From Hubby Chanler

Paris, Oct. 24.—One of Mme. Lina Cavalieri's lawyers said confidentially, it is reported, that she was to obtain a sum of money, not a very large one, in the settlement proceedings pending between her husband, Robert W. Chanler, and herself.

One of the most difficult points, he said, was the disposition of the considerable number of pictures which Chanler had hung in her house at 22 Avenue De Messine. He is unwilling to leave them in her possession, and she is equally unwilling to surrender them.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES.

Nut Hash. Chop fine cold, boiled potatoes, and any other vegetables desired that happen to be on hand. Put them into a buttered frying pan and heat quickly and thoroughly, salt to taste; then just before serving, stir in lightly a large spoonful of nut meal for each person to be served.

Lemon Cream Pie. Grate, the yellow rind from a lemon, add the juice, two level tablespoons of butter, one beaten egg, one cup of sugar, two level tablespoons of cornstarch, and one cup of boiling water. Cook together and cool for filling two small pies, which may have one or two crusts, as preferred.

Shrimp Wiggle. Make a cream of milk, flour and butter, about a tablespoonful of each to a pint or more of milk; drain and cut up one can of shrimp; also drain one can of peas; when cream is smooth and hot, add them and serve on crackers piping hot.

Hot Roast Beef Sandwich. Cut slices from the Sunday's roast and warm up in the left over gravy. Toast slices of bread, allowing two slices for each person. Arrange the hot slices of the beef between the slices of toast, cover each sandwich with a portion of the hot gravy and serve.

Lebkuchen. One pound of brown sugar, half a pound of flour, four eggs, a quarter pound each of almonds, candied orange peel or citron if better liked, one pound confectioner's sugar, one tablespoonful of ground cloves and allspice, one-half teaspoonful of baking soda, juice and grated rind of half a lemon, the same of one orange. Cream four yolks and three whites of eggs with the sugar, beating them with the hand. When well creamed, add the almonds, and the candied peel cut into shreds with a pair of scissors, then the spices and soda dissolved in lemon juice last add flour. Roll into a thin sheet and cut into squares or other shapes. Bake in a fairly hot oven. Make an icing of the remaining white of egg, sugar and grated rind of oranges and juice. While the cakes are hot, cover with the icing.

—Speaking to the Christian Endeavor convention at Springfield, Speaker Walker of the House said: "Next to character and ability, the most important qualification of a public servant is experience. Therefore the good citizen will never vote lightly against the man who has proved his worth in public life."

Whyte the well known bass singer and Mrs. Whyte.

A supper was served and Mrs. Bingham, Mr. Whyte and Miss Clara Barnicoat rendered some beautiful songs accompanied by Miss Margaret Carruthers the talented young music teacher.

The evening was most enjoyable ending with dancing and the singing of Auld Lang Syne by the company. Miss Mollie received many pretty and appropriate gifts.

Grahame-White was in another smash at the aviation meet at Belmont park New York, on Sunday owing to the high wind. He arose about forty feet and his plane pitched like a ship in a heavy storm. In alighting his machine careened to one side and his whirling propellors striking the ground were smashed to splinters.

GRANITE FREIGHT RATES.

A dispatch from Washington says that there is a prospect that the controversy over the railroad rates for granite from New England to the south will be compromised as was done with the New England milk rate. Interstate Commerce Commissioner Prouty had a conference Saturday with Seward W. Jones of Boston, representing the granite dealers of New England, and attorneys and traffic officials of the New Haven, L. & N. and other southern roads.

It is reported that an understanding was reached that the granite producers and railroads should agree upon a schedule of rates which should be filed with the commission. If the commission approves the rates, they will go into effect after thirty days. If they cannot agree the case will have to be tried.

The railroads and granite men desire to avoid trial of the case which has been set for a hearing several miles during the last six months, only to be continued from time to time.

ENJOYABLE CARD PARTY

A thoroughly delightful afternoon was had Saturday at the birthplace of President John Adams, at a card party given by Adms Chapter Daughters of the Revolution. In one room whist was enjoyed and in another bridge. Some fine scores were made and as a reminder of the good hands they held Mrs. A. H. Gilson and Mrs. John W. Bell carried home pretty pots of ferns.

After the game tea and delicious home-made cake were served by the light of candles and fires in the big old fireplaces. All pronounced the party a great social success and hoped more would be given next month. The committee on arrangements were Miss Harriet B. Pierce and Mrs. Walter E. Piper.

ONLY ONE GOAL SCORED

McGregors Defeat the General Electric Team

In a fast and well played game, the McGregors defeated the General Electrics of Lynn on Saturday at the Old Colony grounds by a score of 1 to 0. The teams were evenly matched and the result of the game was doubtful up to the last minute. Both goals were constantly in danger and had it not been for the excellent work of the goal tenders the score would have been much higher.

The ability of Sharples the goal of the visitors, was tested more severely than was Macolm's, but both men deserve great credit. The goal was scored by Ross in the first half. The ball had been near the McGregors goal for some minutes when Craig booted it out of danger. Ross received the ball and brought it half the length of the field unassisted for a goal. It was as good a piece of work as has been seen in Quincy this year.

The team as a whole played with spirit and deserved the victory over the visitors. Roe, Rennie, Drysdale, McDonald and Meldrum deserve especial mention for their playing. Hendrie played a strong game as usual. Haldane injured his leg in the second half but pluckily stayed in the game and helped greatly on the defence. For the vistors Hadden and Sharples played excellen football.

BRIEFS

Chief of Police Burrell is taking a few days' vacation.

Two of the present members of the City Council are attending a night law school, President Hobbs and Councilman Moir.

The Republican City Committee is arranging dates for a grand rally next week in the interests of the whole Republican ticket, probably at Alpha hall. Some prominent speakers may be expected.

The The City Clerk gives notice today of the polling places for the State election to be held in Quincy, Tuesday, Nov. 8. He also gives notice of the joint caucuses to be held Tuesday Nov. 15, to nominate candidates for Mayor, Councilmen, etc.

Candidate Foss, Mr. Vahey, Mayor Fitzgerald and other well known politicians are announced to make addresses at a Democratic rally to be held in Quincy tonight. Chairman Smith of the city committee will preside.

Daniel McCarthy had two rides in the police auto on Saturday. He was arrested early in the day for drunkenness and released after he had sobered up. Later in the day he was again arrested for the same offense. This time he was kept in confinement until this morning when the court fined him $10.

There was a very pleasant reunion, Saturday evening at the reception tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Felice Ferraro at Woodward Institute. Many of the former teachers, contemporary with Mrs. Ferraro, came from a distance to renew acquaintances. Mrs. Schwind (Miss Eugenia Hatch) played several selections on the piano. Miss Helen Baxter sang some French and Italian songs, and Miss Mabel Drew sang several songs principally in English. The evening was a very enjoyable one to all who were present. Many who would have been there ordinarily were kept away by the hard rain storm.

FRANK BRIGGS.

Frank Briggs of Franklin street, South Braintree, aged about eighty years and for many years in the employ of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, was taken suddenly ill Saturday afternoon in the train shed at Roxbury.

Though a hurried call was sent for a physician, Briggs died before he arrived. Heart disease was attributed as the cause of death. He leaves a wife and one son.

QUINCY HIGH VICTORIOUS

One Touchdown by Hill Was Enough

Quincy High scored another victory Saturday by defeating Dedham High on their home grounds by one touchdown to nothing. The field was slippery and so was the ball, thus causing considerable falling and fumbling on the part of the players. Hill scored the touchdown in the first period. During the remainder of the game the ball was seesawing back and forth with the advantage a little on the Quincy side.

The old line combination with Prout in a left tackle was tried with great success. White was shifted to right guard. Johnson and Prout worked together very well last year and the combination and the move should strengthen the line very materially this year. Rice and Harmon did well as usual in the backfield. The team as a whole did well under the conditions. The fumbles were costly but excusable under the circumstances.

In spite of the gloomy aspect of the day quite a number of boys and girls accompanied the team and did their share in winning the victory by cheering and encouraging the players. The result of this game will wipe away the taste of Brockton's defeat and prepare the team for a victory over South Boston on Tuesday.

RESULTED IN TIE.

The Lynn Fosse team made a strenuous effort to wipe out their defeat of the week before on Saturday, but their visitors the Fore Rivers of Quincy proved stubborn opponents and the game resulted in a draw, 1 to 1. The game was played in the rain bu the players and spectators were undaunted. About 200 people, many of them from Quincy, witnessed the contest which was hard fought and interesting al lthe way through.

WOLLASTON 0, ARCADIA 0.

The Wollaston A. A. and the Arcadia A. C. of Dorchester played a 0 to 0 game at Merrymount Park on Saturday afternoon. Owing to the showers the field was slippery, thus causing many mishaps in the shape of fumbles, particularly on the part of the home team. In nearly every instance the fumbles were costly and the home team was thus prevented from scoring. Wollaston continued to work the forward pass successfully and the Dorchester team also made several good gains by its use. Demi Gourlie, the old High school back, appeared in the line up and performed very creditably. Capt. MacDonald played a strong game, as did also Danahy and Morton. The local team is showing up very well against some o fthe strongest teams in the state, and should appear near the top of the list at the end of the season.

MACKMEN WIN THE PENNANT

It Will Fly Over Their Philadelphia Park Next Year

OLD WARRIORS ARE SWAMPED

Youth Prevails Over Age and Experience of Cubs, Who Were Inferior to Rivals In Hitting and Fielding—Coombs Pitches In Three of Four Victories Necessary to Annex the World's Championship

Chicago, Oct. 24.—From the lofty flagpole that sways above the battleground at Shibe park a new silk pennant will flutter next year, and above the fabled device of the "White Elephants," a swelling banner will shortly proclaim the Mackmen "champions of the world."

For yesterday afternoon the once unconquerable Cubs went down to their fourth defeat and Connie Mack and his splendid young team achieved their long cherished ambition.

Over age and experience youth has prevailed, and the seasoned veterans of many a hard fought campaign have been compelled to pay their tribute to ambition and greater speed. No more gallant fighting machine has ever been produced than the once great band of warriors Manager Chance has so often led to victory, but the Chicago team have had their fling.

This last contest, the deciding one in the struggle for the title, seems to have silenced for good and all the comparisons which have always rated the American league organization as inferior. The Athletics have out-hit the Cubs practically two to one, they have outfielded their rivals as well, and the smoothness of their play, never startling in individual brilliancy, has made the weak attempts of the Cubs' fabled "machine work" look cheap by contrast.

Buoyed by false hopes aroused by their tenth inning victory of Saturday, the Cubs met their rivals for the last time determined to wrest another game from the Mackmen and leave with the latter to fight it out to a finish at Philadelphia. For seven innings, fighting tooth and nail for every point, the Cubs managed to keep within hailing distance of the Athletics, and when the eighth inning opened one slender run separated them from the Philadelphia speedsters.

This, the deciding victory, gives Jack Coombs the proud distinction of having won three of the four victories necessary to annex a world's championship, and while neither of his previous appearances upon the slab did he distinguish himself by either control or skill, he amply made up for it yesterday by twirling one of his best games of the season.

The total attendance at the world's series was 125,219; total receipts, $173,980; national commission, $17,398; each club, $38,755; Athletics, $47,443; Cubs, $31,628. Each of the twenty-three Athletics will receive about $2062; each of the twenty-three Cubs about $1375. Following is the score of the final game:

Chicago .....0 1 0 0 0 0 0 1 0—2

Batteries—Coombs and Lapp; Brown and Archer. Runs—Hartzell 2, Lord, Baker, Davis, Murphy 2, Sheckard, Chance. Two-base hits—Chance, Murphy, Lord, Collins 2, Sheckard. Sacrifice hits—Zimmerman, Barry. Stolen bases—Hartsel 2, Collins 2, Zimmerman. Left on bases—Philadelphia 6; Chicago 7. Bases on balls—Off Coombs 1, off Brown 3. Struck out—By Brown 7, by Coombs 4. Wild pitch—Brown. Umpires—O'Day, Connolly, Sheridan, Rigler.

SEVERAL BUSY INDUSTRIES AT NORFOLK DOWNS

Their Products Go to All Parts of the Country and Also to Foreign Companies

An Eye Opener for the People of City of Presidents

(By Alden H. Blanchard.)

The recent census has disclosed the fact that Quincy is growing in population. When asked how this happens the casual observer would say: Well, you see, the Fore River Shipbuilding plant is in Quincy. The public in general is fully aware of the presence of these works, but many fail to recognize the fact that there are other industries in Quincy, which although by no means as large as the one at Quincy Point, yet have a reputation which extends from shore to shore and an excellence in the quality of their output which is equalled by few and bettered by none.

The northern part of the city has always been considered the residential section. And until within the last few years it has been almost wholly residential. The one or two old standbys have always been there alongside the railroad track, but outside of these there has not been a factory or industrial plant in sight. But now within a radius of a few hundred yards from the Norfolk Downs station there have sprung up manufactories of various sorts, all of them progressive and employing an increasingly large number of skilled mechanics and laborers along other lines.

The Wollaston Foundry Co. is a concern of nearly 40 years standing in the locality, and the brass foundry adjacent to it ran for many years but shut down some years back. All the rest of the manufactories are comparatively new locally. The Pneumatic Scale corporation, the A. B. Robbins Iron Co., brass foundries run by D. J. Nyhan and Jordan & McGinnis, the Norfolk Varnish Co., the Boston Gear Works, the new Telephone Supply Co., and numerous other industrial establishments are to be found in close proximity to the Norfolk Downs station.

Of this number all but the Gear Works are on the west or left side of the track going toward Boston. The colony sends its products all over the United States and to some foreign countries. In all of these firms the capital is almost altogether local, and that is true also of the labor.

The object of this article is to let the people of Quincy know about these industries, to give them some conception of the products and the amount of business that is done with them. It would be safe to wager that the majority of the concerns are much better known outside of Quincy than inside, and in some cases, outside of New England than within its boundaries.

ROBBINS IRON WORKS.

The A. B. Robbins Iron Co. specializes in ornamental iron and bronze work. Many of the most imposing structures in the large cities of the country display the workmanship of this firm. The heavy construction work in the buildings is done by outside labor, but all the finishing work in a building is done by this kind of company. The ornamental work around the windows of the bank buildings, libraries, state institutions and large office buildings are done by them. The iron work on stairs, elevators, fire escapes and so forth come in their line of work. All the light iron work of a building is within the scope of their craft.

All the manufacturing is done in the building in Norfolk Downs. Between 40 and 80 men are employed according to the amount of work there is on hand. This number includes several expert designers and draughtsmen. C. L. Gilliatt is president of the firm, A. B. Robbins is treasurer and J. K. Freitag is the secretary.

The field of their business is the whole country. Library Bureau and college work, bank buildings and government institutions of different kinds have been their specialities. Work has been done for the University of California, library buildings in the middle and far west, the new Wellesley college library, the International Trust company, the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust company, the City Trust company. The ornamental work on Suffolk County Court house, Houston's store in Boston, and a score of other buildings, has been done by the firm. The fire escapes on the new office building at Fore River were made at the factory in Norfolk Downs.

The contracts which the company have include work on some of the largest and best buildings that are going up in the large cities of the country. A local example is the Boston Stock Exchange. Growth has been rapid in the business of this enterprising firm and its magnitude is still increasing and the quality of its products is still on the ascent.

WOLLASTON FOUNDRY.

The Wollaston Foundry Company is the pioneer of the colony. For about 40 years the work has been going on. The late Annes A. Lincoln organized the company and was its treasurer and general manager up to the time of his death. Formerly the manufacture of piano plates was the principal occupation, but recently the demand for machine castings has been so great that the firm has confined itself almost exclusively to making all kinds of castings. Some stoves and ranges are made also.

About eighty men are employed at the foundry the year round. The central office is located in Boston at 185 Summer street and most of the business is done in Boston and vicinity. Some of the products are shipped to various parts of eastern Massachusetts however. Although there are specialties the firm will take a contract for any sort of light or medium work.

ELECTRICAL SUPPLIES.

The S. M. Couch company, incorporated, is the newest firm in the colony, in fact so new that business has not started up yet, although there are several contracts waiting. The new concrete building back of the A. B. Robbins Iron Co. and the Norfolk Varnish Co. will be occupied by this firm as soon as it is ready for occupancy. The manufacture of all sorts of electrical supplies and of telephones will be its business. The autophone system is their specialty. By means of this a private system of 100 connections can be operated without a central. A large contract with the Boston Elevated Railroad for several systems of this sort will be filled the first thing after they get into their new quarters.

Mr. Couch the president of the concern has been in business in Boston for 15 years, and is well acquainted with all lines of electrical work. The electrical attachments to automobiles such as switches, etc., will also be made at the works.

The building which they will occupy is made especially for an electrical workshop. Concrete has been used almost altogether in construction, and other non-conductive materials have been employed where concrete was impracticable, thus reducing the chance of accident to a minimum. About 50 skilled workmen will be employed at the factory.

BRASS FOUNDRY.

The D. J. Nyhan Brass Foundry has been doing business for some years. The demand for brass, bronze, aluminum and composition castings is of course not as great as that for steel and iron, but greater skill is required in their manufacture, and the process requires much more painstaking labor.

Machine castings of brass, bronze and composition are the principal products. The process by which these are made is very interesting. The metal is heated in graphite crucibles to 2500 degrees Fahrenheit. If composition is required, zinc, lead, etc., are fed into the molten mass and then the whole of it is poured into moulds made of fine sand.

The greatest care is required in making these moulds since the perfection of the casting depends upon the nicety with which the mould is shaped. After the casting is cooled it is taken out of the frame and the nub ends are filed off. These ends protrude from the hole where the metal is poured into the mould.

All kinds of non-ferrous work can be done. Propellor blades, chandeliers, door knobs and the like up to a certain size can be done by these small manufacturers better than by the large establishments.

BRASS AND BRONZE.

Jordan & McGinnis is another firm of brass and bronze founders. They occupy the old foundry next to the A. B. Robbins Iron Co. Their work is of the same type and grade as Mr. Nyhan's. Both Mr. Jordan and Mr. McGinnis have had wide experience as moulders and have opened this plant for fine work. The process used is similar to that described above. They do moulding with all sorts of non-ferrous metals and composition. Most of the work is done for people in New England, although some work is done for customers as far west as Kansas and the Mississippi belt.

VARNISH WORKS.

The Norfolk Varnish Co. has been established in Norfolk Downs a little over a year. The officers of the company are W. H. Purdy of Newtonville, president; W. H. Emerson, treasurer; Mr. Abramson, superintendent. The firm does business with house painters and hardware store keepers all over New England. All grades and kinds of varnish are made, including floor varnish, carriage varnish, and different kinds used for doing woodwork, chairs, etc. The output averages 400 gallons a day. Shipments are made in barrels, half barrels, and cans holding one or more gallons. The business has grown wonderfully since the firm entered its new quarters about a year ago, and the average daily output is increasing rapidly.

GEAR WORKS.

One of the largest and most progressive plants in the city is that of the Boston Gear Works owned by Frank Burgess of Wollaston. The business was started in Boston in 1890 with about 15 workmen. In 1905 when the plant was moved to Norfolk Downs, five times that number were employed and during the last five years the number of operatives has doubled, making the total number at present about 150.

There are very few concerns which devote themselves exclusively to the manufacture of gears. This plant is the largest in the East, and one of the largest in the country. All the modern improvements and appliances are in use. There is a private telephone system, an automatic sprinkler system, a hardening plant for hardening steel, a dynamo for running the electric appliances, gauge machines which measure to within 2-10,000ths of an inch, the latest styles and highest grades of machines for all branches of the work.

Gears are made for all sorts of machines, automobiles, sewing machines, flying machines, etc. Most of the demand for the products of this manufactory comes from the middle west so that at least 75 percent of their business is done outside of New England.

During the last two years the business has increased two-fold despite the fact that a fire destroyed the whole plant last November. Work was kept going all the time, and now they have caught up with their orders and are prepared to take anything. The object now is not to increase but to refine. Automatic machines and workmen of the greatest skill will have much to do with this. System will also play an important part.

The plant is as nearly perfect in equipment and arrangement as can be obtained. In that way the fire was a good thing because when the plant was rebuilt the plans called for better arrangements than before. The offices are so placed that the heads of departments can superintend the work in the best possible manner and with the least waste of time. Everything is on one floor and the rooms are all joined in logical sequence.

Everything is upon a scientific basis and the idea of the whole may be expressed as mathematical mechanics expressed in work. Each year a vast number of catalogues go to all parts of the country. Last year over 20,000 were sent out. An exhibition of gears has been put in the Mechanics Fair this year and each year there is an exhibition at the works. The whole plant runs like one great machine, sufficient unto itself.

PNEUMATIC SCALES.

Another concern which is rapidly assuming great proportions is the Pneumatic Scale Corporation. Buildings are shooting up like toadstools over night, and still they complain that there is not sufficient room. During the last three years the business has increased fourfold and is still on the increase. When one goes into an up-to-date grocery store he sees arranged on the shelves neat looking cartons containing cereals, spices, condiments soap powder, starch and so on indefinitely. Very few who see these stop to think how those things got in the cartons and why they are in there rather than lying around loosely in bulk.

Referring to the first as to how they got there, machines manufactured in the works of the Pneumatic Scale corporation are responsible. This company does business with practically all the firms whose names are so familiar to us today through the instrumentation of the grocery store and popular advertisements. Practically all the articles of food which are put up in paper cartons, tin cans, cloth bags, etc., find their way there with the assistance of this firm within the borders of our city.

These machines are both labor saving devices and sanitary agents. They prevent waste of materials and handling which in this enlightened age is considered dangerous to the public health. Most of the business is done in New York, and the west although several wholesalers in this vicinity use their machines. Among these are the Walter H. Baker Co., of Milton and the American Refinery Co., at South Boston.

About twenty machines of the ordinary type are sent out each month. The glueing, weighing, filling and sealing machines are the common types. At medium speed one of these machines will do the work of 25 men and do it much better than the men could. A combination machine will go through the whole process of glueing, filling, weighing and sealing at the average rate of 26 a minute. Special machines are made for the different firms to do a special kind of work. The manufacture of these takes longer inasmuch as special designs have to be made and many new problems come up for solution.

Most of the machines require one operator. Some do the work altogether automatically. A pile of cartons not made up, are placed on a shelf of the machine. When next touched by the hand of man they are filled and ready to be shipped to the retailers. The demand for these machines has increased many fold since the passing of the pure-food law and owing to the quality of the product put out by this firm they are obliged to increase the size of their plant all the time, and still are unable to keep up with their orders. The new building which is in the process of construction now will be divided into draughting rooms, pattern rooms, vaults for storing the patterns, etc.

W. H. Doble of this city who is at the head of the corporation has "progress" for his watchword, as can be seen by the strides the business is taking. When the business was first started only weighing machines were made. On these a pneumatic attachment was placed, whence the name "Pneumatic Scale Corporation."

Skilled labor is employed almost altogether, including draughtsmen, machinists, etc. The highest grade of work is turned out and the competitors are not very troublesome. Practically all the big manufacturers of foodstuffs in this country and a number in Germany, England and France use the machines of this company. Recently one of them was sent to South Africa, and thus the scope of the work is increasing. A branch office in London is introducing the machines on the other side of the ocean and the practical and sanitary sides of their use recommend them wherever shown.

POSSIBILITIES OF QUINCY.

In view of all these industries in one little section of our city, and with the knowledge of many more in other section we cannot very well say that Quincy is dying a natural death. People are awakening to a realization of her possibilities, and those who are so anxious to annex the "City of Presidents" to Boston are not only blind in one eye but unable to see out of the other. We do not realize the value of all these growing industries as well as the older ones of which we boast. Today we are proud of our individuality, and of these interests of which we still have much to learn. Let us hope that tomorrow we can can still have a feeling of satisfaction in both, and in the knowledge that our city is marching on to yet greater things in the industrial and commercial world.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Open season for revolutionary movements.

We don't get over one-half of the old diseases before the experts come humping along with a lot of new ones.

Among the latest articles to go up in price are straw and bran. Look out now for a boost in the price of breakfast food.

A new autumn dress for the ladies is styled "The Early Christian." It is probably draped so tight that it makes martyrs of its wearers.

One county of Connecticut has 6,000 less population by the new census than the City of Quincy, and three counties have less than 50,000 people each. Only three of the eight counties have over 100,000.

Whitman, Rockland and Abington, are preparing to unite in a grand celebration of the 200th anniversary of old Abington which was originally made up of these towns. The celebration will be in June 1912.

Good for Mrs. Harry M. Baker of Lynn. Her prompt action saved the shade trees on Ocean street. When it became known to Mrs. Baker that it was the intention of the city to remove a certain number of trees she protested and took a position in front of one of them and then dared the workmen to do anything. After the mayor looked over the ground he gave orders to have the work stopped. The trees were to be sacrificed because granolithic sidewalks were to be laid. The abutters did not want the sidewalk but they did want the trees.

Governor Draper vetoed the so-called "eight hour" bill in 1909. This bill affected public employees. The Governor was willing that all those engaged in public work should not be "required" to work more than eight hours, and this was and is at the present time the law; but he could not subscribe to the principle that no one thus engaged on public work should be "permitted" to work longer if he wished to, nor could he subscribe to a section of the proposed bill which might result in a man being presumed to be guilty before he was proven guilty. Governor Draper was eminently fair to labor and to the real interests of the laboring people when he vetoed the bill in 1909. He was also fair to labor, to their hopes and ambitions when he went before the people last fall and in his usual frankness and candor told them that he would veto the bill again if it came before him—and he kept his word.

The Daily Ledger story today on the manufacturing centre about the Norfolk Downs station in this city will be an eye opener to a majority of the people of Quincy. The City of Presidents not only has a large granite quarrying business (including hammering, polishing, statuary work, etc.), and one of the leading shipyards of the world, and a million dollar Tubular Rivet plant, but several other industries. Few cities of 33,000 population have however, such an important manufacturing centre as has grown up at Norfolk Downs. The article today is not a paid "write-up" of the industries, but the honest statements as gleaned by Alden H. Blanchard of the Daily Ledger staff. No effort even has been made to sell extra copies of the Daily Ledger, but 1,000 extra papers have been printed and if the manufacturers and the people of Norfolk Downs and Quincy are proud of their industries, and appreciate the publicity given by the Daily Ledger, they may mail copies to their customers and friends. The edition is limited.

DRIFT OF OPINION

A tract of 40 acres, once the site of a State Industrial School, and located in a residential district, has recently been acquired by the City of Rochester, N. Y. Fifteen of the 40 acres are enclosed within buildings, one of them a drill room capable of being converted into a Convention Hall which will seat 12,000 persons. It will be used for this purpose, for band concerts, basket ball games and to house future expositions. In the 25 open acres it is proposed to locate a stadium with arena space for athletic games and aviation contests. Minor buildings are to be used as a factory school, a neighborhood social center and one isolated, as a hospital for contagious diseases. The approach is to be decorated and converted into a plaza —the whole to form an unusual equipment for public recreation and instruction under municipal auspices. —Boston Common.

Bury the croaker out in the woods in a beautiful hole in the ground, where the woodpecker pecks and the bumble bee bums and the straddle bug straddles around. He is no good to people who push; is unpractical, stingy and dead, but he wants the whole earth, and all of its crust and the stars that shine over-head. Then hustle him off to the bumble bee's roost and bury him deep in the ground; he's of no use here, get him out of the way, and make room for the man that is sound. —Reading Chronicle.

OUR NEW GLACIER PARK.

The white goats, the Rocky Mountain bighorns, the moose, the elk and deer, the giant grizzlies, and all the other wild things of the Northwest have had donated to them another million- acre tract to Uncle Sam's domain. Within its boundaries they may mate, rear their little ones and enjoy life secure from the startling crack of the murderous rifle and the dread thud of the swiftly speeding bullet. And nowhere, perhaps, is there a finer place for these sleek-furred native Americans to work out their several destines.

This big federal Zoo ranges in character from the flat table-land of the Great Plans to inaccessible glaciers and highest mountain peaks, rugged, precipitous, but beloved of the four-footed mountain climbers, while intervening, are meadows knee-deep in rich pasturage, with innumerable lakes and roaring glacial streams, well stocked by nature with brisk trout.

The best thing about the Glacier Park is its closeness and the comparative cheapness by which it can be visited. It is of us; in our midst. Hundreds, thousands of tourists visit the great Coast Range of Alaska every year, and view towering mountains masses and gleaming glacial fields, even as others throng to Switzerland so as to tell of having seen the far-famed Alps and of having been convoyed across a real glacier. But our Glacier Park is situated at only the starting point for Alaska, while by those who have seen both, it is proclaimed as surpassing in variety of wild scenic beauty the most magnificent of Alpine scenery. Moreover it is all American, and the sturdy adventurer can, if he desires, lose himself for months in its depths, fly the Stars and Stripes from his own tent-pole, and explore his own glaciers, for there are several score of them. Properly outfitted for strenuous mountaineering, he may spend a summer's season within the park, and come forth hardened, seasoned, reborn, and with an experience back of him which will be a lifelong memory of pleasure.—From "Land Gift to Wild Animals," in Technical World Magazine.

HANDICAPPED.

Masters Willie and Tommy, whose parents are next-door neighbors on the North Side, do not get along as amicably as might be expected. A few days ago Willie came hurrying to his mother, his entrance heralded by an anguished wail of woe.

"Now, what's the matter?" asked mamma.

"Why, boo-hoo, it's Tommy," he shrieked plaintively, "he's makin' faces at me."

"Well," exclaimed mamma, "didn't I tell you not to play with Tommy?"

"W-w-well,' he sobbed, "I ain't playin' with him. He's over in his yard makin' faces at me."

"Oh, well," said his mamma, "can't you make faces at him?"

"W-w-well, boo-boo, I did," wailed Willie; "but he's so much homelier an' me that he skins me every time!" —Pittsburg Gazette-Times

—The Public School Association of Cambridge, Massachusetts, has for one of its objects to secure more land for the schools of that city until there is a minimum of 40 square feet of play space for each child in attendance. Although this is more than twice what is averaged in most American cities, it would amount to less than an acre for a big school of 1,000 pupils.—Pacific Outlook.

HOUGHS NECK BUDGET

Fishing, Candidates, Debates, Dedication, Etc.

(Special Correspondence)

Houghs Neck "swelters" with "smelters." I counted 30 boats with from four to six fishermen each within a radius of 2000 yards last Sunday. Good catches were reported all over the beach.

John C. R. Ross did not take up much time in expounding his views on City Hall subjects, last Saturday night in Associates hall, but covered all necessaries in a few well chosen words. He wished to be considered as a candidate from Ward One, who desired to do justice to all in a general way, and especially to Houghs Neck.

A family gathering of fifteen drank Ross's health in steaming hot clam broth in Mr. Deckers home Sunday, Ross being likened to the broth, "a favorite with all."

The winter meetings of the Men's club of Union chapel will hereafter be held the first and third Fridays of each month. An oyster stew is scheduled for November 4. The entertainment for that evening will take the form of a debate on the question "Circumstances make the man." Rev. C. R. McMeekin and Chas. E. Decker will be on the affirmative, with Waldo D. Hutchings, and Henry W. French on the negative.

Franklin G. Saylor is still ill with an abcess of the bone of his left leg. Several weeks ago Mr. Saylor scraped his shin bone on some rough obstacle at his place of business. In undressing he noticed that his underclothing stuck to the injured part, which grew worse each night until the abcess formed. Dr. Ferris has been treating the leg and has drawn much of the matter away. We hope to soon see you among us Frank.

"Three men bold took a walk in the cold." They walked over much of Houghs Neck, and landed by Harry Pennington's place just about high tide. To walk back to their starting point meant a half hours journey. Across Cavanaghs land meant about ten minutes. They could smell fresh shoulder, and clam broth, so off came shoes and stockings and up went the pants, and in they waded to their knees. Was it cold? Ask us, we were one of them. Oh, yes, some day we will have a concrete bridge over that 20-foot tidal river. Then Constable Pennington won't have to carry a lantern or flounder in the mud looking for that fire alarm box.

Tonight at Union Chapel, at 8 o'clock Houghs Neck, men and women will gather and discuss plans with the dedication committee on appropriate forms of entertainment for the formal opening of our school. Only twenty-three people showed up last meeting. Make it forty-six this time.

Charles E. Decker.

SEAMENS FRIEND SOCIETY.

For 83 years the Boston Seaman's Friend society has been doing a work of marvelous interest among the men of the sea. In its bethels, reading-rooms, and harbor launches, it is caring for sailor boys from every state in the Union, and from nearly every nation on earth. It is one of the oldest of the Congregational societies. Its work is endorsed by repeated Congregational councils and by the State Association of Congregational churches. For the support and enlargement of its work help is needed from all well wishers.

ESPERANTISTS.

About 200 gentlemen and ladies gathered in the lecture hall at the Boston Public Library on Saturday evening, and several in the audience received their first lesson in Esperanto. The annual meeting of the New England Esperanto Association had been held in the afternoon, and the members also took an Esperanto walk about the Arnold Arboretum. Dr. D. O. S. Lowell reported on the recent congress at Washington, and the progress of the new international language. Three young men and one young lady, well versed in Esperanto, read a part of the play "As You Like It." The new language certainly sounds like a foreign language, but after all is simple and can easily be learned in a short time.

MOTHERS TOO GOOD.

"Mothers are so good!"

It wasn't exactly the place you would expect to hear such a statement, that suburban corner where Company Four stood waiting for its car. Company Four always caught the half-past-seven o'clock car to be in their respective places by eight, and as cars do not run frequently in suburbs (at least in this suburb of which I am telling you) and as suburbanites are proverbially late, some member of Company Four invariably made this car each morning just by an eyelash—as they say in this particular suburb.

Anxiously the other three had scanned the long white walk that morning for the fourth, the golden-haired girl who was so often late, and as anxiously kept ear "on the stretch" for the sound of the approaching car, the while the cold rain drizzled down three umbrellas and folded the distant hills in its grey cloak. Then the bobbing of a red umbrella caught their eyes, and the man said, "Here she comes!" "No," said one of the girls, "her umbrella is not red." Then they saw her yellow hair, and as she drew near, the man shouted that she ought to be glad the car was late that morning.

The car was late, but it brought no complaint from Company Four. What, breathe a word of reproach against that good motorman who always seemed to keep an eye on the watch for the members of Company Four, and who had repeatedly held his car while one or more tardy members were coming down the white walk at a rate which would not have been discreditable to a professional sprinter, and incidentally furnishing amusement to the occupants of the car, comfortably and safely seated? Upbraid that kind-hearted conductor who always appeared so sorry for the breathless runner as he helped her up the steps—for, to his credit be it said, the one man of Company Four was rarely the cause of delaying the car. But a drizzling rain is not a promoter of conversation, and they were silent until the golden-haired girl came in, breathless as usual.

"Oh! I can hardly believe I am here!" she exclaimed. "I was certain I'd not make it. I didn't get up until a quarter to seven."

"Naughty girl!" said the man, "with cars running only every half hour!"

"And my hair just wouldn't stay fixed!" she continued, and the man instinctively smoothed his close-cropped locks. "And my waist wouldn't button, and I couldn't find my belt, and my hatpin was missing and my veil was all out of shape," and the man shuddered as he thought of the tribulations of his toilet had he been born a woman.

"And your breakfast?" he said, as she paused for breath.

"Breakfast!" she repeated vaguely. "Oh, yes! I remember now swallowing a cup of coffee—cold coffee—so long had it been poured by poor mamma—and eating a banana, while she ran to Mrs.——to borrow an umbrella. I left mine at the office, every one else had gone off with his own, and mamma's is broken. Poor mamma! she had a strenuous time this morning! She got my hair into order, buttoned my waist, found my hat-pin, put on my rubbers while I was getting on my hat and coat, and then got the umbrella for me, besides pouring the coffee and making the toast, which I hadn't time to eat."

There was a little silence ,and then she said:

"Mothers are so good!"

The man turned suddenly and began to study the road by which the car ought to be coming. Maybe his thoughts sped back to the time when such a pair of willing hands as quickly ministered to him, but none of the three considered him, so absorbed were they in reflection on the truth which had suddenly been flung before them by the remark of the golden-haired girl. Was it not exactly what their mothers did for them? Without the aid of those willing hands would they ever be ready in time? And yet had they ever deeply considered the assistance that had been rendered to them, until the girl, in this sudden gratitude, had drawn their attention to it?

How many mothers in this land daily make husband and children ready for their work out yonder in the world! How many voices call to her in the early morning hours! How much extra work must her hands perform, how many extra steps taken before the door closes on the youngest child with his school-books! "Mother, where's this?" "Mother, where's that?" Her ears are assailed by the cry of "Mother," and somehow she is able to answer every call, give assistance to every need. Then they depart, made ready by her love and care, and how rarely, alas! how rarely, husband or children bestow on her a loving, grateful thought during the day!

And yet, mothers, you will one day exact the bitterest payment for this negligence or ingratitude on the part of those you serve, the bitter payment of regret, maybe remorse. The day will come when those willing hands must fail in their service and then—well, God pity those they were wont to serve!

And so I think the truest service a mother can render is to refuse to make her hands the slaves of husband and children. Their legitimate work is hard and heavy enough, and as she does not ask the laborers in other fields to assist her when the close of day sends them home, she should resolutely refuse to make herself so completely their servant. To do otherwise is a cruel kindness.—Rosary Magazine.

QUINCY INTERESTED IN CIVIC ADVANCE CAMPAIGN

Arrangements Made for Meeting to be Addressed By Three Notable Speakers

A Part of the Boston -- 1915 Movement

A meeting in the interest of the Boston-1915 movement, or more strictly speaking to arrange for a public meeting to be held in Quincy during the "Civic Advance campaign" which is to cover the entire metropolitan district November 10 to 22.

Invitations had been extended to a number of representative gentlemen to be present at the meeting Monday evening at Colonial hall and most of them responded.

John B. Sewall, executive secretary of Boston-1915 movement was present and explained what the movement hoped to accomplish. Mayor Shea who is interested in the movement was detained at home by a slight illness, but telephoned that he was in hearty sympathy with the movement. In his absence D. King presided.

Mr. Sewall stated that the movement was not limited to Boston, but aimed to improve the health, education and housing of people in the greater Boston district. It aimed to work for the improvement of conditions in the whole district but not to interfere with the units. It wanted each to come up to its best condition as a unit. Also to be helpful to those people who lived in these towns but did business in Boston. He explained the plan of the campaign which was to open with a conference of Mayors and governing boards, and a grand three days' dramatic pageant to be held in the Boston Arena. At these performances delegates from the schools of Boston and the district would be selected and admitted without charge. This pageant would prove of high educational value by impressing upon the performers, as well as the spectators, what is involved in the development of the modern city.

In addition to this it is proposed to hold public meetings during the week in the different cities and towns of the district. A large list of men and women prominent in different spheres of life have been secured as speakers for these meetings, which it was hoped would arouse the perhaps dormant interest in civic betterment. At these meetings membership would be solicited to the organization. The fee for this is one dollar which included a year's subscription to the monthly magazine published by the society.

It was decided that the meeting in Quincy should be held on Thursday evening, Nov. 17, at Alpha hall, and that Mayor Shea be invited to preside.

The gentlemen present went over the list of available speakers, and the following were selected: Miss Mary Boyle O'Reilley, who would speak on the relation of women and social workers to the movement. Henry Abrahams, secretary of the Boston Central Labor Union, who would speak on "The Labor Union as a Social Force," and Hon. Guy Ham who would speak on "Citizenship." With this list of speakers there should be no difficulty in filling Alpha hall.

After the selection of speakers had been concluded, it was deemed advisable to appoint an executive committee who should have charge of making the necessary arrangements for the meeting as well as to create enthusiasm in their particular section of the city.

Delcevare King was elected chairman of this committee, George T. Magee secretary, and Eugene R. Stone, president of the Board of Trade, as treasurer.

The remainder of the executive committee appointed are: Mayor William T. Shea, Dr. Edwin N. Hardy, Hon. John O. Hall, Merton A. Turner, Robert E. Foy, Edward Southworth, Albert L. Barbour, Ernest G. Gay, William H. Teasdale, Charles W. Hanscom, John L. Hamilton, Dr. E. H. Bushnell, John L. Miller, Walter S. Pinkham, William M. Chase, Rev. J. E. Lillback, Edward J. Sandberg, Stephen B. Little, Rev. Rufus B. Tobey, Alexander Falconer, Walter E. Piper, John C. Murray, Joseph A. Sedgwick, Thomas B. Pollard, James F. Burke, Frank F. Prescott, William F. Cummings, Herbert S. Barker, Alfred O. Diack, Rev. Henry T. Grady George A. Sidelinger and Henry M. Faxon.

It was decided to hold another meeting of the committee Nov. 3 at the rooms of the Board of Trade, at which time details relative to Quincy meeting will be completed.

Before the meeting adjourned Dr. Hardy brought up the question of widening Hancock street on the westerly side between Saville and Dimmock streets. This was in the line of civic improvements and one of the matters which might well be taken up.

THE NORFOLK CONFERENCE

Pleasing Program for Quincy Meeting Tomorrow

The Norfolk Conference of Unitarian and other Christian churches will be held tomorrow with the First Unitarian church, Quincy. The morning session will open at 10 o'clock with George Kuhn Clarke of Needham presiding. At the conclusion of the business, Mrs. Clara B. Beatley of Roxbury will give an address on "Our young people and the church." Prof. H. C. Maitra, president of the college in Calcutta will speak of "The aims and services of the Brahmo Somaj."

At 11.30 there will be a general discussion of the topics of the addresses.

A short devotional service will be conducted by Rev. Charles B. Ames, junior pastor of the home church, before the meeting is adjourned for lunch. During the intermission of an hour and a half, the delegates will have a box luncheon and will be given an opportunity to see the Adams Shrine and the historic City of Presidents.

The afternoon session will open at 1.30. Rev. Henry Davis Stevens of Walpole will conduct the praise service, after which there will be another business session including the roll call, election of officers, etc. Rev. Joseph Henry Crooker of Roslindale will deliver the afternoon address, taking as his subject, "The Lost Chord." A discussion led by Rev. George W. Cutter of Dorchester will follow the address.

Delegates will be present from many towns in and outside of county, including: Milton, Canton, Dedham, Medfield, Dorchester, Needham, Walpole, Sharon, Dover, Hyde Park, Natick, Randolph, Roxbury, Sherborn and Roslindale, beside those from Wollaston and Quincy.

The speakers are prominent and a rare opportunity is offered to all interested in the spirit of religion. The meetings will not be confined to delegates, but all who care to attend will be welcomed. The Norfolk conference was organized in Dedham in the year 1866. Meetings have been held annually with the different churches of the association.

A SONG OF HARVEST.

O painter of the fruits and flowers!
We thank Thee for thy wise design
Whereby these human hands of ours
In Nature's garden work with thine.

And thanks that from our daily need
The joy of simple faith is born;
That he who smites the summer weed
May trust Thee for the autumn corn.
—Whittier.

—Colleges are like business houses in a sense at least. They must grow slowly and they cannot grow on credit. They can only increase their educational facilities as their endowment is increased, and when they go beyond their resources, they suffer like any other business concern. Many a good college has been ruined in an attempt to become a university ,and many a valuable institution has been closed because it was not willing to "shine in its place and be content."—Richmond Times Dispatch.

CANDIDATES AT QUINCY

Foss, Cassidy, Fitzgerald and Curley Speak

Many of the leading lights in the Democratic party in the present State campaign were present Monday evening at the rally held at Alpha hall. The prominence of the gentlemen announced to speak was such as served to fill the hall to its full capacity and many of the late comers were obliged to stand in the entrance hall.

EUGENE N. FOSS

He Heads Bay State Democratic Ticket

The meeting was opened by Councilman John D. Smith, chairman of the Democratic City committee, who spoke briefly on the local issues and then introduced ex-Representative James F. Burke as the presiding officer.

Mr. Burke also spoke of the local issues and the local candidates, and then introduced Candidate Eugene N. Foss as the first speaker, who occupied the attention of the audience for 25 minutes.

Mr. Foss dwelt a few minutes on local affairs and upon the importance of Quincy as a shipbuilding city. His address in the main and in fact that of all the speakers, was on the tariff question and the high cost of living, which it was declared would be reduced under Democratic rule.

JOHN F. FITZGERALD

Representative Thomas P. Riley of Malden followed. Then came candidate Michael T. Sullivan and candidate John J. McDevitt. The latter was interrupted by the arrival of Thomas F .Cassidy, candidate for lieutenant governor, to whom he surrendered, while the latter was interrupted by the arrival of Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of Boston to whom he also surrendered as the latter was obliged to leave early.

Other speakers were candidate Rednor P. Coombs and Joseph Cahalon of Dorchester.

The one theme of all the speakers was the high cost of living. As the crowd were leaving the hall at the close of the rally, candidate James M. Curley motored up and quite a number went back to hear him speak.

—Bread in New York city is now sold by the pound, instead of the loaf. The buyer asks for half a pound, or two pounds, exactly as he would when buying butter or lard. The bakers feel outraged, the public apparently is somewhat dazed by such a radical innovation, but the municipal bureau of weights and meaures is convinced that it has forced a reform of much value in dollars and cents for the people.—Milford Gazette.

ELECTRICAL NIGHT SCHOOL

Quincy Y. M. C. A. Inaugurates New Course

The electrical night school started at the Y. M. C. A. Monday evening with a good-sized class. J. P. Catlin, the pioneer in the work, came as the instructor in place of A. Deforest Davis. Mr. Catlin has taught in the Salem Y. M. C. A. night school for four years and has a thorough knowledge of things electrical. After a short introductory talk, he broke right into the work of the year. There was an abundance of apparatus for demonstration purposes. The object of the course is to teach the practical side of electricity, thus fitting the students for work along all electrical lines. In connection with the lectures there will be an opportunity to do laboratory work a little later on.

The Socratic method is used in teaching. A series of questions has been tabulated and carefully arranged by the instructors and advisory board. The best of technical knowledge is thus put into practical form, enabling those who take the course to get as much fundamental knowledge as could be obtained by a year at a technical school. By the time the course has been completed, the pupils will have a thorough acquaintance with generators, batteries, magnetos, motors of all sorts, telegraphic appliances, wireless instruments, etc. The first lesson covered a great deal of ground but frequent reviews will keep the whole subject matter of the course fresh in the minds of the students.

Five competent college bred instructors are conducting similar courses in 20 Y. M. C. A. buildings throughout the eastern part of this state and the state of Rhode Island, going as far south as Providence and Newport, Taunton and New Bedford and to the north as far as Gloucester and Lawrence. The undertaking is a big one, but there can be no doubt of its unqualified success. And it will surely be a boon to those who profit by opportunity of getting instruction.

VISIT TO BATTLESHIP.

Saturday afternoon Mrs. Albert E. Rhodes of North Central avenue was chaperon for a party of young ladies who visited the U. S. S. "Virginia" at the Charlestown Navy yard where they were guests of Lieutenant Clarence E. Wood, a cousin of Mrs. Rhodes. After a tour of inspection over the battleship, which proved most instructive as well as interesting Mrs. Rhodes presided at the tea table. In the party were: Miss Amy Rhodes, Miss Miriam Rhodes, Miss L. Leah Hennigar, Miss Lydia G. Hennigar, Miss Ruth W. Bean, Miss Dorothy C. Bean, Miss Alberta Ellison, Miss Susie L. Nichols, Miss Nettie A. Parlee, Miss Louisa Allison Ross and Miss Eleanor S. Roberts.

POSSIBILITIES OF QUINCY.

In view of all these industries in one little section of our city, and with the knowledge of many more in other section we cannot very well say that Quincy is dying a natural death. People are awakening to a realization of her possibilities, and those who are so anxious to annex the "City of Presidents" to Boston are not only blund in ne eye but unable to see out of the other. We do not realize the value of all these growing industries as well as the older ones of which we boast. Today we are proud of our individuality, and of these interests of which we still have much to learn. Let us hope that tomorrow we can still have a feeling of satisfaction in both, and in the knowledge that our city is marching on to yet greater things in the industrial and commercial world.

—Ten ice cream dealers in Philadelphia were fined recently for putting furniture glue in their ice cream. The object of the adulteration was to make the product stand up longer without melting, but the consumer had a prejudice against the combination which the court evidently held to be justified. A little sermon may be preached here about the need of moral uplift among these dealers and the importance of good enterprises as the conduct of small enterprises as well as large ones. The pure food laws appear to be doing good work in some instances at least.—Milford Gazette.

Her Auto Ride

The Best Laid Plans Go Awry.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Annabelle Dayton in her smart little motorcar paused at the summit of the hill and drew a sharp breath of appreciation. A line of distant blue indicated the sea. In the foreground were green clad slopes running down to snowy beaches. The roofs of the village pointed up among the trees, and a church spire gleamed like fire. There were white sails beyond and the black drift of smoke from a passing steamer.

"This is lots better than going to Aunt Edith's poky musicale," sighed Annabelle mutinously. "Just fancy spending this glorious afternoon in a lighted drawing room listening to the great Alvan Eldred, 'master of the violin,' and being disillusioned by long hair, greasy coat collar and a pervading presence of garlic!" Annabelle's dainty nose sniffed scornfully at her imaginary portrait of the great violinist of whom her aunt had raved for weeks.

"I'm going down, down to the very edge of the sea."

As the machine sped downward Annabelle was suddenly conscious that something was wrong. The brakes did not respond to her frantic pressure, the levers grated harshly without effect, and there was an unfamiliar grunting sound from beneath her feet.

She had been down this same hill many times before, slowly, cautiously. She knew that from the foot of the hill the street ran down to the water's edge, ending at the broad dock where the boats landed.

Nothing could stop her speed unless —the color left her cheeks as she realized the almost certain death that confronted her. Her lips set in a straight line, and her eyes shone steadily. If one had to meet death at the close of a lovely August day when—why, one might as well meet it bravely.

Faster she went, her eyes, dark with dread, fixed on a wide opening on the right. Flanked by stone pillars, it seemed to mark the entrance to some estate. The few pedestrians turned and watched her flight with disapproval; a constable held up a warning hand; a wagon scuttled into the sidewalk to avoid her coming.

Annabelle turned the steering wheel and a sigh of relief fluttered from her lips as the machine responded, but there was no lessening of the mad speed. Wildly it tore through the open gateway, ground into the hard packed earth of the drive, skidded along a muddy spot under the trees, left the drive and pounded along soft green turf, miraculously avoiding tree trunks, making straight for the large brown house set in the midst of the grounds.

Another twist of the wheel and the house seemed to glide past. Before her was a distant blur of gorgeous colors—a flower garden in the midst of which was a summer house. To the left was a turfy bank. Her head dropped on her hands that clutched the wheel, and she closed her eyes and prayed.

There was a low shout beside her; the machine jolted under additional weight; a pair of strong hands gripped the wheel from hers; there was the pressure of brakes; the motor slowed suddenly, bumped into some obstruction and then bounded back to a standstill.

"It's all over now," said a kindly voice.

Annabelle opened her eyes and looked fearfully forth on the summer house still creaking from the force of encounter, on the crushed flowers she had mowed down and lastly into the countenance of a man who sat beside her in the car.

It was then that Annabelle realized that she was holding the stranger in a frantic embrace, her hands tightly clasped about his neck, her fair head perilously near his broad shoulder.

"I beg your pardon!" Annabelle's face turned to deepest rose as she hastily withdrew from him, but her hair had caught in a button of his coat, holding it firmly by one long golden strand.

"Just a moment. There—I don't want to hurt you. It's off now." He spoke in a matter of fact tone as if he was in the habit of ensnaring lovely maidens with coat buttons every day of his life. "I'm afraid you are pretty well shaken up with your ride. You had a narrow escape." He had alighted and helped Annabelle to the ground.

She leaned weakly against the summer house. "You must have saved my life. Did you—did you really leap on the step as I passed?" She was beginning to realize what had happened.

He nodded carelessly. "It was easy enough. You see, one gets practice in that sort of thing chasing the street cars." Then, observing her with concern in his gray eyes, he went on: "Come and sit down in the summer house; you must be pretty well knocked under with the strain. After you have had a cordial perhaps you may feel able to tell how it happened that you invaded my flower garden."

He smiled pleasantly down on her as he led the way into the rose covered arbor and drew forward a deep wicker chair for this unexpected guest, who sank into it with a little sigh of relief. "I will send my housekeeper, Mrs. Larrup, to you; she may be of assistance."

Annabelle had time to rearrange her tumbled hair, blushing at the recollection of its episode with the coat button, before her host returned, tray in hand.

"Mrs. Larrup has disappeared, and it seems to be the maid's half holiday, so you must be satisfied with my humble services. Here are currant wine and some biscuits and a bottle of eau de cologne. Isn't that what ladies use when they are upset?" He placed the tray handily at her elbow.

"Thanks to you, I wasn't upset," returned Annabelle merrily. She sniffed at the cut glass bottle more in gratitude for his thoughtfulness than because she needed its pungent aroma. "Thank you. I am afraid I've made you lots of trouble and ruined your garden. I hope you will allow me to have it put in order again." She sipped the wine he poured for her and looked up at him from her dark blue eyes, frankly boyish in their direct glance.

"Really, you've given old Jackson something to do. He's been eating his head off lately and grumbling because I wouldn't let him dig up some of the beds and set out other plants. There he is now among the hollyhocks. See the grin on his face? He's tickled to death over it."

The man leaned against the doorpost and looked out into the garden, where an old negro was hobbling among the torn beds, a broad smile about his toothless lips.

"I say, Jackson, please ask Pierre to come here and get this car out into the drive." He turned to Annabelle, and his glance lingered long on her face, sweetly serious in the pale green light of the arbor. "I think my man can put your car right. There seems to be nothing serious the matter with it—probably some small matter of adjustment."

While the chauffeur tinkered over the car Annabelle related the story of her ride. She omitted nothing, not even the fact that she had deliberately ran away from her aunt's musicale and the great violinist nor her terror at the last when her car sped down the hill.

The man listened without interruption. He smiled when she mentioned Alvan Eldred, and he winced when she described the terrible ride down the hill. When she had finished he told her that he had been sitting in the arbor and had seen her approach across the turf—had raced to meet her. It was nothing at all.

"So you did not want to see Alvan Eldred," he said a little later. "Have you ever heard him play?"

"Once," admitted Annabelle, "and it was so heavenly it made me cry. There was a big crowd, and I couldn't see him, and I didn't want to. I know what they look like, and I am always disillusioned after I see them, some are so—so grubby, you know. This time he played an old thing, the intermezzo from 'Cavalleria,' you know, and I've wanted to hear it again just as he played it, only"—

"You're afraid of the garlic and the greasy coat collar, eh?" He was smiling down at her in the friendliest sort of way.

"I know you think I'm horrid about it and not a bit artistic, but"— "I don't like garlic myself," he confessed cheerfully. "As for questionable coat collars—ugh! Nevertheless, I'm afraid you do Eldred an injustice. He's an American, you know."

"You see how narrow and prejudiced and silly I am," said Annabelle, rising and moving toward the door. "I never even knew that. I thought he was a Pole—or something. It is growing late, and your man seems to have fixed my car."

"I'm going with you—with your permission—to see that you reach home safely. Pierre can follow with my car and bring me home. You have told me your name, but I have not yet introduced myself. Wait a moment, please; do not turn your head."

With a slight bow he left her standing in the doorway, her back to the interior of the arbor. He passed inside, and she heard a slight rattle, a whining twang as a string tightened, and then the strains of the intermezzo trembled on the air—played as only a master could play it—as Alvan Eldred had never played it before.

Annabelle stood spellbound, her blue eyes like stars, her red lips parted, wave after wave of rose color flushing her startled face. Before he had finished she had turned and was facing him, inspiring him to greater effort, and there passed between them at the moment a great understanding.

When he had finished Annabelle pressed her hands against her eyes. "I feel as if I had always been asleep —as though I had just awakened," she said softly.

He made no reply. Quietly he put away the violin which had wrought this wonderful thing for him, and silently they entered the little car which had brought Annabelle so strangely into the garden.

At home he smiled down at her. "I may come again?"

"Yes, indeed."

"Garlic? Long hair?" His hand brushed his cropped head.

"I don't mind, really," blushed Annabelle, with starry eyes.

His tone of banter changed to one of tender gravity. To Annabelle it sounded like the deeper notes of his violin. "You ran away from me, and yet we met after all. Are you glad? I am!" Without waiting for answer he jumped into his waiting car and with a last backward look was gone.

Annabelle smiled mysteriously as he vanished in a cloud of dust. "And I'm glad, too—glad, glad!" Then with a swift, graceful movement she bent down and kissed the steering wheel of the little automobile.

HE WAS SITTING DOWN.

The late James A. Bailey, famous as the successor of P. T. Barnum, once accepted an invitation to a dinner tendered to a bride and groom among the "freaks" of his circus. He was late in arriving and found the company politely awaiting him, says the Success Magazine.

There were living skeletons, dwarfs, Circassians, snake charmers, the "girl who spoke seven languages and had two heads, which made 14 languages in all;" the "dog-faced boy" and others. Beaming upon them with a paternal air, the happy manager acknowledged the genial "hallo, pop," that went around the festal board.

"I am sorry I kept you waiting," he said, taking his place at the table. "I believe there are several new additions to the company. Is this the groom?"

"No," replied a deep voice from the full beard addressed. "I am the bride."

"I beg your pardon," said Bailey. "I did not recognize the bearded lady. But, tell me, which is the groom?"

"I am," proclaimed a very thin voice.

In astonishment Mr. Bailey glanced up at the figure towering near his elbow.

"I congratulate you, my man," said he. "Sit down, let us on with the feast—sit down."

The guest addressed at once began to ascend seemingly until his head was in the neighborhood of the canvas roof, from which height he looked down and said:

"I was sittin' down, pop—I was sittin' down!"

CONVINCED AND CONVICTED.

In a southern county of Missouri years ago, when the form of questioning was slightly different from now, much trouble was experienced in getting a jury in a murder trial. Finally an old fellow answered every question satisfactorily; he had no prejudices, was not opposed to capital punishment, and was generally considered a valuable find. Then the prosecutor said solemnly:

"Juror, look upon the prisoner; prisoner, look upon the juror."

The old man adjusted his spectacles and peered at the prisoner for a full half-minute. Then, turning to the Court, he said:

"Judge, darned if I don't believe he is guilty!"—Kansas City Star.

A teacher in one of the Cleveland public schools said to the class in English composition: "I wish every member of the class would write out a conversation between a grocer and one of his customers, introducing some pathetic incident or reference."

Among the compositions handed in was the following, by a little girl: "'What do you want?' asked the grocer. The lady answered: 'A pound of tea.' 'Green or black?' asked the grocer. 'I think I'll take black,' she said, 'it's for a funeral.'"

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Sheriff Advances Day of Execution of Crippen One Week

London, Oct. 25.—Dr. Hawley H. Clppen, convicted of the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore, the actress, will be hanged on Nov. 8. The date originally announced was Nov. 15, but the sheriff has advanced the day one week.

Crippen is in a state of nervous collapse. Extraordinary precautions are miantained in Brixton jail to prevent him from committing suicide. The American doctor is under constant surveillance in the death cell and all his food is prepared and guarded more carefully than it was before his trial. The building of a gallows for his execution has already begun.

Crippen may not be able to testify in the trial of Miss Leneve, charged with being an accessory after the fact and for whose love Crippen put his wife out of the way. Miss Leneve will be called to the bar in Old Bailey today and her trial will be pushed as speedily as that of Crippen.

Woman Is Charged With Forgery on a Philadelphia Bank

Boston, Oct. 25.—Mrs. Catherine J. Bolch, the Philadelphia woman arrested for forgery, was held in $1200 for a hearing in the police court after she had been identified as the woman who had opened an acount at the National Shawmut bank with two forged checks.

A photograph of the woman and Bertillon measurements have been sent to the police of New York, Philadelphia and Hoboken to determine whether she has a criminal record.

The specific charge made against the woman is that she forged and uttered a check for $300 drawn on the Guarantee Trust and Safe Deposit company of Philadelphia to which the name of William J. Jones was signed.

FEAR THAT HERRING WILL ALL DISAPPEAR

Maine Legislature Urged to Regulate Seining

Bangor, Me., Oct. 25.—Prominent residents of coast towns are calling upon members-elect of the legislature and asking support for a law to regulate seining in Maine waters. Captain Donovan of Jonesport, who is extensively engaged in the coast fisheries, declares that if some protection is not afforded by the legislature the herring will soon disappear, and along with them the cod, which will not go where there are no herring. Donovan says:

"There are now employed on the Maine coast seines enough to reach from Cape Ann to Eastport. Fish are taken in these seines in such vast quantities that they cannot be handled, and much of the catch is left to rot and pollute the waters. Thousands of hogsheads of fish now lie rotting on the bottom, thus entalling not only the loss of the fish, but also the destruction of the spawn."

POLE DISCOVERED IN 1630

Said to Have Been Revealed by Old Records in Washington

Washington, Oct. 25.—If ancient records in the possession of the navy department are to be taken as authentic, Captain Robert E. Peary was not the first to visit the North Pole, but was anticipated several centuries ago by an old English friar skilful in astronomy and navigation.

Department officials have unearthed an old history in which the claim is made that the North Pole was discovered in 1360 by a friar of Oxford. It is called "A Naval History or Compleat View of the British Marine," and was published by John Entick in London in 1757.

Schrank's mother, his wife and his three small children were in the courtroom when the sentence was pronounced. Mrs. Schrank did not regain consciousness for half an hour.

DRIEST YEAR YET RECORDED

Many New England Towns Facing a Water Problem

FARMERS GREATLY DISTURBED

Towns and Cities Dependent Upon Meagre Supply and People Who Depend Upon Wells and Streams Fully Realize Need of Rain—Emergency and Auxiliary Water Sources Being Sought In Several Places

Boston, Oct. 25.—Unless the next three weeks bring forth fairly heavy rains for New England, many towns and districts must face a troublesome, if not serious, situation in regard to their water supply for the winter. The time when rain would aid vegetation has passed; the great need now is for a replenishment of the water supplies needed for drinking and other household purposes and for stock.

Already the farmers in southern parts of Vermont and New Hampshire are, in a number of instances, obliged to haul water for their stock over long distances and some towns in both of those states, as well as Massachusetts, have taken steps to erect emergency pumping stations and other water-procuring devices. The board of selectmen of Spencer has issued a warrant for a town meeting for the sole purpose of considering business of the water department.

The full extet of the drought is not realized by people who have the service of the metropolitan district, for, thanks to the wonderful system of storing water which has been developed under the guidance of the metropolitan and sewerage board, there are some billions of gallons of water stored up for just such a situation as now exists.

But the towns and cities dependent upon a more meagre supply and the folk who depend upon wells and nearby streams for their water know full well how badly rain is needed. Even they may not be aware that this bids fair to be the driest year on record in Boston and vicinity since the Boston branch of the weather bureau service was established in 1871.

There have been only three months this year, to date, with precipitation in excess of normal, and those three months—January, February and June—provided a total excess of less than two and one-half inches. On the other hand, there have been three months with a total rainfall of less than two inches and this month bids fair to be another, with a total precipitation up to today of only .86 of an inch, two-thirds of which resulted from the storm which began Saturday and ended Sunday.

The total rainfall from the first day of January, this year, up to this morning, was 22.2 inches. In the same corresponding period of 1908, which was the driest year on record in Boston, according to weather bureau figures, the precipitation to the end of October was 26.86 inches. What the remaining few days of October will bring forth is, of course, problematical.

Many towns are forced still to rely on meagre auxiliary sources for their drinking water, while that which is thus obtained is generally admitted to be much below the standard. So true has this been in some places, notably Palmer, that positive orders have been issued that it must be boiled before using for drinking purposes. In several cases the lack of water has jeopardized the safety of towns from fire. The imposed restrictions of the use of municipal supplied water to absolutely necessary purposes is quite general through central and western Massachusetts.

While the drouth has affected, more or less, nearly all the New England streams, its results have been particularly noticeable in the remarkably low stage of the smaller ones. More than a dozen small mills, and several larger plants, have been forced to shut down half a day at a time because of a lack of sufficient water to furnish the necessary power. This has brought temporary idleness to several thousand persons.

With the failure of the usual sources of supply, towns and manufacturing corporations have been forced to seek emergency and auxiliary sources. The parched face of Mother Earth has been scarred anew by the sinking of many artesian wells to bring to needy man the water which lies hidden in the springs beneath its surface. Tapping remote sources, additional miles of pipe have been laid to carry the desired water to the communities.

Paulhan Gets $5000 Prize

London, Oct. 25.—The vexed question whether Grahame-White or Paulhan is entitled to the $5000 offered by The Daily Mail to the airman covering the greatest total distance across country during the twelve months ended Aug. 14 last has been decided in the Frenchman's favor.

Buffalo Puts Lid on Boxing

Buffalo, Oct. 25.—The death of young Gittere, as a result of a boxing bout with Fred Mumm at the Marquette club two weeks ago, has put a stop to exhibitions of boxing in Buffalo for the present.

TO TRACE CHOLERA

New Method Going Into Operation at Immigrant Stations

Washington, Oct. 25.—Precautionary measures to prevent cholera from being brought into this country by immigrants from European ountries, especially Russia and Italy, were put into operation at Ellis island, New York, yesterday. The same system will be inaugurated in Boston and at all other ports of entry as soon as the necessary printed forms can be sent.

The principal feature of the new plan is a "destination card," which, when filled out, enables the authorities to keep immigrants under suveillance from the time of their departure from cholera-infected countries until they arrive at the city or town to which they are destined.

DARK PREDICTIONS CAREFULLY PHRASED

Publishers Warned That Their Buildings May "Blow Up"

Denver, Oct. 25.—Prediction by a national officer of a labor union that the buildings of three local newspapers whose pressmen are on strike will encounter destruction before the publishers win, startled the Denver trades and labor assembly at a meeting here.

The speaker was Albert B. Kreitler, third vice president of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America, who appeared before the assembly asking aid in the strike.

"I tell you the buildings will blow up before this thing is settled the way the publishers want to settle it," he said. He finished his speech amid silence.

Persons who attended the assembly directed attention to the seemingly careful phrasing of the prediction, particularly to the fact that Kreitler did not say the buildings "would be blown up."

HAND-TO-HAND BATTLE

Rioting Follows Efforts to Check the Spread of Cholera

Bari, Italy, Oct. 25.—Troops have been called out to quell rioting at Bisceglie, resulting from the efforts of the public health authorities to take precautionary measures against the spread of cholera.

As the health officers began fumigating the cathedral and other public buildings, a mob of men and women attacked them. The municipal guard was ordered to fire into the air, but when the volley was fired one man named Bellomo fell dead.

Scores were hurt in a hand-to-hand battle that followed and the guards were driven back.

HOME ENDORSEMENT

Hundreds of Quincy Citizens Can Tell You All About It.

Home endorsement the public expression of Quincy people, should be evidence beyond dispute for every Quincy reader. Surely the experience of friends and neighbors, cheerfully given by them, will carry more weight than the utterances of strangers residing in faraway places. Read the following:

W. Charlesworth, 33 Cranch street, Quincy, Mass., says: "About five years ago I began to suffer from kidney trouble. I had pains in my back which were very severe at times and cold or damp weather aggravated my suffering. I knew that my kidneys were at fault and used everything I could think of in an effort to obtain relief but to no avail. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly advertised, I finally decided to give them a trial and I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. Before I had taken the contents of two boxes, the backache was a thing of the past and I felt better in every way. Doan's Kidney Pills have my highest endorsement."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

BOMBARDMENT WELL PLANNED

Story of Fall of Lisbon Is Told by a Boston Man

WAS A STEAMER PASSENGER

Arrived In Harbor of Capital of Portugal Two Hours Before Revolution Formally Begun and Had Full View of Proceedings on Shore—Forts Crumpled Under Heavy Fire of Four Battleships Manned by Rebels

New York, Oct. 25.—A thrilling story of the bombardment of Lisbon during the revolution by four of the battleships of the Portuguese navy, manned by rebels, was related by George Banchor of Boston, when he arrived on the Cincinnati of the Hamburg-American line.

"I was a passenger on board the Cape Blanco, which arrived in the harbor of Lisbon from Brazil on Oct. 4, the day the revolution broke out," said Banchor. "Our ship got into the harbor about 10 a. m. It was a beautiful day, and we were all on deck watching the shore. There was no apparent sign at that time of any revolution; in fact we were impressed with the continued quiet that appeared to rest over Lisbon.

"We were much interested in four Portuguese battleships that lay at anchor in the harbor and I watched the men on them at work. They appeared to be very busy and I could see them running up and down the decks and the officers issuing orders. To me it appeared as if they were preparing to sail.

"We were much surprised that we were not permitted to dock. About 11 o'clock a man rowed out to the ship from the shore. I asked him to take me ashore. In reply he dropped his oar and drew his finger across his throat. The royal flag was flying from the flag poles of the four forts scattered about the harbor and also from the Necessidades palace. A feeling of unrest became apparent suddenly and we saw armed men walking up and down the wall along the harbor.

"Promptly at 12 o'clock we saw the flag on one of the forts lowered and almost instantly the guns of the four battleships began belching forth their missiles of death and destruction. It all happened so quickly that it was not until fifteen minutes later that we realized that a revolution had broken out. The bombarding of the city by the four Portuguese battleships lasted for exactly two and a half hours.

"One by one the forts were crumpled under the heavy fire of the battleships. The surprising part of it all was that not an answering shot came from any of the forts or from the shore.

"Shortly after the last fort flag was lowered we saw the royal flag on the Necessidades palace lowered. A great cheer could be heard from the shore.

"A few minutes later the fire of the battleships suddenly stopped. Then we saw the royal standard again flying from the castle. The royalists, we later learned, had rallied and temporarily beaten off the revolutionists. Within the next twenty minutes the flag had been lowered again and the flag of the revolutionists run up.

"Later hundreds and hundreds of armed men—the revolutionists—began parading along the streets. Our ship was only a quarter mile off shore and we had an excellent opportunity to witness the proceedings on shore.

"In that long parade of the victorious revolutionists there must have been many English-speaking persons, for we could plainly hear them shouting 'Long live the republic.'

"During the bombardment of the Necessidades palace, we saw a great section of the wall fall out, displaying to our view the royal church in the enclosure of the castle wall. Later we saw this church completely demolished. We saw scores of buildings fall under the fire of the shells from the ships."

Crown Prince Ascends Throne Soon After Father's Death

Bangkok, Oct. 25.—Crown Prince Chowfa Maha Vajiravudh has been proclaimed king. The new king was born Jan. 1, 1880. On Jan. 18, 1895, he was made crown prince.

It is given out here that King Chulalongkorn's death was due to uraemic poisoning. For years the late king was a sufferer from nephritis. Later uraemia developed, and on Saturday last the king's condition was such that the attending specialist gave up all hope of saving his life. He died a few hours later.

SCORES NEW RECORD

Drexel Soars to Height of More Than Seven Thousand Feet

New York, Oct. 25.—The third day of the international aviation meet at Belmont park, L. I., made up for all the damp, cold and disappointment of the first two days.

A new American record for altitude was set down to the credit of J. A. Drexel, who soared for altitude in his record flight five minutes before the second hourly altitude contest closed.

In great lazy circles, he crept into the wind, pointing higher and higher into the glare of the setting sun to a height of 7105 feet. His descent was swift but unhurried, and he landed lightly in the middle of the field.

The best previous American record was 6175 feet, made by Walter Brookings at Atlantic City, and Drexel's own best record made last summer in Great Britain was 6750 feet, at that time a world's record.

WRECKED IN HEAVY STORM

Nineteen Members of Crew of Steamer Regulus Are Drowned

St. John's, Oct. 25.—News of the wreck of the steamer Regulus, bound from Belle island to Sydney, with the loss of nineteen members of the crew was received here.

The Regulus broke her shaft off the Bay of Bulls, thirty-six miles from here, during a heavy storm. The accident was reported here and a tug which went to her assistance picked her up. The storm increased, however, and four hawsers were parted and the Regulus lost in the fog and darkness.

The tug searched for her all night, and it was not until daylight that the steamer was discovered, a total wreck, on the point of land at the entrance of Shoal bay.

When the tug left with the survivors the steamer appeared to be breaking up.

Skillings, a clerk in the registry division of the Portland postoffice, who had been missing a week, walked into the police station and gave himself up to the authorities.

Skillings was arraigned before Commissioner Bradley on a warrant charging embezzlement and was bound over to the December term of the United States district court.

DOGS ATTEND WEDDING

Mrs. Bowen Has Pet Japanese Spaniels Act as Her "Bridesmaids"

New York, Oct. 25.—Just the minute Rev. E. L. Copefield started the wedding service making Mrs. Mary S. Bowen, a wealthy San Francisco society woman, and Percy W. Evans, head of a Seattle shipping concern, man and wife, the three bridesmands began to frisk and caper about. It took all the soothing efforts of the best man and matron of honor to keep them fairly quiet so that the ceremony could proceed.

The wedding was held at the home of Arthur Delroy. The bridesmaids wore gorgeously embroidered gowns with tiny lace. Their liveliness was due to the fact that they are young Japanese spaniels and were simply glad to see their mistress, who held them by a leash.

After the ceremony the dog bridesmaids were given a dog dinner, at which Lillian Russel's toy spaniel was also a guest.

How the Natives Treat Gorillas.

Natives in the countries inhabited by great apes regard them always as human beings of inferior types, and it is for this reason that for a long time it was found impossible to get hold of an entire gorilla skin, because the savages considered it religiously necessary to cut off the hands and feet of the animals when they killed them, just as they do with their enemies, possibly for the purpose of rendering them harmless in case they should by any chance come to life again.

LOST IN THE WILDERNESS

Probable Fate of the Missing American Balloonists

IN A TERRIBLE PREDICAMENT

Hawley and Post Thinly Clad, Short of Provisions and Without Means For Breaking Way Through Almost Impenetrable Forest Land—Canadian Officials and Rescue Parties Ready to Rush to Their Assistance

Ottawa, Oct. 25.—Somewhere north of Mackinac island at the source of Lake Huron absolutely unequipped for existence in the primeval wilderness are Captain Allan R. Hawley and Augustus Post, the crew of the lost America II. Their exact location cannot even be guessed.

All that is known to guide the immense forces that are being concentrated to locate the missing aeronauts is that the balloon, traveling freely, was reported passing north over Thompsonville, Mich., toward the wildest part of the Canadian Hinterland.

That the missing airship has crossed the great lakes is merely a matter of conjecture, although from the reports of the other balloons there is no reason to believe that the America has not continued in the air until it was in the midst of the Canadian bush.

If the gas held out, and no accident occurred, the America has landed somewhere in the wilderness north of Kiskissink. The possibility that it is still afloat is considered so slight as to be negligible.

Spurred on by the knowledge that the two Americans are somewhere in the wilderness, poorly clad, short of provisions, without an implement of any kind that would assist them to break their way through a forest land that is almost impenetrable, the Dominion government, the provincial governments of Ontario and Quebec, the employes of the Hudson Bay company and of the Great Northwestern Telegraph company, constabulary and railroad employes have united under the direction of Edmond Stratton of the Aero Club of America in a widespread effort to trace the lost balloon, and to rush to the assistance of the aeronauts an expedition of relief.

The headquarters of the remarkable search for these two men has been established in Ottawa. From this city telegrams have been sent to the farthest accessible points in the great wilderness.

In answer, not the slightest report of the missing America II has been received. As far as can be learned the balloon has been seen by no one since it crossed over Thompsonville, Mich.

But then the America still had almost its full complement of ballast. When the Dusseldorf, the last balloon to land, grounded, the crew had still fifteen bags of ballast. The landing was made only because the country passed over was becoming so wild that the men did not dare to continue.

Captain Hawley's last words before starting in the America were that he would keep going just as long as there was a sack of ballast. From the data obtained on the drift of the other balloons, it is believed that the America is somewhere in the wildest part of the Canadian hinterland, bounded by the St. Lawrence and Saguenay rivers, and the Quebec and Lake St. John railways.

RAILROAD WRECK DUE TO CARELESSNESS

Finding of Officials Who Conducted Investigation

Boston, Oct. 25.—Responsibility for the train wreck which caused the death of one man and injured several other persons near Somersworth, N. H., late Saturday night, was laid solely upon the shoulders of the conductor of the express train, who, under the rules, should have stopped at Somersworth until the other train had passed. His error is declared to be due to carelessness.

The express was bound for Boston from Intervale, N. H., and it crashed into a local bound from Rollinsford to Somersworth, on the single track, while going at only five or six miles an hour. Had the trains been running at good speed a terrible wreck might have resulted.

The investigation was conducted by the Boston and Maine officials at the North Station in this city, a report being filed with General Manager Barr's office by George H. Folger, assistant general superintendent, who had charge of the inquiry.

GIVEN LIFE SENTENCE

Trent Supposed to Be Highway Robber as Well as Murderer

Providence, Oct. 25.—Convicted of murdering William Meagher of Pawtucket, William Trent was sentenced to life imprisonment by Judge Stearns of the superior court.

Trent entered Meagher's grocery store in Pawtucket and, after making a small purchase, demanded, at the point of a pistol, that Meagher give him the money in the cash drawer. After receiving the money Trent shot Meagher and came to this city, where he was arrested.

Trent is also charged with several highway robberies in this state.

DEATH OF "PASTOR OF LOVE"

Didd Not Ask Many Questions When Performing Marriage Ceremonies

Berlin, Oct. 25.—Known throughout Germany as "The Pastor of Love," a striking figure has just passed away in a clergyman named Schroeder, who had acted as curate in Heligoland for twenty-five years.

His nickname is derived from the fact that he married couples "without wishing to know too much," and in course of time—until a law ten years ago made such proceedings illegal—his island parish became a popular resort for couples romantically inclined.

Forest Fire Loss Is $15,000,000

Washington, Oct. 25.—Six billion board feet of lumber valued at about $15,000,000 were destroyed in the recent forest fires upon the national forests in Montana and northern Idaho. The first rough estimate of the fire loss in the great district has just been completed by officials of the government.

HOSPITAL WEEK.

On account of the difficulty of getting the collectors started in the various sections of the city, it has been found necessary to run Hospital Week over into this week. The trustees of the Hospital wish to make this known to the public so that they will be prepared for the coming of the collectors this week, just as they have been in the past week. Many of the homes in the city have not been visited, so the collectors have had their authority extended for one week, and all those who have not been seen during the past week, will be called on this week, and it is hoped that they will have their contributions ready when the collectors call.

Although no official reports have been made of the collections, some of the canvassers have reported unofficially that they have been very successful in their work and feel sure that the total collected this year will compare favorably with that of other years.

NELLIE'S DAILY BREAD.

"Mamma," said little Nellie, one day at breakfast, suddenly, "every morning I pray to God to give me my daily bread, but really it is you that gives it to me—isn't it?"

"Let us think a moment about that, Nellie," replied her mother. "Where do I get the bread I give you?"

"From the baker, mamma."

"And he gets the flour out of which he makes it from the miller, and the miller gets the grain out of which he made the flour from the farmer, and the farmer gets the grain—where does the farmer get the grain, my little girl?"

"Why, out of the ground," said Nellie. "Don't you remember Uncle George was cutting wheat and oats when we were at the farm?"

"Well, now, suppose that Uncle George put grain in the ground, and God sent no sunshine and no dew, and no rain, would Uncle George have any harvest?"

"Why, no," said little Nellie, looking sober.

"Then, you see, it is God, after all, who gives us each day our daily bread; and when we have fruitful seasons and plenty to eat, we ought to be very thankful to our Father in Heaven, who never forgets to give us what we need."

SOUR MILK FOR LONG LIFE.

According to an interview with Prof. Eli Metchnikoff of the Pasteur Institute, which appeared in the Pall Mall magazine, the nearest approach to the elixir of life is sour milk.

Any person desiring to attain a ripe old age is recommended by the professor to follow the example of the Bulgarians, noted for their longevity, and consume large quantities of this cheap and easily obtained beverage.

"Sour milk," states the professor, "contains a large bacillus remarkable for the great quantity of lactic acid it is capable of producing. This microbe does not exist normally in the human body and can be introduced with very great benefit to the health, as it preys on the hundreds of thousands of microbes which infest the large intestines. It has been noted that there is a great similarity between old age and disease. A study of certain diseases has proved that there is no difference between the mechanism of senile atrophy and that of atrophy caused by a microbe or poison; in fact, on the approach of old age a varitable battle is waged in the innermost part of the body.

WANTED—A PIN.

It was Mabel's first appearance at church and she was rather fidgety. First she wanted one thing, then another. Finally she decided that she must have a pin, so she asked for one from her father. He had none. Then she tried her mother; but her mother too had none. Mabel's longing had been increased with her ill success, so she climbed upon the pew and shouted at the top of her small voice,—

"Has anyone in dis trowd dot a pin?"—Lippincott's.

RULE BARRING FLYING TACKLE IS SEASON'S JOKE.

The greatest farce about the new football rules seems to be the rule that prohibits flying tackles. This wholly unnecessary rule has resulted in some of the most puerile tackling and poorest field work ever seen in the big games. Instead of the players hurling themselves at the runners with the precaution to keep one foot on the ground they act as though handicapped with hobble skirts. In games played to date there have been numerous instances where players have run along with the men carrying the ball and, fearing to throw themselves on the runner for fear of committing a foul, have attempted to grasp him, while in an upright position. These players have proved easy marks for runners who displayed any ability to use the "straight arm."

HATS OFF TO CONNIE MACK.

Leader of World's Champions One of Game's Greatest Managers.

All hats off to Connie Mack, the pilot of the Philadelphia Americans, world's champions for 1910. Great credit must be handed to him for the grand showing of his team this season and the walloping his charges gave to the Cubs in the world's series. Mack's methods of handling a ball team are different from those of any other manager in the game. His players must play his game, be in perfect unison with him in all his principles.

Mack's success is due to many reasons. In the first place, he knows every angle of scientific, modern baseball. Then again he is an incomparable judge of young material. He is even tempered, fair in his treatment of the players and a clever student of human nature. He cannot be hoodwinked and is a disciplinarian, yet he seldom is compelled to reprimand a player for his conduct.

"Do your best for me and you'll be rewarded," is Mack's every day admonition. "If you don't make good there are other players ready to jump into your shoes."

In a word, Mack is a strong advocate of harmony and energy, but he is not a believer in rowdy aggressiveness. He insists upon clean baseball all the time.

Mack's name in private life is Cornelius McGillicuddy, but if you should address him during the baseball season that way he would probably stop to think whether he was meant or not. Connie Mack, however, is the name by which he is known wherever the national game is played, and it's a name to conjure with too. Mack was a ball player once—a catcher—and he first began to attract attention along about 1885, when he was the receiver for the Hartford club and handled the curves of a pitcher named Gilmore. Both were six footers, lanky and lean, so that when they were purchased by Walter Hewitt for the old Washington National league club they were quickly called the "giraffe battery." Mack became a first class catcher, and his work was admired all over the big circuit. Later he became the manager of the Pittsburgs, a job he held for several years, but he was hampered in many ways and could not win a pennant.

When Uncle Ben Shibe, who has amassed a fortune from the making of baseballs, was induced by Ban Johnson, president of the American league, to put up the sinews of war in Philadelphia, Mack was turned over to him as the manager of the Athletics.

—The battleship Nebraska has won the competition for the twelvemonth, ending June 30th, for the best condition of machinery among battleships and cruisers. She has a percentage of 109,376, and therefore, will receive the trophy, which is a bronze tablet measuring about three feet by one and a half feet. The last session of Congress appropriated money for encouraging engineers in keeping the machinery of the ships in the best possible condition. It is estimated that already the competition has saved the government one million dollars in coal and oil-fuel bills.—Scientific American.

UP TO CITIZENS TO DECIDE

Should Councilmen Go Along the Happy Easy Lines of Least Resistance?

Should They Spend Money Regardless of Everything?

Editor Quincy Daily Ledger:

The letter from the "Interested Citizen" in your issue of the 24th. reminded me somewhat of the arguments which have been advanced to push measures through, and seems to make some of us feel that what is desired in our city is a few disinterested citizens and councilmen of the same calibre.

Much abuse has been hurled at the President of the Council in relation to the holding up of the appropriations on these "Loan Orders." It will perhaps make the matter clear by stating that there was no "frame up" as has been suggested. It has been the custom on street orders in past years to hold them along until the fall and then push through appropriations and about election time have a small army of men ostensibly employed on the streets and other departments, very often when the conditions did not warrant, and as soon as election was past these men were laid off and had to look elsewhere for their employment.

This has been a crying scandal in our city, and it has been a hard matter to stop, for the reason that there are very few at the present time apparently who are willing to have their constituents tell them they have stood in the way of their improvements, and it is the politician who figures out that as each ward comes in for a share of these loan orders it is a hard position to place a councilman in who has political aspirations, to vote against money orders, and the opposition spares no pains to make his position as unpleasant as possible.

RECEPTION TO GALVIN

Meets the Republicans of Ward Six

Leading Republicans from all parts of the city were present Wednesday evening at the reception tendered to J. Mitchell Galvin, candidate for congress from the Tenth district by the Republican committee of Ward Six. The reception was from 8 to 10 o'clock and was held at the residence of Herbert S. Barker.

Candidate Galvin arrived on the scene early in the evening, and the first hour was spent in a social manner during which all present had an opportunity to be presented to the candidate. William M. Chase, chairman of the City Commitee, presided, and the first speaker was Candidate Louis F. R. Langelier.

Mr. Langelier said that in other years it had not been necessary for him to take the stump during the campaign, but in view of the mistatements that had been made by his opponent it was necessary for him to put himself right. His opponent had

TABLEAUX PRESENTED

Pleasing Entertainment at Park and Downs Church

A pleasing entertainment consisting of tableaux, readings and music was given in the Park and Downs Congregational church Tuesday evening by the members of the Sunday school.

The evening opened with an overture by an orchestra consisting of Myron Stebbins, Ernest Pletsch and Warren Humphrey who also furnished incidental music throughout the evening. Two tableaux from "Little Women" were shown: "Wating for mother," and "Reading the letter" with the following cast: Misses Bessie Hunter, Clara Coombs, Merle Daniels, Dorothy Brown and Mildred Morris.

A humorous recitation entitled "Queen of the tub" was delivered by Miss Flora Sass. As each tableau was reproduced Mrs. James Macdonald read a selection of poetry descriptive of it.

"Calling Grandma," a series of three tableaux showed "Grandma asleep," "The awakening kiss" and "Going to tea." The parts were taken by Miss Freda and Barbara Klingenhagen.

A most comical tableau and one of the hits of the evening was "A picture of bliss" which showed Frederick Torrey as a colored boy devouring with great gusto a piece of watermelon nearly as large as himself.

"The children's hour" made a pretty picture, parts being taken by Artemus Dingwell and Virginia Knowlton, Ruth Coldwell and Evron Anderson. This showed Longfellow and his daughters at the "pause in the day's occupations."

"Little Golden Hair," a series of three tableaux, "Grandpa and Goldenhair," "The day's story" and "Sweet be thy rest" was also attractive and closed the first part of the evening's program Willard Atkins and Lenice Burlingame taking the parts.

Part two of the evening entitled "An artist's reverie" was a series of living pictures showing the artist asleep as various masterpieces are shown Miss Grace Hunter made a buxom "Fraulein" while Myrle Daniels impersonated "Diana" in all celestial glory. The climax came with the closing picture "Goodnight" showing little Lenice Burlingame with candle in hand on her way to bed.

GREAT WORK BY QUINCY HIGH TEAM

They Prevent South Boston High from Scoring and Then Take a Goal Themselves

Looked Like a Tie Game Until the Last Quarter

Working like a machine, fighting for every inch of ground, squirming, wriggling, dashing, Quincy High won the most satisfactory victory of the year at Merrymount Park Tuesday afternoon by defeating South Boston High, 6 to 0. The visiting team was heavy and sure. The forward pass was handled with great dexterity and in every department of the game the players showed their efficiency. But somehow they lacked that indefinable something which the home team possessed, that machine-like accuracy and speed which were necessary to win the victory.

At the opening of the contest, it looked as if it was all South Boston and the coach of that team seemed to be very much elated over the work of "the best team he had put on the field this year." The backs ploughed up the Quincy line, circled the ends for long gains, worked forward passes and trick plays until the hope and pride of Quincy began to look about like 30 phennigs. The first period ended with the ball well into Quincy's territory.

The second quarter saw South Boston still superior. By a succession of forward passes and straight gains the ball was brought to the 8-yard line. Here a drop kick was tried but was unsuccessful, and Chapman got the ball. Hill was given the ball on the first rush and turned one of his old tricks by reeling off 25 yards on an end run. A forward pass failed and South Boston got the ball within striking distance of the goal. Another drop kick was tried but the ball just slid under the bar and Hill receiving it brought it to the 10-yard line. Quincy tried an onside kick without success. Manning on a quarter back run gained 13 yards. Time was called with the ball in the centre of the field.

The advantage seemed to shift with the opening of the third quarter. Arthur ran back the kick off to the 40 yard line. Long gains by Hill and Arthur were followed by a series of splendid line plunges by Harmon and a substantial gain by Manning. The way these men tore up the line was phenomenal, and it was not long before the ball was in the shadow of the goal posts. Here South Boston held for downs and all the good work went for nought except to show the visitors

MASONIC VISITATION

Twenty-Fourth District Well Represented at Wollaston

Such an air of homelike hospitality always prevails in the lodge room of Wollaston Masonic lodge that brothers of other lodges delight to be guests. It was therefore not surprising that there was an unusual large number of visitors present at the special communication Tuesday evening when District Deputy Grand Master Hartley L. White of the 24th Masonic district made his official visitation to the lodge, accompanied by Wor. Joseph P. Prout as district deputy grand marshal, and a large suite of past masters of lodges of the district.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

These big bonuses to the aviators can they be called throwing money to the winds?

"Cholera knocks at the door of Uncle Sam" reads a headline. Yes but cannot get in.

Certainly no President before Mr. Taft has had so much advice on how the country should be run.

Mr. Rockefeller is so optimistic concerning things in general that it is almost certain Standard Oil is about to declare another dividend.

Quincy residents have been waiting with considerable interest the census figures of Quincy, Illinois. At last they are at hand, and it is very evident that the "City of Presidents" will soon become the largest Quincy in the country. The census of 1910 reports these figures:

Quincy, Ill., 36,587, an increase from 36,252 in 1900, or less than one per cent.

Quincy, Mass., 32,642, an increase from 23,899 in 1900, or over 36 per cent.

The early figures of the Illinois city are not at hand, but we have those of 1890, and will make an estimate for 1920. In 1890 the Massachusetts city was about half as large as the Illinois city, but today we are less than 4,000 behind, and before 1920 will be larger. The summary follows:

	Quincy, Mass.	Quincy, Ill.
1890	16,723	31,494
1900	23,899	36,252
1910	32,642	36,587
1920	*44,588	*36,907

* On same percent of gain.

In whatever way the growth of Quincy is compared it makes a good showing. It would not be surprising if we had a population of 50,000 in 1920.

DRIFT OF OPINION

The Crippen case has now passed into judicial history. Once again ,if we may be pardoned the observation, British justice admirably maintains its reputation for effectiveness, impartiality and celerity. All the characteristics that marked the trial just concluded have repeatedly been demonstrated in other capital trials in British courts. If a comparison be instituted between those dignified proceedures and that legitimate celerity which distinguishes British justice and the contrary method in this country, it is no answer to the criticism to talk about "Anglo-phobia" or to impute to the critics a lack of patriotic regard for American institutions. There is no getting away from the fact that deliberate murderers in this country are treated with altogether too much tenderness. There is not that insistence upon prompt trials, free from theatrical display and frivolous exceptions to the course of justice, which prevails on the other side of the Atlantic. What with resort to stays, appeals, and the like, altogether too much latitude is allowed the murderer whose crime has been brought home and legally proved. It is all well enough to plead, as an excuse for the dilly-dallying in bringing accused murderers to trial, that justice will finally be done. There are times when all the factors make for a prompt trial. And promptness at such times, with the community aroused to horror by the enormity of the crimes would surely add that impressiveness to the deterrent quality which celerity in trial and execution are counted upon to effect. As between the right way of dealing with murder which the case of Crippen strikingly exhibits and the wrong way of dealing with murderers of whose guilt there is not the slightest doubt, present conditions in Essex county supply comment so plain that we may be excused from going into details anew.—Salem News.

FAREWELL TESTIMONIAL

Presentations to Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Blanchard

About a hundred people gathered in the Bethany church dining room Tuesday evening at 6.30 for a twofold purpose. The meeting was presumably a supper for the officers and teachers of the Bible school, but the principal cause of the gathering proved to be for another thing. Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Blanchard were the guests of honor and the gathering was a testimonial to the service they have rendered in the church during the eleven years they have been in Quincy.

At the conclusion of the supper, Dr. Hardy was introduced by Superintendent Branch, and after a short speech expressing the appreciation of the church for what Mr. Blanchard had done as superintendent of the senior department of the Sunday school, he presented him a purse of gold, a tool chest and a Bible in the name of the Sunday School workers and scholars of the senior department. The gold expressed the esteem in which Mr. Blanchard was held, the tool chest was symbolical of the work he has done, and the Bible signified the place and the manner in which the work has been accomplished.

Several other gifts were made both to Mr. Blanchard and to his wife who has rendered great service to the church through the medium of various organizations. Among these gifts was a handsome bunch of huge pink chrysanthemums presented by one of the teachers.

During the course of the evening Mrs. Moore and Mr. A. L. Hayden sang solos and the choir rendered a selection. All of these were very appropriate to the occasion and added much to the pleasure of the meeting. Madame Ellen Beale Morey was the accompanist.

Before the meeting adjourned to the vestry for the second part of the program all were given a chance to pay their respects to Mr. and Mrs. Blanchard and to wish them success in their new field of labor where they will go shortly.

After the people were seated in the vestry, Mr. Branch, the superintendent of the Sunday School, conducted a class consisting of all those present in a model lesson. After the teaching was over, the method was criticized and a very profitable discussion ensued. The meeting served as sort of a teachers normal class and brought out many ideas which will be of value to those conducting classes in the Sunday School.

The evening was one which will not soon be forgotten by those who were present both on account of the profit gained and of the memories connected with those who are departing after a decade of service in the church.

UP TO CITIZENS TO DECIDE

I would suggest in this connection the situation in Ward Four, where pressure has been brought to force a man to smother his sense of the fitness of things. There is no argument advanced that past methods have been right. Simply, we want the money, regardless of the affect on the city or taxpayers.

And now a word to the people on the accepted streets. One half of the $19,000 order must be borne by the abutters. Now, with frost in the ground, and the political methods that have been employed in the past, and we have no absolute assurance that what has been will not be again, (as it is claimed that history repeats itself,) is it not fair to these people that the work be done under more favorable conditions than under political stress and unfavorable climatic conditions. I think that the abutters on these streets who are not blinded by political zeal must see that the contention is reasonable, and what applies to them will also apply to the already heavily burdened taxpayer.

The general street orders. There was no argument used that streets should not be attended to and there are none of the opposition to these loan orders, to my knowledge, who will refuse to vote to appropriate the money at the proper time. The contention is that they take precedence when the conditions financially and physically are right.

The letter writer who placed the nom de plume at the end of his letter claimed that the five councilmen were actuated by political reasons. It appears to me another case of the wolf in sheeps clothing crying "Wolf." I can assure the writer, and his source of inspiration, that political affect has no bearing in the matter, and that the minority sometimes represents the interests of the people, and I am inclined to think that this is one of those times. For information I will say that I suggested the proceedure to the opposition on the evening of the meeting of the City Council, solely in the interest of the citizen and taxpayer whom we represent

And would further suggest to the "Interested Citizen" that it would be well to call attention to the methods used to try and have the loan orders passed. Having an order pushed through to vacate a seat in the Council to nulify, if posible apparently, the action of the minority. The whole story should, in fairness, be told, if any, in justice to all concerned.

In conclusion it is up to the citizens to decide if they desire their representatives to go and try to reduce the apparent evils, or to go along the happy, easy lines of least resistance, spending their money regardless of everything but to be a good fellow. Do the people want this?

How much longer can the city stand it?

John R. Richards.

GORMAN—KEARNS.

A very pretty wedding took place at St. John's parochial residence at half past two o'clock Tuesday afternoon when Miss J. Loretta Kearns of Quincy and Mr. Michael Gorman of North Abington were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John Coan pastor of St. John's church. The groom was attended by Mr. Dennis Gorman and the bride by Miss Mary McCarthy as bridesmaid.

After the wedding a reception was held at the bride's home, the bride and groom being assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Gorman, Miss Mary McCarthy and Miss Gorman. The bride was charming in a exquisite gown of golden brown messaline and carried a large bouquet of bride roses, The bridesmaid wore a gown of pale blue china foulard and carried lilies of the valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Gorman started on a wedding tour immediately after the reception. They will tour New York and Washington after which they will return to their pretty new home on Franklin street, Holbrook where they will receive their friends Wednesdays in December.

NORTHWARD TO THEIR DEATH

Possible Fate of Balloonists Hawley and Post

NO CLUE TO WHEREABOUTS

May Have Perished In Vast Wilderness or Perhaps Landed In Woods Traversed by Scores of Men Who Would Readily Give Aid—Getting Back to Civilization Difficult and Dangerous Under Any Circumstances

Ottawa, Oct. 26.—The black fastness of the north still holds the secret of the lost balloonists, Alan R. Hawley and Augustus Post of New York, and their sky ship, the America II, which left St. Louis eight days ago with other competitors in the international distance contest.

Various rumors have reached the bureau established here by Edmond P. Stratton, representing the Aero Club of America, but when sifted down they produced nothing that would indicate with any degree of definiteness the whereabouts of the aeronauts.

Opinion here is divided as to the possibility of rescuing the men even if they passed safely over Lake Huron and Georgian bay into the vast wilderness of northern Ontario and Quebec or the Ungava district, still further north.

Professor Bock, director of the geological survey, who knows the rugged and unpeopled country like a book, is outspoken in his opinion that the aeronauts will surely perish if they sailed into the far northern sections. There are parts of it, he said, where Indians and half-breed hunters have gone and starved to death.

Other officials, including Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who is taking a keen interest in the search for the lost men, believe they will come out all right, especially if they landed south of the new line of the Trans-Continental railway.

Except for a gap of 114 miles, near the border line between Quebec and New Ontario, and another of the same size directly north of Lake Superior, the entire line is in some stage of construction. South of it the woods are traversed by scores of hunters, bushwhackers, prospectors, fire wardens and Indians, any of whom would readily aid the aeronauts.

South of this line there is a chance for rescue. North of it is regarded as death. Despite the feeling among some officials that the quest will be hopeless, there is no hesitancy on the part of any of them to act upon any suggestion or to lend aid in any direction that might lead to the right trail.

The lack of means of communication with government agents in the unsettled regions of Quebec is making it extremely difficult to follow the original plan of plotting out the courses of the Isle de France, Hamburg III, Azurea, Helvetia, Germania and Dusseldorf II, from the miscellaneous reports. As a substitute it has been decided to work from a map showing the courses as remembered by the balloonists themselves.

Among the lumber camps, Indian villages and sportsmen shacks in the Canadian hinterland they may have found shelter. Getting back to civilization is a difficult and dangerous undertaking, despite the united efforts of the Canadian and provincial governments, the great lumber companies, whose timber cruisers have been enlisted in the search, and all the other endeavors of the Canadian people, who could scarcely be more concerned were the aeronauts Canadian born.

BACON AT RECORD PRICES

Forty Cents a Pound For Prime Sides and Twenty-Three For Backs

Omaha, Oct. 26.—A record price was reached on bacon here when prime sides sold at 40 cents and "backs," the cheapest, at 23 cents a pound. This is an advance of 10 cents a pound in the last week.

Dealers say that packers are raising prices. Packers, on the other hand, say the price is purely a supply and demand proposition, and that the scarcity of hogs is the direct reason for the boost in price. The packers add that the stock raisers and farmers are holding back their hogs, and that once they start to market prices will slump.

Gift of $75,000 to Amherst

New York, Oct. 26.—Appropriations amounting to $725,000 were apportioned to six colleges and universities at a meeting of the general education board here, conditional on the institutions raising certain amounts to secure the gifts. Amherst college gets $75,000.

Draper Estate Is $6,358,486

Boston, Oct. 26.—The inventory of the estate of the late General William F. Draper, the first American ambassador to Rome, was filed with the tax commissioner for the purpose of determining the inheritance tax, and shows a total of $6,358,486.

Coal Loss of Half a Million

Superior, Wis., Oct. 26.—Half a million dollars' worth of coal, 250,000 tons, was destroyed by fire on the M. A. Hanna wharf here.

They were received with due honors and escorted to the lodge room by a committee composed of Wor. Albert W. Fay and Brothers C. F. West, C. G. Farwell, E. R. Johnson and C. D. White.

The work of the evening was the E. A. degree which was exemplified in a beautiful manner by the officers of Wollaston lodge. During the work music was furnished by the Wollaston lodge quartet composed of E. E. Bullock, E. F. Webber, Herbert Y. Follett and G. E. McGowan.

In his address to the lodge Rt. Wor. Hartley L. White complimented the officers on the excellence of the work. He also spoke of that subject so near the hearts of the Grand Master, the Masonic Home. Up to the present time, he said, $160,000 had been contributed by brothers toward the home and $4,600 toward the furnishings. The 24th district had contributed over $87,000 of this amount. This district was also the first to reach the amount of $5 per member. Of Wollaston lodge he said that it was first in percent of members who have contributed to the fund. He also dwelt on the great number of secret orders whose members were banded together in a spirit of brotherly love whose influence if exerted would do away with the need of expending $12,000,000 for a battleship and $8,000,000 to maintain it during its life.

At the close of the communication refreshments were served. The brothers then gathered in the lodge room and with Bro. Follett at the organ joined in singing songs old and new during the social hour that followed. Several selections were also rendered by the quartet.

STATE HOUSE REDEDICATION

New Hampshire Has Spent $400,000 In Making Repais

Concord, N. H., Oct. 26.—The remodelled state house with its recent $400,000 addition was rededicated here. Governor Quinby with his councillors held a housewarming in their new quarters, and brief addresses in the enlarged hall of representatives were made.

The completion of the new building closes for some time the long-standing contest between this city and Manchester for the honor of being the capital city of the state.

The new building is built entirely of Concord granite, the exterior conforming to the general lines of the original state house. The chief changes in the older structure include a third story in place of the old Mansard roof, and enlargement of the Doric rotunda by the removal of stairways.

"WHAT SHALL I WEAR?"

Mrs. Burdette Says It Is Woman's Greatest Problem Today

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 26.—Mrs. Robert J. Burdette, wife of the humorist, addressing the Young Women's Christian association here, said:

"The greatest problem confronting the women of today is, 'What shall I wear?' It cannot be solved by spending more money on false hair than on wholesome food, by investing a larger sum in matinee tickets than in hosiery, or by paying more for chocolate creams than for underwear.

"The question can be solved by every woman, but wearing three to seven ostrich plumes in a picture hat and a hobble skirt over shabby shoes are not ways to solve it:"

QUINCY YOUNG WOMEN'S CLUB.

The second regular meeting of the Young Women's club was held Saturday evening at the clubhouse. The meeting was presided over by Miss Minnie Packard, president of the club. The secretary's report was read and accepted. Owing to the resignation of Miss Bertha Trepanier, first vice president, Miss Marie Bass was elected to fill the vacancy.

It was decided that the classes in basketry, dancing and dramatics be held the first and third Saturday of the month. The first lesson to come on Nov. 5th. It was also decided that the Glee club would meet the second and fourth Mondays in the month, the first meeting to come Nov. 7th. Miss Hannah Litchfield was elected to furnish music for the dancing and a committee of two was chosen to take flowers to Miss Ethel Randall, recording secretary of the club.

After the business of the meeting was disposed of, an address on "Some Phases of Art" was given by Miss Georgiana Lane. Dancing was then enjoyed.

On the first and third Saturdays of each month, the Quincy Young Women's club offers to its members classes in basketry, dramatics and aesthetic dancing. The regular meetings of the club are held the second and fourth Saturdays. The Glee club meets the second and fourth Monday usually, or the Monday preceding the Tuesday of the regular meetings of the club.

The program of November meetings is as follows:

Nov. 5—Classes for basketry, dramatics, and dancing.

Nov. 7—Glee club.

Nov. 12—Speaker—Miss Edith Randall. Subject—"A Vacation in Switzerland."

Nov. 19—Classes for basketry, dramatics and dancing.

Nov. 21—Glee club.

Nov. 26—Thanksgiving social evening.

QUINCY ALLIANCE.

There was a large attendance of members and friends on Monday afternoon at the meeting of First Church Alliance to meet Rev. Benjamin Bulkeley of Lynn the speaker of the afternoon.

The regular business and devotional exercises opened the meeting. Numerous appeals were received and responded to. Members were asked to contribute clothing, reading matter, etc., for barrels to be sent to colored schools in the south as follows, to Miss Dora A. French, Adams street, for Snow Hill and to Mrs. George G. Saville of Saville avenue for Calhoun.

For the musical part of the afternoon Alliance members had the pleasure of listening to two songs by Miss E. A. Perkins, supervisor of music in the public schools. She sang "Jesus Shepherd of the Sheep" accompanied by Miss Underwood at the piano and accompanied herself in a cradle song.

Rev. Mr. Bulkeley spoke on the "Lessons from the short poems of Emerson" and gave a very interesting resume showing a personal appreciation of Emerson the man and the poet.

Mrs. J. Henry Emery and Miss Flora Underwood were the hospitality committee and served hot cocoa and cake.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

Tuesday afternoon's meeting of the Quincy Women's club was held at First Church chapel and was largely attended. Mrs. H. J. Gurney presided calling for the usual reports.

Mrs. Tenney for the Arts and Crafts committee announced classes as follows:

One full class in jewelry began lessons Monday. The two whose names are on the waiting list for jewelry are asked to possess their souls in patience. It may be more will soon be entered. Thursday morning a class in dress making will be held at club house. There will be classes morning and afternoon in china painting. Thursday afternoon one class in basketry will begin and on Friday afternoon a second. Two more could be admitted to the basketry classes. Friday morning there will be a second class in dressmaking and a third in china painting. Next week the class in tooled leather will open. We have had applications enough to insure a good class but two more could be easily accommodated. There are but three lessons in this course. Not enough have signified for Irish crochet and embroidery to warrant calling the teacher. Miss Rogers is a teacher of wide experience and much liked.

The speaker for our next meeting is a stranger to many of you. He has an enviable reputation as an artist with the chalk. While he will use the blackboard freely in illustrating the talk of afternoon he will, by request, desist long enough to give you a short exhibition of really artistic chalk sketching. While we shall take care that the large blackboard is placed to best advantage but it stands to reason that those in large room will have most favorable opportunity for watching Mr. Whitney work. We can assure you he is well worth watching and we wish you might all have the best seats.

Mrs. Tirrell announced that she had copies of the year books and by-laws if any member desired extra copies.

Mrs. Wade for the Home Economics committee extended an invitation to club members to attend a meeting in Eliot hall, Jamaica Plain at 2 P. M. on Nov. 2 as guests of the Tuesday club. Questions to be discussed were Massachusetts pure food laws, milk inspection, market inspection, etc. Mrs. Wade said her committee hoped to form classes to discuss home problems; housekeeping versus homemaking. Those desiring to join class were asked to give their names to Miss Mary L. Hinkley of Atlantic, 20 names being necessary for a class. There would be five lessons with different leaders, the meetings to be informal and there would be a question box. There would be five afternoons in the nature of a round table with the following subjects: The best and cheapest fuels—gas or coal, charcoal, etc.; How to keep the grocery bill within bounds; Purity of milk supply and other foods; Different kinds of cooking utensils; Arrangement of kitchen to simplify work. The date for Mrs. Tyler's lecture on Food sanitation will be announced later.

Announcement was made by the president of the meeting of the State Federation on Nov. 8 at Cambridge, the Cantabrigia club being the hostess club. The meeting would be held in the First Baptist church and cars from Park Street station pass the church. Unfortunately the meeting came on the regular meeting day of the club so Mrs. Gurney asked for volunteers to go instead of appointing delegates as usual.

Mrs. Gurney paid tribute to that grand old woman Julia Ward Howe whose passing away is mourned by men and women our country over.

The afternoon's entertainment had been arranged by the Program Committee and Mrs. Park, chairman introduced Mr. Nat M. Brigham who in words, pictures, and songs told of the conquering of the great south west "From Coronado to Kit Carson." He spoke first of the Spaniards how they ruled over much of the new country long before the English or French came—how they reached out and grew. Their explorations into the wild country was for riches and the disastrous trip of Coronado was pictured. Indian life, and the work of the priests among them was praised. Interest centered more in our own day the time of Kit Carson the pioneer in the west. Of Kentucky, by birthright he had courage and was unequalled as a pathfinder, settler, pioneer, guide and soldier. One time as a scout he rode 4,000 miles with messages to Washington where he was made much of but hurried back to the plains. As an Indian agent so humane was he in his dealings thye called him father.

The lecture was illustrated by the stereopticon and many beautiful pictures were shown of that vast southwestern territory which is fast becoming settled and civilized—the bad lands yielding to irrigation and cultivation. Where Kit Carson encountered wildness of land, and animals and endured hardships now were large cities and towns.

Mr. Brigham sang a few songs in closing, Mrs. Chandler W. Smith accompanying at the piano. He gave an Indian lullaby, Indian call and a Spanish serenade which called forth appreciative applause.

As a last word Mr. Brigham said of the Indian, help hi to do better what he does now well, rather than try to teach him the impossible.

Mr. Brigham's final picture was a map of the English speaking countries showing the rapid change of the centuries. Here in America where Spanish people once lived, now they were illimitated and everywhere were Americans.

The Woman's Exchange and the Arts and Crafts committees had sales tables of home cookery and gifts suitable for Christmas and met with generous patronage.

The next meeting on Nov. 8 will be at the clubhouse and will be under the auspices of the Arts and Crafts committee. Mr. Frederick Whitney will give interpretations of Indian symbols in weaving with blackboard illustrations, and there will be a social tea.

HOUGHS NECK BUDGET

Small Attendance at Meeting on School Dedication

(Special Correspondence)

The rain Tuesday evening somewhat dampened Houghs Neck ardor, and as a result the mass meeting for suggestions on the dedication of the school was not largely attended. Those assembled waited until 9 o'clock before opening the meeting, and then elected James E. Wall, as temporary chairman with Charles E. Decker as temporary clerk.

In his opening remarks, Mr. Wall likened Houghs Neck enthusiasm to a snow ball the more rolled the more material added.

President Maloney of the Associates felt somewhat discouraged at the lack of attendance. He said the children had shown the spirit of the occasion in donating the immense flag, which was on exhibition, the parents should show the same spirit by donating their attendance. A little rain should not keep one away at such an important time. Mr. Maloney thought house-to-house canvass an easy means of defraying expense.

Capt. Fosdick suggested another postponement of the meeting owing to the poor weather.

Mr. Reegan suggested appointing a committee to secure figures on brass bands, etc., and added the old and original committee, together with the Ladies Auxiliary committee, and the teachers who will be employed in the school.

Mr. Wall hoped the same spirit shown in the original school meeting when the lot was secured would prevail.

At this time a letter was read from Mrs. F. Leonard, chairman of the flag committee, showing a total collection of $34.68 of which $24.75 purchased the magnificent flag, leaving a balance of $9.93 to turn over to the committee.

The following motions were carried: That the original committee, comprising Capt. Oliver G. Fosdick, Daniel Maloney, Ross Woodbury, James E. Wall and William Taylor, with Mr. Reegan, be retained, and that the Ladies Auxiliary of the Associates comprising eighteen members of their standing committee, merge into one dedication committee; that another mass meeting be called by Mr. Wall, at which time permanent officers and sub committees be elected and appointed, that work may begin at once.

The meeting adjourned at 10.30. The attendance was about 25.

Chas. E. Decker.

During the reception there was music by Cuff's orchestra and ices and cake were served. Guests were present from Braintree, Weymouth, Brockton and Wollaston. Mrs. Voy was Miss Florence M. Arnold daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Webster Arnold of 374 Middle street, Braintree, and many of her Braintree friends were present.

WARD SIX IS LEADING WARD ONE

Atlantic Ward Passes Quincy Ward in Number of School Children

Wards Three and Four the Banner Districts

The greatest surprise of the new school census just finished by Charles H. Johnson is the fact that Ward Six has more children between the ages of 5 and 15 than Ward One, the Centre ward which includes Houghs Neck. A year ago Ward Six was 77 behind, but today with 1,169 children is 3 ahead.

Ward Four, long the banner ward, made a gain of only 19.

Ward Three, the South Quincy ward, not only has the largest number of children but made the largest gain.

The Quincy Point ward lost 20, and is now only 99 ahead of the Wollaston ward, which today has the smallest number of school children

Here are the figures for two years:

	1910.	1909.	Gain.
Ward One	1166	1110	56
Ward Two	1076	1096	*20
Ward Three	1939	1784	155
Ward Four	1627	1608	19
Ward Five	977	908	69
Ward Six	1169	1033	136

THE AGES

For some reason the five-year-olds do not show up as well in the summary of ages as the older children as there are only 548, while the average for the ten years is 795. Can it be that Quincy is dropping off in children in recent years? The annual census of births does not indicate it. The age limit to enter school has been raised to six years, but the six-year-old total does not appear to be padded.

Quincy has more children 14 years old than any other age; possibly a few of these are older. Eight years of age comes second.

Wards One, Two and Four have more at 14 than any other age. Ward Three has the most at 7 years of age, and Ward Five the most at 8 years, while in Ward Six the 8 and 13 year olds are a tie, as will be seen by this summary:

AGES	WARDS
	1	2	3	4	5	6
5 years	72	53	189	109	48	77
6 years	126	115	206	163	98	101
7 years	105	103	231	178	95	105
8 years	105	103	225	161	117	139
9 years	128	117	214	181	90	117
10 years	123	119	222	163	101	125
11 years	126	109	178	147	105	122
12 years	124	111	155	161	95	108
13 years	126	119	154	156	115	139
14 years	131	127	165	208	113	136
Totals	1166	1076	1939	1627	977	1169

If the High, Woodward, Thayer and other pupils over 14 years of age were added, the total number of Quincy school children would be over 10,000 over 30 per cent of the population.

WATER METER QUESTION

A Correspondent Endorses Ex-Councilman Abele

Editor Quincy Ledger:

I was much interested in the article on "Water Meters," by ex-Councilman Abele in your issue of Monday. It seemed to me a very clear and concise statement of fact.

But I could not catch the idea you endeavored to convey in your note at close of said article. Both from the water takers and taxpayer's point of view the present system is decidedly inequitable.

At my water rate of $23 per year I am using no more water than my neighbor, who pays $16 per year. The difference lies in the fact that his service is metered and mine is not.

From a taxpayer's standpoint I also lose. I pay increased taxes for the metering of services and get no benefit. I not only pay more for my service than my neighbor does, but I am helping to pay for his.

All this talk about needless expense on the Metropolitan district is hot air. Let the city comply with the law, and do it quick. All the services should be metered, and one user of water should not be obliged to pay one third more for an equal amount of water. Let all be taxed equally for same service.

Chas. P. Copeland.
50 Phillips Street
Wollaston, Oct. 25, 1910.

NOTE—Is not the grievance of Mr. Copeland against the water rate established by the city? If the city reduced its water rate for a fully plumbed house (including hose) to $16 would he not be satisfied? If meters are introduced generally into the houses, the city receipts will be decreased materially. Why not reduce them without going into debt to the extent of $100,000, which requires the annual payment of $4,000 for interest and $4,000 to $5,000 annually for maturing water debt. If the city receipts are decreased $10,000 the tax rate will go up over 20 cents per $1,000, so that a man with a $10,000 estate will pay $3 more annually in taxes to make up the deficit. Where meters are installed, a man must pay the $16 minimum though he has but one faucet and uses but $6 worth of water. Where is the justice in meters?

Suppose Mr. Copeland put himself in the City of Quincy's place. He had a business which netted him $2,000 per year. Would he consider it good business to go into debt $100,000 when it would result in a decrease annually of $10,000 in his receipts?—EDS.

Stabbing May Prove Fatal

Salem, Mass., Oct. 25.—Howard Connors, stabbed by James Mikeles, is in a dangerous condition. Connors and Mikeles quarrelled at the factory of the Victor Shoe company. Mikeles stabbed Connors twice in the abdomen. Mikeles escaped.

made the statement that he had voted against the so-called 8-hour and 54 hour labor bills. As a matter of fact that could be proven by the records of the house, he had voted for both of these bills. As for the Chinese bill, which had also been mentioned, the bill in question only referred to Boston, and it was an insult to the young ladies of Quincy to bring them into it.

Other speakers were George L. Barnes, candidate for Senator, Candidate William R. Thomas and Candidate Galvin. A letter of regret, at inability to be present, was read from J. Stearns Cushing, candidate for Councillor. Refreshments were served during the evening.

Friends in Wollaston are receiving souvenirs from Rev. Carl G. Horst, pastor of the Wollaston Unitarian church, who is travelling abroad. Mr. Horst is returning early in November.

The first vesper service of the season will be held Sunday in the Wollaston Congregational church at which the music will be featured. The organ will be in charge of Ernest Mehaffey, a former Wollaston youth, and the soloist Oscar Hunting of the Mount Vernon church.

STRIKE AT UNIVERSITY

Students Demand Reinstatement of Their Suspended Mates

Boulder, Col., Oct. 26.—Because seventeen students were suspended by the faculty of the state university for hazing, the whole student body, numbering more than 500, went on a strike and the class rooms are deserted and student guards are posted at all entrances to the campus.

The suspension of the students which brought on the strike resulted from the initiation of freshmen into a dormitory organization known as the "Dorm Rats." It has been the custom of the Rats to hold their initiation during the first snowstorm of the season, when the candidates are compelled to do a Marathon around the dormitory naked.

Lightning Sets Church Afire

Saco, Me., Oct. 26.—A terrific electrical storm swept over Saco last night, lightning striking the steeple of the School street Methodist Episcopal church and setting fire to it and also sending a bolt into the home of Fred C. Bradbury, which shocked a maid in the kitchen and knocked down two people passing the house.

IN FASHION'S REALM

Skirts are Narrow but if Well Cut are Graceful

Sleeves are Fancy and of Various Lengths

The whole question in American clothes seems to concern the narrow skirt. While it is true that the so-called hobble was brought out last June and the held-in skirt was a feature of the Summer, the idea of narrowness seems to have struck the mass of people as a new thing. It is probably because the mass of women has begun to wear this special kind of skirt.

There is much to be said for it; and I, who like it, must admit that there are several things to say against it. To begin with ,the hobble skirt in its real condition, which means a tightening of a full skirt into a band around the ankle, is hideous. It has gone out everywhere, and the gowns that are now exploited are merely the left-overs from the Summer of the prophecies of those who should know better.

In writing of the narrow skirt of 1910 one means something entirely different; this is made on narrow lines in order to give the scanty Directoire look. It is this shape that the designers mean when they discuss narrow skirts.

Its advantages are that it gives symmetry to the figure. It does not fly, but hangs in a straight line, no matter what the weather, because it is weighted down by leads. Its shortness shows a well-shod foot and when it is made of moderate width it is as easy to walk in as a wide one and much more graceful.

It is only when one tries to cut it in an extreme manner that it loses its grace and instantly becomes a thing of ugliness. One might also say that the women who wear it without due attention to their stockings and shoes make a grave mistake. It makes the feet conspicuous and they should be smartly covered.

In these days of excellent shoes there is no excuse for a woman not having good ones. In this connection it might not be amiss to say that the smart shoes for the Winter will be patent leather and kid, with colored uppers to match the gown or of oyster gray, with small worked pearl buttons.

This boot made it appearance at Trouville in July and was worn there by the smart American and French women, who adopted without comment the moderately narrow skirt made of striped black and gray serge and velveteen. As the Autumn began the gray top on the shoe changed often to a top that was made from the cloth of the gown. If the latter was striped then the upper of the shoe matched the foundation color of the gown.

There is nothing new about this. It was done before, and it will be done again; but the point of particular interest is that it is done now. These gray uppers have their rival during the early Autumn, when slate-gray stockings are worn with black patent leather pumps. The latter have slightly lower heels than were worn last year as the exaggerated Spanish heel has gone out of fashion.

It was all very well as a novelty, but when a great number of girls and women began wearing it on suede and velvet slippers in the street it became too conspicuous for women who had good taste.

The pump of this Winter has a slightly rounded toe and a flat ribbon bow. It almost exactly resembles the pump that a man wears in the evening. Women have taken up so many fashions from men in the last few years that this one is merely one of a long list. We have the coat and skirt without trimming, the mannish revers and cuffless sleeves, the trouser-like skirt, the Alpine hat, the plaited shirt, the turnover collar, the silk cravat, link cuff buttons and leather belts.

To these things we have added colored stockings and evening pumps. The fashion is a pretty one and it should continue. These are good-looking footwear for six months of the year when the weather is not cold and sloppy. But it is surely unhealthy as well as unfit to wear them when there is snow and ice on the ground. A woman looks uncomfortable whether or not she is so.

Among the fashions that were projected in September the one that has the most chance of remaining until Spring is the short coat. It is accepted without comment and is universally worn. In many cases it is unbecoming as the narrow skirt that is ridiculed from ocean to ocean. Nothing can make certain figures look worse than a coat that is cut off at the wrong line; and yet the stout and thin have accepted it as fashionable, regardless of their figures.

So far has this fashion gone that already the long coat looks as hopelessly out of it as the pleated skirt. If it is cut spoon shaped in the back it is all the worse. The woman of average means is disturbed over the question of altering the one she has, for alteration dwells as a possible economy in the minds of every one.

This is true: It is easier to alter a long coat into a short one than it is to cut any kind of a skirt we have had into one we should have. When one faces this proposition it looks as though most of our last Winter's suits would have to be discarded.

The plain skirt of last season that did not have a band as a continuation of its gores or plaits inlet at the seams can be easily managed. It wants to be narrow around the hem, no matter what your prejudices are. While this fact is comforting, yet what about the coat?

If it is long in a simple, straight up and down way it is quite easy to cut it off in a straight line somewhere near the hips. This must be governed by the figure. If you are in an alteration mood let me say that the coat should have not a ripple of fullness in it; that its seams should be straight up and down under the arms, that it should be double breasted and that the sleeves should be put in without a suggestion of a plait or gathers.

One of the new tricks is to trim the armhole with a thick satin cord, and this is often repeated on the skirt. It may be run around the hips or put up the sides or used six inches above the edge of the hem. This idea of satin cord has gained quite a hold on the tailors and dressmakers and we are beginning to see a good deal of it.

It is easier in some ways than braiding, and yet the latter has come into its own again this winter. Nearly all the coats show some of it, unless they are of the rough material intended to wear for the morning hours and for all outdoor sports. It is used when needed, in scrolls and military bands, to form the fashionable flower, the edelweiss, or to outline a huge chrysanthemum.

One of the minor details that counts so much in dress is that the coat has a breast pocket on the left side, out of which half falls a colored silk handkerchief. This usually matches the hat. It is very small, has a hemstitched hem and is in a solid color. Sometimes a monogram is worked in a contrasting color.

There are also two pockets on the hips if the coat is a mannish one. If it is one of those new little directoire or military affairs, there are no pockets. Sometimes the tailor simulates these with elaborate pieces of braid.

The return to the empire is more shown in the coats than in anything else. The backs of these are consistently shortwaisted. They are normal in front, but tilt a bit below the shoulder blades. This appearance is arranged by trimmings more than by any cut or management of seams. There is no indication of this at the under-arm seams, which must be as straight as one knows how to make them.

A fashionable way to arrange the back of a coat in this empire effect is to make small revers of satin down the middle of the back, starting about two inches above the waist line and ending at the hem. These are about four inches apart and are filled in with lines of braiding. This especial arrangement is seen on a number of the best short coats that have been made in the last few weeks.

The heavy satin cord plays an important part in giving the short-waist effect. It is used straight across the back, a little above the normal waist, and is turned at its ends into scrolls or a figure eight. This is not difficult to do and gives sufficient indication that one knows that a coat must be trimmed in this way.

You can easily see that with this kind of trimming and the new sailor collar, which is quite a feature of the winter's coats, we are to have a season of jackets that are ornamental in the back. This collar is an interesting addition to the new coat suits. It came about so unexpectedly. It began in linen, usually embroidered, on linen coats and voile and marquisette gowns worn in the summer.

There was nothing very unusual about this fashion, but one was surprised to see its appearance in velvet and in fur, but especially in satin, on every manner of coat that was brought out this autumn in Paris.. It was on the serges and cheviots for every-day wear. In satin, on marine blue serge, it was a happy touch.

The revival of serge into a leading fashion necessitated some new treatment of it, otherwise a coat and skirt of it would look lamentably like all its predecessors which have marched on for a century.

The sailor collar, made of black satin and edged with a thick cord, solves the problem. One sees it now everywhere. It is wide and long, reaching almost to the short-waisted line of trimming which goes across the back, and in front it is less wide and cut straight across the bust or into points. The latter is the more popular way of finishing it because it allows the addition of a cravat, which is all the fashion these days.

Mind you, the front of these sailor collars is not long. The ends are finished off about two and a half inches below the collar bone. It is not the fashion for these short coats to have a low opening at the neck. They follow the style of the one-piece gown, which is arranged to show very little of the neck or the chemisette.

Surely there never was a time when one could wear sleeves in as many lengths and be correct as now. If one will not break the rule for narrow sleeves one is in fashion. The length makes little difference, because every length is worn. Coats carry long sleeves. We will not have the square three-quarter ones this season at least. The new ones reach well down over the hand and differ decidedly from those of last year by fastening snugly to the wrist.

Sleeves in blouses are three-quarter length. One rarely sees a long sleeve, even in a lingerie blouse. The negligee waist of china silk or pongee, which has a plaited body, has long sleeves with small cuffs snugly fastened with cuff buttons. The ornamental blouse of chiffon cloth or marquisette has the sleeve that turns the elbow and always a double sleeve in appearance if not in actuality.

The same is true of an afternoon gown or one for dinner, the theatre or a restaurant. Usually these are made with a small peasant sleeve embroidered or beaded, hanging over an elbow sleeve of white chiffon, edged with lace or something ornamental. Just what it is depends upon the brilliancy of the gown.

In all sleeves there is a combination of colors and usually an introduction of some kind of effective trimming. It may be a bit of gold lace, in its most tarnished state, which is dotted here and there with colored crystal beads; it may be triangles of colored velvet in the Muscovite fashion; or it may be a scroll of soutache in a vivid color.

Whatever is done, it must be colorful and arranged as a high light. It must draw attention to itself, or its mission is not fulfilled. The fashion for all manner of peasant and Russian coloring and trimmings gives one a great chance to make brilliant sleeves. This is copied directly from the peasant costume, as in their sleeves lie much of the glory.

The sleeves for opera and ball gowns are usually of metal lace or gauze on which is sewn pearls, either white, pink, black or gray. This fabric is in first favor for all manner of evening sleeves and it solves the problem of what to use. Often there is nothing under it. It is merely a square piece slightly falling away from the arm and dropping half way to the elbow.

One other fashion that has been with us for some time and which shows no sign of diminishing is the blouse without a collar. It is such a comfortable fashion that women earnestly hope it will remain in favor. Those who cannot wear it are in the minority, and many can wear it attractively if they would only try. It is a fashion of older days and was repeated through successive generations; it is difficult to understand why any one brings into fashion that extra high boned collar. All women grant it to be a discomfort and that it marks and stains the neck.

The square Dutch neck is not in fashion. The more trying round one is. It is finished with a flat lace collar or a plaited one. The former is usually more becoming, especially to women who have good, round necks. On black satin frocks—which are all the fashion—made in peasant style ,the narrow round collar is of the finest linon or mull with a hemstitched edge.

On dark blue serge and black camel's hair frocks, which are the rivals of satin and will be more fashionable when the cold weather comes on, the collar is of Irish lace, ending in front with a black bow.

If one wishes the wide black sailor collar, not quite so wide as is worn on coats, it is put around the collarless neck with a small turnover of Irish lace as a finish.—Anne Rittenhouse in New York Times.

THE CORSET QUESTION.

The crusade against the corset, waged with such ardor by some of the faddists, is one of those blindly unreasonable movements that is foredoomed to fail of its mark. Why? Because there is a factor in the situation with which the enthusiasts fail to reckon. So long as a well-fitting gown remains the standard of fashion women will not give up the corset, because they cannot. Any attempt to do away with it, must be started the other way about to be successful. Revolutionize the style of dress, somehow, so that a gown will no longer have to be fitted to the figure and women will not want the corset. Until then it is idle to talk of banishing it.

For a quarter of a century there have been those who have inveighed vehemently against the garment. Yet the corset industry flourishes as the green bay tree. All over the country the landscape is placarded with views of the female form divine, illustrating the desirable points of "So-and-So" and "So-and-So's" corsets The advertising of the magazines are filled with literature about corsets that must be of interest to lady readers, or it wouldn't pay to print it. In all of the big stores there is a special large department devoted to corsets, which wouldn't be there unless somebody bought them.

So the corset is with us still in spite of the alarmists' warnings. Not discriminating at all between its use and its abuse, they have threatened the most dire results to women who wore it at all. A few there were who listened and feared and believed. And the corset manufacturers got ready for them with the so-called "health waists." There is a great deal in a name, after all, and a corset by the name of a health waist has recommended itself to many a woman who has vigorously and virtuously denied herself a corset by its real name. Of course there have been a few others who have become the followers of the corset crusaders and have entirely cast off the offending garment. But they have been such a small percentage of the sex that they haven't really counted, except as horrible examples, which have themselves served as a warning to the rest of womankind not to follow.

For the woman who tries to go without a corset is herself the best advertisement of the need for one. The modiste doesn't exist who can make that woman's gowns look right. The best modistes refuse to try it. Everything that she puts on will be wrinkled and sagging and slumping in dismal style. And the numerous bands and shirr strings by which a woman's garments are held together, will bind and draw and pull because of the lack of a corset to support the strain that now comes directly on the delicate flesh and muscles. Oh, yes, I know there is a complicated harness which the anti-corset people talk about to relieve all this. The only trouble with it is it doesn't relieve and it isn't practical.

The only slightest deviation in favor of the ideal which the crusaders preach, has indeed been made, not by them and their teachings, but by the change in the style of woman's dress. The loose blouse front has brought directly in its wake the straight front corset, which affords the larger breathing space and opportunity for the movement of the diaphragm. But it was fashion that did it, and not the anti-corset lectures.

So it is useless to talk about giving up the corset. It cannot be done so long as the waist line is sharply defined in woman's dress. And it is foolish to magnify the damage that might possibly be done in extreme cases. Like the nursemaid who tells her charges dreadful tales of what will catch them in the dark, the corset crusader sooner or later finds his warnings disregarded by hearers who no longer believe them.

Of course it is not necessary to put a corset on a growing girl. But that a woman who has attained her growth, can wear it without imperiling her health, the majority of women believe. And especially, if she wear, as nearly every one does, the straight front corset sensibly ,loosely laced.

Piled In One End of Trolley Car When It Splits a Switch

North Andover, Mass., Oct. 26.—A Lawrence trolley that passed through here on its way from Salem split the switch at Wilson's Corner, left the rails, came to a sudden stop and heaped twenty passengers at one end of the car.

Four were seriously injured. Others were badly shaken up. The four, one of whom was the conductor, were rushed to the Lawrence hospital in automobiles. Wilson's Corner is three miles from Lawrence.

FEARED LOSS OF THEIR JOBS

Clerks In Treasury Department on Anxious Seat

SCARED BY NEWSPAPER YARN

Details of Changes Right and Left Found to Be Without Foundation—Department Has Staff of Trained investigators of Its Own Who Are Working on Reorganization—Need of Retirement Law Is Recognized

Washington, Oct. 26.—Treasury clerks were thrown into a panic by the publication in a local paper of a story describing in alarming detail how Frederick A. Cleveland, the business expert, has been going through the department of late, discovering inefficiency right and left, and recommending discharges and salary reductions at a wholesale rate.

As a matter of fact, the story apparently was without foundation; but it attracted attention at the White House, which has given orders that its origin be traced. Cleveland came to the treasury department about two weeks ago and after an introduction to the chief clerk, spent ten minutes in the office of the division of bookkeeping and warrants. As far as the responsible officials of the department are informed he has not been in the building since.

The actual work of reorganizing the treasury department is being done very slowly and quietly and without serious disturbance to anyone. Six months ago the department entered into a contract with Arthur Young, who has made a thorough examination of the antique system and of general business methods. This contract will expire Nov. 1 and will not be renewed.

Mr. Young put eight men to work and the treasury department placed alongside of every one of them a clerk of its own, selected especially because of his known efficiency and enterprise. As a result, the department now has in hand a staff of trained investigators of its own, educated by the hired experts, whose reports to the secretary and his assistants have proved exceedingly valuable. The general work of investigation is being continued under the direction of a committee consisting of Comptroller of the Currency Murray, Merritt O. Chance, auditor for the postoffice department, and Chief Clerk Ludlow.

The treasury department hesitates to make sweeping chcanges in personnel until congress shall have passed some kind of a civil service retirement act. Just before congress adjourned it had been planned to put through a limited retirement bill which would have enabled the department to retire several hundred aged clerks at practically $1000 a year, but Senator Hale heard of the scheme and sat down on it so hard that it never reached publicity, much less congress. The government, however, recognizes more and more of the need of a retirement law and the president and his cabinet are confident they could save money enough from the operation of one to pay the whole cost.

As far as the treasury department is concerned, Secretary MacVeagh has shown tenderness for the personal interest of his employes and has systematically adopted a plan of reinstatement for younger employes in cases where labor-saving devices have thrown men and women out of work.

A VERY TICKLISH MAN

Trenton Judge Feels Obliged to Place Him In Immune Zone

Trenton, Oct. 26.—George Barber of this city must not be tickled. Anybody who even pokes a finger at him will be arrested.

George can't stand being tickled. Samuel Bunting, a friend, tickled him in a Chinese restaurant and he jumped right through a window, taking sash and all. Another friend tickled him a day or two ago, and he leaped into a bed of fresh mortar, narrowly escaping serious burns in the lime.

He was in court as the result of the window-breaking incident, but was discharged when he explained how it happened. Justice Harris immediately placed Barber in the immune zone.

JURY ACQUITS BERG

Charged With Holding Boy In Front of Him to Escape Bullets

New York, Oct. 26.—A coroner's jury exonerated Adolph (Pickles) Berg of responsibility in the death of 12-year-old Charles Fisher, killed during a gang fight on Oct. 11, by Harry Greenwald. It had been charged that Berg held the child up as a shield against Greenwald's bullets, but no evidence indicating it was presented.

Greenwald, when cornered by the police after shooting the boy, killed himself.

Belgian Demonstration Against Kaiser Put Down by Troops

Brussels, Oct. 26.—A hostile demonstration which had been planned by Socialists during the presence of Emperor William of Germany and the empress, was put down by the soldiers, who charged the mobs, driving them into alleys, while the royal procession passed through the streets.

The emperor and empress arrived yesterday afternoon and were greeted by the royal salute of fifty-one guns. Soldiers lined the street, and all persons were forced to keep from close proximity of the royal party.

BARNEY OLDFIELD WINS $5000 RACE

Jack Johnson's Master When It Comes to Automobiles

New York, Oct. 26.—Barney Oldfield defeated Jack Johnson by half a mile in the first of their five-mile races at Sheepshead Bay race track. Oldfield also won the second heat and the race.

Three thousand people were lined up around the course when the two drivers came on the track, Oldfield in his Knox racer and the negro in a Thomas flyer. Johnson handled his car well, but was out-classed and outjockeyed by Oldfield, who demonstrated his title to being the cleverest and most daring speed merchant in the world.

The race was for $5000 to the winner of two out of three five-mile heats.

JOHNSTONE SETS NEW MARK

Mounts 7303 Feet In the Air and Has Encounter With Snowstorm

New York, Oct. 26.—The American altitude record that J. A. Drexel brought down out of the clouds in his Bleriot monoplane was snatched from his grasp by Ralph Johnstone in a headless Wright climber at Belmont Park.

Drexel reached 7105 Tuesday, but Johnstone topped him yesterday by 198 feet with a new mark of 7303 feet. He came down chilled to the bone and his goggles rimmed with frost.

For half an hour he had battled with a snowstorm above the clouds, seeking still higher levels. The undemonstrative Wilbur Wright danced with joy when he glanced at the barograph.

Havana, Oct. 26.—Within half an hour of the time set for the sailing of the steamer Merida, upon which he had been ordered to proceed for Washington with a special diplomatic mission, General Armando Riva, chief of the national police, was ordered ashore and told to resume his duties.

It was rumored about the palace that the president's action resulted from a strong remonstrance on the part of the American minister, John B. Jackson.

Lisbon, Oct. 26.—Eight thousand freight and express wagon drivers went on strike here. Soldiers and firemen are being utilized in the transportation of the necessities of life.

GIRL FREE IN CRIPPEN CASE

Not an Accomplice to Doctor In Murder of His Wife

NO WITNESSES FOR DEFENSE

Jury Returns Verdict of Acquittal Twenty-Two Minutes After Retiring—Ethel Leneve Long Under Influence of Murderer, According to Her Counsel—London Editor Is Fined $1000 For Contempt of Court

London, Oct. 26.—Ethel Leneve was acquitted by a jury in New Bailey on the charge of being an accomplice to Dr. H. H. Crippen in the murder of Mrs. Crippen, Belle Elmore, the American variety actress.

It was for love of Miss Leneve that Crippen, now under death sentence, murdered his wife. The crown's counsel, Richard Muir, could not show that Miss Leneve had any knowledge of either the American's intention or the crime itself. There were no witnesses called by the defense.

As Miss Leneve sat in the prisoner's dock she was a pathetic figure. In replying to the formal charge of being an accessory after the fact to the murder of Belle Elmore, the girl pleaded "not guilty" in a voice that was scarcely audible.

Miss Leneve's counsel, Frederick E. Smith, asked the jury to bear in mind that his client had been under the influence of Crippen, one of the most dangerous criminals of recent years, since she was 16 years of age. This, he asserted, accounted for her flight in the doctor's company.

Lord Chief Justice Alverstone, in summing up for the jury, said that he saw no reason why Crippen should have told Miss Leneve a story different from that which he told to others.

The illness of the accused on the night of her interview with Mrs. Jackson was not, the prosecution said, an ordinary illness, but a condition of horror, the explanation of which was the knowledge that had come to her that Crippen had murdered his wife.

According to the prosecution, Miss Leneve's relation to the crime as an accessory began very soon after the death of Mrs. Crippen. In the case made out against the doctor Mrs. Crippen, or Belle Elmore, as she was known on the stage, was murdered on the morning of Feb. 1, and her dismembered body buried in the cellar of the Crippen home at 39 Hilldrop-Crescent on that day. Miss Leneve slept in the Crippen home on the night of the day following.

Miss Leneve was an object for keen scrutiny on the part of the women, who composed the majority of the spectators. She is of medium build, light brown hair, gray eyes and excellent teeth. Her face is pretty and she is trim. She wears good clothes becomingly and, naturally buoyant and affable, she is a prepossessing woman.

The trial lasted but a few hours, the prosecution closing its case before lunch. Lord Chief Justice Alverstone delivered his charge to the jury and they retired, returning in twenty-two minutes with a verdict of acquittal.

The news editor of the London Chronicle was fined $1000 and costs yesterday for publishing an alleged confession of Dr. Crippen shortly after Crippen's arrest by Inspector Dew in Canada. The editor was committed to jail pending the payment of the fine.

The alleged confession was contained in a dispatch sent to London from Montreal. Shortly after its publication contempt of court proceedings were instituted against the paper by the state.

TACK IN NEGRO'S SKULL

Queer Cure For Blindness Devised by an Atlanta "Doctor"

Atlanta, Oct. 26.—William Williams, a negro, is in jail here, charged with swindling, on account of the peculiar cure for blindness which he devised.

His remedy consisted in driving a tack into the back portion of a blind negro's skull and charging $2.50 for the operation.

Robert Ward, the victim, told the police court judge that the tack process was not very painful, but that Williams' manner of taking the $2.50 "hurt considerable."

$100 REWARD, $100.

RECEPTION TO TAFT

Entertained on Board Argentine Naval Ship

Admiral and Madame Garcia and Captain D. Aguirre of the Argentine navy, who are making their home in Quincy during the building of the battleship at the Fore River Shipbuilding plant were at Washington Tuesday when President Taft was tendered a reception and banquet given on board the Argentine training ship, Presidente Sarmiento.

It was a reception in which the republic of Argentina acquired the unique distinction of being the first foreign power to entertain a President of the United States on one of its man-of-war vessels.

The President was received in the captain's dining room, which was profusely decorated for the occasion. Among those present were President Taft, Senor Jacinto L. Villegas, Argentine charge d'affaires; Admiral Garcia, chief of the commission sent to this country by the Argentine government to supervise the building of two warships; Gen. Leonard Wood, chief of staff U. S. A., Sec. of State Knox, Commander Fliess, captain of the visiting craft; Beekman Winthrop, acting secretary of the navy; John Barrett, director of the bureau of American republics, and Asst. Sec. of War Oliver.

Following the banquet to the President a reception was given to the diplomatic corps, the army and navy, officers of the district of Columbia and the federal government and others socially and officially prominent at the nation's capital. The crew and cadets were granted shore leave following the festivities.

IN HIS NAME.

The Unity circle of King's Daughters in expression of its appreciation of the service of its retiring president, Mrs. W. E. Blanchard has presented her with a large silver cross, bearing the letters "I. H. N." the emblem of the organization. The initials stand for "In His Name" which is the watchword of King's Daughters. In the centre of the cross a large amethyst was set. The choice of the stone was significant inasmuch as amethyst is the King's Daughters' color. Mrs. Blanchard has served as president of the Unity circle for a number of years and her active interest and untiring energy have been of very material assistance to the circle in all its philanthropic work. The ladies with whom she has worked desired to make an avowal of their esteem for her and sent the token as a remembrance of the years of mutual service In His Name.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. Axel M. Bjorkman and daughter wish to express their heartfelt thanks to the kind neighbors and friends who so freely tendered their help and sympathy in their recent hours of sickness and bereavement and also for the beautiful floral offerings which were so generously contributed.

NORFOLK COUNTY CONFERENCE.

The annual meeting and conference of the Norfolk Unitarian and other Christian churches is being held today in the historic First church. The morning session which opened at 10 o'clock was very largely attended delegates being present from many of the churches in the county. A still larger number is expected at the afternoon session which opened at 1.30.

George Kuhn Clarke of Needham presided, and the morning session opened with a business meeting, during which reports of the officers and various committees were made. These reports were very satisfactory especially the financial report.

There were two addresses at this session. The first by Mrs. Clara B. Beatley of Roxbury, who spoke on "Our young people and the church," and by Prof. H. C. Maitra, of Calcutta, Hindoostan, president of the college in Calcutta, whose subject was "The aims and services of the Brahmo Somaj."

Mrs. Beatley's address dealt with the ways in which young people could be held in the church. She spoke very highly of the so-called Beacon books, and said many helpful hints could be had from the study of these books.

The address of Prof. Maitra was a particularly interesting one, he held the closest attention of his hearers. The Brahmo Somaj is a Hindoo religious society, and his familiarity with its aims and methods made it of value.

At the close of the two addresses, there was a general discussion on the two topics. Prof. Maitra was asked a number of questions, and in reply went into detail on the method of conducting the services which differed somewhat from the American system. He also repeated the beautiful prayer which was recited in unison by the congregation.

At 11.45 there was a short devotional service conducted by Rev. Charles Buckley Ames, which included the singing of hymns, scripture reading and prayer.

At noon there was an intermission until 1.30. During this intermission a basket lunch was served in the chapel, and an opportunity had for the delegates to meet in a social way and thus become better acquainted.

The roll call of delegates and election of officers was held this afternoon. There was also an address by Rev. Joseph Henry Crooker, D. D., whose subject was "The lost chord."

GREAT WORK BY QUINCY HIGH

the kind of stuff the Quincy team was made of. And it eventually proved to be their undoing. Time was called shortly after with the ball on the 13 yard line.

TOUCHDOWN AND GOAL.

The spectators were getting ready to go home and tell the folks about the tie game when the fourth quarter was about half way through. Manning and Hill had ripped up the South Boston team for gains of 8 and 10-yards, but Arthur had to punt and he got off a long one Chapman downed his man on the 5-yard line before he could move an inch. After one or two short gains South Boston punted. Manning received the ball and was tackled high. By some sort of an eel-like motion he freed himself and dashed 40 yards down the field for a touchdown. Hill kicked the goal. Score 6 to 0.

For the remainder of the game Quincy had the upper hand. Long gains by Hill, Arthur, Harmon and Holmes brought the ball down the field with great rapidity. Arthur punted and South Boston on two or three short gains placed the ball on the 13-yard line when time was called. Score 6 to 0.

During the first part of the game Quincy did not display itself as well as South Boston. The visitors proved themselves masters of the forward pass and were within striking distance of the goal several times. The gains were not made through the line however. Every man on the Quincy line held solid as a rock and on the offence made holes for the backs which were a wonder to behold. Hill, Harmon and Manning were the star performers for Quincy.

For the visitors, Speth, Kane and Illingsworth played exceptionally well. Chapman at end showed up very well as usual and Arthur was conspicuous. Every man on the Quincy team could be mentioned with terms of highest praise. Here's hoping the good work continues through the rest of the season.

WINTER SCHEDULE.

The only changes in the winter timetable of the street railway are on the Houghs Neck and Squantum lines. BOB VEAL FIGHT IS ON

New Legislation Will Be Asked For In Massachusetts

Boston, Oct. 26.—Aroused by the shocking cruelty revealed by an investigation of the shipment from New York state to the Brighton stock yards of eighty-four calves, all but two of which were either killed by the long journey without food or unfit for human consumption, President Rowley of the S. P. C. A. has initiated a campaign for legislation which will prevent a repetition of such an affair.

A law similar to that of New York, which prohibits the shipment of calves under 4 weeks of age, except for dairy purposes, is advocated for Massachusetts.

Not only is there no law which prevents the shipment into this state of sucking calves under 4 weeks of age, but the weight standard allows the calves of some breeds to be slaughtered and sold for food when born.

WHITE SLAVERS PUNISHED

Pittsburg Man and Woman Each Receive a Prison Sentence

Pittsburg, Oct. 26.—Frank C. Willams and Anna Hull of this city were found guilty of violating the white slave law enacted by congress on June 25 last, by a federal jury in the United States district court here. Williams was sentenced to two years and six months in the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan., while Miss Hull will serve a like term in the western penitentiary here.

These are among the first prosecutions under the new law and the trial of the offenders has excited wide interest. Miss Hull, it was brought out in the testimony, was proprietor of a resort to which Williams brought his victims from other states.

BLACK HAND NOTES TO HIS LANDLADY

Result In Landing a Chicago Roomer In Court

Chicago, Oct. 26.—Fear that her daughter would be kidnapped caused Mrs. Eva L. Buffing to pay tribute demanded in a series of letters which, it developed in the United States court, were written by a member of her own household. This was shown when H. H. Downer was arraigned before Commissioner Foote on a charge of writing threatening letters.

Downer had been a trusted roomer at Mrs. Buffing's house. Two months ago he was married, and brought his wife to live in the house. Shortly afterward, Mrs. Buffing, who had just inherited $1000 from her father, received a letter signed "Black Hand" and demanding $150. Downer was greatly interested and advised Mrs. Buffing to regard all supulations and pay the money.

Five days later she received another demand which Downer advised her to pay. This was repeated until she had paid $275. Then she advised postal inspectors, and Downer was arrested. He was held for the grand jury in $5000 bonds.

VOLCANO ERUPTIONS ADD TO THE HORROR

Bay of Naples Swept by Cloudburst and Tidal Wave

Naples, Oct. 26.—The beautiful coasts of the Bay of Naples and the Gulf of Salerno and the islands of Ischia and Pocida have been devastated by a peculiar combination of the elements.

The exact number of victims has not been learned, but 100 persons are said to have been killed. The monetary loss is great.

The disaster appears to have come in the form of a cyclone having three centres, the first over the island of Ischia, the second over the town of Torre del Greco on the east coast of the Bay of Naples, and the third sweeping the Gulf of Salerno.

Accompanying the cyclone were a cloudburst, a tidal wave and violent eruptions from Mt. Vesuvius and from a crater suddenly opened on the summit of the long-extinct Mt. Epomeo on the island of Ischia.

Ischia and the adjacent islands suffered most. No Americans are reported in the troubled zone, foreigners having recently given that section a wide berth because of the cholera epidemic.

HERMIT HAD FORTUNE

Clergyman Was Believed to Be In Very Needy Circumstances

Topsham, Me., Oct. 26.—With $4000 in the bank Rev. George W. Johnson was found dead here in his home which was bare of furniture and without carpets.

Little else beside the bare framework was in the house except more than 1000 books stowed away in an attic. Hidden about the house was $145 in cash and it is believed much more is concealed.

HUSKING BEE AT WEYMOUTH

Given by Ladies' Aid Society of Quincy Point

Rural life was at its best and Hiram and Samanthy were in their element last evening at the Husking Bee given at the home of H. H. I. Smith, 578 Commercial street, Weymouth Heights. The Ladies' Aid society of the Washington Street Congregational church arranged for it in connection with Mr. Smith and the idea was taken up with enthusiasm by everyone. At 7 o'clock the "huskies" and their "gals" began to arrive and the hunt for red ears began with the arrival of the first couple. Many of the 350 who were present were dressed appropriately, the men in overalls, flannel shirts, bandannas and buck farmer hats, the girls in calico and sun bonnets. Some of the "lids" looked as if they were among the discoveries of Columbus, they were so antique and so conveniently large.

The husking was in full swing by 7.15 and all hands were working with furious energy to fill the boxes and barrels and to discover the "bussing ears." "Jest and youthful jollity" prevailed and at the same time a great deal of work was accomplished. The larger part of the barn was given over to the guests. Down the length of the barn and in several rooms on the side, groups were seated chest deep in corn. The scene was indeed a novel one for these days and for this vicinity. The whole evening was old-fashioned even to the extent that there was more than enough food to satisfy the wants of all. The supper was served in the house at nine o'clock. The whole lower part was used.

In one of the rooms a group of young people gathered around the piano and sang popular songs which were all very appropriate.

After supper all went back to the barn. There was more husking to be done and a virginia reel was promised so the stalwart swains and the buxom damsels swarmed back to enter into the fun. The efficacy of the "horse shoe" ears was again tested to the satisfaction of everybody and then the floor was cleared of husks for the dancing. A fiddler scraped out such tunes as the Irish Washerwoman Pop goes the Weasel, etc., and the couples capered and pirouetted up and down, back and forth. The arrival of one or two old enthusiasts gave color to the proceedings.

The guests stayed till a late hour and every minute of the time was enjoyed. People were present from all parts of the city and from out of town. About half wore their farmer duds and they seemed to have the best time. Mr. Marshall, the pastor of the church would have passed for a reuben fresh from the country. The affair was a "howling success" in the best sense of the expression. Hilarity did not run too high and everyone

SLIGHT FIRE AT AUDITORIUM

Discovered Just Before the Show of Evening

The alarm from Box 35 at 6.35 Wednesday evening called the department to a fire in an old chimney at the Auditorium just before the doors were opened for the performanc. The presence of fire was detected by smoke, and it was necessary to tear away the woodwork about the chimney to get at it. Although the chimney was located at one side of the stage it did not interfere with the evening's entertainment and while it was in progress the Chief sat behind the scenes and directed the work of half a dozen firemen who worked until after 9 o'clock before the seat of the trouble was reached. Chief Williams said it was the first time he was ever behind the scenes and he enjoyed the experience, especially the chats he had with the young ladies who took part in the performance. The loss is estimated at $40.

GRANITE CITY LADIES' NIGHT

Complimentary Concert by Temple Quartette

The delightful air of informality that prevailed at the ladies' night of the Granite City club Wednesday evening served to make the affair one of the most enjoyable socials ever held by the club. It was largely confined to members of the club and their ladies, and for them the entertainment committee provided a program that could not do otherwise than please.

Gathering in the spacious club rooms on the upper floor of the Savings Bank building the ladies had an opportunity to see in what pleasant and home-like quarters their husbands passed their leisure hours. The rooms, recently renovated, never looked more attractive, and not a few of the ladies expressed their regrets that it was not possible that ladies could have some such quarters, where, when they enter the outer door, all cares of business life are left behind, and where freedom and cordiality reign supreme. Perhaps when the new woman has further progressed such things may be.

Outer wraps laid aside, the ladies were escorted to Colonial hall, for the entertainment. The entertainers were the Temple male quartet, assisted by Miss Edith Barnes Arey, reader, and for nearly two hours they kept their hearers in a rapture of delight. Although the program only contained ten numbers yet spontaneous encores served to lengthen it out to twice that number, and there was not a dull or poor number among them.

Miss Arey was down for three numbers, but gave six. Her selections were ones that captivated her hearers. Difficult in a way but rendered in a manner that showed her a master of the elocutionary art. She is sure of a warm welcome by any future Quincy audiences before whom she may appear.

As for the quartet, none but words of praise can be said. The true lover of music with a musical ear found nothing to criticize but much to applaud, while he with perhaps not quite as well trained ear was held spellbound. Four numbers were assigned to the quartet and each had an encore. Some of the encores were humorous selections that immediately caught the audience. One of the numbers rendered on an encore was "The Rosary," and it was beautiful.

Aside from the quartet number, Mr. Bullock gave two solos, as also did Mr. Baker and Mr. McGowan. For an encore, Mr. Baker sang that sweet ballad, "Absent," and so still and quiet was the audience that the drop of a pin might have been heard. The reputation of the Temple quartet is so well known that comment is hardly necessary, other than to say they never sang better than on this occasion.

The entertainment over, the club rooms were again sought, where a concert was given by an orchestra while refreshments were being served. Here by special request the quartet sang "The Soldiers' Farwell," and responded to an encore.

Refreshments served. Some of the ladies were initiated into the mysteries of billiards and pool, whose shots look so easy when made by a skilled hand but which are found so hard when attempted by a novice. Others engaged in cards, while not a few again sought Colonial hall for an impromptu dance. A little after 11 o'clock the guests were homeward bound with the thought that the Granite City club never does anything by halves.

REPUBLICAN RALLY.

The Republican City Committee have arranged for a grand rally to be held on Thursday, Nov. 3, at Alpha hall. The list of speakers is not complete at this time but will probably include ex-Gov. J. D. Long, ex-Gov. Curtis Guild, Jr., Congressman George T. Lawrence and former District Attorney Herbert Parker.

SYMPHONY AT WOLLASTON

Girls' Choir Club Score a Great Hit

What was announced as the first annual symphony concert of the Girls Choir club was given before a large and enthusiastic audience in the vestries of the Wollaston Congregational church on Wednesday evening. The young ladies were directed in a very effective manner by C. J. Hogue under the sobriquet of Herr Chester Hogueheim.

Opening the program was a toy symphony by Haydn, which found favor and brought into play besides a regular orchestra, consisting of Charles Sayward, 'cello, Max Pinkham and Brandt Lupton, violins, other instruments consisting of trumpets, cuckoos, rattles, quails, triangles, nightingales and drums.

The club was assisted by Miss Mary Frances Willard Anderson, reader, who delivered in her charming way several selections among them "Reminiscences of mother." "Ike blade o' grass keps its ain drap o' dew," "The nameless lassie," "Nothing but toadstools" and "Vision of the soul." Miss Anderson was repeatedly encored.

Under the name of the Beethoven quartet, Miss Ida Louise Poore, Miss Carolyn Lewis, Miss Helen Seavey and Miss Lucy Chase rendered two vocal numbers of merit, "The little dog barked" and "Under a toad stool." A trio, of the last named three, was also enjoyed.

"Espanola," a Spanish melody, was sung by Miss Poore accompanied by Miss Lucy Chase, and received much applause.

The evening closed with a toy symphoney by Thiele. The personelle of the orchestra was given on the program under the following names which can be readily made out by the initiated:

Violins—Herr M. Pinkhamer, Herr B. Luptonski.

Violincello—Herr Karlos Saywarden.

Pianoforte—Fraulein Luise Thatcher.

Trumpets—Frauleins Helen, Johannes, Helen Farwellen, Carolyn Lewiski, Helen Seaveyern, Dorothy Taylorench.

Rattles—Signorina Floresi Wightis, Blanchi Thacheri.

Quails—Fraulein Edyth Goulden, Mlle. Gladys Duplisseyes.

Triangles—Fraulein Lucinda Waiten, Signorina Agnes Eastmani.

Nightingale — Signorina Lucia Chaseri.

Drum—Idyl Poverino.

—It is a remarkable fact that while 70 per cent of the members of the early city governments of Waltham are now dead, every one of the 12 ex-mayors is alive. The ex-mayors are B. B. Johnson, Charles F. Stone, Harry N. Fisher, George L. Mayberry, Charles P. Bond, Erskine Warden, Arthur Lyman, Henry S. Milton, M. H. Leonard, John L. Harvey, Edward H. Walker, and Murray D. Clements. Ex-Mayor Johnson, by virtue of his election as first mayor of the Watch City, who will be 77 on November 30, heads the list. He is still in active practice as an attorney, and looks no older today than when he was elected mayor.—Boston Record.

BURLESQUE INDOOR MEET

Declared a Tie, but Several Prizes Were Given

The annual fair of the Whatsoever circle of King's Daughters was held in the vestry of the Wollaston Methodist church on Wednesday evening. A large number attended and took part in the games which followed.

An indoor meet of the burlesque variety, consisting of dashes, potato races and shot putting proved a mirth provoker with the following officials in charge: Dr. B. F. Bowles, judge; J. A. Sedgwick, announcer; David T. Whiton, timekeeper.

A. N. Murray captained the Reds, and Jesse I. Litchfield the Blues. At the close of nearly every event either one or the other entered a protest or charge of fraud. As the races were all close and the judge hadn't the courage to rule either out, the result of the meet is still a dark secret, but for the peace of mind of all was announced a tie.

The winners or losers, at the close of the meet, were the recipients of various toys for infantile amusement which made a great hit.

In a manner most pleasing, Miss Theodora C. Moore of West Somerville contributed several piano solos during the evening. At 9.30 an attractive chafing dish luncheon was served by the committee, consisting of frankfurters, potato salad, spaghetti, rolls and coffee.

In charge of the affair were the finance committee of the Whatsoever circle with Mrs. E. H. Ewertz as chairman, consisting of Mrs. Jesse I. Litchfield, Mrs. George R. Thompson, Miss Ida G. Parkard, Mrs. C. Bruce Wetmore, Mrs. John Hamilton, Miss Ethel Roberts, Mrs. W. S. Whittam, Mrs. C. E. Bates.

LOST CORD IN CHURCHES

Theme of Dr. Crooker at Quincy Conference

The afternoon session of the Norfolk conference of Unitarian and other Christian churches at the First church on Wednesday was more largely attended than the morning session, and was full of interest. The session opened with a short praise service conducted by Rev. Henry D. Stevens of Walpole. Then came the roll call of parishes, and the election of officers. The election resulted as follows:

President—Edwin J. Lewis, Jr., of Roxbury.

Vice President—Rev. George W. Cutter D. D. of Neponset.

Secretary-treasurer— Rev. George M. Bodge of Roxbury.

Directors for one year—Miss Mary N. Phillips of Sharon and A. A. Wahlberg of Neponset; for two years—Rev. George F. Pratt of Dorchester and Mrs. D. S. Woodbury; for three years—Charles A. Call of Hyde Park and Rev. William H. Parker of Dedham.

The address of the afternoon was by Rev. Joseph H. Crooker, D. D., of Roslindale. In opening he said the program gave his subject as "The lost chord." He had impressed the committee to drop the "h" in "chord" making it "cord," but the printer's devil had got the best of him. Many things that old astronomy taught us, said Dr. Crooker, have been outgrown. It taught us that the earth is forever spun in its orbit by cooperation of President Taft has made great advances in placing the government service squarely on the basis of merit, and in taking the public offices out of the reach of the spoils politician.

Councilman John R. Richards comes pretty near being correct in his letter of Wednesday. The city needs Councilmen, and needs them very much, who will protect the city. It should not be the duty or work of any Councilman to get as much as possible out of the city. They should not be elected for that purpose. Their first duty should be to the city as a whole; to the taxpayer. Men who vote for everything do not represent the voters at large. There are certain appropriations which should pass, but many which should be postponed. A city like an individual cannot have everything it wants and it should be careful how it accummulates loans which extend over periods of 10 and 30 years. Money expended for interest is almost thrown away. Where loans extend over 30 years the city pays double, that is, first cost and interest. The cost of living would be reduced if smaller sums were appropriated annually by city, county, State and Nation.

THOMPSON— WEST.

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the residence of J. T. West, at 3 Charles street, Houghs Neck, Wednesday evening when his daughter Miss Elsie May West, became the bride of Mr. John Thompson, a well known Charlestown young man. Owing to a recent death in the family of the bride the ceremony was attended only by the immediate families of the bride and groom. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. R. McMeekin in the Union chapel. The bride who was gowned in a blue silk and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley was attended by her sister Miss Helen West, who wore white silk, and Mr. Frank Galvin of Quincy was the best man.

After a brief wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Thompson will reside in Charlestown.

FORE RIVER LAUNCHING

Destroyer Walke Named for Admiral Walke

The ninth launching at the Fore River ship yard this year will take place Thursday, Nov. 3, when the torpedo boat destroyer Walke, the last of the series of three of this class of boats recently built by the company.

The sponsor of the Walke will be Miss Mildred Walke Walter, of Providence, R. I., a granddaughter of the late Rear Admiral Henry Walke, for whom the vessel is named.

Miss Walter is the daughter of Mr. Edward Walter, who resides at 16 Pallas street, Providence. He is one of the best-known residents of the Broadway section of the city. Her mother is the daughter of the late Rear Admiral Walke. Mildred was born in the Walke family homestead at Brooklyn.

She is one of the popular scholars at the Carpenter street public school just around the corner from her home and all of the many children in the neighborhood are her friends, and they are glad that she is to have the honor of the christening.

The arangements for the launching are completed and Miss Walter is now hoping for good weather for the event.

Rear Admiral Walke was a Virginian by birth, and he died March 8, 1896. He went from the bottom to the top of the navy, having entered the service as a midshipman from the state of Ohio at the age of 18. For 54 years he was in the service, active all of the time and passing through all grades including rear admiral.

As a midshipman Admiral Walke was with Farragut throughout the war of the rebellion. He voluntarily retired from the service in 1871 and thereafter made his home in Brooklyn, and it was at his home that the little sponsor of the destroyer first saw the light of day.

Admiral Walke's service began in the war with Mexico and he was present at the surrender of Vera Cruz, Tuspan and Tobasco as the executive officer of the bomb brig Vesuvius. He commanded the gunboats Taylor and Lexington on the Mississippi and protected the army under Gen. Grant and commanded the gunboat Carontelet at the battle of fort Henry and also attacked fort Donelson on instruction from Gen. Grant.

Of the late admiral it was said that he never lost an officer or a man ar anything committed to his charge except in battle, though serving for over 30 years afloat in the most dangerous and sickly stations in the naval service.

NOT WELL ACQUAINTED.

An English lady who visited Chicago relates how her maid ,who accompanied her, quickly became imbued with the desire to become Mrs. Somebody.

One morning she appeared before her mistress ,and, with glowing eyes, announced that she had named the day and would become a wife at the end of the week. "Are you going back home, then?" the lady asked. "Oh, no, ma'am; it's an American gentleman," replied the maid. "But," remonstrated her mistress , "we've only been here a fortnight."

"That's no matter. He wants the wedding to be on Saturday." "Well, can't you get him to postpone the marriage just a little till I can get another maid?"

"Well, ma'am ,I'd like to oblige you, but, ye see, I don't feel well enough acquainted to ask him to do that."

TWO SIDES TO EVERYTHING.

A little boy was given too much underdone pie for his supper and was soon roaring lustily.

His mother's visitor was visibly disturbed.

"If he was my child," she said, "he'd get a sound spanking."

"He deserves it," the mother admitted, "but I don't believe in spanking him on a full stomach."

"Neither do I," said the visitor, "but I'd turn him over."—Sucess.

—Mrs. Sarah Burgess of Wareham, is nearing the century mark, Oct. 18 celebrating her 98th birthday anniversary. She is a direct descendant of Richard Warren, one of the Mayflower passengers. Mrs. Burgess has most interesting recollections of earlier days and she says that when she first went to Wareham to live it was not an uncommon sight to see Indians roaming through the woods there and coming out into the highways.

ROGERS—TRACEY.

Among the special town events of the season is noted the marriage of Miss Anna May Tracey, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Tracey of 938 Washington street, South Braintree, and Jesse D. Rogers recently of Provincetown but now an enterprising merchant of Braintree. The marriage was solemnized Wednesday evening, October 26th, at eight o'clock at the parochial residence on Washington street and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Matthew F. McDonnell, pastor of the St. Francis church. The bride was attended by Miss Margaret T. Buckley of North Abington while George Rogers of Provincetown, brother of the groom served as best man.

The bride was charmingly gowned in white duchess satin cut en traine with pearl garnitures and lace trimmings. She wore the conventional bridal veil which was fastened with a pearl brooch, the gift of the groom. She carried a bouquet of white carnations. Miss Buckley the bridesmaid was becomingly gowned in pink crepe de chine with lace trimmings and gold garnitures. She carried pink carnations.

After the marriage ceremony the bridal party returned to the bride's home at 938 Washington street where Mr. and Mrs. Rogers received their friends from eight until ten o'clock. They were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. William S. Tracey, George Rogers and Miss Margaret Buckley. The ushers were William Brennan of North Abington, Kenneth Brennan of South Weymouth and Edward I. Tracey of Central avenue, South Braintree.

The home was beautifully decorated with chrysanthemums and laurel leaves, each room having an appropriate color scheme and the whole scene presenting a most pleasing effect. Cuff's orchestra was stationed ni the music room and rendered suitable music in their always acceptable manner.

The display of wedding gifts consisting of cut glass, silver, china, dainty linen and furniture was remarkably varied showing that the young couple have hosts of friends far and wide. About a month ago twelve young ladies, classmates and schoolmates of the bride surprised her with a linen shower and enjoyed a pleasant reunion.

Among the wedding gifts was noted a beautiful Becker piano, the present of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Tracey The bride's present to her bridesmaid was a gold neck chain and pendant with settings of pearls and aquamarine stones. The groom presented his ushers with gold stickpins with turquoise settings.

The refreshments were under the capable management of Whittemore & Girard catrers.

Guests were present from North Abington, South Weymouth, Rockland, Whitman, Roxbury, East Douglas, Wellesley, Quincy, Boston, Weymouth, Provincetown and Braintree.

Mrs. Rogers was born in North Abington, September 3, 1883, and completed her grammar school course there. Her parents removed to Braintree where she was about twelve years old. She attended the Braintree high school and graduated in the class of 1901. She completed a two years' course at the Hyannis state normal school in 1903 and has taught most successfully since in Holden, Revere, Sandwich and Provincetown, covering a period of seven years. Although she has been away from home for the past nine years, in pursuing her studies and teaching still she has made many lasting friendships not only here but in the various towns where she was located and at Nantasket where the family have their summer home.

Mr. Rogers is a native of Provincetown, but received his education in the Lowell schools. His father passed away about twelve years ago and the two sons George and Jesse made their home with the widowed mother, Mrs. Mary Rogers at Provincetown. For five years the two brothers conducted a grocery business in that town and continued in partnership until about a month ago when Jesse Rogers severed his connection to come to South Braintree and bought the business recently conducted by Mr. H. W. Mansfield in Holbrook block.

The young couple left Wednesday night for Providence, R. I., where they will spend their honeymoon. They will be at home after December first at 31 Summer street, South Braintree. Their many friends wish them every happiness.

WEYMOUTH HAS A CLAIM

Seam-Faced Granite for the New Court House

Editor of Daily Ledger:

Observing your editorial advocating the use of Quincy granite for the construction of the new County Court house to be erected in Quincy, and that Quincy granite alone should be used, I can hardly agree that it is eminently fitting to ignore other granites or other material of construction in the building of this Court House in Quincy, which is a county affair.

Weymouth, one of the largest towns in Norfolk county which will also help pay the bills, comes proudly forward to ask the honorable County Commissioners to consider the use of her product the celebrated, beautiful, unique and elegant seam-face granite in the erection of this County building.

Taking into consideration economy, durability and beauty, it cannot be approached by any granite in all the rock ribbed hills of New England. Weymouth seam-face granite has stepped into the twentieth century as the most beautiful, durable and economical granite for building purposes the world has ever known. An ideal landscape can hardly be a finished picture without a seam-face granite building which will attract the eye and excite the admiration of the beholder and at the same time give such a general all-round satisfaction to the owners of the property whether it be a County Court House or a "Sky scraper" a school house or a college building, a library or a church, or any building anywhere of any name or nature.

Weymouth for Fair Play.

A double male quartet has been formed under the direction of Miss Perkins, the singing teacher. The members will have special instruction, and by the time of the school concert should be quite proficient and able to add very materially to the success of that undertaking. Those who are trying for parts are as follows:—First tenor—Henry Huston '11; Harry Anderson '11; and Ryder Gay '12. Second tenor—Donald Crane '11, and Arthur Bullock '12. First bass—Artemas Dingwell '11; and Starrett White '12. Second bass—Roy Sidelinger '10, and Winthrop Safford '11.

A meeting of the Freshman class was called this week for further discussion of the plans for beautifying the school grounds. Collectors were appointed in each of the home rooms to take charge of the money which will be used for the purpose. Each member of the class is expected to give not less than 25 cents, thus making the whole sum between $75 and a hundred dollars. The money will be used for a new bed of shrubbery to be placed in the southwest corner of the school grounds and for a granite post to correspond with the one in the northwest corner of the grounds.

A number of the girls showed the right spirit at the game Tuesday afternoon. There was a noticeable absence of cheering on the part of the boys, which is unfortunate considering the fine exhibition of football the team put up. A group of girls sang one of the school songs with a good deal of enthusiasm, and the team was helped by it. The next two games will be harder than any that have been played so far, and the players will need all the encouragement the school can give. Let every student who possesses a pair of lungs appear at the field at the time of these contests prepared to make good use of them in aiding the team to win the victory.

Walter H. Lacey, Harvard '12, of Grand View avenue, has qualified as one of the 12 men to represent Harvard in the cross-country race with Technology on Saturday afternoon. He was in the class of '08 at High school.

The principal and teachers of the High school show the right spirit in supporting the football team. At most of the home games this year at least a dozen members of the faculty have been present and a number of them went with the team when it played out-of-town games.

The football schedule for the remainder of the season is as follows:
Oct. 27—Boston College at Quincy.
Nov. 1—Hyde Park at Quincy.
Nov. 4—Open.
Nov. 8—East Boston at Quincy.
Nov. 11—Hingham at Quincy.
Nov. 19—Dorchester at Dorchester.
The game with Walpole which was scheduled for Nov. 4 has been cancelled thus leaving the date open. Undoubtedly a game will be arranged with one of the strong teams in the vicinity of Boston, such as Everett, Chelsea, Roxbury Latin or Arlington.

The competition for cover designs for the Golden Rod ends this week. Many excellent designs have been submitted already, and it is expected that an unusually good one will appear this year.

Robert N. Finley, formerly of Worcester Academy and Dorchester High school will enter Quincy High tomorrow to complete his preparation for Dartmouth college. Finley will be a valuable acquisition to the football team if he is declared eligible. He played guard on the teams of the schools he has attended, and if he is allowed to play his presence will greatly strengthen the line. Findley is a big fellow weighing about 190 pounds.

The reports for the first quarter's work will appear in about two weeks. Those students who feel a little "shake-ey" about some of their courses still have a chance to brace up and improve their marks. The school year is divided into four quarters of ten weeks each. At the end of these periods the regular marks are sent out. Flunk notices appear at irregular intervals during the year.

HEBREW SCHOOL.

The Hebrew school which has been conducted the past two months at Quincy Point has been quite a success and the pupils show considerable progress. On Sunday afternoon at the Synagogue of the Congregation Avath Achium on School street public exercises were held. It was parents' day, and those assembled were pleased at the result of the examination of the pupils by Rev. J. Baumshlag. A concert by the boys followed. The Rabbi was complimented on the success of the sshool. Most of the children are also pupils of the public shools.

A permanent class pin has been adopted by the pupils of the Wollaston school. It is in crimson and gold, and the Metropolitan water tower on the Third Hill reservation is prominent.

The scheme of dividing the boys in the two upper grades into four groups for athletic purposes has resulted very successfully at the Adams and Cranch schools. Different kinds of games and races furnish the means of arousing enthusiasm, and the contests which take place at recess are very interesting and oftentimes exciting. The standing of the teams in the Adams school is as follows: Games played, 18. Henry Ford's team is first; won, 7; lost, 11. John Farquharson's team and James Smith's team are tied for second place; won, 5; lost, 13. Peter Williams' team is third; won, 3; lost, 15.

At the Cranch school, 33 games have been played with the following results: Harold England's team is first; won, 12; lost, 21. Earl Bates's team is second; won, 9; lost, 24. George Norris' team is third; won, 7; lost, 26. Henry Hall's team is fourth; won, 5o lost, 28.

Telephones have been installed in most of the school buildings this week and all will be equipped before the end of next week. These systems have connections in all the rooms of the buildings.

OTHER SCHOOLS.

The enrollment for the Y. M. C. A. electrical school which opened Monday evening was a disappointment. There should be twice as many present next Monday evening, as Quincy young men may never again have such an opportunity offered to study electricity.

Principal Goodspeed reports an average attendance of over 93 percent at the evening school at the Willard building, which is unusually high. The 140 pupils include 90 from Finland, 30 from Sweeden, and 20 from Italy. About 15 are young women.

The school census of 1910 (of pupils from 5 to 14 years inclusive) has just been completed. The total is 7,954, against 7,539 a year ago. Quite an army of young people. Nearly one fourth of the number are in West Quincy, but South Quincy is growing the fastest. Wollaston has the smallest number.

Members of the Brockton school committee were guests last evening of the Brockton teachers' association at the first meeting of the season. Miss Elizabeth Biddlecome was chairman of the committee of arrangements.

High school football games yesterday resulted in victories for Dedham over Natick 12 to 0, Winchester over Chelsea 9 to 0, Melrose over Lawrence 22 to 0, Norwood over Attleboro 40 to 0, Beverly over Haverhill 6 to 0, New Bedford over Fall River 5 to 0, Abington over Powder Point 5 to 0.

The students at the East Boston high school are showing interest in soccer football, which was introduced there this fall by Fred L. O'Brien, one of the Boston high school instructors. The first call for candidates was issued yesterday and enough reported to make up four teams.

The New England history teachers' association will hold its annual fall meeting next Saturday at Simmons college. The guests will be Prof. F. J. Turner of Harvard and President F. W. Hamilton of Tufts. At the morning session, Prof. F. W. Taussig of Harvard will open the discussion on "Economics in the Secondary Schools." Luncheon will be served at the college. The collection of historical material has been arranged in rooms at the college where it can be inspected during the meeting.

TEACHERS' CONVENTION.

The sixty-fourth annual convention of the Norfolk County Teachers' Association will be held Friday, November 4, 1910, at Ford hall, Ashburton place, Boston, and Quincy teachers will attend.

A program has been arranged by the executive committee which promises to be interesting and profitable. The theme of the morning is "Training Hercules (1910) for his twelve labors (1910 and after)", or the adequacy of present day educational programs to prepare the child for meeting present day and future problems. This theme will be discussed by a clergyman, an educator, a professional man, a leader of oragnized labor, and a manufacturer. In the afternoon, President G. Stanley Hall of Clark University will give the principal address. The committee plans to make the musical part of the program attractive.

The expenses of the convention will be met as in former years, but in order to provide seats for the members of the association, it seems wise this year to issue tickets of admission both for the morning and afternoon sessions. These tickets will be furnished to those teachers who plan to attend, after the payment of the membership fee, which is twenty-five cents for women, and fifty cents for men. There will be a few tickets at fifty cents for non-members. These tickets can be procured of Superintendent Barbour. The official program of the convention will be issued to the superintendents several days before the date of the convention.

BOSTON--1915 PAGEANT.

Miss Lotta A. Clark, director of the Boston-1915 Pageant, "From Cave Life to City Life," in which 1,000 volunteer performers from Greater Boston will take part, says that in its most important aspect the pageant has already proved a success—three weeks before its production. The feature of the spectacle on which she lays stress is the preliminary rehearsing which has brought together so many unacquainted communities and strenthened the growth of the "Real Boston."

At noon on Saturday over 500 High school students will meet in the Boston Arena to practise the parts which they will take in the husking bees and quilting party episodes. These schools will be represented: East Boston, Brighton, Watertown, English High, Dorchester, Milton, Waltham, Woburn and Roxbury. Earlier in the day the High schools of Charlestown, Chelsea, Revere, Newton, Somerville, Cambridge, Melrose, and Everett will rehearse the minuet episode of the "Governor's Reception." Quincy High should have been represented. Here are only two of the daily rehearsals that are bringing together the ends of Greater Boston and drawing the attention of half a hundred diverse communities to the common needs of a greater city. The pageant will be given in the Arena on the evenings of Nov. 10, 11 and 12. Its purpose is to show graphically the various steps in city building and community life from the time of the cave man to the perfect city of the future. The production will be given in four "episodes" and will last for over three hours.

—There is only one logical answer to the argument of the clergyman who scornfully contrasts the salaries of clergymen with those of leading ball players. The answer is that the ball players draw more money at the gate.

A DEPTH OF 25 FEET

Required for Canal from Quincy to Narragansett

Water Commissioner Frank Fessenden Crane takes the same stand as Congressman W. S Greene and others that the canal from Fore river to Narragansett bay should be of a depth of 25 feet. His letter presents the situation forcibly:

Quincy, Oct. 26, 1910.

Col. F. V. Abbott,

Dear Sir:—As I understand the intent of the people who advocated a survey of an inland waterway from Beauford, North Carolina, to Boston, Massachusetts their purpose things. First, to connect two points that had good terminal facilities and a growing business, where the State or the Government had recognized the natural advantages and money had been spent to improve either the channels, harbor or docks. Second, to have such a connecting water way of sufficient depth to at once become a factor in reducing freight rates on the heavier commodities, and thus reduce the cost of raw material to our manufacturers, and the cost of living expenses to the people here on the Atlantic Seaboard.

The National Commission advise connecting such points as have good terminal advantages and business prospects. Narragansett Bay is at one end of this proposed waterway with Newport Harbor capable of holding the fleet, with a large coaling station at Bradford, and Fall River with a forty foot channel at its docks.

Providence proposes to spend four hundred and fifty thousand dollars on its harbor. The State of Rhode Island has voted half a million dollars for public docks. The N. Y., N. H. & Hartford R. R. is expected to spend about two million dollars on improved dock facilities near India Point. The Grand Trunk Railroad is understood to have in mind the preparation of docks for Ocean steamers.

When the dredging now in progress by the U. S. Government is finished Providence will have an anchorage area of one hundred and seventy-one acres with a uniform depth of twenty-five feet, and at the other end Boston with its eight million dollar channel, its U. S. Navy Yard, its Naval Magazine at Hingham, the largest and most up-to-date terminal on the Atlantic seaboard, at East Boston, with its million bushel grain elevator, its slips two hundred and fifty feet long, with a depth of thirty-five to forty feet. The terminal covering an area of one million eight hundred and eight-six thousand nine hundred and ninety-six square feet.

All these facts show preparation for larger vessels. A depth of at least twenty-five feet in the Narragansett Bay to Boston Harbor Canal is in my opinion imperative and necessary for the needs of New England commerce, and the necessity for each end of the canal to be a first class terminal port is no less important.

Respectfully yours,
Frank Fessenden Crane.

WEST QUINCY REVIVED.

Interesting and helpful services have been held this week at the Hall Place M. E. church in connection with the evangelistic movement of the Methodist churches of Greater Boston. Reports of great success come from all directions.

Wednesday night the meeting was no exception to previous nights. Richard H. Moyle brought the message of the hour, the need of being watchful in our Christian lives, being careful not to yield to the enemy of our soul who is standing over each of us trying to take us away from God, and exhorted all to keep their trust firmly rooted in Jesus Christ, for He alone can stay the tempter's power; He can keep us as He has saved us. Two more souls claimed the victory at the service and surrendered all to God.

Tonight the services will be held in the vestry as usual at 7.30. Friday night a service will also be held. Saturday there will be no services, and on Sunday at 7.30 P. M. Rev. G. F. Durgin of Boston will bring the message of the hour. A cordial welcome is extended to all.

two forces. Between the push of impulse and the pull of gravity the old earth keeps in its orbit. True congregationalism is governed by the similar combination of two forces. The local church is seeking realization of our possibilities, self sacrificing work in combination with brotherhood. If we have one and not the other there is a limit of our efficiency, and we have lost the cord that binds. There is too much of one cord bound so tightly that there is a plus, that means retrogration rather than progress. Before a congregation can have a vitalizing atmosphere there must be a sufficient aggregation to hold the spiritual atmosphere in which the soul can grow. Looking over the religious world we see where the atmosphere is too dense and the pressure excessive. Life on the spiritual side is therefore pressed into an abnormal condition. To have life we must be bound together by the vital cord. The world is passing judgment upon us. Not in the sense of outlook, but according to the measure of our output. It is not a question of appreciation but of obligation. It is a part of civilization to have that cord of love that draws to us and keeps us home. A church can succeed only as it is able to throw its effort by the simple cord and pull them in and lead them to higher ideals of the cross of Christ.

It was not in the speaker's heart to condemn, but he wished to impress a few things upon them that had come to him. One thing was how little one church seemed to know of the work of the church in the neighboring town. Each seems to be alone. We are not actively interested in the work of a toiling brother. The cord that binds that precious fellowship did not bind.

Have we not often assumed that a church must go because of change in population in its vicinity. If we depend upon men and women born and bred in the fold we would go to pieces. We must be maintained by those we are able to bring to us. There is too much indifference to new comers into the church. Are we interested enough in one another? These things ought not to be. Would it not be better if we could lay hold of that cord and come together and talk over our differences. See if we can not do something for the little church that is struggling to carry its burden. If we are to reach that larger field we must radiate ourselves as never before. So fill ourselves with zeal that the world will know we are in earnest. Learn to wear the yoke of Christ as well as to talk about the Sermon on the Mount. Let us close up the ranks and do something that shall show the Unitarian gospel is a message from on high.

The session closed with a discussion on the points brought out in the address, opened by Rev. George W. Cutter of Neponset.

ABSOLUTELY RIGHT.

A pretty young school marm who teaches a first-grade class in a school of the northeastern section of the city is telling a funny story on herself that happened just before the close of the term. She had some visitors on the afternoon in question, and thought she would show them what a good class she had. Calling on a bright little fellow at the rear of the room, she said to him: "Johnnie, if I give you 2 cents and your father gave you 3 cents, how much would you have?"

"Seven" promptly replied Johnnie.

The teacher blushed painfully, but thought that she would try again. "You can't have understood me, Johnnie. Now listen, and I will repeat the question. If I gave you 2 cents and your father gave you 3, how much would you have?"

"Seven" said Johnnie again, and with the same promptness.

"I am surprised at you, Johnnie," said the teacher. "How on earth would you have 7?"

"I got 2 in me pocket," said Johnnie.—Philadelphia Times.

SELLING AT COST.

A party of young people was camping in New England so far up that they felt almost over the "Canady line." The right kind of camping dishes had been brought, but one day somebody hooked a very big bass and then it was remembered that if it was baked and served in all its comely fairness, there was no platter to put it on.

Two of the company walked six miles to the store to see what could be done in the way of china.

They found the store, very small, and very much obscured by dusty windows. An old man, who was apparently the owner, was sitting on the platform without, reading a yellow newspaper, crumpled and torn. He looked as if the surrounding dearth of salable goods might exactly suit him. They passed him and he followed them.

"Have you a platter?" they asked.

"Platter?"

"Yes, a common white platter, nothing stylish."

He took off one pair of spectacles and put them in his pocket. Then he extracted another pair from a corresponding pocket on the other side and fitted them to his nose.

"Yes," he conceded, with a certain mild tolerance of trade, "I guess I can fit you out."

He vanished down the stairs at the back of the store and presently reappeared, bearing with some pride a good sized platter.

"Wrap it up and we'll take it along. How much is it?"

He frowned over his laborious manipulation of paper and string.

"A dollar and a half," said he.

"A dollar and a half! That white platter. Oh, come! we wanted something cheap."

The old man paused in his fitting of paper about the oval.

"I ain't got a thing that's cheaper," he said, mildly. "This is the only platter there is in stock."

"Well, can't you take off something?"

He turned the platter over and in an earnest pondering scrutinized the back.

"It don't seem as if I could," he mused. "That's jest what that platter cost me the second year o' the war."

PLOT TO RUIN FRANCE

Briand Says He Has Proof of Conspiracy That Failed

Paris, Oct. 27.—On the reassembling of the chamber of deputies after the government had been attacked by the Socialists, Premier Briand created something like a sensation by declaring that he had proof, through confessions of the leaders of the recent railroad strike, that there was a deliberate plot to ruin France by violence, anarchy and civil war.

In concluding his address the premier said that the cabinet was studying a plan to prevent a repetition of such strikes while at the same time guarding the legitimate rights of wage earners.

President Fallieres and the members of the cabinet are being guarded constantly as the result of the appearance of the anarchistic circular condemning the ministers to death because of the conviction in the courts of the militant members among the railway strikers.

OLD-FASHIONED CEREMONY

Quaker Rites Observed at Wedding of a Young Couple

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 27.—An old-fashioned Quaker wedding ceremony, now seldom used, in which the minister has no other duties than to read from the Scriptures after the bride and bridegroom have married themselves, was used at the marriage last night of Miss Marion G. Smith to Timothy E. Garland.

The ceremony was performed at the Friends' chapel in the presence of 250 guests. The bride and groom both live in Swampscott, where they will make their home after their wedding trip.

The ceremony used consisted of spoken pledges by the young couple, no others speaking until after they had formally pronounced themselves man and wife. Then four witnesses signed the register and Rev. George G. Williams, pastor of the church, read from the Scriptures.

$20,000 COVERED BY DRAPER MONEY

Lawson Says He Has Plenty More to Bet on Foss

Boston, Oct. 27.—In an open letter to Governor Draper Thomas W. Lawson admits that he has wagered large sums on the state election, and is prepared to bet much more for his client, whom he will advise to increase the odds to two or three to one.

Although Lawson exonerates Candidate Foss from all implication in the gambling enterprise, and further acknowledges that he was acting for "a Republican who has given the Republican party much," he refrains from telling who this mysterious client is. In his letter he reiterates again and again Foss' innocence and ignorance of the enterprise in every particular.

Edward F. McSweeney, private secretary to Lawson, said that so far $20,000 of the Lawson fund has been covered at even by Draper money, and $900 more more has been covered at odds of 11 to 9. But now there is such a dearth of Draper capital that heavy odds are demanded by its holders.

DAUGHTER IS SOLE HEIR

Estate of Mark Twain Is Found to Reach Total of $611,135

Redding, Conn., Oct. 27.—The inventory of the estate of Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain), as returned by the appraisers to the probate court, shows that the author and humorist left a fortune of $611,135. The copyright values of the Mark Twain books appear nowhere in the list.

The explanation of this is that these values are grouped in the valuation placed upon the assets of the Mark Twain company, which was incorporated before the author's death, and to which all the copyrights were assigned. This company is down on the inventory list at $200,000.

The sole heir of the estate is the only surviving daughter, now the wife of Ossip Gabrilowitsch, the Russian pianist.

Loud, that a conservator be appointed to care for her estate and business interests, by selecting Henry A. Baker of Rockland as the conservator.

In her later years Miss Loud, long well known in this section for her caustic editorials, has confessed to loss of the physical and mental vigor that won her renown in other days.

GIRL IN COFFIN PREY OF FLAMES

Fire Starts When Friend Bends Over to Kiss Corpse

LIGHTED CANDLE IS UPSET

Drapery of Casket Instantly Wrapped In Flames Which Spread to Inflammable Material In Room and Drive Out Occupants—Panic-Stricken People Unable to Do Anything to Save Coffin or Its Contents

Boston, Oct. 27.—When a young woman bent over to kiss the forehead of her dead friend, Miss Letletezia Di Napoli, at the funeral on the second floor of 6 Hull street, North End, a candle was upset, the drapery of the casket caught fire in a flash, consternation reigned among the mourners inside and outside the house, and before the flames could be controlled, the casket and its contents had been reduced to ashes.

The dead young woman was 19 years old. She was well known in the North End. In the room when the friends were taking their farewells were about a dozen men and women. In the street in carriages were probably a hundred friends, waiting to accompany the procession to the cemetery.

When the candle fell and ignited the drapery of the casket there was a cry of fright from those in the room. They were so astounded that for a time no one could act. When they tried to put out the blaze the flames had gained great headway.

The flames wrapped about the coffin, leaped at the inflammable material in the room and forced the occupants out for their lives.

Occupants of the house, which is four stories in height, ran in a panic into the street. They communicated the startling news that the dead girl was being burned in her coffin. Men and women stood about, helpless, awed to inaction.

The excitement spread in this populous section of the city, and an immense cerowd gathered about the building. Patrolmen Walsh and Flynn wee called. A fire alarm was rung and soon the firemen clattered up.

When the flames had been drowned out it was found that the casket was but a pile of ashes. An undertaker carefully gathered up what remained and it was prepared for burial.

The young woman died Tuesday after a prolonged illness. The casket was to have been taken to the Sacred Heart church, North square, where a service was to have been held, previous to interment.

THREE SUSPECTS TAKEN

Police Think They Have Men Concerned In Los Angeles Explosion

San Francisco, Oct. 27.—According to a report from Acapulco, Mex., three dyanmite suspects have been taken there in connection with the Los Angeles Times explosion. The men were arrested on the arrival there of the Pacific Mail liner San Juan.

The suspects, the dispatch continues, are believed to be the men who purchased the 500 pounds of explosive from the Giant Powder company at Giant, Cal., on Sept. 17.

These three men, according to advices, boarded the steamship San Juan at San Francisco on Oct. 15. At that time they gave assumed names, and the man who is believed to be "Smithy" did not appear when the tickets were purchased for the Isthmus.

HAS ABNORMAL APPETITE

Means by Which Escaped Lunatic Is Identified and Caught

Brunswick, Me., Oct. 27.—A man's voracious appetite led to his identification here when all else failed, even his own memory. As a result, R. C. Day, who escaped from the McLean insane hospital on Sept. 8, was returned to that institution.

Reading of the remarkable appetite of a man who had been found living a wild life in the woods near here, officials of the McLean hospital believed they had located Day, who had exhibited abnormal gastronomic proclivities during his two years' stay at the hospital. Two attendants of the institution were sent here and made the identification.

GLAD GIRL IS FREE

Crippen Regains Composure When Miss Leneve Is Acquitted

London, Oct. 27.—Dr. H. H. Crippen, under death sentence for the murder of his wife, has recovered much of his composure. He was highly pleased to learn that his sweetheart, Ethel Leneve, had been acquitted of the charge of being an accessory after the fact.

Jail attendants declare that Crippen was light-hearted for the first time since his incarceration when he learned of Miss Leneve's acquittal.

Turkey Places Its Loan

HELP NEEDED IN OHIO

Two Members of Taft's Cabinet Are to Take the Stump

Washington, Oct. 27.—In the hope of stemming the Democratic tide before election day, two members of President Tafts's cabinet will be sent into Ohio to help out the Republican campaign. Secretary of State Knox will deliver a speech at Cincinnati on Nov. 1, and one at Columbus on the following night; Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh will pay a flying visit to Ohio the latter part of next week and take up the work where Knox leaves off. He will deliver two addresses in the up-state district before returning to Washington.

The selection of the speakers from the cabinet came as a result of an urgent request from State Chairman Laylin, who appealed to Knox.

The decision to send MacVeagh into Ohio is evidence that the administration is determined to have its position in the tariff understood in the strongest protectionist territory in the country.

THEFT OF POSTAL FUNDS

Charged Against Young Assistant Postmistress at Walpole

Boston, Oct. 27.—Miss Ethel P. Carpenter, known to every resident of Walpole as the assistant postmistress, was arraigned yesterday, charged with embezzling $170.26 of the postal money order funds.

Miss Carpenter, who is 21 years old, and who looks and talks like a big overgrown country girl, pleaded not guilty in the midst of a flood of tears when arraigned before Commissioner Hayes in Boston.

She said that she did not have a friend in the world to whom she could appeal to for assistance to keep her from going to jail. Her story touched the heart of the commissioner and of Assistant United States District Attorney Garland, who finally decided to continue her case until Nov. 3, and permitted her to return to Walpole without furnishing bail.

WILL PROVE A BOON TO "GLAD HANDERS"

New Jersey Man Invents an Artificial Hand to Shake

Paterson, N. J., Oct. 27.—George Hammeron of this city has come out with the statement that after six years of hard labor he has perfected a forearm and hand that so resembles a natural limb that one, unless told so, cannot detect the difference.

In a few days a number of politicians, leaders of things political in this state, as well as men in public life throughout the country, will receive complimentary arms and be asked to use them.

Hammeron's idea is to prevent paralysis from handshaking. Men who daily have to shake hundreds of hands may find relief in his new invention, he declares. The forearm and wrist are made of cork and painted a flesh color. The hand is made of a flexible substance, and no matter how enthusiastic a person may be in shaking hands, he cannot squeeze the extra member out of shape.

Hammeron has taken precaution to arrange a heating apparatus which will make the hand warm at all times. The finger nails are perfect and even the lines in the hand and hair on the back of the hand are provided.

QUITS AS MANAGER

Dooin Will Not Stand For Dictation of Fogel and Murphy

Philadelphia, Oct. 27.—Charles W. Dooin last night resigned as manager of the Phillies. He refused to accept the dictation of Horace Fogel, president of the club, and of "Chubby Charlie" Murphy of Chicago, the alleged power behind the throne. Dooin may remain as catcher for the Phillies, but he prefers to quit the club entirely.

He is under contract for two years as catcher. His contract for this position calls for a $5000 salary. As manager Dooin was on a graduated scale. The smallest he was to receive was $6500 a year, and this was to be increased to $12,000 should the Phillies win the championship.

ARTHUR HEINZE IN TOMBS

To Serve Ten Days For Obstructing Administration of Justice

New York, Oct. 27.—Within a half hour after Arthur P. Heinze, convicted of obstructing the administration of justice, surrendered to United States Marshal Henkle he was in the Tombs prison, ready to serve a ten days' sentence.

The convicted man is a brother of Fritz A. Heinze. He was convicted for assisting Tracy Buckingham, a witness wanted by the federal grand jury, to go to Canada. He was sentenced to ten days in prison and ordered to pay a fine of $250.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Mrs. Gabrielle Greeley Clendenin, daughter of Horace Greeley, has the wooden type case at which Mr. Greeley learned the printing trade.

Although Miss Clara Barton, the founder of the Red Cross society in the United States, is ninety-one, she still takes personal charge of one of the branches of the society.

Mrs. Harriet M. Martin of Newcastle, N. H., who is ninety-three years old, is the oldest "office girl" in the world, it is believed. For many years she has been in charge of a doctor's office in that town.

Mrs. Arnold Lawson, daughter-in-law of Thomas Lawson, financier, has become a confirmed dog fancier. She has bought several fancy priced dogs, with which she means to make a try for prizes in the Boston dog show.

Mrs. Jesse W. Tobey, who is the head of the millinery department of the household arts school of Columbia university, says that the woman who knows how to make her own hats is better equipped for life work than the woman who knows only algebra and geometry or the one who knows about votes.

Mme. Sarah Bernhardt's debut on the variety stage at the London Coliseum was another triumph to be added to that actress' already long list. She appeared in the second act of "L'Aiglon." It was said to be almost impossible to realize that the youthful Napoleon II. of the stage is a grandmother in private life.

Endorsed at Home

Such Proof as This Should Convince Any Quincy Citizen.

The public endorsement of a local citizen is the best proof that can be produced. None better, none stronger can be had. When a man comes forward and testifies to his fellow-citizens, addresses his friends and neighbors, you may be sure he is thoroughly convinced or he would not do so. Telling one's experience when it is for the public good is an act of kindness that should be appreciated. The following statement given by a resident of Quincy adds one more to the many cases of Home Endorsement which are being published about Doan's Kidney Pills. Read it.

John R. Duffy, 14 Copeland St., Quincy, Mass., says: "I am so favorably impressed with Doan's Kidney Pills that it gives me pleasure to recommend them to anyone suffering from kidney complaint. I am fully convinced that this remedy will do all that it is claimed to do. If anyone would like to obtain further details regarding my case I will be glad to answer any questions."

KING VICTOR SHEDS TEARS

Deeply Moved at Work of Destruction by the Elements

HE VISITS THE STORM CENTRE

Mud Buries Streets to Height of Eighteen Feet In Some Towns—Number of Dead Is at Least Two Hundred—Minister of Marine Has Exciting Experience at Ischia—Famine and Pestilence Feared

Naples, Oct. 27.—King Victor Emmanuel, accompanied by his first aide, General Brusati, Admiral Garelli and Count Mattioli-Pasqualini, minister of the royal household, arrived here from Rome. The king wept as he looked upon the ruins of the great storm and volcano eruption.

"My heart has been touched so deeply by the sufferings of my people that I am unable to resist an impulse to share their misfortune," said he in answer to the acclaim of the populace.

The known death list is now 192, although relief workers are still unable to get near the ruins in many places to investigate how many more bodies lie beneath the wreckage.

Famine and pestilence threaten the unharmed residents of Ischia island and the zone devastated by cloudburst, tidal waves and volcanic eruption. The government has received reports from other sections adding details to the horror.

In some of the towns mud buries streets to a height of eighteen feet. In others streets have been completely washed out, all the buildings falling. Further means of communication have been established.

The towns chiefly damaged are Casamiccola, Lacco, Ameno, Positano, Torre Del Graceo, Recina, Portici and Cetara.

Between 90 and 100 corpses have been recovered. Official advices to Rome led the home office to set the number of dead at 200, although this estimate is believed to be far too conservative.

Admiral Leonardi, the minister of marine, narrowly escaped death while leading a relief party in Ischia. He sank to his waist in a bed of mud, which flowed through the streets of the town. A rope was thrown to him and he was pulled out.

The minister of marine was mobbed at Ischia by the hunger-crazed people who had everything swept away. Tents and foodstuffs have been sent by ships.

The bulk of the residents of the island are showing the same panicky fear as those at Messina at the time of the great earthquake. The soldiers who were ordered to do relief work have had a serious task in keeping the panic-stricken people in check.

UPRISING IN MINDANAO

Troops Are Being Rushed to Hotbed of Philippine Insurgency

Manila, P. I., Oct. 27.—All available United States soldiers have been ordered to southwestern Mindanao, where two bands of Manobos tribesmen are in revolt on the west coast of Davao. A number of planters, including Earl Gerr, an American, have been killed. Brigadier General Pershing has left to command the reinforcement.

Mindanao is the southernmost of the Philippine Islands. Davao forms the southern division. Zamboanga, the military headquarters, is 200 miles by sea from the scene of the outlawry.

Mindanao has been the hotbed of insurgency ever since the islands proclaimed allegiance to the United States.

TO REGENERATE GREECE

King George Has the Entire Sympathy of His Subjects

Athens, Oct. 27.—Deputies favorable to King George and willing to carry out his policies will be elected to the Greek assembly at the general elections, which have been ordered for Dec. 11.

King George will regenerate Greece, with the help of his followers, by revising the constitution and carrying out a set legislative program for reforms in business and political affairs. The sympathy of the people is entirely with the king, who is responsible for the revolt which led to the dissolution of the old assembly. The new assembly will be convoked on Jan. 21.

Lafollette Returns Home

Man Who Shot Dreyfus Is Dead

Paris, Oct. 27.—Lewis A. Gregori, the military writer, who shot Major Dreyfus in the breast on the occasion of the transfer of the remains of Zola to the Patheon on June 4, 1908, is dead.

SAMUEL P. COLT
Head of Rubber Trust
May Succeed Aldrich

AS ALDRICH'S SUCCESSOR

Colt Has the Lead In Rhode Island Senatorial Race

Providence, Oct. 27.—As election approaches the candidacy of Samuel P. Colt, head of the United States Rubber company, for the United States senate as the successor of Senator Aldrich, who has announced his intention of retiring at the end of his present term, appears to be gaining steadily.

Two others who have been named for the senatorship are Henry F. Lippett, a millionaire cotton manufacturer, and Robert I. Gammell, also one of the wealthiest manufacturers of the state.

Senator Aldrich is expected to use his influence to bring about harmony, and the opinion is growing that an adjustment of differences will result in a recognition of Colt's candidacy.

HUB NEGRO CHOSEN FOR HIGH POSITION

Lewis to Be Assistant United States Attorney General

Washington, Oct. 27.—Unusual recognition is to be given the negro race by President Taft, through the appointment of William H. Lewis of Boston as an assistant attorney general of the United States. The appointment has been agreed upon by the president and Attorney General Wickersham.

Mr. Lewis is at present an assistant to the United States district attorney at Boston, and is a graduate of Amherst and Harvard. He was a famous athlete.

The administration has been working out a policy in the matter of appointment of negroes to federal offices. Mr. Napier of Tennessee is to become register of the treasury on Feb. 1; Winfield McKinley has been made collector of the port at Georgetown, D. C.; former Governor Pinchbeck of Louisiana has been appointed to a $3500 place in the revenue service at New York, and Charles A. Cottrill of Toledo is to be collector of customs at Honolulu.

WARSHIP BLOWS UP

Seventy Men, Inluding Ten Generals, Lost When Gunboat Sinks

Port au Prince, Hayti, Oct. 27.—The Haytien gunboat Liberte was lost at sea off Port de Paix, following an explosion on board. Seventy persons were either killed or drowned. Twenty others were rescued.

The Liberte sailed from this port on Monday last, having on board ninety persons. Only twenty of these escaped. Among the seventy who were lost were ten Haytien generals who were on their way to take command of several divisions of troops in the department of the north.

Details are lacking, the only definite information being as to the loss of life and the fact that an explosion occurred.

KISS VALUED AT $500

Verdict Returned by Superior Court Jury Upheld at Providence

Providence, Oct. 27.—By a rescript handed down in the case of Susan E. Chapin against Mardiros M. Stone, the supreme court holds that the price placed by the jury, namely $500, upon the value of a kiss was not excessive.

Mrs. Chapin sued to recover damages for alleged assault and battery. According to her testimony when the case was tried in the superior court, she was suddenly seized by the defendant in his grocery store and compelled to submit to his embrace and a kiss. The force used by the man was sufficient, it was testified, to cause her to became black and blue.

DESCENDED IN WILDERNESS

Balloonists Had Hoped to Reach Coast of Labrador

POST AND HAWLEY ARE SAFE

Establish a World's Record For Sustained Flight by Traveling 1350 Miles—Reach Civilization After Week's Battle Through Wilds of Northern Quebec—Both In Good Health and on Way to New York

Quebec, Oct. 27.—Landing in the wilderness about 250 miles north of Quebec on Oct. 19, with their balloon, America II, Messrs. Hawley and Post, the last of the ten crews which started from St. Louis last week Monday in the international balloon competition for the James Gordon Bennett cup, reached civilization after just one week's battle through the wilds of northern Quebec.

They have established a new world's record for continued flight, 1350 miles. Hawley and Post reached St. Ambroise via forest, lake and stream, and from this small village the glad tidings of the safety of the two men for whom searching parties are at present scouring all of the backwoods of Canada was first given the outside world.

Augustus Post sent the following message:

"We had a beautiful trip. We had hopes that we would be able to continue the trip until we struck the Labrador coast.

"Unfortunately, about 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, the 19th, a storm came up and it became necessary to make a landing. We picked out a mountain and came down upon it. As it was a considerable distance from any settlement, we decided to pass the night in the basket of the balloon."

The men left St. Ambroise for Chicoutimi at 4:30 p. m. yesterday by vehicle and will likely come to Quebec and return to New York by way of Montreal.

Both are reported safe and sound and in good health. St. Ambroise, where the men first reported, is forty miles north of Chicoutimi, while Chicoutimi is 227 miles from Quebec by rail.

Quebec has been much interested in the whereabouts of Hawley and Post, and trappers and guides from the northern part of the province have been hurrying to the city for the past two days to join searching parties which were being organized here to look for the missing men.

Made World's Record

New York, Oct. 27.—Alvin R. Hawley and Augustus Post have established a new world's record for sustained flight. They traveled approximately 1350 miles. All the other balloons had been previously reported.

Two messages from Hawley and Post were received in New York last night. One was to William Hawley, brother of the aeronaut, the other to Samuel F. Perkins, pilot of the balloon Dusseldorf II, which until last night had been considered the winner.

The message to Hawley said: "Landed in wilderness week ago, 50 miles north of Chicoutimi. Both well."

The Perkins message ran: "Landed Peribonka river, north Lake Chilogona, 19th. All well. Returning."

With receipt of the news there ended a search which had come to be regarded by many as almost hopeless and in which the governments of this country and Canada were indirectly participating.

In addition to emissaries sent by the Aero Club of St. Louis, the Aero Club of America and by William Hawley, the United States revenue cutter service, the signal corps of the army, the Hudson Bay company and other agents were conducting the search, scouring the great lakes and making preparations for entering the almost impenetrable Canadian forests.

Clifford B. Harmon had offered $1000 to anyone finding Hawley and Post, dead or alive, and this sum had been increased last night by subscription to more than $7000.

At the international aviation meet at Belmont park, nearly $2000 was subscribed among the aviators yesterday afternoon.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. For Business Use

There are a great many places and occasions when the possibility of getting extra heat immediately effects an economy by decreasing the discomfort of the worker. In the office, in the early morning or late at night, before or after the steamheat is on, it is of importance to have extra heat. In the builder's outside office, in the shipping room, in the checker's shack, on exposed lofts, in railroad stations, in studios, the

Absolutely smokeless and odorless

is often a necessity. It is safe, smokeless and odorless. Apply a match, and it gives heat quickly. With four quarts of oil it burns nine hours. Has automatic-locking flame spreader, which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back so that the wick can be cleaned in an instant.

It has a cool handle and a damper top. An indicator always shows the amount of oil in the font. The filler-cap it is put in like a cork in a bottle, and is attached to the font by a chain.

The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, because of a new device in construction, and consequently, it can always be easily unscrewed in an instant for rewicking.

The Perfection Oil Heater is finished in japan or nickel. It is strong, durable, well made, built for service, yet light and ornamental.

He was hurried to the City Hospital but the surgeons pronounced him dead.

He had stuffed the keyhole and cracks with paper covered with mucilage. A note was found addressed to John Hall, undertaker, Quincy, requesting him to tell John S. Phillips of 108 Broad street to have the Red Men at the grave in "Uncle John Thayer's lot in the Plain street cemetery, South Braintree, Mass. No services except the Red Mens." The note was signed Edward E. Jackson. There was also a sealed letter addressed to Miss Jessie M. Nicholls, Auburn, Mass.

HALLOWE'EN.

When October's getting older,
And the days are getting colder,
When the leaves grow red and rustle,
When the weather makes us hustle.
Then we think of Hallowe'en.

When the days are dark and dreary,
And the even'ng fires are cheery,
When the frost begins to bite us,
And the northern wind to smite us
Then we think of Hallowe'en.

When the pumpkins get so mellow
That it sort o' makes a fellow
Wish Thanksgiving time were nearer,
Wish the weather colder, clearer,
Then look out for Hallowe'en.

When the turkey starts to fatten.
And its feathers get like satin,
When the squirrel's in the thicket,
And when home has gone the cricket,
Comes the spell of Hallowe'en.

Then we gather round the fire
As the flames leap high and higher,
And we watch for ghosts and witches,
Stories tell of love and riches,
So we keep our Hallowe'en.

BRAINTREE'S NEW SCHOOL

Abraham Lincoln Building Dedicated

In spite of the violent thunder storm Tuesday evening, there was a large number of people present at the dedication of the Abraham Lincoln school on Hobart street, East Braintree. The exercises were held in the school hall which was filled with teachers, pupils, parents and friends. The walls were festooned with bunting and at the back of the platform was a portarit of Lincoln, the martyr president, draped with the national ensign.

Mr. H. F. Kneeland, chairman of the school committee, traced in his introductory remarks a little history of the march of education in Braintree, the erection of the different school houses and congratulated the citizens of the town on their wisdom and far sightedness in planning and erecting the Lincoln school. He introduced Mr. G. H. Holbrook, chairman of the building committee, who outlined the work of that body, spoke of some of the obstacles encountered before the completion of the structure. Mr. Holbrook concluded by thanking his fellow members on the committee for their co-operation and assistance. He then presented the keys of the building to Mr. H. M. Storm of East Braintree, chairman of the board of selectmen.

Mr. Storm replied briefly and in turn presented the keys to Mrs. Carrie F. Loring of East Braintree, a most efficient and hard working member of the school board. Mrs. Loring replied in her usual graceful manner, telling how she had been similarly honored sixteen years ago at the dedicatory exercises of the Jonas Perkins school, East Braintree, and renewed her pledge to the townspeople, promising them her best efforts now as always in safeguarding the welfare of their children. Mrs. Loring concluded by reciting a poem on "Lincoln."

The dedicatory address, by Rev. Daniel Roy Freeman, pastor of All Souls' church, Braintree, dwelt largely on the life and achievements of the great statesman, Lincoln, and was heard with pleasure and profit by all present.

At the end of the exercises, the building was inspcted by many and found to be not only pleasing to the eye but most excellently equipped for its special work. There is a fire escape for each room and the pupils do not have to have recourse to the main corridors. The new bubble drinking fountains were a noticeable feature.

The building is well lighted, heated and ventilated and the sanitary arrangements are perfect. There is a fine large assembly hall and large ante rooms are provided and all is planned for the comfort and well being of the scholars. The members of the building committee were Messrs. H. F. Kneeland, A. A. Carson, Paul Monaghan, C. A. Hayward, T. A. Watson, H. M. Storm, O. B. Oakman, J. W. West and G. H. Holbrook.

BUBBLE FOUNTAIN.

A public bubble drinking fountain has been attached to the fountain in City Square, so that pedestrians may quench their thirst without danger of coming in contact with the various germs that physicians say come by the public use of a cup. Water has not been turned on in the fountain so that animals may quench their thirst as yet, and they must go dry for a time or be supplied in some other manner. They however can be supplied at the fountain if the teamsters carry their own buckets, for in addition to the bubble fountain is a faucet from which buckets may readily be filled.

had a jolly good time. Although there was a tremendous crowd present there seemed to be plenty of room. The newness of the old fashioned custom brought out many who would not have attended an ordinary sort of entertainment. Mr. H. H. I. Smith and Fred Smith, his son, were masters of ceremonies and much praise is due them for the excellent manner which the husking was run off. The ladies served the supper and their reputation for being hospitable entertainers was not damaged a bit.

The uniqueness of the scheme brought the crowd and the hospitality of the hosts and hostesses kept it there until long after 10 o'clock. The few automobiles in the yard looked out of place, where chaises and carryalls might well be expected, but there were only a few and probably their owners had good excuses.

The night was right, the place was right and the people were all out for a good time and they all had it. Nothing more need be said.

NOVEL PLANS FOR NEW BIG LEAGUE

Promoter Fletcher Is Simply Dealing In Baseball Talent.

HAS LITTLE PERSONAL MONEY

His Scheme Is to Sign Star Players, Place Ten on Each Club and Then Sell Franchise to Wealthy Men—Ball Tossers to Receive $10,000 Bonuses.

On D. A. Fletcher's gift of gab depends the success or failure of the proposed new baseball league, which, if it becomes a reality, will be a rival to the two major organizations now in existence.

The promoter is not at all backward about explaining his scheme to any one who is curious to know it. In substance it is something like this: Mr. Fletcher does not claim to have a large personal fortune, nor does he claim to have backing enough now to finance such a venture, although he says he has interested enough wealthy men in the plan to give him a good start.

His first move is to get the signatures of enough big league stars to his contract so that he will not have to worry about lack of high class ball players when the time comes. All this fall he will hustle around among the athletes and try to persuade them to sign. His contract, the present one, is in the nature of an option, and there will be another one when or if the league materializes.

Will Give Them Large Bonus.

When a player signs the option he signs an agreement to put his signature on the other contract when it is presented to him in February, and for this second signing he will receive a bonus of $10,000. That sounds like a lot of money when you consider the number of players who will receive bonuses, but in reality it isn't so much. If a man tried to buy the men outright from the major league club owners there are few of them he could get for less than that sum. Instead of making useless offers to the magnates for their services Fletcher buys the players from themselves, and $10,000 is the purchase price.

It is Fletcher's intention to get signed options from about eighty of the best major leaguers. Then he will divide the eighty into eight teams of ten players each, filling out the teams with Class A men and youngsters from the college, etc. Of course these latter will not get in on the largest bonuses. When he has gathered his men he will go to wealthy men in each city which he intends to invade, show them the club they can have if they will pay the price and tell them just how much it will cost.

Fletcher's Clever Scheme.

For instance, Fletcher might take a list composed of Overall, Brown, Sheckard, Schulte, Hofman, Zimmerman, White, Walsh, Sullivan and Tannehill, with a few youngsters thrown in, to a Chicago capitalist, sell this list to him for $150,000, pay the bonuses out of this sum and have some left for himself. The purchaser, of course, would have to expend another $100,000 or $200,000 for a ball park. At the latter figure he would be investing $350,000. Mr. Fletcher figures that there are several wise capitalists, wise to the value of a baseball franchise, who would willingly part with $500,000 if they could own a major league club in a city like Chicago. In other towns his method of procedure would be the same.

The chief difficulty confronting Fletcher is to convince the players that they will not get into any trouble by signing provided the league should fall through. He contends that he will have so many stars signed up that the powers of organized baseball could not suspend or fire all of them without disrupting the present major league.

Claims He Has Stars Signed.

At present the promoter is said to have the signatures of many of the best men in the game. There is no doubt he is in earnest and that $10,000 in a lump is a mighty good looking thing to the average athlete. None of the Cubs is in on the venture despite Mr. Fletcher's effort to land them. They are too busy just now counting the receipts from the world's series.

Ball Players to Race Autos.

There is every possibility that two famous ball players, Ty Cobb of the American league and Nap Rucker of the National league, will meet in an automobile race of some length on the famous Atlanta speedway during the week of Nov. 5, when the big speed carnival is to occur.

Alfred Shrubb Ready For Races.

Alfred Shrubb, the English short distance champion runner, who is coaching the Harvard university cross country squad, may again enter the list of competitors in meets around Boston against well known professionals, as his leg is said to be stronger.

Still Kicking About New Football Rules

Every day brings some new protest against the intermissions between the first and second and the third and fourth playing periods. The coaches don't like it. It slows up the game for the spectators, and the doctors say it doesn't help any.

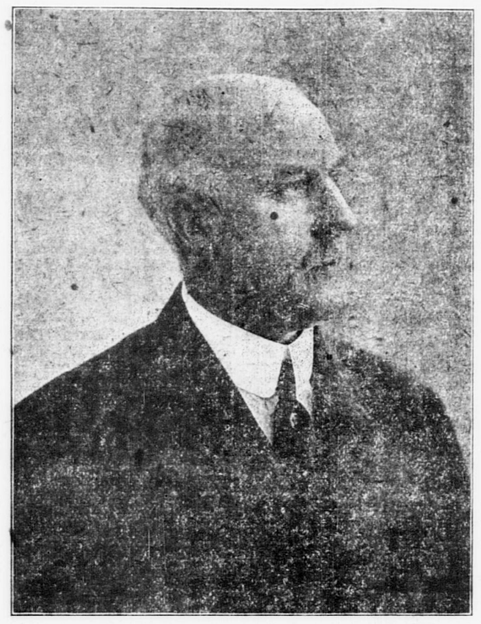
MAYOR SHEA WILL SEEK REELECTION

First Time That a Quincy Mayor Has Entered Field for a Fourth Term



Nomination papers were taken out this morning for Mayor Shea as the Democratic candidate for Mayor at the coming municipal caucuses. He thus has the distinction of being the first Mayor to try for a fourth term. It has been generally understood for some time that Mayor Shea would be a candidate for reelection, although he has not publicly stated such to be the case. The taking out of nomination papers, however, removes all doubt as to his intentions.

The following summary of Quincy Mayors shows that four have been elected for three years—Messrs. Fairbanks, Bryant, Thompson and Shea.

CHANGE OF SPEAKERS.

It is to be regretted that the committee in charge of the mass meeting in the interests of civic advance under the auspices of Boston-1915, to be held Thursday evening, Nov. 17, in Alpha hall, have been unable to secure Miss O'Reilley and Guy Ham as was desired. Mr. Abrahams of the Boston Central Labor Union will, however, be present, and the committee will secure two other speakers equally as prominent. Just who these speaks will be has not been definitely settled, but probably will be at a meeting of the executive committee which has been called for next Thursday evening at the rooms of the Board of Trade.

TODAY'S COURT.

Gervasio Mezzatti was arraigned for drunkenness and for assault on his wife Maria Mezzatti at Quincy. He was held in $100 for drunkenness and $3,000 for assault until Nov. 8, to await the result of his wife's injuries. Francisco Pizani was fined $15 for creating a disturbance of the street cars at Quincy.

LADIES' NIGHT OF KNIGHTS

Entertain with Music, Whist and Refreshments

enjoyable occasion. The affair was held in Colonial hall Thursday evening, and sociability reigned supreme from 8 to 12 o'clock. It was entirely devoid of formality, and all entered into the spirit of the evening with a zest.

Each knight constituted himself a committee of one on the reception committee, and saw that everybody had a good time. Banded together as

The ladies' night tendered by Quincy council, Knights of Columbus, to their lady friends, was a pronounced success in every way, and proved a very one large brotherhood the members vied with each other in their attention to the ladies. There was a very large attendance, and while a larger part were attracted by the dancing in Colonial hall, others preferred a quiet game of whist in the club rooms on the upper floor.

Joyce's orchestra furnished the music, and between the dances there was a number of musical numbers. These included vocal solos by Miss Helen Galvin, Albert L. Mills and Charles E. Mills; a vocal duet by Albert L. Mills and Charles E. Mills, and humorous talks by Fred McDonald. All of these numbers were finely rendered, and the contributors were obliged to respond to the demand for encores.

Later in the evening light refreshments were served in the club room. The room had recently passed through the hands of renovators and looked particularly attractive.

The committee who had the affair in charge and to whom success was due were:—Edward P. Misten, E. D. Barrett and Peter M. Sullivan.

SPECIAL OF CITY COUNCIL

Asked to Act on Two Water Loan Orders

Mayor Shea has issued a call for a special meeting of the City Council for next Monday evening. There are but two matters in the call, namely to take action on the order appropriating $10,000 for water meters, and the order appropriating $10,000 for water extension.

The case against the city for failing to comply with the law relative to the installation of water meters comes up in court next Tuesday morning. If at that time it can be shown that the city has made an appropriation for that purpose it is probable that the case will be nol prossed. If the appropriation is not made it is hard to tell what will happen. Possibly the city may be compelled to pay the fine fixed by law for failure to install meters.

As for the order for extension of the water system, it is understood that the city has a large number of applications for water service, particularly at Squantum which it can not install for lack of funds.

The two orders in question are now before the Finance committee, a meeting of which has been called for Monday evening, just previous to the meeting of the City Council.

—There are now 17,316 Red Men, not Indians but members of the Improved Order of Red Men. The Great Sun council met in Boston on Thursday John W. Converse of Somerville was elected great sachem.

MODEL INITIATION AT QUINCY POINT

The New Men's Club of Point Church Successfully Inaugurated

Wollaston M. E. Club Do the Honors

Over 50 men gathered in the vestry of the Washington Street Congregational church Thursday evening to organize a men's club. An organizing committee has been at work for some time getting ready for this opening meeting and their efforts met with great success. The constitution suggested by this committee was adopted with one or two slight changes.

Article 1—The club shall be named the "Point Church Men's club."

Article 2—The object of the club shall be the promotion of a spirit of friendly intercourse amongst the members for social, moral and intellectual benefit.

Article 3—Any man of good moral standing who is over 18 years of age will be eligible for membership, and shall be admitted a member on payment of the annual dues.

Article 4—The club shall meet regularly on the last Wednesday of every month from October to April inclusive, unless otherwise ordered by the executive committee. The April meeting shall be the annual business meeting. A special meeting of the club may be called at any time by the executive committee, due notice of same being given by the secretary.

Article 5—Club shall be governed by a committee of seven, consisting of a president, vice president, secretary and treasurer and three members, who shall be elected by ballot at the annual business meeting.

Article 6—These rules may be amended by a majority of two-thirds of the members present and voting at any meeting of the club, provided notice of amendment has been given at the preceding meeting of the club.

It was voted that the dues for the year 1910-11 be $1, and further, that the matter of assessment be left to the executive committee.

At the election of officers the following men were chosen for year:—President, J. W. Hendrie; vice president, W. E. Lee; secretary, J. F. roach; treasurer, J. Peterson. Three members of executive committee, P. H. Holman, T. B. Pollard and C. Eggleston.

A delegation from the Wollaston Methodist Episopal church Men's club conducted the installation ceremony. A. N. Murray, J. A. Sedgwick and A. B. Cassidy of Wollaston were assisted by J. T. Melville and R. L. Hendrie of Quincy Point. Mr. Sedgwick peeled some heart-rending chords off the piano as the candidates were conducted to the front of the room by Chief

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

In handling an aviation meet you've got to raise a fund before you can raise a wing.

A Western man has given up gambling to become a plumber. That is like coming back for the rest.

New York politics seem to have disposed of the question as to what we shall do with our ex-Presidents and vice-Presidents.

If the Sultan of Zulu wants to earn his traveling expenses, let him syndicate an article telling how he was able to induce fourteen wives to stay at home.

Congratulations to Col. Roosevelt and ex-Governor Long on their birthday anniversaries. The frmer was 52 and the latter 72 on Thursday.

Quincy people are not satisfied with the train service or accommodations furnished. People coming from Boston feel that they are entitled to a seat. There would seem to be no excuse for a train leaving Boston with a car load of people standing in the aisles as another car could easily be attached. In going to Boston standing is also frequent but is perhaps not so easily remedied. More trains and more cars seem to be a necessity all through the day and evening.

The Boston Elevated with big advertisements is telling what it has done for greater Boston. From this point of view in the slang of the boys we should say it had "done Boston." Can any one along this line lauded at the South Terminal station get anywhere without walking? The conveniences the subway are all cut off. Elevated trains are long and few and far between allowing congestion at the stations. Short trains every few minutes would mean rapid transit and accommodating the traveling public.

Governor Draper and his administration will be endorsed because:

He has been faithful to his trust.
He has been courageous, fearless and far-sighted.
He has been impartial and just.
He has been mindful of the business interests of the Commonwealth.
He has been mindful of the sick, the afflicted, the unfortunate.
He has paid heed to the morals of the people.
He has been fair to organized labor, to organized capital, and to the unorganized public.
He has been broad-minded in all things.
His administration has attracted the attention of the whole country.
He has settled great problems of his administration in the interests of the people.
Governor Draper and his administration will be endorsed because Massachusetts, under his wise and sagacious leadership, has gone forward, and has maintained its supremacy—a supremacy that might easily have been lost.

DRIFT OF OPINION

Over one thousand pupils are enrolled in the night schools of Brockton. Quite a showing that in a city of 57,000 people. There is in the list one man who is seventy years of age, and who deserves three cheers and a tiger from the other pupils every time he enters the schoolroom. A man of that age who will spend his evenings trying to improve himself instead of slumbering about the house deserves all credit. There are over 500 in the evening High school, showing that intelligent people already reasonably well educated realize that in these troublous times too much education is not possible. Over 400 are in the industrial branches, seeking to improve themselves along lines that will bring quick results in additional income. Nearly 300 cannot speak English, but they will speedily overcome this trouble, for it is stated that bright children in the schools act as interpreters and give to the people who know no English an idea at least of what is happening about them, and every evening will bring more and more knowledge to these people. The popularity of the evening schools of this city is a tribute not only to the excellence of the schools, but also to the good sense and desire for self improvement which are manifested by the people who make use of the opportunities these schools present.—Brockton Enterprise.

WOMPATUCK ENCAMPMENT.

Odd Fellows' hall, East Weymouth, was the mecca Wednesday evening of Odd Fellows of the Encampment, Rebekahs and a few invited friends. Wompatuck Encampment, No. 18, I. O. O. F., gave a most enjoyable evening. The first number on the program was a piano and drum duet by Miss Elva S. Bates of Braintree, pianist, and Mr. J. F. Farrell at the drums. This was followed by a soprano solo by Miss Bates. Both numbers were very much enjoyed. Fred E. Kendall of Boston, reader and soloist, who frequently entertains in this vicinity, gave his "sermon" on "Old Mother Hubbard." It was so laughable that the audience found it hard to regain seriousness and listen to an address by Past Grand Patriarch William H. Mitchell. He gave the history of Odd Fellowship from its beginning in Baltimore in 1819. Mr. Mitchell is a clear, forceful speaker and his address was of interest to all.

Next came a band from Quincy with Mr. E. L. Goodrich, leader. Never heard it? This Manet Encampment band is never seen on the street but is known far and wide among Odd Fellows. The musicians marched into the hall and after a short parade, all the time playing stirring music, they assembled in the center of the hall around their spry leader, and gave a long and loud band concert. Each member of this band wears a costume of original design and in a horrible parade this band would capture a prize.

Mr. Kendall gave several readings much to the satisfaction of all and our popular soloist, Miss Bates rendered solos. Then followed a social hour, during which ice cream and cake were served.

This meeting was the thirty-fifth anniversary of Wompatuck Encampment and the committee Charles Q. Marion, Arthur N. Gardner, Fred M. Buzzell, George D. Bagley and R. Nelson Stone, are an able committee for entertaining. Not only were the Weymouths well represented at this social but also Quincy, Braintree and Hingham.

MILTON.

A men's club was organized at the East Milton Congregational church Monday evening. The object of the club is to promote social intercourse and good fellowship among its members. Meetings will be held every third Wednesday evening from October to May in the vestry of the church. The officers of the club are: President, Jesse B. Baxter; Vice president, Louis V. Gosselin; Secretary and Treasurer, Jacob Pratt; Auditor, Elwood W. Pearce; Membership committee, Austin W. Greene, George L. Anthony and Louis Harlow. These officers constitute the executive committee. The initial social function will be a roast beef dinner Saturday evening in the vestry.

Edmund J. Carpenter, who had much to do with the erection of the Pilgrim Monument at Provincetown, related the story of that undertaking, on Thursday evening, says the Globe, with members of the Masters' association of the 4th Masonic district in Young's hotel as his audience. The narrator is master of Macedonian lodge of Milton. He prefaced his talk by a sketch of the movement in the historic towns in England that led to emigration of the band of Pilgrims to these shores, then spoke of their arrival, the events that followed and finally the rearing of that lofty work near where they landed. President Roosevelt had taken part in the laying of the corner stone and President Taft in the dedication. All of these events were illustrated by an attractive set of views thrown upon canvas and proved very interesting.

THE SPRAY AND FOAM

Making Great Money for Their Owners

The Quincy built traweler Spray prevented a fish famine today. The Globe of Thursday says:

Up to 9 o'clock this morning there was not a vessel at T wharf with either haddock, cod or hake, and it seemed as if the market would have to depend for its fish upon the small quantities sent up by the fishermen who had run into Provincetown, Gloucester and other fish centers with their small catches. At 9 o'clock the telescope, which had been in constant use from the opening of the exchange, showed a steamer rounding into the harbor, and a few minutes later it became sure that it was the Spray, for which the dealers have been looking since last Tuesday.

It seemed a long time ,the 20 minutes Capt. Herbert Green took to reach T wharf, and every foot of the approach of the steamer was watched anxiously by dealers and buyers. It was a serious time for them for the last of the big shipping days of the week they were again almost without fish, and it was a question for them how far the Spray could go toward supplying enough even for the most pressing needs.

As soon as the Spray was within hailing distance of the wharf Capt. Green was asked how much fish he had. His answer—50,000 pounds—did not give the most wanted information, and he was questioned again as to haddock and cod. The next answer brought the information wanted—47,000 pounds of haddock, 2,500 pounds of cod, 500 pounds of pollock, 200 pounds of scrod and 350 pounds of sole.

It did not afford much to supply the market, but the dealers who would get their share of it could at least supply their most pressing wants. Then came the thought of price. The fish was sure to sell higher than that brought in yesterday, but how much no one could gauge. They did sell high, and the stock of the Spray will bring for this trip over $3,000.

The Spray and the Foam, the latter the latest otter trawler built, have been making well paying trips for some time, and the captains, the brothers, Michael and Herbert Green, have each added materially to the wealth of the stockholders. For some time past the two trawlers have been making two trips a week to the market, and averaging about $3,000 a trip for their fish.

Beside the Spray there were five other fishing vessels at T wharf, but they had only pollock aboard. Some of these vessels have been making quick trips, coming to the market two and three times a week with goodsized catches and stocking good sums. The Volant, which has been in before this week had 32,000 pounds of pollock, the largest catch of the five vessels.

The price of fish went up again today, and the wholesale dealers asked this morning $8.75 a hundredweight for haddock, $12.75 and $12 for steak cod, $8.75 and $9 for market cod, and $3.75 a hundredweight for pollock. As there were no hake brought by vessel the exchange set no price on the hake that came from outside.

TALK ABOUT HAIR-RAISERS!

Anyone who likes excitement will be more than ordinarily interested in the news that The Ridgway Company, the well-known publishers of Everybody's magazine, have issued a new publication which will be entirely devoted to "the most interesting and thrilling adventure stories to be found anywhere."

It's called Adventure, and the first number made its appearance in October. If the contents of this issue can be considered a fair sample of what is to follow, it is safe to assume that the publishers have found what they are looking for—and then some.

Adventure is a big well-made magazine. It has 192 pages of better paper than is usually found in a purely fiction publication. Three serials and nine or ten exciting stories, with appropriate drawings, go to make up what most people will consider a very good 15 cents' worth, indeed.

It is said that Adventure starts with a circulation that would do credit to an established publication of long standing. The Magazine itself is unique, physically attractive and powerfully interesting. It ought to create and fill a distinctly new place in magazinedom, and be the means of entertaining a good many hundreds of thousands of people monthly.

WANTS $300,000 ESTATE

Boston Man Files Claim to Property Left by Rich Junk Dealer

Boston, Oct. 28.—The contest for possession of the $300,000 estate of the late William J. Corbett, recluse junk dealer, who died leaving no will, has evolved itself into an identification case which promises to eclipse the famous Russell case in the many intricacies and sensations.

William J. Healey, superintendent of the Tyler street municipal building, filed formal claim to the estate yesterday, stating that he is the son of William J. Corbett, and that in fact his own name is William J. Corbett. He filed a petition in the probate court asking for a partial distribution of the estate, claiming, however, that as the only son of the deceased he is entitled to the entire property.

CARNEGIE APPEARS WEAK

Friends Have the Impression That He Is Breaking Down

New York, Oct. 28.—Friends of Andrew Carnegie are fearful that his health is breaking down, and that he is much more ill than has been admitted. Carnegie's appearance when he returned from his visit abroad was not encouraging. When he landed from the steamer he was assisted down the gang plank on the arm of his attendant. His walk was tottering and he looked like a sick man.

Mr. Carnegie has denied that his health is breaking down, but acquaintances who have seen him since he returned from abroad say that he appears to be very weak. It is announced that he will make no public appearances until he has thoroughly recovered.

VICTORIA HAS FIRE LOSS OF $2,000,000

Some of the City's Finest Buildings Are Reduced to Ruins

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 28.—The greater portion of the block bounded by Government, Fort and Broad streets and Trounce alley has been wiped out by fire here, with a loss estimated at $2,000,000.

Some of the city's finest buildings are in ruins and several yachts in the harbor were ignited by flying sparks.

Spencer's department store, valued at $250,000, was the scene of the fire's origin. The Driard hotel was destroyed and the Times and Pemberton buildings gutted.

Militia and troops were called out to help the firemen. For a time it looked as though the fire would sweep a big section of the city and the soldiers were pressed into service then. The soldiers acted in the double capacity of police and firemen.

There are rumors that some lives were lost, but this cannot be confirmed until the ruins are cleared.

FORAKER CANCELS DATES

He Declines to Modify His Speeches to Suit Some Republicans

Cleveland, Oct. 28.—Declining to accede to an alleged request of the Republican state executive committee to "modify" his speeches, former Senator Foraker has withdrawn from participation in the Ohio state campaign and has cancelled all his speaking engagements.

The senator, in an address, made plain his opposition to the "New Nationalism" described by Theodore Roosevelt, denouncing it as "treason." This brought on heated replies from the stump, and the controversy has taken first place in the state campaign so far as newspaper attention is concerned.

MAY BE GENERAL STRIKE

Express Drivers' Trouble at New York Assumes Serious Phase

New York, Oct. 28.—The strike of express wagon drivers and helpers spread from the New Jersey water front to Manhattan and simultaneously assumed a more serious aspect.

Service was almost halted at both the Grand Central and West Shore stations in this city and the threat of a general strike in an effort to tie up the whole Metropolitan district is made by officers of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

In this event, it is intimated, drivers for stores and factories will be called out if they are asked to deliver goods to the express stations.

HOUGHS NECK BUDGET

Union Chapel Working for Uplift of Community

(Special Correspondence.)

The monthly parish meeting Thursday evening of Union chapel proved interesting. The reports of the previous meeting were read and approved. Clarence E. Ryder, Hiram Barrow and Charles E. Decker were appointed an auditing committee for the ensuing year.

Under new business, methods were discussed to arouse more interest in church attendance. Suggestions were entertained, one of which was to appoint men from different sections to visit residents and personally invite their attendance. Mr. Ryder thought that Houghs Neck was spiritually numb. Ryder hit it about right. One can count the professing christians on his fingers, but possibly there are many good christians who are bottled up at home who feel timid when it comes to church attendance.

Mr. Hutchings portrayed the excellent attendance and interest being featured by the young people's society which he thought was a good example to parents. Over 50 were present a few Sundays ago, filling half the chapel.

The pastor said he thirsted to bring young people into church relation, to hold prayer meetings and such, but the section did not seem to demand it. To create membership and carry on the divine communion, required organization. When people made known such a desire, and were ready to support such, he was ready to meet the demand.

It is know that Rev. C. R. McMeekin has departed far from his sect to meet conditions. He has preached in a broad manner, offensive to no one. He has made many summer visits, and is well known all over the beach. He has never approached any one to gain a church for his own ends, but takes the stand that if wanted, he will organize when the opportunity opens, and is properly presented by a sufficent number who do want it.

Music is soon to be introduced at the evening services, with both vocal and instrumental. The chapel should prove a place of christian entertainment these coming winter evenings.

Robert Brunton, property manager of the Boston Opera Co., of Huntington avenue, Boston, is building a beautiful cottage on Great Hill. Mr. Brunton and family will live there next summer, and he says he will eventually become one of the "all year round" flock. We won't do a thing to him when he joins the Houghs Neck Associates.

In talking with a Great Hill man last week, he voiced the opinion that if Houghs Neck changed her name, ousted the clubs and public dance halls, that within five years we would have a second Winthrop. We think he is right. The proposed Sea street boulevard, and the new school are the first means towards that end.

Henry W. French scored a good point at the Associates meeting Wednesday evening. He asked that connections be made with the Hose house for a tapper at Crosby street which would call volunteers from that district. When the winds blow in certain directions the bell at the Hose house cannot be heard in the above district, and a tapper would leave no doubt. Charles E. Decker.

HALL PLACE CHURCH.

A good service was enjoyed at the Hall Place M. E. church last night in connection with the Evangelistic meetings. Tonight seven men from Mt. Bellingham M. E. church, Chelsea, will be present and help in the service. There will be no service Saturday night, but the people of the church are requested to meet with the choir at 8 P. M. for song service preparatory to the Sunday services.

Sunday at the Hall Place church the services will be held as usual. In the evening at 7, Rev. G. F. Durgin of Boston will preach. An invitation is extended to all to come and enjoy these services and sing the famous Alexander songs. All will find a most cordial welcome.

SWEDISH BAPTIST FAIR.

The fair at the Swedish Baptist church was well attended Thursday evening. Several fancy articles attracted great attention and brought good prices. The ice cream stand and the coffee table were well patronized.

This evening Rev. J. O. Backlund of Boston will deliver a short address. Music will be furnished by Boston Singers.

The fair will be continued over Saturday evening, when all articles left will be sold to the highest bidder.

SERIOUS ASSAULT CASE

Sumner Street Man Brutally Treats His Wife

Gervasio Mezzatti, of 123 Sumner streets, was arrested by Officer Olson Thursday evening for assult on his wife Maria Mezzatti. According to the police the man indulged in liquor to such an extent that he was drunk. When his wife remonstrated with him he became angry and seizing a piece of two by three joist struck her over the head. Three blows were rained on her head and one on the face under the left eye. The blow on the face fractured one of the bones while the blows on the head resulted in a fracture of the skull. After striking down his wife, Mezzatti ran to a neighbor's house where he was latter arrested by Officer Olson.

The woman's cries of pain attracted the attention of neighbors and a crowd quickly collected. The police ambulance was summoned and she was hastily taken to the City Hospital where she was attended by Dr. McCauslin. An examination showed the injuries to be as noted above, and she was immediately placed on the dangerous list. The woman remained unconscious all night, and was still in that condition this morning. Her injuries are of a very serious nature and may result fatally.

Mezzatti was arraigned in court for felonious assault on his wife and also for drunkenness. Both cases were continued until Nov. 8, to await the result of the woman's injuries, Mezzatti being held in $3,000 bonds on the assault cases and in $100 bonds for drunkenness. Should her injuries result fatally the complaint will probably be changed to manslaughter.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY.

The Philatheas of Bethany church held a Hallowe'en party in the chapel Thursday evening. The first half hour was taken up by progressive games. There were four groups in charge of some of the girls. After a person had been in one group a certain length of time, he or she was ousted and sent to the next group.

After the games, the "shrieks and shapes and sights unholy" were introduced. A witch entered on her broom amid a confusion of awe-inspiring sounds. She told fortunes in a droning voice, and later unstrung the nerves of the spectators by relating a gruesome ghost story. In one of the side rooms, a weird ghost with clammy hands sent shivers up and down the spine of those who had to shake hands with it. All these mysteries were carried out in the dark and one could imagine that ghouls and all kinds of ghastly creatures were present from the sights and sounds which were in evidence.

At the conclusion of this rasping part of the program, refreshments were served and then all gathered around the piano and rid themselves of the delusion by means of college songs. The evening was greatly enjoyed by 75 or more young people.

FAXON ON WAY EAST.

A dispatch from Reno, Nev., states that Deputy Marshals Henry Mack and Thomas Pickett left that place Wednesday night with Harold B. Faxon, for Boston, where he will be placed on trial for larceny from the People's National bank of Roxbury.

DISTINGUISHED GUEST.

Prof. Maitra ,who is now in this country and one of the speakers at First church on Wednesday is one of the most distinguished representatives of the Brahmo-Somaj in India and has an influence there unmatched by any other native reformer. He is president of the Sadhara Brahmo-Somaj: he is principal of the large city college of Calcutta, government examiner of the university of Calcutta, and is known all over India for the important positions he has held under the government and for his writings and lectures on education. Mozoomdar made himself well known in America by his frequent visits and addresses, but he held no such position of importance in India and yielded no such influence as does Prof. Maitra, who is now in this country on his way around the world after attending the Congress at Berlin.—Christian Register.

PROTEST AT LYNN

Elevation of Tracks Is Not Popular

G. B. Bates the Quincy advocate of depression was pleased to read in a Boston paper today the following:

The elevated structure now being built through Lynn for the Boston and Maine railroad, against which vigorous objections have been raised by the people of that city, does not satisfy President Mellen either. He assured a delegation of the Lynn Board of Trade Thursday, at a conference at the North Station, that the parties who accepted the plans showed very poor judgment and that it would have been much better to have had four tracks depressed instead of elevated.

"If I had been president of the road at the time I should never have consented to the plans," said Mr. Mellen. While he made no promise that the plans would be changed to satisfy the protests, he urged the board to submit its recommendations to him in writing.

The plans were accepted several years ago and the actual work of elevating the tracks is being pushed at such a rapid gait that it is hoped to have the work completed by next summer. There is serious objection to the type of bridge proposed for Central square and Market street, and it was to confer with President Mellen upon this subject that the meeting of today was arranged.

Mr. Mellen told the Lynn business men that he has visited the city four times since the grade-crossing work has been underway and upon each visit he has been more dissatisfied than upon the preceding trip. He even went so far as to intimate that it is not too late to depress the tracks, despite the great expenditure that such a change would make.

FALL APPLE EXHIBIT.

The Masachusetts State Board of Agriculture will hold a fall exhibit of apples at its rooms at the State House on the five days of November 15 to 19, inclusive, 1910. Entries are limited to three specimens of any one variety from any one grower. No cash prizes will be given, as the board has not funds at its command for the purpose, but first and second prize ribbons will be given. The following varieties will be admitted to exhibition: Baldwin, Gravenstein, Hubbardston, McIntosh, Northern Spy, Rhode Island Greening, Roxbury Russet, Wealthy, King of Tompkins County, Sutton, Tolman Sweet, Yellow Bellflower, Red Canada, Westfield and Winter Banana.

LARGEST STEAMER AFLOAT.

C. F. Carlson, the Quincy agent of the White Star line, has received some data about the giant steamer Olympic, the largest steamer afloat, which was launched at Belfast last week. The "Olympic" exceeds by nearly 100 feet in length and 13,000 tons any other ship afloat. Her principal dimensions are:

	Feet.
Length over all	882 1-2
Breadth over all	92 1-2
Breadth over boat deck	94
Height from bottom of keel to boat deck	97
Height from bottom of keel to top of Captain's house	105 1-2
Height of funnels above casing	72
Height of funnels above boat deck	81 1-2
Distance from top of funnel to keel	175
Number of steel of decks	11
Number of watertight bulkheads	15

It will accommodate 2,500 passengers, besides a crew of 860. The "Olympic" and "Titanic" will be propelled by a unique combination of reciprocating engines with a low-pressure turbine, such as the White Star Line has employed so successfully on its Canadian service steamer "Laurentic." By this ingenious system vibration is eliminated and mal-de-mer conquered. A speed of 22 knots per hour will be maintained.

MODEL INITIATION

Deputy, A. B. Cassidy, who was armed with a broom, and Assistant Deputies Melville and Hendrie, the one shading the face of the candidate with a pink parasol, and the other carrying the emblems of office. A N. Murray, as master of ceremonies, assured each candidate that his office was the most important the club could give to a man.

Each was asked a series of questions to make sure of his fitness for the office. The president was asked how much the election cost him; how much he would be influenced by anteelection pledges, etc. The crowning test was put to him in this form; "If you were one of the crew of Wellman's balloon, the America I, which was wrecked off Cape Hatteras, what kind of breakfast food would you call for when you landed?" The president, who was armed with a tin horn stuffed full of peanuts, which he used as an ear trumpet, answered all the questions very appropriately.

The vice-president, secretary and treasurer were "put through the mill" in turn, while the pianist tore off strip after strip of plaintive and mellow notes. The vice president was assured that he would have to do all the work. The secretary was closely questioned with regard to his method of punctuation, his spelling, etc., and the treasurer's financial standing was looked into pretty thoroughly. He was asked if he owned the house he lived in, if he had an automobile, a gold watch and other valuables. The final test question was this, "If at the opening of the fifth meeting of the club there was a deficit of $12.75, and the refreshments for the meeting should add an additional $7 to the deficit, how would you uphold the dignity of your office?"

The three members of the executive committee were installed together. They were assured that the future welfare of the club would rest entirely on their shoulders inasmuch as the officers were merely figure heads.

As each man was installed the emblems of his office were given him. The president received a gavel and sounding board of immense proportions. The vice president received one correspondingly small. Mr. Roach, the secretary, was presented with a pencil and quill, each over two feet long and an ink stand about the size of a bean pot. The treasurer received a toy cash register, a safe of diminutive size, and a huge key with which to unlock it. The members of the executive committee received badges of office. The first one read "I. M. It"; the second "So, Mi" and the third "Me Too."

Just before the temporary adjournment was called for refreshments, the president was given a book of instructions marked "How to do it," Vol. one. The size of the book was about equal to that of a dozen Ladies' Home Journals bound up together.

The Priscilla Sorority served the refreshments, onsisting of ice cream, cake and coffee. The young ladies were dresses in Puritan costumes, as became the order to which they belonged.

During the evening several songs were rendered by J. B. Frauenfelder, D. A. Henderson accompanying him. All the songs were loudly applauded and encored.

After the refreshments had been consumed the men were seated again, and Mr. Taylor, president of the Wollaston M. E. church Men's club and Archibald McLeod of the Christ church Men's club, spoke very encouragingly of the opening of the club at the Point, and gave the newly elected officers and the members some excellent advice, founded upon ideas they had gathered from several years' experience with men's club work.

The new president, J. W. Hendrie, spoke briefly at the conclusion of the remarks from the visitors. The organizing committee had drawn up a tentative program for the year, and if carried out the opening year in the life of the club will be a very pleasant one.

The opening meeting was very successful and every one was enthusiastic over the idea of having the club. Before the meeting adjourned there were 25 paid members and many others will undoubtedly join before the November meeting. Everything started very auspiciously, and it looks as if the men at the Point will be greatly benefited during the winter and spring by means of this new organiation. It is expected that all the men of all creeds will want to join forces with this wide-awake club. According to the constitution any man of good moral standing is eligible for membership whether he lives at Quincy Point or not. The success of the club is already assured, and the remaining meetings will see a rapid growth in every direction. A democratic spirit of good fellowship and friendliness prevailed, and the opportunity offered to all men at the Point is one which should not be missed. The club is not religious, but social and although it was started under the auspices of the church the organizers sincerely hope that the membership will not be confined to those connected with the church.

CANNELL—WALTERS.

Wollaston extends a welcome to Mr. Leon G. Cannell and Miss Sadie Walters of Everett who were married on Wednesday evening at their new home on Oxenbridge road, Taylor terrace. Only the immediate families were present at the ceremony which was performed by Rev. W. O. Ayers of the Park and Downs Congregational church. Mr. Cannell is in the employ of the Old Colony Trust Company, Boston, and is the son of City Clerk Joseph H. Cannell of Everett. He is a graduate of the Everett High school. The bride is the same age as the groom. Folowing the ceremony there was a pretty reception and wedding supper. Mr. and Mrs. Cannell left that evening for a short wedding trip, and upon their return will make their home at 58 Oxenbridge road.

"BEAR HILL HERMIT" DEAD

Long Known In Waltham as an Eccentric Citizen

Waltham, Mass., Oct. 28.—Waltham lost one of its best known and most eccentric citizens when John Quincy Adams passed away at his home on Bear Hill, of trouble incident to advanced age. His brother died four years ago.

For more than a quarter of a century Adams and his brother were known as the "Hermits of Bear Hill." Averse to the society of women the two men grew from middle age into old age together, carrying on the industry of making hemlock brooms which made them famous throughout Masaschusetts as the last ones to remain in it.

The religious beliefs of the two men were peculiar, and caused them to place the sign of the cross on their carriage, their blinds and windows and the doors of their house, believing that in this manner they could keep the devil and disaster from the household. Adams was a native of Dedham, where he was born 80 years ago.

Persons interested in Christian Science should attend the free public lecture on this subject to be given by Willis F. Goss, C. S. B., of Boston, Mass., in Music hall, Quincy, Sunday afternoon, Oct. 30, at 3.30. Mr. Goss is an authorized lecturer of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. 27-3t

At the Knights of Malta meeting held last evening in Greenleaf hall, several were initiated.

The new council of teamsters of Quincy, No. 207, was admitted to the council this week.

John W. McAnarney, Esq., of this city, is attorney for Richard H. Long of South Framingham in the sensational suit now on trial in the Suffolk Superior court, brought by B. F. Gibby to recover $10,000 for alleged legislative services.

The Saturday morning Y. M. C. A. meeting promises to be the best of the year. The most thrilling and fascinating story ever written for boys will be read in connection with a series of stereopticon views. "The Lad from beyond Tuxedo" by George S. Paine is the title of the story. Every boy in Quincy should be there and get the thrill.

Mrs. Margaret Stronach of South Quincy was honored with the election to the office of vice president of the supreme lodge of Independent Companions of America at the second annual convention of the order, which was held this week at Chipman hall, Tremont Temple. Miss Libbie Burby of Holyoke is the new president. Several from Quincy were present at the session.

BALLOONISTS TELL OF TRIP

Hawley and Post Saved by Own Undaunted Efforts

LAND IN CANADIAN WILDS

Were Forty-Six Hours In Air After Leaving St. Louis—Demonstration of Bravery and Human Resourcefulness During Long and Dangerous Journey to Reach Civilization—None the Worse For Experience

Chicoutimi, Que., Oct. 28.—It must have been some mystical "S. O. S." transmitted in their behalf through almost impenetrable wilds of the regions beyond the upper Saguenay district of Quebec province which brought sorely needed assistance to Alan R. Hawley and Augustus Post of the America II and enabled them to report their achievements—the winning of the international balloon race and the establishment of a new world's record for sustained balloon flight.

At least this is the way the aeronauts were inclined to view the matter after enjoying some good food and indulging in several hours of sleep in comfortable beds in this town instead of under blankets on bare, snow-swept ground. They have left here for Quebec. Before departing they declared themselves fit and fine.

The aviators state that on the last day of the trip in particular they passed over vast regions of water and timber lands. They saw very, very few houses or settlements. They knew they were in the wild and unmarked lands of Canada, but were enthusiastic over the progress they had made and were making. They were congratulating themselves when on the afternoon of the 19th they saw a storm approaching. It developed to such an extent that they saw they had to descend.

The first word that Hawley and Post were alive and that they had been successful in every way in the trip came from St. Ambroise, forty miles north of Chicoutimi. From there a report came that a balloon had landed safely and later additional particulars were sent out. The news caused great rejoicing. It meant that the great international balloon race of 1910 had been concluded, that every participant was safe and that the coveted cup remains in the United States at least another year.

Hawley and Post found themselves, when they landed, in a wilderness in which they hardly knew whether to turn to the east, the west, the north or the south. The place was trackless. There was no sign of civilization. Nearby was a river and all the rest was woodland filled with brush and growth that made rapid progress impossible.

They realized they might encounter hardships, so they made packs in which they put as much provisions as they could, and carrying their revolvers, started for civilization. Their food supply had run low. They had to be very sparing in eating. They expected, though, from the nature of the woodland to be able to kill game in the event of their provisions becoming exhausted before they reached civilization.

Owing to the fact that it was dark when they landed and they could find no place in the immediate neighborhood that would afford a shelter, they spent the night in the basket of the balloon. It was cold and windy.

The next day they headed south. They could make but little progress. Two snow storms set in. They climbed the highest points around to scan the surrounding country to find a settlement, but they could see nothing but woodland.

On the fourth day the aeronauts had a new thrill. They came across the hut of a trapper named "Jack" Matthias. It was the first evidence of civilization they had found. They experienced a pang of disappointment when they discovered that the trapper was away. They rested there for a day. Later on they met other trappers, French Canadians, who took them in a canoe to St. Ambroise. That settlement is but ten or twelve miles from the point where the men landed, but it took many days to cover the distance.

After reaching St. Ambroise the men had a good meal and then started on a forty miles journey in a carriage to Chicoutimi.

Their balloon, the America II, is still at Lake Du Banc de Sable, this being the title of the township where they landed. It is believed that Joseph Pednaud and Joseph Simard, the two trappers who brought the balloonists in a bark canoe to St. Ambroise, will go back and see what can be done to get the big bag from its cache on the side of the mountain to the railroad here. This will not be an easy task.

Hawley and Post landed about forty-six hours after their departure from St. Louis. The balloon basket touched earth at 3:35 o'clock on the afternoon of Oct. 19. They probably flew, in all, about 1600 miles, although the direct distance between the two points, on which the international race is decided, is only 1355 miles.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.

William Gillette, under the direction of Charles Frohman, begins at the Hollis Street Theatre, Boston, Monday evening an engagement of signal importance to this community. The distinguished playwright-actor is announced for farewell appearances in a round of his famous successes, and the list is to embrace such stage triumphs as "Sherlock Holmes," "Secret Service," "Held by the Enemy," "Clarice," "Too Much Johnson," and "The Private Secretary." The opening play of the engagement is to be Mr. Gillette's masterly impersonation of "Sherlock Holmes," the characterization by which he has of late years become best known to theatre goers the world over. Mr. Frohman is to present his star in the drama for the entire first week of the engagement with a matinee on Saturday only. Though only a figure in fiction, "Sherlock Holmes" is made by Mr. Gillette worthy of scrutiny and admiration because success crowns the character. Moreover there is the straightforward honesty of the man, his hawk like supernatural clearsightedness, his pluck, energy, ubiquitousness and disciplined calm. These are a few of the perfections which have contributed to the distinction of "Sherlock Holmes" as an imaginary personage and made the character renowned throughout all English-speaking countries. The profession of a detective is one around which always hovers the glamour of romance. In the depicting of a fictional figure of this kind Mr. Gillette ever enhances his fame, and he will succeed more so in this approaching momentous revival of the play at the Hollis. It is particularly announced that Mr. Gillette's evening performances during this engagement will begin at 7.45 promptly and the Saturday matinees at 2 o'clock. The rotation of his plays will be duly made known.

GLOBE THEATRE.

When "The Family," which had such a remarkable success in Chicago not long since and will be seen at the Globe for the second week beginning Monday, October 31, was produced there at the Powers' Theatre, Charles W. Collins, critic for the "Inter-Ocean," wrote in its praise: "Simple, tender and true—these are the inevitable adjectives for 'The Family.' It is in the right line with the American drama—native in every stroke of its simplicity; close to the hearts of the people wth its alternating moods of sorrow and mirth, the one poignant and the other genial; reaching elemental truth in its little cross-sections of life, without esoteric psychology borrowed from the complex problem propounders of Europe. Miss Mabel Bert's mother is a lovely histrionic study in soft gray hair and silver, and never flags in appeal. John Westley appears as the boy with vivid effect, carrying most of the comedy and one strong emotional scene with certain effect. This is the kind of a part in which Mr. Westley has no equal on the American stage." Amy Leslie, critic for the "Daily News," said: "'The Family' is a beautiful, home spun, genuine drama, introduced to a pathetic and enthusiastic public. A more intensely moved, emotionally absorbed and delighted audience could scarcely have been built."

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

There will be another vaudeville debut at B. F. Keith's theatre next week, Charlotte Hunt, the stock actress who has become one of the great popular favorites of Boston, making her first appearance in a new comedy entitled "Love Under Difficulties." Miss Hunt made one of the most remarkable hits last year when she engaged the Majestic theatre in Boston and played to tremendous business through the hot weather. In fact, it was one of the most remarkable seasons ever played by a stock star in the Hub. Her decision to enter vaudeville was made when she ran across the comedy called "Love Under Difficulties." It is a most amusing piece, filled with complications, and the part assigned to Miss Hunt is one of the best she has ever had. On the same bill will be another big Lasky production, called "On the House Top." The scene of this musical comedy is on the roof of a large apartment house in New York, and is one of the handsomest stage settings ever seen in vaudeville. The company is a large one, including a number of pretty girls and the principal comedian, Knute Erickson, was formerly the star of "At The Waldorf." Another splendid feature will be Pat Rooney and Marion Bent, in their dancing comedy called "At The News Stand," and other features will be the Avon Comedy Four; Dolly Connolly and Percy Wenrich, the latter the author of "Old Gray Bonnet" and other hits; Williams and Segal, in dances; and the Cycling Brunettes.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

No play has created a stir equal to "The Servant in the House" in many seasons. Written by Charles Rann Kennedy, himself an actor of many years experience, it tells a graphic tale of selfish humanity and its moral transformation under good influences. By it the spectator may be entertained or instructed, or both, and through it there persists a humor that is exceedingly rare in a serious drama. The scene is an English country vicarage, and its inmate and Bishop of the Church of England are subjected to the moral influence of one Manson, a butler attired in Oriental garb, but who is in reality the Bishop of Benares. He typifies the Christian spirit, and by the subtle suggestiveness of makeup and costume brings to mind the pictures of Christ himself. In a powerful scene he sternly satirizes the conscienceless greed of the pious hypocrite as exemplified in the person of the hypocritical bishop, and he describes the ideal church that he has built with human brotherhood for foundation, walls and superstructure. In every way, in characters and plot the play is a daring and unconventional one, and it promises to arouse no little sensation when it is produced at the Castle Square next week. The leading role of Manson will be played by John Craig, who will give it dignity and authority, while each of the six other characters will be carefully assigned to Mr. Craig's leading players. Miss Mary Young will appear as the heroine, and there will be an especially attractive and picturesque scenic environment. The production of "The Servant in the House" will surely be an event in the history of the Castle Square Theatre, and as its run is limited, immediate application for seats is necessary.

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE.

It will be of immense interest to those opera lovers who do not live in Boston to learn that the Boston Opera Company is ready to assure its out-of-town patrons that the performances during the coming season will terminate in ample time for them to catch their trains. Besides, the management has negotiated with the various railroads entering Boston for an arrangement whereby special cars to accommodate the opera-going public will be attached to the trains going into and leaving Boston on the nights of the performances. With these added accommodations there is no doubt that the liberal patronage extended by New Englanders at large to the Boston Opera Company, during the last season will be still further increased for the artists comprising the operatic troupe of Boston form a galaxy of stars probably never before equalled in the history of grand opera. For the further accommodations of its out-of-town patrons the Boston Opera Company has inaugurated a mail order system which will enable those desirous of hearing a certain opera to secure their seats in advance and enjoy an opera performance without taking the chance of encountering a sold-out house. A letter, addressed to the box office of the Boston Opera House, will be given immediate attention. The opening performance of the second season will take place on Monday evening, Nov. 7th, when Boito's "Mefistofele" will be given; Wednesday evening, Verdi's "Rigoletto" in Italian will be given; Friday evening, Verdi's "Otello" in Italian will be presented for the first time by the Boston Opera Company. Puccini's "Tosca" in Italian, will be the opera presented for the Saturday matinee, Nov. 12th; Saturday evening, the first performance of the season will take place, with prices from 50 cents to $2.50. The ever popular "Lucia di Lammermoor" by Donizetti, in Italian will be presented.

ON THE STAGE.

Never in the old days of the Boston Theatre with its many dramatic successes to its credit has there been a more genuine one than "The Speckled Band," An Adventure of Sherlock Holmes, by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, which on last Monday night opened its engagement at the Boston Theatre. The deafening applause of the vast audience stamped it a success from the very beginning and a more highly pleased audience never left that playhouse.

The proposed Revival of the Gilbert and Sulivan operas in this country under the direction of Sir William Gilbert would certainly be interesting, and the younger generation might assist in making it profitable.

Miss Ellen Terry comes to the Tremont Nov. 4 in the first of her recitals entitled "Shakespeare's Heroines," with illustrative acting. Her second appearance will be on the following Monday afternoon.

"Madame Sherry" is the musical comedy rage of New York this season. Stealing into the metropolis quietly late in August, at the New Amsterdam Theatre, the production scored sensationally and is attracting overflow audiences to every performance. The newspaper praise elicited by the piece is quite as sensational as the production's box-office success. All signs say the New York run will last at least a year.

Charles Frohman has arranged to present the following attractions at the Hollis, Colonial, Tremont, Park and Boston theatres: Ethel Barrymore in a new play, Billy Burke in a new play, John Drew in "Smith," Marie Tempest in "Caste," Francis Wilson in "The Bachelor's Baby," Annie Russell in a new play, Otis Skinner in "Sire" Kyrle Bellew in "Raffles," J. P. Huntley and Hattie Williams in "Decorating Clemintine," a special production of "The Foolish Virgin" at the Boston, O. E. Mathews in "The Importance of Being Earnest," "Our Miss Gibbs," "The Doll Girl," W. S. Maughan's new play called "Grace," and "Arsene Lupin."

KING GEORGE

Rumor Says He Has a Revolt on His Hands

REVOLUTION IS ON AT ATHENS

Vienna and Berlin Hear Rumors to That Effect

CENSORSHIP IS VERY RIGID

Telegraphic Inquiries as to Condition of Affairs In Greek Capital Bring No Response—Recently Dissolved Assembly Was Opposed by Ministry, the Latter Being Cordially Supported by the King and Pupulace

Vienna, Oct. 28.—That the political discord in Athens has given way to an open revolt is the report received here. It is impossible to verify it because telegraphic inquirise elicited no reply. It is believed that this is caused by rigid censorship.

For weeks there had been keen unrest in the Greek capital, the environs of the city and throughout the nation. The centre of the turbulent feeling, however, was in Athens.

Berlin, Oct. 28.—There is a persistent rumor in financial circles that a revolution has broken out at Athens.

There has been much ill-feeling at Athens recently against the national assembly, culminating in the dissolution of that body last Tuesday. The assembly was especially elected for the purpose of undertaking a revision of the constitution.

At the request of King George, M. Venezelos, the Cretan leader, formed a cabinet on Oct. 18. The members of the chamber repeatedly absented themselves when Premier Venezelos attempted to secure a vote of confidence. The premier, discouraged, announced the resignation of the cabinet on Oct. 23. King George, however, refused to accept the resignation and on Monday the chamber adopted a vote of confidence in the premier by a ballot of 208 to 31.

The premier was not satisfied, feeling that it was a vote of complaisance rather than of sincere support, and insisted that the assembly be dissolved. He had his way and Nov. 28 was set as the date for the election for a new revisionist chamber.

Opposed to the recent assembly was the ministry, cordially supported by the king and the populace. The latter have recently made friendly manifestations toward the king and the government and criticised the assembly, though no serious disorder had occurred at the capital, so far as is definitely known outside, before yesterday.

CONNIE MACK MARRIES

But Few Aware of Fact Until After Ceremony Is Performed

Philadelphia, Oct. 28.—Cornelius McGillicuddy, known to the baseball world as "Connie Mack," manager of the world's champion Athletics, was married to Miss Katherine Hallohan in the Church of Our Lady of Holy Souls.

Only witnesses were present, and the bridegroom's family knew nothing of it until after the ceremony had been performed. The couple left for New York and will sail for Europe on Nov. 3 for a long honeymoon.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

HARVEST SUPPER.

A very enjoyable harvest supper and entertainment was held at Odd Fellows hall Thursday evening under the auspices of George L. Gill Rebekah lodge. The supper came at 6.30 to which over 100 sat down. The menu included cold meats, vegetables, pastry and coffee, all of which was pronounced excellent. A short busines session was held early in the evening at which an important constitutional amendment was passed. As it reads now any boy over 14 years of age not connected with any other Sunday school can be a member of the club.

A social with games and refreshments is planned for Thursday, Nov. 10. Those who have attended the meetings of the club so far can testify what good times are to be had and a banner attendance should be present at this next gathering.

MEAT INSPECTOR FINED

Assisted Man For Whom He Worked In Sunday Slaughtering

Concord, Mass., Oct. 28.—Illegal slaughtering of animals in Chelmsford and Carlisle, and the sale of uninspected beef in this vicinity, was alleged by agents of the S. P. C. A., who secured the conviction of Edward Kemp in the Concord court on a charge of slaughtering without a permit from the board of health.

James Coogan, who officiates as Kemp's hired man in Chelmsford and also holds office as meat inspector until the first of the year, was assisting in the killing of five beeves on Sept. 26, according to the evidence presented in court. Coogan and Kemp were fined $15 each.

POLITICS CUT OUT IN TARIFF BOARD

Only Experts Will Be Considered Worthy of Appointment

Washington, Oct. 28.—President Taft has confirmed the policy of the tariff board in making non-political appointments to the staff of the board in a letter shown to a recent applicant who recommended himself partly on the ground that he had rendered the Republican party service in the past. The incident has to do with the selection of experts, upon whose investigations and good judgment the merits of the reports to be made to the president must depend in large degree. Says the president in the closing lines of his letter concerning the application referred to:

"I have directed my office to indicate in all communications on the general subject of applications to the tariff board that I desire those employed as experts to be employed entirely regardless of their services to any particular political party."

NEGROES ARE BARRED

Not Wanted at Republican Convention In South Carolina

Columbia, S. C., Oct. 28.—There is not a federal officeholder nor a negro on the list of delegates here for the Republican state convention called to meet here by John D. Capers, national committeeman for South Carolina. The convention will contest the claim to regularity which will be made by delegates elected at a convention composed mostly of negroes which met here Sept. 26.

Capers insists that he and his associates are determined that the southern negro "shall not longer keep us in helpless political bondage for the sake of propitiating the negro vote, north and west."

CRITICISM OF Y. M. C. A.

Not Accomplishing What It Should, Says Yale Professor

Danielson, Conn., Oct. 28.—Professor Bailey of Yale university, supervisor of the census in Connecticut, in an address before the annual convention of the Connecticut State Federation of Women's clubs in session here, said in his speech on "Civic Responsibilities," that Young Men's Christian associations were not accomplishing what they should.

Their money, he said, was spent for nice buildings in the best parts of cities, where they were handy for bank clerks, but that the poor boys, who lived on the outskirts of cities, could not afford to get to the buildings.

New Tacoma Census

Washington, Oct. 28.—Secretary Nagel has ordered a new census enumeration of Tacoma, Wash., as a result of charges of padding in the first list.

FOOTBALL

need feel ashamed of the defence the team put up.

Early in the game, Quincy threatened its opponent's goal, but during the greater part of the contest the ball was in Quincy territory and the team was on the defensive. It was a new experience for the team to be opposed by a line on which it could make no impression. Only one or two short gains were made inside of the tackles, and some of the end runs resulted in no gain. In other words the Boston team was more than a match for the home players and the brevity of the halves kept the score down.

Hill made several good gains and Manning was very effective. Near the end of the game Prout was given the ball and was off up the field with good speed. He was unable to get by the last man, however, who tackled hard and cut off a touchdown. Johnson put a strong game both in the offence and defence. His tackling was a feature of the game. Arthur injured his leg in the second quarter, and Holmes took his place at tackle. White did some good defensive work at guard.

UP AGAINST STARS.

Boston College High had some star men in its lineup. Gallagher the interscholastic end although suffering from blood poisoning in the hand played a hard and fast game and cut off many plays before they were under way. Linnehan, the captain was the best ground gainer for the visitors although the other men were able to make gains occasionally through the lighter line of their opponents.

The touchdown came in the last period. With the ball on the 12-yard line at the start, three rushes were necessary to carry it over the goal line. Dacey scored the touchdown, but Rogers was unable to kick the goal after a kickout by Linnehan.

MANNING KNOCKED OUT.

Manning played a plucky game at quarter and up to the time when he was taken out, gave life to the team and made a number of good gains. In his last rush he gained about five yards, but the impact of the man who tackled him, knocked him out and the ball fell from his grasp. Gallagher, the man who made the tackle, recovered the ball. Manning was taken from the field in an unconscious condition and was hurried to the doctor's in Mr. Moreton Swallow's automobile. With only 45 seconds to play Larkin went in at quarter and at the end of the game the ball was on the Boston team's 50 yard line.

ODD AGAINST THEM.

The High school has reason to be proud of the team for the fine exhibition of football the members put up in the game. They were fighting against odds in weight and Arthur was taken out early in the second period, thus depriving the team of its punter who might have done much in keeping the ball away from the goal. There were no sensational runs by players of either side. Straight old style football was played by both teams, and but one forward pass was successful. The Boston team worked one in the third quarter but gained only two or three yards by it.

There is no use discussing the "might have beens" for Quincy was beaten fairly and squarely. But there is reason for encouragement from the fact that the opponents are considered among the leaders in the interscholastic world which does not leave Quincy a great way from the top. Every man put up the best fight he knew how and no more can very well be required.

Chapman and Blackmur both played well at end, and the work of Holmes, Tirrell and Rice is to be commended, particularly while the team was on the defence. Harmon was "Johnny on the spot" as usual, and Prout put up a strong game against one of the best line men in the interscholastic world.

CURLEY GOT $1000

Fee For His Services In Securing Passage of Certain Legislation

Boston, Oct. 28.—That he received $1000 in an envelope from Benjamin F. Gibby, the lobbyist, in Gibby's room at the Adams house for services rendered in securing the passage in the legislature of the bill relating to the sale and lease of machinery, was admitted on the witness stand in the superior court by John Curley, deputy collector of the city of Boston.

He testified that the envelope was passed to Gibby and that Gibby then turned it over to him and that he then went into a private room and opened it.

The testimony came during Gibby's suit against Richard H. Long, a shoe manufacturer, for $10,000, which he claims is due for services in securing the passage of the bill in the 1907 legislature.

MAINE'S DISTINCTION

Has Largest Divorce Rate of Any of the Eastern States

Portland, Me., Oct. 28.—"Maine now has the largest divorce rate of any state east of the Alleghany mountains," declared Professor Sprague of the University of Maine in an address at the Maine state conference of charities. In the five years following 1877, he said, there were 2511 divorces in Maine and in the five years following 1902 this number had increased to 4389.

Lax marriages he mentioned as one cause for divorce. He advocated the publication of marriage intentions in the newspapers and suggested that more preparation, dignity and impressiveness be required in the civil marriage.

FAILED TO TAKE ORDER SERIOUSLY

Chicago Woman Learns a Lesson That Cost Her $1800

New York, Oct. 28.—The lesson that the government customs regulations are to be "taken seriously" was learned at considerable expense by Miss Helen Jerrems of Chicago.

Miss Jerrems, arriving from Europe with her mother, declared $920 worth of dutiable goods, but an inspector found in adition gowns and presents intended for friends valued at $928.

Miss Jerrems was asked if she had read the warnings that forfeiture of goods and imprisonment were the penalties for failure to make a proper declaration.

"Yes, I read that, but really I did not take it seriously," said she. "Besides, I was seasick most of the way over."

Surveyor Henry ordered the undeclared goods seized, disallowed the usual $100 exemption for free entry and fixed the duty and penalties that Miss Jerrems must pay at $1800.

STUDENTS SUSPENDED

Action Against Fifty Who Owe Term Bills at Tufts College

Medford, Mass., Oct. 28.—Fifty students were suspended from classes yesterday at Tufts college. Last Monday President Hamilton made the announcement that students still owing term bills by Thursday would be suspended from the classrooms until the bills were paid or special arrangements made with the bursar.

Lists of the students still owing bills were sent around to the different instructors yesterday, and as soon as these students made their appearance they were notified of the fact that they were under suspension, and were not allowed in the classrooms.

LION HUNT IN PARK

Keepers Experience a Bad Three-Quarters of an Hour

New York, Oct. 28.—Emperor Leo, the geat Nubian lion of the Bronx Zoo was at large three-quarters of an hour, while a dozen frightened keepers, armed with pitchforks, beat the underbrush over a wide area, expecting every minute to face the spring of the beast.

It was also feared he might get out into the streets. He was finally cornered and chloroformed into submission. His captors admit that they were worse scared by the lion hunt than by any other job that has ever come their way.

DEPRESSION IN CITY OF LYNN

Board of Trade Remonstrate Against Plans for Elevated Structure

President Mellen of Railroad Also Dissatisfied

After the experience of the city of Lynn, which is being cut in two by elevated railroad tracks of the Boston & Maine, it is important that Quincy should be wide awake and ready to remonstrate if plans for abolishing grade crossings in this city are not satisfactory. Although considerable work has been done in Lynn, it is possible now that the tracks may be depressed instead of elevated.

The Lynn Item gives a more extended report of the conference between the Board of Trade of that city and the officials of the Boston & Maine on Thursday, which is reprinted:

LARGE DELEGATION.

When President Bauer and the Lynn committee arrived at President Mellen's office in the North station they were met by President Charles S. Mellen and Vice President Timothy E. Byrnes. Mr. Bauer introduced each member of the committee to the president, stating his business connections and the firm, of which he was a member. Mr. Bauer told Mr. Mellen that the city of Lynn is the largest single customer on the line of the Boston & Maine, on the eastern section of the Portland division, and he added that they were all of a very helpful disposition.

President Mellen said he is very dissatisfied with the way in which the grade crossing abolition is being carried on in the city of Lynn. He said that he was as much dissastified as any man possibly could be. He said that there never should have been such a division by an elevated structure of the business section of the city and said, "you gentlemen never should have agreed to such a proposition, to in the way it has been."

"The plans should not have been for 2-track only, but there should have been a 4-track proposition through the city, but Mr. Mellen continued, that of course had been approved by the court and in order not to delay operations the railroad would have to go ahead with them." "That, however," he said "would not prevent the railroad management from considering any proposition to better those plans if it could possibly be done.

President Mellen said that he could make no promises. That he was not in a position to make any promise, but he was ready and willing to do everything that he could that the business men of the city of Lynn desired him to do. He wishes the Board of Trade to write him a letter, specifically stating what they desired in the way of a change of plans, and he said that he would take up those suggestions with his engineers, and confer with the committee later about them.

FAVORED DEPRESSION.

President Mellen told the committee that he had been four times to the city of Lynn to look over the place carefully and every time he had been more dissatisfied than before with the general plan of the work. He intimated to the committee that if he had had anything to do with it at the outset, the tracks would have been depressed for a track road under the city, but what he desired to do now is to push the work as fast as possible, in order that he may be able to have the elevated tracks ready for the summer traffic schedule, which will go into effect next June. As understood by the committee President Mellen proposes to have the roadbed ready for the trains next summer, and to leave the details of the job until later.

Members of the committee stated that Mr. Mellen said that the city of Lynn to have agreed to such a proposition for an elevated structure in the first place. He was surprised to see that they had entered into such a large expenditure of money to obtain such small results, comparatively. Mr. Mellen finished by saying that there was really nothing now that could be done except to carry out the work, and better the plans where they could.

MUST HAVE BEEN CRAZY

When a member of the committee said that he had supposed that they could not rip up what was being done and enlarge the general scheme, Mr. Mellen said that he was not quite so sure of that.

The committee came away very much pleased with their reception and a renewed confidence in President Mellen that he will do everything in his power to help the business interests of Lynn. President Bauer said when he came down the elevator from the president's room that the matter would be taken up by the Lynn Board of Trade at its next regular meeting, and a draft of the letter formulating the suggestions to be sent to President Mellen will be submitted and acted upon at that meeting. The conference began at 11.05 and closed at 11.55.

INTERVIEWS.

The Lynn Item of yesterday continued the discussion, saying:

Not for a long time has anything that has occurred in connection with the separation of the grade crossings of the Boston & Maine through Lynn caused so much comment about the city as the statements made by President Mellen of the Boston & Maine railroad at the hearing given the committee from the Lynn Board of Trade in Boston on Thursday.

Charles W. Gay for years city engineer of Lynn and later a member of the board of public works of the city, said this forenoon: "Nothing that has occurred in years has given me so much satisfaction as to read the published statement of President Mellen in which he said that the city of Lynn was foolish in having accepted the present scheme for the abolition of the grade crossings in the city. For a number of years I was fighting to prevent the foisting upon the city of two things, the elevating of tracks of the Boston & Maine through the centre of the city, and the adoption of the scheme for the filtration of the Lynn water, as at present proposed.

"For my views I received much censure. My long years of the knowledge of public affairs taught me that the scheme adopted for the grade abolition was and that it would not be satisfactory. A two-track way was not the proper thing and the elevation of the tracks will be a great detriment to the city. At the time the city accepted the present plan the railroad officials were seriously considering depression and if those in a position to do so had only stood up and been decided things might have been different.

"The views upon the question expressed by President Mellen on Thursday bear out just what I was striving for and prove what was claimed at that time, that the officials of the railroad were trying to throw dust in the eyes of the people of Lynn

TRAVELLING PILLARS HERE

Presented to Manet Encampment by South Boston

A notable meeting of Manet encampment was held Friday evening, when the camp received a visit from the travelling pillars, which are denominated "Faith, Hope and Charity," the motto of Odd Fellowship. These pillars have been travelling about the State for three or four years, having started from Charles Hayden encampment at Jamaica Plain. Each encampment visited by the pillars affixes its name.

The visitation of the pillars is always an event of interest, and there was an unusually large attendance of Patriarchs including eighty from South Boston. The pillars were presented to Manet encampment by George Gray, chief patriarch of Mt. Washington encampment of South Boston, and were received for Manet encampment by Samuel Wood, Jr., grand high priest of the Grand encampment.

Following the presentation there were brief addresses by D. G. C. P., W. H. Murray; Grand Junior Warden, W. F. Johnson; Past Grand Representative, W. H. Mitchell; and Past Chief Patriarchs, David White, George Wade, George A. Call and W. S. Guthrie, all of South Boston.

The several speeches were interspersed with selections by the Manet comedy team, composed of Charles H. Wood, William A. Richards, Charles Barron and Charles Horne, whose program was replete with songs abounding in local hits, fancy step dancing by Frank Curtin, and a stump speech by G. E. Nettleton.

After the session adjournment was made to the banquet hall, where a harvest supper was served, the menu including cold meats, pumpkin pie, rolls, coffee and cigars.

NO-LICENSE CONFERENCE.

Ex-Governor Long will preside on Monday at the conference of the fourth annual conference of No-License workers at Kingsley and Ford halls, Boston. Among the speakers will be Charles W. Eliot of Cambridge Bishop William Lawrence and Robert A. Woods of Boston. At the afternoon session there will be thirteen subjects, each with its leader of discussion, also a notable exhibit. The banquet will be from 6 to 7, tickets $1. Evening session from 7 to 9.

NEW C. E. SOCIETY.

The young people of the Calvary Baptist church met last evening to organize a Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor. The constitution was adopted and officers were elected for the ensuing year. President, Miss Blodwen Walters; vice president, Miss Abbie Livingston; secretary, Miss Eva Scarborough; treasurer, Miss Eva Archibald. Chairman of Lookout committee, Miss Minnie Trask; chairman of Prayer Meeting committee, Alexander Henderson; chairman of Social committee, Miss Mary McDonald.

An invitation was extended the newly formed society to join the East Norfolk Christian Endeavor Union. This invitation was accepted and the society will be voted in at the November cabinet meeting of the Union, and installed at the December bi-monthly meeting.

The president, Miss Walters announced that the first meeting of the Calvary Baptist Y. P. S. C. E. would be held Sunday evening at 6 o'clock. A large attendance is desired and expected at this opening service.

WHO WILL QUINCY REPUBLICANS NOMINATE?

Ex-Councilman Nichols Says the Mayoralty Nomination Belongs to Him

Jonathan S. Swingle Said to be a Dark Horse

Before 7.30 P. M. next Thursday papers must be filed placing some one in nomination at the Republican caucuses for Mayor, but no name is prominently mentioned except Walter F. Nichols, and the nomination may go by default. A strange situation for a city which in 1909 gave Gov. Draper a plurality over James H. Vahey, and in 1908 gave the Republican electors for President 2,996 votes to 1,411 for the Democratic electors.

But the elections for three years have been rather disheartening to the stalwart Republicans. The vote in 1907 was:

SHEA	2,620
PIPER	2,088

In 1908 the adverse majority was even larger:

SHEA	3,076
STONE	1,966

Last year, also, Mayor Shea had a decisive majority, the figures being:

SHEA	2,785
NICHOLS	1,871

Ex-President Nichols of the City Council is still hopeful of election should he again be the candidate, claiming that there will be a large falling off in the vote of Mr. Shea this year.

Some of the Republican leaders have endeavored to have James H. Stetson of School street allow the use of his name, but he promptly turned down the proposition. So the party has no one in sight except Mr. Nichols, or possibly ex-Mayor John O. Hall.

This morning, however, a name was suggested which has met with considerable favor, Jonathan S. Swingle, the "extra dark granite man." Certainly he is a dark horse worth considering if he would consent to be a candidate. He has never held public office, but for that reason he is strongest with many. He is one of Quincy's most successful granite quarrymen, and a pusher. Probably he has done as much to advertise the Quincy granite industry favorably throughout the country as any other man. He is a resident of Ward One, owns a beautiful estate on the main street of the city, and also has a business office in City Square. He has other qualifications for the office for which he has been suggested.

The name of President Ralph W. Hobbs of the City Council has been frequently coupled with the mayoralty, but it is understood that he is not a candidate this year. Others considered are Senator Eugene C. Hultman and Councilman Edward J. Sandberg.

ABELE A CANDIDATE.

LATEST—Councilman Nowland took out nomination papers this noon for ex-Councilman George W. Abele, as Republican candidate for Mayor. Mr. Abele is one of Quincy's rising young lawyers, and has served several years in the City Council.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

It is a good plan about now to begin your Christmas shopping.

The bathtub trust is confident it can wash out the stain that has been cast upon it.

An Indiana farmer drank bug poison to kill typhoid germs. He killed them but spoiled a good farmer at the same time.

All sorts of questions are asked the editor. We were asked this morning if we knew when and where the first bath tub was installed in Quincy. Who can answer? Who claims the distinction of having the first bath tub in Quincy? All these things have become a matter of fact in houses of the present day so that it is hard to realize that it is not so very many years ago that they were almost unknown.

Have you noticed how the Ledger is forging ahead? It is full of news and live up-to-date advertising. In measuring up Friday's advertising we found about twenty columns or half of the paper was advertising and we realized that it would have been impossible a year ago to have accomodated that amount in the four-page Ledger. Advertisers like the six-page Ledger and we hope soon to run an eight-page paper every day. Quincy as a city is growing fast and there is more business and news. Ledger reporters have their eyes open and every section is being well represented. News stands all along the line report increased sales of Ledgers and the boys on the street say they are running bank accounts their sales are so good. Ledger patrons should read the advertisements every day in the "Home" daily, the paper read by all the family, for no dead-wood or space fillers are used but all the advertising is new, and readable and represents the careful thought of the men who want your trade and are doing business right in our midst, thereby helping Quincy grow and prosper. Spend your money in Quincy with Ledger advertisers and you will get good returns on your investment.

In his call for the special Council meeting next Monday evening Mayor Shea wisely refrained from hastening action on the three pending loan orders by putting them in the call. In view of the discussion these orders have already provoked it is wise that the City Council should be allowed to settle the questions in their own time without the Mayor trying to hurry legislation.

If when these orders are finally passed, and receive but 15 votes, the loans will go up to a well known legal firm who pass on all loan orders for Boston bankers. For the past few years this firm has been most strict in its examination of loans and the least flaw or doubt is enough for them to turn an order down

One little incident will serve to illustrate this, and that was on a certain loan for a new school house. The order read on plans approved by the School Committee, but the letter of the latter committee read "sketches" The result was the order was turned down and the whole business had to be gone over again. Just how this legal firm will rule on the proposition of 15 being two-thirds of all the members of the City Council is a question, and can not be told until it is put up to them. In view of what has already transpired, it does not now look as though the orders would even receive the 15 votes when they come up, as they doubtless will, at the meeting Nov. 7.

Quincy never had a Mayor who at the end of his third term was as popular as Hon. William T. Shea, who has just announced his candidacy for a third term. His success undoubtedly lies in the fact that he has given the city a non-partisan administration, and at the same time free from domination by any "interests" class, or creed. He has been a Mayor of all the people, and has given very freely of his time, more so than he could really afford at a salary of only $1,000. No other official of the city is paid so poorly as our chief executive. We pay the inspector of plumbing $1,200, and the inspector of buildings $1,000, but only $1,000 to our Mayor. The City Auditor receives $1,400; City Solicitor $1,400, City Clerk $1,400, Chief of Police $1,400 and others more.

Mayor Shea was better equipped for the office than any of his predecessors for many reasons. He was born in Quincy and has been a Quincy business man all his life. He was interested in the town government, a member of the first City Council, and later served on a city board.

In only one or two particulars is Mayor Shea open to criticism, and one of these is the lavish expenditure of money. Not recklessly, but in excess of the ability of the city to pay. In this position, however, the Mayor takes an advance stand for improvements. Then the failure of the Commissioner of Public Works to install water meters as required by law reflects on the Mayor's administration and may entail a large fine. The appropriation of $30,000 in 1909 was not alone for water construction but for installation of meters, and the city should have complied with the law. The city expended $50,790.55 for construction and only $1,345.69 for meters. Some might criticise the Mayor for signing so many permits to transport liquor, and the enforcement of the liquor laws, but he has accomplished much. All and all, few could have given better service.

DRIFT OF OPINION

In the schools of the District of Columbia, the excellence of the daily newspaper as an exponent of current history is to be emphasized. Especially in the normal and high schools, the dictum has gone forth that the pupils will in the future be expected to read good newspapers daily as part of their curriculum. The board of education issued an order which requires pupils and teachers far enough advanced to digest the trend of current events as outlined in the press. Quizzes in current events, based on newspaper study can wisely constitute a portion of the school curriculum. It is as important, if not more so, for present day students to be not less familiar with history as it is made, than with the epoch-making events of the past.—South Framingham News.

Among the subjects discussed by the American railroad managers is a proposition that a charge be made for carrying baggage, as is the custom in most other countries. In the United States, the practice has long been to carry a liberal amount of baggage for no other charge than that included in the price of the ticket, but the need of increased revenue to meet increased expenses suggests the desirability, from the railroad men's point of view, for a change. Logically, no good reason exists why a transportation company should charge the same price to a passenger without a trunk that it charges to one with a trunk; and except for the fact that we have the habit in this country no one would think of seriously defending the practice. Probably, however, the railroad managers will ge very slowly in this matter, as most people are persuaded that the custom is entirely justifiable. —New Bedford Standard.

QUINCY CHORAL SOCIETY.

The Quincy Choral singers began their season's work on Tuesday evening in the same enthusiastic spirit that has prevailed since the society was formed two years ago. Conductor Wonson was heartily greeted by members new and old and the study of Haydn's Oratorio "The Creation" promises to be thoroughly enjoyable.

Rehearsals will be held regularly on Tuesday evenings at Colonial hall and the society has extended a general invitation to all singers having good voices to join before the season is too far advanced. The yearly fee is reasonable and instruction is excellent as has been proven by the fine productions of "Elijah" and "The Messiah" under Mr. Wonson's directions. It is a fine opportunity for all our singers to cooperate in making the Quincy Choral Society one of the largest in the state as it already is one of the best.

DEPRESSION

when they prevailed upon them to accept the scheme of elevating the tracks and putting in only a two-track way. I believe, as I have always claimed that it was a bad step to close up Silsbee street when the city needed more streets instead of fewer.

COULD HAVE BEEN DEPRESSED.

"The old tracks could have been depressed through the centre of the city and the opinion of President Mellen thus publicly expressed shows that was what should have been insisted upon. There was one man who could have stopped the whole thing, but he failed to do his part in the great work to better the condition in the centre of the city.

"At the time I was a candidate for the mayorality of the city it was one one of my objects, in getting the nomination, that I might get the chance to save the city being persuaded to take something which was not the best thing to be obtained. As the time approached, however, for the contest over the nomination, I realized that if I won the nomination and was elected I should be obliged, in order to carry out my idea, to put the knife in some persons who had for years been my strong personal and political friends. Accordingly, I said to my friends who were loyally supporting me, 'I think we had better stop right where we are.'

MORE EXPENSE LATER.

"As I said before, the statements made by President Mellen are received by me with great satisfaction, but I should have been in the seventh heavens if they had only come before it was too late to effect a change in the plans adopted. As it is now, I do not see how we can help having the work done according to what the city adopted. It will probably mean, however, that in a few years the city will be called upon to spend another large sum of money to pay a part of the expense of making still further changes."

Besides Mr. Gay, there are also a number of other prominent citizens of the city who, while they do not care to make any statement concerning the interview between President Mellen and the committee from the Lynn Board of Trade, feel great satisfaction at what was said at that interview, which bears out the claims of those opposed to the plan which was adopted.

MAYOR RICH.

"I believe," said Mayor Rich on Friday, "that President Mellen is trying to pull the wool over the eyes of the business men of Lynn. If he is correctly quoted as saying that he favors depression instead of elevation, he still has the chance to show us that he will give the city depression.

"The work on grade crossing abolition has not progressed to the point where depression is out of the question. I have always been an advocate of depression myself. I have believed and do now believe that it is the only correct solution of this problem."

POLITICAL POTPOURRI

Some Withdrawals and Some New Candidates

Cornelius D. Austin is reported to have taken out nomination papers for a Democratic candidate for Mayor in opposition to Mayor Shea.

Papers have been taken out for Dr. D. B. Reardon as candidate for School Committee from Ward Three.

Democratic nomination papers have been taken out for Michael Corbett as councilman from Ward Two.

Councilman Smith of Ward Four and Councilman Cantfill of Ward Three will not be candidates for reelection.

It is understood that Councilman Hobbs in case of his reelection to the council this year, will not be a candidate for President, as he desires to be on the floor. It is understood that he aspires to be chairman of the Finance committee, which will provoke a warm contest between him and Councilman Bryant. Councilman Branch has been mentioned for President of the new City Council.

A meeting of the Republican City Committee was held last evening but no definite action was taken in regard to a candidate for Mayor or in fact any municipal office. Nomination papers were taken out by several of the ward committees, but it was not announced who they were for. Practically all the business transacted was to fix the date for the grand rally. This will be held next Thursday evening with Congressman Lawrence, ex-Gov. Long, Candidates Galvin, Barnes, Thomas, Langelier and others as speakers.

John J. O'Hara, whose term as member of the School Committee from Ward Two, expires this year, will probably not be a candidate for reelection. Chairman Miller has stated that he does not desire a reelection to the board. The member at large whose term expires is Dr. N. S. Hunting. It is not known whether he will run again or not.

It is reported that Councilman Sandberg has taken out papers for councilman-at-large.

Rumor has it that Councilman Whiton of Ward One, Carey of Ward Two, Richards of Ward Three, Gardiner and Loud of Ward Five, and Moir and Woodward of Ward Six are not to return to the new Council.

Dr. W. R. Middleton and M. J. L. Kennedy are mentioned as candidates for the School Committee from Ward Two.

HALLOWE'EN DANCE.

A very pretty Hallowe'en dancing party was held in Colonial hall last evening under the auspices of the Murray club of the Universalist church. The committee in charge, Miss Edith Hyland and Miss Harriet Lombard, spared no efforts to make the hall and the program attractive, and the success with which this was accomplished cannot be gainsaid. Mrs. R. G. Reed, Mrs. Thomas Addison and Mrs. Florence Cutter of Weymouth were the patronesses and Herbert Johnson, Richard Crane, Bruce Saville and Donald Crane acted as ushers. The girls were very fetchingly attired in fancy costumes representing the seasons, different nationalities and characters, and other personifications. Among them were Autumn, Dawn, Morning, Columbia, Red Riding Hood, Japanese girls, Red Cross nurse, fairies, etc.

About 25 ccouples were present to enjoy the dancing from 8 to 11 o'clock. Beside the regular dances there was a Virginia reel, a waltz German, and a moonlight waltz, which served as the concluding number on the program. For the German there were appropriate favors, such as miniature witches, black cats, jack-o'-lanterns, hobgoblins, etc. The moonlight waltz was very pretty with the harvest moon smiling down upon the dancers from above and focusing its rays upon the stars of Dawn and Morning and casting its effulgence over everything with beautiful effect.

During the course of the evening the "flowing bowl" in the corner was well patronized.

Guests were present from all parts of Quincy and Weymouth.

Harry Smith of Stoughton furnished the music for the dancing.

The evening was very agreeably spent by all present the committee and the club it represents are to be congratulated on the success of the party.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY.

The regular social meeting of St. Mary's Catholic Guild of West Quincy took the form of a delightful Hallowe'en party, last evening. The members upon arriving were silently ushered into the music room of the church, which was tastefully decorated with witches, goblins, black cats, autumn leaves and fruits, and lighted only by the gleaming eyes and cheerful grins of the jack-o'-lanterns.

The first part of the entertainment was given over to low, wierd music by Miss Rena Mannix and Miss Anna Kane, soon followed by a thrilling ghost drill and procession by the members of the entertainment committee, with appropriate readings for the drill by Miss Mary Monahan and incidental music by Miss Mannix.

After the ghost drill tiny pumpkins containing a fortune for each were passed by two ghosts and these were read amid shouts of laughter. Many a maid was assured of her future happiness. The usual good old Hallowe'en games were next played and also many novel and mirth provoking new ones. Suitable prizes were awarded to the successful ones in the games.

During the evening Hallowe'en refreshments were served by the hospitality committee. The members of the entertainment committee to whose efforts the success of the party were due, are: Mrs. James Fennesey, Miss E. Burns, Miss Alicia Elcock, Miss Frances Elcock, Miss Elizabeth Farrell, Miss Anna Kane, Miss Rena Mannix, Miss Mary Monahan, Miss Sadie Monahan, Miss Nellie Pickering.

Quite a number of subscribers to the Quincy telephone exchange have contracted for one of the new rates and several have already been changed.

Chestnut street needs a concrete sidewalk on both sides of the street with good edgestone. Catch basins should also be inserted at the corner of Foster street, and the corner of Cottage avenue, so that drainage water would not flow across the street.

GOVERNOR HAS TROOPS READY

Going on Strike Duty In New Jersey If Needed

VIOLENCE IN JERSEY CITY

Several Women Hurt When Crowd Attacks Trolley Car to Capture Strikebreaker—Many Persons Injured In Rioting In New York City In Connection With Express Strike—Traffic Almost Halted at Railroad Stations

New York, Oct. 29.—Thirty-five persons were injured, several seriously, during rioting that marked the express strike in this city. Some of those hurt were strikers beaten by policemen, but the majority were bystanders watching the conflict and were struck by bricks and stones thrown by strike-sympathizers.

As a result of widespread disorder at Jersey City, state troops were ordered by Governor Fort of New Jersey to be held in readiness to act the moment the situation passes beyond the control of the police. In the rioting at Jersey City two policemen were badly hurt and are in the hospital.

There was a riot near the American Express company's stables in this city. A strikebreaker was dragged from his wagon and badly beaten. A policeman who came to his rescue was also pummeled by the crowd.

When the police rescued another strikebreaker they were stoned, but managed to save their man.

Violence was renewed in Jersey City when 150 strike sympathizers stoned a trolley car in an attempt to capture a strikebreaker. Several women were hurt.

Extra precautions against the recurrence of trouble are being taken both in this city and in New Jersey. All express company offices are under heavy guard.

Service was almost halted at both the Grand Central and West Shore stations in this city and the threat of a general strike in an effort to tie up the whole Metropolitan district was made by officers of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

Showing evidence of having been mobbed, an excited squad of men, who said they were guards of the strike-troubled Wells-Fargo Express company, landed from a ferryboat after having been attacked by a thousand or more strike sympathizers in Jersey City. Surgeons pronounced the injuries of two of the men serious if not fatal.

Wagon helpers employed by both the Adams and American Express companies in New York joined the walkout and the Adams company helpers in Jersey City also struck. Both the United States and Wells-Fargo companies previously had been involved in the trouble.

Charles Raiford, general manager of the Adams Express company, announces that all street deliveries and collections in New York city have been abandoned.

As the day wore on the situation here became serious. Rioting broke out at several points. A dozen mounted police, reinforced by a score of bluecoats on foot, charged into 250 striking drivers and helpers of the American Express company at Fifth avenue and Fourth street when they jeered one of the company's officials who urged them to return to work.

Fifth avenue at that point was crowded with hundreds of women and scores of vehicles. The women fled for safety through the side streets as the strikers were driven down the thoroughfare. General agent Balfour of the express company followed them, and after they got their pay was accompanied by a number of the bluecoats who had been on guard outside the depot of the express company. He began haranguing the strikers to return to work and the riot followed.

JESUIT "FORT" MUST GO

Decision of Barcelona City Council Results In Big Row

Barcelona, Oct. 29.—At a meeting of the city council the radical majority voted to tear down the defenses erected about the doors and windows of the Jesuit college and which it was alleged had transformed the building into a fortress.

The members of the minority, who protested that the defense had been constructed because of the mob attacks upon the convent during the uprising of 1909, hooted the action of the majority, and in turn was assaulted by the public police, who had been called in to estore order.

Canalejas Demands Padlock Bill

Madrid, Oct. 29.—In a speech in the senate Premier Canalejas declared that if parliament did not pass the "Padlock bill," which prohibits the creation of further religious establishments until the concordat with the Vatican has been completed, he would resign.

Italian Nobleman a Suicide

Rome, Oct. 29.—Neapolitan society has been shocked by the suicide of Baron Mario de Antonelli, son of the court chamberlain of the late King Francis of Naples. He was disappointed in love.

CHARLES FRANKLIN BROWN

Mr. Charles Franklin Brown formerly of Prospect avenue, Wollaston, passed away at his home on Loring road Winthrop early Sunday morning, Oct. 16 after a lingering illness. Mr. Brown was 38 years of age and was born in Woodstock, Conn. When very young his parents moved to Underhill, Vt., where he spent his youth. He was married June 16, 1898, to Miss Susan Louise Wonson of Gloucester, who survives him. Two years ago Mr. Brown moved to Winthrop, and only about a year ago erected a beautiful home on Loring road, where he passed away.

Mr. Brown was quiet and unassuming in his tastes and had made many friends in Winthrop after becoming a resident here. He was a member of the Cottage Park yacht club and the Court Park Improvement association and will be greatly missed by those organizations. He was also a member of the Southern Shoe Salesmen's club, as he was connected with the shoe industry, having been a salesman for S. B. Moses of Boston, who handles the products of the factory of Edwin Clapp & Son, Inc.

Funeral services were held at the house, Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 18, the Rev. James F. Allen, pastor of the First Methodist church, and the Rev. J. W. Heath of Dorchester, a former pastor of Mr. Brown's, officiating. Mr. Brown's favorite songs, "Face to Face," "My Heavenly Home" and "Lead, Kindly Light" were rendered by Mr. Clarence Tasker. The house was filled with sympathizing friends, including many of the business associates of Mr. Brown. The casket lay in a bank of choicest flowers, the floral tributes in number and beauty being such as are seldom seen on similar occasions.

From the Cottage Park yacht club was a large anchor; from the Court Park Improvement assn, a wreath or cluster of roses; wreath of roses from Mr. Moses; an immense pillow of choicest blossoms from the Clapp shoe factory; and many from individual friends.

Buriel was at Winthrop cemetery, the pall bearers being Horace Drinkwater, Alfred Lincoln, William Moses, Rufus Poole, Albert Day, and Burton H. Robinson.

Mrs. Brown and family have been in receipt of countless messages of sympathy, for her husband won the universal respect of all who knew him. Besides the widow he leaves two sons, Charles Henry Brown and Franklin Wonson Brown.

Mrs. Brown's father, Benjamin Wonsen of Gloucester, having reached the advanced age of 82 years, felt unable to attend the funeral services and instead sent a poem of sympathy and comfort.

MRS. DODGE INDICTED

Must Stand Trial For the Mysterious Death of Heath

Lunenburg, Vt., Oct. 29.—A true bill against Mrs. J. M. Dodge, indicted for the murder of William Heath, Sept. 17, was reported by the grand jury of Essex county.

No killing in Vermont ever caused such a conflict of opinion as did the shooting of Heath. Mrs. Dodge is one of the wealthiest women in the town, and a motive for the killing of the painter has seemingly been lacking.

Heath had worked for Mrs. Dodge beore and they had had a slight quarrel over the amount of the bill due, but the trouble had been smoothed over and the painter had again been engaged to work at her house.

like illness, it is often necessary quickly to raise the temperature of a room. For instance, in those hours between midnight and dawn, when the day temperature has been allowed to drop, if you are called upon to get up, the room is chilly and cold. It takes a long time to start up a furnace or fire and raise the temperature by ordinary means.

You can instantly heat a room to any desired temperature with a

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

Absolutely smokeless and odorless

It quickly gives heat, and with one filling of the font burns steadily for nine hours, without smoke or smell. Has automatic-locking flame spreader which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back, so the wick can be cleaned in an instant. It has a cool handle and a damper top.

An indicator always shows the amount of oil in the font. It has a filler-cap which does not need to be screwed down; it is put in like a cork in a bottle, and is attached to the font by a chain.

The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, because of a new device in construction, and consequently it can always be easily unscrewed in an instant for rewicking.

The Perfection Oil Heater is finished in japan or nickel. It is strong, durable and well made, built for service, yet light and ornamental.

Mrs. George L. Nott, 99 North street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I have every reason for holding a high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills. I was troubled a great deal by headaches and dizzy spells which were so severe at times that I had to grasp something for support to keep from falling. My sight was also affected, spots often appearing before me and my back ached intensely. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store and began their use. I was helped from the first and after I had taken the contents of five boxes, my cure being of long standing, I was cured. Other members of my family have used Doan's Kidney Pills with equally good results."

PERILOUS TRIP OF JOHNSTONE

Makes American Altitude Record by Flying 8471 Feet

"BARELY SAVES HIS NECK"

Forgets About Wind When Reaching Out For More Height and Saves His Life by Landing Front End Backwards After Thrilling Duel With Gale—Three Americans Chosen to Defend International Trophy

New York, Oct. 29.—The crowd at Belmont park was all for Ralph Johnstone when from Middle Island Village, L. I., fifty-five miles off the course, he brought back a new American record of 8471 feet for altitude, the second he has added to his string in the international aviation meet.

Before the passenger-carrying cross-country race was started at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon a mote in the sky was seen far to the southeast. It was Johnstone. He circled the field and settled in front of the judges' stand, while the crowds waved, cheered and stamped.

"Tell you what, boys," said Johnstone, "it was just the mercy of Providence that I saved my neck. When I thought I was within touching distance of the new world's record I kind of forgot all about the wind and began to reach out for more height. Then I suddenly said to myself: 'Young man, you had better see how much gas you've got.' It's the truth, I had just enough to turn over the two propellers. When I kept her nose up, the juice ran down into the engine and she coughed. The minute I pointed down I lost fuel and she began to miss.

"It was like shooting the chutes. First I'd take a header, with the power off, and when the wind began to carry me out of control I'd point up a bit, get a little headway, run level for a hundred yards, then dive again.

"I wasn't much scared till I got down to earth and saw what a gale there was. Then I was frightened for fair. The only spot I could find to land in was a little patch not three times bigger across than the stretch of my wings from tip to tip. While I was tossing pennies with myself the wind turned me clean around and landed me front end backwards, but that was just what saved me. If I'd come down head first the wind would have picked me up, tipped me over and smashed me to pieces."

What fluttered the hangars far more, however, than the new record or than Johnstone's narrative, was the selection of an American team to defend the Gordon Bennett international speed trophy. Hamilton, with his 110 horsepower Hamiltonian; Drexel, with a 50 horsepower Bleriot, and Brookins, in the new Wright racer, were named.

The American subs are Mars, of the Curtis team; Moissant, with a Bleriot, and Hoxsey, of the Wright team.

The French team consists of Latham, with a 100 horsepower Antoinette; Leblanc, with a 100 horsepower Bleriot; Aubrun, with a 50 horsepower Bleriot; Simon and Barrier, both with 50 horsepower Bleriots, are substitutes.

For Great Britain, Grahame-White, with a 100 horsepower Bleriot; Radley, with a 50 horsepower Bleriot, are the team, with Ogilvie of the Wright company of Great Britain, and McArdle, in a Bleriot, as the subs.

GEORGE AND MANUEL MEET

British Monarch Condoles With Deposed Ruler of Portugal

London, Oct. 29.—King George and ex-King Manuel, the deposed and exiled monarch of Portugal, met in royal embrace at Woodmorton in Worcestershire. King George personally condoled with the royal exile, and Manuel accepted his sympathy in a deeply affected manner with tears in his eyes.

Manuel and Queen Mother Amelie are living in strict seclusion upon the Woodmorton estate of the Duke of Orleans. Manuel wept when the British monarch affectionately placed his arm over the sturdy shoulders of the young man who six weeks ago was apparently secure upon the throne of Portugal.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. PAULINE CHASE

Says She Is to Marry White, but He Denies Engagement

WON'T WED PAULINE CHASE

Grahame-White Free to Pay Attentions to Whom He Pleases

New York, Oct. 29.—Rumors of the engagement of Miss Elenora Sears of Boston to Claude Grahame-White, the English aviator, became so persistent that they sent the reporters skurrying to the Englishman's hangar.

They did not discover anything about an engagement between Miss Sears and White, but they did learn that the widely heralded engagement between White and Miss Pauline Chase, the "Pink Pajama Girl," was untrue.

"I have never admitted my engagement to Miss Chase, but left it to proper persons to deny it," said White. "I did not intend to be the first to do so, but I cannot longer allow it to be said that I have no right to pay attentions to whom I please."

The denial placed Miss Chase in an embarrassing position. When she was seen at the theatre last night, where she is playing in "Our Miss Gibbs," she insisted that an engagement still existed between her and the aeronaut.

TELLS WHY WOMEN LIKE TO BE SHOCKED

Chicago Savant Sheds New Light on an Old Topic

Chicago, Oct. 29.—Women like to gossip because the news of the terrible things the neighbors have done gives a pleasing shock to their vaso-motor systems. Unless the vaso-motor system receives a goodly share of shocks the individual suffers from ennui.

At least this is the theory which William I. Thomas, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago, presented to the delegates of the National League of Handicraft societies.

"Our primitive ancestors led exciting lives," Thomas said. "We share the appetite for excitement which their experience built up in the race, and, different as our occupations and amusements are from theirs, we enjoy them in proportion as they provide the shocks to the vaso-motor system which they got out of hunting, fighting and escaping from dangerous animals. We crave shocks.

"Perhaps that is the reason some women love husbands who beat them."

BRIDAL COUPLE IN CRATE

Their Wedding Journey East Is Begun In a Baggage Car

Toledo, Oct. 29.—Crated like live stock and shipped in a baggage car was the experience of H. A. Kellar and Miss Hazel E. Holderman, daughter of Editor Holderman of Leipsic, who were married in that city.

While they were on their way to the station, friends of the bride seized the couple, bound them securely with ropes and then forcibly conveyed them to a spot where a huge wooden crate had been prepared.

It was similar to that used in shipping live stock, with the exception that chairs had been secured in each end of the same. Arriving here, the couple were released and at once left for the east.

CHARGED WITH ARSON

Traveling Clergyman and His Mother Are Under Arrest

Skowhegan, Me., Oct. 29.—Charged with firing buildings owned by Mrs. Harriet A. Whitney at Canaan on Oct. 1, Mrs. Sarah Lewis and her son, Irving, said to be a traveling clergyman, were arrested and must answer to the charge of arson.

Lewis had sold the buildings which were burned to Mrs. Whitney only three days previous to the fire.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Many New England Women Will Listen to Industrial Education Addresses in Boston Next Month—Dowdiness of Hubbite Audiences Disappears Under Operatic Touch—"Father's Day" Will be Appreciated by the Old Gentleman—Don't Break the Mirror on Hallowe'en is Safe Advice.

All swaggerdom east of the Hudson now appreciates the Hub as a music centre. The box office of Boston's new opera house is said to be fairly besieged by requests from places all over New England for tickets for the early performances. Maine and New Hampshire figure quite as prominently in the mail orders as Massachusetts, and Director Russell feels very much gratified to see that the Boston institution is rapidly becoming a New England institution. The venture of last year has unquestionably aroused the northeastern section of our country to a vital interest and enthusiasm in the world's best music. It has incidentally made a marked impression in the world of fashion, for the dowdy, slipshod appearance of its social gatherings which have for years been the laughing stock of its sister cities has given way to class and lavishness, combined with artistic taste, which has quite transformed the staid Puritan capital into a gay New York. Even on the streets one cannot but notice the tendency toward the fads and frills of the great white way. But above all is the deep appreciation of good music well presented which is making Boston unique in its possession of the opera house.

Pumpkins and yellow crepe paper have been at a premium this week, in preparation for the Hallowe'en parties. Of course you will walk down the cellar stairs backward, holding a mirror, so that your future husband can look into it over your shoulder. Only don't be in such a hurry to catch hold of him that you make the break of dropping the mirror.

All Boston is now speculating as to whether it can afford to go to New Haven to see the Harvard-Yale game, and, in case it can, whether it will be able to get tickets. There seems to be a prevalent feeling that Harvard is going to do things this year and a corresponding desire to be in at the death of the "blue pup"—all this notwithstanding the fact that lots of things may happen between now and November 19th, and that Yale has a most disconcerting faculty for coming back. There will be a small proportion of the large population interested who will be enabled to sit in at the big game. The rest will get their enjoyment and excitement out of the reproduction at the Mechanics Building, where enthusiasm biennially waxes into frenzy as the successive plays on the Yale field are reproduced and the songs of the two universities are interspersed between the quarters. The trooping of colors up and down Huntington Avenue before and after the reproduction would deceive the uninitiated into the belief that the game was to be held in Boston instead of the Connecticut field. Crimson and blue flags, crimson chrysanthemums and violets are as religiously displayed on this occasion as at the actual contest. On account of the strict measures observed in the distribution of tickets for the Yale stands and the intense interest which is felt this season, the managers of the reproduction are wondering if the Mechanics building will hold all who want to see the game by proxy.

"What's the matter with Father? He's all right!" This is the slogan of a Washington woman who is rousing the people of the Pacific Coast to a realization of their duties in the direction of showing a little appreciation of what father does. Mrs. Dood of Spokane, may her tribe increase, is endeavoring to have the third Sunday in June set aside as distinctly and definitely dedicated to father. Instead of a white posy, indicative of Mother's Day, he shall be decorated with a red rose and told his good points once a year at least. Says an appreciative Bostonese admirer of this western project: "Let the good work go on, and give Father a pat on the top of his bald head one day in the year if no more."

New England women will find that the industrial needs of their own sex are to be emphasized in the program of the great convention of the National Society for the Promotion of Industrial Education which is to be held in Boston Nov. 17-19. The conferences will certainly be of a character to bring hundreds of educators, club women, church workers and others to the Hub. A question of women's employment will be the first one discussed, on Thursday, Nov. 17, when "Demands and Opportunities for Girls in Trades and Stores" will be taken up. Dr. Susan M. Kingsbury, director of research at the Women's Educational and Industrial Union, Boston, will say something about "The Needle Trades" "The Department Stores" will be the subject of a talk by D. S. Edwards, Secretary of the Committee on Industrial Development of the Boston Chamber of Commerce. Three speakers will consider "What the Schools Can Do to Train for These Trades." They will be Mrs. Lucinda W. Prince, director of the Union School of Salesmanship, Boston; Edith M. Hawes, president Girls' Trade Education League, Boston; Helen R. Hildreth, acting superintendent the Manhattan Trade School for Girls, New York City. In the afternoon of the same day Dr. Henry Lefavour, President of Simmons College, will speak on "The Training of Teachers for Girls' Trade Schools;" Mrs. Mary S. Woolman, director of the domestic arts department, Teachers' College, New York City, in "New Requirements Made by the Trade Schools," and Sarah Louise Arnold, dean of Simmons College on "Inadequacy of the Present Source of Supply"; and Florence M. Marshall, director of Girls' Trade Education League on "What More Can Schools Do to Meet the New Repuirements?" These an dthe topics of the other days will serve as a great magnet to the serious minded women of this section.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY.

A very pleasant evening was spent by the choir boys of Christ church last evening at the Hallowe'en party given to them by St. Margaret's Guild. A ghost met them at the door, foretelling much that might happen within, but when the inner sanctum was reached everything was bright and cheery. The room was decorated with pumpkins and fall leaves, and presented a very seasonable appearance. About 65 people were present to participate in the various contests. Guessing games of different kinds furnished a great deal of enjoyment. Prizes were given the winners of the contests. There were hallowe'en favors such as little jack o' lanterns, witches, wiggley spiders, etc.

The contests and winners were as follows:—Guessing the number of petals on a chrysanthemum, won by Percy Fox; number 450; guess 398. He was given the flower whose petals were counted.

Guessing the number of peanuts on a plate; Russell Summers winner.

Guessing the number of pumpkin seeds in a basket; Stanley Ross winner.

Pumpkin hunt won by Russell Summers.

Guessing number of grapes in a cluster, won by Russell Summers.

Chewing the rabbit, won by James Smith.

Fortune telling won by Edward McKenzie, Clarance Carson and Frederick Carson.

In addition to these there were several races which furnished considerable amusement. By the time these were finished the boys were ready for the refreshments which the Guild had provided, and the rapidity with which the pumpkin pies, corn balls, apples, grapes and peanuts disappeared showed quite conclusively that the young ladies of the Guild were not novices in the art of furnishing gastronomical appeasement.

After the refreshments had vanished all lined up for a Virginia reel, and at its conclusion the ghost bid them adieu, and sent them on their way rejoicing. The party was one of the most successful ever held by the guild and the choir boys are already beginning to wish time away so that another one may be arranged for them. The success of the evening was largely due to the efforts of the president of the Guild, Miss Olive Smith and of the chairmen of the entertainment and refreshment committees, Miss Hannah Litchfield and Miss Gertrude Jones.

Persons interested in Christian Science should attend the free public lecture on this subject to be given by Willis F. Gross, C. S. B., of Boston, Mass., in Music hall, Quincy, Sunday afternoon, Oct. 30, at 3.30. Mr. Goss is an authorized lecturer of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. 27-3t

CAPE CAT BOAT ASSOCIATION

Officers Elected and Plans for Season of 1911

The annual meeting of the Cape Cat boat association was held in this city last evening, and these officers elected:

President—Frank F. Crane.
Vice President—Wallace W. Arnold.
Secretary and Treasurer—Dr. Frank E. Dawes.
Measurer—Ralph Winslow.
Delegate to Y. R. A.—Ira M. Whittemore.
Executive Committee—Walter J. Coombs, Ira M. Whittemore, Herbert W. Robbins and W. S. Hardwick.

It was voted to instruct the secretary to keep a record of next season's races by overall measurement, by waterline measurement plus one-half of the overhang, and the waterline plus two-thirds of the overhang. These records will be used for comparison purposes only, and many determine a standard rule of measurement for this type of boat in future years.

A letter was received from the Boston Yacht club, stating that club would hold six races for cat boats next season, the date of the races to be fixed by the association. The association also to formulate the rules under which the races shall be sailed.

After some discussion it was voted that the Boston Yacht club be informed that the boats would be raced under this rule. To sail on the overall measurement, the time allowance to be seven seconds per foot per mile, the length of boats not to be more than twenty-two feet.

A committee consisting of H. C. Nickerson, Dr. Frank E. Dawes and Frank F. Crane was appointed to confer with the officials of the Boston Yacht club as to dates for the races.

TENTH ANNIVERSARY

Last evening the members of the Afternoon Bridge club of Braintree and South Braintree with their husbands were entertained at bridge whist by Mr. and Mrs. Marion C. Gillette at their home, 21 Hancock street, South Braintree. After two hours enjoyed in the pleasures of whist, refreshments of ices, cakes and confections were served. Souvenirs were awarded to Mrs. George C. Fuller of Middle street, Mrs. John N. Rodgers of Washington street, Mrs. Eben Prescott of Middle street, Carl Dahl of Vine street, Herman E. Roberts of Monatijuot avenue, and Stafford S. Bridgham of Salford street.

While the fun was at its height, Mr. and Mrs. Gillette were called forward to receive the congratulations of their assembled friends, it being the tenth anniversary of their marriage. In behalf of the company, Mr. Prescott in a speech both apt and witty presented the happy couple with a handsome electric dask lamp and shade. Mr. Gillette responded with appropriate remarks, accepting the gift for himself and wife. Other remembrances were received from loving friends and the occasion was a most happy one for all concerned.

The friends departed at a late hour after wishing Mr. and Mrs. Gillette long life, health and prosperity.

BOSTON THEATRE.

The great dramatic success, "The Speckled Band." An adventure of Sherlock Holmes by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle begins its third week at the Boston theatre next Monday. There has been a continuous line at the box office ever since it opened and there is no doubt that "The Speckled Band" has settled down for a run. Never has a play which has been produced at the Boston theatre in years received such unanimous praise from the press. Mr. Frohman could not have chosen a more highly interesting play than "The Speckled Band" for the beginning of his new policy at the Boston theatre where the piece is playing to enormous houses at every performance and one rarely sees better acting. As to the production itself Mr. Frohman has spared neither pains nor expense to bring out this play in a carefully, elaborate, artistically true manner, characteristic of all his productions. Likewise his selection of the cast. Each individual has been selected for his fitness to the character he represents. Matinees during the engagement will be given on Wednesdays and Saturdays and special attention is being given to mail orders from out of town patrons.

WRESTLING AT MUSIC HALL

Hasson and Bob Somerville Among Winners

There was a fairly good attendance last evening at the opening exhibition of wrestling under the auspices of the Eastern Athletic club at Quincy Music hall. There were several bouts which were refereed by George Tuohey of the Boston Journal. Before starting the first bout Mr. Tuohey stated that it was the aim to give clean exhibitions of wrestling, and if the lovers of sport gave the exhibitions their support, some of the best wrestlers in the state would be seen in Quincy during the coming winter. Mr. Tuohey kept close watch of the wrestlers, and the least sign of slugging was immediately checked.

This rule was strictly enforced as instanced in the bout between Ali Hasson, the Syrian and Bilger Carlstrom, the Swede. Both men lost their temper, and a scrap was evident, when the referee ordered them from the stage. Hasson was considerably the heavier of the two, but the evident intention of the Swede was to offset this by shutting off the wind of the Syrian. Time and time again he would hold his hands over the mouth and nose of the Syrian to keep him from breathing. The latter was game however. Fifteen minutes had elapsed when they were ordered from the stage. Later when they had both cooled off, and felt sorry, their bout was continued; with but one minute to spare Hasson got a toe hold and won.

The first bout was between White and Rocco of Boston, and was won by Rocco in 9 minutes, 30 seconds.

Then came the Hasson-Carlstrom but, and a bout between Frank West of Boston and Joe George of Quincy. The former won by a hammer hold in 6 minutes, 20 seconds.

The bout of the evening was that between Bob Somerville, holder of the championship belt, and Columbus of New York, best two in three. Both men appeared to be quite evenly matched, although Somerville was the more wiry of the two, and the manner in which he wiggled out of what for a moment seemed dangerous holds, brought out loud applause. Of the two he was the more skilled and possessed the best wind. At times Columbus breathed hard, showing that he was getting tuckered out, while Somerville seemed to be as fresh as ever. Whenever either wrestler would have a particular hold it would be announced by the referee. After wrestling for 26 minutes and 30 seconds, Somerville got a body scissors hold on Columbus, and forced his shoulder blades to the floor, winning the first bout.

The second bout was wrestled much faster than the first, both men seeming determined to end it as soon as possible. It was a case of skill against skill, and at times both men were in danger of loosing. Somerville got several bad holds of Columbus, and for a moment it looked as though Somerville would win, but Columbus managed to work out of the hold. Somerville's scheme seemed to be to tucker out his adversary. Suddenly Somerville grabbed Columbus in his arms, and walking across the stage, dropped him to the floor and won the bout in 15 minutes, 10 seconds.

Somerville who is certainly a wonderful wrestler has recently taken up his residence in Quincy, and lovers of the sport will have a chance to see him wrestle often.

During a brief lull, Martin Rock appeared on the stage and challenged Somerville for the belt. The latter replied that the belt was open, and as soon as Rock posted his forfit the match would be held. The chances are that the match will be pulled off in Quincy.

Vol. 25 No. 253 | QUINCY, MASS., MONDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 31, 1910 | PRICE TWO CENTS

NO MYSTERY IN CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Teaches same Good News Jesus Christ Brought to World, the Healing by Divine Power

Says Willis F. Gross, C. S. B., at Music Hall

A large and appreciative audience gathered in Music hall, Quincy, Sunday afternoon to listen to a lecture upon Christian Science by Willis F. Gross, C. S. B., of Boston, given under the auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Braintree.

Mr. Gross was introduced by Lewis C. Strang, C. S. B., and spoke for over an hour, holding the close attention of his audience throughout. His address follows:

The basis of Christianity is truth, even the truth of which the Master spake when he said, "And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." Truth is one and universal. It belongs to no person, or class of persons, to the exclusion of others. There may be honest differences of opinion as to what is truth, but the fact remains that truth is real and powerful and the understanding of truth delivers humanity from the bondage of error. This understanding is gained slowly and mortals learn many things from experience. There is great need of charity and thoughtful consideration of others in the working out of life's problems. There are many opportunities to lend a helping hand and the sincere follower of Christ is "ready always to give an answer to every man" who, in the right spirit, asks a reason of the hope that is in him.

Men are no longer satisfied with that conception of God which gives merely a reasonable assurance of a heaven beyond the grave to those who are found worthy. They desire to know God as a present help in every time of need, if it is possible thus to know Him. They are asking for present proof that they are solving life's problems aright and have not labored in vain.

It is not the purpose of this lecture to compare Christian Science with other religious teachings or other systems of healing disease. Our endeavor shall be to present a brief statement of the fundamental teachings of this Science and incidentally to correct some mis-conceptions and false presentations of the subject. A misstatement of any teaching or practice can benefit no one. It may deceive the person who is seeking reliable information, and it can in no sense add to the good works of those who honestly hold to contrary opinions. It had been well if in all ages of the world's history, earnest heed had been given to the words of wisdom which fell from the lips of Gamaliel when he said, "And now I say unto you, Refrain from these men, and let them alone: for if this counsel or this work be of men, it will come to naught: but if it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it."

There is no mystery in Christian Science save the mystery which enshrouds everything which is not understood. Christian Science can be understood, and when it is understood, it brings healing to the sick, comfort to the sorrowing, and strength and courage in the hour of trial and temptation.

The power for good in Christian Science is due to its spiritual conception of God and man. A man's religious belief and practice is the natural result, the logical sequence, of his conception of the Supreme Being. If a mortal thinks of God as being in any sense like unto himself, he rises no higher than a man-like God and he comes to the conclusion that this God has even less to do with the affairs of every day life than have his relatives and friends, or even the stranger with whom he comes in contact.

Christian Science teaches that the seeker for truth must start with the true conception of God. The mortal, material selfhood must be left out of the consideration, for "the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned." If God, Spirit, is the starting point and reasoning is along scientific lines, no other conclusion can be reached than that of a spiritually perfect universe and a God-like man. If one's ideal is a man-like God, here is little hope of heaven on earth and there is an honest doubt as to what the future has in store, but if one is striving to become a God-like man, not only the future but the present is enriched by the presence and power of divine Love.

There may be those who believe it is presuming too much to say there are people living today who can heal the sick in the same manner as Jesus and the apostles healed. It should be understood that the advocates of Christian healing claim no more for themselves than they affirm is the divine right of all mankind. The law of spiritual healing is ever-operative. Whoever understands and obeys this

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS

Hear Talks on Pond Home and Floating Hospital

The City Union of King's Daughters had their annual meeting Saturday afternoon and evening in the chapel of the First Unitarian church. Both sessions were well attended by members of the four circles in the city. At the afternoon meeting the devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. E. C. Butler, senior pastor of the church. Mrs. Moore sang some very pleasing solos.

The speaker was Mrs. Allen, director of the Pond Home for the Aged. She told of the life at the home and the various means of adding to the comfort and happiness of the old people which were made possible through the various circles of King's Daughters, which help very materially in supporting the Home.

Reports from the Circles in the Union showed progress and told of much good which has been done along various philanthropic lines during the past year. The officers of last year were re-elected, Mrs. George Badger president, and Miss Alice Hatch secretary and treasurer.

At the evening session Houghton Schumacher led the devotional service. Mrs. Moore rendered another solo.

G. Loring Briggs manager of the Floating Hospital, spoke of the good work which is being done by means of the institution with which he is connected. The King's Daughters have interested themselves in this work as well as in that of the Pond Home and were very much pleased to hear about the work from the inside and to find other means of usefulness.

The Charitable Ten provided a dainty lunch, which was served at 6 o'clock. All were agreed that the afternoon and evening were very profitably spent, and the different circles will enter into the work of the year with greater enthusiasm and a wider knowledge of the objects for which they are striving.

STATE CONFERENCE.

Delcevare King of this city, chairman of the Massachusetts No-License League, presided this afternoon at the opening session of the Eastern conference of No-License workers at Ford hall, Boston. Quincy also has a special campaign exhibit. The afternoon program included twelve discussions. All interested will be welcome at the banquet at 6 P. M. and Quincy will be well represented. No tickets will be required for the gallery at the evening session at 7 with addresses by Hon. John D. Long, Charles W. Eliot, LL. D., Robert A. Wood and Right Rev. William Lawrence. Delcevare King will survey Massachusetts under No-License, and the work in Newburyport, Hudson, Woburn and Lynn will be presented by gentlemen from those places.

CASE CONTINUED.

Christopher Barry was arrested in City Square Saturday evening by Officer Bishop, who this morning preferred charges against him for drunkenness, profanity and assault. According to the officer, Barry arrived in City Square about 8.30 Sunday evening and stood in front of Hearn's drug store, where he attracted considerable attention by loud profanity. When the officer attempted to place him under arrest he alleges that Barry made an assault on him. Barry was later bailed out, and this morning in court pleaded not guilty to all three complaints, and asked for a continuance that his counsel might be present. The case was continued until Saturday.

NEW RECORD AT INDOOR MEET

Harry Glover Makes Jump of 19 Feet 3 Inches

First indoor track of the fall was held in the gymnasium of the Y. M. C. A. Saturday evening in the presence of a large gallery of on-lookers. Every event was well contested by a large number of men and the times and distances were all good. One record was broken by Harry Glover who with a handicap of 9 inches cleared 19 feet, 3 inches in the broad jump.

Wilson won the potato race from scratch, and McCarthy with a handicap of 10 yards won the 220 yards dash in good time. He also took second place in the high jump and may be considered the individual star of the meet.

The officials were as follows: "Bill" Hackett, timer. Judges at finish, R. Jones and J. Phelan. Judges of field events, Lee Brooks and J. Floyd. Starter, L. F. LaRose

About 125 people turned out to witness the meet and both spectators and contestants seemed so well satisfied with everything that the next one should prove even more successful than this. Handsome cups were awarded the winners of the different events. The name of the winner and the date of the victory will be engraved on them. Hackett, the timer, was the centre of much interest which attested the popularity of the Brockton marathon winner.

The summary:

15 yards dash—F. Avery 1st, R. Estey 2nd; time 3 1-5 sec.

Running broad jump—H. Glover (9 in.) 1st; Booth (3 ft.) 2nd; distance, 19 ft., 3 in.*

220 yards dash—J. McCarthy (10 yds.) 1st; Glover (8 yds.), Kenn (12 yds.) and Barnett (18yds.) tied for 2nd; time 24 sec.

Potato race—J. Wilson (scratch) 1st; McInnis (6ft.) 2nd; time 23 3-5 sec.

Running High Jump—J. McArdle (1 in.) 1st; J McCarthy (6in.) 2nd; height 5ft., 4 in.

REPUBLICANS ARE WITHOUT A CANDIDATE

J. S. Swingle Cannot See His Way Clear to Accept Mayoralty Nomination

Ex-Councilman Abele Withdraws His Name

The Republicans find themselves this morning without a candidate in sight for Mayor. Saturday there was a possibility of two candidates, Jonathan S. Swingle and ex-Cocilman George W. Abele. Papers were taken out for the latter gentleman Saturday noon by Councilman Nowland and Mr. Swingle who had been approached promised to give his answer on Monday.

This morning finds Mr. Swingle declining to be the candidate, and Mr. Abele also withdraws from the contest. Mr. Swingle, when seen this morning, said that he had given the question careful investigation and attention. His business was such that it demanded much of his attention, and he realized that in the event of his election it would mean that he would have to seriously neglect his private business. He further writes:

"It is indeed gratifying to feel that I have won the esteem and respect of such a large circle of acquaintances and business associates, but I cannot under any condition allow the use of my name in connection with the Mayor's office at this time."

Ex-Councilman Abele, when seen this morning at his office in the Adams building, and asked as to the rumor that he had decided not to be a candidate, said that the rumor was true. He had been rejuested to be the party candidate, and it was true that papers had been taken out. He had not signed them, however, and after carefully considering the question had decided not to run.

As stated above the Republicans are without a candidate. It was rumored early in the month that ex-Councilman Walter F. Nichols the candidate of last year would be the candidate again this year as he claimed the nomination belonged to him. It is reported, however, that when Mr. Nichols made the claim, that he understood Mayor Shea did not intend to run, and that there would be a clear field. When Mayor Shea announced he was to be a candidate for the fourth term Mr. Nichols preferred to wait until the field was clear.

There was some talk in City Square this morning that ex-Mayor John O. Hall might be induced to become the candidate. While nothing in relation to his candidacy has assumed definite shape, it would not be at all surprising if he became the candidate. Ex-Mayor Hall has a large circle of friends and he believes that should he run, he could win out at the election.

FOUND DEAD.

Oliver Roberts, aged 40 years, was found dead in bed Sunday morning at the Brunswick hotel, South Braintree. Roberts who was employed at the Rubber Works has resided in Braintree about 4 years. He retired Saturday night in apparent good health. Failing to come down to breakfast, the landlord investigated and found him dead. Medical Examiner Fraser said death was due to heart disease. It is said Robert's home is in Douglass, but little is known of him other than he came to Braintree from Holbrook about six years ago.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Alexander A. Will, a well known Milton contractor, and one of the sewer commissioners of the town, died Sunday at a private hospital at Hyde Park of appendicitis. He was born in Scotland, 53 years ago, but has resided in Milton since he was 18 years of age. He leaves a wife and four children.

BENEFIT DANCE.

A benefit dance was given in Malnati's hall Saturday evening by friends of Joseph Di Bona of 8 Hayden street. Mr. Di Bona is a victim of tuberculosis and this has found difficulty in maintaining himself. The dance was attended by over 100 couples and was in every way a success. The music was furnished by the Boston Academy orchestra. Mr. Di Bona will be the recipient of about $50.

TODAY'S COURT

John Crowley, Patrick Danehy, Timothy Sullivan, were fined $10 each and Daniel F. Murphy $3 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Christopher Barry was arraigned for drunkenness, profanity and assault on Officer Bishop at Quincy. Case continued until Saturday.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

It would be reasonable for railway companies to demand an extra rate for the use of the rear platform by orators.

That Hagerstown man who was hit by an automobile going 50 miles an hour and escaped injury is a striking proof of the astonishing healthfulness of that community.

A Boston paper gives considerable prominence to the fact that eight square-rigged vessels are loading lumber at the Mystic wharf for Argentina, but it is a sad commentary that not a single vessel of the fleet flies the American flag. It is a fact that some are owned in this country, but the United States does not encourage foreign shipping in American bottoms.

The 9 to 1 advertisement of the Boston Globe last week shows that Massachusetts wage earners are able to save much more than the wage earners of Great Britain, although there is considerable talk about the high cost of living. In Free Trade Great Britain the Savings Bank deposits are $25 per head, while in Massachusetts under Protection they are $240 per head. "We have $9 to their $1," and we should keep Massachusetts just where she is in the foremost ranks of the states of this country.

"Resolved, That the business men of Boston, this day assembled at hotel Somerset, without regard to party relationships, commend the faithful and efficient administration of Hon. Eben S. Draper, governor of Massachusetts, and urge all thinking men who have the best interests of the commonwealth at heart to support him with their suffrages at the forthcoming election."

This was the resolution which was heartily adopted by Boston business men on Saturday, made up of all political faiths, and indicates that Democrats are to assist this year in reelecting Gov. Draper. Certainly there is much more to commend in the record of the present executive than there is to censure, and the affairs of state would be safer in his hands.

DRIFT OF OPINION

In her initial report Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, head of the Chicago schools, says that if schools are to develop strength to resist the evil and to practice the good "their conception of training in the virtues must comprehend more of moral activity in co-operative work." Among the virtues in which she would have children trained are honesty, truthfulness, charity, kindness, generosity and justice. These virtues should be taught the children at home, but, unhappily, they often are not. Therefore, they must form an important part of the school curriculum, from the primary to the high school, or we shall have a constant crop of bad voters.

Attempts are made occasionally to educate children in civics by organizing mock municipal governments and letting them play at being aldermen and mayors. It amuses them for time, but in Mrs. Young's opinion is of little practical value. Nor are the ordinary text books on civics of much worth. Nothing is gained by compelling immature persons to read about the different spheres of the national and state governments. They read only to forget.

The virtues of honesty and justice are fundamental principles of civics, says the Haverhill Gazette in this connection. The teacher needs no text books for them. Nor does she need one to inculcate in the minds of children respect for and obedience to law. A solid foundation has been laid when children shall have been taught not to do what the policeman tells them not to do. He is the first personification of law they get acquainted with.

The children should be taught that laws are made by the "grown ups" and that they themselves are to be law-makers in the future. Then they will appreciate more fully the need of an education to fit them for the duties that await them. Then when they get a little older they can be given some knowledge of the mechanism of a municipal government, that being the one which comes nearest to them. An educational policy of this kind rigidly adhered to for a few years would give us voters who would not sell their votes or vote for men who sold theirs.—Framingham News.

It is surprising how many men there are who do not desire their sons or any one else to adopt their calling. But is it wise thus practically to speak ill of your business?

It is a good sign when a man is proud of his work or calling. Men are frequently heard finding fault with their particular business, deeming themselves unfortunate because fastened to it by the necessity of gaining a livelihood. They thus destroy all their efforts in the work and keep shifting from one thing to another until they are finally failures in life.

A man should put his heart into everything he does. There is no profession that has not its peculiar cares and vexations. No man can escape annoyance by changing his business. There is not any mechanical business altogether agreeable. Commerce is affected, like all other pursuits, with trials and unwelcome duties.

It is very unwise for a man to search out the frets and burdens of his calling and give his mind every day to a consideration of them. They are inevitable. Brooding over them only gives them strength. Every one should adopt his own business and identify it with pleasant associations. Honor your business.—Boston Globe.

The average "boy mandit" should be spanked publicly. That would take some of the cockiness out of him and get him down to his proper level. Nothing should be done that would tend to make a hero of him in the minds of those as weak-headed as himself.—Boston Journal.

The Journal probably is aware that its recommendation will not be adopted. And yet something must be done to check the cockiness of boys who are no less independent of parental control than contemptuous of constituted authority. The evidences of growing hoodlumism are too many, the while its offensiveness is as constantly conspicuous, for pointed criticism to be dismissed in certain quarters as the idle vaporings of fussydudies. Things are going from bad to worse, and a check must be applied.—Salem News.

SEASON FOR WALKING.

No Time of the Year as Good as This for the Exercise.

At no time of the year should walking so generally be indulged in as in the Autumn. The air is crisp and full of the ozone emanated by the turning leaf and the ripened pine needle, making the atmosphere a tonic worth more than all of the alchemists' concoctions.

There is no greater alchemist than Nature, who in her evolutions of the seasons brings something ever wished for and ever new, and in Autumn when all the harvests are garnered is a good time to store up some good healthy corpuscles in our blood.

When out walking the correct carriage is frequently forgotten, or at least neglected. Chest up is the essential direction, and one might almost say the only one needed ,since in lifting the chest the shoulders are at the same time thrown back and the abdomen drawn in.

To swell the chest with a full deep breath and to hold the position thus obtained is the secret of correct carriage when preparing for a walk of the tree-lined avenue or across country.

Horsewomen are seldom seen nowadays and surely there is no exercise to be received by autoing; an airing is all that is accomplished by this, and, though it proves beneficial in a way, it surely cannot compare with the world-old exercise of walking.

That pedestrianism is the coming fad is assured, as teachers, physicians and parents are recommending this as a wholesome as well as pleasurable pastime. Proof of this can be found in the suburbs every clear evening and on Sundays, where numbers regularly indulge in this beneficial and inexpensive exercise.

Walking in the early morning is much more to be preferred than in the evening on account of there being less dust in the air and it being purer and sweeter.

TRADE AT HOME.

"When you trade with the man next door
Or the merchant around on the square
You may give a lift to the general thrift,
And may hope for your ultimate share.
'Tis wisdom that's learned from life,
And requires no scholarly tome—
That the dollar which may come back your way
Is the dollar that stays at home."

MR. FOSS IN LEAGUE

For Repeal of the Bar and Bottle Bill

Rev. Herbert S. Johnson pastor of the Warren Avenue Baptist church, Boston, discussed one of the great issues of the State campaign on Sunday evening. He said in part:

The friends of the Bar and Bottle bill have been disturbed of late by reports in the newspapers and upon the street to the effect that the liquor interests of the state intend to repeal this measure before it becomes operative.

I am informed that there was held recently a meeting of the liquor dealers of the state in Hayward hall, this city, and subsequently it was reported by a prominent evening paper "that the liquor interests of the state prefer Foss to Draper. More in detail, the report is that at a recent meeting held in Hayward hall, counsel for the liquor interests, stated that, if they succeeded in passing through Legislature of 1911, a bill to repeal the bar-and-bottle bill enacted by the Legislature of 1910, he believed that Governor Draper would veto the repeal bill. He added that he had reason to believe that Foss would sign such a bill, and that that information would be in the hands of every liquor dealer in Massachusetts between now and election day."

I am led to believe that these reports are entirely true by the following declaratiou from the North American Wine and Spirit Journal, May, 1910, viz. "The Bar and Bottle bill, a measure fraught with the direst effects upon the trade and the public, has become a law. That law cannot be allowed to remain upon the statute books of the Bay State."

My opinion as to the truth of these reports is further confirmed by the following consideration: Upon Tuesday, Oct. 25, I wrote to Mr. Foss, asking him his position with reference to repeal of the Bar and Bottle bill, in view of the fact that it was one of the principal laws enacted by the last Legis lature.

His reply is a clear evasion of my question. There is nothing in it tending to refute the report that he is in league with the liquor interests. We must conclude that he stands with them on this matter, as indicated in the newspaper report which I have quoted above.

SOUTHRONS STILL "WET"

Shown by the Enormous Sale of Whisky Revenue Stamps

Washington, Oct. 31.—The law in Alabama, Georgia, North Carolina and a part of South Carolina may be dry, but the dry belt is limited to the law, and the people are wet, according to the reports the revenue collectors in these prohibition states made to their chief at Washington.

These reports are fairly steeped, macerated in liquor. They tell not only of "booze" being made, but of the sale, both in small and large quantities.

The retail stamp costs $25 and the wholesale $100. It is estimated that in Alabama, Georgia, North Carolina and a small part of South Carolina the receipts from the sale of these special tax stamps will amount to approximately $105,000 for the fiscal year which ended June 30 last.

GETS A LINCOLN PENNY

North Dakotan Writes to Washington For Information

Washington, Oct. 31.—From an isolated North Dakota town, an inquiring citizen has sought light from the postoffice department, concerning a Lincoln penny that has fallen into his hands. In a letter to the postmaster general the North Dakotan, ignorant of the commotion raised last year by the issue of the Lincoln penny with its designer's initials, "V. D. B.," in relief, wrote:

"I enclose a penny that I do not know anything about. Is it what we call a false piece of money? If you know anything about the penny please tell me."

The department will notify him that the cent he enclosed is perfectly good coin of the realm.

GUN FIGHTERS NOT QUITE QUICK ENOUGH

Policeman Shows Gophers Some Fine Work With Pistol

New York, Oct. 31.—Through quick work with his revolver and unerring aim, Robert Adler, the special policeman in a dancing academy, who shot and killed one man and probably fatally injured another while the fifty or more dancers were in the midst of the mazes of the waltz, broke up for the time being the Gopher gang, a band of gun fighters.

Six of them, led by Charles Hunt, cherished hatred against Adler and, according to the police, went to the dancing academy to "get him."

When Adler stopped them at the door six hands reached for as many pistol pockets. A shot was fired and the door near Adler's head was splintered. Then Adler's pistol flashed and Hunt crumpled up and fell, shot through the head.

Three other shots were fired at Adler, but all missed. William Morris, one of the band, then lunged forward with a pistol raised, but the special policeman was too quick and shot him through the head. The remainder of the band fled. Morris will probably die.

PLANTATION RAIDED

Outlaws In Mindanao Are Being Pursued by Troops

Manila, Oct. 31.—Three hundred Manobos tribesmen raided the plantation of Eugene Barton on the northern coast of Mindanao island. They burned the buildings with their contents and killed the stock.

Barton was absent from home. His wife and son were rescued from the raiders by friendly natives. Troops have started in pursuit of the outlaws.

The raid followed the outbreak of outlawry among the Manobos in Davao, the southern povince of Mindanao island.

MASTODON TEETH FOUND

Sixteen Brought to Light by Gold Seekers In Alaska

Seattle, Oct. 31.—A hydraulic nozzle cutting away an ancient gravel bank on the Kougarck river, 120 miles from Nome, to wash out gold, uncovered sixteen mastodon teeth, grinders of eight huge elephants that roamed over Seward peninsula when that now frozen country was covered with abundant vegetation.

Other bones were found, and the miners hope to come upon the remainder of the skeletons. Some of the molars have been sent to Professor Quackenbos of the American Museum of Natural History, New York.

Worked the Badger Game

New York, Oct. 31.—Florence B. Wildrick was convicted of trying to extort $500 from Charles W. Hurlburt, a lawyer, by a badger galme. The maximum penalty is fifteen years.

Over a Hundred Drowned

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 31.—One hundred and eleven Japanese fishermen were drowned off western Japan when a storm destroyed a large fleet of fishing boats.

Stepped In Front of Car

Taunton, Mass., Oct. 31.—Stepping from the sidewalk directly in front of a big electric car, William LeClair, 45, a painter, was instantly killed.

BUMPS PROVED TO BE BUNDLES OF MONEY

Immigrant Excited the Curiosity of Port Physician

New York, Oct. 31.—The peculiar figure of Claus H. Rosenberg, a passenger aboard the Kaiserine Auguste Victoria, arrested the attention of one of the immigration doctors, who, after feeling Rosenberg's back and chest, asked him what was the matter.

"Nothing," replied Rosenberg," Only that my wife and I are going to Oregon, where I shall buy a farm and settle down near my children, who have been farming there for the past ten years."

"Well, what are all these bumps on your back and chest and legs?" asked the doctor.

"That's my money," answered Rosenberg, and to satisfy the doctor's interrogations he pulled off his coat. Sewn to the back and front of it were bundles of dollar bills, amounting in all to $5000. This satisfied the health officer and Rosenberg was allowed to depart.

WANTS TO QUIT TURKEY

Straus Asks President to Relieve Him of Ambassadorship

New York, Oct. 31.—Oscar Straus, who is home on leave of absence, has asked President Taft to relieve him of his post as ambassador to Turkey, because he has served three terms at Constantinople, which, in his opinion, is enough.

"When I was appointed," said Straus, "I accepted the post on the undestanding that I was going to adjust certain matters and that at the end of a year I should return home. The difficulties have all been straightened out, and I have, therefore, asked to be relieved some time before my leave of absence expires, which will be Dec. 13."

Mr. Straus indicated that he was speaking solely of the ambassadorship to Turkey, and that he did not mean to convey a resolution to retire altogether from the diplomatic service.

VICTIMS OF POLITICS

Death of the Sibleys Will Result From Campaign Accusations

Franklin, Pa., Oct. 31.—Word from the home of Joseph C. Sibley is to the effect that neither the former congressman nor his wife has more than the slenderest chance of recovery.

Sibley blames himself for Mrs. Sibley's condition, for her breakdown resulted from the charges brought against her husband as a candidate for the Republican congressional nomination in this district. She had urged him not to run.

Dr. Hammond, who is in charge of both patients, says that Mrs. Sibley's chief trouble is mental. She is confined to her bed. Sibley is able to sit up, but attempts to walk result in attacks of dizziness from heart weakness.

BECAME CRAZY AND DIED

Fate of Two Men Who Tried to Unseal Tomb of a "Messiah"

Bristol, Tenn., Oct. 31.—Curious as what had become of the body of Dr. Teed, who announced before his death a year ago that he would rise from the tomb and become the messiah of the Koreshans, two members of the cult, according to Henry D. Silverfriend, attempted to unseal the tomb, but before this was accomplished both were deprived of their reason and died before they could be taken to an asylum.

Silverfriend is prominent in the Koreshian colony in Estero, Fla. He says that Teed has not risen, but members of the cult are confident he will come forth as their messiah in due time.

COAL POCKET ABLAZE

Fire May Not Be Extinguished For Several Days

Watertown, Mass., Oct. 31.—Seven hundred tons of soft coal in open pockets of the Nonantum Coal company, which caught fire this morning, is burning up, with but little chance of salvage.

The cause of the fire is thought to have been spontaneous combustion. The coal was discovered smoking. The arrival of the fire department disclosed the extent of the fire. The fire had been burning some time and was just breaking through the surface into sight. The blaze will probably last several days.

FRANCO ARRESTED

Charged With Abuse of Power While Premier of Portugal

Lisbon, Oct. 31.—Senor Franco, ex-premier of Portugal, who held office at the time of King Carlos and Crown Prince Luis were assassinated in 1908, has been arrested on the charge of abuse of power during his incumbency.

It is declared by the government that it did not inspire the arrest of Franco, but that it was the result of an investigation held by the judiciary. The ex-premier has been released on bail.

A SINGLE TAX PARADISE.

There is one place in the United States where Henry George's single tax ideas have been put into successful operation, and that is in a small town called Fairhope, on the gulf coast, 15 miles from Mobile, Ala.

This town of about 1,200 inhabitants was established 16 years ago by single taxers, who purchased vacant land and have governed themselves satisfactorily, at the same time obeying state laws. Fairhope has outstripped all its eastern shore neighbors, some of them much older and though yet without a railroad has drawn much business to it from the interior. The town is run by the Fairhope single tax corporation, which treats all the residents alike as regards leases of land and rentals for the same.

This town has schools, library, telephones, water works, wharf facilities, societies, clubs, etc, and merchants are free from all the oppressive taxes of fees, licenses, permits and multiform imposts that make business a burden in other communities. All things considered, Fairhope is to be congratulated in these days of grafting on being free from all the ordinary municipal ills.

SUNDAY IN THE CHURCHES

Nearly One Hundred Religious Services in the City

If your church is not represented in this department ask your pastor why he does not accept the opportunity freely offered by the Daily Ledger. Only a few of the 100 religious services of yesterday are reported today.

BETHANY CONGREGATIONAL.

"Ruined by rust" was the subject of Rev. Dr. Hardy on Sunday morning. He emphasized the fact that farming tools were not the only things ruined when neglected, but that religion, morals and civic duties suffered from inactivity and disuse.

A very pleasing and helpful address was given by Dr. Edwin N. Hardy at the Sunday evening service. Mexico and Spain, the countries and the life and customs of the peoples were illuminated by the aid of 60 colored lantern photographs. A very large audience was present to hear the lecture and all were greatly enlightened upon the subjects which it included.

Unity circle, King's Daughters, will hold a regular meeting in the chapel on Tuesday evening.

Miss Marion Keast will be the hostess of the immediate Christian Endeavorers on Tuesday evening at 46 Presidents avenue.

CALVARY BAPTIST.

The pastor spoke of the importance of the mid-week prayer at the morning service. He showed its power and the reasons why it should continue to be a most important factor in church life. A duet was very well rendered by Miss Blodwen Walters and Mrs. R. J. Davis.

The Davis class of men met at noon with a large attendance as usual.

The first prayer meeting of the newly formed Christian Endeavor society of the Calvary Baptist church was held Sunday evening at 6 o'clock. The meeting was very well attended and gave prospects of a bright future for the society. Miss Blodwen Walters the newly elected president, was the leader of the meeting.

At the evening service the topic chosen by the pastor was: "Self Satisfied." Text: "What lack I yet?"

All the services were very helpful and the opening meeting of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor augurs well for the success of the movement. The church should be greatly helped by this organization which represents the coming generation of workers in the church itself.

UNITED PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. T. H. Houston of Whitinsville preached missionary sermons at both morning and evening services. In the morning he spoke particularly of Prayer, its need and its power. In the evening he took for his text: "And the blind man's eyes were opened." Both meetings were well attended and the minister and his messages appealed to the people very strongly.

The Y. P. S. C. E. meeting was held at 6 o'clock; topic, "My denomination at work in other lands."

A Hallowe'en party will be held at the home of Charles Campbell, Intervale street, this evening, under the auspices of the Yuong Peoples' society of Christian Endeavor.

The regular prayer meeting will be held Thursday evening as usual.

Next Sunday there will be special services of which definite announcement will be made later in the week.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN.

The usual 3 o'clock service was held in the sister church with a good attendance. The pastor took his text Acts. 22: 28, beginning "I am a Roman born." He pointed out the difference between the things we inherit and the things we gain by effort on our own part and showed their efforts in character building.

The Y. P. S. C. E. meeting was held at 6 o'clock in the manse. The meeting was made interesting by remarks from the pastor and Mrs. Matheson, as well as by contibutions from the members of the society.

A Hallowe'en party will be given in the manse this evening under the auspices of the Y. P. S. C. E.

The trustees will mee with Forbes Craig Wednesday evening.

The prayer meeting will be held in the manse on Thursday.

Work on the church is progressing slowly but surely. The plasterers are at work and after their work is finished and the plaster is thoroughly dried the auditorium will be ready for occupancy. The vestry will not be ready until later.

HALL PLACE M. E.

The last of the special services in connection with the Evangelistic movement in the Methodist churches of greater Boston, were held at the Hall Place M. E. church Sunday and were well attended.

In the morning the pastor took for his text, "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation," Hebrews 2-3, the subject of the sermon being "The Great Salvation."

Sunday School was held at 11.45, and the Juniors met at 3 P. M. A praise service was held by the Epworth League under the leadership of Miss Ada Williams at 6.15.

At the evening service, the Rev. George F. Durgin of Boston brought the message of the hour. His subject was "The fortunes of the Smith family." He took his text from the book of Revelation, "Behold, I stand at the door, and knock; if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come into him, and will sup with him, and he with me." While the sermon from beginning to end was an invitation to the unsaved to open the door of their hearts and let Jesus come in, and to accept the riches which God through His only begotten Son is offering to the world, it was helpful and full of new thoughts to all present, and brought a deeper realization of the joys which come into the life in which Jesus lives.

Dr. Durgin is no stranger to the people of this church and they were all glad to welcome him again. His words and message brought help and encouragement.

Prayer meeting will be held Friday evening at 7.30.

Th Ladies Aid of the church are to hold a rummage sale Wednesday evening at 287 Copeland street.

SWEDISH METHODIST.

The pastor, Rev. Carl E. Rydstrom, preached at both morning and evening services. In the evening the male choir and the mixed quartette rendered several selections and Miss Olga Olson sang a solo. All of these added much to the service.

The Sunday school had the largest attendance on record, and both the other services were well attended. The Epworth League meeting at 6.30 was conducted by Olof Anderson.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society meet in the church Tuesday evening at 7.30. Mrs. Carl Mark will preside at the meeting.

The Bazaar committee consisting of representatives of the various church organizations, will meet on Wednesday at 7.30, to make final arrangements for the bazaar which will be held in Union Hall next week.

The regular prayer meeting will take place Thursday evening.

SWEDISH CONGREGATIONAL.

An audince that packed the church to the doors listened to Rev. G. W. Palmgren's address on "The Dance and Theatre" Sunday evening. Exactly on hour was given to the discussion of the popular subject. The only disappointment of the evening was the unexpected absence of Mr. Anderson, leader of the choir, who had been called away on a business trip. This reduced the special singing which had been promised to one selection. Announcement was made however, that the loss would be remedied next Sunday evening. On that occasion the pastor will, as has been advertised, speak on "Card-playing, Sunday Newspapers, etc."

On Thursday evening of this week the annual sale under the auspices of the Sunday school will be held. The money raised goes to meet the heavy Christmas expenses of the school. Gifts for the sale will be gratefully received during the week, and at the opening on Thursday. It is hoped that the many friends of the Sunday school work will lend a hand, and help make the occasion a marked success.

SWEDISH LUTHERN.

Rev. S. N. Elvin preached in the morning from the text: "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and unto God the things that are God's."

The Sunday school had a very large attendance, and it was particularly noticed tht quite a large number of boys and girls not connected with the church were present.

Sunday evening the pastor took for his topic "Spiritual timidity."

The Young People's society will hold a Hallowe'en party in Protection hall this evening at 7.30.

The pastor went to Hingham last week and baptized two children of a family connected with the parish, Otto and Arthur Vinquist.

A wedding ceremony was performed by the pastor Saturday evening in Quincy, at which Miss Bertha Hanson and Herman Swanson of North Weymouth were united in marriage.

SWEDISH BAPTIST.

Rev. A. P. Hanson, the pastor, conducted both morning and evening services yesterday. The Sunday school was largely attended as was also the Y. P. S. C. E. meeting which was held at 6.30.

There will be a meeting of the Sunday School teachers, Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock. A. E. Lundin, superintendent of the Sunday school will give a short address on "The historical books of the Bible." Mr. Landin his studied into the subject and is prepared to speak upon it authoritatively.

The Ladies Aid society will hold their regular meeting Thursday afternoon at 3.

Thursday evening at 7.30 Rev. C. O. Weeden, former pastor of the Swedish church in New Haven, will preach at the prayer meeting service.

The Young Peoples' society will have a special service next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. There will be special music and an excellent address.

The bazaar held under the auspices of the Ladies Aid society closed Saturday evening, after three very successful days. The attendance on Thursday evening overcrowded the basement of the church and Friday the attendance was almost as large. The original intention was to have the bazaar last two dys, but a third day was added by general request. Thursday evening Miss Hulda Johnson sang several solos in a very acceptable manner. Friday evening J. O. Backlund of Boston gave an address, and Joseph Uplin, a well known tenor, pleased the audience by his singing. The fair was more successful than was anticipated by the ladies both financially and otherwise.

WOLLASTON M. E.

The text of Rev. Wesley Wiggin Sunday morning was from Joshua 13:1; subject, "A great problem." He did not like the term foreign and home work, but rather God's larger work, as we are all brothers and sisters in Christ.

Miss Crittenden was the leader of the Epworth League; subject, "Two aspects of the government of God."

"Reality of redemption" was the subject of the evening address of the pastor.

The monthly business meeting of the Deaconess Aid will be held Tuesday at 2 P. M., committee room 36 Bromfield street, Boston. Miss Margaret Robertson will speak on Deaconess nursing. The Home Committee will hold an apron sale at the Home 693 Massachusetts avenue, November 8.

The Epworth League business meeting and social will be held Thursday evening with Mrs. Wiggin, 52 Brook street.

Prayer meeting on Friday at 7.45. Board meeting at close of service; important business. The Woman's Missionary meeting on Friday at 2.30 with Mrs. Sanders, 292 Beale street.

The Ladies' Aid will hold their annual fair in the vestry next week.

Next Sunday at 10.15 a Love feast in the vestry. Communion service at close of sermon.

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

The Rev. Joseph Walther, pastor of the Wollaston Baptist church, took for his morning sermon, Sunday morning, I Sam. 21, and a portion of I Sam. 19:9. Subject "No Book Like the Bible." There is no book like the Bible in the matter of comfort. We need comfort in this world of trouble, sorrow and darkness. Somewhere, somebody is always in trouble. Tears are flowing, hearts are crushed and broken, and they need comfort. There are a great many good books, but there is none like the Bible, none that can take the place of the Bible.

Wednesday evening at 7.45, the regular church social will be held in the chapel. An entertainment will be folowed by refreshments. More recent members, as well as those who have been in the church longer are urged to come.

FAR FROM PRAYING.

Mrs. Pankhurst, conversing with a Detroit newspaper man who expressed illiberal views on the woman question, said with a smile:

"Ah, you disappoint me I had thought American men were models in their treatment of women. I am as disappointed in you as I once was in a little Anglo-Indian child

"She had just come from India to be put to school and one night she stayed with me all night.

"After she had been put to bed I visited her room to see if she was all right. In the dim light I saw the little, white-robed figure groping on its knees in the cot, and I whispered to my daughter:

"'The little thing is saying her prayers."

"A tiny voice came from the cot

CHRISTMAS IDEAS FOR THE TABLE

SET OF FLOWER HOLDERS FOR TEE TABLE.

Red is the Christmas color, and the more vivid a table is the more appropriate. Formerly the tone was given by holly and red ribbon, but lately the poinsettia has superseded everything.

If possible have a huge mass of the natural flowers in the middle of the table. These look lovely when arranged in one of the miniature peach baskets to be had at the florist's, gilded if desired. The effect is heightened by having a bunch of poinsettia at each plate.

If one cannot afford the real flowers or but a few of them they can be made from paper so well as to escape detection, especially if mixed with a few natural blossoms.

The candle shades should be paper poinsettias, edged with red bead fringe. The ices may be served in poinsettia cups on standards representing stem and leaves.

For more elaborate effects garlands of paper poinsettia can be bought and festooned over the windows or from the chandelier to corners of the room. It can also be draped on tablecloth.

For a place card use a poinsettia blossom, with a tiny doll head set in the cup of flowers. Should one not wish to use the poinsettia plants as favors the small red sleds filled with candy are new and attractive. These can also be filled with waxed paper and used for entrees.

Santa Claus Table For Grownups.

Here is a table that can be arranged with but little trouble and expense. The centerpiece consists of a toy figure of old Santa Claus standing on a mound of snow made from cotton batting. On this mound are placed little Christmas favors done in tissue paper and sealed with Christmas seals. A wreath of holly surrounds the centerpiece. The place cards are bells, and the nut dishes are made from pink and green tissue paper, while a row of tiny candles surrounds the center of the mound. A large Christmas bell trimmed with holly hangs from the chandelier with strings of tiny chimes reaching to the sides of the table.

A White Christmas Dinner.

If you have had a red Christmas dinner so long that it palls substitute a snow scene in green and silver. Put a long oval mirror in center of table, surround it with miniature evergreens and sprinkle the surface of the mirror with mica snow to represent ice. On the mirrored ponds have Santa Claus on a sled drawn by reindeer.

Dress him in white covered with tinsel, and on his back have a pack filled with small favors. Tie each gift with tinsel silver cord and run it to the various covers with a silvered place card representing a snow scene attached to the other end.

Have a similar mirror masked in evergreens at each corner, and on it stand a silver candle with shade of white paper sprinkled with diamond dust and painted in mistletoe.

Use green and white cakes and candies in silver basket or have mounds of snowballs made of cotton batting and tinseled or the bought glass filled with nuts and candy. There could be a mound before each plate.

BRAINTREE.

Corps 102 will add three new members at its next meeting. The Corps numbers at this time 221.

Mrs. Carrie F. Loring, is arranging an entertainment to be given at the soldiers' home, Nov. 9th, for the benefit and entertainment of the veterans.

Patrick Mahoney, socialist candidate for lieutenant governor, will speak in G. A. R. hall next Thursday evening.

Mrs. Carrie F. Loring, assistant inspector of the department of Massachusetts W. R. C., will inspect Corps 110, of Randolph, Nov. 3d.

Saturday, November 5, will be Elisha Thayer's 85th birthday. He will as in former years, be pleased to greet all friends and neighbors who may call.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Poole of Hall avenue, have been spending the past two weeks in New York city. They were guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Peterson.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Burnham, nee Jennie S. Emerson who were married early in September are at home to their friends after November first at Central Falls, Rhode Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Pierson plan to move this week from West street to Pond street. Mr. Saville who is employed at C. H. Hobart's store will occupy the vacated house with his family.

The First Congregational church will hold a fair and drama on Wednesday and Thursday, November 16 and 17 in the church parlors. There will be interesting features. The drama is on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. Remember the date.

Plans are completed for the Hallowe'en party to be given by the Neighborhood club at the home of Daniel E. Cain, Monday night, and promise a very entertaining evening. An excellent supper will be furnished and appropriate Hallowe'en entertainment given.

One of the happiest boys in town this week was Master Harold Pearson, when he received a letter from the Philergians, informing him that he had been awarded the first prize of $4 which they offered to the school children of Braintree for the best home garden. The prize was not easily won. Harold has devoted many of his vacation days to his little garden and been most diligent in his work never allowing a weed to be seen. He produced some fine specimens of vegetabls and flowers.

Many favorable comments are heard about the new Lincoln school recently dedicated at East Braintree. The building is said to be in an ideal location to serve the needs of that section of the town as that locality is growing rapidly and the school was completed none too soon to accommodate the small army of children who will attend. It is a handsome structure and more than that it is commodious and practical, and embodies many of the latest ideas as worked out by those who are familiar with the peculiar needs of such a building. Braintree is proud of the latest addition to her school houses and emphasizes the fine old Massachusetts desire for good schools and plenty of them.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES.

Apple Soup. Strain through a sieve enough stewed apples to make a cupful. Mix a teaspoonful of cornstarch with enough cold water to stir smooth, and pour into three cups boiling water. Stir until thick and clear, add the sauce, season with salt and cinnamon or nutmeg, sweeten if desired, and serve cold with croutons or cheese fingers.

Frizzled Beef. Shave off very thin slices of smoked beef, put them in frying pan, cover with cold water, let it heat slowly, but not boil. Stir it and drain off water. Melt one ounce of butter in frying pan and add beef. When the beef begins to frizzle break over them three eggs, stir until the eggs are cooked, add a little white pepper, and serve on slices of buttered toast.

Falmouth Salad. Cook Brussell's sprouts in salted water until tender; drain, and when cold cut into slices, then mix with half the quantity of cooked shrimps; sprinkle over each cupful a tablespoonful of olive oil, two tablespoonsfuls of vinegar, one-quarter teaspoonful of salt, a dash of pepper, and let stand in a cool place until wanted to serve. Cover with whiped cream and decorate the top with shrimps and lettuce. When serving, toss the mixture lightly together to mingle.

Molded Eggs. Butter small cups or timbale molds, then sprinkle with minced green parsley or chives. Then drop a raw egg into each. Place a little salt and small piece of butter on each and set in a pan of hot water that will come to a third of the top; cook in moderate oven for ten minutes, or long enough to have the white firm,but not hard and tough; turn from the molds and cover with a white or tomato sauce.

Graham Muffins One cup sifted graham flour, one cup sifted bread flour, four level tablespoonful baking powder, two level tablespoonful sugar, one teaspoonful salt, one cup of milk, one beaten egg, one tablespoonful melted butter. Mix dry ingredients add milk gradually and beaten egg. Pour into hissing hot gem pans and bake twenty-five minutes.

ENGLAND GETS BENNETT CUP

International Trophy Is Captured by Grahame-White

LE BLANC MAKES BEST TIME

Would Have Taken Prize and Established New World's Record but For Accident Due to Fuel Giving Out—Brookins of the American Team Also Meets With Disaster When About to Enter Contest

New York, Oct. 31.—Claude Grahame-White, flying for the Royal Aero Club of the United Kingdom, lifted the Gordon Bennett international speed trophy from the custody of America in the fastest time ever covered for the full distance of 100 kilometres (62.14 miles) around a five-kilometre course.

His average speed was a fraction better than 61 miles an hour, and his fastest lap was 2m 55.77s, but the captain of the French team, Alfred LeBlanc, flying in a similar machine, a 100-horsepower Blerlot monoplane, was making each lap on an average of 20 seconds faster than White and would have won the cup if he had not met with a disastrous accident in his last lap, when he had the race seemingly well in hand.

LeBlanc's first lap was a new world's record in itself for five kilometres—2m 45.63s—but he subsequently exceeded it with a lap done in 2m 44.32s.

Then, running before the wind under full power at an estimated speed of eighty miles an hour, the feed pipe from his gasolene tank to his motor loosened under the incessant jarring of the engine and he suddenly found himself with nothing but the momentum to carry him.

LeBlanc was helpless and panic-stricken. He tried to lift his planes so that the last few drops of gasolene might filter down into the engine and lend him strength enough to make a landing. His steerage way was gone and when a puff of wind caught him he drifted sideways, still driving at tremendous speed, and crashed head foremost into a telegraph pole. The pole was fourteen inches thick, but he broke it into three pieces as if it had been a toothpick.

LeBlanc's accident was accepted on every hand with the greatest regret. White, the winner, admitted that LeBlanc had won the race and would have established a new world's record even better than his own except for his mishap.

Sorry as the French team were to lose the cup when it was almost within their grasp they were sorrier still to see it pass into British hands. When Drexel, of the American team, came down after only seven laps, the Frenchmen ran up to him and offered to lend their machines.

In addition the LeBlanc's accident the day was marred by a serious mishap to Walter Brookins of the Wright team who took up the new "baby" Wright racer for the first time. The machine was comparatively untried and in previous flights Orville Wright always guided it. Others had predicted that if the engine ever refused to explode the machine could never glide safely to a landing, but would fall, and that was precisely what happened.

Brookins was just coming around the turn into the home stretch for a trial circle, preparatory to entering the Gordon Bennett race when four of his eight cylinders ceased firing. Driven by the wind and his engine he came hurtling through the air at such tremendous speed that when he touched the earth his front wheels and forward frame collapsed under him. The machine stuck its nose into the dirt, slowly reared tail upward and finally collapsed, topside undermost, with a thud. Brookins was thrown from his seat in the somersault.

An ambulance rushed out to pick him up and hurried him to the field hospital. It was later announced that, though he had been painfully injured in the groin and severely bruised, there were no bones broken and his life was in no danger.

LeBlanc got a black eye, a deep cut under the chin and a broad scratch across the right temple, but was able to hobble about and join in cheerful conversation at the clubhouse cafe before the day was over.

Of the three Americans selected to defend the cup by the Aero Club of America, only two started, and those two barely before the time limit allowed elapsed.

MOISANT BEATS WHITE

Leads In Statue of Liberty Flight For Prize of $10,000

New York, Oct. 31.—Belmont park was the scene of rare enthusiasm Sunday when John B. Moisant, American, by a splendid flight went into the lead for the $10,000 Statue of Liberty flight prize, after it had passed hopelessly, to all appearances, to Claude Grahame-White.

At the last hour, with every chance of an American winning apparently gone, Moisant shot on the trip in which he beat White by a bare 43 seconds, after covering a distance of 34 miles across Queens county, Brooklyn, and the harbor of New York and back to Belmont park.

This flight does not win the $10,000 prize offered by Thomas F. Ryan, for the rules prescribe that "contestants can start any time between 2:45 p. m. and 3:30 p. m." any day of the international aviation meet. Under this interpretation, Moisant, although he protested, must await the result of any possible flights today.

TWAIN AND HOWELLS PLACED UNDER BAN

Their Books Not Allowed In Royal Library of Germany

Berlin, Oct. 31.—The kaiser received a rude shock when he read in W. D. Howell's new book, "My Mark Twain," that the author of "Innocents Abroad" had dared to smile sardonically at the fuss made about his meeting with William in the early nineties.

Mr. Howell's clever biography of the humorist, recording this fact, went further and referred to William as a sort of nincompoop, or other words to that effect. Consequently, Howells, too, has been placed on the imperial index. The royal library is not to acquire any more of his books. As to Mark Twain, he is to be put on the smae footing with the poet Heine.

When William bought the palace of the late Empress Elizabeth of Austria in Corfu he immediately banished to the woodshed a marble statue of Heine, who some seventy-five years ago made fun of the royal Hohenzollerns.

The fact that Mark Twain didn't appreciate William will now cause any photographs or steel engravings of the late American humorist to be ousted from the imperial palace.

NO PAROLE FOR MORSE

Rumor Is Set at Rest by Federal Law on the Case

Washington, Oct. 31.—Referring to the report that Republican National Committeeman Bicber of the District of Columbia recently visited Charles W. Morse, who is serving a fifteen-year sentence in the Atlanta penitentiary, with the alleged intention of arranging for his parole after having completed sixteen months of his term, it is said at the department of justice that such arrangement is impossible, as the law provides that a convict must serve one-third of his sentence before a parole is obtainable.

In the case of Morse, it is pointed out, he would not be eligible for application for parole before Jan. 3, 1915.

CONFIDENCE IN BRIAND

Premier of France Makes Successful Appeal to Deputies

Paris, Oct. 31.—Amidst an impressive hush, which contrasted strangely with Saturday's unprecedented passion and tumult in the chamber of deputies, Premier Briand, in cool incisive phrases and accomplished oratory, flayed the Socialists for their action in forbidding him the right of speech.

The premier assured the chamber that he was no dictator, but a man of law and order, and at the end of the session his frank appeal for Republican support resulted in a vote of confidence, 329 to 183.

PRACTICALLY WITHOUT HEAD

Taft Administration Is Seeking a Party Manager

LOOKING FORWARD TO 1912

Opinion That Strong Party Organization Should Be Maintained at Washington—President's Friends Look For Closer Working Arrangement Between Him and Progressives In Next Congress—Roosevelt an Issue

Washington, Oct. 31.—Leading members of the administration, including some of the cabinet officers, are working out a plan looking toward the renomination of President Taft and the rehabilitation of the Republican party. One thing contemplated in the plan is the selection of a new chairman of the Republican national committee soon after the coming election, and probably also the opening of an office for the party organization in Washington.

As soon as the election is over and sufficient time has elapsed for the results to soak in a conference of the party leaders probably will be held and new chairman of the national committee chosen. There have been many complaints from leaders throughout the country that the Republican organization is practically without a head.

When Frank H. Hitchcock relinquished active political work to become postmaster general he designated former Governor Hill of Maine as acting chairman, but very little has been heard of Hill or his activities since he assumed the responsibility of leadership.

There is no particular complaint against him for what has passed, because it apparently has been the policy of the Republicans in the last two years not to maintain a strong national organization. But the president's advisers realize now that something must be done to strengthen him and his cause, or the party will have to face the prospect of losing the country in the presidential election in 1912. Mr. Taft's advisers believe, furthermore, that the time has come when Washington should be made the headquarters of a strong party organization.

Just now a quiet canvass is being made by the president's friends to find a man of political experience and with a capacity for organizing who can be put in as chairman of the national committee. An effort will be made to get a leader free from factional troubles. Taft's advisers admit that this will be difficult and as yet no one has been publicly suggested to fill the bill.

The president's friends look for a closer working arrangement between him and the progressives in the next congress. The result of the primary elections, if ratified by the general elections on Nov. 8, will be to bring to congress a strong insurgent representation. Undoubtedly an effort will be made to harmonize conflicting views with the object of securing the enactment of the president's recommendations and of presenting a united party in 1912.

Great interest was aroused in Washington by Senator Root's statement that the Republican party might demand a Moses to lead them in 1912 if the Taft leadership was not sustained on election day. Considerable doubt was expressed by the president's friends as to whether this intimation of Roosevelt for 1912 would improve the situation for the Republicans in New York state. The White House had no comment to make on the statement. It is known that Taft did not see Root's speech before it was delivered.

It is very apparent, however, that Taft's friends were disappointed in that the Root speech contained no definite assurance from Roosevelt that he would not be a presidential candidate in 1912.

He crawled out in the course of the voyage and apologized for his presence.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

law can apply it and when it is righly applied the results are sure. If it were claimed to be the privilege of the few to know God as the healer of sickness, the charge of presumption might not be without foundation, but since it is claimed that all may know the truth which heals physically and morally, this charge is left without any basis.

It is recognized that it is man's privilege and duty to pray. To whom shall he pray and from whom shall he expect the answer to his prayers? Does he claim too much when he declares that he prays to the same God to whom Jesus and the apostles prayed and that this God hears and answers his prayer? Surely not. In the time of trial and temptation a man realizes the need of something outside of himself. Does he presume too much when he turns to God for help? and when he realizes that he has received the help he needed, does he claim too much for himself when he declares that the same God who delivered Peter from prison and saved Paul from shipwreck, has also delivered him? Surely he does no wrong when he sings with the Psalmist, "Thou art the God of my salvation."

Jesus sent out the twelve and the seventy to preach the gospel and heal the sick. He said, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." They were not sent out to preach a gospel, but the gospel, even that which was delivered unto them by the Master. The signs that followed all who believed, were proof positive that the gospel was preached and received in its purity. Do not the ministers of today, no matter to what denomination or sect they belong, profess to preach this gospel, even the same gospel that Jesus and the apostles preached for the salvation of the world? They would not be received if they claimed to preach any other gospel.

If Christians today profess to believe in and worship only the true God; if they pray to this God and He answers their prayers; if He forgives their sins and lifts their burdens; if He is their all-sufficient help in time of temptation and trial; if they recognize that He also answers their prayers in behalf of others,—if God does all this for those who trust Him, why should it seem unreasonable, or inconsistent, for professed Christians to go a step farther and recognize God as the healer of their diseases? Christian Science does not claim too much when it asserts that God is man's all-sufficient help in every time of need, and the individual is not claiming too much for himself when he trusts God and relies on Him at all times. There is abundant Scriptural authority for this position and Christian Science teaches no doctrine that is not based upon the spiritual interpretation of the inspired word.

A little more than a generation ago one of earth's noblest women went down into "the valley of the shadow of death," and the world is better for her experience, how much better only future generations will be able fully to realize. She lay, as was supposed, on her death bed. The remedies known to medical science had failed and the physician said there was no hope. The end seemed near, but her faith in God did not waver. She turned to the one infinite good for help and her prayer was answered. She called for the Bible which had been her daily study from childhood, and as she read, the healing power of divine love dawned upon her waiting thought. In that hour she arose from her bed and ever after enjoyed better health than before.

This woman was the Reverend Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science. Marvellous as was her restoration to health she did not regard it as a special dispensation of Providence; she believed and afterwards proved that it was the divinely natural result of the operation of law which could be understood and demonstrated.

There was no person to whom she could appeal for an explanation of this wonderful healing. There was no book save the Bible which could throw any light upon her experience. She tells us that this book answered her questions as to how she was healed. As she read the inspired word in the light of her marvellous experience, it spake to her in a new tongue.

In Science and Health she writes of her discovery as follows: "In following these leadings of scientific revelation, the Bible was my only text-book. The Scriptures were illumined; reason and revelation were reconciled, and afterwards the truth of Christian Science was demonstrated." (p. 110).

In the spiritual understanding of the Scriptures she discovered the Science of Christianity and learned how its sacred truths can be humanly applied to the healing of sickness and sin. This new found faith was a living faith and through her loving ministrations scores were healed of diseases pronounced incurable. Being convinced by many infallible proofs that she had discovered the Principle and rule of scientific Mind healing, she then demonstrated that it was possible to impart to students an understanding of this Science which would enable them to heal the sick. Thus was begun the greatest religious movement and the most effectual reform in medical practice known to recent centuries.

"Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," is the only text-book on Christian Science. It was written by Mrs. Eddy and first published in 1875. In this book the author has presented in a clear logical, manner the divine Principle of Christian Science and the rules for the application thereof. It was never intended that this book should take the place of the Bible, and it has never been regarded by Christian Scientists as a substitute for the Bible in any sense of the word. It is, as its title indicates, the key to the Scriptures. It unlocks this treasure house of divine wisdom and makes practical the teachings of the sacred word.

Mrs. Eddy has been and is the only leader of the Christian Science movement. To her untiring efforts and ceaseless devotion is due the wonderful success and prosperity of our Cause. To those who know her best, her life is the exemplification of what she teaches. No sacrifice is too great and no labor is too arduous for her in performance of her life mission. Nothing less than the assurance that she had a message from God has sustained her during the many years she has labored so unceasingly for present and future generations. We love her and we are more grateful than words can express for what she has done and is still doing for us. We cannot repay her for the great good which has come into our lives as the result of her work, but we are trying to show our appreciation by doing what we can to help others along the way.

The basis of Christian Science is the first commandment, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me." The Master declared that on this word and one other, namely, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," "hang all the law and the prophets." Mortals have served other gods because they entertained false views of the one God. Christian Science imparts the true idea of the Supreme Being and thereby increases one's faith in good and gives him added power over evil.

Science and Health, the text-book on Christian Science, defines God as: "The great I AM; the all-knowing, all-seeing, all-acting, all-wise, all-loving, and eternal; Principle; Mind; Soul; Spirit; Life; Truth; Love; all substance; intelligence." (p. 587). Many of these terms are frequently employed by the sacred writers to express their thought of God. The mistake has been in thinking that these words are used merely as attributes of the Supreme Being. A more correct concept of God is gained when it is learned that these terms do more than tell what belongs to God, they declare what God is. If one has been accustomed to think of God as a being who has a mind, let him stop and consider that God is Mind and this Mind is infinite. Mind, God, is self-existent and eternal. If God is Mind, here can be but one Mind. for there is but one God. Mind is the only cause and creator. All that really exists is the creation, or effect of Mind. "By the word of the Lord were the heavens made; and all the host of them by the breath of his mouth. For he spake, and it was done; he commanded, and it stood fast."

Christian Science not only corrects the false beliefs or misconceptions of the nature and character of God, but it also shows that mortals have a very wrong conception of God's creation. This Science teaches that God is the one infinite good and that which He creates could not be less than good, neither could it possibly have any inclination or tendency toward evil. God is Spirit, that which he creates is spiritual. The Scriptural teaching is very definite that God created man in His own image and likeness. The mortal concept of man is no more correct than the mortal concept of God.

God does not change. From eternity to eternity He remains forever the same. The true sense, or spiritual understanding of God is real. The personal and material concept of the Creator of man and the universe is a false sense and does not comprehend the reality of being. This material sense of existence is constantly changing. Every day brings experiences which in some degree fashion anew the human sense of God and man. God and what He creates are not in the least affected by the changes which take place in human consciousness. When creation is seen as it is, it will be found to be perfect, harmonious and eternal. That which God has made never becomes discordant, never ceases to be.

It is a generally accepted theory that disease and suffering are the results of broken law. It is also believed that there are material laws of health which, if understood and obeyed, would remove all liability to physical inharmony of any kind or character. Christian Science teaches there are spiritual laws which, when understood and obeyed, heal the sick and prevent disease and suffering. These laws can be understood and it is not impossible to obey them. That which presupposes a mind, power, cause, or creator apart from God is not the law of divine Mind. Spiritual law expresses Mind, God, and nothing else. Both sin and sickness are in violation of the unchanging and unerring law of Spirit, hence it must be apparent that obedience to the law of God will improve a man's health as well as his morals.

There are not two laws, one to be obeyed by the sick man and another by the sinner. There is but one law and obedience to this law is required of both the sick and the sinful. Whatever the human need, obedience to the law of God will supply that need, for God is infinite good and "no good thing will He withhold from them that walk uprightly"—are obedient to divine law. The law of God cannot be made of none effect. It must be understood and obeyed. Disobedience brings unto itself discord and suffering; the eternal reward of obedience is life and harmony. Paul declared: "The law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death."

The healing work of Christian Science is accomplished through prayer—the prayer of spiritual understanding. Mesmerism, hypnotism, suggestion, etc., are but different phases of the belief that one mortal mind can, consciously or unconsciously, exert an influence over another mortal mind. These errors have no place in Christian Science. The basis of Christian Science practice is, one Mind and that God; one power and that good: one influence and that the influence of divine Love.

The apostle James recorded an eternal truth when he wrote "The prayer of faith shall save the sick." The prayer of faith is the prayer of spiritual understanding, and this prayer is the most effectual, in fact the only truly effectual remedy. This prayer is not an importunity; it is not beseeching God to do something He has not done, or might not do, if He were not influenced by human desire; rather is it the knowing, or realization of, what God is, and what He has already done for all mankind. The prayer of spiritual understanding brings man into harmony with the divine laws that be, and in the degree that the law of God reigns in human consciousness the sense of sickness and suffering, as well as the sense of sin, disappears. Man is made every whit whole through obedience to divine law.

Christian Science imparts a more correct thought of God and consequently a truer sense of the purpose and motive of prayer. It increases man's faith in good and it is found that prayer becomes more effectual. The purpose of prayer is not to inform or influence God, but to bring humanity into accord with the divine Principle of all that really exists. What God knows is true, what God does is good, and what He wills is inevitable. What then is mortal man that he should seek to change or influence God? "The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much" because it is in harmony with the unchanging law of God.

The Master said, "If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you," showing that prayer to be effectual must be born of pure, uplifting desire. It must rise above the material sense of existence and lay hold on the spiritual fact of being. On another occasion he said, "What things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them." How would it be possible for a man to understand that he receives the thing he desires unless that thing had already been bestowed? If good is already bestowed, the purpose of prayer is to bring to human consciousness the realization of that which is already accomplished in the truth of being.

Christianity as Jesus taught it is effectual; being effectual, it is practical, and because it is practical it is the privilege of every man to find in his own experience the proof of its truth and power. Christian Science appeals to humanity because it presents the practical side of the Christian religion and supplies a long felt need. Christianity is not rightly apprehended until it becomes practical. Christianity is not a matter of faith merely, for the Scriptures declare that "faith without works is dead."

The master said in defence of his teachings and his healing works which demonstrated the truth of what he taught, "If any man will do his will (i. e. God's will) he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself." And so we say of Christian Science. The earnest student can gain, from the study of the Christian Science text-book, an understanding of the fundamental teachings of this Science that will enable him to prove in his own experience, the truth and practical worth of this new-old idea which is commanding the respect and consideration of thinking men and women throughout the world In proportion as he gains the understanding of Christian Science he will realize what St. John the Revelator meant when he said: "Now is come salvation, and strength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Christ."

THUGS BEAT A MAN TO DEATH

Sixty-Seven-Year-Old Watchman Brutally Treated

ATTACKED BY THREE MEN

Made Concerted Rush Upon Him When Found Prowling About Property of Fish Company at Boston—One of Trio Arrested and Identified by Victim—Dying Man Found Ten Hours After Assault

Boston, Oct. 31.—John Taylor, an aged watchman, died last night as the result of a beating by three young men whom he detected Saturday night prowling about the property of the Young Fish company in East Boston.

John Boivin, locked up at Station 7, was first charged with assault, which was later changed to manslaughter when Taylor died. Two other men who are said to have been with him are still at large, but Taylor described them to the police.

Discovery of the assault was not made until yesterday, ten hours after it occurred, when Taylor was found in the small shanty at the wharf at 331 Marginal street, where he was custodian.

James Burke was walking past this building when he heard groans coming from within. He found Taylor lying on the floor with bruises all over his body. As Taylor was 67 years of age his condition was diagnosed as serious at once, and he was sent to the Relief station. Before he died he was able to furnish a statement to Chief Inspector Dugan, on which the police arrested Boivin, who lives on Marginal street.

Boivin refused to tell the police of his whereabouts on Saturday night, but he was identified by Taylor as one of the men who assaulted him.

Taylor told the police that he was making his rounds at 9 o'clock when he noticed that the small gate leading into Marginal street was torn from its hinges. It had been fastened at 7 o'clock, and he made the round of the wharf at once to try to find who had pulled the gate off. Finally, having failed to find anyone, he fastened the gate again and started to make another round about 10 o'clock.

He was entering his shanty when he heard a noise and saw three men behind him. He drew his revolver and ordered them to halt, but they made a concerted rush upon him, and felled him. The lantern which he was carrying was knocked out of his hand, one of the men grasped the other hand which held the revolver and wrenched it away from him, and then the three men jumped upon him and beat him until he lost consciousness.

When he came to, he managed to crawl into the shanty and was lying there moaning in pain when Burke, who was on his way to launch a boat for a smelting trip, passed the door and heard the groans.

EASY FOR WOLLASTONS

Randolph A. A. Prove a Very Weak Team

In a very one-sided game of football Wollaston defeated Randolph on the lower field at Merrymount park Saturday afternoon by a score of 26 to 0. From the very start it was evident that the visitors were no match for the home team, and the score piled up rapidly. At no time during the game was the home goal in danger. Occasionally the ball would get into Wollaston's territory, but only for a moment when a kick or rush would send it toward Randolph's end of the field.

The visitors seemed to lack organization and team work and it was evident that several of the men had not played on the team before Saturday. Some of the Randolph team did not know who their own players were. One of the visitors who was found to have spikes in his shoes was made to discard them, and he played the game out in his stocking feet. The summary:

WHAT HE REMEMBERED.

"You took a vacation last summer?" he queried of the clerk in the music store.

"Oh, yes"

"Went to a farmhouse, probably?"

"I did."

"Seven dollars a week?"

"Just seven."

"Have any moonlight nights out there?"

"I can't remember."

"Any girls around to spoon with?"

"I have forgotten."

"Catch any fish?"

"Well, really, now——"

"Milk and vegetables all right?"

"Dear dear me, but my memory is bad."

"Do any bathing?"

"Say, now——"

"Do you remember any one thing that happened to you?" demanded the questioner.

"Oh, yes. I worked an ear of corn out of the matress of my bed and carried it to the farmer and asked him what he thought of it, and he replied:

"'Gee-whizz, but I lost that ear over five years ago, and have been looking for it ever since!'"—Pittsburg Dispatch.

FORGOTTEN ITEM.

Senator Tillman, attacking a certain measure, said:

"The penalty this measure imposes is unjust. It makes the offender pay twice. It is like an incident that occurred one night in a Pennsylvania restaurant. A patron, dining in the restaurant with his wife, said to the waiter, when his bill was brought:

" 'Waiter, one item is wrong here. We didn't have three plates of soup. We only had two.'

" 'Pardon me, boss,' said the waiter. 'You forgot the plate what I spilled over the lady's dress.' "

OLD MAN DRAWS THE LINE.

Arthur Herkimer, the Missouri historian, told at a dinner in St. Louis a story about the famous Gov. Claiborne F. Jackson.

"Jackson," he said, "married, one after another, five sisters.

"When for the fifth time Claiborne Jackson broached a marital proposition to his father-in-law, the old man was 80 and quite deaf. This is the conversation that ensued:

" 'I—want—to—marry—Lizzie!'

" 'Oh, yes, I hear you. You needn't rouse the neighborhood.'

" 'Well, do you consent?'

" 'Yes, I consent,' said the old man. He shook his head and added slowly:

" 'Yes, you can have her. You've got 'em all now, my boy. But, for goodness' sake, if anything happens to that poor,mis-guided girl, don't come back and ask me for the old woman.' "

SUNDAY SERVICES

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN.

A neighborhood meeting was held by the Wollaston Young People's Religious Union in the auditorium of the Wollaston Unitarian church on Sunday evening,, unions from Quincy, Braintree, Neponset and Dorchester being invited. The evening opened with a devotional service led by the president, J. Harry Hooper, during which vocal solos by Mrs. Mary Hastings Slade of Quincy were enjoyed. She was ably accompanied on the organ by William E. Weston. Professor Henry H. Barber of Meadville, Pa., delivered a dramatic original poem which proved to be exceedingly interesting.

The speaker of the evening was Rev. D. Roy Freeman of Braintree who delivered an address upon the subject "Seven steps to success." These consisted of squareness, usefulness, conscientiousness, courage, education, stick-to-it-iveness, and sincerity, the initial letters of the words spelling success. The address of Mr. Freeman was both inspiring and helpful.

Following the meeting those present adjourned to the vestry where an informal reception was held and light refreshments were served. The hospitality committee, consisted of Miss Almira E. Simmons, chairman, Miss Marion Brown, Miss Helen Brown, Louis B. Weston, Miss Bertha Polk, Miss Mildred Polk, J. Harry Hooper, Miss Olive Fay.

CHRIST CHURCH.

The regular church services were conducted by the rector, Rev. R. E. Armstrong. At the evening service the address was on the subject—"The vow of faith" The sermon was in line with the confirmation instructions which were given Friday.

Holy communion will be administered Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. Tuesday is All Saints day which is set apart to commemorate those who have departed this life.

A hallowe'en supper will be given by the Woman's Guild this evening at 7. The supper will be followed by hallowe'en festivities.

The Galahad Brotherhood will give a parish social Tuesday evening at 8. A program of songs, readings and violin solos will be followed by refreshments and a general good time.

The Junior Auxiliary will meet Tuesday afternoon at 3.45.

Confirmation classes will be held in the rectory on Friday at 4 o'clock for Juniors and at 8 for adults.

St. Margaret's Guild will meet Friday evening at 7.30.

FIRST UNIVERSALIST.

Owing to some misunderstanding the clergyman who was to conduct the services at the Universalist church on Sunday did not appear. The church was very prettily decorated with chrysanthemums and autumn leaves, and the order of services was held. Frank Hobart read the responsive service and Mrs. T. A. Addison read selections from the Bible. The quartet composed of Otis Bent, Charles Williams, Miss Florence Holton and Miss Edith Hyland sang several selections.

WOLLASTON CONGREGATIONAL.

The vesper service at the Wollaston Congregational church Sunday afternoon was well attended and was very interesting. There was a special musical program under the direction of Ernest Mehaffy, organist. The soloist was Oscar Hunting. The pastor Rev. Edward A. Chase, gave a short address on "No other way." The address was from the story of "The Rosary," repeated by request.

FIRST UNITARIAN.

The morning service was conducted by Rev. C. B. Ames. The choir rendered three excellent selections, "We know that if our earthly house," "Beloved, let us love one another," and "Eye hath not seen."

The Sunday school session was largely attended by the boys and girls.

The Parish committee announced that the legacy of $5,000 bequeathed by the late Mrs. Elizabeth F. C. Williams has been received.

The Young People's Religious Union of Wollaston invited the members of the First church Union to a neighborhood meeting last evening at 7 o'clock. A large delegation went in response to the invitation and enjoyed a fine meeting.

—Chicago's new City Hall will be one of the finest in the world when completed, at least electrically speaking, as it is to contain 22,000 incandescent lights; 1,800 horsepower in motors; 900 telephone outlets; 900 floor boxes; 14 electric elevators; a complete electric vacuum cleaning system with about 25 outlets on each floor; 100 electric clocks and 18 private branch exchange telephone boards.

—Baltimore will use its sewage disposal plant to generate electricity, utilizing the waste water power from the sewage tanks.

FORE RIVER BY 6 TO 0

Shut Out the Beverly Team in Great Game

Fore River showed its supremacy on Saturday by administering a defeat to the team from Beverly by a score of 6 to 0. The sharpness of the air made fast play a necessity and was productive of the best game of the year so far. Beverly tried hard but was unable to do very much with the "champs." The men seemed to lack the snap and accuracy which were so prominent in the members of the Fore River team.

Early in the first half the Beverly goalkeeper prevented two or three goals by fast work, but later in the game his tendency to run out of his position enabled the home team to score an easy goal. Hughes butted it through with his head without any interference. A few minutes later Campbell booted one through the goal from the 30-yard line and Harkins and D. McDonald each scored one by fast work.

In the second half, Beverly appeared to take a brace, and once or twice threatened the Fore River goal, but could not get the ball past Ridge the goalkeeper. Elliot, who was conspicuous all through for clever playing, scored two goals in quick succession very handily. D. McDonald was of great assistance in carrying the ball up the field. With about 15 minutes to play, the referee called the game on account of darkness, and the players were glad to hustle into the club room and don something more conducive to warmth than running pants and jersey.

The brisk air kept all the players on the jump and in consequence the game was a fine exhibition of football. Elliot played a wonderful game and for dribbling and passing nothing this year has equalled his performance of Saturday. Both the McDonalds played a snappy game as did also Carruthers who was continually having it out with Ward, the best man on the Beverly team. Campbell and Harkins were waking it up all the time, and did a great deal of timely kicking and passing. The team work among the Fore River men was the best seen this year and their chances for landing the cup look good if they continue to put up the kind of game seen on Saturday.

WHAT TOUCHBACK IS UNDER NEW RULES.

A touchback is made when the ball in possession of a player guarding his own goal is declared dead, any part of it being on, above or behind the goal line, provided the impetus which put it there came from an opponent. It is also a touchback when a kicked ball, except from a kickoff, free kick or one scoring a field goal, goes over the line on a fly or after striking the ground before being touched by a player on either side. If such a kicked ball strikes the crossbar or either upright it is considered over the goal line and goes as a touchback. A kicked ball hitting a defender of the goal and rolling across the line before being recovered by another defender of the goal goes as a touchback. However, if a player juggles the ball so as to force it across the line before he or another defender of the goal falls upon it it is not a touchback.

A touchback from a forward pass is made when the ball, legally passed forward, crosses the goal line on the fly or strikes either the crossbar or upright before it has been touched by a player on either side. Such a legal forward pass also counts as a touchback if the ball has been legally touched by any player before crossing the line.

On a kickoff, if the ball goes over the line and is there declared dead while in the possession of a defender of the goal, it is a touchback.

A touchback counts for nothing in the score.

NEW BILLIARD TABLE.

New York Amateurs Make System Eliminating Safety Play.

New York amateur billiard players are practicing on a new style table, which is 5 by 5 feet instead of the regulation size, 9 by 4½. On the new table balk line billiards are being played, and the square form does away with the long drive, so that there is no advantage which rail is selected by the player.

It has upset the play of some of the cracks and puzzles them when angles and force are considered. The three cushion shot is very difficult to execute, and simple caroms, single cushion shots, draws and follows are about all the style of shots any one but an expert can make. Another innovation is the use of two red balls and one cue ball in some games. Each player uses the same ball and so eliminates very largely the safety play. This game has been popular in Paris for several years.

BASEBALL BOOMS ON ISTHMUS

Free Transportation to Players on Canal Leads to Formation of League.

Baseball sentiment is being aroused on the isthmian canal, and free transportation to players on the railroad there, already tentatively approved by the canal commission authorities, has assured one league instead of two. The six teams in the new league will be Ancon, Empire, Camp Elliott, Gorgona, Commissary-Subsistence and Cristobal-Colon. The last two teams, representing the Atlantic coast, will have the best players in last season's four team Atlantic league. The 1910-11 schedule will include twenty-five Sunday and holiday games, beginning Dec. 10.

Heavy Defensive Backs In Demand.

Football coaches are seeking heavy defensive backs. Not only must the back have ability to advance the ball, but he must have the beef and bulk to stop play through the line. Back field players will have to have football instinct and uncanny ability in sizing up plays. The offensive team will be tricky and deceptive in its maneuvers, so a mistake in diagnosing a play may result in a touchdown. With forward kicks and onside kicks to worry the defense, the lot of the eleven defending its own goal is beset with many difficulties. Above all things, football "brains" are essential.

Flanagan Through With Athletics.

John Flanagan, the greatest of all hammer throwers, has returned to Ireland, where he has inherited a landed estate. He was a member of the Irish American A. C. and one of the greatest athletes the United States has known. He won his first national championship back in 1897 and still stands without a peer.

Sprinter Walker May Visit America.

Reggie Walker, the South African sprinter, is again said to be thinking of visiting America. Texas Ramsdell, who beat Walker, thinks he would win easier over the South African if he came to this country.

Jockey O'Neil Cleaned Up Fortune.

Frank O'Neil, W. K. Vanderbilt's jockey, has ridden 122 winners so far this season. Vandy's horse pilot is an American boy. His earnings this year will be $30,000.

Young Schaefer Touring West.

Jake Schaefer, Jr., fifteen, son of "the Wizard," is making a billiard tour of the west. His father died penniless. The boy is supporting his family.

Breitenstein to Manage New Orleans.

Archibald Cary Smith, the noted New York naval architect, studied painting in his youth, but found a greater attraction in shipbuilding. The yachts which he planned number half a hundred, and many of them have proved notable sailers.

Rowland Gibson Hazard, the well known Rhode Island manufacturer, has his name at the head or in the list of directors of more than a score of national and international societies of art, science, economics and health, is a college fellow and trustee and also is active in politics.

George William Maynard, one of the most eminent of American mining engineers, is seventy-one years old. He has been a consulting officer of mining and reduction plants in Europe as well as in America. He was born in Brooklyn and has been a resident of New York city for years.

Joseph Fels, a restless little man of fifty-five, devotes most of his time to furthering liberal causes in England and America. After making a fortune he took time to think and decided he had no right to so much money. Now he is trying to spend it in the wisest way for the general good.

Her Lost Chance.

Mrs. B.—I wonder why Miss Singleton refused the curate when he proposed to her?"

Mrs. D.—All a mistake, my dear, a sad mistake; you know she has grown a little deaf, and she did not suspect he was at all "gone" on her. She actually thought he was asking her to subscribe to the new organ fund, so she told him she was sorry, but she had promised all her money in another direction.

Mrs. B.—Then what happened?"

Mrs. D.—The curate felt himself insulted and departed in dudgeon, and she's lost the only chance she ever had.—London Telegraph.

Perhaps.

Mr. Clubman—I see by the papers that a poor young man who lost both his legs while saving the life of a beautiful heiress at a railway crossing is to marry the girl. She dismissed all suitors and offered herself to him. Mrs. C. (meaningly)—Very sensible girl. She'll know where her husband is nights anyway.

Badly Balanced.

A witty Frenchman wrote at the commencement of this century a very interesting and amusing book bearing the title, "Les Agremens et les Chagrins des Mariages." In this work the first four pages are devoted to the "agremens" (joys) and the remaining 350 to the "chagrins" (sorrows).

Aiding the Mind.

First Tourist—What are you writing down?

Second Tourist—I'm making a note of a few things that have made an indelible impression on my memory, so that I shan't forget them.—London Idea.
